ABOUT OURSELVES

We are not at all fond of talking about ourselves and we do so in this instance somewhat reluctantly.

It has been brought to our notice more than once lately that there are some mistaken notions abroad respecting the ownership and control of the Kelowna Record. No doubt some insinuations which have been made on the public plattorm lately have given rise to these ideas, and perhaps all the more because we allowed them to pass unnoticed.

It might be as well, therefore, for us to make a few statements of our own which will leave no room for doubt.

In the first place, then, the Kelowna Record is not and never was owned by any company or group of individuals, the sole ownership and management being in John Leathley, to whom, therefore, all its shortcomings must be directly attributed.

No other individual locally or in the wide world than the aforesaid John Leathley has one five-cent piece invested in the Kelowna Record.

No political party, Conservative or Liberal, has any voice or influence in the policy or management of the Kelowna Record, and never, on any occasion, has the Kelowna Record received any money or the loan of any money from any party or individual as payment or inducement for political support—neither directly through the front door nor left quietly on the back steps—and no undue patronage further than in the ordinary way of business has been given to the Kelowna Record for any such purpose.

These are plain statements and we want it to be perfectly clear that there is no catch or joker in any of them.

In short, there are no strings on the Record of any kind, and we are perfectly at liberty at any time to give support or not to any movement or political candidate as our judgment dictates without interference from any quarter.

The above are matters of fact but there are still some matters of opinion, especially in connection with the present political contest, which we would like to mention.

Although many people have fallen into the habit of regarding the Record as a Conservative paper yet it is a fact that we have never in our columns claimed direct allegiance to any party. It is true that we hold the belief and have freely expressed it, that many excellent legislative measures which have been before the provincial government during the past year or two, and especially some which are included in the present government programme, are deserving of the support of every intelligent and fair-minded man. It is also true that while we believe the present government's actions and personnel are open to criticism on many points, we have not joined in the Liberal hue-and-cry against the government, a campaign which we believe to have been largely insincere and prompted in a great measure by rival political ambitions.

In fact, we believe that the country has had enough of party politics, and that cleaner, saner, and more efficient government would result from the dropping of such mischievous distinctions.

But as a local paper we are concerned more with the affairs of our own district.

We feel that this district is at present passing through a crisis in its development which makes it imperatively necessary to put forth every energy and marshall every available force and intelligence if we are to make any progress at all towards becoming a prosperous community on a more sound and permanent basis than hitherto.

In the selection of a representative for this riding this fact should be borne in mind, and the temptation to go off into, what to us at least, are side issues, resisted. Our representative in the provincial house must be a man who has a close practical knowledge of our local affairs, the time and energy and loyalty to the district to devote himself to the solution of our problems, and business and financial experience which will enable him to speak with authority when our problems are presented to the government.

We have frankly supported the candidature of Mayor Jones for the position of our political representative, not because he is a Conservative but because we believe him to be the most suitable candidate available.

We may be right in this or we may be wrong, but in justification of our position we might say that we have been for many years now thrown into very intimate contact with most of the undertakings and movements and problems of the district and have had therefore a little more than the ordinary opportunity for observation on which to base conclusions.

We know of nothing in the past record of Mayor Jones which should not give us every confidence that his well recognized ability and energy will be given faithfully to our interests here, as they have always been in the past to any movement for the good of the district. His activities in many lines of useful public service are too well known to need further comment here.

At the same time we have refrained from any harsh criticism of the Liberal candidate, Mr. L. V. Rogers, for whom we entertain a real personal regard and respect, and for many reasons we regret that we do not feel justified in assisting him in what might be under other circumstances a perfectly legitimate and laudable ambition.

Well, we started out to say only a few words, and as often happens, we have said a good many. But it is the plain unvarnished truth, and we feel tempted to now conclude by saying to those who are disposed to cavil at the motives of the Record, as they used to say in Yorkshire, after indulging in a little straight talk, "Put that in your pipe and smoke it"!

An Island of Bones

Alaska has her skeletons—not mere reminders of exploitation, but real bones. They are on the Pribilof Islands over an area of a mile long, a mile wide, and many feet deep. Secretary of Commerce Redfield points out their value as fertilizers, and if grinding and transportation facilities can be found, here is an important material that will go a great way toward meeting our needs for phosphorus and nitrogen for the soil.

It seems that many generations of seals dying on the coast of the Pribilof Islands have laid up this reserve of fertilizer which has been discovered just at the time when we need it most Despite the many surveys that have been made for fertilizing material, a critical need is still to be met by the new discovery. The day of our starvation as the result of an impoverished and barren soil is thus pushed into the more remote future.—The Country Gentleman.

DOUKHOBORS TO FIGHT

Ninety Doukhobors of the Yorktan district, Saskatchewan, have joined a local battalion for service in Europe. The religion of the sect is against war and violence in general, and some of its members have been persecuted in the past for their beliefs. The recruits who have taken up arms must be convinced that their is a time when fighting is justified and that that time has arrived. The incident also may be an indication that the younger people among the Doukhobors are adopting Canadian ways.—Montreal Gazette.

According to the new Dominion Government regulations all farmers who sell butter either to the stores or privately, are required to have it properly covered in a wrapper on which MUST appear in prominent letters the words "DAIRY BUTTER." The fact is also emphasized that all butter in such packages must be of the full net weight of sixteen ounces, and in default of same a fine of from $10 to $30 for each offence is imposed. Whey butter must be so labelled even when mixed with dairy butter, and dairy butter retains its label though it be mixed with the creamery product.

MAKING A PLATITUDE CORRECT

Tommy was undergoing chastisement at the hands of his outraged mother for eating the jam.

"Tommy," she said, "this hurts me more than it does you."

And when Tommy was alone he produced a square piece of wood which he had placed where it was needed and murmured reflectively: I thought that board would not do her hand any good."

AN EXCEPTION

"Remember, my son," said the father, "that politeness costs nothing."

"Oh, I don't know," returned his young hopeful, "Did you ever try putting 'Very respectfully yours' at the end of a telegram?"

A young reporter who took his first check to the bank and was asked by the teller to endorse it on the back, wrote: "I heartily endorse this check."

Teacher: Name an animal that has bristly hair, a long nose, tiny eyes, and is always dirty through playing in the mud.

New pupil (dismally): Please, miss, that's me.

Guard (to boy passenger): Now then, young fellow, do you know you are travelling second class with a third class ticket?

Boy: I paid 2d for that ticket, and I got into a carriage with a 2 marked on it. What else could I do?

ECONOMICAL WIFE

"Henry, dear, the children are needing shoes."

"Needing shoes again. Do you think I am made of money? Where are the ones I bought for them just a few days ago? I suppose you have given them to some beggar under the impression that their father's amusement was to buy new ones."

"No, my dear, I have not given them away. I have put them through the meat chopper and will serve them tomorrow as hash. Be home early for dinner, dear."

The History of Gasoline

Gasoline first compelled public attention in the role of little demon of the kerosine or coal-oil lamp. In this capacity it kept the coroner and the insurance adjuster working overtime.

When crude oil was first discovered in the Pensylvania district the public received it as a cure all for disease instead of as a fuel or as an illuminant.

Then it was discovered that by subjecting it to distillation a certain portion of it could be used for lighting purposes, to supplant candles and lamps using whale oils and vegetable oils.

But it was found that a considerable fraction—about twenty per cent.—of this oil had so low a boiling point, was so volatile and explosive, that it was extremely dangerous in lamps. At the sign of the coal-oil lamp of that pioneer period fires and explosions were the prevailing programme.

It was soon seen by the refiners that if kerosine was to become popular as an illuminant, the "light boiling fraction" must be taken off the top and disposed of in some other way. For a considerable time it was turned into the nearest streams and allowed to dispose of itself by evaporation; but experience proved that this was a decidedly dangerous method of disposal. The refiners were forced to recognised the urgency of the fact that someway they must find a egitimate commercial outlet for this volatile fluid, which was so explosive that it could not be dumped without great peril to life and property.

Under the pressure of this economic necessity, about 1875, a man named Hull, who was in touch with the Cleveland refineries, invented a vapor stove which was the father of the gasoline stove of today. For a time this furnished a very considerable outlet. A considerable quantity of gasoline was also consumed at this period in street lamps and out-of-door lighting systems.

About 1903 the motor car with its internal combustion engine, appeared on the scene—just in time to rescue gasoline consumption from a decided setback, due to the fact that gas had come into general use for lighting purposes, and was able, on account of its greater cheapness and safety, to push gasoline out of competition to a great extent.

Gasoline has, in short, pushed King Kerosine from the throne. The outcast, the infant terror of the oil industry, has now become the czar of the whole empire of petroleum commerce, and there are few who do not pause at the sign of the garage pump to pay him tribute.—Forrest Crissey in the Saturday Evening Post.

Cyclist (knocking at cottage door): Can you tell me if there is a cyclists' shop around these parts. I have just turned turtle and smashed my front wheel?

Cottager: Then it's not a cyclists' shop you want. If you've turned turtle you'd better go to Brighton. They have a large aquarium there.

KELOWNA TROOP

Troop First! Self Last!

ORDERS BY COMMAND FOR WEEK ENDING MAY 13th, 1916.

Orderly parade for the week, Curlews
Next for duty, Eagles

Parades:

The combined troop will parade at the Club-room on Tuesday, May 9th at 7 p.m.

The bridge-building squad will parade at the Club-room on Friday, May 12th, at 7.30 p.m.

A Court of Honour will be held at the Club-room on Saturday, May 6th, at 4 p.m.

The Kelowna Scouts will remember with pride that Airman E.W. Leggatt of the Royal Flying Corps, who recently with the help of another airman brought down two German aeroplanes for which deed he received the Military Cross, was the Scout Master who started the present Kelowna troop of Boy Scouts.

In 1912 Scout Master Leggatt started a small troop of Boy Scouts in Kelowna. The troop started with two Patrols, the Wolf and the Otter. The two Patrol Leaders were F. Buck and A. DuMoulin, and the two Corporals were R. Keller and H. Burne. The little troop had its head-quarters in a good-sized tent in a field behind the residence of Mr. DuMoulin. Here they were instructed and examined by Scout Master Leggatt, who gave the troop such a start that it never once slipped back, and it has now grown to be the third best troop in the province of British Columbia.

At the out-break of the war Mr. E. W. Leggatt left Kelowna with the 102nd R. M. R.'s. He transferred from there and joined the Royal Flying Corps, where he has certainly done his bit for the Empire. He is also the first Kelowna man to gain such a distinction.

Recent tests have been the "Pathfinder" by Patrol Leader A. DuMoulin and Scout A. DuMoulin, before Mr. Groves on the 20th of April last. This test has to be passed annually. Patrol Leader J. Calder and Scout L. Gaddes passed their Cooking test for first and second class badges respectively, on Saturday, April 29th. Scout T. Taylor passed his Signalling test for the first-class badge on Monday, the 22nd of April, before Sergeant Chaplin. We wish to thank the examiners very much for their interest and trouble.

We had hoped to hold our concert during the week of May 24th, but we find it impossible to obtain the Opera House on any of the evenings of that week, except Monday, which is a little too early for us. We shall therefore have to have the concert a little later and either Wednesday the 31st of May, or Thursday, the 1st of June, will, we expect, be the date. Further announcements will appear later. We have been fortunate in being able to make arrangements for a piano with Mrs. R. Lambly, and in obtaining the services of Mrs. Calder and Mrs. Gilchrist to instruct the troop in singing and in a marching drill for the concert.

One day last week a small boy named Varney, while throwing stones into the lake, slipped and fell in. The water was over his head and he would probably have drowned had not another young boy named Wilson courageously waded into the lake up to his neck and rescued the child. This was a real "good turn" and we hope that as soon as young Wilson is old enough he will join the troop, as he has already shown what he is made of.

Patrol leader: I say, cook, this soup is full of sand.

Cook: I've been straining the beastly stuff for nearly an hour. You must put up with a little inconvenience while in camp, you know.

Patrol leader: I'm glad enough to serve my country, but that's no reason why I should have to eat her, too.

Pathfinder: There are at least 2,000 rabbits round and about this wood."

Tenderfoot: That's nothing unusual—farmer Jones owns at least 80,000 hares.

Pathfinder (in amazement): Wherever does he keep them all?

Tenderfoot: On his head, of course.

Spring Prospects of the European War

(By Lovat Fraser, in the 'Daily Mail')

Spring is here and the war is waking up.

It has not been slumbering on the Verdun front, nor in Armenia, nor on the Tigris, these many weeks. The approach of the thaw in Russia sees great armies wrestling for new positions in the north and in Galicia. But everywhere there are now signs of fresh movements, and we are perhaps about to enter upon the greatest struggle of the war.

Early last winter I cherished a secret belief that the war might begin to end next July, and actually finish about the end of October. I do not think so now, for it is clearer than ever that unless Prussia is invaded and the Prussians are beaten to their knees, this war in some form or other will always be with us. We had better get on with the war and not think too much about when it will end.

The battle of Verdun continues to rage intermittently, but there seems little doubt about its issue. The Germans have done exactly what they were permitted to do, and no more. They have not won an inch of ground which the French were not willing to yield in pursuance of their definite policy. The enemy have organized against the Verdun front the most formidable attack yet witnessed in the war, and they have utterly failed to achieve their purpose. They thus begin the spring with a deep consciousness of discomfiture, which has spread to their civil population.

We are now entitled to draw from Verdun a further proof that the western front is probably impregnable, at any rate for the present. The lesson is one which may be found to cut both ways, until the German numbers are very much diminished. More than that it would be unsafe to say, although a shrewd commentator has pointed out that the western front is tending to develope a series of rather ragged salients. The conviction remains as strong as ever that whatever may happen in other theatres, the war on land will be decided in the west. Wherever the Germans may go in their feverish search for a decision, always they must return to the calm and solid array of troops confronting them in France and Flanders.

After Verdun the next prominent factor in the situation is the internal condition of Germany. Personally I have never been much impressed by the stress laid upon Germany's weakening financial position. She is contracting huge liabilities among her misguided people which she will probably be unable to meet, and will perhaps eventually be compelled to repudiate; but shortage of cash is not likely to affect her attitude for a very long time to come. The shortage of certain kinds of food, as well as of certain materials needed for her staple industries, is of more immediate importance and its effect grows steadily less obscure. One who knows more about Germany's internal condition than most people said to me: "If we could only take the lid off Germany, the world would be astonished."

Yet we must not count too much upon Germany's desperate straits. The Hohenzollerns and military caste have staked their all upon the war. Their back is to the wall, and they know it. When they admit total failure, as they must in the end, the scales should fall from the eyes of the German people; but that time is a long way off. The Emperor and the Great General Staff are still masters of the situation, and are likely to remain so. Assuredly they still have the bulk of the people with them. Remember that this race of cunning barbarians have been preparing for 40 years to seek the mastery of the world. If they have to eat the soles off their boots, they will not yield at the end of twenty months.

Having once more thrust vainly in the west, the German military authorities apparently propose to strike at Russia. Report credits them with contemplating a move against Riga and Petrograd, and this time report is probably correct. They will have to operate in a very difficult country, especially if they reach the region of the Pskov lakes, and they will attack under very different conditions from those obtaining when von Mackensen began his march across Galicia last year. Two unfavorable factors should affect them. The first is the recuperation of Russia, who has recovered her balance and has new well-munitioned armies in the field. Russia will not again be caught unaware as she was last spring. Already she has begun a preliminary activity, and is endeavoring with considerable success to regain control of the important railway line from Vilna to Dvinsk. She is also pressing the Austrians in eastern Galicia, and is preparing to wage a campaign on her southern front which will be largely independent of the struggle in the northern area.

The second factor is that if Germany strikes at Russia this summer she will doubtless have to look to herself in the west also. The council of the Allies assuredly did not meet in Paris to talk about the weather. The principle of concerted action will come into play, and Germany may find that fighting on interior lines has disadvantages as well as advantages. Should the situation thus hinted at develope, the climax of the struggle on land may be at hand. But remember always that though this war began suddenly it is not at all likely to end suddenly. Our little South African war lasted for two years after its climax, which may be taken to be the fall of Pretoria.

Production and Thri

CANADA'S CALL FOR SERVICE AT HOM

Produce More and Save More

The Empire needs food. If you ar ing line you may be in the produ is limited—all the more reason to c before. Grow food for the men who are fighting for you. The Allies ne you can produce. Every little helps. You are responsible for your cannot produce as much as you would like, produce all you can. Work right spirit. Put fighting energy into your effort and produce now when it counts. The more you produce the more you can save. Producing and saving are war-service.

Make Your Labour Efficient

In war-time do not waste time and energy on unimportant and unprofitable work. Economize labour. Put off unproductive work till after the war, and, if possible, help in producing something needed now. Let us not waste labour. Canada needs it all. If possible help to feed the Allies. Make your backyard a productive garden. Cultivate it with a will. Make your labour count for as much as possible.

Do Not Waste Materials

There should be no waste in war-time. Canada could pay the annual interest on her war expenditure out of what we waste on our farms, in our factories, in our homes. Every pound of food saved from waste is as good as a pound of increased production. The way for a nation to save is for every individual to save. France is strong to-day because of thrift in time of peace. The men and women of Great Britain are not only "doing" but are learning to "do without."

Spend Your Money Wisely

Practise economy in the home by eliminating luxuries. Wasting our dollars here weakens our strength at the Front. Your savings will help Canada to finance the war. Save your money for the next Dominion War issue. There can be no better investment.

Fire at the Home of Dr. Gaddes

The Fire Brigade was called out yesterday immediately after the whistle blew for noon, to a fire at the home of Dr. Gaddes on Harvey Avenue. The damage was confined mostly to the roof, and was caused, it is supposed, by a spark from the chimney lodging between the shingles and being fanned into flame by the high wind prevailing at the time.

The house and furniture is the property of Mrs. Cather, being rented by Dr. Gaddes, who at present is in California on a visit, and but for the timely arrival of the brigade, might have proved the starting point of a big conflagration.

Pending repairs and renovation of the house which is well covered by insurance, Mrs. Gaddes and family have taken up residence at the home of Mr. H. D. Riggs on the corner of Ethel Street and Borden Avenue.
