City Needs Money to Finance Municipal Business

Tuesday next, November 30th is the last day upon which the usual rebate can be allowed upon the municipal taxes for the current year, and ratepayers should make note of this. City financing is beset just now with many difficulties, and in spite of the rigid economy which has been practised during past twelve months the situation is still bad enough to keep the finance committee busy figuring.

If the city is to keep all departments running it is certain that taxes must be paid, and it should be a matter of local patriotism to see that this is done wherever possible.

Recognizing the difficulties under which municipalities are laboring just now the legislature has carried out this year an important amendment to the Municipal Act which will no doubt have the effect of reducing the possibility of large outstanding arrears of taxes. Immediately at the end of the current year the taxes become delinquent and the city is empowered to sue in the ordinary way for the amount due, or after due notice to sell the property affected without waiting for a year or two to elapse as has hitherto been the practice.

Next Tuesday is also, it might be mentioned the last day for ratepayers who are holders of property under agreements of sale to register with the city clerk in order to secure a place on the voters' list for 1916.

The Presbyterian congregation have agreed to have their services in the church in future at two o'clock in the afternoon instead of in the evening as at present. Especially in the winter months, this will prove a decided advantage to those residing at a distance. The new arrangement will commence on Sunday next, Nov. 28th.

Private W. Scholl Writes from Egypt

Through the courtesy of Mr. W. Haug we are enabled to reproduce the following interesting letter from Private W. A. Scholl, who is fighting with the British forces in the Dardanelles. Private Scholl was one of the first of the Kelowna boys to leave for England on the outbreak of the war. As a reservist he was called upon to leave his situation in the office of Mr. W. Haug and return to his regiment.

Private Scholl's present address is:
Pte. W. A. Scholl,
No. 5090, "D" Company,

Citadel Barracks,

October, 14th, 1915

Dear Will,—Guess you have heard by now that I am in the land of mystery. I hope you received that long letter which I wrote from Gibralter, I don't think it could have been on one of those ships which have been torpedoed and sunk.

Well, we have been here about six weeks. The journey from Gibralter took nine days, and it was a lovely trip, almost like sailing down the Okanagan Lake. We kept very close to the African coast. Our first stop was at Malta for one day, thence proceeding across the Aegean Sea through the Archipelago islands to a place called Lemnos, which is only forty miles from the Dardanelles and is the base for the latter place.. There is a magnificent harbor there and it was full of naval craft of every description, from the submarine to the dreadnought. It certainly was a lovely sight. However, we only stayed there one day and continuing the voyage two days steaming brought us to Alexandria, where we landed, thence entraining for Cairo, about 150 miles inland. ...

I think we were lucky in making a safe passage as we passed over the same spot in the Aegean Sea, where the "Royal Edward" troopship was torpedoes a few days previously. We had over 2000 troops aboard, so we should have been a good prize for a submarine.

However, I am safe and sound as yet. Cario is a very large city, bigger than Vancouver, and possesses a very extensive street railway system. Travelling is very cheap, about all that is cheap too. There are not many Europeans here outside of the soldiers, have notices a sprinkling of French. The natives wear very quaint clothing, the married women especially The clothing is similar to a nun, and they wear a piece of round wood on their noses to denote that they are married. It appears very peculiar to us. They make very good use of the camels on which some big loads are stacked. ...

I have been out to the Pyramids and the famous Sphynx which are only ten miles from here. They are well worth seeing.

We are now doing our musketry course and next week start with our firing, in which I hope to do very well. I guess after that we shall be trained soldiers, so I wonder if we shall proceed to the Dardanelles.

A little while ago I was away for a couple of weeks to a place called Maadi with some of our fellows, guarding Turkish prisoners, there are about 2000 there. They seem to be contented enough and harmless. I suppose they know when they are well off.

There are lots of Australian troops in Cairo, whilst in our barracks is a considerable number of wounded soldiers. They have some awful tales to tell too. I hope this war will soon be over. How is business in Canada I hear they have a splendid harvest on the prairie which should do the country a world of good. ..

We are only paid one dollar a week on active service and as tobacco and things are very expensive we do not have much to spend on riotous living.

Well must now conclude, hoping you are all well and that times are more prosperous. Yours very sincerely,

BILLY.

P. S.—It is very hot here and the flies are troublesome.

Growers Should Organize For Orchard Protection

Interesting Articles on Orchard Protection by Mr L. L. Palmer Assistant Inspector of Fruit Pests

Last week under this same heading we discussed the organization of the "Fruit Protective Associations" in the state of Washington, and noted that their primary object was to assist in the complete eradication of fire blight and to foster a spirit of closer cooperation between the fruit growers and the Horticultural Inspection Department of the state. We now wish to continue this discussion. Nine of the best authorities on blight control in the north-west, including such practical fruit growers as W. P. Sawyer, the Wepate Pear King, who gave the fruit growers of British Columbia such an able address in Victoria at the B. C. Fruit Growers Convention in 1913; F. G. Carlisle of Kettle Falls, orchardist and one of the best known practical growers in Washington; F. E. DeSellem, Inspector at Large at North Yakima, and Prof. V. I. Safro, Entomologist of the Kentucky Tobacco Produce Company, producers of the well-known Black Leaf 40, all unite in unanimously supporting "Community Organization" as the most effective aid to the control of blight.

Mr. Luke Powell, of Prosser, Wash., says in regard to organized effort against blight: "Fire blight cannot be successfully controlled in any district where it is widely disseminated, unless the fruit growers are organized and cooperate in using the most efficient methods of eradication. I say this after four years of experience." Mr. Powell was the horticultural inspector who attracted such wide attention through his success in getting the business men of the city to turn out at 4.30 a.m. each day for several weeks to help the growers control the blight. In a personal letter to the writer, Mr. Powell gives this testimony of his work and efforts. "Now, the climax of the whole work came last spring, when we had a very severe attack of blight. The Grangers, or better say Ranchers and Commercial Club men were feeling quite kindly toward each other, when blight broke out so badly. Many of the ranchers were so discouraged they were ready to throw up and quit. I am frank to confess that I was up a tree myself, when Mr. L. L. Linn, president of the Commercial Club, county auditor, and a leader in the public spirit of the community work, came to me and offered me the help of the Commercial men to cut blight. I was to take from 18 to 20 out each morning at 4.30 a.m., superintend the work, and they would work until 7 o'clock, and return in time to go to work at eight. This did not appeal to me at first and I turned it down, but later in the day a rancher came to me asking for aid and so I proposed to him to bring out these green gentlemen and cut his blight. He agreed and so we tried it out. Before the season was over we cut for about six weeks. We had sixty men enlisted, lawyers, preachers merchants, doctors, retired ranchers, business men, and even visitors. The crews of twenty men went every third morning, the business men furnishing the machines. They did good work, and healed any breach between the rancher and town man so tightly that so far there has not been the slightest showing of a break. Other communities copied after ours, but they did not seem to get the results and I think I can sum that up in a few words, "Our men did not do this because someone else did, but because they had the community at heart," The business men of Prosser realized that on the success of the orchardist depended the success of their different enterprises, and they faithfully gave of their time and money to help the fruit grower. However, they would not have turned out as they did, if they had not, first of all, realized that the ranchers were organized, and doing all they could for themselves. knowing this, they gladly put forth their best efforts in protecting the interests common to the community. Help yourselves, fruit growers of British Columbia by organizing, and you will find not only the support of your neighboring town men behind you, but that of the provincial government, which will quickly recognize and appreciate your efforts.

It is this spirit and principle of cooperation, backed by united action, that is most needed to make fruit growing districts prosperous centres. An orchardist cannot make the greatest success, unless the community in which he is located, is generally prosperous. Only by pulling together to combat the problems common to each neighborhood, is the full advantage of the efforts of each and every grower obtained. These advantages in turn are the results of organized effort, and are well established in the state to the south of us, through the medium of the "Fruit Protective Association." Fruit growers and business men, unite in testifying to the work'n practicability of this.

In studying the Fruit Protective Associations as applied to the control of blight in the State of Washington, it has occurred to the department of agriculture that these organizations should serve equally well in fightin all pests and diseases peculiar to the separate districts of the fruit growing area in the interior of the province. In recognizing that blight is a community problem and not an individual one, since each infection may be the source of blighting the neighboring orchards, it is quite apparent that most of our common pests are equally general, and that the advantage obtained from organizing to fight blight, would apply in controlling such pests as Aphids and scale insects, or such diseases as Apple Scab and Powdery Mildew. Whatever pest or disease threatens the orchards of a community, united action by growers is sure to prove more effective and cheap, than individual, spasmodic effort. ...

Growers Do More For Themselves

The department of agriculture has always done a great deal for the fruit grower. It has freely and ungrudgingly given support along every line of endeavor, and has given serious consideration to all requests made by growers for assistance. There is now an increasing sentiment among orchardists of the province, that growers should do more for themselves, and in offering to each orchard community the opportunity to form a Fruit Protective Association under the guidance of the department of agriculture, the government feels that a step toward making this possible for the growers has been taken. It will however rest entirely with the growers just how strong the organizations become, and to what extent the growers in any community are willing to meet each other on the basis of give and take, necessary to gain united action.

Government Support

In suggesting that fruit growers organize the government does not want to give the impression that it intends to stop doing its share toward making the orchard industry a success. Far from that; but it does feel and realize that with orchard interests united. it can more quickly, economically, and effectively, carry on its efforts in your behalf. At present, each district fruit pest inspector has a very large orchard area to cover, and with more orchards annually coming into bearing age, the difficulties of properly helping growers to control the pests and diseases is constantly increasing. To meet this under the present system of inspection, a great many more inspectors would soon be required to patrol adequately the orchards, report the presence of pests, and suggest control measures in time to be of value. Often an inspector may pass through several orchards before he finds a grower who is in real need of assistance,—in other words, the inspector has to hunt out the grower who needs him most. Of how much assistance could the inspector be if he could go directly to those who need him most—how many more could he serve in a day, how much more certain could the inspector be of keeping in touch with the real orchard problems of his territory. The department feels sure that with the fruit growers organized, those needing assistance will promptly report to the chairman of his neighborhood, who, if the case requires immediate attention, will phone the district inspector, and in other cases will drop him a line, asking him to call when passing that way. The district inspectors, by keeping in touch with the chairman, can outline their inspection routes each day, and so save needless tramping through orchards, and loss of time.

Advantage to Outlying Districts

It is not possible to furnish every orchard community with a district inspector, and many sections with a large number or orchards have not received such attention as have the more heavily settled districts. At such points, fruit protective associations should prove of great assistance, and regular visits of the nearest inspector could be obtained by making the request through the chairman. Consequently these organizations will make it possible for the government men to cover a larger area, and increase the efficacy of the inspection service without added cost.

If you are a fruit grower, take the first opportunity that comes to you to discuss this question with the district inspector. It is the intention of these articles to point out to fruit growers what the 'Fruit Protective Association' is, and what service it can render to you, if you do your share in cooperation....

Next week an outline of a working organization will be suggested and discussed, for which we request your close attention.

Hospital Jumble Sale Proves Great Success

The Kelowna Hospital will benefit to the extent of about $429 by the various efforts made on "Dollar Day" to raise funds to relieve the heavy pressure of debt. This sum includes the "Jumble Sale" the raffle of the pony, the girls afternoon tea in the Kelowna Furniture Co.'s store, and some cash donations.

The "Jumble Sale" drew together an amazing amount of miscellaneous articles of every description, and the sale took up the most of the afternoon and evening. Mr. J. C. Stockwell kindly gave his services as auctioneer. About fifteen boxes of apples, a ton of vegetables and fifty quarts of jam were left unsold, and have gone to the hospital for use. A number of miscellaneous articles also failed to find buyers and Mr. Stockwell has had these removed to his warehouse where an effort will be made to dispose of them privately.

The raffle of the pony created considerable interest and no fewer than 440 tickets were sold, realizing $110. In the drawing which took place in the evening Mr. G. A. McKay found himself the possessor of the pony. Mac's ambitions however do not lie in the direction of the race track and he very generously refused to accept the steed but turned it back to the hospital. It is now in Mr. Stockwell's hands to accept the best offer, and the proceeds will go to swell the funds.

The hospital directors are desirous of expressing their gratitude to all who contributed to the sale or helped in any way. It had been intended to personally thank everyone, but the contributions came in so thickly the last few days that they had to leave their thanks to be expressed through the medium of the paper.

New Farmers' Organization Being Formed in the District

Object is Mutual Aid and the Protection of Interests

During the past few days a series of meetings has been held amongst the farmers in the different country districts in furtherance of a movement which has for its object the union of bona fide farmers into an organization for mutual protection and assistance. The new organization which owes its inception largely to the efforts of Mr. J. L. Pridham is to be called the "British Columbia Agricultural Organization Association," and already branches have been started in Glenmore, Ellison, East Kelowna, Rutland, Benvoulin and Mission.

As explained by Mr. Pridham the idea is to get together a combination of bona fide farmers who will make it their business to see that farmers get fair treatment in the marketing of their produce and also to co-operate in various ways for the general good of the agricultural community. The organization is to be altogether apart from government control or influence, a feature being that none but bona fide farmers should be eligible for membership, and that all who hold office in any shipping concern or company should be excluded.

Lack of organization, it has been pointed out at several of the meetings has always left the farmer open to be made the tool of those who were seeking their own profit, and it has been felt for some time that the farmers should have a means of making their wishes known and respected unhampered altogether by the admixture of interests not identical with their own.

The various Grain Growers' Associations of the prairie provinces were cited as instances of the great individual benefits which came from union of interests.

That the idea has met with general approval in the district is evidenced by the readiness with which the farmers are entering their names for membership and it is believed that in a very short time few of those eligible for membership will remain outside.

The plan of organization is to form "locals" in each of the several districts, with president, vice-president, secretary and committee of five, with a central executive representing the different locals. It is the intention at the earliest possible date to extend the organization to every part of the province.

On Saturday evening next a meeting is to be held in Raymer's Hall,

The officers elected in the various locals formed so far are as follows:

Glenmore.—Pres. C. C. Prowse; Vice-Pres., Mr. Lewis; Secretary-treasurer, G. A. Melville; Committee, Messrs C. F. Bush, Moberly, Ritchie, J. A. Bigger and R. A. Copeland.

Ellison.—Pres. Tom Morrison; Vice-Pres., A. E. Latta; Secy.-Treas., R. Booth; Committee, T. Orchard, J. Conroy, J. F. Guest and G. Guest.

Rutland. — Pres., Leslie Dilworth; Vice-Pres., W. G. Schell; Secy.-Treas., W. F. Schell; Committee, Geo. Munford, W. H. Fleming, S. T. Elliott, E. Mugford and Earl Clever.

Benvoulin.—Pres., A McQuarrie; Vice Pres., C. E. Weeks; Secy.-Treas., M. P. Casorso; Committee, R. Hall, J. Casorso, W. Scott, A. Reid.

The names of the officers appointed at East Kelowna and the Mission are not yet available.

Distribution of Registered Seed

The entire dependence of the province upon outside points for farm seeds of all kinds has been one of the weak spots in the agricultural industry, and one which has lately been receiving some attention from the department of agriculture. In an endeavor to induce farmers to make progress towards a better condition of things in this respect the department is undertaking the distribution this year of quantities of registered seed which will form a good start in the right direction.

The following circular which has just been issued by the Deputy Minister, Mr. W. E. Scott will explain itself.

Department of Agriculture,
Victoria, B. C.
November 5th, 1915.

To Members of Farmer's Institutes.

The object of the 1916 seed distribution is the distribution of registered seed of the stable mixed farming crops among as many of the farmers of British Columbia as possible so that every one may be enabled to secure and in the future to produce, within the province all the registered seed necessary for the improvement of the crops of the province.

Our experience in former years has convinced us that the good accomplished by such a policy is only limited by the number of farmers reached. Accordingly we are this year endeavoring to place sufficient registered seed to sow from one to two acres within the reach of every institute member In order to accomplish this it is necessary to ascertain early the exact quantity of seed necessary and to secure sufficient high grade seed to meet the demand before the available supply is exhausted.

In view of this we are forwarding with this circular a requisition form which you may fill out according to the following rules which will govern this winter's seed distribution.

Rules and Regulations

1. That certain registered seed varieties will be offered for crop improvement as follows: (a) Registered Marquis or Red Fife wheat not more than four (4) bushels to one member at 3 cents per pound; (b) Banner or Garton's No. 22 oats not more than six (6) bushels, to one member at 2½ and 3 cents per pound respectively. (Garton's No. 22 is a variety adapted to coast conditions); (c) Corn of one of the varieties listed below—not more than 3 pounds to one member at 5 cents per pound. (In ordering state, first, second and third choice) Minnesota No. 13, Northwestern Dent, Longfellow, Wisconsin No. 7, Quebec No. 28 (d) Slugstrop Mangel seed, not more than five (5) pounds to one member at 30 cents per pound. We have about six hundred (600) pounds of this seed, grown by J. M. Steves, Steveston, B. C., which we purpose distributing in small lots preference being given to applicants in order of receipt of orders; (e) Alfalfa seed northern grown, not more than five (5) pounds to one member at 20 cents per pound. A nominal charge of 25 cents will in future be made for alfalfa nitro culture money to accompany order.

2. That registered seed will be offered for general seeding in larger quantities than the above at: Wheat 3 cents per pound; Oats 2½ and 3 cents per p ound; Corn 6 cents per pound; Mangels 30 cents per pound; Alfalfa 30 cents per pound.

3. That if sufficient seed of the desired grade cannot be secured to fill all applications, the said applicant will be notified and their money refunded before January 31, 1916.

4. That in the event of a seed shortage—after the seed for crop improvement has been alloted, the applications for seed for general seeding shall be filled in order received by the department.

5. That the department of agriculture does not purpose distributing the seed as a commercial enterprise, and accordingly where the money paid for the seed by the farmer exceeds the actual cost of the seed to the department, a refund will be made.

6. That the department of agriculture does not purpose to carry on this branch of the work indefinitely, and urges the farmers to familiarize themselves with the practise of seed selection.

7. That in view of the above, all members securing registered seed from the department of agriculture shall upon application, be recommended by the department for membership in the Canadian Seed Grower's Association.

8. That all applications for seed shall be delivered to the secretary of the local farmers' institute before December 18th, 1915.

9. That the secretary of the local farmers' institute shall countersign all applications for registered seed submitted by the members, and forward same to the soil and crop division, live stock branch, department of agriculture, Victoria, B.C., before December 18thi 1915.

10. That cash accompany all applications.

11. That the department shall pay all freight charges to nearest shipping point of purchaser.

Note.—That during the month of January, 1916 we will hold provincial seed grain fairs at New Westminster and Armstrong. Prizes to be awarded as per page 11 of Field Crop Competitions Bulletin No. 61. Plan to attend one of these fairs.

W. E. SCOTT,
Deputy Minister & Supt. of Institutes.

SYNOPSIS OF COAL MINING REGULATIONS

Coal mining rights of the Dominion in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, the Yukon Territory, the Northwest Territories, and in a portion of the Province of British Columbia, may be leased for a term of twenty-one years at an annual rental of $1 an acres. Not more than 2,500 acres will be leased to one applicant.

Applications for the lease must be made by the applicant in person to the Agent of Sub-Agent of the district in which the rights applied for are situated.

In surveyed territory the land must be described by sections, or legal subdivisions of sections, and in unsurveyed territory the tract applied for shall be staked out by the applicant himself.

Each application must be accompanied by a fee of $5 which will be refunded if the rights applied for are not available, but not otherwise. A royalty shall be paid on the merchantable output of the mine at the rate of five cents per ton.

The person operating the mine shall furnish the agent with sworn returns accounting for the full quantity of merchantable coal mined and pay the royalty thereon. If the coal mining rights are not being operated, such returns shall be furnished at least once a year.

The lease will include the coal mining rights only, but the lessee may be permitted to purchase whatever available surface rights may be considered necessary for the working of the mine at the rate of $10 an acre.

For full information application should be made to the secretary of the Department of the Interior, Ottawa, or to the Agent or Sub-Agent of Dominion lands.

W. W. CORY.

Deputy Minister of the Interior.

Montreal Submarines Travel a Long Distance

A number of submarines were built and launched at Montreal during the past summer. These boats—ten in number—are now operating at the Dardanelles and in the Baltic and the North Seas. During September they sent to the bottom of the Baltic the German battle cruiser Moltke and several merchant ships carrying contraband of war to German ports. More recently they destroyed a large number of ships laden with Swedish ore destined for the great German arsenals at Essen and elsewhere. In the Dardanelles and the Sea of Marmora they sent to Davy Jones' locker several of the Turkish transports conveying troops to the Gallipoli peninsula.

These submarines crossed the Atlantic in groups of four and of six. The first lot left Montreal very quietly and proceeded down the river to the Gulf of St Lawrence. They they went to St. John's, Newfoundland. No accident had happened of any kind, and the men on the boats were enthusiastic about their performances. A short rest was made at St. John's and then they started on the most dangerous stage of the voyage—the trip across the broad Atlantic. They had supplies of torpedoes, oil, food, clothing and water. A freight steamer, which had been converted into a machine shop, was selected to convoy the submarines and to be on hand in case of accidents. Two British cruisers, the Calgarian and Canada, armed and munitioned, completed the fleet of convoys. The submarines proceeded in close company with the mother vessel behind and the two cruisers guarding the column. In less than eleven days they arrived at the British naval base on the west coast of Ireland, where they were inspected by leading officers. Then they went to Portsmouth. They were later ordered to the North Sea and to the Baltic, where according to reports from the British Admiralty, they have since given good accounts of themselves.

The other four made the voyage across the Atlantic just as the first six did. At Portsmouth they took on a full supply of oil and then set out on the second leg of their voyage. They passed down the English Channel crossed the Bay of Biscay, and stopped for a short time at Gibralter. They then proceeded to Malta, and finally joined the British fleet operating at the Dardanelles. Some were despatched through the Straits into the Sea of Marmora where they sent to the bottom several transports laden with Turkish troops.

Each submarine is about 160 feet in length and is capable of making fourteen nautical miles on the surface and about nine miles when fully submerged.

From Montreal to St. John, is about 1,200 miles, from St. John to the coast of Ireland, 2,000 miles, from Ireland to Portsmouth, 400 miles, from Portsmouth to Gibralter, 1,200 miles, and from Gibralter to the Dardanelles 2,200 miles. Four of these submarines therefore, covered a distance of over 7000 miles in making the voyage from Montreal to the Dardanelles—quite the longest journey ever made by boats of this type. The remarkable trip was made without a mishap of any kind.

VERY PRACTICAL WOMEN

In 24 hours the women of England made enough respirators for all the Beitish troops at the front. The war office's appeal was published on a Wednesday morning and on Thursday at 2.30 the following official communication was issued: "Thanks to the magnificent response already made to the appeal in the press for respirators for the troops, the war office is in a position to announce that no further respirators need be made."

How many hundreds of thousands of respirators have been made it is impossible to estimate. Overwhelming quantities arrived at the Pimlico depot according to the English papers. They were placed for the time being in any spot which chanced to be vacant, but soon there was no space at all. Women thronged the drug, surgical and haberdashery departments of all the big stores buying material or ready-made respirators. At Selfridge's in London a woman demonstrator was in attendance to show how the cotton wool was folded and wrapped in the gauze, and a constant throng of women crowded round the counter eager to learn.

Sir. Richard McBride cabled Hon. J H. Turner, agent general in London instructing him to make arrangement to see that suitable gifts shall be forwarded from London to those British Columbia soldiers who are imprisoned in Germany. Plum puddings and other seasonable dainties will be forwarded by the agent general, who has bee also told to augment the food supply of the men by ample quantity of good British Columbia canned salmon.

With Such a Short Time Limit to Clear Out the Balance of Stock

We have again got to let down the Low Price Drag Net with price mesh so small that every dollar will be dragged into the store between now and December 24th, when Rae's Cash Store will close up for good, if not, before

You will find many articles you want in Dry Goods, Men's Furnishings and Clothing and Boots and Shoes for the whole family, and in many cases for Less Than Half the Regular Value

Do not be disappointed if you cannot find everything you want at this store, as the stock is fast getting depleted. But you will certainly find many things and in most cases find them being disposed of at Less than Wholesale Prices. Our price cuts will be astonishing from now until the store is closed for good which will be December the 24th. Rather than move stuff, we'll sacrifice it.

Clear Out the Stock At Any Price are Mr. Rae's instructions, and close the store. Come in anyway, and see the stock we have got, for you will never again get such price cutting, for we have gone the limit

American Writer Says Huns Will Strive for Peace

"From now on Germany will be found working in every manner possible to bring about a declaration of peace. She has driven into Russia as far as she is likely to go because the territory already taken will require organization and if it is to be held will require an army occupation of 1,000,000 men. Belgium alone demands an army of the same kind totalling 250,000. When these immense forces are taken from the armies which must be used against the allies it can easily be recognized that the Teutonic allies have gone about as far as they can hope, and that they now have every reason to wish for a cessation of hostilities."

This is the view taken of the present situation by Mr. Arno Dorch, who spent ten months at the front as the representative of World's Work and the New York World. In that period he was with the British, the French and the German armies, and his observations lead him to believe that the organization of the two former at the date of his departure, about two months ago, was as perfect as that of their enemies.

"I do not believe that the Germans can can hope to penetrate the line of steel which holds them back on the western frontier," he says. "They failed to occupy Paris in 1914 when they had the bulk of their resources in men, artillery, etc., bent to the task, and I don't care how many army corps they bring to the west, I cannot see how they can hope to break through now with France and Britain thoroughly prepared for any eventuality. When I left the latter's defence was consolidated. It was hard as steel, from the sea to Switzerland, and it is my firm conviction that if Germany makes any attempt it will meet with ignominous failure."

A Copenhagen despatch states that a flotilla of British submarines numbering from 10 to 25 was convoyed into the Baltic.

The London Globe which was suspended two weeks ago for publishing a statement that Kitchener had resigned, has been allowed to resume publication upon apologising to the government.

What Zeppelin Should Do

The Italian inventor, William Marconi, gave the United Press an interview recently on the air raid, saying:

"If I were Count Zeppelin I should protest loudly before the whole world against the Kaiser using my invention as I saw Zeppelins used recently. If my inventions killed innocent women and children like that, I would cry out before the whole world. It is unknown how many were killed, but if 50,000 were slain, it would unchange the course of war.

"Such slaughter unaffects war. The Germans might as well have slain women and children in Berlin, so far as it affects the war."

Marconi paused a moment and then slapped the desk with a terrible slap and said:

"Thank God, they can't kill with my invention. Count Zeppelin, who gave his life to airships, stands in a sorry plight in the world of science. The Kaiser, out of pity for him alone, should stop this dirty work. I know the Kaiser, and he won't order it stopped!"

He was asked: "Have you met the Kaiser?" and he answered: "Yes ten years ago we had dinner together in Rome. It ended in a quarrel. I told him the Germans stole my inventions. He got angry. I consider him a forceful man, but an egotist. He never forgets for one second that he is Emperor of Germany."

A big German Dreadnought, one of the latest type was reported Monday to have struck a mine in the Baltic and sunk. Thirty-three of the crew were drowned.

Sir Wilfrid Laurier Saturday celebrated his seventy-fourth birthday and received many congratulatory telegrams from Canada and abroad. The Liberal leader has entirely recovered from the effects of the operation of a couple of months ago and is now in good health.

Pope Benedict, at the next consistory will renounce all claim to temporal authority. The pontiff takes this step to guarantee his liberty in spiritual work, anh to allow of his presence at the general peace conference following the war.

Christmas Cards

in most delicate designs and colourings

It would be extremely hard if not impossible to dissociate Christmas from that indescribable sentiment and feeling of goodwill with which we are all so familiar. In many cases, however, no matter how one feels, or may wish to shake old friends by the hand, we find that circumstances forbid our uniting around the Yule log. Still, we feel that more than a casual thought should be bestowed on those at home—or far away—hence the time honored custom of greeting by card remains with us, gaining favor as the years roll on.

You have been "thinking about" ordering your cards. Let us remind you that our albums are open for inspection. Orders have been coming in during the week.

Botanical Notes

Below is given a continuation of the wild flower color table, the numbers referring to the list of flowers:

REDS.—Coral red or pale scarlet is the color of the honeysuckle Loncera ciliosa (186). Scarlet is represented by the scarlet Gilia, 47, and appears in our Columbine (42). The Rose-lips (170) and Bearberries (16) are scarlet to tomato red and fire red.

The carmine red in autumn leaves and fruit of Sumac (Rhus glabra, 136) is the most brilliant color we have. Morocco red and blood red are among the autumn colors. Antique red often appears in stems, and is in the spike of the large Dock (Rumex, 176), which also shows Indian Lake and coppery red. Indian Lake, also called Corinthian red, to violet old rose are the summer colors of both the Eriogonums on Knox Mountain (E. heracloides, 82, and E. Niveum, 102). Strawberry red is the brilliant color of the Goosefoot "Strawberry Blight" (142.)

ROSES.—Two kinds of Persecaria or Smart weed (116, 117) are deep rose pink; the Northern Willow herb, 139, is pale lilac rose; and Alsike clover, 198, violet old rose. Purple or Plumed Avens, 170, is deep lilac rose to purple lake. The under leaf colors of Sumac in autumn is madder carmine.

PURPLES.—Purple garnet appears in some autumn leaves and in some stems It is the same color as that of the inside of the Maynard Plum to which Mr. DeHart has introduced us. The Bitter-root (60) is rosy majenta. The disk florets of the asters often turn to vinous purple, which is also shown in the bracts of Prunella vulgaris (86).

VIOLETS.—Majenta is the color of American Cowslip (6), and of the tall willow-herd (103). Meadow Clover (197) is a sample of carmine or iris violet. Common Fleabane (22) is lilac and in bud purplish mauve. Wavy-leaved Thistle (68) is pale light lilac. Nearly all our Calachortus Lilies (81), and most Field Thistles are V. Heliotrope. Blue Vervain (90) is Bishop's violet; Purple Bergamot is petunia violet. Maple-leaved Mallow (100) is violet mauve. Aster canescens (192), is campanula violet.

BLUES.—The blues and violets are the Bee's colors. Our brightest blue is perhaps the Larkspur of dry slopes, delphinium bicolor. Showy Fleabane (95), and aster conspicuous (166) are aniline blue. Blue Cammas (59) Blue Lettuce (97) and Blue-eyed Grass or Bird's Eye are lavender blue to dauphin's blue. Even Sevres blue, which is the color of the American Robin's egg, and greenish blue are not represented, as they are found in berries turning from green to blue, as in "Oregon Grape" and as in the blue-berried variety of Cornel which when ripe becomes nearly a deep cobalt blue. The color of blue elderberries is near smalt blue.

GREENS.—Glaucous green and greyish Glaucous characterize most plants of dry localities, sages and others. Lyme Grass (110) has the Glaucus of Silver Fir. The flowers of Cleavers (52), are Sea green. Verdant green is the color of the deciduous fir, Larch or Tamarack, and of Field Horsetail (45) and shows in the arrow-shaped mark on the leaflets of Meadow Clover. The Giant Cedar, Thuja plicata, is near Aucuba or Laurel green. Quaker green, the "Type Green" is the color of the great majority of leaves. The Wolf's Cap lichen on pines is pyrite green, a yellow green.

BROWNS.—The dry persisting involucres of Milfoil are snuff brown, and also the seeds of the Milk weed. Bracken becomes dark fawn and dries to cinnamon. The fungus that imitates the dry leaves among which it grows is dead leaf color. Rust red is the latest color of Eriogonum niveum. Brick red appears in the disk buds of Gaillardia (69).

MAROONS.—Jewel-weed (102) shows red ochre; and mahogany comes in the involucre of Fly honeysuckle (36) and in the dry spike of Broad-leaved Dock (176). The bark of the Bull Pine (Pinus ponderosa) is dark Indian red. Vandyke brown appears in the gills of the common Mushroom (Agaricus campestris), and in Squirrel-tail Grass, (Hordeum jubalum). The head of the common Cattail is chocolate brown, (200).

BLACKS and GREYS.—Saskatoon berries, the r pe fruit of Involucred Fly honeysuckle (36) and others are reddish black. White Sage and other plants with much pubescence are greenish grey.

GILLETT'S LYE EATS DIRT

Correspondence

Editor Kelowna Record,

Dear Sir,—I have read with much interest Mrs. Kerr's botanical notes from week to week. Last week's notes on colors is one of great importance to naturalists and unless a uniform system of color nomenclature is adopted by all naturalists, confusion will become worse confounded. Mrs. Kerr remarks that botanists have still (sic) lost their way among the colors and refers to Ridgway's book of colors which is given the incorrect title of "Chromotaxia," the latter is the title of a work of Saccardo published in 1891. The correct title of Ridgway's work is "A nomenclature of colors for naturalists and compendium of useful knowledge for ornithologists," published in 1886. This work has long been out of print and copies of it are very scarce and valuable. In view of this and to bring color standardization up to date Ridgway published an entirely new work in 1912 entitled "Color Standards and Color Nomenclature," price $8.00. His first work contained 186 samples of named colors and the last one of the prodigious number of 1115, from this it can be seen what enormous advances have been made in twenty years in the scientific study of colors.

In looking through the list of colors for plants given by Mrs. Kerr I find that the following names are not used by Ridgway: Canary, Chrome Yellow, Ameolise, Sunflower Yellow, Indian Yellow, Saffron Yellow, Reddish Chrome Chinese or Persian Orange, Scarlet Orange or Minium, Reddish Apricot and of course none of the Whites, it being impossible to have a shade of white as white light is the sum of all colors. Here we have a good example of the need for uniformity. But of 24 colors mentioned by Mrs. Kerr only six are recognized by Ridgway in the most up to date scientific work on color nomenclature and the one which has been universally adopted by zoologists. I cannot speak for the botanists but I shall be surprised if they do not fall in line with other naturalists.

Yours faithfully,
LIONEL E. TAYLOR.

HOSPITAL FINANCES

Kelowna, B. C., Nov. 23, 1915

Editor Kelowna Record.

Dear Sir,—While the matter of the hospital financial position is still fresh in our minds I would like to make a suggestion which I think should commend itself to many and would undoubtedly help much to save the situation.

It has occurred to me that a canvas of the district should be made for a guaranteed annual subscription from all who are willing to give. Anything from $1.00 upwards per annum, payable on a definite date would enable the directors to know definitely what resources they could rely on at any given time.

It would save the directorate considerable anxiety; ensure to our excellent nursing staff an adequate remuneration for their services and I believe it would very soon place the hospital on "easy street."

As the Scots say "It's many a mickle make a muckle" and it would surprise many the amount that could be raised by each giving his little bit. The payment could be arranged either monthly, quarterly, half yearly of annually to suit the donor, but it would be expected that the donation be made on the date or dates fixed.

Yours faithfully,
SYDNEY H. OLD.

Among the recruits from Listowel expected at Stratford for the new 110th Overseas Battalion is Cecil Cavell, a young Englishman, first cousin of Miss Edith Cavell, the British nurse who was murdered by the Germans in Belgium. Young Cavell has been employed on a farm near Listowel.

Waste of Feed

The balance sheet on the average farm would show a much greater profit if less feed was wasted. So little is lost at a time that we do not realize our wastefulness, but if we would take the time to count up what is knocked out of the troughs by the animals and trampled under foot in one month's time we would be so surprised at the large quantity that we would all take steps to be more careful in the future.

One of the most common ways of wasting feed is to feed it upon the ground when the surface is wet or soft. Feed scattered about in this fashion will soon be trampled upon and buried under the mud. Pigs, especially, are wasteful of feed given to them in this way, but many feeders have realized the loss and have prevented it by building concrete feeding floors which will not only pay their cost in the feed they save in a few years, but enable the quarters to be kept in a more sanitary condition.

Feed may be wasted when it is fed in the mangers in excess of the animal's needs, This is a loss that is easily preventable, for the feeder if he is observing will know just how much the animal will eat up clean.

On some farms the great loss comes in overfeeding. In such cases much of the food that is taken into the system is not properly assimilated hence wasted. Some animals will stop eating when the stomach is full, while others will eat so long as there is anything before them. Animals such as the latter should be given only the amount of food that they require. This will depend on the kind and size of the animal, as well as the purpose for which it is used. In cases of overfeeding not only is food wasted, but some of the energies of the body will be taxed to dispose of the excessive amount and the horse will be injured instead of being benefited by the good intentions of the feeder.

Officers casualty lists for the fortnight ended Oct. 25th show that the British army in all theatres of war lost 474 officers killed, 837 wounded and 147 missing, a total of 1458, which brings the casualties since the beginning of the war to 19,668. Of these 6033 have been killed or have died of wounds, 11,952 wounded and 1683 recorded missing.

What are You Kicking About?

—You men who think you're UNDERPAID

Don't "cuss" your luck because your pay is small. Don't blame it on the boss. Don't think that the reason others get more pay is that they have more "pull," because it is'nt so!

The men who get big pay are those who are trained to do work that is worth it. You have no special training, and you have to do work that any man with two hands can do; therefore your pay is small—and you, only, are to blame.

YOU can earn more—YOU can work with your head instead of your hands—YOU can give orders instead of taking them. No matter what you do, where you live, or how old you are, the International Correspondence Schools can come to you and train you for a better job.

Every year more than five thousand persons take the trouble to write to the I.C.S. that their salaries have been increased through this training. These who report are but a handful—tens of thousands of others are benefited.

For 24 years the I.C.S. have been training men having no education other than ability to read and write, no more time than the odds and ends so commonly wasted, and no more money than the little that could be saved out of small wages.

If you want to be a high-salaried man—to be somebody—prove your ambition—

CHARACTERISTICS OF A GOOD COW

There are a number of characteristics that distinguish a good cow, but there are two that a good cow never lacks—they are invariable accompaniments. Take it where you will, and of whatever breed or type, a good cow always has a good head—a distinct dairy head—indicating strong vital and nerve force, and a capacious, roomy, well-formed udder. The head of a good dairy cow is never course and rough, but always clean and feminine, yet strong and matronly. The udder should never be deep and pointed, shaped like an inverted bottle, but broad in the lower surface and the quarters evenly developed and placed well apart. A good cow will have large prominent milk veins, and rich, soft, velvety skin.

These two things, remember, are the foundation for a profitable cow. They are not the only essential features, but a cow that has not these characteristics had better be discarded, even though she has a royal pedigree.

Earl Kitchener informed the Greek government on his recent visit to Greece that Britain will have 4,000,000 men in the field by March and also that 6,000,000 additional Russians will be available, according to a dispatch received at Paris. "Therefore" Earl Kitchener is reported to have told King Constantine, "the war will end only when Germany is decisively defeated."

"It looks to me like a horse in a bathing suit," answered little Arthur.

Quick, Direct Results.

There is nothing to equal newspaper advertising for quick and direct results.

Watch the advertising columns and see the class of merchants and manufacturers that use this method of publicity. You will find they are the most successful in their respective lives. Many of them have tried other methods, but experience has shown them that newspaper advertising has no equal in bringing results. The reason for this is that the paper is read in the home, when the mind of the reader is in a receptive condition, and on the lookout for anything that will make life easier or more pleasant.
