Kelowna Tops List at Canadian National Apple Show

Sweeping Victories of Kelowna's Exhibit Bring the Orchard City into the Limelight - In Competition With the World Kelowna Stands Supreme

CARLOAD SWEEPSTAKES AND FIRST IN DISTRICT DISPLAY

The Most Coveted Prizes in the Show - Wins Thirty-six First Prizes, Twenty-two Second, and Twelve Third

$3,151 Cash and Eight Gold and Silver Medals

Carload Exhibit Scores Highest Possible Marks

The magnificent success which has attended Kelowna's exhibit at the first Canadian National Apple Show at Vancouver has furnished still another object lesson to the world in general, and to prospective fruitgrowers in particular that the Krlowna district, of all places in the province, is preeminently suited to the cultivation of what has been rightly called "the king of fruits." Placed alongside the products of all the principal apple growing sections of the American continent, our fruit has stood the test, and demonstrated beyond dispute that be it due to soil, or climate, or sunshine, or a combination of all three, there are no apples grown which, for quality, flavor, size, or color, can claim superiority over those grown in the Kelowna district.

Though the previous remarkable achievements of Kelowna apples when placed in open competition at Spokane, New Westminster, and other places had warranted the expectation that some honors would be won at the great show just over, yet this latest triumph is a matter for sincerest congratulations not only to the Board of Trade, under whose auspices the exhibit was mainly gathered together by Mr. F. R. E. DeHart and Mr. B. Mc Donald of the Farmere' Exchange, and to the packers of the fruit, Messrs. Jack Sewell, J. Gibb, and Norman Lloyd, the excellence of whose work has contributed in no small degree to the success, but to the growers, whose careful and intelligent cultivation, aided by local conditions, has produced fruit of so fine a quality. The energy and skill which Mr. DeHart has dispayed in the engineering of the project, in the gathering together of the fruit and its artistic display at the show, would, of course, have been of littte avail without the grower to furnish the winners. A success of this kind is, or should be, a stimulus to each individual orchardist to do his level best to bring every tree in his orchard up to exhibition standard.

The show itself, universally admitted to have been the greatest and best apple show ever held, has marked an epoch in the history of fruit-growing in the province and the Dominion. Judges and visitors from all parts have been enthusiastic and unanimous in their praises of the amazing aggregation of choice fruit displayed at Vancouver last week. East and west on both sides of the line sent of their best, and competition generally was of the keenest description.

Kelowna's contribution was sent down principally by the Board of Trade. Mr. B. McDonald took charge of the carload entry, which was packed at the Farmers' Exchange under the care of Mr. Jas. Gibb. Mr. F. R. E. DeHart was responsible for District Display, the Limited, or "Two-two" displays. Mr. DeHart also entered privately on behalf of various growers in several box and plate classes. Mr. John Conlin, one of our most successful growers, also entered with great success in several of the box and plate classes.

Grand Sweepstakes

The premier prize in the apple show—the Grand Sweepstakes of $1,000 ($500 of which was given by the Central Okanagan Lands, Ltd.), and $100 gold medal—went to Kelowna, whose car of Jonathans has been pronounced by each of the judges to be the finest car of apples ever shown at any exhibition. In practically every respect the apples were perfect. Out of a maximum of 1000 marks possible, the exhibit was awarded 970.

In speaking with Mr. Martin Burrell, M. P., one of the judges, after the score cards had been handed in, stated that only for the fact that according to the rules of the American Pomological Society, which places the Jonathan apple at a disadvantage with other varieties, the exhibit would have been awarded the full maximum of marks.

The car also took the first prize of $500 in the straight Jonathan class, but was ineligible to receive the cash, owing to winning the sweepstakes. A remarkable feature about these apples was that not only in shape and color were they uniform, but in each of the 600 boxes there were exactly 120 apples not one more or one less in any box.

"The best I have ever seen," was Chief Judge Prof. H. E. Van Deman's comment.

Kelowna First in District Display

The first prize in this was $500 (afterwards increased to $1,000 by a special donation from the National Rescources Security Company), and $100 gold medal. Kelowna's display was one of the simplest on show, but scored well, owing to the high quality of the fruit. It consisted of a sloping violet-covered background on which the boxes were arranged in tiers. The whole was roofed with a pergola, supported on white fluted columns and decorated with maple leaves and flowers.

Gratifying Success in Ten-box Display

A pleasing feature and one which called forth no little comment was the fact that out of eleven classes in the ten-box display, Kelowna secured prizes in no fewer than eight of them, including five first prizes.

Altogether Kelowna has brought home no less than $3151 in cash, four gold medale, two of them valued at $100 each, and four silver medals. Seventy prizes in all have been secured: thirty-six firsts twenty-two seconds, and twelve thirds.

Medals were won for distinction in several lines: for most entries in all classes, for most first prizes in the ten-box displays and for most prizes in the plate section. The special gold medal, value $125 for the most first prizes won by a Canadian exhibitor, is especially valuable.

Mr. C. E. Weeks, of Benvoulin, won the $50 gold medal offered by the management as second prize in the "biggest apple" in the world contest, and Mr. G. H. E. Hudson, who took down a display of photographs of orchard scenes, carried off second prize of $50.

Kelowna's Winnings:

FIRST SWEEPSTAKES PRIZE of $1,000 and $100 Solid Gold Medal for finest carload of apples in the Show. This prize was won by a magnificent car of Jonathans, gathered together by Mr. B. McDonald of the Farmers' Exchange, and packed by Mr. Jas. Gibb. The exhibit was declared almost perfect in every respect. It contained 600 boxes, each holding exactly 120 apples, thus securing absolute uniformity, the style of pack being the same for every box. Only those who have the packing of cars of apples know what it means to secure such uniformity as that.

FIRST PRIZE OF $1,000 FOR DISTRICT DISPLAY and $100 Solid Gold Medal. The winning of this coveted prize is a distinct tribute to the quality of Kelowna fruit. Kelowna's exhibit was one of the simplest in the Show, but the quality of the fruit was unexcelled, and the high scoring for quality, color, condition, size and uniformity gave it the premier award.

SECOND PRIZE OF $125 FOR LIMITED DISPLAY or "Two-two Exhibit," as some call it. This exhibit is limited to two boxes, two barrels, two baskets, two jars and two plates. During November and December Mr. Gray is attending at his studio from Wednesday to Saturday inclusive.

John Gelatly happened a very painful accident last week whilst riding through the bush after some horses. He was in a battered condition when found, his face being fearfully bruised and cut. He was unable to say how it had happened, except that at first he must have struck a limb and knocked off his horse. Mrs. Gelatly was quite prostrated with the shock, coming as it does after their sad bereavement recently.

Messrs. E. C. Scott & Co., who have been delayed in the opening of their new store for some time owing to the non-arrival of their stock, have at last got word of its arrival. The store in the Keller block has been in the hands of the carpenters for some time past, but now all is in readiness, and as soon as possible, the stock will be unloaded from the car and placed on the shelves. A specialty is being made of houseeold and kitchen requirements, and a great variety will be shown. The business is to be run on a cash basis, cutting out the wasteful expense of the credit system. Tuesday is the date fixed for the opening.

City Council.

Appointments of Police Magistrate, Health Officer, and License Commissioner.

A meeting of the city council was held last Monday evening, the Mayor, Ald. Jones, Leckie and Cox being present.

The first business was the reading and adoption of the minutes of the preceding meeting, after which the following accounts were referred to the finance committee to be paid if found correct:

G. Markham, clearing office and fire hall	4 50

A communication was read from the Provincial Secretary stating that Mr. J. F. Burne had been appointed Police Magistrate of Kelowna, to act as such during the absence of Dr. B. F. Boyce. Another letter was also read from the same source stating that Mr. Edwin Weddell had been appointed a member of the Board of Licensing Commissioners in the place of Dr. B. F. Boyce, whose resignation had been accepted.

A letter was received from H. Bose, secretary of the Union of B. C. Municipalities, acknowledging receipt of names of delegates to the coming convention at Salmon Arm, and enclosing copies of the minutes of the executive committee and some proposed amendments to the Municipal Clauses Act from the B. C. Good Roads Association.

Dr. A. H. Huycke was appointed Medical Health officer for the city during the absence of Dr. B. F. Boyce.

It was then moved and seconded that By-law No. 80, to regulate the city's waterworks be read a second time, and the same be considered clause by clause in a committee of the whole council.

The meeting then adjourned until Monday next, Nov. 14th, at 8 p.m., the council going into committee on the Waterworks By-law.

Suicide at West Bank

At about eleven o'clock last Sunday morning Dr. Keller was hastily summoned across the lake to attend Mrs. Atelle McDougal, widow of Æneas McDougal, a one time famous hunter and trapper of the district, who the messenger said attempted suicide by shooting herself through the head. The woman was in a bad condition on his arrival, having evidently been shot through the mouth, the bullet coming out at the back of the neck, and in spite of careful attention died the next morning.

An inquest was held at the Court House last Tuesday afternoon before Coroner Morris, of Vernon, and from the evidence it appears that her son, August McDougal, was aroused at about 8 o'clock Sunday morning by cries from his mother, and going into the kitchen found her lying on the floor bleeding from the mouth, and a small 22 rifle lying in front of her.

Nothing could be extracted from the witnesses to account for the act and a verdict of suicide was returned.

Government Hydrographic Survey.

Provincial Government surveyors have practically completed for the season their work in connection with the hydrographic surveying of the irrigible lands of British Columbia. This season three parties commenced work in connection with this important undertaking in the Okanagan district, and next year a Province correspondent was informed, larger parties will in all probability be sent out throughout the entire province.

The hydrographic survey of the irrigation land is the preliminary step in the elaboration of the Government's policy to see that there is a fair distribution of water among the settlers in the great fruit and agricultral dry belt of the province, explained Mr. J. C. Dufresne, who is in charge of the survey party in Southern Okanagan; the second step was the formation of a commission with powers of adjudication in connection with all water records in the province. The board has held several sittings in connection with questions of records for power purposes and when the hydrographic surveys are completed will be furnished with material which will be used as a basis for deciding whether or not any given settler is entitled to a certain water supply. This policy of the Provincial Government, which aims at a fair distribution of water among the ranchers of the dry belt, will sound the death knell to the "water hogs" as those ranchers are called who control whole creeks for their own benifit. The Government policy will not of course interfere with private rights which have been acquired by purchase or otherwise.

The War Against The Saloon: Enlist!

With unanimity inspired of God, the Old Testament prophets and New Testament apostles are urgently hostile to the sin of intemperance. Hence we are in line with the most honorable, the most humanitarian and the most holy, when we enlist in the ranks of total abstainers, and work for the abolition of the traffic in strong drink. The specific reasons for enlisting are sufficiently clear.

1. Drink degrades manhood. Manhood may be described as that condition which is the accompaniment of, and the effect of, a sound mind in a sound body. Saloon alcohol and kindred poisons defile the body and weaken it, so that its functions are interfered with. Alcohol is not an aid to the muscular system, but an enemy. Scientific investigation has established this to a conclusion. And because of the intimate interrelation between the body and brain, this poison pollutes the nervous system, pulls reason from its seat, and unchains the brute nature that is in man. When one is drunk, he is either violent and dangerous, or simpering and rediculous. The gutter seems as desirable as his own home. This is degradation, and the cause of it ought to be abolished,

2. Drink disrupts society. "Society is the collective body of persons composing a community, especially when considered as subjects of civil government." Into this community we admit an agent that causes disorder, because it robs men of honor. Because of it the community is filled with shame. Evil is the same as good to the victim of the spirit of wine. The average saloon is a hotbed where vicious ideas are planted and nourished. Every commandment in the decalogue is broken by the work of the saloon. By the tears of the friend of the drunkard, by the loss of wealth to the land, by the menace to the young who are in the path of this curse, you are called to enlist against the saloon.

Drink dishonors God. We honor Him, when we trust, worship and serve Him. How can one do any of these, when he is in the thrall of drink? An attitude of indifference to the saloon is the depth of impiety, because it is a tacit admission that men can dispense with purity, wisdom and devotion to God. In God's name enlist! He demands purity of life in our bodily habits and in our thinking. We are required by Him to seek peace and pursue it. He has commanded us to remove the stumbling blocks from the path of the weak and the young. The saloon embodies the spirit of antagonism to all these requirements, and is an active agent in defeating the efforts of men to "live pure, speak true, right wrong."

The saloon is acknowledged to be a chief cause of poverty, crime and the debasement of society. It is everywhere the foe of the Christian church, and hinders what the church seeks to do to uplift mankind. It can be overcome only by those who have nothing to do with that by which the saloon lives, who give, by example and word and action and the weight of their influence against it.——Dunning.

In England, in one year, twenty-five persons were known to have died of hydrophobia, and thirteen hundred and fifty-six died of delirium tremens in the same year. The authorities shot the mad dogs and muzzled the others.

Canada spends $77,000,000. per year in strong drink, and $61,000,000. are lost through the drunkenness of workmen who are employed in industries.

There is not a vice, or a disease or a calamity of any kind that has not a rise, and frequently, in a public house.—The London Times.

A New York despatch states that the fact that the common stock of the Canadian Pasific Railway touched 202— the highest price on the record—caused a good deal of comment concerning the great railroad. It is recalled that the last time the stock touched the mark of 200 in the New York market was in 1906 in which year there was a bumper crop, and the stock touched 201 1-2. At that time there was but little competition in handling the wheat crop of the prairies, and the Canadian Pacific was practically alone in the great virgin field of Western Canada.

The Economy of the Prevention of Conveyance Losses of Irrigation Water

And Use of Concrete for the Economical Construction of Irrigation Structures

By Professor ETCHEVERRY, of the University of California

Read before the Fourth Annual Convention of the Western Canada Irrigation Association, held at Kamloops, B.C., August 3rd, 4th, and 5th, 1910.

(Concluded)

The cost of repairs of these structures after they have been constructed three or four years becomes quite an item, and at the end of six or eight years for pine, and eight to ten years for redwood, complete replacing is necessary. The annual cost of repairs and maintenance averages usually about 5 per cent. for the first three years and 15 per cent. for the next four or five years, averaging about 10 to 12 per cent. for the entire life of not over ten years. In addition to this should be added the cost of renewal, which if distributed over ten years will amount to 10 per cent. per year. The life of well-constructed redwood flumes and of wooden stave pipe is greater and may be as long as 20 years, but is usually 12 to 16 years, with practically no repairs the first five to eight years, but with considerable repairs afterwards, averaging not less than 8 per cent. yearly for the entire life. The cost of renewal distributed over the 16 years amounts to 6 per cent. per year. If we assume the interest on the capital invested to be 6 per cent., then the total annual cost for the structures of the first group is not less than 26 per cent. of the first cost, and for the second group 20 per cent.

Concrete structures, if properly constructed, will last forever; but assuming depreciation and repairs at 2 per cent. gives a total annual cost of 8 per cent. as compared with 26 per cent. for wooden structures of the first group, and 20 per cent for wooden structures of the second group. Based on these figures concrete structures are more economical if their first cost is less than 3 1-4 times the cost of wooden structures of the first group, and 2 1-2 times the cost of wooden structures of the second group. However, the actual cost of many concrete structures is much less than would be given by such ratios, and is often only a little higher than wooden structures. This is especially true of concrete built partly in the ground, for they require only simple forms, and when these forms can be used over many times, as where several structures of the same size are required, the cost is greatly reduced. For illustration, on the Orland project, in California, the average cost of several small drops was $32.82; the estimated cost for a wooden structure of the same size is $27.94, or 15 per cent. less. The average cost of 60 concrete turnouts was $25.50, as compared with $19.80, the estimated cost of wooden turnouts, which was 20 per cent. less. On the University Farm at Davis, California, a concrete check gate cost about 50 per cent. more than wooden ones. The Arkansas Valley Sugar Beet and Irrigated Land Company of Colorado have during the last few years constructed some very interesting reinforced concrete structures. The cost of two large reinforced concrete drops was $131 per foot of fall, and the corresponding cost of a series of substantial wooden drops was $120 per foot of fall. The wooden structures were built in 1899, but in 1904 were in such poor condition that the operation of the canal at full supply caused some uneasiness for fear of breaks, and they required complete renewal two years afterwards, making their life about seven years.

In a general way it can be stated that, as a rough approximation, wooden structures built in contact with the ground, such as gates, drops, etc., will cost in place, including excavation and backfilling, from $40 to $50 a thousand. Small reinforced concrete structures of the simplest type will cost $10 to $12 a cubic yard, ordinary reinforced concrete structures $12 to $16, and elaborate structures with thin reinforced walls $15 to $20. Usually a structures requiring 1,000ft. of lumber can be built with about 4 to 5 cubic yards of concrete, and the concrete structure will cost from 25 to 50 per cent. more.

With the structures of the second group, that is, wooden flumes and wooden stave pipes, the comparison is not quite so favorable to concrete as with the other structures. This is because of their longer life as compared with the wooden structures in contact with earth, and to the greater difficulty in constructing them of concrete. The cost per cubic yard of concrete is considerably greatly, especially for flumes crossing canyons and deep depressions, because this requires expensive forms to support it during construction and some skilled labor. For that reason the cost of concrete flumes may be as great as three times the cost of a wooden flume, in which case a wooden flume or a steel flume may be more economical, at least until the price of lumber increases. But there are conditions which will favor the use of concrete, for instance, the Modesto and Turlock systems of California have replaced all their old bench flumes, which aggregate several miles, running on the side hills by concrete channels formed by means of a wall on the down hill side, a slope lining on the up hill side and a concrete floor in between. This not only did away with the high cost of repairs and renewals, but has paid for itself in the additional security, because a break in their main canal has meant interruption of delivery of water, and has caused great damage to crops. As a rule, a concrete flume supported on columns should not cost over 2 to 2½ times the cost of a wooden flume.

As regards reinforced concrete pipes compared with wooden stave pipes, several of them have been built by the Reclamation Service, and a few on private projects, and their first cost is generally 1 1-2 times the cost of wooden stave pipes. They are therefore more economical, and should be used in preference. They are, however, limited to moderate heads. The maximum head to which they have been submitted successfully is about 100 feet. A large reinforced concrete syphon in Spain, 13 feet in diameter and 7 inches thick, is under a head of 97 feet. On the Umatilla project in Oregon reinforced concrete pipes 4 feet in diameter, 3 inches thick, have been tested successfully for pressures equivalent to 100 feet heads. For even these moderate heads careful work is necessary.

To summarize the above it may be stated that, in a general way, with the exception of some flumes, concrete structures will cost from 1 1-4 to 1 1-2 times the cost of wooden ones. Since the large annual cost tor repairs and renewals of wooden structures makes it economical to spend for concrete structures 2 1-2 to 3 1-4 times the price paid for wooden structures, in nearly every case a concrete structure is more economical, and will cut the total annual cost of repairs, renewals and inrerest into one-half.

Another advantage of concrete structures which I have not emphasized is the additional security obtained, which is worth considering.

During the last two years some doubt has been cast upon the durability of concrete, because of its disintegration by the effects of alkali. So far all that has been published can be reduced to the following facts:

1st. Out of all the many concrete structures, including those on the 25 projects of the U.S. Reclamotion Service, constructed in 13 States and territories, there are only two projects, one in Montana and one in Wyoming, where the failures of concrete structures have occurred. The only other recorded instances are some sewers in Montana and some concrete drainstiles in Colorado.

2nd. The disintegration seems to take place where the structures are in contact with strong alkali water of a peculiar composition, and occurs where the water permeates the concrete mass and is evaporated, leaving the salts in the pores of the concrete.

3rd. Black alkali seems to have no harmful effect, and the disintegration is caused probably by only some of the white alkali salts. Wherever disintegration has occurred the alkali salts are sulphates, witn magnesium sulphate predominant.

As against these few failures there are hundreds of examples of concrete irrigation structueres where alkali has had no effect. Nevertheless, where the sulphates are it is good policy to experiment on a small scale in those localities before works involving large amounts of money are built, and to take all known precautions in the construction. At present the best known means to prevent disintegration are:

1st. To make the concrete as nearly impervious as possible.

2nd. To remove the alkali water where practicable by drainage.

3rd. To use some cement which will be most resistont to alkali.

The Reclamation Service is now experimenting with the use of a special cement, and the Geological Survey is carrying on a series of experiments which it is hoped will help to solve the problem.

School Children

School children suffer more from their eyes than you have any idea.

Just watch that boy or girl of yours and if they complain of their eyes after studying a short while, have Knowles test them after the methods adopted in New York.

It is better to have the children wear glasses for a while now, than suffer all their lives through the neglect of their parents.
