PEACE DECLARED

SURRENDER OF THE BOERS

Document Signed by Boer and Briton--Excitement in London--Kruger Still Defiant.

LONDON, June 2.—Peace in South Africa has been declared. The following is Lord Kitchener's official cablegram, dated Pretoria, Saturday May 31st, 11.15 p.m.:—

"A document containing terms of surrender was signed here this evening at 10.30 by Boer representatives as well as by Lord Milner and myself."

London is almost wild with excitement. On Sunday evening the calm of the streets was broken by enthusiastic singing, shouting and horn-blowing. Among phrases shouted by the crowd were "Good Old Kitchener," "We're Blooming Glad it's Over," "Dear Old Bill," or some other name, and added "He'll Soon be Ome."

June 26th and 27th, days of the King's coronation, have been proclaimed public holidays at Pretoria.

When informed that peace had been declared Mr. Kruger replied: "My God, it is Impossible."

The British authorities absolutely rejected the suggestion of the Boer delegates that the terms of surrender should be ratified by Mr. Kruger. The Boers in Europe had no hand in the settlement.

The terms are: Boers lay down arms but retain rifles for self-protection on farms; prisoners of war to return home on taking oath of allegiance to the King, and to retain personal property, and no proceedings to be taken for acts other than those contrary to usages of war; Dutch language to be allowed in schools and courts of law; militarism to be succeeded by self-government; no special tax to be imposed for cost of war; $15,000,000 to be spent in restoring people to homes; rebels to be dealt with by courts and disfranchised.

Kruger will be offered a safe conduct if he will return to his farm.

An old soldier says: "If this settlement is peace with honor, the British have the peace and the Boers the honor."

In addressing the Boer delegates Kitchener told them had he been one of them he would have been proud to have fought so well; and the Boer chairman said they were glad to meet Kitchener as a friend, having fought so long against him they appreciated his true worth.

Parliament will grant Lord Kitchener $250,000, and the King has made him a Viscount. Kitchener has left for England.

The select committee appointed to investigate charges against J. D. Graham as Gold Commissioner at Atlin, found that Mr. Graham was the owner of the building; that he proceeded rightly in acquiring it for the Government at the request of the health officer; and that though the property was appraised the price was greater than justified; and Mr. Graham was not as diligent in the public interest as he might have been.

NEW BUILDINGS.

CITY AND RAILWAY IMPROVEMENTS.

Revelstoke Pay-roll is a Million Dollars.

A question frequently asked by visitors to Revelstoke is, "What are the resources of your city and surrounding country, and what is it that keeps the city going?" We have been at some trouble to ascertain the facts, with the following results:—Revelstoke will have a pay roll this year of over a million dollars, when we take into consideration the railway and private improvements, and employment by the C.P.R. and industrial enterprises of the district. The following details show that Revelstoke is in a more substantial position than any town of its size in the Province, while there is indisputable evidence of steady progress.

NEW BUILDINGS.
Hospital	$12,000
Kootenay Brewery	1,500
A. McRae's residence	3,000
BUILDINGS IN CONSTRUCTION.
C.P.R. shops addition	10,000
C. B. Hume & Co.'s store	17,000
F. B. Lewis' residence	5,000
Dr. Cross' residence	3,000
Guiletto & Schulli's store	2,000
Morris Anderson's residence	1,500
J. H. Sashan's residence	1,000
BUILDINGS PROJECTED.
City Schools	17,000
F. McCarty's brick block	20,000
Dr. McLean's residence	2,000
Drill Hall	9,000
Supt. Kilpatrick's drugstore	3,500
Imperial Bank	10,000

In addition to these amounts, the city will spend $8,000 on street improvements; $7,000 will be expended on improvement of water supply system either by the company or the city if the system is taken over.

In addition to the above the C.P.R. will spend $350,000 on improvements in this section this year, while their regular payroll is $360,000 more. The Fred Robinson Lumber Company have a payroll of about $60,000; the Revelstoke Lumber Company of about $50,000; and McMahon Bros & Co. Limited of about $20,000.

Death of Bert W. Temple.

On Saturday night a gloom was cast over the town by the news of the death of Bert W. Temple, after an illness of two days. On Friday he was laid up with an attack of gastritis, and on Saturday evening diabetic coma set in, death ensuing about 9.30. Deceased was the only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Temple, and has been resident in Revelstoke for a number of years. He was 19 years of age at the time of his death. Every movement among the young men of the town had his hearty support and he will be much missed, for there was none in the city more deservedly popular than he. For some time he worked in the C.P.R. shops and lately in the baggage department. He was a member of the Foresters' Court, the Machinists, and No. 2 Fire Brigade, etc., and on his death being known the Brigade paid him the tribute of lowering the flag on the city hall to half-mast.

Much sympathy is felt with the parents in their sad bereavment.

The funeral took place on Monday and was in charge of the Foresters. It was one of the largest seen in the city, the C.P.R. shops being closed for the day. The coffin was shrouded in the Union Jack, and handsome wreaths sent by the Machinists, Foresters, Mr. and Mrs. Elson, Mr. and Mrs. C. Holten, Mr. and Mrs. Farr, Mr. and Mrs. Grant Hall, Mrs. Coursier, and others. The procession included the Foresters, Rocky Mountain Rangers, with arms reversed, under Capt. Taylor, members of St. Peter's choir, of which deceased had been a member, Independent Band, members of Kootenay Lodge A.F. and A.M., chief mourners and public. Choral service was held at St. Peter's church, and Rev. C. A. Procunier also conducted service at the grave, Bros. Atkins and Johnston reading the Foresters' service. The pall bearers were: J. Inches, C. Palmer and K. Dodd representing the Machinists, and J. E. McLean, J. L. Smith and G. Beavo representing the Foresters. The Rangers fired three volleys over the grave.

The following resolution was passed at a meeting of Court Mount Begbie on Monday night:—

Whereas it has pleased Almighty God to break our circle of concord by removing from it our well beloved brother Bert W. Temple;

Be it resolved, that we, the officers and members of Court Mount Begbie, No. 3461, I.O.F., do humbly testify to the love and esteem in which we held our late brother and the sorrow we feel at his sudden demise by draping our charter with crepe for a period of three months and according him full funeral honors prescribed by our ritual;

And be it further resolved, that a copy of the above resolution be placed upon the minutes of this Court and be sent with this rider to the bereaved parents and relatives of our deceased brother as expression of the sympathy we feel with them in our deeply regretted mutual loss.

RAILWAY ACCIDENT

Three Men Killed

On Wednesday a freight went through a washed-out culvert five miles west of Calgary. Engineer Charles Dorin, Brakeman Dunn, and Car-Inspector Corsey were pinioned under the engine and killed. Six cars were piled on the engine and the train telescoped.

Owing to the track being blocked by the wreck there has been no eastern train through for two days.

The Kootenay Mail

FRIDAY, JUNE 6, 1902.

We welcome to Revelstoke the migration of Rosslanders. The men who built up the Rossland camp cannot fail, with their experience and financial connections, to be of great service to this section of Kootenay, where the steps taken to open the Big Bend is attracting so much attention.

Not only are the prospects of Revelstoke bright this season, but the year will be a banner one in the Lardeau and Fish Creek. These districts are proving veritable bonanzas, and given sufficient capital to develop them there is every prospect that ere long the producing list will be a long one. The gold values in these camps give them a promise of permanency which belongs to no silver-lead camp.

THE article which we publish in another column as to the year's expenditure and improvements in and around Revelstoke must be gratifying news to everyone interested here. Such an array of facts and figures, obtained for the most part on direct authority, is a convincing proof that there are few places in the Province to-day with a better future ahead of them than this city.

THE English parcel post system should be adopted by the Canadian postal department. It has been found an immense public convenience wherever it has been introduced, by giving the public an efficient service at low cost. Of course the express companies will kick strongly against its introduction, as it would put a stop on their excessive rates for small parcels; but Parliament and the Postmaster-general were elected to represent the people and not the express companies. One of the greatest frauds of the present parcel tariff of Canada is that it has been framed to suit the express companies instead of the public interest.

THE CITY SCHOOLS.

Now that the by-law is before the people for providing the funds for the erection of a substantial brick building for the city, it is for the ratepayers to give the matter full consideration. We regret to hear in some quarters the complaint that the present site is too near the river to be safe for a substantial brick building, but that statement is made by those who don't know what they are talking about. The Government has protected, and is bound to protect the town from encroachment. A good school building and a good teaching staff should be among the public institutions on which the city should pride itself. The school trustees have proved excellent administrators, and the least the citizens can do is to back them in their determination to make Revelstoke one of the best educational centres of the Province. We ask every citizen, then, who has at heart the welfare of the town and the rising generation, to support the by-law now before the ratepayers, and on which a poll will be taken on Friday next.

Big Bend Lumber.

St. Paul Capitalists Negotiating.

Jas. Elwood and party, who represent St. Paul capitalists and who went to the Big Bend to explore and report on the Austin timber limits, on which they have an option of $300,000, returned last week after a hard trip, owing to the trail being blocked with trees. They could not take horses further than Downie Creek and had to walk to Goldstream and pack their outfit.

Owing to high water they were unable to explore the upper portion of the limits, and so returned, as the option would expire before they could complete the investigation. The party returned to Seattle on Wednesday. They propose to return in July to investigate other propositions. If they take up timber limits in this section it is their intention to establish in the vicinity of Revelstoke a sawmill with a capacity of 250,000 feet per day.

The C.P.R. have offered them a rate which will enable a mill built here to compete successfully with the Sound mills, allowing for duty.

Mr. Elwood informs us that though he did not find the limits so good as represented, and did not expect to, he is still satisfied that these Big Bend limits carry valuable timber. The fir is dying from some disease which has attacked it within the last ten years, and the condition of the trees shows the disease has made particularly rapid progress during the past two years. There is a good deal of dead timber among the cedar, but there is a large growth of that timber. He considers, however, that the pine in the Bend is the finest he has ever seen.

The capitalists whom Mr. Elwood represents will be largely guided as to their future movements by the transportation problem. If the steamer Revelstoke is run on suitable rates of freight it will be an encouragement to them, but if not they will probably withdraw their proposed investment in Big Bend, unless investigation shows that they can get a satisfactory means of transportation by the channel from Beavermouth. This they might do by running a steamer from Beavermouth to Surprise rapids, building a road four miles past the rapids, running another steamer from there below Kinbasket Lake, and building a road of 18 miles to the Bend.

Weak and Helpless.

The Condition of Mrs. Wm. Westcott, of Seaforth.

Suffered from Headaches and Dizziness—Could Not Stand the Least Exertion.

From the Sun, Seaforth, Ont.

Mrs. Wm. Westcott is well known in Seaforth. It is also well known that she has suffered severely from sickness and friends that she feared she might be trying illness, but is now happy in robust health. To the editor of the Sun Mrs. Westcott recently gave the particulars of her case for publication merely in the hope that her experience might be of some benefit to some other sufferer. She said:—"For some time past my health was in a bad state. My whole system became run down, and I was troubled with headaches, much dizziness, my appetite was poor, and I could not stand the least exertion. I consulted different physicians, but their treatment did not seem to benefit me, and I gradually became so bad that I was unable to attend to my household duties. I then tried several advertised medicines, but with as many knotted results, and I began to despair of getting better. One of my neighbors strongly advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and she told me what relief they had given her. After I had taken the pills a short time I began to notice a change in my condition, and by the time I had used five boxes I was again in my former good health, and to the surprise of my neighbors and myself I do not suffer the least now from those headaches and dizzy spells, my appetite is good and I can attend to my household duties with the greatest ease. In fact I feel like a new woman, and all this I can say is due to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. All who suffer from a run-down constitution should give these pills a trial."

When the vitality is low, when the blood needs to be replenished, enriched and purified, when the nerves are weak and require strengthening, there is no other medicine can take the place of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. It is because of their direct specific action on the blood and nerves that these pills cure such troubles as anæmia, nervous headache, dizziness, palpitation of the heart, rheumatism, sciatica, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, kidney and liver ailments, and the functional troubles that make the lives of so many women a source of almost constant misery. Do not take any but the genuine, which have the full name "Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People" on the wrapper around every box. Sold by all dealers, or sent post paid at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

THE DRILL HALL

Correspondence with Ottawa.

J. A. Kernahan's Tender Accepted.

Owing to the lying reports that have been in circulation in the city regarding the drill hall contract and alleged underhand work in connection therewith, we publish the subjoined following letters from Ottawa. These letters are in reply to a letter from representations from W. M. Lawrence, president of the Liberal association, pointing out the wrong done to unaccepted tenderers in withholding their deposit cheques.

W. M. LAWRENCE, Esq.,
Revelstoke, B.C.

Dear Sir—I have yours of the 19th inst., and have written to the Public Works Department in regard to the contractors' cheques, which you say have been held for over two months, asking the Department to expedite the business and release the cheques as soon as possible.

I hope to be in Revelstoke some time during the summer or fall to acquaint myself with the questions to which you are most concerned and with which this Government will have to deal.

Yours very truly,
W. TEMPLEMAN.

Ottawa, 26th May, 1902.

W. M. LAWRENCE, Esq.,
Revelstoke, B.C.

Dear Sir,—I have been directed by the Hon. the Minister to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 16th instant, and in reply to inform you that the security cheques deposited by the unsuccessful tenderers were forwarded on the 19th instant, except that of Mr. Kernaghan, whose tender has been accepted, and who has demonstrated his willingness to sign the contract on the 19th inst. There is now no reason why the work should not be started at once.

I have the honour to be, Sir,
Your obedient servant,
FRED GELINAS,
Secretary.

Department of Public Works of Canada, Secretary's Office.
Ottawa, May 27th, 1902.

Mr. Kernahan informs us his tender as accepted is in strict accordance with the original specification.

After using the Tablets he began to get better almost at once, and slept better and was no longer cross. I think the Tablets a fine medicine for children and keep them on hand all the time." RIPANS

I have been taking Ripans Tabules for the Dyspepsia, and they have helped me wonderfully. I do not know any way they effect me, but they seem to give vigor to the entire system. I had a sort of languid feeling but since taking the Tabules I feel spirited and have not that melancholy way about me. I think they are good for a general build-up of the system, as they seem to act like a tonic.

SWEET REVENGE.

BY CAPT. F. W. MITCHEL.

Author of "Chattanooga," "Chicamanga," Etc.

I slipped behind the tree, dropped to the ground, and wriggled like a snake through the underbrush; then, rising, darted away.

A dozen yards—fifty—a hundred. The music of Ginger's banjo dies as suddenly as the clang of a bell on a passing engine. Will one minute or five pass before I am missed? A distant burst of applause—God bless the dear little dancer! Before me is an open space, then a dense clump of trees. If I can reach that thicket I can make a quick digression, and this may throw my pursuers off my track.

A confusion of yells, a bullet whistling by my ear. I reach the wood and push on through it, not daring to lose distance by digression with an enemy close behind me. My feet becoming entangled in a vine, I stumble and fall. A weight comes down on me, crushing the breath out of me. It is all over.

Panting, bleeding, white as a ghost, I am led back to the guerrilla camp.

"Shoot him!"

"Gimme a rope often that pack mule!"

"Tie him on a critter an send him down the mounting!"

A babel of brutal suggestions came from the different members of the band, sounding to me, stunned as I was, like final random shots at the slaughter of a "forlorn hope." Amid the clamor I saw but one sight—Helen and Jack, locked in each other's arms, paralyzed with terror.

"Stand back, men!" cried the captain, pushing his way toward me. "Hareyer fargot the money?"

"Stand back?" roared Halliday. "He belongs to me an Tom Jaycox! We tuk him!"

The captain's authority, thus supported, saved me from immediate death by the hand and led her after her cousin. Once beyond the ring, he assisted the girls to mount, then, mounting himself, the three rode away, followed by a cheer. As for me, I breathed one long sigh of relief.

Panting and bleeding, I am led back to the guerrilla camp.

"Well, Ginger," said Buck, "reckon ef we uns air goin to git to Sparty tomorrer we'll have to travel all night."

"Is the nigger takin yo' to Sparty or air yo' takin the nigger?" asked one of the men.

"Dat ain't gwine to mak' no differ'," said Ginger. "Mars Buck an I don' never had no trouble. Mars' Buck, he's my mars' till I gits to de new one."

Buck led his horse to the log and mounted, giving me a significant look, as much as to say, "I won't desert you," then rode away, followed by Ginger, with the remark:

"Goodby, yo' fellers. Much 'bliged fo' the good time."

The restraint of the girls' presence being no longer felt, the men's behavior changed in a twinkling. The captain's absence left Pete Halliday, the worst man in the gang, free to foment trouble, and he began to do so by sneering at his chief for being brought, as he expressed it, under petticoat government. There appeared to be two factions in the band—the one headed by Halliday or Jaycox and the other by Captain Ringold. Halliday set about instigating the guerrillas, or, rather, his adherents, to go after Helen and Jack and bring them back for another dance. To make matters worse, one of the men found some applejack, and it was not long before the gang were half drunk. Meanwhile the captain returned and received a hearty cursing from Halliday and his adherents. Several of them started to bring back the girls, but Ringold drew upon them and threatened to shoot them unless they returned. They staggered back, grumbling, and the captain adroitly proposed another pull at the applejack. This diverted them, and after finishing the liquor one after another sank into a drunken slumber.

It was midnight. Every member of the band was asleep save the man who was deputed to guard me. He was sitting on a piece of firewood, so placed that he could watch me across the flame. I lay on my back looking up at the stars and featherlike clouds that now and again floated across the great blue dome, the only motion apparent save the tree tops bending under an occasional breeze. The fire flickered, the guard nodded, and an owl in the distance gave an occasional hoot.

I heard something stir in the underbrush. Glancing aside, I saw a small light disk over a bush. It was the face of little Buck.

Now, in the name of all the gods, will those devoted friends never give over risking their lives in these useless attempts? What is to happen now? I scowled an order to the boy to go away, but he paid no attention to it. Something came sliding along the ground and lodged against me. The guard heard it, started, cast a quick glance at me, then about him, but, seeing nothing, relapsed into his former quietude. I felt for what had struck me and clasped a jackknife.

Meanwhile Buck disappeared, but, soon appearing again in his place, held up a carbine. He had doubtless stolen it from one of the men who slept on the edge of the circle about the fire. Again he disappeared, and I watched eagerly for his return. The guard was still awake, though nodding, but had he been more watchful he would not likely have discovered Buck, for the underbrush, both where the boy appeared to me and where it skirted the sleeping guerrillas, was so thick that in passing around the camp he was comparatively safe from observation. Besides for most of the distance Buck traversed in his gun foray the guard's back was toward him.

I watch the point where Buck's head appeared, expecting to see it again, but in its stead presently see two white points. Straining my eyes, I discern the whites of two eyes, then a black face.

It is Ginger. A white line appears directly below the eyes, and he is showing his teeth in a smile. He raises his arm, and, behold, another gun! Again a white line of teeth, and he puts the weapon down. Five, 10, 15 minutes elapse. Ginger holds his ground. Has he gone to sleep? No. Another five minutes, and he holds up another gun. Ah, I see. Little Buck, with catlike treads is gathering in the arms. That's well. He is far better fitted for such delicate work than a stiff old negro.

The little pantomime begins to take shape in my mind and bring anticipations of more than a fight for my own life. If I can escape and Buck and Ginger secure sufficient arms, it may be possible for all our party to get together and make a defense. I must tell Ginger to get some ammunition. But with a guard looking straight at me it is no easy task to convey an order by signs, and that to a stupid negro. Catching sight of a small stone beside me, I put out my hand, yawning to conceal my intention, let it fall on the stone and soon had it between the knuckle of my thumb and the point of my forefinger, as a boy holds a marble. Watching till the guard's head is turned, looking meaningly at Ginger, I fire the stone a short distance, hoping he will understand the word "ammunition." His face is a blank; it is evident that he does not know what I mean, and there is no prospect of his getting it through his thick skull.

Ginger turned away, and I knew that he was speaking to his young master; then Buck's white face showed itself inquiringly behind the negro's black one. I looked meaningly at Buck and repeated the motion of firing. He caught my meaning and, taking up a gun, made a motion as if ramming a cartridge, looking at me inquiringly. I indicated that he was right. He went away and after a long absence came back and held up four cartridges, two in each hand. [illegible] boxes, he held up three fingers, and I knew that they had secured three guns. He next held up four fingers of the other hand, pointing to the sleeping guerrillas, and I knew he proposed to get one more gun.

Buck was a long while capturing the fourth gun. One of the men awoke, yawned, sat up and looked into the fire, yawned again, lay down and was soon snoring. Then the guard got up from where he was sitting. There was a slight sound in the bushes, and he listened attentively. Then he put some wood on the fire and sat down again. He had scarcely seated himself before Ginger held up the fourth gun.

I moved slightly, showing my friends by my manner that I was about to try to get away. They appeared to understand and gathered up the guns, Buck taking one and Ginger three, doing all so silently that no sound reached even me. I waited, watching the guard intently till he should nod. I had no expectation of his going to sleep. I only hoped to free myself from my thongs before he should discover my movement. He nodded. I moved. He opened his eyes. I snored. He nodded again. I grasped the knife. Thoughtful Buck! He had opened the blade. Drawing up my knees, I cut the ropes that bound my ankles, then felt in my boot leg for the revolver. I was about to cock it when I remembered that the guard would hear the click. I thought I would conceal the sound by a sneeze, but a sneeze might disturb some of the band. The owl, which had for some time been silent, hooted. It usually gave three hoots in succession. I counted—one, two and at the third cocked my revolver. Through my half closed lids I cast a glance at the guard. His eyes were shut. I looked significantly at Buck and Ginger to show them that I was ready, then motioned them to go. Waiting long enough for them to put a few hundred yards between them and the camp and noticing that the guard's eyes were still shut, I prepared to follow.

The guard opened his eyes and looked straight at me.

Rising slowly and silently, keeping my eyes fixed on the man by the fire, raising my revolver and taking as good an aim as possible with bound wrists, I stood on my feet. One step backward, then another, a third, a fourth, a fifth, a sixth. I had reached the bushes where Buck and Ginger had been concealed and was about to take one more step which would secure concealment when the guard opened his eyes and looked straight at me.

Surprise was his last emotion, my figure the last sight he ever saw. I shot him through the head and before the report had ceased to reverberate was in the bushes.

CHAPTER XII.

A DAYLIGHT ATTACK.

DESPITE the thickness of the surrounding underbrush, I made quick progress. Jumping clean over bushes, darting [illegible] trees and under low limbs, after [illegible] some 200 yards from the guerrilla camp I came to a comparatively open space. Seeing a figure standing within it and surmising it to be one of my friends, I was about to call when a woman's voice cried "Halt!" I knew that I was covered by a weapon and stopped short.

"Are you"—

"Yes, and you"—

"Helen. This way."

She darted away like a deer. I soon overtook her, and together we ran perhaps half a mile, when she began to climb an ascent leading to the base of an overhanging cliff. I saw through the gloom a large and a small figure climbing just ahead of us and knew they were Ginger and Buck. Helen led the way up to a recess in the cliff, and I saw at once a position that we could hold against a dozen men so long as we had food and ammunition.

"Hello!" It was Jack's cheery voice. "Goody! Ain't I glad to get out o' the wilderness!"

"I'm glad enough," I said as soon as I could get breath to speak, "but you women"—

There was no time for words. We set about rolling a big stone into a gap between two others, and as soon as it was in position had a continuous breastwork. The guerrillas were calling to each other in the woods below, but they did not seem to know where we were. I picked up one of the guns Ginger had thrown down, Buck had one in his hands, Ginger kept one, and Helen seized the remaining one.

"Where do I come in?" chirped Jack.

"Here." I handed her the revolver, in which there were five loaded chambers, and told her to hold on to it, as she would doubtless need it. We all took position behind our breastworks ready to repel an assault, at the same time seeing to the condition of our pieces. They were cavalry carbines, all loaded and capped ready for use.

"Where are your horses?" I asked.

"Picketed down there," Helen replied, pointing westward, "in a thicket not far from the road."

"Have you anything to eat?"

She glanced at a parcel on the ground. "I got that in a cabin. There's some corn pone and pork."

"Barely enough for one meal. Any water?"

"There's some [illegible] trickling be-

ARROWHEAD.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

The citizens of Arrowhead gave a concert in aid of the Sunday school, which was a decided success in regard to the quality of the programme and also financially, some $60 worth of tickets having been sold. This successful result is due in great part to the efforts of Mr. and Mrs. J. Graham, Mrs. and Miss Johnson, Messrs. Taylor, Purvis and Newman. The people of Arrowhead are to be congratulated on the exceptional quality of local talent displayed. The coon songs of Mr. Webb, and the duet of Mrs. Johnson and Miss Shepard were evidently much appreciated by the audience, judging from the applause; while Mr. Cludsa in his monologue, "How Bill Adams Won the Battle of Waterloo," fairly brought down the house. The children, also, in their singing showed evidence of careful training. The instrumental and vocal numbers were well rendered all through.

A number of visitors attended from Revelstoke, Comaplix and Beaton, the Archer making a special trip from the latter place. From expressions heard the visitors evidently enjoyed it very much. Supper was furnished at 11 o'clock, having been provided by the ladies of Arrowhead. Dancing then commenced and continued until three o'clock, when all sought their homes, thoroughly well pleased with the entertainment.

Music was supplied by Messrs. Boyd (violin) Soules, Taylor and Richmond (piano), while J. McMillan managed the floor in his well known genial manner.

A very successful garden party was held yesterday afternoon at the residence of Mrs. J. McLeod, Second street, under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid in connection with the Presbyterian Church. The grounds were decorated with festoons of colored drapery and tables were arranged about the lawn at which ice cream, tea, coffee, and various edibles were dispensed by the ladies. A piaffola, which dispensed sweet music, was a source of great attraction.

SHOCKING TRAGEDY.

Murder at Nakusp.

On Wednesday evening a shocking murder was perpetrated near Nakusp, and Government Agent Fraser despatched Constable Upper this morning to the scene of the affair. Dr. Cross, district Coroner, also accompanied him to arrange an inquest.

From meagre particulars to hand it appears that three Nakusp settlers, named Cole, Nels Demars, and Henry Rose, went up the lake in a boat. They landed, and a row appears to have taken place between Rose and Demars. Cole interfered and was killed, it is believed by suffocation, in the struggle. Demars was so seriously injured that it is believed he will die.

Rose went to Nakusp and gave the alarm, and was held under arrest by Walter Scott, constable, pending investigation.

Demars was an old timer and discoverer of the Big Bend.

Was the Profit made in four years in Crow's Nest Coal Shares.

The location of the Company's Coal Land and their City of Wonder, Progress and Prosperity, ASHOLA, is an enviable one, and they own the water power, timber limits and electric light. Stock holders participate in the profits of all of the above mentioned.

Estimated assets of the Company are now $1,350,000. The ASHNOLA COAL COMPANY, LIMITED, of Toronto, is also establishing its Western Office and pay roll at ASHNOLA. ASHNOLA SMELTER LIMITED now an assured fact, with a Capitalization of $2,000,000, will not only erect a smelter with a 5000 ton daily capacity but will also make ASHNOLA its Head Office, which means a pay roll of three gigantic incorporations for ASHNOLA.

These facts make it possible for the Similkameen Valley Coal Company's shares to advance to at least $25.00 within the next year. These shares are now being offered by our official brokers at $1.10 on calls of 10c. per month, with non-forfeiture clause which means you get shares for the cash you pay into the Company in any event.
