P. T. McCallam went to Bull Creek and deported four Italians who had smuggled themselves into Canada.

H. W. Conway has sold his interest in the Phoenix Pioneer to Gilbert Kay and left for Spokane on Tuesday.

It was Davidson, not Armstrong, who made a high score at the rifle range at the Mother Lode two weeks ago.

While looking for horses along Kerr creek Billy Wilson saw one bear, three blue grouse and four coyote pups. No lives were lost.

While working in a tie camp west of Beverdell, C. Johnson had both legs and his collar bone broken. He is in the hospital at Grand Forks.

The Swayne House has been painted and renovated from keel to crow's nest, and the genial captain reports an abundance of agreeable guests.

In Phoenix on Sunday Greenwood lost the ball game by a score of 6 to 2. This seems to be a standard score, one side or the other, between these two teams.

The city officials should engage a band of boys to pull up all the noxious weeds within the city limits. The wild mustard plant is about due to spread its seed all over the community.

The Fire Brigade has engaged the Juvenile Bostonians to play in Greenwood on October 4 and 5; the Dixie Jubilee Singers on January 4; and the Castle Square Entertainers on February 5.

Val Haynes and Bill Richter came to town last week with 125 head of cattle for P. Burns & Co. The same firm has also imported 400 sheep from Ben Hart's ranch at Nighthawk.

Billy Wallace, the tailor, seems to have flown from the high altitude of Phoenix to fresher and greener fields. Billy had a nice way of getting orders for suits, and quite a number of people could get out blue papers for him. It is said that a tailor is only the ninth part of a man, but in the case of Wallace, that ratio seems to be unduly inflated.

Jack Lucy left town on Monday with $400 in his jeans and a ticket for Vancouver. He intends to go into the wilds of Cariboo and grab a fortune from nature. Jack has brains enough to be a Patsy Clark or Jim Cronin, and his friends in Greenwood hope that he will come back with a pack-train load of gold. Jack took a water wagon rolled up in his blankets.

A large company was present at the first meeting of the Overseas club on Monday evening which took the form of a social. The club appears to fill a gap that has long been aparent in the social condition of the town and is worthy of the patronage of all British subjects. Mr. Loring seems to be just the man for the position of secretary and he will be pleased to give any information to anyone wishing to join.

The Hon. Thomas Taylor came into town last Thursday from Phoenix. He was accompanied by four members of the legislature: Messrs. Jackson, Miller, Wright and Schofield. Two judges from Phoenix were also with the party. In the morning, after J. H. James had flashed his kodak at the legislative aggregation, they left in two horseless vehicles for Rock Creek. Taylor always enjoys a visit to Greenwood, where his friends are legion.

CITY COUNCIL.

The Council met on Monday evening, three members being absent.

A letter was read from the Vancouver Exhibition association re-exhibits. It was referred to the secretary of the Greenwood Farmer's Institute.

The following amounts were ordered to be paid: G. Evans, $40; B. C. Copper Co., $3.25; R. W. Halcrow, $12.15.

Mr. Jenks was present, and stated that he was cutting into cordwood the dead standing and falling timber, but no live timber, and asked for permission to keep hogs in the barn. The Mayor informed him that the matter would be considered, and an answer given at the next meeting of the council.

Council adjourned until July 3.

THE GREAT FORCE

Years ago the Ledge was the first paper to advocate the building of a mint in Canada, and wanted the Government to build it at Nakusp or New Denver. The government finally decided to build the mint, but could not see its way clear to take it away from Ottawa. A recent letter from Ottawa has the following:

The final approval at London of the new Canadian five and ten dollar gold pieces is expected shortly. By autumn the new coinage will be installed. They will be in intrinsic value and size the same as the American coins of like denomination and will probably be accepted at par in the United States, thus proving a great convenience to the Canadians who go across the border unprovided with American money. Practically the only gold in use in Canada at present are the American gold pieces and the number of these in this country is surprisingly large. On December 31st last the receiver-general for Canada had no less than $68,000,000 thus showing the large demand there is for a gold coinage in Canada.

ECKSTEIN TO MINERS

At a meeting of the Miners' Union on Saturday last, L. P. Eckstein, barrister of Fernie, delivered a short but interesting address. In the course of his remarks he touched on the Compensation Act and how it affected the working man and his family. For instance, if a man was working in British Columbia and met with an accident, being disabled, and his wife and children were living in another province, they would receive no compensation. He also pointed out the advisability of those sending money home, even as a present, to make the letter read that it was sent for the purpose of support, otherwise, in case of accident or death they could not expect their relatives to receive any compensation. In concluding his remarks he said that he hoped he had made the matter clear to his hearers, and that they would study the different clauses of the Act, and govern themselves accordingly.—Phoenix Pioneer.

There are 40 Boy Scouts in Penticton. They already own three bugles and will soon have a snare drum. After that people who are not deaf will want to leave the town.

This spring several new business houses and residences have been built at Okanagan Falls.

Tobacco plants are being planted at Kaslo, Silverton, and other places in West Kootenay.

The Princeton Star says that Hughie Campbell has taken out his 49th mining license in B. C.

The mayor and aldermam of Rossland have decided not to donate their salaries to that city.

The Duke of Sutherland will reside all summer on his ranch at Brooks, east of Calgary, Alberta.

Latham and Reuter have bought the St. Pancras building in Kaslo, and will run it as a first-class hotel.

A $50,000 brewery is being built in Blairmore. The coal miners are not striking against its inception.

W. W. Craig owns a gasoline launch and transports his own freight from Penticton to Okanagan Falls.

When Frank Abbey finishes his work of taking the census at Trout Lake, he will open a drug store in Kaslo.

Recently up the Skeena river a tree fell across the steamer Operator, and caused $2,000 worth of damage.

The C.P.R. is paying 9.6 cents a 1,000 gallons for water in Rossland, and in other places from four to seven cents.

At New Denver last week Carpenter creek got full, and threatened to cut a canal through the heart of the Lucerne.

Croquet and lawn tennis grounds have been laid out in Fort George. There are two banks in that section of the north.

There is a coal famine in Calgary. It will probably be worse next winter, if coal does not come in from the north.

The unsanitary condition of some of the hotels in Vancouver is appalling, and a menace to the health of the community.

At Kaleden in the Okanagan a water system is being put in that will cost $80,000. At that point fruit land is selling for $280.

A. M. Morrison of Coleman, was married to Miss Jessie Allcock in Newmarket, Ontario, this week. They will make their home in Coleman,

In Fernie Fred Waylett has made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. Too much coal strike in that town for people to buy bon-bons.

In the Fraser valley, between Tete Jaune and the Grand Canyon there are over 100 squatters, although that portion of the valley is under absolute reserve.

Felix Darraugh died in Kamloops this month, and was buried at Okanagan Falls. He was a well-known miner, and worked in Camp McKinney years ago.

A Slocan man killed a chicken the other day, and found four gold nuggets in her gizzard. He was so overjoyed that he paid for the New Denver paper a year in advance.

It cost the editor of the South Fort George Herald $15,000 for his plant and office, all made out of land notices. His last edition is filled with land notices from the Peace River district.

Jim Hill has not bought the Alberta Central railway, and declares that he does not know where it is says the Fernie Free Press. Perhaps Jim does not know that he has a railroad near Princeton.

The owner of the Wigen fruit farm near Creston makes as high as $1,200 a year from an acre of raspberries. His strawberries are famous wherever sold, and others should take a few lessons from Mr. Wigen's methods.

Writing about Premier McBride in the London Chronicle, T. P. O'Connor says that in Dick's character is blended the strength of the Ulster Orangeman, and the genial softness of his Roman Catholic mother.

An Italian musician on the verge of starvation recently sold to a man in Vancouver a Grand Amati violin for $25. The violin was made in 1660, and is worth $4000. The Italian wept when he parted with it, and so well he might.

The Grand Forks Sun says that the treatment of newspapeas by municipalities in different sections of the country is an interesting study. Some cities pay the papers for advertising their resources; others charge them a license for performing the same service.

The V. V. & E. Ry. is still running no further west than Princeton, and there is no sign of laying rails on the completed grade to Tulameen. Plenty of rails are quietly rusting in the yard at Princeton. Somebody should drop a line to Jim Hill about this sad state of affairs.

Up the Skeena river last month, the Indians set fire to a surveyors cabin and burned it to the ground with all contents. The Indians in that section have little friendship for white men, and are not in favor of the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific, but more on racial than political grounds.

There are about 3,000 men working on the Grand Trunk Pacific between the Tete Jaune Cache, and the railhead to the east. It is not yet very lively at the Cache. One hotel is in operation at that point. Mica is used by the settlers near the Cache in lieu of window glass.

In an interview with The News H. M. Foster states that there were only four married men in Nelson in 1891. This is an erroneous statement. During that year there were about 40 married men in Nelson, and of that number at least fifteen were living with their wives in that city. The writer knows, for during that year he practically took a census of everything in Nelson, except the pianos on Baker street and the bottles in Jim Dawson's cellar.

B. C. MINING NEWS

The Hope News says "that no matter how alluring the prospects may look in Hope or on the trail, there is no disguising the fact that in Vancouver skepticism prevails regarding the gold possibilities of the Hope-Steamboat district." The free use of the drill and dynamite will soon demonstrate the value of this new excitement in the Cascade range. Hot air and the rosy statements of real estate boosters never make a permanent mining camp.

The Hope Nugget says that the Phoenix Smelting Co., has a force of men to work on a group of seven claims that the Phoenix people own at Ladner's Creek, 18 miles up the Coquihalla river.

Several prospectors from Porcupine, Ontario, have gone to the Steamboat camp.

At Merritt the Nicola Valley Coal Co., will install a $40,000 coal washing plant, and mine tipple.

Work is being done on the gold strike recently made at the Green Slide, a few miles south of Revelstoke. A 10 stamp mill will be installed in a short time, the lead is 300 feet wide, and has been traced for three miles. There are 14 claims located on this lead divided into three groups. All these groups will be developed this year. In addition to its gold, the ore in this camp carries considerable value in silver, and some platinum.

BOUNDARY MINES

The Granby mines resumed operations on Monday after being shut down for about two weeks.

The Granby smelter at Grand Forks received a supply of eastern coke last week, and blew in six furnaces early this week.

A crew of eight men under the foremanship of E. Berryman went to work at the McKinley this week. They will sleep in tents until permanent buildings are erected.

Quartz at Fort George

To the west of Fort George townsite, and only a mile from its boundary, lies a huge body of free-milling gold ore, pronounced by an expert mining man to be the largest body of ore he has ever seen in British Columbia. The first discoverers of the mineral were A. B. Clarke and Chas. Whitmeyer, who staked claims on their discovery last fall, devoting the winter to development work. They sent several samples of the ore to reputable assayers in the United States and Canada, receiving assays showing gold values from $8 to $200 per ton. The samples were taken from very near the surface of the ledge but as the depth of the lead increases the higher assays were obtained.

Considerable local interest has attached to the discovery, but it was not until a week ago, when a well known mining expert. Mr. E. E. Armstrong, of Barkerville, visited the property, that interest in the proposition became general. Mr. Armstrong has spent several days examining the rock and tracing the ledge He has a theory in connection that it is a combination of the Barkerville ledge, where several rich quartz discoveries have been reported of late.

COUNTY COURT

A sitting of the County Court was held in Greenwood Tuesday, before His Honor, Judge J. R. Brown.

Naturalization papers were granted to 13 aliens.

F. C. Buckless vs Fritz Cranberg. This was an action for a broken rig. Settled out of court.

Spokane Drug Co. vs C. M. Crouse, adjourned to July 10.

R. G. Sidley vs George Guise, was settled out of court.

The case of Mike Rukas vs John Anderson was dismissed, each to pay his own costs.

A. D. Bloomfield and Thomas Henderson vs E. G. Cummings. Judgement for plaintiffs. The counter claim was dismissed without costs.

The appeal in the dog case of W. C. H. Wilson vs F. W. McLaine was adjourned until July 10 owing to some of the witnesses having the measles.

Peter Turano and Steve Miller will have a speedy trial before Judge Brown on Tuesday June 20.

BASEBALL

Greenwood is becoming famous for its baseball games, and last Sunday a large and enthusiastic crowd witnessed a game that certainly was leaguey, between Phoenix and the home team. The game was one of the best ever played in British Columbia, Phoenix being beaten by a score of 6 to 2.

Not a tally was made until the fifth innings when Phoenix scored twice on errors—a two-bagger and two singles. This was the last hit or score made by Phoenix for Charlton tightened up, and retired the visitors in one, two, three order for the balance of the game. Greenwood made two runs each in the fifth, seventh and eighth innings.

The Phoenix battery, Blair and Mattis, were replaced in the eighth by Hamilton and Lang, but it was too late to save their bacon.

One of the features of the game was the high order of fielding and base running made by Biner for Phoenix. Greenwood played an almost faultless ball as the score indicates. All the Boundary teams are playing high-class ball this season, and are worthy of a hearty support by the public.

FOUND YEARS AGO

Judging from the following taken from the Hope Nugget gold was found in the Steamboat camp more than 50 years ago. The Nugget says:

"There is now living in Kaslo, Mr. W. McLachlan, aged 82, who was in Hope in the employ of the Hudson's Bay Company in 1856. Though advanced in years he still enjoys health and vigor and looks after a small orchard and garden of his own.

"Among his friends of early days was one Alexander McLean, a trapper, who often came to the fort at Hope to sell his furs and renew his supplies. On one occasion, about 1856, McLean told Mr. McLachlan that he had found rock containing free gold on a mountain about 40 miles south from the fort and near the Skagit River. He gave Mr. McLachlan a piece of the rock, which is still in the latter's possession.

"Mr. McLachlan has often remembered McLean's story of gold but other interests held him, until he felt too old for a long trip into the mountains. Last summer when the news of Stevens and Greenwalt's discoveries spread round the province and the name of Steamboat Mountain became familiar, he at once identified the location with the scene of McLean's find, and his belief has been further strengthened by the descriptions of porphyrilic rock containing free gold. There can be little doubt he was on Steamboat, Lost Musket or Red Mountain, perhaps the first white prospector in that country."

THE BOOM IN LONDON

The coronation boom in London has climbed to a dizzy height, and the English people are all ready for the excitement next Thursday. A cable to the Province says:

The huge stands cover every vacant inch around Parliament Square, front every government building and hide every church, even Westminster Abbey itself, so that little more than the towers and the tops of the buttresses are visible from the street. All these are complete from floors to roofs. The elaborate annex to the Abbey where the King and Queen will robe and unrobe, is so skilfully devised that it looks almost as though it formed part of the venerable structure which Edward the Confessor created eight centuries ago.

Majestic Whitehall where Charles lost his head, is gay as never before, with rows of tall white and gold columns festooned with white and red roses which rise from the beautiful arches of Ontario and New Zealand. The costumeless condition of the allegorical figure which Ontario presents at the top of her arch should forever dispel what remains of English misapprehensions regarding the severity of Canada's climate.

In all 1,650,000 cubic feet of timber is now piled up into the seats from which their majesties will be cheered by their subjects of every race and color, and every fire brigade in London lives in terror lest a chance match should set London aflame and destroy pretty well every historic building that the metropolis holds.

Living on Ozone.

Over in good old London some people can pay $5,000 for a seat to view the coronation, while others are shy the price of a meal. The following poem touches up a phase of life in the world's greatest city:

["The lad was taken ill in the gallery of a music-hall, where, an attendant stated, boys often faint because they are half-starved."—FROM THE REPORT OF AN INQUEST.]

There isn't no dinner for father,
And mother she ain't had a bite,
The baby is white with starvation,
So we're off to the hall to night.

There's none of us had any breakfast,
Not a crumb that would gladden a mouse;
So we've raked up our coppers together,
And we're off to the gaff—second 'ouse.

If there isn't a good shirt amongst us,
Nor soles to our boots, what's the odds?
Thank Gawd, we can still muster tuppence
To buy a front seat in the "gods."

The world is all dreadful around us
For on e we'll get out of the strife;
No matter if stomachs is empty.
'Erel—give us two penn'orth of life!

A system of electric signalling for mines to give alarm of fire or other mishap operated by a hand driven generator, has been perfected.

One Coming

They are always telling jokes about the Irish, but here is one that Tom Walsh never heard before:

"Mr. Moriarity, who kept a saloon met Mr. Driscoll, who was a railway conductor.

Say Mr. Moriarity, "What does it mean when you have a green flag flying at the tail end of your train, Mr. Driscoll?"

"It means that another one is coming," was the answer.

The next day Mr. Moriarity was seen pushing a baby-perambulator up the street with two green flags flying behind.

TO THE PUBLIC

It having been circulated that all the stores of Greenwood will be closed every Wednesday afternoon during the summer months, I wish to give public notice that the Dry Goods and Clothing House of C. F. Stork will not be closed at any time this summer only upon legal holidays. I do this for the best interests of the public.

Last summer it was agreed by the merchants of Greenwood to close every Wednesday afternoon, which was observed by C. F. Stork and P. W. George, while in some of the other stores there was a man waiting inside to turn the key to anyone who might wish to purchase goods. Great complaint was made by the people working at the mines and smelter and particularly the farmers who came in to make purchases. The city needs all the business it can get, and I will not be an instrument to prevent the farmer and laboring man from getting the accomodation they need whenever they wish. Many stores will not be closed in Greenwood this summer, on Wednesday afternoons, especially the the Dry Goods Store of yours respectfully, C. F. STORK.

The city officials should engage a band of boys to pull up all the noxious weeds within the city limits. The wild mustard plant is about due to spread its seed all over the community.

The Fire Brigade has engaged the Juvenile Bostonians to play in Greenwood on October 4 and 5; the Dixie Jubilee Singers on January 4; and the Castle Square Entertainers on February 5.

Val Haynes and Bill Richter came to town last week with 125 head of cattle for P. Burns & Co. The same firm has also imported 400 sheep from Ben Hart's ranch at Nighthawk.

Billy Wallace, the tailor, seems to have flown from the high altitude of Phoenix to fresher and greener fields. Billy had a nice way of getting orders for suits, and quite a number of people could get out blue papers for him. It is said that a tailor is only the ninth part of a man, but in the case of Wallace, that ratio seems to be unduly inflated.

Jack Lucy left town on Monday with $400 in his jeans and a ticket for Vancouver. He intends to go into the wilds of Cariboo and grab a fortune from nature. Jack has brains enough to be a Patsy Clark or Jim Cronin, and his friends in Greenwood hope that he will come back with a pack-train load of gold. Jack took a water wagon rolled up in his blankets.

A large company was present at the first meeting of the Overseas club on Monday evening which took the form of a social. The club appears to fill a gap that has long been apparent in the social condition of the town and is worthy of the patronage of all British subjects. Mr. Loring seems to be just the man for the position of secretary and he will be pleased to give any information to anyone wishing to join.

The Hon. Thomas Taylor came into town last Thursday from Phoenix. He was accompanied by four members of the legislature: Messrs. Jackson, Miller, Wright and Schofield. Two judges from Phoenix were also with the party. In the morning, after J. H. James had flashed his kodak at the legislalative aggregation, they left in two horseless vehicles for Rock Creek. Taylor always enjoys a visit to Greenwood, where his friends are legion.

CITY COUNCIL.

The Council met on Monday evening, three members being absent.

A letter was read from the Vancouver Exhibition association re-exhibits. It was referred to the secretary of the Greenwood Farmer's Institute.

The following amounts were ordered to be paid: G. Evans, $40; B. C. Copper Co., $3.25; R. W. Halcrow, $12.15.

Mr. Jenks was present, and stated that he was cutting into cordwood the dead standing and falling timber, but no live timber, and asked for permission to keep hogs in the barn. The Mayor informed him that the matter would be considered, and an answer given at the next meeting of the council.

Council adjourned until July 3.

THE GREAT FORCE

Years ago the Ledge was the first paper to advocate the building of a mint in Canada, and wanted the Government to build it at Nakusp or New Denver. The government finally decided to build the mint, but could not see its way clear to take it away from Ottawa. A recent letter from Ottawa has the following:

The final approval at London of the new Canadian five and ten dollar gold pieces is expected shortly. By autumn the new coinage will be installed. They will be in intrinsic value and size the same as the American coins of like denomination and will probably be accepted at par in the United States, thus proving a great convenience to the Canadians who go across the border unprovided with American money. Practically the only gold in use in Canada at present are the American gold pieces and the number of these in this country is surprisingly large. On December 31st last the receiver-general for Canada had no less than $68,000,000 thus showing the large demand there is for a gold coinage in Canada.

ECKSTEIN TO MINERS

At a meeting of the Miners' Union on Saturday last, L. P. Eckstein, barrister of Fernie, delivered a short but interesting address. In the course of his remarks he touched on the Compensation Act and how it affected the working man and his family. For instance, if a man was working in British Columbia and met with an accident, being disabled, and his wife and children were living in another province, they would receive no compensation. He also pointed out the advisability of those sending money home, even as a present, to make the letter read that it was sent for the purpose of support, otherwise, in case of accident or death they could not expect their relatives to receive any compensation. In concluding his remarks he said that he hoped he had made the matter clear to his hearers, and that they would study the different clauses of the Act, and govern themselves accordingly.—Phoenix Pioneer.

Croquet and lawn tennis grounds have been laid out in Fort George. There are two banks in that section of the north.

There is a coal famine in Calgary. It will probably be worse next winter, if coal does not come in from the north.

The unsanitary condition of some of the hotels in Vancouver is appalling, and a menace to the health of the community.

At Kaleden in the Okanagan a water system is being put in that will cost $80,000. At that point fruit land is selling for $280.

A. M. Morrison of Coleman, was married to Miss Jessie Allcock in Newmarket, Ontario, this week. They will make their home in Coleman.

In Fernie Fred Waylett has made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. Too much coal strike in that town for people to buy bon-bons.

In the Fraser valley, between Tete Jaune and the Grand Canyon there are over 100 squatters, although that portion of the valley is under absolute reserve.

Felix Darraugh died in Kamloops this month, and was buried at Okanagan Falls. He was a well-known miner, and worked in Camp McKinney years ago.

A Slocan man killed a chicken the other day, and found four gold nuggets in her gizzard. He was so overjoyed that he paid for the New Denver paper a year in advance.

It cost the editor of the South Fort George Herald $15,000 for his plant and office, all made out of land notices. His last edition is filled with land notices from the Peace River district.

Jim Hill has not bought the Alberta Central railway, and declares that he does not know where it is says the Fernie Free Press. Perhaps Jim does not know that he has a railroad near Princeton.

The owner of the Wigen fruit farm near Creston makes as high as $1,200 a year from an acre of raspberries. His strawberries are famous wherever sold, and others should take a few lessons from Mr. Wigen's methods.

Writing about Premier McBride in the London Chronicle, T. P. O'Connor says that in Dick's character is blended the strength of the Ulster Orangeman, and the genial softness of his Roman Catholic mother.

An Italian musician on the verge of starvation recently sold to a man in Vancouver a Grand Amati violin for $25. The violin was made in 1660, and is worth $4000. The Italian wept when he parted with it, and so well he might.

The Grand Forks Sun says that the treatment of newspapeas by municipalities in different sections of the country is an interesting study. Some cities pay the papers for advertising their resources; others charge them a license for performing the same service.

The V. V. & E. Ry. is still running no further west than Princeton, and there is no sign of laying rails on the completed grade to Tulameen. Plenty of rails are quietly rusting in the yard at Princeton. Somebody should drop a line to Jim Hill about this sad state of affairs.

Up the Skeena river last month, the Indians set fire to a surveyors cabin and burned it to the ground with all contents. The Indians in that section have little friendship for white men, and are not in favor of the building of the Grand Trunk Pacific, but more on racial than political grounds.

There are about 3,000 men working on the Grand Trunk Pacific between the Tete Jaune Cache, and the railhead to the east. It is not yet very lively at the Cache. One hotel is in operation at that point. Mica is used by the settlers near the Cache in lieu of window glass.

In an interview with The News H. M. Foster states that there were only four married men in Nelson in 1891. This is an erroneous statement. During that year there were about 40 married men in Nelson, and of that number at least fifteen were living with their wives in that city. The writer knows, for during that year he practically took a census of everything in Nelson, except the pianos on Baker street and the bottles in Jim Dawson's cellar.

THE LEDGE

Is located at Greenwood, B. C., and can be traced to many parts of the earth. It comes to the front every Thursday morning, and believes that hell would close up if love ruled the world. It believes in justice to everyone; from the man who mucks in the mine to the king who sits on the cushions of the throne. It believes that advertising is the life of trade; and that one of the noblest works of creation is the man who always pays the printer.

The Ledge is $2.00 a year in advance, or $2.50 when not so paid. It is postage free to all parts of Canada, Mexico, Great Britain and the county of Bruce. To the United States it is $2.50 a year, always in advance.

VIVAT REX!

If you can forget, nothing will hurt you.

An easy job has ruined many a good man.

Many a soul has been saved by good music.

Popularity and mediocrity are bosom friends.

Little progress is made by a contented people.

As a tonic laughing beats any medicine advertised in the papers.

The census enumerator knows that there is something in a name.

Never mind trying to understand a woman. Just love her, and you will quit winner.

He who has never made a mistake, has never produced anything that was more than deuce high.

Owls and theologians are pretty much alike. One blinks at the light of day, and the other at the light of truth.

Long live the King, for a few more coronations would break half the tuft-hunters who have a craze for front seats.

It is all day in Dawson this week, and it would need to be, for the postmaster has just received 900 sacks of delayed mail.

There is a boom in London today, and many a poor soul will go to bed in that city tonight soaked to the upper tunnel in pale ale, and with a kink in his neck.

When they are silent it is often difficult to tell a bishop from a butler. Each have a lofty impassive appearance, and a pair of fat calves encased in strong stockings.

The man with the rake-off is with us from the cradle to the grave. It costs money to get in, go through, and leave this world. From the time mother is our dairy, until the day when the spade is trump we are a bill of expense to someone or ourselves.

With the question of marriage the priest is making his last stand for temporal power, and rather than make a fuss in church the meek and lowly accept the cinch in tears and silence. Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the church pews of this earth.

The Saturday Sunset has lived four years in Vancouver and is a winner. Its editor has nerve, its manager push, and between the two this handsome and fearless paper never runs out of meal tickets. Its editor will probably get shot some day, but, then, he will soon get used to that.

The newspapers throughout the universe that persist in calling Greenwood's leading excitement, The Ledger should leave the r off that word Ledger, and spell it Ledge. Cent belt editors may be excused, because the majority of them do not know what Ledge means, but when western editors sin in this respect they must be drunk, or exceedingly myopic.

And now the Presbyterians are after the naughty Mormons with a hot stick, and think they should be driven off the earth, or reformed. Like some of the old-timers we read about in the bible the Mormons have a weakness for a plurality of wives, and an abundance of children. In the latter way the Mormons might suit Roosevelt, but they must stick to one wife or there name is Dennis with the Presbyterians. We like to see war between the various religious sects for it means more liberty for the people. Give one church the cinch, and a mantle of misery, stained in blood, would soon make this beautiful world look like a cheap Gehenna on a hot day. The world should never forget Bruno, Seretus and the other old-timers who were roasted at the stake rather than give into the religious insanity of their day. Talk about how the redskins tortured the palefaces in the early days of America. Why they were not in it with those human devils who ran the church in the Dark Ages. Too much prayer, and too much so called religion drives people mad, and forces them to torture their fellow men for the glory of God as they call it. Turn to the dark pages of history if you doubt this assertion, and remember that history repeats itself when the opportunity ripens. The devil is not dead, but sleeping.

WHAT'S THE DIFFERENCE?

Breaking the Sabbath is just a matter of how you look at it. Some will run an auto on Sunday who would not saw wood on that day, because they think it would be sinful. Here is an instance told by Hub that will illustrate the subject:

"In California I went out camping for a few days. There was a preacher with us in the party. On Sunday the dominie declined to fish, and moreover, gently admonished the rest of us for so doing. And what do you suppose he did while we were fishing?

I'll tell you, Terese: he went out and caught grasshoppers for bait, so he could fish on Monday."

AN IMPRESSIVE CEREMONY

This is an age of progress, and the people are much wiser than they were in the early days, but in some respects we cling to the old customs like wet pants to a man in Vancouver.

Now there is the Noble Order Of The Garter. It is 560 years old yet we worship it still. The cermony is very elaborate and impressive. It has a tendency to fill us with awe and inspire us to push onward to greater things. At Windsor Castle recently the Prince of Wales was invested with the insignia of this noble order.

The King himself buckled the garter on the Prince's left leg, affixed the riband and the George on the left shoulder, fastened the star of the order to the left breast, and handed his Royal Highness the collar. We do not understand why the King did not put the collar around the neck of the Prince. With all due deference to royal etiquette we think that this should have been done in order to make the impressive ceremony complete to the eyes of all fortunate enough to witness it.

During the investiture of the Prince of Wales, the Prelate of the Order, the Bishop of Winchester, pronounced the following quaint admonition:

"To honor God omnipotent and in memorial of the Blessed Martyr St. George, tie about thy leg for thy renown this noble garter. Wear it as a symbol of the most illustrious order, never to be forgotten or laid aside that thereby thou mayst be admonished to be courageous and, having undertaking any just war in which thou shall be engaged, that thou mayst stand firm valiantly, fight successfully and conquer."

All loyal British subjects should ever pray, that our most noble Prince will never lose that garter, not even when he goes in swimming.

THE CALL OF GOLD

Written by H. N. Cosson for the Los Angeles Mining Review

In the Far South and The Far North

Again, in 1886, the call of gold came from a desolate waste from the almost unknown interior of Africa. The Rand was a country very similar to Colorado—a high, treeless platean, though naturally more fertile. The stubborn Boers, who had retreated thither in search of solitude, co-operated with nature in blocking the rush of the gold seekers. They hampered mining by law; but unfortunately for the Boers, they had not learned the story of gold. As well might they have tried to block the swing of the tides. There in the central zone of the Rand, lay two thousand millions in gold, and all the world knew it. Higher and higher rose the flood around the doomed republic—around the simple people who had been so blind as to build their barns on acres that were yellow with gold. Then, inevitably, came the crash of war; and now the deep mines of South Africa are producing their millions of dollars in gold each month.

In 1896 the song of the gold siren was heard in the Klondike—in the lone, white, silent land of the north. Coming from such a frozen waste, it seemed like a mocking gibe at human cupidity. The Klondike was not even the outer edge of civilization. It was two thousand miles farther. There was no road—nothing but a choice between the riverway for those who preferred to drown and the mountain way for those who preferred to freeze. Yet men rushed to the frozen valleys of the Yukon as if it were the promised land. Half came back or dropped by the trail; but the others seemed immune from either death or despair. They found gold—scores of tons of it—built railways, and planted a city of 10,000 people under the shadow of the Arctic Circle.

Then the gold cry came from Cape Nome. Not even the Pole could have been much more remote than that desolate spot. It was almost as far from Seattle as London is from New York— a bleak stretch of dark sand on the shores of Behring Sea. Nothing could live there but gray moss and mosquites. Yet a party of five hundred, led by couple of missionaries who had forgotten their churches in the excitement of the gold rush, trudged thither over the Alaskan snow fields. Hardships mattered nothing. Fifty below zero mattered nothing. There in the frozen land, when they had thawed it with bonfires of drift wood, lay the precious dust that pays all debts and rewards all labors. No matter what their sacrifices have been, they were the envied victors of the world. for they had found gold.

Following quickly after Alaska came Nevada. As if she were trying to test the passion of men to the utmost, the fantastic gold sprite next sang her song in the Great American desert. This particular region had been the horror spot of the West since the days of Pike and Fremont. With its dry and desolate valleys, its purple-pink hills, and all the weirdness of its painted scenery, it had always been looked upon as an unreal, theatrical country, wholly unfit for any living creatures, except its own horned toads and lizards.

But when the gold cry came, its terrors were forgotten in the twinkle of an eye. The desert became alive. Towns of Tonopah, Bull-frog, and Goldfield sprang up by magic. The sage brush wastes surrendered their treasures; and today the fatal land of drought and mirage is so tamed that its new made millionaires and their wives travel through it in Pullmans and automobiles.

Gold has always been a hide-and-seek metal, hard to find and easy to lose. Hundreds, possibly thousands, have hunted for those two famous lost mines of the West—the Breyfogle and the Pegleg; but the mystery that hides them is as deep today as fifty years ago. Some day possibly they will be rediscovered by a golf player or post hole digger who had never heard of them before.

No metal is so tricky and elusive as gold, and yet the commerce of the whole civilized world depends upon it. Nations rise and fall, prosper or become bankrupt, as the golden tide flows towards them or recedes. What is international trade, in fact, but a tug-of-war with a rope of gold? If the precious yellow stuff is coming in, what joy! If it is going out, what trepidation! Like a group of misers, the nations cram their treasures with gold, and then toil and battle like frenzied giants to get more.

There is nothing impressive about a shipment of gold from the treasury of one nation to another. A million dollars, for example, appears to be no more than a dray load of twenty small kegs. Each keg contains ten nineteen-pound bars, packed in sawdust. The weight of the twenty kegs is nearily four thousand pounds, and the cost of carrying them between the United States and Europe is about three thousand dollars. It is seldom that men dare to entrust more than fifty or sixty kegs to a single steamship.

To see the common little kegs rolling down the gangplank of a vessel, no one would suspect that they were being watched with such breathless anxiety. Yet if their safety required it, warships, would escort them from port to port, and armies would guard them with all the panopy of war. It has become more than a metal, more than a commodity, this gold. In an age like ours, when business is supreme, it is the emblem of authority. It is stored up ownership. It is a permit to live without working and to enjoy without effort. It is superior to kingship and all aristocracies. Whoever has gold is, to the extent of that gold, one of the rulers of the world.

Gold is power. The master nations have chosen it to be the greatest common measure of achievement. That is the secret of the mystery. It is at least the best answer we can give to the riddle of the gold cry and its magic appeal.

Yet it is not wholly the gold itself that attracts men so irresistibly. It is partly the glamour and excitement of the search. It is the fascination of life at high pressure, when hope thrills men like the shock of an electric current. It is the ecstacy of finding a pot of gold at the foot of a rainbow, and making the fairy tale of childhood come true. To find the magic door, to say "Open sesame!" and to walk into the treasure-cave and become its owner—this is the enthralling dream that lures the gold seekers into the uttermost part of the earth.

Then, too, then there is the semi-savage freedom of the camps. There is the rough spirit of fair-play and democacy. The special priveleges, as well as the comforts of the cities, are left behind, and life becomes a simple contest in which every man wins what he can get and holds fast. This, to strong primitive natures, is an inducement that outweighs all risks.

There are the many who lose, of course, as well as the few who gain. But the search for gold is the game in which the entrance fee is the lowest and the prizes are the highest. It still opens the door of wealth to the man whose only capital is his health and energy.

Several years since, a man in Idaho was sentenced to be hanged for murder. A lawyer became interested in his case, believed him to be innocent, and secured his pardon. On his release the lawyer "grub-staked" him, put him

About Float.

Float is not a periodical. It is a book containing 86 illustrations all told, and is filled with sketches and stories of western life. It tells how a gambler cashed in after the flush days of Sandon; how it rained in New Denver long after Noah was dead; how a parson took a drink at Bear Lake in early days; how justice was dealt in Kaslo in '93; how the saloon man outprayed the women in Kalamazoo, and graphically depicts the roamings of a western editor among the tenderfeet in the cent belt. It contains the early history of Nelson and a romance of the Silver King mine. In it are printed three western poems, and dozens of articles too numerous to mention. Send for one before it is too late. The price is 25 cents, postpaid to any part of the world. Address all letters to

LOWERY'S CLAIM

During the 37 months that Lowery's Claim was on earth it did business all over the world. It was the most unique, independent ond fearless journal ever produced in Canada. Political and theological enemies pursued it with the venom of a rattlesnake until the government shut it out of the mails, and its editor ceasad to publish it, partly on account of a lazy liver and partly because it takes a pile of money to run a paper that is outlawed. There are still 25 different editions of this condemned journal in print. Send 10 cents and get one or $2.50 and get the bunch.

HOMER WATSON
Canada's Great Landscape Painter.

Every great landscape artist is both a poet and a painter. The imagination, the intuition, the interpretation, the sympathy, the reverence, the love, kinship and communion with Nature of the poet, filtering through the mind of the artist find their medium of expression in brush and colors. Every great painting is a poem in paint instead of in print.

One feels this strongly in the presence of Homer Watson's paintings, the putting on canvas of a single mood, with detail ever subordinated to the general effect. They are never photographic, but are always strongly individual interpretations. Whether it be a rough sea with the dancing fisher-boats under a dull, rain-filled sky, the white mill catching the high lights with its background of foliage, the lone rider bent over his horse plodding along a rain-washed road, some noble monarch forest tree braving the elements, or his interpretations of any other moods of Nature, one always feels the sentiment, the richness of color, the atmosphere, the glow, the feeling—all seem inseparable parts of a single effect. The dainty daubs of detail characteristic of some painters find no place in Mr. Watson's work; it is ever bold, rugged, broad in treatment, breathing vigor and vitality.

Homer Watson was born in the little village of Doon, on Grand River, Ont., in 1856, and as a boy at school showed his natural instinct for art when he surreptiously drew on his slate an over-vivid picture of the strong and peculiar features of his teacher, which drew upon him deserved punishment. He seemed to turn naturally to landscape work, and his first large painting "The Pioneer Mill," which appeared at the first exhibition of the Royal Canadian Academy was purchased by the Marquis of Lorne, and now hangs in a place of honor in Windsor Castle.

Mr. Watson has exhibited at the Academy in England, the New Gallery, the New English Art Club, the Glasgow Institute and at International Expositions, and been honored by one-man exhibitions where thirty or more of his paintings were hung together, thus enabling one to study comparatively the range of his work. He makes almost annual trips to England, but loves Canada, her scenes and her people too well to take up permanent residence abroad. It is always dangerous to compare the work of one painter with another as it may carry with it a suggestion of imitation which would be unjust to one whose work is so individual as Mr. Watson's; but the critics in their appreciation of his paintings couple his name with the names of Corot, Constable, Diaz, Rosseau and Courbet—a noble band of masters with whom Canada's painter may feel honored to be classed.

The Call of Gold (concluded).

astride a burro, said "Good luck Jack," and sent him out into the desert. Jack was an experienced miner, and he went to the search determined to prove himself worthy of this confidence. A year later the lawyer received a sack of gold. Soon other sacks followed; and today both he and the man he befriended are independently rich.

At about the same time that Jack made his famous ride, there was a young Californian who had been dreaming golden dreams. He, too, believed that he could find the pot of gold at the foot of the rainbow, and he set out in search of it. One evening, in the heart of the Nevada desert, he came to a spring and camped for the night. Noticing that one of the burros was straying too far from the camp, he walked after it, and literally fell into one of the richest gold mines of the West. That is the story of Jim Butler of Tonopah.

"There is no law in gold mining but the point of the pick," said John W. McKay. Any man, in any place, may find his fortune. Alexander McDonald, the first millionaire of the Yukon Valley, had blundered up and down the gold fields of the Northwest for half a life time without success. Then he was fooled into buying a deserted claim that was believed to be worthless, and in one day dug up twenty thousand dollars as the beginning of his fortune.

In Australia, the land of nuggets, a discouraged prospector was tramping behind a pedler's cart. A wheel of the cart bumped heavily against a boulder, and even the dull eye of the tired miner caught the shine of gold in the spot where the wheel had struck. He stooped down to look more carefully and immediately sprang up with a shout of delirious joy. He had become the owner of nearly fifty thousand dollars.

The story of each "lucky strike," as it is told around the camp fire, has almost invariably a setting that is whimsical or romantic. There is the old tale of Dan Hill, who wandered out of a Californian poor house in 1866, stubbed his toe against a couple of nuggets, sold them for twenty-six thousand dollars, squandered the money in a few weeks of revelry, and then wandered back to ths poor house. There is the story of the Granite Mountain mine, in Montana—how it was such a sink-hole for capital that the owners telegraphed the superintendent to abandon it and begin else where—how he ignored the order, dug deeper, and found millions.

"Gold is Where You Find It"

The largest of the Californian nuggets was dug up by the merest chance. Two roystering miners, so it happened, were caught in a flood. One was swept off his feet and drowned. The other reached a place of safety and next morning proceeded to dig a shallow grave for his dead comrade. Several inches below the surface his pick struck against what seemed to be an eighty-pound rock. He wearily shoveled around it and pushed it out of his way. Then, with a shock that stunned him, he saw that it was a mass of virgin gold. It was worth nearly twenty-three thousand dollars, and he got ten thousand more by putting it on exhibition.

The greatest nugget ever known was found by a couple of penniless fellows named Byer and Haltman, who were living at the time on the charity of their neighbors. They were digging in New South Wales, and getting nothing, when suddenly they came upon a thick slab of gold that was almost twice as heavy as themselves. They had begged their breakfast that morning, but at night they were worth one hundred and forty-eight thousand dollars.

It is the element of chance that makes the gold cry so compelling. When a gold region in new, at least, the skilled and the unskilled seem to stand equal chances. Some tenderfoot to whom all rocks look alike, may snatch the prize from under the eyes of the experts.

Some miners were busy at work near Lotus, on the South fork of the American river, when a tenderfoot, who came along asked where to dig. It was considered a fine practical joke to direct him to the summit of a nearby ridge, alongside the new graveyard. He went thankfully up and a few hours later came down to tell his benefactors how kind they had been to a perfect stranger. They went up to sse what he had found and there stood his gold pan, alongside the hole, full of nuggets.

At that time it was generally believed among experts that gold could not be found in high places, and consequently the miners could scarcely believe their eyes.

"Gold is where you find it," say the experienced miners. No one can predict the direction whence the call shall next be heard. In Korea, in the Himalayas, in the Philippines, there are such vague rumors as usually precede a gold rush. One thing alone is certain, that wherever the new Eldorado may be, there will be tens of thousands who will spurn the comforts of civilization and face all dangers to find gold.

Life In Glasgow

Glasgow, the second city in the Empire, is not a "well-dressed" city; a walk through the wide streets, and a glance around the windows of the many fine shops clearly show that; but it is essentially a properly dressed city. By that I mean that if by chance the sun does come out, there is not an immediate display of light washing dresses—the Scotch ladies know the vagaries of their climate and cannot be tempted to indulge. No, they dress prepared for a deluge of rain, in servicable frocks and oilskin coats topped with a fisherman's sou'-wester. That is the first impression one gets. Another is the fact that there are more pretty women to the square foot than anywhere else in the United Kingdom.

All the shops, except tobacconists and one or two other trades, shut at eight prompt. It is impossible to buy a loaf of bread after this hour, be you ever so hungry. Whisky can be got, however, up to ten. Perhaps the latter ir looked upon as more of a necessity than bread.

One wonders when business is transacted in Glasgow. There are scattered about in a very small area in the heart of the city, some fifty tea rooms, and in these, all day long, are to be found from twenty to a hundred clerks, managers, buyers from the various emporiums, etc., etc. They seem to drop in causually for a cigarette, a cup of coffee and a chat with their friends. These little visits are frequently repeated during the day. I saw one man come in three times in an hour-and-a-half. I am told that if you want to see a man on business here, it is almost hopeless to call at his office; you must find out the tea-rooms he frequents.

NOTICE

PUBLIC NOTICE is hereby given that, under the authority contained in section 131 of the "Land Act," a regulation was approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council fixing the minimum sale prices of first- and second-class lands at $10 and $5 per acre respectively.

This regulation further provided that the prices fixed therein should apply to all lands with respect to which the applications to purchase were given favorable consideration after the date of said regulation, namely April 3, 1911.

Further notice is now given that by virtue of a regulation approved by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council on the 10th of May, 1911, that the regulation dated the 3rd April, 1911, be held not to apply to applications to purchase vacant Crown lands which were received by the Assistant Commissioners of Lands on or before the said April 3rd, 1911; and with respect to which the required deposit of fifty cents per acre had been received by said Commissioners on or before the said April 3rd, 1911.

BOUNDARY MINES

The Belcher mine at Republic will deliver 50,000 tons of ore to the Granby smelter.

S. H. C. Miner died at Granby, Quebec this month aged 76 years. He was the founder of the Granby Co. in the Boundary.

Granby stock sold for $40 in Spokane last week.

During May 90 carloads of ore were shipped from Republic.

The Grand Forks Gazette says that the B. C. Copper Co., is negotiating for more claims in the Franklyn camp.

Last week the Granby smelter treated 8,821 tons of ore.

The Trail smelter's quarry at Fife employs 45 men.

It is reported that the Granby has bought 80 per cent. of the Hidden Creek mines at Goose Bay for $400,000.

In Spokane last week $5.50 was asked for shares of the B. C. Copper Co.

The paystreak on the Elkhorn has widened to 14 inches and the ore now being taken out is rich in gold and silver.

For additional air pipe the Big Tunnel uses 1000 pounds of galvanized iron every month.

There is a deal on for some properties in the Deadwood camp.

The Greenwood smelter treated 12,000 tons of ore last week.

In the year ending March 31 the Rawhide and Athelstan mines produced 90,000 tons of ore.

The New Dominion Copper Co., intend to diamond drill the Sunset and Montezuma mines.

During April the Greenwood smelter produced 3,127 ounces of gold; 13,630 ounces of silver, and 477 tons of copper. The cost of producing the copper was 9.29 cents a pound.

The Jewel mine has received some more machinery.

The Argo Tunnel Co. will hold its annual meeting on Saturday.

B. C. MINING NEWS

A small concentrator has been put in at the Hartney mine, back of New Denver. It is run by a gasoline engine.

WAGES AT COLEMAN

The statement of wages presented to the board of arbitration here on Saturday last by general manager Whiteside, of the International Coal & Coke Co., show a very high average of earning by the miners employed by his company. One contract man had earned $2,533 during the past year while during that time the the very lowest earned by any contract man $864.34. The average daily wages received by all employees during the year were $3.75 and the mine was operated 280.6 days. It can be plainly ssen that the wages paid out to all the miners and other employees of I. C. & C. Co. are considerably larger than those received by men working at any of the big coal mines in British Columbia, and shows that the International Coal & Coke Co pay their miners and and those engaged at outside work as big, if not bigger, wages than any other coal mine in the West.—Blairmore Enterprise.

A HOT ROAST

The editor of the South Fort George Herald is virile, if not sweetly polite. He hits with a club in preference to using a sugar-coated rapier. Here is the way he hands the dope to another editor:

"The supernumerary "editor" of the Ashcroft Journal, an exbank boy, didn't like The Herald calling the Ashcroft Liar,—as his boss' journal is familiary called in the Cariboo—a decrepid, mangy old rag. No. His little capsule brain got busy and he "wrote something" in reply. Oh! Cyril, you naughty boy. Before the budding journalist goes any further he ought to get next to the fact that whilst the butcher used to wait for the junk-pile in the Journal office to turn out his week's supply of meat wrapping, the genial proprietor in his front street office used to peddle lots in a wild-cat."

TWENTY YEARS AGO

Twenty years ago on July 1st Nelson had its first Dominion Day celebration. The poorest brass band in the world furnished the music from the verandah of the Merchants saloon, and the horse races ended in front of the Nelson hotel. Porcupine Billy was dressed up as an English dude in short pants, and by night time there were a few people sober in the camp. The celebration lasted about seven days, and finished up by a row with the Indians who were camped on the flats near the C.P.R. depot.

THIS READS WELL

F. H. Knight, of the Boundary Mining and Exploration company, in which James Petrie and Francis E. Armstrong are interested, has returned from a visit to the property. With him went Messrs Fluhrer and Chapmam, of Trail, who were so pleased with the look of the property that they took interests in it. Two thousand pounds of coal have been brought to Rossland and numerous tests have been made, every satisfaction been obtained. Assays made at the B. C. Copper Co., and the Granby properties give excellent results, and both Mr. Knight and Mr. Petrie say that very shortly they will be able to lay down a ton of coal at Rossland homes for the price paid for a cord of wood.—Rossland Miner.

DAN'S SMELTER

A despatch from Toronto says: Following the negotiations with Sir Donald Man, of McKenzie & Mann, in respect to the Island Smelter Company, it was decided at a meeting of the executive to call a meeting of the shareholders on June 29, to ratify a sale of the process and assets of the company.

If Dr. Island can demonstrate to Sir Donald Mann that his method will apply to the refractory ores of British Columbia, then Sir Donald is not only prepared to take it over but will agree to form a $10,000,000 company and give the present shareholders share for share in the new company, in addition to paying Dr. Island and his associates $5,000,000. Owing to the fact that Sir Donald Mann is on his way to the Old Country, these statements could not be verified, but the shareholders of the company are all quite prepared to accede to Sir Donald's offer, which was made some time ago.

HEALTH ACT.

Regulations for the Sanitary Control of Lumber, Mining, and other Camps, Sawmills and other Industries situated in Unorganized Districts.

1. Every employer of labor on any work in any lumbering, mining construction, or other camp, sawmill, or other industry situated in any portion of an unorganized district, shall, upon the establishment of each and every camp or work, forthwith notify the Sanitary Inspector of the Province of the establishment of the same, and when requested to do so shall furnish such particulars as may be required by the said Inspector.

2. The owner, manager, agent, or foreman of any lumber, mining, or other camp, sawmill or other industry located within an unorganized district, shall, in connection with every such industry or works, be responsible for the execution and enforcement of any regulation herein contained or hereafter to be adopted.

3. If in the opinion of the Sanitary Inspector the site of any camp or works is unhealthy or unsanitary, he may order the removal of such camp or works to some other site to be selected by him.

4. Any house, tent, or dwelling occupied by the employees engaged in any industry located within an unorganized district shall contain sufficient cubic feet of air space for every occupant thereof as may in each instance be deemed necessary by the Sanitary Inspector, and shall further be provided with efficient means of ventilation. The floor of every dwelling shall be constructed of boards or planks or other material equally suitable for the purpose, raised on supports at least one foot from the ground, and so made that it shall be tight. Every dwelling other than a tempory tent shall be lighted by windows so constructed that they can be opened when necessary.

5. The method of ventilation of every dwelling in which a stove or furnace is used shall be such as will satisfy the Sanitary Inspector. The temperature of the room shall be maintained at from 60 to 65 degrees Fahr., and a shallow pan supplied with water shall be kept on the stove to supply air moisture.

6. Every camp or works of every industry coming under these regulations shall be equipped with a wash-house or laundry containing a stove and tubs for bathing purposes.

7. Every camp or works shall be supplied with a building or tent properly constructed and set apart as a kitchen, and having a dining-room in connection therewith, with proper conveniences for the cleanliness and comfort of the employees.

8. Proper receptacles must be kept on hand into which all refuse, whether liquid or solid, must be placed, and such refuse must be regularly destroyed by fire or removed to a safe distance from any building and be so deposited as to not create a nuisance or contaminate the drinking water.

9. Latrines, earth, or other closets must be located, constructed and maintained in a manner satisfactory to the said Sanitary Inspector.

10. Stables in connection with any camp or works must be located as not to contaminate the water supply, and must not be less than 125 feet distant from any dwelling or kitchen. This distance may be increased at the discretion of the Sanitary Inspector.

11. The water supply of any camp or works must be uncontaminated and obtained from a source satisfactory to the Sanitary Inspector.

12. Printed copies of these regulations may be obtained from the Sanitary Inspector.

13. Should the Sanitary Inspector find that any of these regulations are not complied with, he may, where necessary, take steps to enforce them, and the expense of such action shall be paid by the employer or his agent.

14. The penalties contained and provided in section 97 of the "Health Act" shall apply to the violations of any of these regulations.

15. The Sanitary Inspector may, where deemed necessary, obtain the services of any Provincial constable or constables to assist him in the performance of his duties and to aid in the enforcement of these regulations.

By Order,
L. T. DAVIS, M. D.,
Sanitary Inspector,
Victoria.

Tenders will be received by the undersigned for twenty tons of coal, delivered at the school not later than September 15th. The lowest or any tender not necessarily accepted.

Dated at Greenwood, B. C., June 19th, 1911.

C. E. TAYLOR,
Secretary to the Board.

CHRISTINA LAKE

Ola Johnson's addition to the hotel will be finished enough to accomodate the crowd Thursday. He is also re-painting his launch the Idle Wild. His youngest daughter celebrated her first birthday with an elaborate lawn party and an elaborate lunch.

O. B. Smith's new house boat is down here from the head of the lake receiving its finishing touches at the hands of M. Lachapple and W. X. McDonald. It is named the "Marion" after his youngest daughter. M. Lachapple has caught several 2 and 3 pound trout from its decks and says that he will get all the trout before O. B. gets back.

Last Thursday quite a distinguished party were here with J. A. Bertois and E. Spraggett as chaffeurs, namely: Hon. Thomas Taylor of Victoria, Harry Wright, Ernest Miller, and J. H. Schofield. Sunday morning early another party was brought down by E. Spraggett. They had some speaking, songs, shooting, and a ride in E. E. Gibson's fine launch, followed by some games among which was bowling on the green, in which E. E. Gibson succeeded in bowling onto the hotel porch, then caroming through the dining room window which brought the cook out with his hair standing straight up. E. Miller succeeded in hitting the corner of the hotel office. Judge W. R. Williams say's they were aiming at him as he had retired. No truth in it though as they both say they are his friends. Charles Flood of Fife was master of ceremonies. J. R. Jackson, M. P. P was referee.

Sunday night E. E. Gibson and party caught two large trout, sufficient for a feast for the party of 18. One 10¾ lbs and the other 7½ lbs.

There is a barber at the hotel. Ola says that he will soon procure lawn tennis balls and bats, archery, shuffle board and a variety of out door games together with some new open awings.

HOTEL BROOKLYN

PHOENIX, B. C.

Is opposite the Great Northern depot and is a delightful haven for the weary traveler. Great veins of hot water run through the entire house, and bathrooms are always at the service of those in search of material cleanliness. The dining room is an enemy to dyspepsia, while the artistic appointment of the liquid refreshment makes the drinks go down like eating fruit in a flower garden, The sample rooms are the largest in the mountains and a pleasure to drummers with big trunks.

TO THE PUBLIC

It having been circulated that all the stores of Greenwood will be closed every Wednesday afternoon during the summer months, I wish to give public notice that the Dry Goods and Clothing House of C. F. Stork will not be closed at any time this summer only upon legal holidays. I do this for the best interests of the public.

Last summer it was agreed by the merchants of Greenwood to close every Wednesday afternoon, which was observed by C. F. Stork and P. W. George, while in some of the other stores there was a man waiting inside to turn the key to anyone who might wish to purchase goods. Great complaint was made by the people working at the mines and smelter and particularly the farmers who came in to make purchases. The city needs all the business it can get, and I will not be an instrument to prevent the farmer and laboring man from getting the accomodation they need whenever they wish. Many stores will not be closed in Greenwood this summer, on Wednesday afternoons, especially the the Dry Goods Store of yours respectfully, C. F. STORK.
