THE LEDGE

VOL. XIII. GREENWOOD, B. C., THURSDAY, OCTOBER. 25, 1906. No. 16

Of Local Interest

Dr. Mathison, dentist, Naden-Flood block.

Two cars of Strathmore ore were shipped to the Trail smelter the past week.

J. S. Harrison, of Midway, was in the city Monday and Tuesday on business.

The Roscian Opera Company will appear this evening and Friday in the Auditorium.

The funeral of Jas. Celle and Peter Godereau took place Saturday last and was well attended.

Geo. M. Barrett came down from Beaverdell the past week, and will spend the winter in Greenwood.

Jas. C. Dale and Berry Dale came down from Carmi Friday last, and will remain in the city for some time.

E. A. Black, Phoenix, sells the best in jewels, diamonds, watches and clocks. Remember this when you go up the hill.

The editor of the Anaconda News has been under the weather for some time. He has recovered and the News will appear regularly in future.

Thos. Curry, one of the pioneer prospectors of the West Fork was in the city for a few days the past week. Mr. Curry owns a group of claims near Beaverdell.

Clement Vacher arrived in the city Saturday morning to attend the funeral of his nephew, having ridden night and day from above Penticton on Okanagan lake.

J. C. Haas, M. E., of Spokane, was in the city the past week inspecting the work being done on the Golconda in South Deadwood camp. He left for Spokane Tuesday morning.

Jas. Kerr came up from Midway Monday. He reports business good in that town. Although the railway work has moved west, a considerable portion of the trade still comes to Midway.

Nicholas Duncan Munro, a son of Mrs. N. R. Munro of Midway, and nephew of Jas. and R. D. Kerr, passed first in the recent matriculation examination of McGill's university from Vancouver high school, obtaining the Governor-General's medal.

H. O. Lamb will sever his connection with the Boundary Creek Times at the end of the month. Jas. W. Ellis will in future have control of the business. Mr. Lamb has had charge of the Times for the past nine months, and although unfamiliar with conditions in a camp, has succeeded in publishing a fairly good mining paper. It is said that Mr. W. G. Gaunce will furnish the grey matter for the Times, Mr. Ellis devoting his whole attention to the business end of the concern. THE LEDGE wishes the new manager every success.

Father Thomas McGrady, author lecturer and orator, will give addresses in the Boundary this week, in Boundary Falls, in Ryan's Hall, this evening the 25th inst., and in Eagles' Hall, Greenwood, tomorrow evening. The subject of both lectures will be "Socialism" It is needless to say that a rare treat is in store for those who will have the privilege of attending these lectures. Unfortunately owing to the Roscians appearing in Greenwood Friday evening, the Auditorium could not be secured for the Greenwood lecture. Everybody is invited. A collection will be taken up at the close of each lecture.

The sidewalk on Church street has been completed.

The Maple Leaf Brand Fuse is manufactured by the originators of Safety Fuse. Established 1836.

J. G. Melvin, the watchmaker and jeweler has moved into the O. K. Barber shop.

Duncan Curry, who is interested in the Bounty Fraction and Duncan on Wallace mountain, is spending a few days in the city.

Dr. Mathison picked ripe strawberries in his garden on Kimberley avenue, Friday last. Vancouver is not the only strawberry camp in the province.

Coroner Black returned Thursday last from Carmi, having made the round trip in three days and held an inquest on the bodies of the two men killed.

Six or seven men were laid off at the Carmi mine this week. The force will be enlarged in a few days. George Williams is making a test of the concentrates by cyanide process.

Those who wish to qualify as municipal voters, should read the notice of City Clerk Taylor on the fourth page of this issue. Registration must be made before the est of November.

A very successful social was given by the ladies of the Presbyterian church, Midway, Thursday evening last. An excellent musical program was given, and refreshments were served.

When you buy a heating stove from the Russell-Law-Caulfield Co., you get an article which appears on our floors only, because it is Union made, and the best of its kind for use in this climate.

On the evening of November 8th, W. G. Gaunce will deliver a lecture on "Westminster Abbey," in the Greenwood Presbyterian church. A musical program will also be given. Admission 50 cents.

Dave Smith, who was wounded in the Carmi shooting is recovering rapidly. The bullet was extracted from his shoulder when he arrived in the city Tuesday last and he is able to come down from the hospital daily.

Boundary Valley Lodge, No. 38, I. O. O. F., will give their annual ball, in the old Masonic hall, Wednesday evening next 31st inst. Bush's orchestra of Midway, will furnish the music. Tickets $1.50, supper extra. The committee in charge intend to make this the best dance ever held in Greenwood.

At the last meeting of the council one of the firemen asked for payment for a pair of pants spoiled in attending a false alarm. Some months ago there was friction between the aldermen and fire brigade. During discussion at council meeting, one of the aldermen suggested that a false alarm be sent in to test the efficiency of the brigade. This was done. The boys turned out promptly and Jack McBain tore a pair of pants in his zeal for the protection of property. It is claimed that had the alarm been given for a fire no compensation would have been asked, but for a false alarm to satisfy the curiosity of the aldermen, any damage done to clothing should be made good either by the city or the aldermen The fire brigade boys usually get the best of the argument with the council, and this is not an exception. The dancer should pay for the piper. If aldermen get gay, they should pay for their frivolity.

The store that serves you best. The Russell-Law-Caulfield Co.

When you want a monument or headstone, write to the Kootenay Marble Works, Nelson, B. C.

A. G. Wheatley of Beaverdell, was a visitor to the city last week, bringing down the bodies of Jos. Celle and Peter Godreau for interment in the Greenwood cemetery.

Walter McDonald, who has had charge of development at the Prince Henry for the past two two years, has severed his connection with that mine and left Saturday for Beaverdell to work on the Sally.

Forty men are at present employed on the Emma and Oro Denora mines in Summit camp, near Eholt. Between two and three hundred tons per day will be shipped from these mines to the Greenwood smelter.

Word was received in the city yesterday that the lead had been encountered in the tunnel of the Rambler, on Wallace mountain, at a distance of 100 feet from the portal. This gives a depth of about 75 feet on the lead. Drifting on the lead will be commenced at once, and an upraise made to the surface.

Wires have recently been strung on the B. C. Construction & Distributing Co's. new power line to the Mother Lode mine. Arrangements for changing the big compressor over from steam to electric drive have been completed some time, and everything is in readiness to make the necessary connections as soon as sufficient machinery can be installed in the new transformer building in Anaconda. —Anaconda News.

A company has been formed to take over the Duncan and Bounty Fraction mineral claims near Beaverdell on the West Fork. The name of the company is the Wallace Mountain Mining Company. A number of local men are interested in the promotion, including C. H. Fair, Kenneth McKenzie, Duncan Curry, and others who have been working the properties under bond. It is said that Hon. W. S. Fielding will be a large shareholder in the concern.

Geo. Findlay returned Monday from the Bulkley Valley country. He went there last spring to prospect for a Greenwood syndicate and spent the summer in that district. He made locations but said it required capital to develop them. Jas. Hatch and T. F. Sutherland, formerly of Greenwood are in the North, the former foreman and the latter assayer and bookkeeper for the Telkwa Mining and Development company. Bruce Craddock, who went north with Mr. Findlay, is now in Vancouver and will probably return to Greenwood shortly.

The annual meeting of the Providence Mining company was held in Greenwood last week, at which the reports of officers were read and directors appointed for the ensuing year. During the year 1874 tons of ore have been shipped, giving a return of $117,230. A dividend of 10 per cent was paid during the year. The directors elected are H. J. Fitzgerald, Frank Rudolph, D. B. Scully, M. S. Madden, J. B. Hieney, W. S. Macey, Dr. Frank Byrnes and Mark F. Madden. Mark F. Madden is president; Dr. Byrnes, vice-president; M. S. Madden, secretary and John C. Hieney, treasurer.

Don't delay getting your photos. Mr. Macknight will be glad to see you at the City Studio any day for the next fifty weeks.

Phoenix

Owing to a constantly increasing business at the Hotel Brooklyn 20 more rooms will be added to it in the spring.

A Greenwood man won a big stake playing faro in this camp last week.

N. Limieux who acts as jailer in this town is a cousin of the Postmaster General, but this fact does not hasten the speed of the mails between here and Greenwood.

In order to save their customers from walking up the hill P. Burns & Co. are building a shop near the Waldorf Astoria.

The Magdala is the name of a cigar that the barkeep will show you if you ask him for it.

NELSON

Earl Grey and his son now own fruit ranches near Nelson. This will advertise the locality.

Charles Rashdall is now manager for Tom Proctor.

It is said that the C. P. R. will adopt the Slocan route to the Coast on Nov. 20.

The city power plant should have another machine. The opponents of the plant now call it Nelson's White Elephant.

The prosperity of the Boundary is having a solutary effect upon business in this city.

John Houston is said to be in Tonopah getting ready for the next session in Victoria.

It is not yet known when the morning dispenser of intelligence will discover the existence of the evening news luminary.

Somebody says that Bill McCandlish should be the next mayor. Bill should be all right for that position. He has one of the largest families in Nelson and has made a fortune in this city by knowing how to handle the public.

Some of the electric lights in Nelson still look like the frazzled end of a red streak.

Dad Black is running an hotel in Golden.

Ainsworth has been discovered by Butte people.

A mammoth hotel will likely be built in Nelson to accommodate the enormous travel when the world finds out that Earl Grey has got a ranch near the city.

Perfume the ozone these frosty mornings by smoking a Kootenay Belle cigar.

A Toronto paper says that they are shipping silver by the barrel from Cobalt. Years ago the same paper said that the Ibex claim in the Slocan had two millions of dollars worth of ore in sight. Anything goes when the people are crazy for stock, and Cobalt is trying hard to satisfy the mania.

Lowery's Claim

Some of the big papers in Toronto, New York, Los Angeles and other large cities are severely condemning the Postmaster-General of Canada for his vindictive treatment of Lowery's Claim by refusing it to use the mails, and are calling upon all lovers of liberty to write that dignitary letters protesting against his inconsistent and autocratic attitude towards that journal. The matter will likely be brought before the House at the next session and the secret plot against Lowery thoroughly ventilated. The "Coon in the woodpile" will have to show himself. At present he skulks behind the polite Frenchman who wishes to dictate what kind of literature shall be carried in this free (?) Canada, the Grit's heaven. The P. M. G will probably be able to explain why he denied the use of the mails to one journal while permitting other journals printing the same matter the usual postal privileges.

Moral Support

Greenwood, B. C., Oct. 22, 1906
To the Gladstone Miners' Union,
U. M. W. of A., of Fernie, B. C.

At a regular meeting of Greenwood Miners' Union, No. 22, W. F. M., the following resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, Gladstone Miners' Union of Fernie, B. C., are having a bitter fight against Cooperative greed.

Whereas, the actions of the Mine Owners association throughout the American continent are well-known to Greenwood Miners' Union.

We, as fellow workers fully recognize the class struggle which is being waged throughout the United States and Canada, therefore we know the Capitalist class will violate any agreement to further their dastardly purposes, but go ahead brothers; the smelting industry of the Boundary is quaking.

Copper was never so high as it is now and with the coal mines tied up the smelting industry of the Boundary will be crippled.

Resolved, that Greenwood Miners' Union pledge you their moral support, you have nothing to lose but your chains and a world to gain. Be it further resolved,

That a copy of these resolutions be sent to Greenwood Ledge, Gladstone Miners' Union, and Fernie Ledger, and spread on the minutes of this Union.

Roblin Speaks

Premier Roblin, of Manitoba has returned from attending the Provincial Conference, and when asked for the views on the action of Hon. Mr. McBride, said: I think the position taken up by him was a strong one. Had any of the others been placed in similar circumstances, the Premier so situated would have adopted a similar attitude. The position he took was that the Legislature never endorsed the Quebec resolutions of 1902. They unanimously asked for consideration of their claims, independent of the reasons given for the resolutions when they were adopted. I agree that he could not have taken any other stand and been able to meet the Legislature of British Columbia with a report that would have been acceptable to them. That is, unless he had obtained special financial assistance, as embodied in his request, His action and conduct were courteous and dignified, but firm in his demands for reference of British Columbia's claims for special consideration by virtue of her physical difficulties.

The Premier, on the subsidy arrangement, expressed no disapproval or criticism. He explained that nothing was definitely settled. The resolutions as submitted, were acceptable to the Dominion Government, but the Federal Ministers pointed out that they would be compelled to submit the matter to the Imperial Parliament by way of an amendment to the British North America Act, before anything could be done.

If the girls of Greenwood want to make their mouths small and pretty, they should repeat 500 times every night before going to bed the words "prunes, prism, prim."

It is bliss to smoke a Kootenay Belle cigar.

Sermon on Socialism

Of the many hundreds who attended the First Presbyterian church in Vancouver Sunday evening, crowding it to the doors and beyond, not a single hearer could with reason go away feeling that Socialism does not receive fair play at the hands of one of the city clergy. With regard to the exactness of language in the framing of definitions, and an evident desire to extend to Socialism in its ethical aspect the most sympathetic treatment, Dr. Fraser's answer to the question, "What is Socialism?" is beyond doubt the most moderate, accurate and valuable which has been given in this city since Socialism began to be talked or talked about.

Taking for his text, the phrase in the 23rd verse of the fourteenth chapter of Proverbs. "In all labor there is profit," the preacher remarked that his text was probably the basis of Adam Smith's statement, "Labor produces wealth," to which Karl Marx added, "All labor ought to enjoy its due proportion of wealth." Proceeding, Dr. Fraser remarked that the socialist did not live who could not define socialism in such a way as to find universal acceptance for his definition. Socialism in its advocacy today was conditioned by the mind of the individual advocating it. It was in a condition of chaos. It started with the hot air of the revolutionary socialist who shouted for the bullet—and let his wife support him over the washtub, and ranged as high as the Christian socialism as the late Dean Scott, or the philanthropic socialism of the Countess of Warwick.

WHAT SOCIALISM IS NOT

Answering this question first, the preacher said socialism was not the product of ignorance, nor a movement led by ignorant men. It was the misfortune of socialism that it had attracted to its following a class of men who were not only uneducated, but were alas! foul-mouthed, whiskey-soaked, blear-eyed, filthy loafers; but socialism could no more be blamed for that than the church could be blamed for part of its following. Karl Marx was said—and not by socialists—to be one of the greatest thinkers the nineteenth century produced. A German Jew, he studied law at Berlin and Bohn, and graduated Doctor of Philosophy. His great work was "Capitalism," and its merit was recognized by all schools of thinkers. Some conceived of socialism as mere anarchy, but a man had only to study the principles of socialism, even superficially and he would at once see the impassable gulf that lay between the two. Anarchy said "No rule", socialism said "All must rule." Socialism respected law, sought to maintain it, and to see it admistered on a much higher plane than it was administered in many places today. Nor was socialism to be confounded with attempts to secure a division of spoils. Socialism did not seek to equalize men, at least in that way. The head clerk in a socialist store in Brussels was paid five times as much as any other, and the reason given for this was "Because he is worth it."

After showing the growth of socialism the preacher traced its origin—in the form to which it is now generally known—to Marx, remarking as he did so, that some tried to trace it all the way back to Plato. Socialism, said the speaker, grew up out of modern industrial conditions, and among those he specially mentioned machinery. Marks studied industrial conditions from the government reports in England, and in collaboration with a compatriot wrote the Communistic Manifesto "Socialism," concluded the preacher, is here to stay. I believe it is destined to play a very large part in the future. We want to know the best part that is in it, and give the best that support and encouragement which it has a right to demand from the Christian church.

Socialism was not to be charged with the excrescences which hatred of Christians, of the church, or of social conditions had created. Socialism was an economic theory, a philosophic statement. After passing in review various definitions of socialism, he said one principle of socialism was common ownership in the material instruments of production. Socialism said that the instruments of production should be in the hands of the people, but it did not say that the wealth of the people or the wealth of production must be in the hands of the people. Socialism had no quarrel with the millionaire except when he used his wealth in the production of wealth. The millionaire could have as many yachts, pictures, and pianos as he wished, but the moment he turned the mighty engine of his capital along the line of production of more wealth, it became a part of the production of the people. I think, remarked the preacher, amid applause, that's pretty sensible.

Socialism also insists on common management of production. Today management was carried on solely with a view to profits. Human needs had no place in this economic question, according to the socialist view of capitalism. Production had been reduced to the level of profits. Socialism says production should be regarded from the standpoint of public need and not from the standpoint of private profit. In crises governments had been known to carry on public works at a loss, and to run soup kitchens for relief of the starving, and these crises had often occurred when great corporations had been declaring large dividends on watered stock. Common management, looking only to the good of the community would put an end to this.

The principle of socialism next mentioned by the preacher was "The distribution of income by common authority." By income was meant, not your income, or mine, but the national income or revenue. For if instance, the C. P. R. was owned and managed according to socialism, the eight or ten millions which the newspaper stated recently the company had in excess of expenditure, after the dividend had been declared, would have to be turned back to the to the people, not in the form of a cash bonus, but in the construction of new lines and in the reduction of carrying expenses.

The last principle stated was that every man, woman and child had a right to a sufficient proportion of income to satisfy his needs. Socialism did not propose the abolition of private property. On the contrary it declared that private property was necessary for personal freedom and for the full development of the individual.

Rev. Dr. Fraser prefaced his remarks with the statement that he was a socialist, but not a socialist of the Vancouver type, and he concluded with the announcement that his sermon next Sunday evening would be a criticism of socialism.—Vancouver World.

THE editor of the Express, in Vancouver, is much alarmed because hay is liable to go higher than $13 a ton.

BILLY MCLEAN will start a paper in Vancouver. One would think he had troubles enough running a one cent paper in Toronto.

IF Billy McLean wants to make his Vancover daily a success he will have to get two barrels of red ink and plenty of big letters for terror headlines.

EARL GREY visited all the towns on Okanagan lake, but he could not find time to visit the Boundary. Probably he thought we were too close to Ferry, Wash.

IT seems strange that people in Chicago offer $2,000 to see a baseball game while here in Greenwood you can see a longer game without paying a cent.

THE streets of Vancouver are filled with starving Hirdoos. They do not seem to be clever enough to open real estate offices and live upon the froth of the boom.

COUNT WITTE says he has had enough of politics in Russia. He should come to Canada and get a job in the postoffice at Ottawa. He would not be lonesome there.

IN this age the little thief goes to jail while the big one often goes to the legislature or Europe. From this experience we would judge that it is not safe to steal much less than a million dollars at a time.

THE strike at Fernie will have a tendency to drive the smelters elsewhere for coke, and by the time the mines at Coal Creek get ready to resume operations there will be few customers for the product.

THE world must surely be going crazy for the other day in Chicago people were offering $2,000 to get a look at a baseball game. Out west so far this season the Midway baseball team has only cost us $2.

A YOUNG man in Toronto recently died from playing too much rugby football. He might have lived to a good old age if he had taken his exercise by sawing wood. The excitement of football is too intense for those with more mental than physical strength, and should only be indulged in by lazy people.

A MERCHANT in Kaslo was fined recently for selling goods after 6 o'clock in the evening, and the same chap is so loyal to his town that he has not been in Nelson for six years. The duller some small towns are the more chance for petty spite to blossom like a bunch of thistles on a deserted farm.

THE CONFERENCE

Provincial dailies, have for the past week, been discussing the stand taken by Premier McBride, at the conference of premiers just closed in Ottawa. The position taken by provincial papers has been guided wholly by political bias. Mr. McBride went to Ottawa to endeavor to secure justice for British Columbia, and, no doubt, a little more than justice if possible. When he found that he could not get justice he withdrew from the conference. Here is British Columbia's claim, as taken from an Eastern exchange:

The British Columbia memorandum submitted by Premier McBride set forth that, while adhering to the general principle of the rights of the provinces to increased subsidies, the Government of British Columbia could not accept the Quebec basis of 1902 as a final and full settlement of its demands. Without special consideration to British Columbia, it was held that that province would be no better off than at present, by reason of the fact that British Columbia contributes much more to the Federal treasury than she receives from it. It is claimed that since she came into confederation British Columbia has contributed nineteen million dollars more to the Federal revenue than has been expended in the province. The memorandum further set forth that the proposed increase in subsidies being based largely upon population, the special physical conditions which greatly enhance the cost of government in British Columbia were not provided for. It is contended that the financial terms originally conceded to British Columbia were the least favorable, possibly by reason of the fear existing 35 years ago that the province would not pay its way. As these fears have proved groundless, it is held to be incumbent upon the Dominion, morally and constitutionally, to substitute fairer terms than those now in force.

UNFAIR DISCRIMINATION

The following figures are given showing the annual average per head of population of expenditures by the different provinces during the last 30 years.

British Columbia	$11 86
Manitoba	4 31
Prince Edward Island	2 94
Quebec	2 44
New Brunswick	2 16
Ontario	1 79
Nova Scotia	1 65

Reference is also made to the physical character of the country, rendering its government very costly. It is also pointed out that the geographical position of the province handicaps it in a relation to the products which it sells. A comparison is made of the terms conceded to British Columbia and to the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan. It is held that the two latter provinces, when they receive the full amount to which they are entitled, will get $2,250,000 per annum, while British Columbia, at its maximum amount, will secure less than half a million. It was contended that either the two new provinces had been too generously endowed by the Dominion, which is not alleged, or that British Columbia had received very inadequate consideration.

The memorandum concluded with a request for the appointment of a commission to investigate the merits of the provincial contention. It was suggested that this tribunal be composed of three persons, one each appointed by the Dominion, by British Columbia, and by the Secretary of State for the Colonies.

MR. MCBRIDE'S PROPOSALS

As will be seen from the resolutions already quoted, Mr. McBride's request for a commission of enquiry was rejected and then for the next two or three days the discussion centred upon the additional amount which British Columbia should receive. At first, $75,000 a year for ten years was suggested. Afterwards this was raised to $100,000 per annum, or one million in all. Mr. McBride then put the following sliding scale proposal readjustment of subsidies, as set out in the resolutions of the Quebec conference of provincial premiers, be accepted by the Dominion government, there shall be paid to the province of British Columbia each and every year, in addition to payments and subsidies otherwise provided, an amount understood to be what the Dominion of Canada is willing to pay, and the province of British Columbia to receive as a nominal recognition of the disabilities borne by the province owing to peculiar physical conditions, and from other causes set forth in the case of British Columbia for better terms and accompanying memorandum. That the said annual amount shall be fixed in the following manner:—$1 per head of the population until the amount reaches $300,000, to remain fixed until the population is 400,000; 75 cents per head of the population thereafter until the amount reaches $400,000 per annum, to remain fixed until the population is 800,000; 50 cents per head of the population thereafter until the amount is $500,000, to remain fixed until the population is 1,500,000: 33⅓ cents per head of the population thereafter until the amount reaches $600,000, to remain fixed until the population is 2,500,000; 25 cents per head of the population therafter.

It is said that at times the discussion was exceedingly warm.

MAY JEOPARDIZE REARRANGEMENT

The climax came when Mr. McBride was finally offered yesterday morning $100,000 for ten years. After the resolution had been adopted the British Columbia Premier entered his final protest, bade his colleagues adieu, and the conference room saw him no more. Later in the day he sent a letter to Chairman Gouin briefly explaining his position once more, and expressing his willingness to consider any reasonable amendment to his sliding scale basis. He made it clear, however, that as the reasons which it had been conceded entitled British Columbia to special consideration must always continue, a flat rate offer could not be entertained by the province.

This is the story of the subsidy fight. What will be the outcome? Sir Wilfred Laurier cannot now make a tentative agreement with the provinces. They will have to wait until the Home Government has been appealed to for an amendment to the British North America Act. In the event of the Dominion seeking this legislation in London Mr. McBride says he will also go there. In such contemplated action he has a precedent from his own province. When in 1874 British Columbia appealed to the Dominion for redress for reason of the terms of union not having been carried out, and it was refused, Premier Walkem went direct to England. The Carnarvon terms were the result, and the railway communication—the construction of the C. P. R.—which British Columbia had been promised, was undoubtedly expedited. Mr. McBride's proposed trip to London is what places the general svbsidy rearrangement jeopardy.

The Toronto News, in a recent editorial, sizes up the situation at London as follows: Put two hardened, conscienceless trans Atlantic poker sharps opposite each other in a game of freeze-out and you have the political situation in London. In one case, marked cards, extra aces, stacking and crooked deals will be the result. In the other the result for years has been bribery, direct and indirect, intimidation, treating, whiskey pigs feet, beer, sandwiches, roorbacks and the entire absence of moral sense.

Mines and millionaires have come to be synonymous words. Rhodes, Clark, Mackay, Fair, Flood, Hearst, Daly, and the late Albert Beit all become millionaires from mines. They were all poor men in the beginning. Their only capital was their ability to see the chance for wealth and seize it. They knew when they had a mine and they compelled that mine to give up its treasures. Those who had faith in their judgment lived to share their wealth.

Some Good Float

IN THE NORTH

J. Fred Ritchie told the Colonist the following:

The Bulkley Valley is rapidly settling up, while many homeseekers are going still further to the fine lands to be found in Pleasant valley, in the Nechacho country, and between Francois and Ootsa lakes. The most remarkable development, however, has been in the mining industry, and of this I am perhaps better qualified to speak, having spent most of the season on the headwaters of the south branch of the Telkwa river, conducting surveys for the Telkwa Mining, Milling & Development Co., an American company which has taken the lead in that section. This concern owns several groups of claims with large and well defined veins carrying the characteristic ores of the camp, principally chalcopyrite or yellow copper, with a good deal of copper glance and peacock copper in some showings. All the ores return very high assays in copper, while many of the veins carry remarkable gold values as well as considerable silver. In fact, the showings and assays are such as to give reason for the discoverer's boast that they will discover a second Rossland if not a Butte, in this camp.

The formation of the camp is classed by geologists who, by the way, appear to be very much impressed with it, as basalt with syenite-porphyry, the ore occuring in the latter. The Telkwa M., M. & D. Co. also owns a large area of coal lands in close proximity to the mines. The largest showing so far opened up is on an eight-foot horizontal seam of semi-anthracite coal of the finest quality, suitable for all purposes except coking. Fortunately, however, they have a number of other seams exposed, and several of these are of coking coal, in quantity sufficient to furnish coke for the smelters which will treat the ores of the new camp.

The company has also laid out a townsite in Howson basin, beautifully situated in the midst of the copper and coal mines. The town, which at present consists mainly of the headquarters camp of the company, fronts on a very pretty lake, in which fine trout fishing is to be had at all times during the season. Mr. Harry Howson, the energetic mining director of the company, nothwithstanding the scarcity of men which has proved a serious handicap, has already accomplished a great deal of work, and has during the past season, constructed over seventy miles of trails, giving access not only to the properties of his own company, but to every part of the camp, which is fully appreciated by other claim owners.

The difficulty of hiring experienced miners has prevented anything more than surface work during the summer, but cabins have been erected and supplies put in, and as large a force as possible will be kept at work during the winter, so that we may look for some bonanza strikes by the time the snow leaves. Mr. Howson has the showings, and he is going to open them up.

Many other claim owners have big showings of copper in the Telkwa camp. Among them, I am glad to say, is our old friend, Col. E. S. Topping, "the father of Trail" and the original owner of the great LeRoi. The Colonel appears to have struck it again.

MASTICATION OF FOOD

A Yale professor has been conducting experiments with Yale students to determine the effect of complete mastication of food. Every student who subjected himself to the experiment had to adopt the practice to which Mr. Gladstone attributed his prolonged good health, of thoroughly chewing every mouthful of food, and of putting no food in the mouth until the first morsel was thoroughly masticated.

The nine students who underwent this test took no other exercise than exercising their teeth. Instead of football and dumb bells, or other outdoor and gymnastic exercise, more time was taken for meals, and the teeth worked steadily, with no gulping of food allowed, and no drinking permitted, to wash partly chewed food down the throat.

There was no fixed diet, and every man was allowed to eat what he pleased three times a day.

The first thing noticed was that in a few days the men ate less, and at the end of a month they were consuming less than half as much food as had been their prior custom. By the end of the test they voluntarily reduced their consumption of meat by three-quarters.

At the same time, there was a constant increase in physical strength, and particularly in endurance. Strength tests indicated steady improvement. The men were able to study longer without harm, to walk further without exhaustion.

With the reduction in the quantity of the food consumed came a doubling of the amount of physical energy as determined by the gymnasium tests.

The teeth, the stomach and the intestines have their respective work to do in turning meat, vegetables, bread and butter into blood, hair, muscles, bones and energy. If the teeth do not do their work the craving of the body for more nutriment leads to eating needless food and puts a strain upon the digestive organs. This undue balancing of food and nourishment clogs the system and requires either medicine or regular physical exercise to get rid of the impurities.

Every horseman knows that the proper care of a horseman's teeth is necessary both to escape dentist's and doctor's bills, and to keep his body properly nourished.

Fat men as a rule are not big eaters. The most voracious appetites are possessed by thin men. Not the quantity swallowed, but the amount of nourishment assimilated determines the benefit.

In general, everybody eats too much. Not that the majority of people are too well nourished, but that they do not eat what they should, and substitute things which they should not eat. They do not masticate their food properly, and they have not their digestive processes in good working orderr

Hence a great part of the expense for food is not only that much money wasted, but a positive detriment in clogging the system.—Province.

The development of the west has had the effect of so increasing the number of branches of the Bank of Commerce that it now has more west of Port Arthur than east. Eighty are located on this side and 76 on the other.

Oh, see, Tommy, said Mamma, your little baby brother can stand all alone. Aren't you glad? Yes replied Tommy, now I can get him to stand up against the fence while throw knives around him, can't I. —Philadelphia Press.

ABOUT NICOLA

A. E. Hepburn was in Victoria a short time ago and told the colonist some news about Nicola.

Mr. Hepburn has for several years been connected with the strong New York combination known as the Guggenheim Exploration company. The immediate business that brings Mr. Hepburn to the city is in reference to extensive copper discoveries of low grade but commercial value in which he is especially interested. Of this there is a tract of three miles by one mile in extent at present under option, and work on this immense property is now about to commence.

One of the strong features of the position is the existence in the immediate neighborhood of extensive coal deposits of a quality eminently suitable for smelting purposes. Of this there are an area of about 8,000 acres under option, and with the completion of the Nicola railroad this magnificent coal field will be thrown open to commerce and will constitute a complete source of supply for the whole of the district lying between the east of the Columbia river and the coast. From the expert report of which persual was accorded to the Colonist, it is beyond doubt that workable seams of a great thickness are in evidence in various localities on the property of commercial values, and it is evident that for the whole of the great area mentioned, in which many smelters are in operation, these mines must have a practical monopoly by reason of the advantage they will possess in the matter of haulage and freight rates as oompared with more distant caal centres.

Boring operations have been protecuted for a considerable length of time and with signally favorable results, and in a very short while a great industry will have sprung into existence where at present the village of Coutlee lies along side the Nicola river, in the Nicola mining division of Yale district.

The Canadian Pacific railway has already laid the rails of the Nicola branch, leaving their main line at Spence's Bridge and thus intersecting the coal field. The Victoria, Vancouver and Eastern part of the Hill system, also connected with the Great Northern, is under construction at the moment from both ends, and their present location survey is about ninoteen miles distant up the Coldwater river from these coal lands.

It is naturally anticipated that with the promising prospects of a huge traffic as aforesaid they will be induced to swerve their main line so as to intersect these fields or to build a spur line to connect them with the present surveyed line, an undertaking presenting no engineering difficulties and easy of construction.

The Chicago, St. Paul & Milwaukee line is reported to be negotiating for the Midway & Verroad on their way to the Pacific coast, and if successful will then traverse these coal fields on their route.

With the competition in transportation and the demand for this fuel, and the question of obtaining a low freight rate to the coast and elsewhere would seem to be manifestly one of natural solution, and consequently from whatever point of view the proposition may be regarded it cannot but appear to be pregnant with features of immense potentialities for the district of Nicola, especially when backed by a corporation so powerful as that of the Guggenheim Exploration company.

Some wives are so jealous that they don't even allow their husbands to hug a delusion.
