MISS THOM HELLEN, with Bostonians

Bostonians Coming June 15

Everyone who appreciates the best in clean musical comedy will welcome the announcement of the return of the famous Bostonians Opera company to the Star Theatre for one night, Thursday, June 15. It is many months since we have had any road companies here and the fact that our former favorites will soon return ought to stimulate keen anticipation.

The Bostonians company still continues to be composed of talented young ladies and many of the old favorite entertainers are with the company. This season we shall see "Tipperary Mary" which is a rollicking musical comedy of Ireland and is replete with clever comedy, the newest dances and all of the latest musical successes of today. This is the last, largest and possibly the best musical comedy attraction to travel this way this season, and all should avail themselves of this very unusual opportunity to see something that has played the largest centres—right here at home. Tickets should be booked at White's Drug store as early as possible, as a capacity audience is expected, Thursday, June 15.

TOO MUCH SALT

By eating too much salt we become aged and worn out before the natural time limit of our days on this earth. Dr. Woodward says:

"We eat so much salt that the South sea island cannibals, with a natural appetite, cannot eat us because, they say, we are too salty. Every man needs 20 grains of salt in a day—he gets about 400. This means that his tissues are invaded by a surplus of salt which cannot be eliminated. The result is a hundred ailments. The excess salt, for instance, causes old people to have such brittle bones that when they stumble over something they break a leg or an arm."

"Dr. W. A. Evans writing on the same subject:

"Animals which eat grass must have salt. Carnivorous animals get all the salt they need from their food. Cannibals are carnivorous animals, but at that there is no proof that they would balk at an Illinois doctor.

Sherman says salt equilibrium can easily be maintained on less than one-fourth the amount of salt eaten.

The body contains 1540 grains of salt. When salt free food is eaten for two weeks the body will lose about 160 grains. Moderate variation in the amount of salt eaten makes no particular difference. If a slight excess is eaten the kidneys and sweat glands throw it off in a few hours.

A great excess increases the amount of tissue burned up. It also throws an extra strain on the kidneys. Possibly people who eat far too much salt wear out and break down earlier than they otherwise would.

The statement that we eat 400 grains of salt a day, that we are pickled in brine are rather strong.

Bunge explains the reasons why we call for salt on potatoes and some other vegetables. Potatoes are rich in potash. When we eat them the potash is eliminated as potassium chloride, and, in being eliminated, the potash stimulates the elimination of sodium sulphate. These processes rob the tissues of salt. Salt is craved to repair the loss."

WILD oats do not make good porridge.

THE club of war has dinked many a heart solo.

Some people have to die in order to get a boquet of flowers.

SOME newspapers are not much better than a cemetery for dead ads.

SOME people even send east for their wives, but they do not pick them out of a catalogue.

FIND the key to a tightwad's heart, and you can easily burst the iron bands, that encircle his bankroll.

THE mean man is never naturally polite. His politeness is like the whitewash, that you put on with a brush.

To enforce prohibition, without compensation to some of the hotelkeepers, would be an injustice, and contrary to the love of British fair play in all things.

AN anti-treating law, properly enforced, would be better than prohibition. It would save 90 per cent. of drinkers from getting drunk, and the other ten per cent. would get drunk under any kind of a law, except total and absolute prohibition.

THE owners of idle crown granted mineral claims, should pay more taxes or work their properties. The dronish speculator should be made to pay something, for holding back the development of the natural resorces of this great province. The dogs in the manger should eat the hay or get out.

MAKE booze free from cost, and in a year premiums would have to be offered to get people to drink it. By that time all the dipsomaniacs would be dead, and the rest of the people would have booze in the same class as castor oil. The more barriers you place around anything, the greater the desire becomes to obtain it.

WE would rather see the whole world drunk, than one man kept sober by compulsion. Let love rule instead of law. Unless prohibition is absolute and entire it will be a curse. As framed now prohibition is doomed to failure. No half way measures can make a success of anything, and especially in the liquor traffic.

WITH Sunday fanatics, prohibition cranks, alien pluggers, political grafters, crooked officials, and other parasites and disturbers this province is rapidly becoming devoid of freedom. If Christ does not soon return and straighten out the trouble and turmoil, the devil will soon have his mitts on everything in the country, including Bowser.

No man can ride all the horses in a circus, without hurting himself, and delaying the performance. In attempting to play the dual character of premier and attorney-general, upon the political stage of this great vote plugging province, the Hon. W. J. Bowser, the Napoleon of B. C. politics, is making a mistake. Either of these important offices is quite sufficient, for even a robust man.

WHY should Canada lend money to the Canadian Northern, or any other railway? Bill and Dan built the C. N. R. on a white chip—plus several hundreds of millions of dollars of the people's money. They are now worth millions, and invest their money in mines, street railways, etc. They should put up some of their own money if the Canadian Northern needs assistance. The people are getting tired of putting up for railroads that the government does not own. High finance for promoters is low finance for the people.

B. C. Mines

Bust Porter is working a copper property at Green City.

A Montana company is working a group of claims at Smithers.

The War Eagle copper mine near Whitehorse will ship ore this summer.

The Pavey mine on the east shore of Bennet lake will soon be shipping ore.

The value of the mines in Oatman, Arizona, should be proved in the next 90 days.

With the assistance of eastern capital, O. T. Bibb is developing his claims on Fish creek, in the Lardeau.

Tunnels on the 2700, and 4100 foot levels are to be driven at the Britannia mine, Howe Sound. This is a vein mine, and promises to be one of the greatest copper mines in the west.

There is much activity in the Big Bend this summer, and large quantities of supplies are being shipped in from Revelstoke.

It is reported that a rich gold strike has been made, a few miles from Greenwood, near Rockcut, Wash., in the Orient mining division.

The second Relief near Erie is installing a cyanide plant. This mine has a large body of ore blocked out that runs from $35 to $600 a ton, principally gold.

On a basis of two shares for one, the largest individual holder in B. C., recently exchanged 11000 shares of B. C. Copper Co., for Canada Copper Co. stock.

Louis Philip Smith died in Butte last month. He was one of the five men who discovered gold in Alder Gulch, Montana, in 1862. At one time he was chief of police in Butte.

It is stated that, when the 2000-ton mill is erected at Copper Mountain by the Canada Copper Co., that it will turn out concentrates daily, containing 60,000 pounds of copper.

A. Erskine Smith and his partners will work the Indian and Hazelton View claims in the Hazelton district. The ore is arsenical, carrying values in gold, silver and nickel.

Near Alice Arm, a valuable find of silver ore was made on a claim belonging to J. E. Smith, by blasting out the wagon road to the Dolly Varden. George R. Naden owns the claim adjoining this rich strike.

It is reported that Jerome Drumheller has bonded the old Caaba mine, near Nighthawk, Wash. It contains a large body of ore, that could be easily mined and shipped to the smelters at Greenwood and Grand Forks.

The deepest mine in the world is in Silesia, Europe. It is 6,000 feet deep, and practical men claim that 6,000 feet is the limit of depth at which mining can be carried on with safety. The B. C. mines are in no immediate danger of getting too deep.

About 30 miles from Ashcroft, Keffer & Johns have under bond the Sansen and Chataway groups of copper claims. A 60 ton concentrator is being built on the Chataway group, and a carload of machinery for it was shipped from the old smelter at Boundary Falls last week. When this mill is in operation it will concentrate 6 to 1, and the product will be shipped to the Greenwood smelter.

Crowded Houses

Every show at the Royal yesterday was crowded with large and delightod audiences who thoroughly enjoyed the magnificient performance of Rees Bros. Africander company of 15 talented artists. The word "artist" is used adviseably, as every man and woman who participated in the laughing musical comedy is a star in hif or her line. The Jokes were new. The chief lady dancer was as light on her feet as a butterfly. The orchestra and band were composed of an all star aggregation.—Peterborough Review, January 18, 1916.

New Time Table

The new C.P.R. time schedule will take effect at Midnight on Saturday. It has been found necessary to postpone the inauguration of the Kettle Valley service to Vancouver.

The Nelson Midway trains will be operated daily except Sunday leaving Greenwood 1.45 westbound, 2.58 eastbound.

There will be direct nonnection at Eholt to and from Phoenix with both trains doing away with the present delay at that point. The Nelson Midway trains make direct connection at Castlegar with trains from and to Rossland and Trail. Train will arrive in Nelson at 9.10 p.m., twenty minutes earlier than the present schedule.

The Kettle Valley service Midway to Penticton remains as at present Monday, Wednesday and Friday westbound, Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday eastbound connecting with the Nelson Midway trains at Midway.

The Columbia river service remains as at present, tri weekly Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday. The Kootenay Lake service, Slocan Lake service, Kaslo Nakusp service, Lardo Gerrard service continues as at present. The trains between Nelson Trail and Rossland will be operated daily including Sunday.

Dog Taxes

All dog taxes must be paid to the city offices, on or before June 30, 1916, or proceedings will be taken to collect the same.
