Frederick Keffer, M. E., of Keffer & Johns, is at Ashcroft to supervise the preliminary work necessary to the installation of machinery and the deep development of the Highland Valley company's copper property.

The Laurier mine, at Laurier, is working 15 men and has shipped ten 50-ton cars of ore this winter, some of which was treated at Greenwood and the balance at Grand Forks, B. C. It is a copper-silver proposition, a blanket vein with a paystreak of 9 feet that yields $70 per ton.—Colville Examiner.

Molybdenite Ore

An unusual stir in mining circles has been caused during the past week through the reported discovery of molybdenite, and a report from Fleet Robertson, provincial mineralologist on the ore.

Gordon McClennan and associates have the property which is located on the north bank of the Bulkley river just opposite New Hazelton. A tunnel has been run in on the vein from the river bank for a distance of thirty feet and a six foot vein has been opened up. The assays of ore have given five per cent and ten per cent molybdenite.

These facts became known the latter part of last week and quite a rush was made to stake claims surrounding McLennan's property, although as far as can be learned no other showing of the valuable ore has been found.

McClennan and two or three other men have been working on the tunnel most of the winter and the work is being continued. For some weeks past those interested have been seeking information as to the market for molybdenite and the process of treating the ore.

Local people are interested in the property and a local mining engineer is of the opinion that the Field Flotation process is just the thing to concentrate this ore. An investigation is now being made in regard to this process, and if it is satisfactory a concentrator will be erected on the property in the spring.

One or two other molybdenite veins are known to exist in the district, although little work has ever been done on them on account of the limited market at the time of their discovery. Since the war, however, the market has been greatly increased and if a successful concentrating process can be discovered there is no doubt but that they will also be developed.

Since the outbreak of the war the Imperial government has requisitioned all the molybdenum within the Empire and the present price is $2,100 per short ton London, England., for 90 per cent. molybdem.—Omineca Herald.

Howe Sound

The correspondent of the Mining Age states that "the ore bodies between the Beta and Fairview represent a larger tonnage of high-grade copper ore than contained in any mine at present known to man." This may be an exaggeration, but there can be no doubt that the developments in the Howe Sound property warrant the statement attributed to Mr. Moody, general manager, that the Britannia is the greatest mine on the continent and that more will be heard from it soon.

At the present time over 1,000 men are employed on the mine and this number will be increased as rapidly as new bunk houses can be erected. It is stated that the work of the new mill is even better than we anticipated and that mill recoveries are about 96 per cent. This is probably the best attraction made on any copper ore in the whole American continent.

The Britannia for some time has been the greatest mine in the British Empire. It now promises to achieve a greater fame, namely, to become the greatest mine on the North American continent.

Bolivia's chief exports are tin and rubber, with tin largely predominating.

Western Float

It snowed in Nelson this winter.

This winter as high as $5 has been paid for coyote skins.

Mrs. Alex. Coutlee of Merritt died in Tacoma last month.

Morris Davis of New Denver, has lost 23 relatives in the war.

In Trail C. Bassate was fined $50 for peddling without a license.

E. E. Chipman, police magistrate of Kaslo was 70 years old last week.

Price McDonald wintered at Sauca, and Bob Yuill at Lockhart beach.

Be good to your neighbor, and he will be good to you provided he is human.

Harry Hobson has sold his Ashcroft hotel, to Charles Crotts of Vancouver.

Commercial zinc is now being made at the Trail smelter. The plant cost a million dollars.

Bob Clark, the well-known stockman of Nicola, is importing pedigree bulls from Elora, Ontario.

The highest price paid the fishermen at Prince Rupert this winter, for halibut was 8½ cents a pound.

The gravel bars on the Tulameen river will be worked for gold this summer, by many placer miners.

Prince Rupert has decided in favor of cities electing their own police and license commissioners.

At Silverton Frank LoCasto has put up a building, and is running a store, barber shop and lunch counter.

The Trail smelter will soon be making sulphuric acid, from sulphur fumes. That acid is now worth $90 a ton.

E. Mobbs has a deal on for the Dawson group of six claims, near Poplar Creek. The ore carries lead silver and gold.

Up to the first of March six carloads of copper ore had been shipped from the Aberdeen mine near Merritt to Greenwood.

Wm. Plunkett has paid the railroad over $1,200 in freight since he began shipping Gold Ax ore from Chesaw to the smelter.

Charles Bloomberg, a miner, tried to commit suicide in Rupe, but failed. He will now be tried for attempting to murder himself.

Billy McAdams formerly of Sandon, is now manager of the Red Rose mine up the Skeena river. He expects to ship ore this summer.

There will be a mining convention in Spokane, March 20 to 25. All interested in mining should attend, and help to get more capital for B. C. mines.

In writing to The Ledge from the Old Man's Home, Sandy Stewart says that there are 135 inmates in the Home. During the past year John Fraser of Cranbrook, Alex Dow of Cariboo, R. B. Dougan, 49 Creek, Bob McCord, Trout Lake, Dave McMillan, Clinton, Jim Cameron, Johnny Carracher (Johnnie Behind The Deuce) and many others died, and crossed the big divide to that ethereal land where the angels are always pushing clouds.

Joe Butler of New Denver is now in the Old Man's Home at Kamloops. Joe is a Brazilian, and prospected for 53 years before he found the Home.

James Spiers of Kaslo is a remarkable man. He is 57 years old, but up to date he has only smoked one cigar, and drank one sip of beer since he was born.

Over $75,000 a year is sent out of Kaslo to mail order houses in the east, for all kinds of goods. The merchants in that town should sell cheaper, and do more advertising.

Chinese eggs are being sold in British Columbia as 'Produce of U. S. A.', the label on the cases state. This would lead the purchaser of eggs to believe that the eggs are from the poultry farms just across the line, whose reputation is well known throughout the Northwest.

Goitre

A medical authority says: Goitre arises from a morbid enlargement of the thyroid gland, causing an unsightly but painless deformity. It is more common among women than among men, in the proportion of about twelve to one. It prevails chiefly, if not exclusively, in towns situated upon or close to limestone rocks. From its commonness in Derbyshire, it is sometimes called the Derbyshire neck.

Better Than Ever

People lately out from Atlin report that the Engineer mine, the property of Captain James Alexander, located between Carcross and Atlin, long known to be rich in gold-bearing ore, is now looking very much more promising than ever before as the result of a large amount of development work recently done on it. In fact, it is believed by expert mining men to be the richest of gold bearing ledges on the American continent.

Captain Alexander has been working the Engineer property for the past several years in a small but profitable way, making a three stamp mill not only pay for the development of the mine but yield a nice profit at the same time. The development work has proven the extent and richness of the property beyond all question, and the results ore so encouraging that operations will be carried on the coming season on a much larger scale than ever before—a scale which will yield fabulous profits to the fortunate owner.—Whitehorse Star.

World Without Men

Aunt Samantha was visiting at a house in Buffalo. She is an old maid and very devout, always concluding her prayers with the gloria.

"Why does she say such funny things in her prayers?" asked the little daughter of the house.

"Why, what does she say? replied the fond mamma.

"I don't remember all she says, but she always ends with 'World without men, ah, me.'"—Selected.

You Yourself

Your greatest problem is yourself. You are also your greatest treasure. If you can get yourself determined upon—find out what you are and what you are for—and if you can discover and develop the elements of value in your nature, your life will take on the beauty of orderliness and your need of the savings bank will be less and less, for you will be your own riches. I say if you can, for this procedure takes wisdom, and wisdom is a fruit which ripens slowly. Perhaps you are not yet wise; perhaps you are still incapable of self analysis; perhaps you are confused amid the surfaces and appearances of life; perhaps your code of conduct is based upon the customs of the times and the saying of the alleged sages; perhaps you are disheartened ad discouraged—even in frenzy of retreat before the things in your life which seem to oppose you and beat you back. But even so, this is but a condition or mood which is not final. The condition will right itself, the mood will pass.—Richard Wightman.

Josh Billings on Gongs

Josh Billings related his first experience with the gong thusly:

I never can erradicate holi from mi memory the soud ov the fust gong I ever herd. I was settin on the front steps ov a tavern in the sitty of Buffalo, pensively smokin. The son was going to bed, and the hevins for an hour was blushin at the performance. The Ery knal, with its golden waters, was on its way to Albany, and I was persuin the line botes a fiotin by, and thinkin of Italy (where I usen to liv), and her gondolers and gallus wimmin. My entire sole wuz, as it were, in a swet. I wanted to klime, I felt great. I actually grew.

There are things in this life tu big tu be trifled with; there are times when a man breakes luce from hisself, when he sees sperrets, when he can almost tuch the mune, and feel as tho he kud fill both hands with the stars uv hevin, and almost sware he was a bank president. Thatis what ailed me.

But the korse of true luv never did run smoothe (this is shakespeare's opinion, to). Just as I was duin my bes—dummer, dummer, spat, bang, beller, crash, roar, ram, dummer, dummer, whang, rip rare rally, dummer, dummer, dum—with a tremenjus jump I struck the center ov the sidewalk, with another I cleared the gutter, and with another I stood in the middle of the street snortin like an Indian pony at a band of music.

I gazed in wild despair at the tavern stand, my hart swelling up as big as a outdoor oven, my teeth was as luce as a string of bedes, I thot all the crockery in the tavern had fell down, I thot of fenomenons, I thought of Gabrel and his horn; I was jest on the point of thinken ov something else when the landlord kum out on the frunt stupe ov the tavern, holdin by a string the bottom ov an old brass kettle. He kawled me gently with his hand. I went slola and slola up to him, he kammed my fears, he said it was a gong, I saw the kussed thing, he said supper was ready, and axed me ef I wud have black or green tee, and I sed I wud.

A Slight Mistake

The editor of a weekly journal lately lost two of his subscribers through accidentally departing fuom the beaten track in his answer to correspondents. Two of his subscribers wrote to ask him his remedy for their respective troubles. No. 1, a happy father of twins, wrote to inquire the best way to get them carefully over their teething, aud No. 2 wanted to know how to protect his orchard from the myriads of grasshoppers.

The editor framed his answer upon the orthodox lines, but unfortunately transposed their two names, with the result that No. 1, who was blessed with the twins, read in reply to his query: "Cover them carefully with straw and set fire to them, and the little pests after jumping around in the flames a few minutes will speedily be settled." Whilst No. 2, plagued with grasshoppers, was told to "Give a little castor oil and rub their gums gently with a bore ring."

Mining Review

The Preliminary Review and Estimate of Mineral Production of 1915, by Wm. Fleet Robertson, Provincial Mineralogist, says:

During the season of 1915 the Lillooet district received its first railway with the seaboard, when the Pacific Great Eastern railway, in the early part of the season, completed its track to the town of Lillooet and later continued its service as far as Clinton.

Formerly, the lack of transportation facilities deterred even the development of the mineral prospects which have been located adjacent to the railway, and the mineral output has been restricted to a limited amount of gold, either placer or produced by small stamp mills crushing quartz.

The advent of the railway will, it is expected, stimulate the prospecting for and development of lode mines in this district, in which, for geological reasons, there is a probability that they exist.

It is yet too soon to expect any great result from this cause, and at present the only part of the district in which any serious attempt at lode-mining is being made is on Cadwallader creek, where, in 1915, the Coronation milled some 120 tons of quartz, carrying about $40 to the ton in gold.

While this property did not make any out put in 1915, a small force of men has been at work developing, with, it is reported, very satisfactory results.

Development was also carried on at the Pioneer by Ferguson et al., where considerable increased orebodies have been proven, equally high in grade to those formerly known. A stamp-mill and cyanide plant is now being erected, and a force of men is at work in the mine under the superintendance of Charles Copp.

The Wayside has been under development all season by Paxton and associates. A lot of some 20 tons of ore was treated in the test stamp-mill and yielded about $16.50 to the ton.

The placer-geld output of the district is expected to be somewhat higher than for years back, chiefly due to the exceptionaly low water exposing bars in the rivers, thus permitting individual placer miners and Indians to work them.

The best way to learn how to waste money is to make it easy.

Alice Arm

Alice Arm promises to be a record mining camp this summer. Things are now shaping up well for this. The properties that are being worked are all looking excellent and general activity is prophesied.

W. M. Law has just returned from Alice Arm. While there he went into the whole situation from the standpoint of locating in a general business. He has decided to do so, and will erect a site of the proposed wharf and will put in a stock of merchandise for the convenience of the camp.

R. B. McGinnis, whose property the Dolly Varden, is giving such excellent results, is expected here on Thursday from the south. He will on his arrival give his attention to the letting of the contracts for the building of the wharf and for the construction of the road from the wharf to the mine. The work will probably run into $100,000. The road is 18 miles long to the nearest property. It is a matter of getting a road along the face of a rocky mountain, which at one place at least is along the face of a precipice in reality.

There will be well on to a 1,000 men employed in the camp, it is believed, this summer. It is thus evident that the camp is going to be one capable of supporting a large population. The mine will be developed also. with as little delay as possibie.—Prince Rupert Journal.

Caught Brave Spy

Within two weeks Colonel Dodge was leading his command against the Rebels in Northern Missouri. His gallantry soon afterwards at the battle of Pea Ridge won almost instant promotion to the rank of brigadier general.

Later while standing in a trench before Atlanta, General Dodge was shot and severly wounded in the head.

The hanging of "Sam" Davis, a confederate spy, who was captured in Tennessee, was one of the incidents of General Dodge's career. On Davis were found complete plans of the fortifications at Nashville, which, evidently, he had received from some Federal officer high in authority. General Dodge offered the young spy his freedom if he would reveal the name of his informant, but the accused man refused. Half a dozen times before sending the man to the gallows, General Dodge offered him immunity. The spy went to his death with his lips closed. "He was the bravest man that ever died," said General Dodge.

About Float.

Float is not a periodical. It is a book containing 86 illustrations all told, and is filled with sketches and stories of western life. It tells how a gambler cashed in after the flush days of Sandon; how it rained in New Denver long after Noah was dead; how a parson took a drink at Bear Lake in early days; how justice was dealt in Kaslo in '93; how the saloon man outprayed the women in Kalamazoo, and graphically depicts the roamings of a western editor among the tenderfeet in the cent belt. It contains the early history of Nelson and a romance of the Silver King mine. In it are printed three western poems, and dozens of articles too numerous to mention. Send for one before it is too late. The price is 25 cents, postpaid to any part of the world. Address all letters to

Might Try This

"How can I keep my husband home nights?" writes a lady reader of this great family journal. Knowing the writer as we do, we offer the following. Get acquainted with the curling iron again. try the power of the trinity known as paint, powder and puffs; cultivate the smile he used to see on your mug when he went courtin'; open a joint in your home and invite some of his cronies in to play solo every evening; hide the rolling pin in the woodshed instead of under your apron when he comes home from work; cook a decent meal for him occasionally. Try these things on him and the chances are you can not only win, but hold your husband.
