An Adventure On Wheels

Three smart young men and three nice girls
All lovers true as steel—
Decided in a friendly way,
To spend the day awheel.
They started in the early morn,
And nothing seemed amiss;
And when they reached the leafy lanes,
They rode in twos like this!

They wandered by the verdant dale,
Beside the rippling rill;
The sun shone brightly all the while;
They heard the songbird's trill.
They sped through many a woodland glade,
The world was full of bliss—
And when they rested in the shade,
They sat in twos like this!

The sun went down and evening came,
A lot too soon, they said;
Too long they tarried on the way,
The clouds grew black o'erhead.
Down dashed the rain! They homeward flew,
Till one unlucky miss
Slipped sideways—crash! Great Scott!
The lot
Were all mixed up like this! ANON.

Missed Wedding Dinner

Andy Johnson and Miss Gertie Raymond of Rock Creek, who were married in Nelson last week, were unable to attend a wedding dinner which was to be ready for them on their arrival from Nelson.

A dinner was ordered for 25 guests at the Riverside hotel Rock Creek, but a short time before it was to be served, a message came stating that owing to the groom being taken suddenly ill with La Grippe, they would not be able to be present. The news came too late to postpone the event as all the guests had arrived, so dinner was served without bride and groom, which was enjoyed by all, who regretted their absence.

Copper Out-Put For 1917

The copper production of British Columbia will exceed 100,000,000 pounds this year, according to a statement prepared by N. Thompson, manager of Cammel, Laird & Co. and president of the Vancouver board of trade. At current settlement prices for copper the producers would receive a gross sum equal to the entire mineral output of the province in 1915, which was $29,600,000 as compared with $42,970,555 in 1916. The copper output in 1916 was more than 67,000,000 pounds.

Mr. Thompson has prepared for the Provincial and Dominion authorities a long memorandum on the industry in general from the British standpoint, a summary of which has been given to The Wall Street Journal.

The Gordon river ore is high grade and shows magnetite assays of 68 per cent metalic iron. Considerable development work has been done, and it is estimated that several million tons is actually blocked out on these claims. At Sechart on Barkley Sound there is a good deposit of Bessemer iron ore traceable on the surface for approximately two miles and situated only one and one-half miles from salt water. One claim is estimated to contain 2,000,000 tons of ore from 62 to 70 per cent metallic iron.

On Quatsino Sound, also West Coast, there is a large deposit of bog iron or limonite running from 48 to 50 per cent metallic iron. It has been estimated there are 10,000,000 tons of bog iron in these claims. It is a steam shovel proposition, and it is estimated that the ore can be mined and transported to nearest shipping harbor for 70 cents per ton.

Large deposits of magnetite are in the vicinity of Campbell lake. This ore assays 66.9 per cent metallic iron with slight traces of sulphur and phosphorus and absolutely free from titanium. Samples were submitted to Sheffield experts who pronounced it the best they had ever seen, and that it could be treated for eight shillings per ton less than the best Norwegian ores.

On Texada island is one of the largest deposits of magnetic iron in the province. It is high-grade magnetite assaying over 66 per cent metallic iron.

On Knights Inlet, Smiths Arm and Deans Channel, also on the Queen Charlotte Islands are found large deposits of magnetite iron, which some day will figure largely in the industrial development of the province.

At Copper river there is a hematite deposit, and it is estimated several million tons of red hematite assaying 52 per cent metallic iron are blocked out. Coal is found close to the deposit. The Grand Trunk Pacific had a survey made of a railway to tap this section. So far the best showing of hematite ore is found in the Chilcoten district.

The best known deposit in the interior is that on Fenwick mountain known as the Bull River Iron mines, a micacious hematite assaying 60 per cent metallic iron.

There are deposits of iron at Deer Park on the Arrow lakes; also near Kamloops. In the Similkameen there are big deposits; also on Pit lake, and bog iron is found near Sumas and other points on the Fraser river. Beds of bog and limonite have been found near Harrison lake, but no reliable information is obtainable regarding their value.

Logan vs. Granby

The appeal in this case of which notice was given by the defendant Company from the judgement of the Court of Appeal of British Columbia has been abandoned. Judgment was handed down by the Court of Appeal on October 3rd, confirming the judgment of Chief Justice Hunter at Nelson on Oct. 12, 1915, giving damages to the plaintiff for $10,000 and costs. From this judgment the defendants appealed twice to the Court of Appeal, first in January, 1916, and then in April.

It may be of interest to state the facts of the case. In June, 1914 Logan, the plaintiff, was injured in the mines at Phoenix by being blasted, and after spending the best part of a year in a hospital at Spokane, he commenced action against the company for negligence. After judgement by default the damages were assessed by a jury at Grand Forks at $2500, but this judgment was set aside and subsequently under a further default by the defendant a second judgment was entered and the damages assessed by Chief Justice without a jury and he awarded in damages $10,000. This is the judgment that the plaintiff has now succeeded in recovering.

It might be noted that this is one of the first cases in Canada where such high damages have been recovered under such circumstances. A. Macneil of Fernie was solicitor for the plaintiff, and Ernest Miller, of Victoria, acted for the defendant company.—Fernie Free Press.

A Freakish-Looking Deer

One of the most peculiar freaks seen in Merritt recently is a deer head now on exhibition at the Coldwater hotel. The animal was killed by an Indian on the divide between the Coldwater and Tulameen rivers. The head, aside from being of peculiar shape, possesses freak horns. On the left side of the head there is a cluster of short prongs and points protruding from the skull, while on the right side there is a long flat antler-looking horn, surrounded by several short points and prongs. The head contains twenty-one points. Not only are the horns of an exceptional nature, but the nose of the animal contains a large "bump" in its center. The nose is long as are the ears, and the mouth is small and contains very small teeth. The Indian who killed the animal states that the body also contained freak characteristics. None of the old-timers around here have been able to suggest a likely cross that would produce such a freak as this. —Merritt Herald.

A Separate War

Should the United States enter the war it is improbable that an American soldier will fire a shot at a German soldier while the war lasts. Nevertheless, the adherence of the United States to the cause of the Allies would be important. It would tend to hasten the end of war, but that end is already in sight, no matter what action may be taken at Washington. Just what military measures the United States could take against Germany is a matter of speculation. Friends of the Entente must hope that these measures will be few. They do not want to see the United States making such exertions against the Central Powers that it would be entitled to sit with Britain and France and Italy and Russia around the council board when final terms of peace are being decided.

If the United States wants to go to war with Germany, let it do so, and let it wage against Germany the sort of war it is capable of. When it has attained its ends, vindicated American rights, and avenged murdered Americans it can make its own peace with Germany, in the meantime the Entente Allies will continue to wage their own war against Germany. When they have achieved their ends they will give Germany the peace conditions that seem proper to them. This day may come before or after the day in which American honor and American interests have been maintained. President Wilson has made it clear that so far as the conflict between the Entente Allies and Germany is concerned, it is no business of the American nation. Upon this conflict we trust the American nation may remain neutral to the end. This issue now raised between Germany and the United States ought not to be confounded with the issues raised thirty months ago between Germany and other European nations. These issues are at bottom moral issues; the issue between Germany and the United States that provokes a war will be a material issue concerning the United States and Germany alone.—Mail and Empire.

British Munitions For U. S.

American government officials and the American public will not fail to see the significance of the low bid for armor-piercing shells submitted by a British munition maker in competition with American manufacturers. After every allowance is made for the fact that our experience in the making of modern munitions is a limited one, and for the further fact that there has been no such competition here as would bring prices down to a narrow margin of divergence, the underbidding of our own manufacturers by a British firm distinctly reveals the extent to which Great Britain has now overtaken the demand for munitions for her own uses. It shows that the industrial resources of the United Kingdom are so perfectly mobilized that they are at last not only capable of supply the needs of the British troops in the west, in Mesopotamia, in Egypt and elsewhere, as well as the Entente allies, but have a surplus capacity for the uses of a great neutral power besides.—Philadelphia Ledger.

Mining Notes

Sixteen tons of ore shipped from the Millie Mac mine at Burton to the Trail smelter, is expected to average $250 in silver, lead and gold to the the ton, or $4,000 for the lot. The shipment is the result of a month's work by two men, who it is stated have 100 tons of ore in sight. Harold H. Foster, former member of the Legislature for Columbia is the owner of this mine, which is situated 14 miles from Burton and at an altitude of 6,500 feet.

British Columbia has been gaining momentum in a mining way for the past 16 years, says the Industrial and Mining Age of New York. With the success of the Granby, Canadian Consolidated, British Columbia Copper, Canada Copper and Standard Silver-Lead, the Province of British Columbia has not only attracted public attention, but has also drawn on the purses of the largest mining operators in America.

J. W. Macfarlain, a mining man of Vancouver, has secured a bond on the Hunter group of copper-gold claims on Mill Creek above Nicola. Mr. Macfarlain will commence development work within thirty days and prosecute it vigorously during the life of the bond.

James Drum, who has been operating the Sally mine on Wallace Mountain, West Fork, Kettle river, is now taking out some of the richest ore which has yet been discovered on the mountain.

In connection with the opening of the Ladysmith smelter on Vancouver Island it is reported that there is a likehood that the Mount Sicker mines will again be worked.

The Virginia Mining company of Danville, Wash., is installing a crude oil compressor on its property. Regular shipments of ore are being made.

During 1916 the Rocher de Boule mine, Hazelton district produced 2,097,000 pounds of copper. The tonnage of ore was 16,750.

Twenty-nine mines shipped 11,150 tons of ore to the Trail smelter during the period of February 8 to 14.

The Consolidated smelter of Trail has two of its copper furnaces in operation.

The California mine, three miles from Nelson, has been bonded to the Record Mining company of Spokane.

So far this year, 56 mines have shipped ore to the Consolidated Smelter at Trail.

Float

Float is not a periodical. It is a book containing 86 illustrations all told, and is filled with sketches and stories of western life. It tells how a gambler cashed in after the flush days of Sandon; how it rained in New Denver long after Noah was dead; how a parson took a drink at Bear Lake in early days; how justice was dealt in Kaslo in '93; how the saloon man outprayed the women in Kalamazoo, and graphically depicts the roamings of a western editor among the tenderfeet in the cent belt. It contains the early history of Nelson and a romance of the Silver King mine. In it are printed three western poems, and dozens of articles too numerous to mention. Send for one before it is too late. The price is 25 cents, postpaid to any part of the world. Address all letters to
