The Mining Review.

VOL. 5.—NO. 32. SANDON, B. C., SATURDAY, JANUARY 25, 1902. $2.00 PER YEAR.

Town Jottings.

Thursday night was the coldest of the winter.

Nelson is sending a club to the bonspiel at Winnipeg.

The United States had 9,852 deaths by violence last year.

Clarke and Law of Slocan City have gone to South Africa.

The Great Northern is to reach Cascade on the 1st of March.

The Rev. Mr. Leith is now Presbyterian clergyman at Kaslo.

Geo. Smith got an arm hurt last week by falling down a shaft in the Arlington.

R. A. Bradshaw is mayor of Slocan by one of a majority over A. York, late mayor.

A. B. Coleman, a prominent mining man of Pittsburg, Pa., is making a tour of the Kootenays.

J. W. Croft, of New Denver, was married to Miss Grace McEwing, of Nelson, on Wednesday last.

Lowery has gone bayseeding to California. He may escape the dock at Vancouver this time.

The Canadian Bank of Commerce through their manager here, Mr. Scott, has donated $25 as a special prize to be contested for at the Bonspiel. This will materially assist in making the affair a success.

The ladies will have a social evening in the basement of the Methodist Church next Thursday at 8 P.M. Everybody cordially invited. No fixed charge will be made, but a collection during the evening.

The lion and the lamb are at length in bed together. "Fighting Joe" has decided to support Riley in Victoria instead of opposing. We fancy he saw that if he resigned his Vancouver seat in the Local House, he was morally certain to be left out of both houses.

The Silver Glance at Bear Lake has shipped two cars of high grade ore to the Trail smelter the last two weeks. If the returns are as good as expected shipments will be continued. Large quantities of ore are being taken out of the lead which is four feet in width at present. There are five men working on the property.

The Rossland Miners' Union by a vote decided on Friday to declared the strike off. As a matter of fact there was nothing to declare, as the mines have been all running full handed for some months past. But for the interference of foreign demagogues, a strike would never have been declared. The men have lost seven months work by it, and many of them their places for all time.

The Sandon Rink company intend giving a ball on Friday evening next in the Union Hall. Proceeds to be in aid of the rink funds which are much in need of assistance. On Monday afternoon, Feb. 3rd, the annual general meeting of the company will be held in Council Chamber. A large attendance of the stockholders and others interested is requested, as business of importance has to be transacted.

Interest in the series of curling games which terminated last night in the contest between Dr. Gomm and Nick Cavanaugh, was intense. The curlers wives were as enthusiastic as the curlers themselves, and at the close entertained the players and spectators to cake and hot coffee, which were greatly appreciatep by all. The ladies who provided the refreshments were Mesdames Atherton, Vallance, Gomm, Crawford, McLachlan and M. L. Grimmett. Yesterday evening's contest decides the winners of President M. L. Grimmett's prize of four mackinaw coats, but as we went to press before the game was over, we are unable to give the names of the successful rink.

Mr. Bade, formerly with Mr. Harris in the plumbing business, is in town again in the same capacity.

The Sandon hockey boys succeeded in making a score of 7 to 1 against Slocan City, at Slocan on Tuesday night.

Mr. Breen, a Winnipeg hockeyist of celebrity, was in the city Wednesday night, and showed our boys a thing or two in the art.

On account of the smelter cut the Whitewater mine may be enabled to operate steadily without any shut-down, which will be a good job for the town.

Mrs. Platts and children left on Wednesday for a visit to her father's just south of the line. Joe Sells has rented her house and moved in.

E. F. McQueen, druggist, is closing up his business in town and returning his stock to the wholesale house. Many will regret this as Mr. McQueen is personally a very decent fellow.

The Sandon Wholesale Wine & Liquor House has closed its business stand on Main street and removed the stock to the warehouse near the K. & S. track, where business will be conducted until times improve.

The surveyors have not yet finished their work at the Slocan Star. The court order simply allows them to go through the workings to secure information to make maps and drawings. This and nothing more.

The courts disqualified and unseated a whole municipal council in Ontario the other day because they had misapplied the sinking fund money. How would Sandon's council fare there that has never set a cent aside for sinking fund in any form?

Our hockeyists won but 5 of the 12 scores at the match at Nelson on Monday night. The Miner gives them credit, however, for their old time policy—a good, clean game. On the return match here, however, when all their best players will be in evidence, it is a moral certainty the score will go the other way.

Wants Information.—Mrs. R. A. Easton, of Stikum, Oregon, would be glad to learn the whereabouts of her son, Robert W. Easton, a young fellow of 15 or 16 years, who is supposed to have been in British Columbia last year. Easton sometimes goes by the name of John Dudley, and any information in regard to him will thankfully be received by his mother or can be sent to Rev. D. H. Reid, Phoenix, B. C.

For the sake of economy the new school law suggests that nominations and elections to fill vacancies in city school Boards should be made and held on the days of municipal nominations and elections. Our wise council and clerk, however, know better than this, and hold them on different days; and have decided on a "clean sweep" at that. As they grow older, however, they will become better learned, and so so will the taxpayers. Mark this.

We call attention in another paragraph elsewhere to the blunder our city council and clerk made in not holding the school trustee nominations and elections on the days the council were nominated and elected. Here is the statute violated (section 24): "The nomination and election of the board of trustees SHALL BE HELD AT THE SAME TIME, and by the same returning officer or officers, when possible, and conducted in the same manner as the municipal nomination and election for mayor would be conducted. &c." There is no provision in the statute for holding an annual election on any other day, or in any other way. The advertised nomination for the 27th, Monday next, is therefore strictly illegal, and men nominated or elected that day cannot be trustees, or allowed to act as such. It is well to know this in advance.

Mines and Mining.

Ore is showing up again in the Mollie Hughes.

The Washington's force is being increased steadily.

The oil process of concentrating is being tried at the Enterprise.

The Rambler has 100 men on its payroll. The Enterprise staff is 40.

The Goodenough dividend was paid on Jan. 15th of one cent per share. At a meeting of the above date the directors stated that the mine had to shut down on account of the low price of lead. The company will hold their annual general meeting on April 8th next, when the lead question will come up again and will be fully discussed.

One of the most valuable strikes in the camp of late days is that on the Silversmith, one of the Byron N. White properties, on Tuesday last. It is three feet in the face of solid exceptionally high grade ore. Three or four weeks ago a very large rich body was struck in the worked lead of this property, and some of the company wanted but little said about it until continuity was reached. This is now more than settled, as the large rich paystreak that followed appeared to be increasing steadily until the valuable width of Tuesday was uncovered. The Slocan Star was always one of our best properties, and the Silversmith is certain to add much more to its laurels.

A good showing of ore has at last been struck on the Galena ledge in the long crosscut tunnel at the Last Chance mine. The tunnel is one of the longest in the Slocan and has been driven for over 2000 feet. There is now a double track running the full length of it. Work was started on some surface showings that had been uncovered over 18 months ago, and which have been under prospect development ever since. This tunnel crossed and was run past the ledge in a blank spot, when with change of work it was decided to raise and drift on what was supposed to be the vein. Ore was struck on Saturday. The discovered galena seam is likely to equal any other in the mine from present indications. If the ore body proves satisfactory, stoping will be commenced and the staff increased in the Galena tunnel. The company have spent a fortune in opening the new workings. This strike will generally improve the property.

Rambler-Cariboo Profits.

SPOKANE, Jan. 22.—The party of eastern stockholders in the Rambler-Cariboo mine, which has caused such a flurry on the market the last month, and a number of other men interested in the property, arrived in the city yesterday from a visit to the Slocan property.

B. W. McPhee and A. Coolidge in speaking of the property said that the rapid advance in the market value of the stock was due to the remarkable showings that have been made, especially between the fifth and sixth levels, where recent work has developed an exceptionally rich ore body. The shaft between the two levels is now down 70 feet, showing four feet of ore, assaying across the face 445 ounces in silver.

The concentrator plant is completed and a thoroughly equipped mill is now ready for work on the mine. The concentrator will not be run for about three months on account of not having water. A 10 drill air compressor has also been installed on the property, giving 20 drills to the mine.

The mine is now earning 2 cents a share per month, and when the mill starts that amount will be doubled. All this is taken from the clean ore, while the concentrates are being placed on the dump, ready for the concentrator when it starts running.

The earning capacity of the mine can be best estimated by stating that in the last six months the ore taken out of the mine has placed $60,000 in the treasury, put improvements on the property worth $40,000, and paid dividends. This is due partly to the remarkable showing that have been made with depth. Both the quality and quantity of ore increases at depth.

City Council.

The council met Monday evening as usual. The following councilmen took the oaths of office and their seats; R. Cunning, Mayor; Alds., Jalland, Stein, Folliott, Brown, Cameron, Duffy.

The resignation of C. E. Lyons as clerk &c. was read, but no action was taken. The resignation of M. L. Grimmett as treasurer was read and filed.

A communication from F. L. Christie stating that he had judgment against the city re McLachlin for $435.

The report of Auditor Sewell showed no provision had yet been made for a sinking fund; W. H. Lilly had wrongfully taken credit for $95 during his term of office; that owing to irregularities in forms of records he could not make a comparison between the finances of 1900 and 1901.—Filed.

On motion of Brown and Stein the McLaughlin judgment be paid.—Carried.

Interest on debentures, $450 was ordered paid.

Brown—Jalland, That an election be called for three school trustees, that the nominations be held on the 27th of January in the city hall, and that Clerk Lyons be returning officer.

HIS DYING VISION AND CRY

TALES OF TELEPATHY FROM A LUMBER CAMP.

Two Remarkable Occurrences in a Gatineau Lumbering Shanty.

Believers in what is occult or the telepathic will perhaps find no difficulty in accounting for the following occurrences in a Gatineau lumbering shanty. Ordinary mortals of conservative ideas find it not easy to explain them. The facts are vouched for by a clergyman.

A party of lumbermen were engaged in piling logs on Christmas eve. They made the piles unusually high. The teamsters expostulated with the log rollers for doing so because of the danger to the lumbermen, if their canthooks should slip while they were rolling the heavy logs to such an elevation. Joseph Gingras, a young French-Canadian had just made some jesting reply when his foot slipped and the forty-inch thirteen foot-log slid down upon his shoulders, and rolled over him to the ground. His companions carried him to the shanty where he was immediately put to bed, and made as comfortable as possible.

As night came on, he fell into a kind of stupor. From this he awakened in a high fever, talking about his father.

"I knew you would come, I was sure of it, father mine. You had better hurry, step along, come quick, my father," he kept calling.

After a time he went on "Keep away from that rollway, don't rest there, get away from the logs." And then "There! just what I told you! Oh! he's killed! I know it. Mon Dieu, il est mort!"

With that a quantity of blood gushed from his mouth and he fell back in the rigor of fast approaching death. There was just one last sobbing cry, heard above the litany of his comrades as they knelt around him in the old habitant fashion, "Marie, oh, Marie!" and he had gone.

Perhaps it was natural that on Christmas day some of the idle men should make their way to the pile of logs, the scene of the accident of the preceding day. But they were quite unprepared for what they found there.

During the night several of the logs had budged out of their places in the heap and rolled down to the roadway. And underneath them, crushed into the snow and of course stone dead, was an elderly man and near by a little valise he had apparently sat down while resting on the pile.

The body was carried to the shanty and laid in the next bunk to that occupied by Joseph Gingras's body. In trying to learn the man's identity the lumbermen discovered in one of his pockets this letter written by Joseph Gingras:

"My Dear Papa: All goes well so far and now we are settled for the winter near Catfish Lake. You must know the place just near the Tomassine portage road, three or four miles north of the lake. But yet I know not why I stay unless it be to forget all about Marie and her devilries. For the work I like not, and is all is naught hereafter all. No matter, the good God will not let him escape for what he has done to me with his lying tongue.

"And me? My father, you must do just this one thing for me. Come to me here. Come for the Noel sure. Maybe you will see me never more if you come not now. I did wrong to leave you, to persuade you not to come with me as before. Sure, sure come for the Noel. Your affectionate one.

Joseph."

So it was father and son, killed within a few hours of each other

AT THE SAME SPOT,

who were lying in neighboring berths in the same shanty in the stillness of death at the Noel or Christmastide.

But two days later, the clerk of the shanty and one of the teamsters were in the office awaiting their turn to report to the local manager of their employers' firm at River Desert when they heard a voluble showily dressed woman asking for the address to the shanty where Joseph Gingras was employed.

Her sleigh was outside and she was distracted until she could reach that place. Monsieur would believe her, for truly yes truly, she had been told in a vision of the night and in her own soul she felt that she was wanted.

Two or three days before had she heard her Joseph call to her and go to him she would, to leave him never more no matter what people said evermore. And the old man Gingras he had himself sent a boy to her house on Christmas Day to tell her to make haste and go to River Desert if she wanted to meet Joseph once more.

And the lumbermen were compelled to tell her that the bodies of father and son were even then on the sled at the door.

It was 11 o'clock on Christmas eve, when Marie was putting on her wraps in the hallway of her home to go to midnight mass that she distinctly heard her lover call her name in agonizing tones, she fainted from the head of the stairs. At which hour the man she had parted from in anger because of evil reports of his sayings respecting her, was dying 100 miles away with her name on his lips.

EXTIRPATING A LANGUAGE.

One Effect of the Dismemberment of Poland.

Prince Radziwill, a representative from Germany's section of Poland, has just made an eloquent plea before the Reichstag against the edicts under which Polish children are scourged who refuse to study the German language. The plea was vain, however. The Chancellor declared he would "oppose all efforts to set back the course of history, and will see that the Germans in the East do not fall beneath the Polish wheels." This policy, moreover, he says, is followed by Austria and Russia in their portions of Poland. It is one of the methods which most of the nations of Continental Europe take to suppress the aspirations of peoples whom they conquer.

When the "three robbers," Prussia's Frederick the Great, Russia's Catherine II. and Austria's Maria Theresa, made their first division of a part of Poland's territory in 1770 the effacement of their language and literature was predicted by some of the leaders of the conquered people, though the conquerors at the outset disclaimed any such intention. The second partition of Poland in 1793 between the same countries and the third partition in 1795, virtually blotted out Poland, though even yet the extreme rigors of the foreign rule did not come.

Bonaparte, who, in his conquering march across Europe, emancipated the peasants of almost every country which he entered from some of the tyrannies incident to the feudal system, and who, while his power lasted, lifted the Jews to a social equality with the peoples among whom they lived, attempted to free Russian Poland from the Muscovic yoke, and thus won the Poles' support, but he was unable to carry out his promise fully though he improved temporarily the condition of some of them.

Antique Schoolma'am—"What is the matter, Johnny?" Little Johnny Squanch (sobbingly)—"Some of the—boo-boo—big boys made me kiss a little gug-girl out on the pup-pup-play-ground." Antique Schoolma'am—"That was shameful. The next time they attempt to make you kiss anybody, come right to me." Johnny (hesitatingly)—"If it's all the same to you, ma'am, I—I believe I'd rather kiss the little girl."

"What's the matter with Rashleigh?" "Absent-mindedness, that's all." "Nonsense! The man's cut and bruised frightfully." "Yes. He tried to stop a runaway motor-car by jumping in front of it and waving his coat at it."

Denmark holds the record for consumption of spirits, 4½ gallons a year, against less than 1 in England.

"LIVING EASY."

Royal Ladies Who Don't Have to Worry Over Financial Matters.

Princess Victoria, of England, with $30,000 a year of her own and no household to maintain, may well enjoy life. Her sisters, the Duchess of Fife and Princess Charles of Denmark, now receive a similar income each, equal to that paid each of their aunts when married, excepting the Empress Frederic, who was granted more, as being Queen Victoria's eldest daughter and princess royal. The dowries have dropped, and neither the Duchess of Fife nor Princess Charles was given a lump sum from the country, $200,000 or $150,000, when they were married. However, they did not lose so very much, owing to the custom which has sprung up of late years of allowing royal brides to accept valuable presents from outsiders.

Princess Beatrice, who had her dowry of $150,000 into the bargain, led off with a wonderful assortment of wedding gifts. As for the Duchess of Fife and Princess Charles of Denmark, a shower of diamonds descended on each, to say nothing of other desirable bridal offerings. Princess Victoria, though still unmarried, has not lived without tribute to her merits, and some few years ago she came in for a nice little legacy of $12,500 from an old friend.

SUCCESSFULLY MANAGED.

Firm discipline is still maintained in some families, as, of course, it ought to be in all. A certain small boy got a splinter in his foot, and his mother expressed her intention of putting a poultice on the wound. The boy, with the natural foolishness which is bound up in the heart of a child, objected to the proposed remedy.

"I won't have any poultice," he declared.

"Yes, you will," said both father and mother, firmly. The majority was two to one against him, and at bedtime the poultice was ready.

But not so the patient. On the contrary, he resisted so stoutly that a cane was brought into requisition. It was arranged that the mother should apply the poultice, while the father, with uplifted stick, was to stand at the bedside. The boy was told that if he "opened his mouth" he would receive something that would keep him quiet.

The hot poultice touched his foot and he opened his mouth.

"You——" he began.

"Keep still!" said his father, shaking his stick, while the mother applied the poultice.

Once more the little fellow opened his mouth.

"I——"

But the uplifted cane awed him into silence.

In a minute more the poultice was firmly in place and the boy was tucked in bed.

"There, now," said his mother, "the splinter will be drawn out and the foot will soon be quite well."

The parents were moving triumphantly away, when a shrill voice piped from under the bed-clothes:

"You've got it on the wrong foot!"

24,000 WORDS AN HOUR.

The French postal authorities have just carried out a series of highly successful experiments with the remarkable invention of M. Menardier, technical instructor at the Ecole Politechnique, and which will revolutionize the telegraphic service. M. Menardier has discovered a means by which no fewer than 24,000 words an hour can be dispatched on a single wire by the employment of sound vibration. Twelve operators were at work on the wire at the same time, and the lines from Paris to Bordeaux were selected for the experiment. The most remarkable part of the invention is that while thousands of words are being dispatched by the Menardier system, the same wire can be used simultaneously for the dispatch of telegrams by the ordinary system at present in use. M. Menardier employs a series of diapasons for the transmission of his messages, which are gathered at the other end and started out, as it were, by an equal number of microtelephonic receivers.

TRAMP STEAMERS.

Much Akin to their Human Prototype on Shore.

The tramp steamers of the ocean highways have always been picturesque objects of commercial interest, and their unexpected appearance at sea in quarters far out of the routes of regular travel has more than once relieved for passengers the tediousness of a trip across the ocean. Like their namesake on land, they travel everywhere, and turn up at the most unexpected moment; but to a certain extent they have been the barometer of business. Where the tramp steamers flock in numbers there are trade and commercial activity. Some years it is in South America; six months later it may be off the coast of Africa, or again on our South Atlantic or Pacific coast. The tramps seem to scent their prey in some unexplained manner, and by some law of mutual attraction they hurry to the scene.

But the ship-building revival of recent years has created revolutions in shipping interests, and the tramps have been the first to suffer from it. One of the noteworthy changes in this respect has been the establishment of many new regular lines of steamers plying between important ports. In former days the picturesque tramp steamers carried all the cargoes between these centers of commerce touching regularly once or twice a year at certain ports to pick up cargoes. But the new lines have crowded the tramps out of the trade, and they have been forced to seek new fields for exploitation.

SURE TO GET IT MENDED.

"It is strange that I can't get my wife to mend my clothes," remarked Mr. Bridle, in a tone of disgust. "I asked her to sew a button on this vest this morning, and she hasn't touched it."

"You asked her?" said Mr. Norris, with a slight shrug of his shoulders.

"Yes; what else should I do?"

"You haven't been married very long, so perhaps you'll take a tip from me," answered Mr. Norris, with a fatherly air. "Never ask a woman to do anything; that's fatal."

"Why, what do you mean?"

"Do as I do. When I want a shirt mended, for instance, I take it in my hand and hunt up my wife. 'Where's that rag-bag, Mrs. Norris?' I demand, in a stern voice.

"'What do you want a rag-bag for?' she says, suspiciously.

"'I want to throw this shirt away; it's all worn out, I reply.

"'Let me see,' she demands.

"But I put the garment behind my back.

"'No, my dear,' I answer. 'There is no use in your attempting to do anything with it.'

"'Let me see it,' she reiterates.

"'But it's all worn out, I tell you.'

"'Now John, you give me that shirt!' she says in her most peremptory tone.

"I hand over the garment.

"'Why, John Norris,' she cries, with womanly triumph, 'this is a perfectly good shirt. All it needs is ——'

"And then she mends it."

Tapperton—"I am going to ask Mr. Bullion for his daughter's hand to-night, and I am so nervous, I can't think." Billington (who knows Mr. Bullion)—"No use being nervous. Mr. Bullion is very approachable." "Eh? Won't kick me out?" "Not a bit of it." "Won't he get angry?" "No, indeed." "I'm overjoyed. What do you think he will do?" "He'll laugh."

A FINANCIAL VIEW.

Eustachia—"I knew that man was a physician by the way in which he shook hands; his tender, delicate, considerate touch."

Edgar—"Yes, of course; that's his $5 touch."

Wife (laughingly)—"There are some excruciatingly funny jokes in this paper about women going shopping all day and never buying anything." Husband (hotly)—"Yes, but they're all lies!"

COMFORTS AND LUXURIES.

A contributor writes sensibly on the need of giving more attention to indoor comforts. She says: "While luxuries are undoubtedly comforts, all comforts are not luxuries; and the simple farmhouse, with the wealth of nature about it, is after all the sweetest, most satisfactory place to build the roof-tree. So make the farmhouse beautiful without and within. Too much bareness and evidence of poverty make any hardworked farmer's wife lose part of the best of her nature; for love of beauty is ingrained in every true woman's heart, and the money and the thought expended in developing the artistic side of the home will never be regretted.

"Do not spend the time used in beautifying the home grudgingly. The prosaic duties will not be shirked; indeed, with the influence of pretty things about, there will come a braver heart, and a more willing hand will accomplish the tasks that sometimes seem drudgery, but are not—if in any way they make the home more perfect, and bring greater comforts to those whom the busy housewife loves."

C. C. RICHARDS & CO

Detroit has had for four years a charitable institution devoted exclusively to the care of indigent colored women.

HE HAD TRIED IT BEFORE.

A certain judge in Chicago who rather prides himself on his vast and varied knowledge of law, was compelled not long ago to listen to a case that had been appealed from a justice of the peace. The young practitioner who appeared for the appellant was long and tedious; he brought in all the elementary text books and quoted the fundamental propositions of law. At last the judge thought it was time to make an effort to hurry him up. "Can we assume that the court knows a little law itself?" he said blandly. "That's just the mistake I made in the lower court," answered the young man, "and I don't want to let it defeat me twice."

The wife of a man, who often finds it cheaper to move than pay rent, recently misplaced her thimble, and was considerably annoyed over her unsuccessful search for it. "Never mind, mamma," said her little daughter, reassuringly; "we'll find it when we move."

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that can not be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

RAILWAY CHARGES.

The railway companies of Canada have a different way of doing business from everyone else; and this is especially true of their operations in this province. Ask them to cut freight rates on ores in two, and they will tell you the roads are not now paying expenses, and that ore shipments are not paying as they are. As abstract statements they may be both absolutely true; but what most people contend is it is not a business answer as business is run in the country. Everyone knows the expenses of a railway are nearly as great when it is next thing to idle, as when comparatively busy. The head official cost is nearly the same, the station and trackmen are the same and trains have to run empty or loaded. With a good business a few more freight hands are required, and there is a little more wear on rolling stock—this is about the only difference. No other business is run on the principle of making every feature of it profitable. If all the grocers sold all their merchandise on the margin of profit they have on sugar, for instance, everyone of them would be bankrupt in three months. They simply carry the article at the prices they charge, with the idea of selling other goods at a better profit. All newspaper offices in Canada give their newspapers at less than the cost of production depending on their advertising and job printing for profits, and so on of almost all other lines of business. It is different with railways however. They want ore shipments to make money as well as all other lines of traffic. It appears to us as a business proposition they should see things differently. The grocer knows losses on a large trade in sugar bring profits on a large trade in other goods. The newspaper man knows considerable loss on a large circulation for a paper brings a large profit in a large volume of advertising, but the railways can't see things this way.

Now supposing they cut their ore freights in two, every mine in the country would be able to ship at a profit, and with all shipping, the general merchandise and passenger traffic of the country would become increased several fold. What the roads would lose on the ore business, they would several times over make up on other lines of business, without, as we remarked at the outset, materially increasing their expenses in general operation. However, there is no use in extending these remarks, as the roads know all this themselves; but it is without weight with them.

BE CAREFUL, GENTLEMEN.

We are quite aware the present city council will not thank us for any recommendations we may make as they know so much more than the Editor of this paper can possibly know about municipal matters; but all the same, if the Paystreak voices their intentions, in the interest of the taxpayers, we must raise a timely note of warning. We are advised by their organ that Mayor Cunning is bound to hold a tax sale, and sell for arrears all those properties on which taxes before the fire are unpaid. We desire to see the city collect every cent due it; but when there is a right way as well as a wrong way to collect those dues, we recommend the right and safe way.

In the first place to have a tax sale legal it must cover the actual amount due on the property, not 5 cents more nor less. Now, as the city records were all destroyed in the fire there is no way open to the council to get at the actual amount due before that incident by any property. It may be approximated but it cannot be actually acertaind. To approximate and sell by tax sale under an approximation, means the defeat of the sale and the costs thrown on the city as sure as the sun rises and sets. This is the warning we want to give the council.

The proper way is to get the closest possible estimate from all the documents available of the amounts and sue the owners for these amounts. If they are less than the amounts actually due, judgments will be secured for the amounts, and the properties can be legally sold under the judgments. If the suits are for more than the amounts actually due, it will be for the owners to prove by documents in their possession that the amounts sued for are excessive. In such cases the city will get judgments for the proper amounts. This latter is the only legal course open to the council, and we sincerely hope the best judgment of that body will direct their steps this way.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, Toronto.

There have been times when the wild beasts have been more merciful than human beings, and spared the woman cast to them in the arena. It is astonishing how little sympathy women have for women. In the home the mistress sees the maid with the signs of suffering she recognizes so well, but she does not lighten the sick girl's load by a touch of her finger. In the store the forewoman sees the pallor and exhaustion which mark womanly weakness, but allows nothing for them. It is work or quit.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription makes weak women strong and sick women well, by curing the womanly diseases which undermine the health and sap the strength. "Favorite Prescription" establishes regularity, dries weakening drains, heals inflammation and ulceration, and cures female weakness.

"When I first commenced using Dr. Pierce's medicines," writes Mrs. George A. Strong, of Gansevoort, Saratoga Co., N. Y. "I was suffering from female weakness, a disagreeable drain, bearing-down pains, weak and tired feeling all the time. I dragged around in that way for two years, then I began taking your medicine. After taking the first bottle I began to feel better. I took four botles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, two of 'Golden Medical Discovery,' one vial of the 'Pleasant Pellets,' also used one bottle of Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy. Now I feel like a new person. I can't thank you enough for your kind advice and the good your medicine has done me."

"Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong, sick women well. Accept no substitute for the medicine which works wonders for weak women.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the most desirable laxative for delicate women.

The fuel question is becoming a serious one with the smelter men and mine owners of B.C., and indirectly the whole people of the province. It is known the Crow's Nest coal is the best for smelting easily available to the smelters of the Western States and B. C. Jim Hill who is largely interested in the American Smelter Trust saw this some time ago and bought a controlling interest in the Crow's Nest coal mines; and by the first of July next will have a road from the mines to his smelters across the line. In the natural course of things he will use his advantage for his own personal interest. The C. P. R. hold a large mining property in the same locality, but they are debarred from opening it up for some time through a contract they made with the Crow's Nest Coal Co. some four years ago. This of course ties up that property. The Canadian government, however, reserved a block of mining land south of Morrissey creek, which can be made available to block Hill's intention to strangle the B. C. smelting enterprise. It is further known another company, which means Hill in disguise, is endeavoring to get hold of this to make strangulation complete. In this, the Federal Govt. holds the key to the protection of our enterprise; and it remains for the representatives of our province in parliament to see that it is employed in our protection. As the fuel item constitutes one-third of the cost of smelting the gold-copper ores, it is easily seen safe-guarding this government property is of vital importance to the whole country. Hill's action will be the means of giving value to the Similkameen and other coal deposits of southern British Columbia.

Some people wonder why lead is worth but 1¼ cents here while the American miners get 3½ cents. In other words why the B. C. miners do not ship to the States. There is a duty of 2⅛ cents on pig lead going into the States. Formerly the American smelters used to import our ores in bond, and export the pig lead; but since the trust has refused to smelt for B. C. our metal is shut out of that country altogether in every form. In making comparisons between the mining business in this country and the States, John Houston is ever careful to keep from public view the better markets open to the American producers.

A correspondent asks us why some of the provinces of Canada lose representation through the last census. The reason is this: By the constitution Quebec province always has 65 members, neither more nor less. The results of the last census show this is one for every 25,000 people, which becomes the basis of representation for the other provinces. British Columbia is shown to have 177,272 which give it seven. Manitoba is shown to have 250,000 which entitles it to ten representatives, and so on of the rest of the country.

Houston the other day said it would be well for British Columbia if it had more mine owners like J. Roderick Robertson. This compares well with a cut of that gentleman the Tribune had in its columns two years ago, where it represented him with a long whip driving the miners, as slave drivers used to drive slaves in the Southern States years ago. John can "jump Jim Crow" as well as any other men can do it, when it suits his purpose to do so.

John Houston is now out for manhood suffrage for municipal elections. That would be nice. It would enable those who have no financial interests in a city to foist hundred-year financial burdens on those who have them. That's Houston's sense of justice and fair play.

In the defeat of his candidate for the mayoralty of Nelson, John Houston sees "the handwriting on the wall." Rowdyism is losing its power in Nelson.

"Joe" Martin is going to run as an independent Liberal in Victoria. This is to split the Grit vote.

Who will be Chief Justice in place of McColl. We nominate John Houston.

IN MERRY OLD ENGLAND

NEWS BY MAIL ABOUT JOHN BULL AND HIS PEOPLE.

Record of Occurrences in the Land That is Supreme in the Commercial World.

The promoters of the Solent tunnel scheme have purchased the existing Isle of Wight Railway between Freshwater and Newport.

The King has given an order to a Derbyshire firm for eight marble pedestals four and a half feet in height, with Gothic panels, for Windsor Castle. One of the pedestals is to bear a bust of Queen Victoria.

Much alarm has been caused at New Romney and Littlestone-on-Sea by recent encroachments of the sea. In order to save the rich pasture land defence authorities will have to expend £15,700 in constructing a sea wall.

A novel case of robbery is reported from Colchester. Last month the mayor of that town laid the foundation stone of a new Masonic hall, part of the ceremony being the lodgment of a bottle containing current coins and Masonic documents under the stone. It has now been discovered that thieves had tunnelled under the foundation stone and stolen the bottle and its contents.

The Woodbridge Urban Council has adopted a novel method of preventing street accidents. At one corner of the Market Hill three roads meet at dangerous angles; and collisions between vehicles have been frequent. Widening by the demolition of houses being impossible, the surveyor recommended the erection of mirrors, so that drivers could see what was approaching. The experiment has been tried and has proved successful.

Councillor Beaven, of Cardiff, who eventually consented to stand for next year did so on lines which are distinctly novel. He stipulated that no intoxicants of any sort should be supplied in connection with the year's feastings; that the deputy mayor's "parlour" should not be used for the purposes it had been in the last three or four years; that he should not be called on to spend more than £100 to £150 of his own money; and, lastly, that he should receive a unanimous vote.

The coast guards have lately been busily occupied in burying the carcases of sheep which were washed ashore between Dover and Deal in the recent gales. The County Council allows five shillings for each carcase buried, and at St. Margaret's alone 140 have been interred. A complaint was made at the meeting of the Douer corporation that a number of sheep had been buried in the sand on the seashore, but it was explained that quicklime was used to destroy the bodies.

Major-General Baden Powell paid a flying visit to Rose Hill school, Tunbridge Wells, recently. It was here that the general received his early education before going to Charterhouse. The boys knew nothing about the visit until at four o'clock they were summoned from their games to the school room, where they greeted the General with vociferous cheers. General Baden-Powell apologized for breaking up their holiday, and suggested that they should have a whole holiday on Monday as compensation—a proposal to which Mr. Browning, the headmaster, readily agreed.

In former times Nottingham Goose Fair was a great institution, to which every farmer for fifty miles round drove his flock of hissing birds. To-day its ancient glories have departed, but it is still a great event in the Midlands and the north. From all the country round visitors flock into Nottingham on pleasure bent, and the Goose Fair is a pandemonium of shows and roundabouts and switchbacks. All Nottingham makes holiday, and the free-and-easy manners of the fair are reminiscent of continental carnivals.

While employed in alterations to a shop in Broadway, Wimbledon, recently, the workmen found a bundle of letters and post-cards behind the frame of a window on the ground floor. It appears that the shop was some years ago a post-office and it is supposed that through a defect in the letter box the letters when posted slipped into the position in which they were found. There were 18 post cards and 14 letters, some of the post cards being dated 1884 and others 1890. One letter was addressed to Sir Henry Peck, who has been dead some years; another was addressed to the clerk of the Wimbledon Local Board, which years ago became the Urban District Council. The present tenant of the shop has despatched the letters to the post-office, so some of the addresses will get them after a lapse of a long period.

The King of Sweden is acknowledged to be one of the most learned men in Europe. His Majesty's letters are always most beautiful to read, and his friends and relatives with whom he continually corresponds, look forward to them with the greatest interest. King Oscar can speak and write perfectly in seven different languages. Lord Salisbury, when staying at Stockholm, once said to the venerable monarch: "What a wonderful linguist your majesty is to be sure. You have written six letters this morning, you tell me, and all in different languages! Now, can your majesty write or speak Chinese!" The King of Sweden looked very humble as he gently replied: "No, no; I cannot. What feeble creatures we men are after all!" And then, more hopefully and with great animation: "But never mind. I have commenced to learn Chinese, and before long I hope to be able to correspond with the Emperor of China in his own language!" His Majesty can now accomplish this difficult task with comparative ease.

While the population has increased 21 per cent. in the past decade, the pension roll has increased 47 per cent. in the same period.

BABY IN THE HOME.

A Joy and Treasure When Good Natured and Healthy

All children in every home in the country need at some time or other a medicine such as Baby's Own Tablets, and this famous remedy has cured many a serious illness and saved many a little life. Mothers insist upon having it because it contains no opiate or harmful drugs. It is purely vegetable, sweet and pleasant to take and prompt in its effect.

For simple fevers, colic, constipation, disordered stomach, diarrhoea, irritation accompanying the cutting of teeth and indigestion, Baby's Own Tablets are a certain cure. In fact, in almost any disorder common to children these tablets should be given at once and relief may be promptly looked for.

Never give the babies so-called soothing medicines which simply put them into an unnatural sleep. These tablets are small, sweet, pleasant to take and prompt in acting. Dissolved in water, they will be taken readily by the smallest infant.

Mrs. John McEwan, Bathurst Village, N.B., writes: "My baby was almost constantly troubled with colic before I gave him Baby's Own Tablets, but since giving them to him he has not since suffered. Every mother should keep these tablets always at hand."

They cost 25 cents a box. You can find them at your druggist's or, if you do not, forward the money direct to us and we will send the tablets prepaid. The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Dept. T., Brockville, Ont.

HAPPY SAVAGES.

Dr. Carl Lumholtz, who has lived among the wild Indian tribes of northwestern Mexico, sharing in the everyday life and amusements of the people for several years, pronounces them to be a very intellectual race, although many of them still dwell in caves like their forefathers thousands of years ago. On the whole, they lead a very happy existence, and among many of the tribes a higher degree of morality exists than in civilized countries. They are monogamists. Theft and many of the worst forms of disease are unknown among them. They hold their land in common and their principal food is Indian corn and beans.

It took Count Tolstoi five years to gather the historical material for "War and Peace." The preliminary writings from which the book sprang are now in the Rumjanzoff Museum, Moscow. But they had a hard time getting there. Some years ago when Countess Tolstoi was ill, a careless servant took the manuscripts and threw them into a disused canal in the park near the house. They were discovered after several weeks and rescued.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell is said to be the only actress whom the present Queen has received on intimate terms. While Mrs. Campbell was said to have been held in high regard by Queen Victoria, the once popular and brilliant Marie Wilton, wife of Sir Squire Bancroft, was the only actress who was honored by her acquaintance.

N. TEMISCAMINGUE SENDS A STORY.

A STURDY FARMER STRICKEN WITH RHEUMATISM IS CURED BY DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

This Man Was so Bad That he Was Almost Paralyzed—A Wonderful Case and a Very Happy Cure by This Excellent Remedy.

North Temiscamingue, Que., Jan. 6. (Special).—At the Douglas Farm near here lives Mr. W. H. Johnston who to-day considers himself a very happy man indeed.

The cause of Mr. Johnston's happiness is his somewhat sudden and very remarkable recovery from the most severe case of Rheumatism ever seen in this county.

For a long time he suffered with the Rheumatism which gradually grew worse till it threatened his life. His principle trouble was in his left side, and it was so bad that his neck stiffened so that he could scarcely move it, and was beginning to fear Paralysis. The pain would go away for a time, but return with greater force, and a strange feature of his case was that after the pain would leave any part, it left behind it that prickly "pins and needles" sensation.

He thought that perhaps his smoking tobacco had something to do with it and he gave this up, but received no benefit at all till he used Dodd's Kidney Pills.

This remedy he found to be a complete and absolute cure for his malady, and very soon after commencing its use, the pain began to leave him and now he is strong and well.

That such an extreme case should yield so easily and quickly proves that Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure any case of Rheumatism.

A Capitulation.

And chide him with a will,
And yet the workoff gives him

Her Shoes.

These high heeled shoes are all the go
Because, betweenus, don't you know,
They make shortladies look the taller
And make all laces' feet look smaller.

It's Her Nature.

Colds that will Never be Cured

Are being Contracted Every Day—The Treatment Prescribed by an Eminent Medical Author and Physician—Timely Action the All Important Point in Treating Colds.

"Colds that will never be cured." A startling sentence, but you know it to be true. Scarcely a day passes but some death from consumption, pneumonia or similar ailment emphasizes the truth of this statement. It is well to remember that a newly-contracted cold can, in almost every case, be cured. It is the neglected cold that leads to death—the cold that runs on and on—the cold that is added to by fresh colds from time to time.

But what treatment is to be chosen from the great number of remedies that are recommended? You can use common-sense in buying medicine, just as you can in the purchase of a piano, a bicycle or a sewing machine. Find out what treatment has the best record in the past, apply the test of time and get the opinion of people who know from experience.

If you apply this test to medicines for coughs, colds and similar ailments, you will select Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine, because of the extraordinary merits which it possesses, and which have become known to the public generally through years of trial. The sales of this remedy are far in excess of any similar preparation, and have never been so large as during the present season. These two facts are, we believe the strongest evidence that can be produced in verifying the merits of any remedy that has been thoroughly tested for years.

Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine is prized especially because of its far-reaching effects, even in the most serious cases of bronchitis, whooping cough, croup and asthma. It is not a mere relief for coughs, but acts on the whole system thoroughly, curing the cold and removing chest pains, soreness of the lungs and bronchial tubes, and all inflammation of the respiratory organs.

Just a word of warning. There are other preparations of turpentine and linseed put up in imitation of Dr. Chase's Syrup of Linseed and Turpentine. To be sure you are getting the genuine, see portrait and signature of Dr. A. W. Chase on the wrapper. Twenty-five cents a bottle, family size, three times as much, 60 cents. At all dealers, or Edmanson, Bates & Company, Toronto.

FOR THE HOME

Recipes for the Kitchen. Hygiene and Other Notes for the Housekeeper.

SUNDAY NIGHT TEAS.

Sunday night teas in the country are generally very appetizing, and city people are apt to sigh for the abundance of sweet butter, rich cream, new-laid eggs and tender chickens, they enjoy when visiting there.

Timbales of chicken, mushrooms, vegetables and salmon, make very delicious tea dishes, and as the timbales may be made beforehand, they only require to be filled and reheated before serving.

Comparatively few country housekeepers make use of a timbale iron or timbale molds, however, and when these are not at hand, small cups may be used instead, or if one prefers to make a substitute for the timbale cases of cooked batter, deep patty pans lined with good paste and baked in a good oven are very nice. Hot patties of any kind or a substantial salad will also generally prove highly acceptable, while a platter of cold sliced fowl, tongue or veal, served with little cubes of cranberry, plum or currant jelly, is appetizing either in summer or winter. A mound of stiffly whipped cream placed over the preserves or canned fruit in its sparkling glass dish is not only delightful to the eye, but changes an ordinary dish into a most delicious one.

Chicken Patties—Line patty pans with puff paste and fill with diced chicken meat. Season to taste, pour over a little of the thickened chicken gravy, cover with the paste, and bake in a brisk oven. A couple of oysters added to each patty or 1 tablespoon diced mushrooms varies the flavor delightfully. These may be baked beforehand, and repeated when wanted.

Almond Cream Cake—Make a layer cake after any preferred recipe, for the filling make a custard with ½ pt cream or sweet milk, the yolks of 3 eggs, 2 teaspoons sugar, and 1 teaspoon cornstarch. When smooth and thick, put in ½ lb blanched and chopped almonds. Place between the layer cake, ice with plain frosting, and ornament with blanched almonds split in halves.

Timbales of Celery—Cook diced celery in a little salted water until tender, then drain, turn into timbale cases, season to taste, cover with a thick cream sauce, and let get hot in the oven. Pickled beets make a very pretty dish if cut into cubes and daintily piled, log-cabin fashion, on a flat glass dish.

To make the peach cake, drain the syrup from rich preserved peaches, about a cupful, chop fine, add two tablespoons cream and ½ cup chopped walnuts or almonds. Place between layer cake and frost with pink icing.

Cocoanut Custard—To 1 lb grated cocoanut allow 1 qt scalding milk and 1 heaping cup sugar. Beat well the yolks of six eggs and stir them alternately in the milk with the cocoanut and sugar. Pour this into a dish lined with good paste, and bake 20 minutes. If preferred it may be boiled and served in cups.

Silver Cake—One cupful each of butter and cornstarch, 2 cups sugar, 2 of flour, 1 of sweet milk, the whites of 6 eggs, and 3 teaspoons baking powder. Flavor with almond and bake in a plain round mold.

Creamed Sweetbreads—Wash carefully, remove all bits of skin and fatty matter, cover with cold water, and heat to a boil. Let stand until the sweetbreads are firm, then cut into small pieces, stew in a very little water until tender, and set aside until time to serve. Then repeat, season to taste, add a lump of butter and half cup cream in which has been stirred 1 teaspoon flour. When very hot, serve at once. Creamed sweetbreads are very nice served in turnip cups. Small turnips should be boiled whole, and when done cut into dainty cups When time to serve, rub them all over, inside and out, with soft butter, season nicely and let get very hot in the oven while the sweetbreads are heating on top of the range, then fill in with the meat, and serve at once.

Strawberry Trifle—Line a deep glass dish with slices of stale cake, pour in a generous layer of preserved strawberries, cover with a layer of custard, add another layer of cake, then more strawberries, and finish with custard. Pour little mounds of strawberries with the syrup drained off over the top.

Chicken Jelly—Cut a dressed chicken in small pieces, and cook it very slowly in just enough water to cover it, until it will fall from the bones. Then take it up and boil the liquor to a cupful. Remove all the bones, and pick the meat to pieces. Season with pepper and salt, add a little butter in small bits, mix with the gravy, and turn into a well-buttered mold. Set in a cold place until perfectly firm. Cut in slices for the table.

Coffee Custard.—Break an egg into 1 cup freshly ground coffee and mix well. Put it into a coffee pot with 1 pt boiling water, let it stand ten minutes, then drain off into a saucepan. Add 1 pt cream and give it one boil. Have ready 4 well-beaten eggs and 1 large cup sugar, turn the coffee and cream boiling hot on the eggs, and cook in a double boiler until smooth and thick.

VALUE OF BUTTER EATING.

One of the favorite remedies of physicians is cod liver oil, and why is one of the mysteries of the world of medicine, when all there is about it is an oil or fatty substance that is easily digested and quite as easily assimilated, fish oil being appropriated with a small outlay of digestive power. Why cod liver oil, a product of the decomposition of fish refuse, should have ever been chanced upon when butter and cream are nature's supply, and at once the most readily obtainable, is unexplainable. While anyone can take cream or butter, the consuming of fish oil requires the fortitude of a saint and the heroism of a martyr; and, as we know, the oil does not agree with many, and is hard of digestion in others.

Now, it has been demonstrated that fresh, unsalted butter is rather more digestible than oil, and is pleasant to take on thinly-cut slices of bread, and as high as four ounces a day of this butter can be eaten with impunity by even delicate persons, and cream can be taken to the full desire of the patient.

When one is recovering from prostrating sickness and the body needs nourishing, this fresh butter, it is now asserted has no equal in building up the wasted tissues of the body, and as a stimulant very hot, fresh milk is without a rival, outside of the use of alcohol, which last is better left alone when possible, says the Pittsburg Dispatch. Growing children may be greatly benefited by indulging in generous amounts of butter, though it may seem expensive, but it may prove the cheapest in the end. Either of these remedies can be taken without a doctor's prescription, and is outside of the "kill or cure" warrant.

HOME HINTS.

Rats and mice can be driven away by putting potash into their holes or where they are likely to go. The air will make it soft and sticky, and they dislike it very much.

Camphor gum placed in close presses and drawers will keep mice away, as the odor is very disagreeable to them.

It is worth while to know that wagon or bicycle grease, tar or pitch can be removed if lard is rubbed on the spots immediately and afterward it is washed as usual.

Grass stains on children's clothes often cause a great deal of annoyance. If molasses is rubbed on these spots and the garment is afterward washed as usual, they will usually disappear.

Iron rust can generally be removed if lemon juice and salt is applied, and the garment laid in the sun for several hours. Repeat the operation if the first trial is not successful.

Housekeepers are very much annoyed by scorched spots on table linen or articles of clothing sometimes. A paste can be made which will remove them entirely. To make this paste use half an ounce of white castile soap, finely shaved, two ounces of earth secured at the druggist's, the juice of two peeled onions and one cupful of vinegar; stir well and let it boil thoroughly. Cool before spreading over the scorched spot, and let it remain until dry, then wash out and the places will have disappeared.

Great care should be taken in washing delicately tinted shirtwaists or summer gowns, to prevent fading. Alum used in the rinsing water will prevent green from fading. A handful of salt thrown into the rinsing water, should be used to set blue. Ox-gall is good to use for gray and brown. Hay water, made by pouring boiling water over hay, is excellent for washing tan or brown linen. When this is not used, the garments will soon look faded and bleached.

BEES IN THE ARMY.

From Russia comes a suggestion to the effect that honey bees should be tried as military messengers in place of homing pigeons. It is urged that for such purposes they would be preferable to birds in more than one way, inasmuch as they could hardly be intercepted, and it would certainly be out of the question for the most skillful marksman to hit such a carrier. As for their size and small carrying power, a bee could transport a good deal in the shape of documents, if the latter were transferred by micro-photography to a minute piece of paper. This piece of paper might be fastened to the insect's back, and on the arrival of the little messenger at its destination the writing could easily be enlarged. The homing instinct of a bee is as strong as that of a pigeon, and its method of finding its way to its hive is the same as that whereby the bird gets back to its cote from a great distance.

INGENIOUS DEVICE.

A novel and certainly effective device was utilized by an unemployed Liverpool clerk for the purpose of obtaining a situation. It was to engage a sandwichman to parade the neighborhood of the Liverpool Exchange with placards setting forth the clerk's acquirements. The announcements, neatly inscribed in text hand written with pen and ink, stated that the advertiser was an experienced book-keeper, a shorthand writer, and a linguist; also that he was a married man with two children. It gave, of course, an address to which inquirers were referred.

An Engl'h Family's Salutes.

On the shores of the Bosphorus, near where that magnificent strait opens out into the Black Sea, stands a large house which has long been occupied by an English family. The children knew one of the Russian officers, and used to wave a salute whenever his ship passed by.

Gradually other Russian ships observed the little exchange of courtesies and sought to emulate it, until every naval vessel that passed adopted the custom of whistling until some one came out from the house and waved a response.

The children grew up and went away to school, and the interchange of signals was discontinued for a time, until the Russian ambassador to Turkey sent a message asking that it might be renewed, as the Russian sailors thought the welcome brought them good luck, and looked for it as they arrived or sailed away. The English people, greatly astonished at the importance attached to their little by-play, gladly resumed it, and the custom still continues.

Recently the Grand Duke Michael, passing through the Bosphorus on a Russian gunboat, stood by the captain as they approached the promontory with its English villa. The captain begged permission to whistle, explaining the custom, and was told by the Grand Duke that an acquaintance ought to be sought with the family.

Some days later a delegation of officers in full uniform called at the house to express their thanks, and to beg the ladies of the family to dine on the gunboat. A toast given at the dinner by the captain referred to the friendly salutes, which he said had cheered many a sailor's heart when going out into the Black Sea, and which had done much to generate a kindly feeling toward the whole English nation.

WAITING FOR THE COIN.

On one occasion, whilst examining the mechanism of the monster revolving lamp belonging to a lighthouse, a visitor, wishing to see how many seconds would elapse before it completed a revolution, took a five-dollar gold piece from his pocket and placed it on the revolving framework. Watch in hand he patiently waited for the coin to come round again to where he was standing, but no gold piece appeared. The seconds lengthened into minutes, still no gold-piece.

"Strange!" he exclaimed. "What can be the reason of it?"

In order to ascertain he walked around to the other side of the lamp and in doing so encountered one of the lighthouse men, who touched his cap, and said, in an undertone, "Thank you, sir."

The man, seeing the coin coming towards him, had pocketed it, thinking it was meant for a tip!

Guest—"What have you got?" Waiter—"I've got liver, calf's brains, pig's feet——" Guest—"I don't want a description of your physical peculiarities. What have you got to eat is what I want to know."

"I tell you," exclaimed the slim individual, "that water is heaven's greatest gift to man!" "Are you a teetotallist?" asked a bystander, taking him cordially by the hand. "No sir," was the reply. "I sell milk!"

"Were you really happier before you became civilized?" asked the white man. "Well," answered the Kaffir chief, "I must say I didn't have all this worry whether my trousers were getting baggy at the knee."

Wigg—"Why do they always have special policemen at railway stations?" Wagg—"To keep people from taking the trains, of course."

A British soldier is in hospital 18 days in the year, an Austrian 13, a Russian 28 days.

Beer has only 4 per cent. of alcohol. Gooseberry wine possesses nearly 12 per cent; and Scotch whiskey, 54 per cent.

The Second Side.

The Editor of
MINING REVIEW, Sandon, B.C.
Dear Sir:—

I take great pleasure enclosing express order for $2.00 amount of subscription for your paper for ensuing year, and hope that you will have a very happy and prosperous New Year, officially and personally. As you are probably aware I am largely interested in the — and— mineral claims in your neighborhood, upon which we have spent together nearly $100,000 in development. Owing to the low price of lead and high transportation and treatment charges, also high price of labor we have suspended operations during the last nine months. I have been glad to see that efforts are being made to over-come these difficulties, and I trust they will be successful at an early date, as we are anxious to proceed with development of what we believe to be valuable properties as soon as we are convinced that we have a fair show for doing so.

I remain,
Deaa Sir,
Yours very truly
A. G. R.

There are a great many people in this district that sympathise with the miners in every complaint they raise, but have no feeling for men and companies like the writer in the foregoing. The foregoing parties after an expenditure of $100,000 have not yet realized $5,000. Every dollar of this money has been paid out directly to Sandon miners, and they in their turn have spent it again among the business men of the place. To put the matter mildly the owners distribute their cool cash among the people this way without returns are certainly as much entitled to legislative and other consideration as the men who think they do not get enough for their labor as miners.

Houston throws his hat in the air because the government returns show an increase in the mining output of 1901 over that of 1900 in the province. He does not, however, show what most interests his readers—that that of the Slocan and Ainsworth for last year was really less than for 1900, when it should have been 50 per cent. more. Deduct the increase in Kettle River and Grand Forks divisions and the increase in the province is nil. This is a sad comment on the beneficent legislation of the last few years.
