THE SPANISH CONTEMPT

For Americans May Yet Cause Trouble in Cuba.

Washington, Oct. 17.—Information has reached the war department that a high officer of the Spanish army very recently made the statement that had the Spaniards been aware of the condition of the American army, its inability to withstand the hardships of a campaign, its lack of medical and other supplies and general inefficiency, as told in the American papers, the Spaniards would not have given up, but would have continued fighting for a long time to come, fully believing that they would have been able to prevent the capture of Cuba by the American army. This statement is known to have been made to the American officers now in Cuba, and causes some uneasiness in official circles, as it may mean that the Spaniards are not ready to yield the island under the terms of the protocol.

It is believed by officials in Washington that had it not been for the outcry regarding the army and the conduct of the war that there never would have been any question raised by the Spanish peace commissioners regarding the Cuban debt. It is pointed out that under the protocol the sole question left for the commissioners was the settlement of the Phillipin and that there was nothing about a Cuban debt or any other Cuban question say those who are in a position to know. It is asserted that the Madrid government was aware when it asked for peace and when negotiations were opened that it was useless to ask that the Cuban debt be taken into consideration by any commission and that it is only since the reports of the bad condition of the United States army had reached Madrid that the question had been raised.

Another matter that caused grave consideration in the war department is the temper of the Spaniards in Cuba, and the fear that the impression which now prevails there may lead them to regard the American troops of not much account and act accordingly after the occupancy by the United States. The matter has been discussed in the war department and it is probable that when the troops are sent to Cuba there will be a force of such size and character as to give the islanders a different impression of the United States soldiers than they now entertain. "The impression among the Spaniards in Cuba," said an officer in a position to know what is going on, is that the American soldiers are weak and puny, incapable of withstanding hardships and whom it will be an easy matter to vanquish. This feeling may make it difficult for the Americans at first. This impression is due to the charges that have been made against the war department with such virulence and insistance during the past few months."

THE FRENCH WAR CLOUD.

Warlike Preparations Are Being Made at Brest.

Paris, Oct. 17.—Inquiries made to-day at the offices of the French ministry of marine, confirm the report as published by Le Soleil in a despatch from Toulon, saying that vice-Admiral Fournier, who is now at Tunis with the minister of marine, will return immediately to Toulon, where orders have been received to speedily prepare the armoured cruisers Admiral Treheart, Bouvines, Jennapes and Walmly for active service and that in addition orders have been issued to send the largest possible number of gunners to Brest without delay to man the forts and batteries there. The vessels mentioned are to be promptly placed on a war footing and are to be sent to Brest. Rumor connects the French naval preparations with the question in dispute with Great Britain as to the possesion of Fashoda on the Nile. The Paris papers to-day in chronicling the movements of the British fleet in the Mediterranean, announce that three British ironclads are engaged in gun practice off Pizert, the French naval station in the Mediterranean on the African coast.

CAUGHT HIS WIFE.

Mrs. Van Alstine Captured in London, But the Catch Cost $5,000.

London, Oct. 15.—Charles Van Alstine, a Klondyke miner whose wife fled with $50,000 belonging to her husband, overtook her here. A reconciliation was effected, and they sailed from Liverpool on the steamer Uumbria, which is due to arrive at New York shortly.

When Mrs. Van Alstine walked out of St. Mark's hospital, Brooklyn, three weeks ago with diamonds, cash and drafts and boarded a steamer under an assumed name for Europe, the husband was at the Hoffman house, New York, in ignorance of her excursion. He learned of his wife's journey when a private physician, who attended her, called on him regarding the bill.

The husband engaged the best man on the Pinkerton staff and offered reward for the location of his wife. It took the detectives an hour to discover that the Klondyker's wife had sailed for Europe on the Majestic. A cable came to the London agency of the Pinkerton's and detectives met the steamer in the Mersey and shadowed the runaway wife.

Van Alstine left New York on the earliest possible steamer and arrived in England only three days behind his wife. He also was met by the detectives and hastened to London. Here he was conducted to a hotel on the Thames embankment, where Mrs. Van Alstine had taken up her abode.

The husband and wife had a long interview, but when it was over the husband refused to talk. He said it was his business only; that everything had been satisfactorily arranged, and that while a tour of Europe might be pleasant enough, they preferred to return to America. He telegraphed for a stateroom, and the reconciled couple sailed on the same steamer on which he husband came here. While here the wife cashed all the drafts, but the time was so short that she spent little money.

Van Alstine takes all his fortune back to America with him, except a few hundred dollars spent in travelling expenses and the $5,000 reward.

GAMBLERS AT DAWSON.

Mr. Ogilvie Has Them Fined and They Pay $8,750 Into Court.

Advices from Dawson, dated September 14, comfirm the story already published to the effect that Ogilvie has commenced a crusade against the disreputable class. A letter just received says:

"There has been a vague feeling of uneasiness among the gamblers of Dawson for the last week by the police taking names of all who ran any kind of games. Monday night the police summoned them to appear before Justice Starnes at the barracks at 1 a. m. sharp Tuesday. Ninety-five men were at the barracks, each was fined $50 and $5 costs. Two were let off for $25 and costs. Half of these men were not handlers of paste boards, dice or rolling the marble around the wheel but will hereafter look out and not be invited to make themselves at home around the games. Tuesday afternoon by special invitation, 63 of the Dawson 400 presented themselves before Justice Starnes and were fined $5 and $5 costs. There were also several members of the Anti-Temperance Union before the justice. They paid from $5 to $35. The net proceeds of the day amounted to $875.

The Stove Was Loaded.

J. P. Paxton and Neil Beaton, while doing assessment work on the Editor mineral claim, in Ymir district, had a very narrow escape from sudden death. Near their camp they found a sheet iron stove and used it. After starting the fire, Beaton opening the end door discovered several sticks of dynamite in a burning paper. He hastily threw the parcel as far down the hill as he could and ran in the opposite direction. Paxton, who was in the tent, saw that part of the proceedings and crawling under the tent side followed Beaton. They had not gone far when a terrific explosion occurred which made a hole about four feet deep in the soil and stripped the shrubbery of leaves and bark for several feet around. Had the explosion occurred when the explosive was in the oven both of them would have been instantly killed. Beaton, who has been mining 20 years, said he never had so narrow an escape. L. S. Lyon, the third partner, had gone for water to a spring and was in no danger.

The Queen Bess.

The Queen Bess mines are rapidly coming to the front in the rank of the ore producers of the Slocan. During the sleighing season the management of the Queen Bess expects to make shipments at the rate of 400 tons per month. A few months' shipping at this rate should produce a most encouraging dividend. The ore will probably go to the Scottish Colonial Company's concentrator at Three Forks.

THE RESULT OF THE VOTING

The Creek Improvement By-Law Carried.

The Comique Gets a Sanction to Run by a Vote of the Citizens.

About all the available vote of the city was polled on Thursday. At the close the poll stood 52 for the comique and 48 against, which shows that the majority favor its existence, although under a scrutiny it might be the other wise.

Nearly every available vote on the by-law was polled, and resulted in 35 for and 13 against. As we have all along said there was a necessity for a flume, and it should be constructed; but when there was a legal way of doing it open to the council, they should have taken the legal way.

As we understand it, in this country municipalities have no power to alter the beds of streams, as this flume has altered the bed of this creek, without first getting a special act through the House permitting them to do it, and we believe this special act was never got.

We understand also that the law here, in another particular is the same as the law in other provinces, as indeed it should be, that all by-laws to raise money for public improvements must be carried before the public works are begun.

Though carried by the people this by-law is, therefore, to-day in opposition to the law in these two substantial respects. Of course, in defence of the council, it must be said, that the government last winter promised to make provision by legislation for the situation here; but as a promise is not an act, the case stands as if no promise had ever been made. As we have often said in all these matters, The REVIEW has nothing before it but the welfare of the place; and the people will yet come to the conclusion that the recommendation of all acts according to law is the most substantial way possible to eventually turn up in the best interests of all concerned. At the present lest we should be judged unfairly, we have no more to say in the matter, but hope the wisest council in the best interest of the place will prevail. We would like to see the will of the people made law in some way. Considering everything, however, it might be better to let the matter drop and settle into quietude. In any event, it is clear that a majority of the property holders are in favor of the taxation, whether legal or otherwise, and the will of the majority should always be respected.

We suppose there is not an alderman on the Board but will admit that things are not as they ought to be, or as they would like to see them, but the council had serious obstacles to grapple with from first to last, and stirring up the matter more will not help it. In fact if the matter was properly looked into, owing to the titles to property of many, it is a question if the place could ever have been incorporated at all; but we want incorporation and its advantages and retained by more unity of action. The terms of the present aldermen are about expiring, and some of them will not seek re-election. A better move now would be to accept from these aldermen the acknowledgments of mistakes they frankly make, look about for a new Board committed to more rigid economy in the running of the machine, and all unite as one man to pull together for the welfare of the place in the future.

The Arlington Difficulties.

It is reported that the difficulties in connection with the well known Arlington mine located on Springer creek, about seven miles from Slocan City will shortly be adjusted and that the property will be placed on the list of steady shippers. About a year ago a mortgage for $14,000 was placed on the property for the purpose of paying off indebtedness and to further develop the property. During last winter a force of men were kept at work but during the past summer only a sufficient number were retained to keep the mine clear of water. The miortgage which is said to be held by Ross Thompson of Rossland falls due some time this month, when it is hoped that satisfactory arrangements will be made for active operations to be resumed at the mine.

Capt. Adams Speaks of Midway.

Capt. Adams has returned from a trip through the Boundary country, Vancouver and other places where he has interests. He says the Boundary country is growing fast, and will turn out some large copper mines. He and some friends, as a private company, own the the townsite of Midway, which place he is confident must grow to be very large as five railways are making for it. It has mining, agriculture and ranching around, and the proposed smelters are most certain to be located there—on account of the railways centering there, the water supply, location of mines and for other reasons. The place has now about 400 people, and will grow very fast when the railway reaches there next spring. Greenwood nine miles away has some 600 population, but he thinks it will be no more than a good country village. All things considered, he thinks Sandon still the best camp of the country—it has more chances of success and fewer of failures.

THE SILVERTON EXHIBIT.

Silverton's Ores at the Fruit Fair Attract Attention.

W. S. Clark of Silverton has been unremitting in his efforts to get together a handsome exhibit from that part of the country, and returning visitors from the fair say that he has been more than successful. The exhibit is housed in a handsome cabinet with black shelves, the whole being lit up by electricity and the result is very pretty.

The exhibit contains specimens from the Bosun group, now owned by the Northwest Mining syndicate, the Emily Edith, the Alpha, the Grady group, the Cliff, the Wakefield, the Vancouver group, the Comstock and many other properties too numerous to mention.

The ore is generally galena, but there are numerous choice specimens of gold bearing rock, for Silverton no longer relies exclusively on its silver mines. After the fair is over the display will be taken to various eastern Canadian cities by the Canadian Pacific railway.

PERSONAL MENTION.

The Rev. Wood, of Kaslo, was in the city on Tuesday.

Mr. Harris was in Spokane, this week, on a business trip.

W. H. Brandon and wife are going to reside in Ontario this winter.

Rev. and Mrs. Powell, New Denver, made a short visit at the parsonage, this week.

Dr. Hendricks, part owner of the Last Chance, arrived in the city Thursday from San Francisco.

Dr. Gomm is back from his visit to California, and, we understand, has decided to settle down to practice his profession.

L. H. Bailey, representing Parke & Lacy Co., San Francisco, was in town this week rustling business in mining machinery, etc.

Here and There.

Rossland is skirmishing for hockey.

Brooklyn now has a school and a post office.

Geo. Richardson, from near Ottawa, was drowned at Brooklyn the other day.

Mr. Merryweather, of Rossland, had a sister drowned in the Mohegan accident.

The I. O. G. T., of Slocan City, are going to have their annual ball on the 28th.

Mrs. McPherson, aunt of the late Sir John A. Macdonald, died at Kingston the other day aged 94.

A man named Galligher robbed a store at Rossland last week and got six months for his trouble.

The O. K. Mining Co., in liquidation, is now in the supreme court at Rossland. It is not O. K. after all.

E. C. Senkler, of Nelson, has received the gold commissionership for the Yukon, and left for his duties.

The Quebec conference has adjourned, without results so far as the public know, to meet again in Washington.

The Silvertonian says every mine around Silverton is being worked this fall and winter. There are none stopped by litigation or otherwise?

The minority shareholders in the LeRoi have declared a dividend. If this rule was uniform, it would be better for the holders of some mines if the minorities ran them.

The body of Wm. Darlington who was killed in a slide near Three Forks last spring and temporarily interred at New Denver has been removed by his friends to Philadelphia.

The Mining World, of Butte, Mont., and the Rossland Miner are back scratching these times. They tell one another they are the greatest papers in the earth, and they both believe it. See what it is to have kodacks.

It is said that Mr. A. Carney is to receive the position of police mabistrate of Kaslo. Wait until he is confronted with the three B's—"The Brawling Board of Bribers." Mr. Carney ought to make a good man for that position.

The B. C. News, published at Kaslo, contains a "Provincial Directory," and in it it has, "Premier, Hon. J. H. Turner; Attorney-General, Hon. D. M. Eberts, etc. etc., with J. F. Hume member for the Riding. How very like old Rip Van Winkle.

The new officials of the K. & S. are: Col. Robt. Irving, president; Geo. F. Copeland, vice-president and treasurer; James Jeffries, secretery. A full board of directors was elected. Col. Irving has fully earned his spurs, as he is a most painstaking and efficient officer.

MINING BRIEFS.

With Scissors and Pen.

The Fisher Maiden, Four Mile, is to ship soon.

The Adams group will be be operated all winter.

The Essex group, near Silverton, has 9 miners at work.

The Bosun is making ready to ship 120 tons of ore a month.

The Condor, near Silverton, under Mr. Sandiford's bond, is proving a fine property.

THREE FORKS.—The ore shipments from here, for the week ending Oct. 14, were: Idaho, 39 tons.

The Essex group, near Silverton, is showing up better than expected. It averages 200 oz. silver and 60 per cent. lead.

It is thought the Last Chance will be second in this camp only to the Payne, after its shipping facilities are all ready.

They are looking for the machinery for the Last Chance tram every day, and hope to have it in operation within a month.

The Sligo Fraction, on Goat mountain, near New Denver, has presented a sample of sulphide that assayed 4,400 ozs of silver.

A force of men are now engaged at the junction of the Wakefield raw-hide trail and the Silverton wagon road, in building a commodious ore-house for this winter's shipments of Wakefield ore. Unless something unforseen should occur this property will ship about 75 carloads this winter.

The Isis, near the Lucky Jim, is one of the latest mines to report a rich strike. D. and J. Black, W. S. Drewry, H. Fletcher, G. Boetcher and R. Williams are the owners, and their find is three feet of very bright ore in a tunnel 165 feet in. The ore in that section is not of the finest grade, but is found in large bodies.

Jacob Kelsen is exhibiting some prophetic specimens of ore taken from his claim Baby Fraction adjoining the Noonday near Cody. The ledge is two feet wide, and certainly worse looking specimens have stood sentinel over what are now some of our best mines. Jacob says he located it while lying in bed sick. It is no doubt on the Noonday lead.

Prospects at the Noble Five are most cheering ogain, and the future is sure to prove it is a valuable property. In the development work of the past ten months, the miners have turned out a lot of ore that is now in the tunnels and pockets of various kinds. It is likely the mine will be shipping by the 1st of January, and will be permanent after commencement.

While building the Comstock wagon-road near that property, the graders cut a fine looking ledge, expesing good ore. This showing is on the Bonaparte claim the property of L. Leibert and John Gillis, who had just completed assessment work on the claim at another point on the ledge. This new find but adds value to what is already known as a valuable property.

The Miller Creek group, under the management of F. A. Davis, is making good progress and bids fair to be one of the prominent mines of the camp, soon, as well as a steady shipper. A second car of ore will be shipped seon. The old tunnel has been driven in 275 feet and gives a fine showing of clean ore 16 inches in width, with indications of improvement as work progresses.

OUR FUTURE.

The universal opinion of all who traverse the mining districts of British Columbia is, that there is no better point for the investor than Sandon. It is quite true it has not as fine a site for a town as some other places, and is not, therefore, as inviting a residential place as some other points, but this is not alone the question—it is money most people are striving for. There is one thing that counts largely for the credit of the place, and that, taken with its opportunities for investment, must tell in the end—that circumstance is its sanitary surroundings. While other places, many of them those nice residential points, are suffering with fevers after fevers and the like, contagious diseases are here altogether unknown. This fact arises principally from two circumstances—first our plentiful supply of the best water in the world, and secondly our natural drainage into a stream with a speed of many miles an hour. We, therefore, take in no germs of disease through our water supply, and inhale no infectious odors. Absence of contagious diseases must result from these two conditions.

This established fact, considered with our unparalleled field for profitable investments, should secure as large a population as the place can locate and centre a large amount of wealth.

The Americans must blame their own harsh way of dealing with their Indians for the troubles they so frequently have with them. Canada's methods stand out in strong contrast. Since Canada became settled, the country never saw bloodshed, the result of Indian treatment, excepting in the troubles stirred up by that half breed murderer Reil. The Canadian government seems to remember, and the American government to forget, that this whole country was once rightfully owned by the red men; and that even though they did not make a good use of their possessions, there was no just reason why they should be dispossessed of it by force. Under all circumstances, the Canadian government got possession of the country, district after district, by purchase, while the Americans almost invariably got possession of theirs by force of arms. This trouble in Minnesota the other day arose from an attempt of Americans to drive the Indians from one reservation to another against their will. A few months ago the Canadian government desired to get the Manitoba Indians to remove to a district farther north. Many of the red skins favored the change; but so long as there was a number of them who opposed it, the the idea was dropped for the present, and trouble averted. These unfortunate people are dying fast before the advance of civilization, and it will be but a few years before they are so thinned off in both countries, that their present holdings can be got with little difficulty, and both governments should await that time if peaceable arrangements cannot be made in the interval.

Some of our confreres are wrestling with the causes of the lack of growth of their respective towns, and in most cases they attribute it to lack of unanimity and unity of action among the people. The conclusion is, no doubt, to an extent at least correct. Good, healthy boards of trade, in a measure, overcome this, and tend largely to unify public sentiment on all local questions and matters that affect the growth of civic communities. A good, sensible, considerate municipal council, made up of representatives from all callings in a place contributes largely to unification also. When we say "considerate" in such a connection, we mean the consultation of the people on all matters of expenditure before these expenditures are made. People who have to pay taxes for all improvements naturally like to be consulted before the burdens are placed upon them. All the differences of Sandonites, such as they are, have resulted from the omission of this latter. Another fruitful source of dissatisfaction is the extension of improvements calculated to enhance the [illegible] The [illegible] of the properties of A., B. and [illegible]don has but little real [illegible] likely to come into the [illegible]on, we have but little to fear from this latter cause. We would like, however, to see a Board of Trade—a live institution, at whose meetings everything affecting the welfare of the place could be fully threshed out and present a front of unity when it comes to action.

A Slocan Celebrity.

Mr. J. C. Eaton, the well-known Slocan mining man, has left for San Francisco with Mrs. Eaton. Mr. Eaton recently sold his interest in the Whitewater mine to an English company, called the Whitewater Mines, limited, one-third being retained by his partners, Mr. John L. Retallack and Major J. M. Montgomery. Mr. Eaton is now opening up the Madison group, one mile above Sandon, which, he says, is only a prospect.

In telling of the prosperity that has come to that section he made a striking contrast between conditions when he first went there and those existing now.

"I have just come out of the Slocan," said he, "and the mines are producing more than ever. The advance in the price of silver has made mines pay to work which did not pay before. The silver-lead portion of the Kootenay country is producing a great deal more than the gold portion; in fact, more money will come out of that district than will come out of the Klondyke this year. The Payne is shipping $100,000 a month, having shipped a few dollars less than $600,000 in the first six months of this year. The Whitewater is putting in a new mill. On the Whitewater Deep Mr. R. E. Brown is putting in a new compressor plant, and is starting a large tunnel from the Kaslo creek level. I should think it would strike ore at a depth of 700 feet vertically below the present workings. The Last Chance is putting in a new tram, which strikes the railroad a mile and a half above Sandon, and has become a wonderful producer. Mr. Brown is building up the town of Whitewater, and has put up a house of sixteen rooms at the mine. When I went to see him the other day he asked me if I wanted to take a bath, saying he had two bath rooms. Why, I built that trail to Whitewater with my own hands when I had only one shirt."

WONDERFUL LAKE SUPERIOR.

Facts About the Largest Fresh Water Body in the World.

It is, to begin with, the largest body of fresh water in the world. It is water of wonderful purity which it holds, too; and some time—and not in the very distant future, either—the people who live in the large cities to the west and south will come to this lake to get the water for their homes. It will not be so remarkable an engineering feat to pipe the water of this lake, pure and sparkling and fresh from its cold depths, to those cities which are now struggling with the question of their water supply, and meeting all sorts of difficulties in their efforts to get water fit to drink.

All down through this thousand feet of blue there is a peculiar coldness. At the very most the temperature varies through winter and summer not more than six degrees. Winter and summer this great lake never changes to any appreciable extent, so that if you dip your finger tips in the blue surface on a day in July, or if you test it some day in early winter when you have been out on some belated, ice-mailed fishing smack, or when you have gone out to watch the fishermen spearing their supplies through the thick ice in mid-January, you will find but a trifle difference in the temperature. Away down at the bottom, too, there is but little variation in the temperature, for it stands at nearly 40 degrees Fahrenheit at the bottom, and varies from 40 to 46 degress, winter and summer, at the surface. The other lakes, though cold, are not in this respect like lake Superior.

The whole bottom of the lake is believed to be a strong rock basin, though it would seem that there must be great springs at the bottom to help keep up the enormous volume of water. From the north there is a large amount of water pouring into the lake year in and year out; the swift rushing, narrow-banked Nepigon and other streams furnishing no small part of the supply. The streams in a large measure make up the loss from the surface. One of the old lake captains, a bronzed kindly-faced man who has been for 35 years on the lakes, and had faced death many a time in the frightful storms which sometimes sweep across these beautiful bodies of water, told me, as we were passing along one day near the north shore of Superior, with the headlands and the inlets and glossy green bluffs of that most picturesque shore in full view, that the theory that the lake was slowly going down in size was true. He maintained that he could tell from certain landmarks along the shores, with which he is as familiar as he would be with the streets of his old Scottish birthplace, that the lake was slowly, very slowly, but surely receeding. However, it will be some centuries yet before there will be any appreciable lessening of the Great Lakes, so that we need not be concerned.

Strange as it may seem, the lake has tides, too, well defined tides, discovered in 1860. It is what is called a self-registering tide, with a regular flux and reflux wave, caused, so the scientific men say, by the sun and moon. The average rise and fall every 24 hours is one fourteen-hundreth of a foot; the maximum tide at new and full moon is one twenty-eighth-hundr- of a foot.

There is implanted in every man a love of life strong enough to make him tremble and kneel before death when he thoroughly recognizes its approach. The trouble with men is that they do not recognize death unless it comes in some violent or rapid form. Consumption kills more men than wars, famines, plagues and accidents, but its approach is insidious, and men do not realize that they are in its clutch. While consumption is a germ disease, the bacilli will not invade sound and healthy lungs. The lungs must first be in a diseased condition.

First a man feels a little out of sorts. Probably he is overworked and has given too little time to eating, sleeping and resting. His appetite falls off. His digestion gets out of order and his blood does not receive the proper amount of life-giving nutriment. The liver becomes torpid and the blood is filled with impurities. These are pumped into every organ of the body, building up unhealthy, half-dead tissues. The most harm is done at the weakest spot, and most frequently that spot is in the lungs. A slight cold leads to inflammation, the bacilli invade the lungs and we have a case of consumption.

Ninety-eight per cent. of all cases of consumption are cured by Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is the great blood-maker and flesh-builder. It restores the lost appetite, makes the digestion perfect, invigorates the liver, purifies the blood, builds new and healthy flesh and drives out all impurities and disease germs. It cures weak lungs, spitting of blood, obstinate coughs and kindred ailments. No honest druggist will recommend a substitute.

Mrs. Ursula Dunham, of Sistersville, Tyler Co., W. Va., writes: "I had a pain in my side all the time, had but little appetite and grew very thin. The 'Golden Medical Discovery' promptly cured the pain, restored my appetite and increased my weight."

Died in the Mountains.

Ernest Terry who went out in the mountains about a month ago, with the intention of trapping for the winter, died at his cabin in the Macaroni basin on Wednesday of last week. Mr. Terry built a cabin before being taken sick on White Grouse mountain, and in it he was found in a helpless condition by Mr. Hooker, who happened to be passing that way and called at the cabin. Alex. Asselin was left to attend to Mr. Terry while Hooker came to Nelson for help. On Mr. Hooker's return with medicine, Mr. Terry was removed on a stretcher to Macaroni basin where he died next day. The remains were given decent burial and the place of interment was marked with a cross giving the name of deceased and date of his death.

A Big Output.

The Canadian geological survey places the total value of the mineral output for the Dominion last year at $28,000,000, an increase of $6,000,000 over the previous year. The output is divided as follows among the principal mining provinces: British Columbia, $10,455,268; Nova Scotia, $6,000000; Ontario, $5,000,000; Quebec, $2,063,266; Northwest Territories and Yukon, $3,600,000.

LASSIE WI' THE GOLDEN LOCKS.

Lassie wi' the golden locks,
Bonnie lassie, artless lassie,
Wilt thou wi' me tent the flocks?
Wilt thou be my dearie, O?

Now nature cleeds the flowery lea,
And a' is young and gay like thee,
Oh, wilt thou share its joys wi' me
And say thou'lt be my dearie, O?

And when the welcome simmer shower
Has cheered ilk drooping little flower,
We'll to the breathing woodbine bower
At sultry noon, my dearie, O!

When Cynthia lights wi' silver ray
The weary shearer's hameward way,
Through yellow, waving fields we'll stray
And talk o' love, my dearie, O!

And when the howling wintry blast
Disturbs my lassie's midnight rest,
Enclasped to my faithful breast
I'll comfort thee, my dearie, O!

Lassie wi' the golden locks,
Bonnie lassie, artless lassie;
Wilt thou wi' me tent the flocks?
Wilt thou be my dearie, O?

GRIS LAPIN.

I was wandering, gun in hand, in the forest when I saw a stone cross. I had been so long away from the country that this cross was new to me. The gossip of the little hamlet on the skirt of the woods was Taupet, who had once kept the village cafe and was the barber of the country, but he was too old now to exercise either calling. I knew Taupet could tell me all about that cross. Meeting him next day, he gave me with much detail the story of Gris Lapin:

They called the man Gris Lapin because of his beard, which was thick and gray, and he had prominent teeth—and did monsieur notice the prominent teeth of M. de Blenville, the master of the hounds? He was not of this country, this Gris Lapin, but from Brittany, and was once valet de chiens to the Counte de Blenville—with his hounds and his other distinctions. The count had to sell his estate, and he went in hiding, nobody knew where. As for Gris Lapin, he would not take another place. He loved his freedom and to live after his own pleasure, and he set up as a woodcutter, a business at which he was very expert—too expert perhaps, for the forest keepers, who suspected him of felling more wood than he paid for, but for a long time they could prove nothing against him.

He would often come to my little cafe, and we became great friends. He told me he had a wife in Brittany and a son there named Eustase, and that in the neighborhood lived Mlle. Agnes, the Count de Blenville's daughter, who was being cared for by her aunt. Sometimes Gris Lapin would quit the forest and go to Brittany.

It was Gris Lapin who brought us the news of all this, and soon we heard how the chateau was to be newly furnished and furbished up and the count's old debts paid off, and presently we heard of nothing but M. de Blenville and Mme. la Comtesse. And the new housekeeper at the chateau was no other than the wife of Gris Lapin, and their son, the little Eustase, was running about the place, a fine playfellow for Mlle. Agnes, who had now come back to her father's house. The count had married a rich wife, but it turned out that the new countess had no love for her stepdaughter. All the lady thought of was to get rid of Mlle. Agnes—by marrying her off to some rich man. Eustase—that was Gris Lapin's boy—was going to school, and was to be brought up to be a priest. He studied Latin and all that kind of thing. Gris Lapin did not like the idea of the boy becoming a priest. "Make him a soldier," said he. But Gris Lapin's wife and her mistress insisted that Eustase showed a disposition to be a cure, and it was arranged so that he was shipped to the seminary. The fact is that Gris Lapin absorbed a great deal of brandy and was not exactly a reputable sort of a father.

Now, as ill luck would have it, when Eustase came home from his vacation, madame had gone to her own estate in Brittany, and the count had taken the opportunity to bring home his daughter from the convent to give her pleasure, and our young monsieur must needs become enamored of this Mlle. Agnes! You see, Eustase had taken no vows, and so, when it was found out that the boy and the girl cared for one another, there was a precious row, and mademoiselle was packed off to a convent and the lad to the seminary.

Then the war with the Prussians took place, and M. le Comte went into service, and after awhile the Germans were here in force, and a Prussian general had his headquarters at the chateau.

What was Gris Lapin doing? Cutting wood for the Prussians and earning a good bit of money. The fact is, my own little place of entertainment was doing a deal of business. Sometimes I said to Gris Lapin: "Take care, the count may hold you responsible some day for all the wood you are cutting. Watch out, the count may have somebody looking to his interests."

Well, one day a man came into my place—there were ever so many Prussian soldiers there—and he was dressed like a peasant, with his bill hook hanging at his girdle, an honest woodman, as it would seem. Some of the soldiers laughed and made faces at him and called him Herr Crapaud. But he did not seem to mind. A quiet, middle aged man, his resemblance to Gris Lapin struck me at once, only he was younger in the face, though his hair looked grayish. Then suddenly he said, "M. Taupet, will you cut my hair?" "Walk into my back room," said I. You see, these Prussians dreaded spies and were very suspicious. No sooner was he seated in my barber's chair than I noticed that his hair was powdered, so as to give him an older look. Says he at once: "I am Eustase. Find me some way of getting into the chateau. I cannot ask my father to help me. He must not know I am here. I saw him as I came here. My father was drunk and was fraternizing with our enemies."

Then I was sure the Germans were watching us. Now, a sudden inspiration seized me, and I said aloud: "Yes, they buy chickens at the chateau, and if you had any pigeons you could sell them. Any kind of poultry is in demand." Then I noticed that Eustase started. "Pere Taupet," said he in a low voice, "that guess about pigeons was a dangerously good one. Look!" And opening the bosom of his blouse, he showed me a white carrier pigeon there, one of the true Antwerp breed.

"But tell me about the chateau and Mlle. Agnes!" he asked.

I gave him the last news. "They are all well," I said. Then he told me that he was no longer a seminarist, but had taken up arms in defense of France; that he had been promised his epaulets if he would undertake a dangerous service, and it was to find out the exact force of Prussians in this province. That he had three pigeons and that two of them had been loosed, and the third, with the final news—the most important—was to be sent to the French headquarters.

I managed somehow that Eustase had entrance to the chateau, and you may fancy what joy there was when la mere and the pretty Agnes found out who was the elderly pigeon merchant who had brought the birds for the kitchen. Such information as Eustase obtained he wrote and put in a quill and attached it to the pigeon, and I think mademoiselle herself carried it to the upper window of the chateau and let it fly, and the bird winged her way right over the forest. And now Eustase said to Agnes, "You have won for me the cross and my epaulets." But just then they heard a shot.

That evening Gris Lapin came to my place and I told him about his son and he could hardly believe me. And as we were talking together in a low voice we heard the sound of a military party—tramp, tramp, tramp—and behold there came along at the double an armed guard of Prussians with a prisoner in the middle of them, his hands tied behind him, as pale as death, with a strange glazed look in the eyes. "That is a poor fellow whom they have caught sending messages to our army by a carrier pigeon, heaven bless him," somebody said. And at that Gris Lapin staggered forward and threw himself among the soldiers with a loud cry, while the prisoner turned his head. "Mon pere," he cried, springing toward him as well as he could, but the soldiers urged him along with their bayonets and drove away Gris Lapin with blows, and he fell backward among us more dead than alive.

It was terrible! The young man was to be shot. The countess and Mlle. Agnes were to be sent out of France. The pigeon which had been shot had told the whole story. That evening Gris Lapin came to see me. I tried to comfort him, but he bade me hold my tongue, for that I knew nothing about the matter. "That might be," I said, "but I know this much—that if I knew the traitor who had betrayed him I would do my best to strangle him with these two hands of mine." At this Gris Lapin dashed at me, tearing the wrapper from his brawny throat. "Do you say so? Then strangle me, for I am the traitor!"

He had shot the pigeon and had taken it to the Prussians and sold it for 50 francs with the little burden it carried. "Yes, I have sold my son's life," he groaned. "Well, I am going away—I am going to take charge of mademoiselle and my wife. They need never know," looking at me fiercely. "No," I said, "they need never know—nor anybody else, for that matter. I should not betray you." "You will not betray me," repeated Gris Lapin, "but you will not touch hands upon that." "No," I said, drawing back, "I will not." At that his mood changed and he flung himself into the operating chair and bade me light my lamp and shave his beard. In a new country he would be a new man.

And indeed he looked a new man with his gray beard taken off and his hair shortened—a much younger man, for his hair was still black, or only speckled with gray. When I had finished, he muffled up his face, saying with a bitter laugh that it would not do to take a chill. "And now," he said, "I am promised ten minutes with my son. It will be a pleasant interview, don't you think?" with a hollow laugh that made my blood run cold. "And before daylight tomorrow," he continued, "I shall be far away from here and we shall never meet again. Will you not touch hands?" "My friend," I said, "may heaven forgive you, but I cannot take your hand." And Gris Lapin turned away and was lost to sight in the darkness.

I slept soundly enough that night, for whatever people's troubles may be one must work and work brings the need of repose, but just before daybreak I was aroused by the soldiers who were billeted upon me turning out. I got up to see what was the matter, when a sergeant, catching sight of me, made signs to me in a rough, authoritative way to take up a spade and follow him. I turned sick at what was going to happen, but these were people not be trifled with, and I marched away to the forest with the rest.

It was in this little clearing, monsieur, where the firing party was drawn up, with one solitary figure stripped to his shirt standing before them. I flung myself down on the ground and buried my face in the moss, and the volley rang out loud and clear. And then the firing party marched off, and I was left with the sergeant, who was carelessly pacing up and down, and who motioned to me to dig the grave. But first I went up to the body to close the eyes that were staring wildly, with, I fancy, some little consciousness still left in them. But the face was quite different from what I expected—with the marks of my own razor upon it, and a gash that I made in my agitation the night before! It was the face of Gris Lapin. Ah, how I pressed his hand, and I fancied that the numbed fingers feebly returned the pressure! His crime was explated he might rest in peace. And, ma foi, I should like to lie here myself, with the sound of the ax in the distance and the wood pigeons cooing. But that is all folly, for when we are dead, what matters?

Mind, I do not believe for a moment that the young man thought that he had left his father to die. He could not think it possible that they should shoot one man for another. Nor would they have done so but for the ruse of Gris Lapin in having his well known beard taken off. But, anyhow, the young man escaped, and the guard did not recognize the change. And perhaps he does not know to this day, for when the war was over none could say what had become of Gris Lapin. And I also held my peace, for I thought that such would be the wish of my old comrade.

But M. Eustase got his epaulets, after all, and in the end le comte gave his permission that he should marry Mlle. Agnes. And madame, who was at first very angry, was afterward reconciled, and when she died—she left the bulk of her fortune to the young couple. And so the little Eustase is now M. de Blenville and hunts the forest like a grand seigneur, but some of us remember that, after all, he is the son of Gris Lapin.—All the Year Round.

Before the Table.

Archbishop Magee was once present at a full dress debate on the eastward position, when doubts were expressed as to the exact meaning of the words "before the table." After a speech or two Dr. Magee seized a piece of paper and wrote: "As to the phrase, 'The piper that played before Moses,' doubts have arisen. Some believe its meaning to be that the piper played before Moses—that is, at a period anterior to his birth. Others hold that the piper played before Moses in the sense of preceding the great lawgiver when he danced; while others teach that the piper played (coram Mose) before or in the presence of Moses when the son of Amran dined. All these are wrong. The phrase is to be understood as implying that the piper played at the north end of Moses, looking south." The document was handed up to Archbishop Tait, who looked grave.—San Francisco Argonaut.

THE FIGHT WAS A DRAW.

A Large Crowd to See the Burley-Smith Contest.

Rossland, Oct. 17—The ten round contest between Nick Burley and Coolgardie Smith took place this evening at the International music hall. Burley was seconded by Cox Whaley and Jack McArthur, and Coolgardie Smith by Lewis. Tom Hall was referee and Max Carter time keeper.

Nick Burley had the advantage in height, weight and reach, and is, moreover, a clever boxer with considerable ring experience, having boxed with such men as Sharkey, and other stars in the Pacific coast fistic firmament. Ernest Smith, commonly known as "Coolgardie," is a mining man from Australia, where he won the middle-weight amature championship.

He won a fight in Rossland last December, and more recently vanquished the champion of the North West Territories at Dawson City.

Despite the odds against him there were many who fancied Coolgardie's chances, remembering the cleverness and dash shown in previous contests. Comparatively little money changed hands over the result, for, while there was plenty of money to say that Smith would last the 10 rounds, there were not many who backed him right out for any amount of money.

The fight was not a very exciting one, as Smith, realizing in the first round that he could not win, adopted falling tactics from the outset. He fell several times in each round, taking his full nine seconds on each occasion. He clinched whenever an opportunity showed itself, and generally availed himself to the utmost of all the resources of ring generalship. Notwithstanding all his efforts, however, he was badly punished, and his friends say, broke a rib towards the end of the fight, but he was still on his feet when the gong sounded at the end of the tenth round, so the contest was declared a draw.

The hall was packed to its utmost capacity, and though the mill was disappointing in a sense, it was agreed on all sides the contest was a genuine one.

MANY LIVES LOST.

Rumored That There Has Been Great Loss of Life.

London, Oct 15.—The Atlantic transport company's steamer Mohegan, formerly the Cleopatra, of the Wilson and Furness Leyland line, which left London for New York yesterday with 50 passengers and a crew of 150, is ashore off the Lizard, between the Manacles and the Lowlands. It is rumored that there has been a great loss of life, a coast guard messenger reports that the passengers are "drowning like rats." Another report says that bodies are washing ashore, one being that of a lady with her legs severed and lashed to a plank. Particulars as to the disaster are difficult to obtain. It appears that when the Mohegan struck, a gale was blowing and the sea was running high. Life boats put off from the Lizard and from Falmouth.

London, Oct. 16.—According to a dispatch just received from Falmouth out of the 200 persons constituting passengers and crew of the Mohegan, only 31 have been saved.

This intelligence was forwarded from the coast by telephone to Falmouth.

Later—A life boat has landed 30 of the Mohegan's passengers and returned for more. One lady died after she was brought ashore.

Several were drowned, it is reported on the passage of the life boat to shore. Another life boat saved six persons. The coast at that point is dangerous and has been the scene of numerous wrecks. A later dispatch from Falmouth says the Mohegan foundered and was probably blown ashore by the heavy east wind after her machinery was disabled. All the Falmouth tugs went out but none were able to approach the vessel.

Later reports state that 116 have been known to have been saved so far.

Slocan City Ore Exhibit.

Daniel Hanlon who has charge of the Slocan City exhibit at the Spokane fruit fair, has evidently done good work for the district. The following from the Review show how Mr. Hanlon has been working:

"Manager Hanlon of the Slocan City display expressed himself as pleased with the result of his exhibition. Mr. Hanlon is a typical prospector and miner who has lived for years in the hills and has prospected in almost every district in the northwest. He has faithfully attended to the work in hand at the fruit fair and has succeeded in interesting many people in the rich prospects surrounding this camp. It has been an unselfish work on the part of Mr. Hanlon. He has not a single sample from his own properties.

TOBACCO HEART.

HAVE you been smoking a good deal lately, and feel an occasional twinge of pain round your heart. Are you short of breath, nerves unhinged, sensation of pins and needles going through your arm and fingers? Better take a box or two of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and get cured before things become too serious. Here's what Mr. John James, of Caledonia, Ont., has to say about them: "I have had serious heart trouble for four years, caused by excessive use of tobacco. At times my heart would beat very rapidly and then seemed to stop beating only to commence again with unnatural rapidity. "This unhealthy action of my heart caused shortness of breath, weakness and debility. I tried many medicines and spent a great deal of money but could not get any help.

Last November, however, I read of a man, afflicted like myself, being cured by Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I went to Roper's drug store and bought a box. When I had finished taking it I was so much better I bought another box and this completed the cure. My heart has not bothered me since, and I strongly recommend all sufferers from heart and nerve trouble, caused by excessive use of tobacco, to give Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills a fair and faithful trial."

Rosebery Townsite.

The many advantages enjoyed by Rosebery put before the public, CLAIMED WITHOUT OPPOSITION.

Its Advantages as a Distributing Center.

Rosebery is the only town in Kootenay having both railroad and steamboat connection that can ship goods daily to ten different towns, whereby the shipper can see his wares leave his hands and that they will be received by the consignee within two hours.

Its Advantages as a Railroad Center.

Rosebery enjoys the position of king of the funnell as it were, for the railroad business of the whole of the Kootenays. All ore and matter for shipment from Nelson, Trail Creek and the Slocan must, and is now passing out this way to the main line of the C. P. R., as well as all goods coming in from Revelstoke to the Kootenay country.

NOTE. To substantiate this: The C. P. R. are now putting in track weigh scales at Rosebery, the first and only scales that has been put in on any of the C. P. R. branches in Kootenay—which goes to show the importance of this point by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company's actions.

Its Advantages as a Steamboat Point.

Rosebery claims, without opposition, of being the only junction on the lake, unlike Slocan City, where you can step off the steamer to a waiting train and continue your journey. You can take either a north or south train at this terminus; consequently Rosebery is the best transient town in the race. Nervertheless we claim Slocan City second in importance, and would say watch the head and foot of Slocan Lake, viz.—

ROSEBERY AND SLOCAN CITY.

Its Advantages as a Manufacturing Center.

As a manufacturing center Rosebery claims to have demonstrated the fact that after the careful observation of the Denver (Colorado) Ore Coy's manager, as the natural advantages of all points in Kootenay for the treatment of ores the cheapest, Rosebery was selected, and they now are erecting works, with a capacity of 250 tons per day, which will be in operation within 90 days; and it is their intention to pay out monthly in the vicinity of $100,000. I might also add Rosebery has the largest water power from Wilson river flowing into Slocan Lake.

AS TO CLIMATE.

Rosebery claims the mildest climate on Slocan Lake, from its admirable southern exposure and absolute shelter from the north; snow always leaves the place about the 15th of March.

AS A TOWNSITE.

As a townsite, Rosebery is without a peer. It is possessed of all the flat land available at the mouth of the Wilson river leading to the valley—mining region—consequently there is no danger of any contagion. The title is a Crown Grant and is perfect. All purchasers of lots are safe in this respect. The only safe speculative townsite in the Slocan is Rosebery.

Why should I say the only safe speculative townsite in the Slocan? Because Rosebery business lots to-day are only $150 to $200 each and are bound to increase rapidly this summer. These figures can, and will, double before long. The time to buy is now. Don't wait till they are from $700 to $1,000, as you did in Slocan City last May, go in on the ground floor and make a few dollars in speculation; if you want to invest go to Vancouver or Winnipeg; if you want to speculate and and clean up money go quick to Rosebery before lots are out of sight.

What's Wanted in Rosebery.

We want a restaurant.
We want a good hotel right away.
We want a first-class general store.
We want a butcher shop.

Anyone looking for an opening spy out this place at once.

Maps and price-lists on application; prices run from $75 to $200.

TERMS: One-third cash, balance 3 and 6 months. For actual builders special terms can be arranged for a few lots by applying to MOUNTAIN ECHOES.

The supply of pack horses is said to be scarcely equal to the demand.

The rain and snow have let up, and we are now enjoying very fine weather.

Van Horne's party shot a deer off the boat near Silverton, on their trip last week.

All will regret to hear that John L. Retallack is dangerously of typhoid fever in Spokane.

Brother Young is out with the Mining Standard, at Nelson. We hope he will realize his fondest dreams.

Mr. McMartin is having that vacant lot side of his barber shop built up. The Palace saloon will occupy a part of it.

Stop that Cough! Take warning. It may lead to consumption. A 25c. bottle of Shiloh's Cure may save your life. Sold at McQueen's Drug Store.

All of the old buildings that have stood in the way of the C. P. R. depot grounds are being removed, and the grounds will soon be put into good business form.

Karl's Clover Root Tea, for constipation it's the best, and if after using it you don't say so, return the package and get your money. Sold at McQueen's Drug Store.

Subscription lists are being circulated for stock in the proposed ice rink and gymnasium. The project is meeting with general favor, and in a few days the final results will be known.

Mr. Lucas, of Kaslo, Conservative organizer for the province, is in the city and will hold a meeting this Saturday evening at eight o'cloak for the purpose of organizing the party in this city.

Shiloh's Consumption Cure cures where others fail. It is the leading Cough Cure, and no home should be without it. Pleasant to take and goes right to the spot. Sold at McQueen's Drug Store.

In a short time the electors will be skirmishing for a mayor and aldermen for next year, as we understand some of the present incumbents will not take the offices again, and the seats of others might be contested.

With the extension of their store premises, Hunter Bros., have now a most commodious, cheerful, well appointed store premises, and an office as good as some counting houses. This is one of the evidences of prosperity with that concern.

The C. P. R. passenger train steamed into the new depot for the first time on Tuesday evening. Of course the usual number of spectators was largely augmented to suit the occasion. The coaches will hereafter remain in front of the depot during the night.

Our band instruments arrived Thursday evening and were shown in the window of I. Crawford's store. They are as fine a lot as the country produces, and we may now expect to hear the greenhorns of the band "whooping it up" in great style in all parts of the city.

Any thieves Sandon may have are evidently not church goers. Sunday week by some means or other the money was not taken out of one of the collection plates of one of the churches, and it remained there until the next Sunday, though the doors were open all the week. Some chap missed a haul as good as a gold brick.

A Salvation Army lass from Nelson spent some days this week in the city collecting. It may be these people do some good, but we cannot say their missionary methods are most commendable. They know well we have two resident clergymen here, both popular, and that in supporting them and their work the people have their hands full without considering the claims of outsiders.

J. Fred Hume, minister of mines, has interpreted section 34 of the Mineral Act. Mr. Hume gives notice that the phrase, "a free miner or company of free miners shall be allowed to perform on any one or more of such claims all the work required to entitle him or them to a certificate for work for each claim so held by him or them," shall be construed as not applicable to a mineral claim for which a crown grant has been issued.

A lively skirmish, second only to Kitchener's brilliant victory over the Dervishes in the Soudan, took place at a certain house in town this week. It seems a wood rat had been disturbing the slumbers of the inmates of that house and a trap was set to which the nightly marauder fell a victim. The marshalling and arming of forces to undo the villain was the work of a moment, and, contrary to all precedent, the woman led the procession. After a sharp struggle the animal was despatched without even the accompaniment of a femenine shriek, and the enemy was no "poor, meek church mouse" either.

Durward Lely, who came in on Tuesday evening's train on his way to Kaslo, was asked about 7 o'clock by his many admirers in the place to consent, even at that late hour, to give an impromptu entertainment. Bills were circulated in an hour, and the entertainment opened at 9. In all some $85 was taken at the door, $40 of which he very generously donated to the Presbyterian church, Rev. Cleland having been instrumental in perfecting arrangements. Every listener was more than delighted with Mr. Lely's singing—his rich, clear, senorus tenor voice captivated all present, as it does wherever he goes. Mrs. Lely accompanied on the piano to excellent advantage.

Mr. Dreyer, who went with Hoffman and party to the Klondyke last winter, in which expedition Hoffman lost his life, has returned to Sandon; and, it is needless to say, he wants no more of the Klondyke. He relates as a thrilling incident that in which his comrade was drowned, and many others but little less so. He says there is mineral there, but securing it is a mere matter of accident, as there is no rule by which it can be discovered; and the hardships of going there, living while there, and returning, are most difficult of description. He advises any man who has a job here to stay here, and he who has none to place himself where he can collect and stay with it [illegible] success. He says [illegible] difficulties of the Klondyke have been told.

Ore packing by mule train will soon discontinue, awaiting the rawhiding.

There are now over 40 pupils attending our public school, which is proof that the place is entitled to the second teacher according to law.

Catarrh cured. A clear head and sweet breath secured with Shiloh's Catarrh Remedy. We sell six bottles for $2 and guarantee an absolute cure. Sold at McQueen's Drug Store.

For Constipation take Karl's Clover Root Tea, the great Blood Purifier. Cures Headache, Nervousness, Eruptions on the skin, and makes the head clear as a bell. Sold at McQueen's Drug Store.

"Yahcob" Kelsen has a life size lithograph of a Highland soldier in full war costume hung up in his shop, and he says "It is fun to see some of them old Scotchmen come in when they are half shot and dance around it for hours."

After all the fuss Rossland has shipped but 83,000 tons of ore from the 1st January to the 15th of October at a gross value of about $30 at ton, or $2,490,000. During the same period Sandon alone has shipped well onto 20,000 tons at an average of $125 per ton or $2,500,000. The shipments of Sandon this year in value will be quite equal to those of Rossland, and those of the Slocan together will nearly double those of Rossland, and yet the Rossland Miner is anxious to have the world believe Rossland is the whole of British Columbia, from a mining point of view at least. For money and labor expended there are $300 to be made in a mine in the Slocan to $100 in a mine at Rossland. We have no desire to decry the value of the Rossland mines, but we like to read the truth in print.

SCROFULA.

"My little boy, aged 7 years and 15 months, was a victim of Scrofula on the face, which all the doctors said was incurable. To tell the truth he was so bad that I could not bear to look at him. At last I tried a bottle of Burdock Blood Bitters, and before it was half used he was gaining, and by the time he had three bottles used he was completely cured. I cannot say too much in recommendation of B.B.B. to all who suffer as he did." JOSEPH P. LABELLE, Manitwake P.O., Que.

There can be no question about it. Burdock Blood Bitters has no equal for the cure of Sores and Ulcers of the most chronic and malignant nature. Through its powerful blood purifying properties, it gets at the source of disease and completely eradicates it from the system.
