Favors Deep Mining

G. O. Buchanan, Dominion commissioner of lead bounty; for many years president of the Associated Boards of Trade of Eastern British Columbia, is of the opinion that the new deep mining movement recently inaugurated throughout the Kootenays, was all that was required to put the district in the front rank of metal producers. Said he:

"One of the most significant examples of the result of deep and scientific mining is furnished by the Rambler-Cariboo, which was worked from the top of the hill until it could not be worked in that way any longer. The directors issued 75,000 shares of new stock and ran a tunnel nearly a mile long. Now they have all kinds of ore and their stock has risen to four times the price it commanded 18 months ago.

"The Standard mine at Silverton, after 10 years of development work, mostly done near the surface, suddenly stands revealed as one of the big silver-lead mines of the world. The White Water Deep, under the management of J. L. Retallack, tells a similar story. In the Rossland camp deep mining has made the War Eagle a greater producer than ever before in its history, and has enabled the Canadian Consalidated company's smelter at Trail to be operated at larger capacity than ever.

"The Canadian Consolidated company also is responsible for the deep development of the St. Eugene mine at Moyie, which has shipped from 2000 to 3000 tons per month, running 60 per cent in lead. The same company has made the Sullivan mine in East Kootenay an equally large producer of tonnage, while it has redeemed the Richmond-Eureka, Snow Shoe, No. 7, and Mollie Gibson from the class of unprofitable properties.

"Every miner knows that the Payne, Ivanhoe, Slocan Star and several other mines, which have been idle of late years, are far from being exhausted, and that their deep development will yield results similar to those achieved in the instances I have mentioned."

Morris-Lawlor

At the Catholic church just after the 8 o'clock mass on Easter Monday the marriage of Mrs. Lawlor and Patrick Morris was solemnized by Rev. Father John. H. Jackson and Miss Stiner were the groomsman and bridesmaid respectively. Solos were sung by H. Jackson and Wm. Kennedy. The wedding breakfast was served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Hutt, and some fourteen guests were present. Mr. and Mrs. Morris will make their home in Moyie for the present, but will later move to their farm in Alberta. Both are well and favorably known in this part of East Kootenay. The Leader extend congratulations.

Left for the East

J. S. MacEachern and family left yesterday for Charlottetown, P. E. I., where they will make their home in future. Mr. MacEachern was for several years associated in business in Moyie with A. P. Macdonald under the firm name of MacEachern & Macdonald. Both Mr. and Mrs. MacEachern leave a host of friends in Moyie.

Hurry Up

She was a beautiful statuesque blonde who had changed her residence from New York to Philadelphia and secured a position as stenographer in the office of a staid, dignified citizen of good old Quaker descent. On the morning of her first appearance she went straight to the desk of the boss. "I presume," she remarked, "that you begin the day over here the same as they do in New York?" "Oh, yes," replied the boss, without glancing from the letter he was reading. "Well hurry up and kiss me, then," was the startling rejoiner, "I want to get to work."

The C. P. R. is again utilizing the tailings from the St. Eugene concentrator. For the past two summers it has been purchasing the crushed rock to cover the roadbed between here and Kootenay Landing. It is splendid ballast, stops the growth of weeds on the grade and it is also successful as a means of laying the dust. Three or four cars a day are loaded from an overhead flume specially built for the purpose. The services of only one man are required to attend to the loading.

Cured in Beamsville, Ont.

"After a long experience with different pain remedies, I am convinced that none are equal to Nerviline. I was taken with a cold in my chest, which later developed into a sort of chronic bronchitis. Every time I coughed it seemed to rack and tear my whole chest. I was also subject to a great stiffness in my joints, especially about the knees and shoulders, and experienced much pain in my muscles. To cure my chest troubles I first rubbed on Nerviline copiously for two days, and then put a Nerviline Porous Plaster over the sore region. I got quick relief. Rubbing the sore muscles and aching joints with Nerviline did more than all other treatments combined. By the aid of Nerviline and those wonderful Nerviline Porous Plasters, almost any ache, and certainly any kind of inflammatory cold can be cured."

JUST THREE AND SMOKES BLACK CIGARS

BY what curious freak of nature is a youngster of three able to smoke cigars, lay blaze cigars and enjoy them as much as if he were eating delicious chocolate? That is the question which is puzzling doctors just now in regard to Edward Herber, the three-year-old son of a fisherman who lives near Windsor, Nova Scotia.

"Young Ted is a 'corker,'" says his father. "He started his smoking habit when a few months ago by taking a puff on the sly at my pipe, and he seemed to enjoy it too, although I smoke plug tobacco of the strongest kind. Didn't it trouble him? Not a bit, and, although we tried to break him of the habit by punishing him, he would have his smoke if he got half a chance. And when his mother took him with her to the hotel where she worked, he would purloin any pipes he saw lying about, take them into a dark corner, and smoke them.

"We made a final effort to cure him by giving him a big black cigar, but, bless your heart, it didn't make the slightest difference, so we have given up trying to cure him as a bad job. Now we let him have a cigar when he wants one, and it is really a comical sight to see him sitting in an armchair with his arms crossed and a big weed crowding in his mouth, puffing at it for all he is worth and listening to the conversation.

"Edward is only a baby in size, action, and thought, but to him a big black cigar has more attractions than a candy red cart. He will lay aside his toys at any time of the day to smoke, and the strength of that smoke has no terrors for that infantile stomach. Color and shape cut a figure, however, as Edward is partial to cigars with a bright colored band.

"The doctors say that the cigars Edward smokes are strong enough to upset a full grown man, but they don't seem to trouble Edward, who is very much alive and kicking, and whose greatest punishment is to have his cigar taken away from him when he has been naughty."

Storyettes

A YOUNG member of a certain family had the measles and the family was quarantined. One of the little girls spoke from an open window to a neighbor inquiring into the state of her health.

"No, 'm," she said; "I haven't got 'em yet, but I expect to have 'em day after to-morrow."

THIS story is told about Queen Alexandra:

The Guards' Band was playing on the terrace at Windsor Castle during luncheon and the Queen was so pleased with a lively march that she sent a maid of honor to inquire what it was.

The maid of honor blushed deeply as she answered, on her return:

"'One Where the Booze is Cheaper,' your Majesty."

AN Irishman was once serving in a regiment in India. Not liking the climate, Pat tried to evolve a trick by which he could get home. Accordingly he went to the doctor and told him his eyesight was bad. The doctor looked at him for a while and then said:

"How can you prove to me that your eyesight is bad?"

Pat looked about the room and at last said: "Well, doctor, you see that nail on the wall?"

"Yes," replied the doctor.

"Well, then," replied Pat, "I can't."

Cross of Honor

The Land of the Blue Ribbon

America's leadership in the march of progress has now become something more than a mere patriotic belief.

It has not only been conceded, but has been proclaimed in trumpet tones by a congress of the nations of the world.

National pre-eminence has found equal expression and appreciation in international preference for

Pabst Blue Ribbon

The Beer of Quality

Sales both at home and abroad have indicated this preference before; but today it stands conclusively proven by the cross of honor and medals illustrated on this page—trophies of a competition which marks an epoch in the history of brewing.

By these decorations, and by the diploma which accompanied them, the International Pure Food and Hygienic Exposition at Antwerp declares Pabst Blue Ribbon to be absolutely the finest of the world's brews—the peer of all beers in purity, nutritive properties and general excellence.

The true significance of this award lies not alone in the fact that famous American and European beers were entered in the competition; but that Pabst Blue Ribbon was the only beer that successfully withstood all the prescribed tests.

Other beers deteriorated; they changed color; or lost their taste. Pabst Blue Ribbon alone showed a perfect score, and thus proved itself veritably the one real "Beer of Quality."

This award is no surprise to those who know Pabst; but it is worth pondering by those who drink other beers, or none.

The perfection of Pabst Blue Ribbon is the logical result of a lifetime devoted to the attainment of perfection in brewing.

Pabst Blue Ribbon is a nutritious beer because it contains all of the food portion of the barley grain—a result of the Pabst eight day natural malting process.

Pabst Blue Ribbon Beer is an invigorating beer because it contains the tonic properties of the choicest hops.

Pabst Blue Ribbon is a pure beer because it is made under perfect conditions of care and cleanliness.

Pabst Blue Ribbon is the ideal home beverage because it contains a very small percentage ($3\frac{7}{10}$) of alcohol. It is truly a temperate drink, invigorating and healthful.

FASHIONS AND FANCIES

Generally the trend of fashion for spring and summer is showing a definite direction. Already skirts are a little wider, that we are allowed more freedom of movement, and, rather, that we are handed in, they are more graceful and less conspicuously conscious. The line is still to be preserved in all seasonable directions. The line is consistent with a complexity of detail, that is, as far as is consistent with a complexity of detail, and a great massing of trimmings—and the normal waist line is to be resumed. Draperies are few, and in the long gowns they are often accomplished in the material that trails along the ground. This produces an effect entirely fresh and charming, if one has the ability to assume it, for it is hardly less difficult to walk the gait of an Oriental, for it is hardly less difficult to walk in these apparel. [illegible] not very dirty, brown crumbs will stain it as well as anything else, and this applies to white and colored silk embroidered [illegible] well.

As to these embroidered dainties, [illegible] they are not so difficult a problem as the lace. They should be washed in warm, soapy water, with a little bluing to keep them from turning yellow, and should be ironed on a pad on the wrong side, without starching.

Lace should be washed and ironed, but should be dried lightly on a board and pinned down flower by flower, many people [illegible] to be that ironing on the wrong side of the lace, with a little starch, and after ironing will on the wrong side, [illegible] flower with an orange wood stick or an ivory piercer.

Centrepieces, doilies, etc., should always be rolled on a [illegible] cardboard or stiff paper, or a flat piece of cardboard may be rolled with the embroidery so that it is covered on both sides. A piece of blue tissue paper fastened to each side of the roll with tiny pins is a good precaution before rolling. When putting away lace pieces, cover all the lace with silver paper, as it will keep it from turning yellow, as the blue paper does the white goods.

But, above all, the important thing is care—and more care. Cherish your lace and embroideries as you would your children. Keep their hands and faces clean and see that they are well tucked in when they go to bed.

HOW FASHIONS ARE MADE

How many can answer the question: "Who makes the fashions?" A remarkable book, large and beautifully illustrated, is about to be published in Paris that deals with this subject at considerable length.

Fashions are "created" for the most part by Parisian artists. The work of these men differs from that of other artists in that it is but the thing of a day and would perish entirely were it not for the carefully preserved drawings and photographs.

A great fashion designer is a professor of the art of novelty. It is his task to combine his skill and practical experience so as to invent that which will appeal to his public the day after tomorrow.

He does not only to force the public taste, but he has [illegible] to guide the taste into the required channels. Often a fashion does not "catch on," and in order to prevent the loss which would have taken his advice from sustaining commercial loss, the designer will have to devise some compromise which will enable the popular model to be made use of.

The studio of a fashion artist is exceedingly furnished, and the atmosphere is scented with a multitude of delicate perfumes.

On a raised platform before him stands a tall and shapely model. By her side stands an expert woman who arranges the silks and draperies on the model in obedience to the artist's directions.

The artists roughly speaking, of two kinds—those who work like architects, and those who work like florists.

The former begin handling the material with which the gown is to be made, draw sketches of the plans of construction.

Those who work like florists devote themselves to the grouping and [illegible] They drape various materials on a mannequin. Their creations, as they realize them, take shape under their fingers, and they fix with pins the various "floral" as they color. They gradually harmonize the color scheme, make and unmake a fold, subtract a ribbon, and add a flounce, alter the position of a piece of trimming and determine the size and shape of a button.

The whole is then passed, first to the draughtsmen, who plan the measurements and proportions with mathematical exactitude, and then to the rooms where the deft-fingered dressmakers sew, from trimmed, embroidered.

The workrooms have to be very carefully organized. Here, too, the work is highly specialized, and there are many different grades of skill. There are girls who never handle

GERMANY'S IRELAND

ALSACE-LORRAINE [illegible] at last to have Home Rule [illegible] kind it does not want. [illegible] years ago this territory was wrested from France and sentenced to Prussianism. Like Ireland, the inhabitants have been clamoring for Home Rule—autonomy—but they have still remained in the condition of a conquered people. The present German Chancellor, Mr. Bethmann-Hollweg, however, proposed immediately after his appointment that their wishes should be granted. In the constitution now, [illegible] the Strasburg parliament [illegible] [illegible] where they asked [illegible] read in the Gazette de Francfort that this project does not give us the highest satisfaction, or answer in the remotest degree the aspirations of Alsace-Lorraine," said Mr. Ernst Theodor editor of the Nouvelle Alsace, says in his journal.

"The day of reckoning is past. We used to say, 'Do what they please they do not wishes to [illegible] what we would.' One cry of day [illegible] must be made to [illegible] what we want. We will forget [illegible] and no one shall [illegible] with respect and no one shall [illegible] shoulders at the mention of Alsace."

The politics is contained in the following [illegible] of the proposed constitution, of which the Berlin Geschichtl. Corr. [illegible] officially gives the following summary:

"It is readily admitted that this scheme is equivalent to Home Rule for the conquered territory, the old legislature consists of the Upper Alsatian Lorraine, which is in the same position as other federal states, e.g., the kingdom of Saxony or the grand duchy of Baden. The only difference will be that it has no king of its own, but that the emperor will act as sovereign in the former, King in Parliament, and that he will exercise the functions of head of administration by an hereditary general who is responsible for and has to countersign all official publications of the government. There will be two houses of Parliament in the new federal state, as in most other countries where constitutional forms of government prevail.

"A difficult problem was of course the formation of a House of Lords. In consequence of the French Revolution the old historical families had disappeared a century ago and a new nobility of large landowners has not risen up again. The proposal is that peerage by patent, peerage by office and peerage by representation will be combined. The emperor may appoint half the number of the new peers: the two Roman Catholic bishops, the heads of the Protestant and Reformed churches, the chief rabbi, the president of the High Court of Justice, a delegate of the University of Strasburg will be ex officio members; the remainder will be delegated by the chambers of commerce, the agricultural organizations, the artisans and laborers' official organizations.

"For the formation of the House of Commons the government sounded the views of the existing local representatives. The proposals to introduce a scale of voting according to income is in Prussia met with little favor. It was demanded that a man a vote, [illegible] and secret ballot should be granted at once. The Imperial government yielded to these wishes, but added a modification from the municipal elections of the territory. Every voter above thirty-five years of age may cast a second vote, and, if above forty-five, even a third vote. This privilege of the seniors is of course not popular in our own times, when so much [illegible] is made about the rights of the children. Therefore, there will be only sixty members of the second chamber against thirty-six of the First Chamber."

What the people of Alsace and Lorraine wanted was the power of electing their own governor and their own senate. They wanted universal suffrage. But the emperor is still their direct ruler, in the person of the stadtholder. The upper house is his appointment and he nominates his delegates, while the "very, very safe" system demanded by Mr. Theodor has, in his opinion, been corrupted by the multiple method. The socialist riots that recently occurred in Metz and in which many citizens were shot down by the soldiers of the German garrison arose practically from popular indignation over the proposed constitution, of which the socialist organ, Neue Zeit (Stuttgart), remarks:

"Of all the mothers on this globe of ours Mother Prussia is the only one clever enough after forty years' experience to bring forth such a pulling [illegible] And yet her own brood of children [illegible] with a feeling of envy. The [illegible] which is to be granted to Alsace-Lorraine is infinitely more worthless than the three-class system which it is granted to Prussia. It would [illegible] the legislative supremacy of Germany has more respect for the [illegible] that was conferred to Prussia forty years ago than for those which have been slaves for centuries."

[illegible] the details of the constitution as given above, this organ [illegible] the idea of the Imperial stadtholder and the Imperial senate in Alsace-Lorraine, and concludes that "is the final [illegible] blow from the 'Knout of the Prussian autocracy.'"

The failure of Home Rule to satisfy the aliens of the Western [illegible] of Germany is bitterly resented by the Berliner Tageblatt, which [illegible] the new constitution.

The years have gone round, and at last [illegible] for Alsace-Lorraine [illegible]

SECRET SOCIETIES FOR ARRANGING MURDERS

THE recent mysterious murder in Lambeth on Clapham Common, a suburb of London, draws attention to the secret societies of the Continent of Europe, of some of which the assassins were members, and which societies have for their object murder, or any form of violence and crime that will promote the views or fill the pockets of the scoundrels who belong to them.

The whole continent is honeycombed with such societies, who set all laws at defiance and are a constant menace and terror to law-abiding people.

Morganitzell, the man who died after being accidentally shot in a low criminal haunt in Bermondsey, was known to the metropolitan police as the leader of a gang of hooligans and robbers which he had gathered together, known as the Zenowa Ringleaders, the members of which devoted their energies to robberies with violence and attacks on banks and commercial houses. Twelve members of this gang were ultimately captured and hanged, but Morganitzell escaped.

One of the most terrible of these leagues of criminals is the dreaded Mafia, which has terrorized Sicily for several generations and is said to be specially active just now. Its amiable code of honor is to defy the law and to rule the island by threats and violence.

According to M. Cipinelli, the Mafia is an inapproachable and multiform union of persons of all classes, who aid each other, in spite of the law and morality, to murder, to intimidate and sequestrate landed proprietors, to raise a ring in the corn market, to forge wills, to influence the results of trials, and to place their best men into government offices. Its ranks include men of all classes, from cobbles to mayors and judges and from thieves and snarpers to members of Parliament. At one time this remarkable band confined its efforts principally to kidnapping the sons of rich families and to coining false money. Now they draw most of their revenue from levying blackmail on wealthy landowners in return for their protection, and by assisting smugglers. Direct robbery and violence are resorted to only for vengeance.

How powerful the Mafia is is shown by the following stories. One day a large case arrived at the Palermo Customs labelled "Biscuits." The customs officials opened it, and discovered half a million forged banknotes. Not one of them, however, dared to speak. The case was reclosed and sent to its destination, a well-known and "honorable" merchant, without a word. In another case the young son of a certain prince was kidnapped and a ransom of 100,000fr. was demanded for his return. The prince immediately sent the money, without breathing a syllable to a single soul about the incident, which only became known to the police some time later, from a discovery of the letters of negotiation.

Much more far-reaching and almost as terrible is the Camorra, an organized band of assassins, who infest Turkey and stretch their fearful tentacles over almost the whole of the Levant. This society has its origin in the former kingdom of Naples, where it plundered and terrorized the country, practised wholesale smuggling, and undertook, for a suitable reward, to commit any crime from murder to arson.

Candidates for membership swore upon an iron crucifix a fearful oath of fidelity and secrecy, and only after a long period of training and probation received the two knives of peculiar form by which the Camoristi recognized one another.

In Turkey, where the Camorra is particularly active at present, incendiarism is its chief occupation. It is said that three fires out of every four in Constantinople are the work of the Camorra, whose method is to remove all valuables from the chosen house or shop, saturate the walls and floors with petroleum, and set fire to it. The agent who refuses to pay the insurance money is promptly assassinated.

But the services of the Camorra are available to anyone who are willing to pay heavily enough for them, from a jealous wife who wishes to get rid of a fair rival to a tradesman who cannot collect his debts. If "threats" fail, a sight in the dark generally settles the business satisfactorily. Like the Mafia, the Camorra draws its members from all classes, from the working man to the man of rank and fashion; and any disloyalty means death to the recreant member.

Among many other secret societies in Europe—the Carbonari in Italy, the nihilists in Russia—the Hetairie has had princes and even kings among its members. The Czar Alexander I. owed allegiance to the Hetairie, and Napoleon III. was throughout his life an adherent to the grand master of the Carbonari, which he joined as a young man. The Grand Duke Nicholas Constantinovitch, who was exiled to Siberia for stealing his mother's jewels, was a member of the Nihilist society, and had for wife a Nihilist daughter of the postmaster of Tashkent.

ALMA-TADEMA'S LUCKY NUMBER

SIR LAWRENCE ALMA-TADEMA, R.A., has just been celebrating his seventieth birthday, and congratulations have reached him from all parts of the world. His marvellous painting, "Caracalla and Geta," realized fewer than 2,500 guineas. Sir Lawrence is one of the most outstanding and conscientious artists living, so anything is be that if a success follows efforts his ghost hypnotized [illegible] will destroy it, though it may represent the work of many months.

"Hard work and plenty of it," is his recipe for success, and there are few mornings in summer when he is not at his easel at four or five o'clock. "Many people," he says, "are surprised when they hear that I have not visited Greece or Egypt—the two countries that have figured so much on my canvases"; and the confession is remarkable when one considers the brilliance and fidelity with which he has made these countries live for us in his pictures.

Sir Lawrence always speaks gratefully of his earliest patron, Gudhart, the picture dealer, who, in two orders, commissioned seventy-six pictures, and was so delighted with them that he not only [illegible] the prices, but at [illegible] a dinner given to the artist at Brussels, and "[illegible] [illegible] Sir Lawrence [illegible] found a [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] hundred pounds.

While the famous artist believes in hard work, he will not deny that he is susceptible to luck. His own lucky number is [illegible]. He was married when he first met his wife. Their first house had that number; it was on August 4th twenty-five years ago that the work of rebuilding his house began, and on November 4th (being the date of his evidence [illegible]) the second marriage was in 1871, and here [illegible] is the result of the figures added together. He lives in the [illegible] quarter of St. John's Wood, and the number of his house again is a multiple of seven.

NO DOCTOR'S BILLS IN JAPAN

A JAPANESE doctor never dreams of asking a poor patient for a fee. This is a practice among the medical fraternity of doing that says: "Where there is poverty, misery and disease, I visit a house, they do who take care from that house even if I do get no fee, I am a doctor."

Doctors are rewarded in great fortune on life in Japan, "a doctor will not only give his time and most skill free to the sufferer, but he will also give him money to tide over his hard necessities. Every physician is his own dispenser, and there are very few apothecaries' shops in the empire.

When even a rich man calls in a doctor he does not expect that he will receive a bill for medical services; in fact, no such thing as a doctor's bill is known in Japan, although nearly all modern practices are in vogue there. The strict honesty of the people does not make it necessary for the doctor to ask a fee. When he has finished his visits to the patient a present is made to him, just as much as the patient can afford. The doctor smiles, bows, thanks his patient, and the transaction is at an end.

MACHINERY TALK

I STOOD in the works at midnight, and all was still as the grave, till the file, with [illegible] a sigh, discontented grave: "Now, what's the use of living a life full with teeth firm set, when life is made up of rubbing against all the hard things I've met?"

Then answered the lathe in pity (I've done some hard turns myself), and the worn-out spindle groaned: "And they've put me on the shelf." "Life's a bore," said the gimlet. "Ave with many a broken thread," said the hollow voice of the steam pipe, as a condensed tear he shed.

Then the emery wheel growled roughly: "Sentimental stuff, I say. Be watchful and wait," said the old wheel, who had damaged herself that day. "I shall start a revolution in about a week or so." "Look sharp then!" remined the chisel. "You're cutting it rather slow!" "Oh, she's cracked!" said the soldering irons, as his face he angrily shaped, and in the confusion which followed I regret that the gas escaped.

TUNING A BELL

WHAT a beautiful tone that bell has!" is often heard. There are few, however, who know how a bell receives its joyful or solemn tones.

All bells after they are cast and finished must go through a process of tuning the same as any other musical instrument, before they resound with a clear, true tone. Every bell sounds five notes, which must blend together in order to produce perfect harmony.

The tuning of a bell is done by means of shaving thin bits from various parts of the metal. It is as easy for an expert bell-tuner to put a bell in tune as it is for a piano tuner to adjust his instrument to perfect chords.

At first thought it would seem that a bell would be ruined should the tuner shave off too much at the last tuning, or the fifth sound, but such is not the case. He would, however, be obliged to begin afresh, starting with the first tone and shaving the bell until it gave forth its harmonious sound at the fifth tone.

RACERS WITH JEWEL CASKETS

A VERY great racehorse has his special dollar case, marked with his name and provided with a special lock. Each horse has his own basin, pans for the toilet, his feeding utensils, brushes and combs.

A racehorse has many sets of towels of various grades, and two blankets of various weights for all weathers. These are marked and numbered, and are kept beautifully clean and well aired. The belongings of the horse are carried about in his toilet case when travelling.

Besides all this luxury every great horse nowadays must have a jewel case, and with age and success the collection frequently becomes very valuable. In the casket, which is a conspicuous piece of the box, are kept the various trophies presented by admirers. These consist largely of articles of wear, such as bridles finished in silver and gilt, silver channel and mounted halters, and combs and brushes mounted in handsome style.

BURN CAUSED OPEN SORE

Zam-Buk Worked a Wonderful Cure

Sometimes a bad burn, a deep cut, or some similar injury, sets up a more persistent injury in the form of an open discharging sore. In such cases Zam-Buk will be found of unqualified value.

Mr. A. Nixon, of 901 William Ave., Winnipeg, a blacksmith at the C.P.R. shops, had his foot badly crushed by some molten metal falling upon it. He says: "The burning was very bad and after the first few days it developed into an open sore, which showed unmistakable signs of blood poisoning. If the leg had been broken it could not be more painful. For three weeks I suffered acutely and could get no sleep. At last I determined to try Zam-Buk. After the application of the doctor, which seemed to show the poisoning had set in, I was quite hopeless, but finally the wound became healthy and healed.

"It was then advised to use Zam-Buk, and from the first application the balm gave me relief. The inflammation was thoroughly checked, and the poisonous matter cleared away in a very short time after beginning with Zam-Buk. Healthy tissue began and in less than two weeks the wound was thoroughly healed."

One of the main lessons of this case is right here—try Zam-Buk first for any injury, even slight, if it be only a bruise. It is equally good for sores, blood poisoning, festering wounds, chapped hands, ulcers, abscesses, [illegible] eczema, [illegible] sores, [illegible] ulcers, [illegible] piles, [illegible] cuts, [illegible] sores, [illegible] ulcers

FRIDAY, APRIL 21, 1911

The green onion will soon have its effect on the breath of spring.

Again the Leader calls attention to April 25th, which has been set aside as Cleaning Up Day. The government teams will haul all stones and rubbish away, providing this sort of stuff is gathered up in piles. Don't forget the day, and your duty to the town.

No better work could be done for the province than the building of the government trunk road. In a short time it will be completed from one end of British Columbia to the other, in fact the greater portion of it is now open to traffic. It is costing a lot of money, but when built it will be a valuable asset to the country.

It was 19 years ago last Monday that F. G. Little staked the townsite of Creston. Creston today is one of the most substantial towns in the country, for it has the backing to make it a permanent place. Its first boom came during the construction of the Crow's Nest road, and then followed several years of quiet times. Then it became known that the land was ideally adapted to fruit raising, and today there are hundreds of acres of land cleared and under cultivation. Mr. Little, the original locator of the townsite, still lives at Creston, and is one of the town's most respected citizens.

The Black Horse

"The new 150-ton concentrator at the Black Horse mine near Murray, Idaho, should run steadily from now on with one shift and in a couple of weeks more we will have everything in shape to keep it in operation both night and day," says Patrick Burke, manager of the property. "The mill is a great success. It is effecting an absolutely clean separation of the lead and zinc, in which respect I believe it is doing better work than any other mill in the Coeur d'Alenes. The lead concentrates are averaging over 70 per cent and the zinc concentraces a little over 50 per cent."

The Reason

Another train story now going the rounds as applied to a western American line:

"We were crossing a stretch of prairie land," said he, "when the train stopped for no apparent reason.

"After a wait of almost an hour the conductor came sneaking through the train, glancing furtively at the exasperated passengers. When he came to me he leaned down and whispered:

"Say, have you got a piece of string? We want to fix the engine."

P. E. I. Controversy

Dear Sir—Some time ago during a debate in the Union Hall on "Exploitation," my friend, Marcus Martin, made the statement that one half of the farms in Prince Edward's Island were mortgaged. Being very skeptical in the veracity of the statement and wishing to get the truth of the matter, I wrote the editor of the Daily Examiner, Charlottetown, P. E. I., asking, what means I would take to find out the per centage of farms on P. E. I. under mortgage, and also, what amount of money was on deposit in savings and other banks to the credit of farmers in P. E. I. In answer, I received, a few days ago, the following letter from Editor Cotton:

Charlottetown, P. E. I.,
April 7th, 1911.

Dear Mr. Macdonald—

In reply to yours of the 30th March, received yesterday, I have to say that I called upon our Register of Deeds and he told me that you would be well within the mark if you had stated that not a quarter of the farms in P. E. I. are under mortgage. In the best settlements, he said, there are practically no mortgages, only a stray man having mortgaged to obtain the means with which to purchase an additional farm.

There is on deposit in the savings bank of the banks here about $9,000,000—in great part—held by farmers.

Yours Truly,
W. L. Cotton.

There are approximately about 11,000 farmers in P. E. I. Most of the money lent out on mortgages through the law-offices is owned by farmers. And much of the real estate in the towns is owned by wealthy farmers. So that, if we leave off all other moneyed holdings of the farmers in P. E. I. and divide the $9,000,000 among the 11,000 farmers, it will give each one an average of about $800.00 in the savings. This, I think, is a fairly good condition of affairs.

Chamberlain's Cough Remedy
Cures Colds, Croup and Whooping Cough.

Unsanitary Food

Spoiled food is not unpalatable—it is dangerous. The death of a Spokane girl due to eating a sandwich supposed to have contained spoiled meat shows the importance of careful supervision over the dealers supplying edibles for general consumption. It is a good plan for the housewife to throw anything away the good condition of which she is not certain of.

In cases of rheumatism relief from pain makes sleep and rest possible. This may be obtained by applying Chamberlain's Liniment. For sale by all dealers.

When a medicine must be given to young children it should be pleasant to take. Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is made from loaf sugar, and the roots used in its preparation give it a flavor similar to maple syrup, making it pleasant to take. It has no superior for colds, croup and whooping cough. For sale by all dealers.

VARICOSE VEINS CURED

NO NAMES USED WITHOUT WRITTEN CONSENT.

Confined to His Home for Weeks.

"Heavy work, severe straining and evil habits in youth brought on Varicose Veins. When I worked hard the aching would become severe and I was often laid up for a week at a time. My family physician told me an operation was my only hope—but I dreaded it. I tried several specialists between times but all they wanted was my money. I consented to look it on all doctors as little better than vampires. One day my boss asked me why I was off work so much and I told him my condition. He advised me to consult Drs. Kennedy & Kennedy, as he had taken treatment from them himself and knew they were square and skillful. I wrote them and got THE NEW METHOD TREATMENT. My progress was somewhat slow and during the first month's treatment I was somewhat discouraged. However, I continued treatment for three months longer and was rewarded with a complete cure. I could only earn $12 a week in a machine shop before treatment, now I am earning $24 and never loose a day. I wish all sufferers knew of your valuable treatment.

An Endless Chain of Sickness.

There are upwards of one million deaths each year in the United States. In 99% of cases the people who die are less than sixty-five years old. The evils that are due to disease can be escaped just in proportion as the conditions and habits that bring on disease become more widely understood.

Then too a chronic disease which may baffle the skill of the general practitioner may yet be permanently cured by the Physician who has made one line of disease a specialty.

It would be just as absurd for the Professor in a medical college presuming to lecture on all subjects as for the one Physician to presume to understand the nature and cure of every disease.

That is why Dr. R. V. Pierce established the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute many years ago—with a full staff of Physicians and Surgeons—who, though educated to practice in all departments of medicine are here assigned to a special department only—to which each specialist devotes his entire time, study and attention.

The sick who have been treated at Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., have much to say in regard to this wonderfully equipped Sanitarium, where all electrical apparatus, as well as electric water baths, Turkish baths, static electric machines, high-frequency, current, and other most modern and up-to-date apparatus are used for the cure of chronic diseases. The treatment of chronic diseases that are peculiar to women have for many years been a factor in the cures effected at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute.

The physicians and surgeons employed are among the most experienced and skillful in the country, men who have made these diseases their life study, and whose highest ambition is to excel in their treatment.

How well they have succeeded may be judged from the fact that their practice embraces cases from every State and Territory of the Union as well as from foreign lands. Many thousands are annually treated, either through correspondence or at Dr. Pierce's Institution. It is an old adage that, "Experience makes perfect," and the skilled specialists in this field of practice cure thousands of cases which have been abandoned as incurable by general practitioners.

One of the most wonderful electrical appliances is the X-ray used at the Institute which may be used both in the treatment of various diseases and in the diagnosis of many obscure conditions. With its aid the interior of the human body is no longer the sealed book it has been heretofore. Abnormal states of the bones, gall stones, stone in the bladder or in the kidneys are shown plainly by what are known as X-ray photographs. Internal tumors, and the enlargement of the deep-seated organs, are also discovered by this means and in the diagnosis of tuberculosis of the lungs this agent has proven a most valuable aid. When applied to some of the less fatal chronic ailments of germ origin it has proven very effective as a curative agent.

Another interesting proceeding is the violet-ray treatment produced by concentrating the violet or chemical rays from an arc light with a specially prepared carbon upon any portion of the body that may be the seat of pain. Sufferers from neuralgia, sciatica, rheumatism, strains, sprains, also from those obscure exhausting pains (the origin of which cannot at times be accurately determined) frequently find immediate relief from a single treatment and usually with a little persistence in the use of this aid, comfortable health or perfect recovery is obtained.

The incandescent light bath, consisting of a cabinet in which the patient is bathed in the combined rays of many electric light globes, has produced really wonderful results in diabetes, sciatica, rheumatism, obesity, anæmia, and some forms of kidney and heart trouble. It has also proven valuable in chronic bronchitis, bronchial asthma and various skin diseases. As a general hygienic measure its efficiency can scarcely be over-estimated.

Hundreds are brought to this Institution from far distant states and they go home in a few weeks well and strong. Quite as marvelous are the thousands of cures annually accomplished through correspondence, while the patient remains quietly at home. Others consult in person, and after being examined are provided with especially prepared medicines and return home to carry out the treatment.

Everyone who consults the specialists, whether by letter or in person receives the most careful and considerate attention.

Great care is exercised not to over encourage those who consult the specialists of this institution that no false hopes may be raised.

Consultation by letter or in person is absolutely free—no charge whatever—so that the public when afflicted are invited to write Dr. Pierce at the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.
