News of the Mines

POPLAR MINING NOTES.

Poplar Nugget.

T. Ross has four men at work sinking on the Harvard Lake, Meadow ercek. The lead is 12 feet in width of quartz, carrying free gold.

Lou Williams started Wednesday to run the second hundred feet of tunneling on the Home Run for J. L. Whitney of Rossland. This will give a depth of between five and six hundred feet on the lead.

Martin and Axel Lundgren and Ole Berglund have completed their summer's work on the Lardo King group near Gold Hill. The group comprises three claims—the Lardo King, Gold Bar and Happy Four.

H. B. Smith of Rossland has been engaged during the past ten days in surveying the claims of the Le Roi No. 2, which lie between the railway and the hill back of Gold Hill, comprising three claims and a fraction.

Sunday last John Nesbitt brought in some very fine specimens of free-gold quartz from his claims on Rapid creek. There were also some specimens of shist in which gold could be seen. The specimens were on exhibition all week at the post office.

D. A. Murdock, representing Nelson parties, has bonded the Silver Glance from J. Thompson and M. Kirlin, and commenced development Wednesday of this week. The Silver Glance lies east of the Lucky Jack and south of the Bertha K, a galena proposition.

The W Y O D company have been working on their properties situated about a mile from Gold Hill and near the Lardo King group. The ledge, which is six feet wide, has been stripped for a distance of thirty feet. Assays run about $10 in gold.

The most important strike of the past week was that on the Monarch, a claim about six miles up Poplar creek, owned by Magnussen, Strand and Lawson, the locators of the Swede group. The find is a 12-foot lead of galena ore, which will concentrate about 3 to 1. The lead has been stripped about thirty feet. The claim is in the same belt as the Spyglass, Great Britain and other well-known properties. Several other claims have been located on the lead.

BOUNDARY MINING NOTES.

Phoenix Pioneer.

Development is being done to the Trilby claim, in Skylark camp.

J. K. Fraser, recently struck some free gold ore on the Evening Star in Wellington camp.

Development on the Mavis, Skylark camp, under bond to Mike Kane and associates, is encouraging.

Boundary ore shipments now run from three to four times as much as those from Rossland, every week.

On the Summit claim, Summit camp, the tunnel is now in about 200 feet, and crosscutting is going on in ledge matter.

A car of ore was shipped from the Brey Fogle, Summit camp, this week, for testing purposes at the Granby smelter. W. T. Smith is working the claim.

Four men are now at work on the Roderick Dhu, in Long Lake camp, recently rebonded to the Mother Lode people by Dr. Spankie, Dr. Simmons, Dr. Gordon and others.

The Providence Mining Co. has announced its third dividend of ten cents per share, or about $3,000. This makes $8,600 so far divided in profits by this company, with the probability of a dividend being declared in future every month or oftener. The main shaft will be deepened again shortly.

A large body of ore was recently uncovered on two claims in Wellington camp, the Jackpot and Iron Clad. The former is owned by Al Sanderson and a partner, while the latter is owned by J. J. Farrell, W. J. Porter and G. W. Rumberger. The ore is said to be similar to Athelstan ore, where the values are so good. The lead is said to be 40 feet wide, and no one knows how long. the location being pretty close to the new line of the Great Northern.

Local and Provincial

J. S. Carter, district passenger agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway, is up on the Crow's Nest Railway on a business trip.

Letters patent incorporating the City of Ladysmith have been issued and the certificate of incorporation signed by the Lieutenant-Governor.

Mrs. R. F. Green, wife of the Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works, was in Nelson this week en route to Victoria, where she will reside in future.

Captain William D. Bryant arrived in Nelson a few days ago to take charge of the work of the Salvation Army during the absence of Adjutant Dean.

The announcement from Ottawa that the Government has decided upon the payment of a certain proportion of the bounty upon surplus lead ores exported from Canada is favorably commented upon in Nelson.

At the last meeting of the Winnipeg Historical Society, Rev. Bishop Gronard, of Athabasca, was elected to honary membership; A. C. Murray, of Fort St. James, Stewart Lake, B. C., and R. E. Gosnell, of Victoria, were appointed as corresponding members.

Sydney Hattersley Mills, son of Mr. and Mrs T. A. Mills, aged 14 months, died yesterday. He had been ailing for some days and his death was not unexpected. Sydney was a particularly bright little child, and the parents have the sincere sympathy of their many friends in their bereavement. The funeral took place this afternoon.

J. Jensen, one of those principally interested in the Danish colony established some years ago at Cape Scott, the north-west extremity of Vancouver Island, is now in communication with the Provincial Government relative to the introduction of more Danes to the settlement. It is reported that he has made satisfactory arrangements with the Government, and will shortly proceed to Eastern Canada and the United States for the purpose of inducing as many Danes as possible to migrate to Cape Scott.

EVENTS AND GOSSIP

On the 13th and 14th of next December, in London, the Royal Horticultural Society will hold a show of colonial grown fruits, and it is expected that most of the sections of the different colonies will be represented A circular describing the show says:

"The show will remain open on both dates until 10 p. m., so as to give all classes of the public an opportunity of seeing specimens of the varied products of the British Empire. The agents-general and crown agents are most kindly rendering every assistance, and we trust that both growers and exporters will do their best to send in exhibits worthy of our colonies, and to show what can be produced for the home markets."

Hon. J. H. Turner, agent-general for British Columbia, is anxious that the Province should be represented on this occasion, and will do everything in his power to draw attention to the fruit-growing capabilities of British Columbia. Last autumn the fruit display at the Industrial Fair held in Nelson, was undoubtedly one of the best ever seen at a fair in Canada. It might be well for some of the fruit-growers of the Kootenay to move in the matter of a display for the Royal Horticultural Society exhibition. No better advertisement could possibly be suggested.

The practically unanimous endorsation of the by-law granting a bonus of $5,000 to the sawmill to be erected by J. P. McGoldrick and others is conclusive evidence of the liberal spirit in which the citizens of Nelson are disposed to encourage industrial enterprises. The contention of the majority of citizens that every industry that will tend in the direction of creating a payroll should be generously encouraged, is the proper one. We have too long labored under the delusion that mining alone should be encouraged. As a matter of fact mining under even the most favorable conditions will not support a large population. If Nelson depended on mining alone for an existence, its population would not be one-third what it is at the present time. Of course, the city is not advantageously situated for manufacturing enterprises of many kinds, but the production of lumber is one of the things that can be carried on profitably. The McGoldrick company has now secured what it asked for in the way of bonus, and it is expected that work on the new mill will proceed without delay.

The desirability of clean, healthy amusement in a tourist resort is most clearly shown in the experience of the city of Victoria. That city had already a theatre and several houses where vaudeville only was given, but the demands of the public have justified the opening up of another place of amusement which will serve the double purpose of providing high-class vaudeville and accommodating travelling combinations. This latest addition to the amusement houses of Victoria is under the control of Robert Jamieson, the veteran manager, and the patronage it has already received, justifies the belief that it will become one of the permanent institutions of the Capital City. On the opening date last week, there were 2,000 paid admissions at the Grand, the largest number ever chronicled by a Victoria theatre. Visitors to the capital will find that the new house meets all their requirements in the way of high-class amusement.

The citizens of Vancouver have been asked to subscribe to the Fresh Air Fund of New York City. This proposal has brought forth a letter from Sir Charles Hibbert Tupper in the Vancouver papers suggesting assistance to the Children's Aid Society of Vancouver, instead of sending money away to New York City. This position is heartily endorsed by the Vancouver Province on the grounds that charity should begin at home. This is the right position to take. Canadians will sympathize with the suffering children of New York City, but they have children nearer home that demand their immediate attention. The institution at Vancouver is maintained for the purpose of maintaining children who have been taken from inhuman parents, and who will be given an opportunity of becoming useful citizens. These children in many cases by being provided with a home will be saved from grossly immoral surroundings. Take the case of little Victoria Wilcox, for instance, who was sent to the children's home this week. This child, bright in a way, has lived in an environment that would corrupt a saint. Through the aid of the representative of the Children's Aid Society she has been removed to Vancouver and will there be surrounded with healthy influences. This is only one case. There are enough children living in squalor and filth throughout the Province to engage the attention of British Columbians without sending money away to a foreign city.

The overwhelming defeat of the Victoria Locrosse team by the Vancouver players the other day has caused a great deal of discussion in lacrosse circles at the coast. It appears that this year the Victoria club has imported a lot of men, but through lack of practice or for some other reason they fell down before the Vancouver giants. For this reason it is possible the Victoria club may have to fall back on their intermediates. It is doubtful if the Westminster team will play with either the Victoria or Vancouver teams, having resigned some weeks ago from the league. One of the New Westminster team when in Nelson last week said there was no probability of the Royal City team playing on the coast this year. This will leave the game to Victoria and Vancouver. In the meantime, Victoria is considering seriously the advisability of dismissing the imported players.

In an interview in the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, J. N. Grieve, a Canadian Government agent whose headquarters are at Spokane, said:

"One would be surprised at the number of Americans who are going into Canada this year in order to purchase agricultural lands at a reasonable figure. From my office I issue on an average of 150 certificates for settlers, representing some 500 persons, per month, and many months I go way over that number. Last April for instance I issued 293 settlers' certificates. As many of those issued were to families, I suppose they represented 600 people. Last year, at a conservative estimate, 7,000 homesteads in the Canadian Northwest, and particularly in Alberta, were disposed of to Americans."

Reports of a similar character reach us from all over the continent, and can only induce the belief that Canada will in the next few years double her present population. But it is not the Northwest that is benefitting by this influx of immigrants; British Columbia, and the Kootenay in particular, is already reaping substantial advantages in the way of new settlers and the introduction of capital. Visitors to Nelson are greatly surprised at the amount of development work that is going on in the way of fruit-growing. Hugh Gilmour, of Vancouver, who was here the other day is reported to have remarked to a Vancouver paper on his return, that "it was surprising the number of orchards springing up on Kootenay Lake between Nelson and Kootenay Landing. The product is good, and the market is right to hand," concluded Mr. Gilmour. Sooner or later, and it now looks as if the time had almost arrived, those immigrants who prefer fruit-growing to wheat-raising will devote their attention to the fruit ranches of British Columbia.

A few weeks ago, we referred to the necessity of improved methods in the packing and shipment of fruits. Last year considerable fruit was damaged in the shipment. This is not likely to occur again, at least in so far as the Dominion Express Company and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company can prevent it. That express company has agreed to give the fruit-growers of this Province ventilated cars which will materially improve the facilities for putting the products of the orchards in Calgary, Edmonton, Winnipeg and other places in a much better condition than has ever been done before. R. M. Palmer, the freight commissioner, has also been assured by the C. P. R. Company that freight shipments will be handled much better this year than formerly. With a good prospect for fruit these arrangements will mean much to horticulturalists this season.

Tales of the Town

The preacher who under the cloak of religion takes liberties with the English language that would land another man in gaol is in the same position as the editor who under the guise of safeguarding the rights of the people presumes to defame respectable citizens. The fundamental principle of Christianity is to make the world better; and the freedom of the press is too sacred a right to be made the vehicle whereby an unscrupulous man can malign a defenceless citizen. Sensationalism in the pulpit of the present day is probably doing more than any other single agency to discredit religion. The belief once prevailed that the Bible and New Testament contained enough food to furnish the average preacher with texts from which to expound the inspirations and aspirations of the first teachers. Now things have changed. Many of the preachers of the present day seem disposed to ignore the Book of all Books altogether and turn to the sensational press for their texts and inspiration. In doing so, great harm must come to God's revealed religion. A mistaken and grossly exaggerated belief of its privileges has led the yellow press into committing the most flagrant offenses against good morals. So much so, that parents who desire to see their children become ornaments to society by their conduct through life will not permit many of the papers published in the larger cities of the United States to enter the home without first exercising a strict censorship as to their contents. Of course, this to a certain extent prevents injury from this source. The circumspect parent can also restrain his child from attending a worship where the preacher holds out as an extra attraction the discussion of subjects that are never hinted at in a well regulated home. But the fathers and mothers cannot prevent children of tender years from reading on bulletin boards and elsewhere announcements of a grossly suggestive character, and which can only have the result of arousing the curiosity of the young. In commenting in this way THE ECONOMIST has no desire that its remarks should be taken as having any local significance. The object is rather to arouse parents to a realization of the peril their children may be subjected to by blind and irresponsible teachers under the cloak of Christianity.

A great deal of interest is being taken in the damage suits against the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Company which are being tried before Mr. Justice Martin in Nelson this week. The accident, which occoured about two years ago in the Coal Creek mines, has been before the courts in various forms several times, and has at last reached the trial judge. The case is noteworthy, not only from the eminence of the counsel engaged, but also on account of the fact that much depends on the testimony of experts engaged on both sides. There are five test cases, but they only represent a small proportion of the number of actions entered against the company. It is believed that the trial will last at least two weeks longer. There have been several interesting tilts between the counsel on the opposing sides.

"Maloney's Wedding," at the Opera House Thursday evening, had scarcely the suggestion of a plot, but it had a lot of good music and some really funny situations. The audience was large, and every one present seemed to enjoy the performance. Allan Doone, who took the part of "Maloney," has a dialect that more nearly approaches the Scotch than the Irish, but has a voice that is really melodious. The Dutch monologue of R. W. Baker is genuinely humorous, and created no end of laughter. Miss Walcott has a fairly good Irish dialect and makes up the part to perfection. The singing of the whole company was most enjoyable. The piece will be repeated next Thursday evening and will probably draw another large audience.

His many friends all over the Province will be pleased to learn that Superintendent Hussey, of the Provincial Police, is rapidly recovering his health. He has been in California for several months, having been ordered there by his medical adviser. The report comes from California that he is rapidly regaining his strength and will be able to resume his duties by the end of July, at which time his leave expires. Mr. Bullock-Webster is acting superintendent during the absence of Mr. Hussey.

Much interest will be taken in the report of the Royal Commission appointed three years ago by the British Government to inquire into the relation between human and animal tuberculosis. The commission finds that bovine and human tuberculosis are practically identical, both in its broad, general features, and in its finer histological details, thus disproving Prof. Koch's theory.

It now transpires the reason why the council refused 95 cents for the $150,000 of city debentures, was because there is every prospect of being able to dispose of the bonds at a higher rate before long. This comes from Mayor Hamilton and must be accepted as the best reason that could possibly be advanced.

THE ECONOMIST believes that every one who transgresses the laws of the land should suffer for his offense, but nevertheless it cannot refrain from expressing its sorrow for one man who is alleged to have gone wrong. That man is T. B. Hall, who was arrested at Victoria yesterday, and who is accused of being short in his accounts to the amount of $5,000. Hall was collector of taxes for the Province, and the cause of his downfall is said to have been high living. A few years ago no man in Victoria was held in higher esteem than Tom Hall. Through business reverses he lost a fortune, and was given the position of Collector of Taxes by the Provincial Government. If he has committed the crime with which he is charged he will have to pay the penalty, but there will be a strong feeling of sorrow over his downfall.

Three well-known citizens appeared before Police Magistrate Crease to-day charged with malicious destruction of property. The trio, it appears from the evidence already given, were endeavoring to emulate the exploits of Carrie Nation by destroying a sign with an inscription which they regarded as objecionable. In defense it was contended that the sign contained writing that was likely to have a bad effect morally. The magistrate discharged one of the accused, and the other two were ordered to pay for the broken sign and the costs, if any, prosecutor was subjected to in securing witnesses. A contra charge was laid against the man who had written the objectionable language on the sign, but was withdrawn on condition that no more announcements of the character would appear in future.

The by-law granting a bonus of $5000 to the McGoldrick Sawmill Company, carried by a vote of 182 to 31.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

The Government organs of the Dominion are driven to sore straits to defend the Grand Trunk Pacific contract. It is worthy of note that they unanimously ignore Sir Wilfrid's pathetic protest that the cost to Canada will not exceed $15,000,000 and with one consent admit that the national liability for it will be over $100,000,000. Sir Wilfrid's speeches may be silvery, but his figures have not even the stability of that fluctuating metal.

Any criticism of the terms of the contract is answered by an utterly fallacious comparison with the terms of the bargain between a Conservative Government and the Canadian Pacific Railway Company over thirty years ago. As we have pointed out in a previous issue, there is a great difference in circumstances. The Government of that day had a pledge to redeem; this Province, which was imperatively needed to fulfill the purpose of Confederation and make possible the development of a great country, required railway communication with the East. The project was so great that no Liberal believed its attainment possible.

Now, it is eminently desirable but not vital to our national existence that a parallel road should be built to give breadth to the country; but the price paid for the first railway cannot rationally be made the measure of the value of the second.

Conservative suggestions in committee have been met by silence and killed by the docile party majority. But the country is still be reckoned with. Sir Wilfrid may find sunny ways will not dazzle the eyes of Canadians when their attention is invited to figures. Suspicion will naturally fall upon the accuracy of the calculation which is practically admitted to have erred by a trifle like $100,000,000.

Neither will success attend any effort to represent the Conservative party as being opposed to the building of a new transcontinental railway. Mr. Borden represented a unanimous party when he expreesed approval of as many new railways as possible, but denounced the mortgaging of national resources by incurring an enormous debt in the interest of a few friends of the Government who are already overladen with "loot" from the public domain.

Moreover, the last session has seen considerable alteration in the scheme and it is notorious that this session was only called because the first draft was found to be unworkable. These are not circumstances to foster confidence in the trustees of our inheritance.

Sir Charles Tupper was reported to be the most vigorous and forcible speaker at the Canadian Society's banquet in London recently. In the opinion of Sir Charles, Canada is doing a great deal for the defence and advancement of the empire even though she does not pay for warships.

Arthur H. Scaife, for many years editor of the Weekly Province, has just written the libretto of a comic opera in London. The London critics comment favorably upon the work.

The Los Angeles Mining Review has issued a "smelter number" that should be read by every person interested in the mining industry.

Moyie Leader.

Year by year Moyie is gaining in popularity as a summer resort. This year there are quite a number of families in Cranbrook, Fort Steele and other surrounding towns who intend coming here and camping during the summer months, and some will come from even greater distances. No more ideal summer resort exists than Moyie. Boating on the lake is always delightful and the sport of fishing and hunting can be indulged in to the fullest extent.

Grand Forks News-Gazette.

Grand Forks has already enjoyed two periods of expansion and the third one now in sight promises to exceed the others. The people who have held on here for three years past are entitled to all that's coming. The mining industry has now assumed such large proportions that continuous prosperity is now assured, and it is unlikely that business will experience the fluctuations that characterized the conditions which have prevailed here in the past. Now's the time to boost.

Vancouver News-Advertiser.

We admit, as we have always admit ted that the possession of a second transcontinental road, one opening up great tracts of new territory, is a great thing for Canada. But we hold that the facts show that this could have been secured on less onerous terms than have been conceded by the Government. The confidential memorandum from the promoters of the scheme to the Government (which was only made known to Parliament last week) indicates that the demeanor of the Government's supporters in the House showed that they realized that fact. Therefore, while we approve the project itself, as one the realization of which will do great things for Canada, we must condemn the terms of the agreement as extravagant and not securing for the country what it should have received in return for the profuse liberality extended to the company. British Columbia in particular may well be aggrieved that no regard has been had to her interests, in the omission of any clause requiring construction to be commenced on this Coast simultaneously with the beginning of work at Winnipeg and elsewhere. We need not say much about the extension to Moncton. A sop to political necessities and party exigencies it is still possible that the physical difficulties of the rugged mountain region that must be traversed, may yet cause it to be abandoned. A grand enterprise the project is. It is a pity that such blemishes should mark the agreement for its construction.

Her Ideal Man.

SHE was a lovely chocolate-cream-box sort of a girl, with a gushing tenderness suggestive of butter on a hot day, and she was confiding in her "ownliest own" girl friend:

"The man that aspires to the privilege of pressing his moustache upon my rosebud lips," she began, firmly, "must be tall and stalwart as a pine tree in its prime."

"There is a slump in pine trees just at present," murmured her friend, inaudibly, but the rapturous girl swept on.

"I can see him now with the perfect Greek features of the Belvedere Apollo, surmounting a frame that is suggestive of the Farnese Hercules in repose."

"I fancy that Ouida has been there before," murmured the friend, once more, "but there is no additional charge for heroics; so proceed."

"His mouth must be firm but kind, and his soft hazel eyes will twinkle with a smile that is at once sweetly serious and saucily sedate."

"I fancied that I was rather a connoisseur in smiles myself," remarked her friend, "but I do not recall at this moment seeing one of the precise nature you describe. But I will endeavor to imagine it. Fill in your hero, please."

"He must be strong and resolute, yet generous and tender to a fault; his face will light up with the fire of a strenuous passion when his feelings are aroused, and yet he will have his whole nature in such perfect control that he will never lose that grip of himself which is the leading characteristic of the true aristocrat."

"True aristocrats have been a falling market for some time past," remarked the friend in another aside; "but there is nothing like putting one's trust in Providence."

"He must be both truly religious and honestly manly, with the creed of the man of the world elevated to the standard of the highest religious principle."

"Right, oh!" said her friend relapsing into slang. "Muscular Christianity, ritualism and rowing, golf and godliness, are all the go. There may be a chance for you yet."

And then a dreamy far-away look came into the melting maiden's eyes as she concluded:

"He must have no eyes for any other girl in the world, but must feel the god of love spring into birth in his heroic soul as his glance meets mine, and we realize that we were predestined for each other from the beginning of the world."

At this moment the door opened, and the neatly-attired parlormaid announced "Mr. Jimkins is waiting to see you downstairs in the drawing-room, miss."

"What! that little red-haired bounder with a squint," enquired the dear friend, "who used to be always spooning round after Maud and Blanche, until they at last succeeded in getting it into his wooden little copper-topped cocoanut that his room was decidedly preferable to his company! Why, he's the mangiest little toad that ever—"

But the whole of her remark was lost upon the chocolate-cream girl, whose dainty feet were tripping downstairs three steps at a time, and before the drawing-room door closed the dear friend heard her begin "Dear Mr. Jimkins, how sweet of you to come on day like this!" And then the door closed, and the dear friend was left to her own cogitations on the eternal feminine.

Once during a heated debate between Senator Joseph B. Foraker, of Ohio, and Senator Joseph W. Bailey, of Texas, the question of law in Texas and law in Ohio came up. The passage became warm. Foraker, by way of a parting shot, told Bailey that if he would come to Ohio he would learn a great deal of law that he did not know. "If there is so very much law to be learned in Ohio," remarked Bailey, "I must advise the Senator to spend all his spare time there. He Anecdotal.

In "Lives of the 'Lustrious," a biographical dictionary just issued in England, it is said that when Hall Caine, whose resemblance to Shakespeare is well known, landed in New York on a trip to America, he was accosted by the late Ignatius Donnelly, a stranger to him, with the words: "Lord Bacon, I presume."

Some of the late Lord Randolph Churchill's friends once tried to have Lord Salisbury reinstate his erratic lieutenant. Salisbury listened to them patiently, and then asked: "Have any of you ever had a carbuncle on the back of your neck?" "No," was the reply. "Well, I have," retorted his lordship, "and I don't want another."

At a dinner-table in London the conversation turned on speaking. Curran stated that he could never speak in public for a quarter of an hour without moistening his lips. "I have the advantage of you then, Curran," said Sir Thomas Turton, a pompous and pretentious member of Parliament. "I spoke the other night in the House of Commons for five hours on the Nabob of Oude, and never felt in the least thirsty." "That is very remarkable, indeed," replied Curran, "for everyone agrees that it was the driest speech of the session."

Dr. Gordon, who was the first minister of the church in Jamaica Plain, about the year 1771, was a Scotchman, very stern and arbitrary in his manners, and precise and orderly in his own habits. The following anecdote of him is recorded in the family journal of one of his old parishioners: One Sunday, while preaching, he had begun to develop his theme with the usual "firstly," and got through that and "secondly." Then, turning the leaves of his manuscripts he said: "Thirdly," a second time "Thirdly," and again in great embarrassment, "Thirdly!" Just then a little girl in one of the front pews stood up and said: "Please, sir, thirdly flew out of the window some time ago."

Strictly Cash in Future

Notice to our Customers and the General Public:

This was the first Dry Goods business established in Nelson, 14 years ago; from that time to the present we have always kept in the lead, and we carry to-day a stock which will in every respect compare favorably with the stocks carried by first class houses in the large cities of the east, in fact our Stock is quite up to date in style, quality, etc., the only point where we are behind our competitors in the eastern cities is in the question of PRICE, and in spite of that they are making more money than we are. This is explained by the one word—CREDIT. It is the curse of business everywhere, and especially in the Kootenay District, and we have decided to abolish it, absolutely and entirely. Under this system the cash customer has been paying more than the goods are worth in order to make up for the losses that are unavoidable where credit is given, not only in the absolute loss of accounts, but in the loss of interest, and other necessary expenses. We have accounts in our books (monthly accounts, that are NOT paid at the end of the month, as they are supposed to be) that have been standing for six months, 12 months, 18 months, and some of them for YEARS, and we have had to mortgage our future to pay for the goods sold in this way, and our cash customers have been paying the interest. This is plain talk, but it is true, and every merchant in Nelson knows it, and we propose to put a stop to it, as far as we are concerned. We propose to collect every collectable outstanding account in our books at once, (and those indebted to us will please take the hint) and from the 1st of JUNE, 1904, we will take another step forward in the march of civilization, from a business standpoint, and sell for CASH ONLY, and by placing ourselves in a position to buy for cash, by taking our cash discounts, by saving the expense of Book-keeping, Postage, and the thousand and one things which naturally belong to the Credit System, we can save our customers a very considerable amount each month in the reduced prices at which we propose to sell our goods. This, we are sure, will be duly appreciated, and all we ask is an opportunity to prove it to you.

Nelson is no longer a hamlet, but a city of respectable proportions. She is fast becoming a Wholesale centre, and there is no reason why she should not take the place she is entitled to as the most important Retail City in the interior of British Columbia. This she cannot do as long as she is satisfied to continue in the old-fashioned ruts. The proposed change will benefit all parties, the buyer quite as much as the seller, and while thanking our customers one and all for the large amount of patronage we have had in the past, we ask you all to co-operate with us in our endeavor to carry out this scheme of mutual advantage.

NOTE—During the month of June we will give a discount of 10 per cent on all purchases over 50 cents, off our regular prices, and on a large number of articles the discount will be 15 per cent.
