Tempering the attack

A couple of our new regional board directors Charles Lee and Joe Harrison — are demonstrating some fondness for taking the bull by the horns and giving the beast a good shaking.

We've no objection to that process. Periodic injections of inquisitiveness and skepticism are exactly what is needed to maintain (or improve) the health of any political organism.

However, with no intention of placing a damper on our new representatives' enthusiasm — we might suggest some modifications to their approaches.

Harrison's main problem is that he's operating too often on erroneous and-or incomplete information. In the process he is discrediting a defensible political position and performing no great service for his community. It's unclear whether he is placing too much trust in advisors who know too little or simply failing to adequately research the questions. In either case, the result is the same: his arguments wither rapidly because they can't be sustained factually.

The most recent case in point is the news report last week by the Pender Harbour and District Ratepayers Publicity Committee. (Harrison is the Ratepayers president). The thrust of that article is that the Regional District has connived, with the aid of former director Jack Paterson, to create a water supply system for a private developer at great expense to the taxpayers of Area A.

The article reflects a basic misunderstanding of the Regional District's financing arrangements for new water distribution systems. The taxpayers as a whole do not pay for such expansions; they are paid for solely by the people who benefit from the system.

It may be that the residents of Area A are opposed for political reasons to having the Regional District undertake water projects in their area. If that's true, that's their business and a fair political stand. But it is a disservice to the community to tell people that the project is going to cost the taxpayers half a million dollars when in fact not a dime will come out of local tax requisitions.

Harrison is concerned about the autonomy of Area A. If he did a little more research about the mechanism of regional districts and about specific issues, he might find that there is a surprising amount of automomy already lying around just waiting to be exercised. He also might discover that there are some advantages in maintaining a degree of regional co-operation, including — but not limited to — a more effective ability to deal with provincial authorities. If strengthening the independence of our electoral areas results in the enfeeblement of the Sunshine Coast's already disadvantaged position provincially, we may find ourselves shoved around by powers far more indifferent than the home-grown varieties.

Director Lee's charge into the political arena is flawed less by a lack of research than by a lack of consideration. He's demonstrating a sort of law student's delight in attempting to out-verse-and-chapter the older hands' utilization of the rules and regulations.

The game will no doubt put some pressure on Director Peter Hoemberg. He had previously been relatively unchallenged in his interpretations of the Municipal Act, and Lee's opposition is potentially beneficial (if frequently tedious to bystanders in the debates).

But Lee's sword cuts a wide swath. He inflicts harmful and unneccessary wounds by dressing up his arguments with defamatory characterizations of other board members and Regional District staff. References to "potential tin pot dictators" and to "the hired help" don't do much to raise the level of debate at the board table.

We find the slurs against the staff particularly unfortunate. The Regional District staff do not make policy. They are charged with carrying out the policy decisions of the regional board, and it is our perception that on the whole they do this diligently and capably.

If a regional director disagrees with a staff member, it is his right and duty to adopt a contrary position. But publicly belittling a staff member's integrity is a reprehensible action — if for no other reasons, it's reprehensible because the staff can't publicly defend themselves — and serves no purpose other than to demoralize a group of pople who are trying their best to do a difficult job.

Lee and Harrison are proud of claiming that they rode into office on the crest of a wave of public disenchantment with the regional board. That may be true, but they are now members of regional board. The campaign is over. The harder task is to switch gears from attacking the regional board to making positive efforts to increase its responsiveness to their constituencies.

Unless, of course, that's not what they're about at all. There is more than a little support for the notion that regional government is an evil in itself, and that the best thing that could happen would be its dismantling. If that is their position, then spreading misinformation and invective, is an adept tactic.

For our part, we'd prefer a continuing reform of regional government rather than a return to the days when all the strings were pulled from Victoria.

Reaching out to help each other

By MARYANNE WEST

Having reacted to bad news in the time honoured way and roundly chastized the messenger, shouldn't we now go on to discuss the problems of alcohol abuse in a rational and dispassionate manner? The recent response of students who felt their age group had been singled out unfairly, even though it was within the context of the community at large, is understandable, but put yourself in the position of the responsible community reporter. It would be possible to approach the issue with a story, for example, on the effects of alcohol abuse on productivity at Port Mellon or some other place of work, but we'd shrug our shoulders and say, "That's their problem." We do care deeply, however, about our children, and if they've "inherited a pattern of behaviour" and "are imitating what they see around them" it's not sensational to bring this to our attention. We should be grateful!

Hopefully — though there was little indication in the self-righteous letters — we care particularly about those who are having difficulty in using alcohol in a socially acceptable and non-destructive manner.

Abuse of alcohol is a universal problem in society and cannot be equated with any one type of work. Incipient alcoholics may be found in all walks of life. It seems to be becoming a major problem in all industrialized societies from Russia to Australia. It's not a simple problem where you can point to a single cause. There are many contributing factors, quite a number of them well out of our individual or even corporate control.

Although advertising giving the impression that some form of alcoholic beverage is essential to having fun, being a pro, being accepted by one's peers (important to adults as well as teens!) has come in for much criticism, perhaps more persuasive is the subtle message of most television shows where some form of alcohol is almost always a part of the scene. Undoubtedly thee mass media have accelerated the use of alcohol from something we used with a certain amount of respect to an everyday "necessity" of life.

It was probably inevitable, given our puritanical and archaic drinking laws, that when they were relaxed we'd go overboard. The reaction to the recent article suggests we still harbour deep-rooted guilt feelings, which make the issue an emotional one.

But alcohol, a result of the natural process of fermination, is in itself neither good nor bad. It is the use we make of it which causes problems for individuals, families and society at large. With a number of other things which we sometimes have difficulty in using wisely, it's obviously here to stay and we have to come to terms with it. There doesn't seem much hope in looking to governments for help; they're too deeply involved in making money from the sale thereof, and apart from providing help for the victims of abuse, the usual response to any suggestions for getting at the root causes of our increasing need for stimulants — boredom, lack of challenge, low assessment of our personal worth as citizens, or lack of rewarding and fulfilling employment — is "let's give another course in schools". School courses, straightforward, no-nonsense facts about the effects of alcohol without preaching, are important, but one has to remember we all learn from example than precept. And this brings the issue right home where it belongs to each and everone of us (whether or not we are parents) and the use we make of alchol in our lives.

We are fortunate on the Sunshine Coast to have a lot of dedicated people working to enhance the quality of life. We have a school board working with the teachers to expand our ability to meet the needs of individual children, Continuing Education providing stimulus for leisure time activities, the Resource Society encouraging community self-help programs and physical fitness, the Women's Centre, a Committee for the Family, an Arts Council, service clubs and sports groups, as well as those professionals who are trying to pick up the pieces for families and individuals who are expreriencing difficulties. But all this isn't really enough unless each one of us cares about the community as a whole.

Whether we are conscious of it or not, each one of us contributes to or detracts from the quality of life of the community, to its friendliness, its happiness, its attractiveness, its aspirations and its ideals. And we're lucky, we are still small enough that we can reach out and help each other.

Between the lines

Only $1 billion

By Dennis Fitzgerald

Mr. B.J. Gordon has a plan, but apparently he's run up against some financing problems.

A classified ad under business personals in last Thursday's Province: "Can build interdimensional space ship, price 1 billion. Connact B.J. Gordon, Lake Rd., Denman Island, B.C."

I don't consider myself a particularly paranoid person, therefore I feel safe in telling you that there is a massive coverup operation being conducted by local health authorities, school district officials and major employers.

I don't know how else to explain the fact that almost everybody I know is sick with the flu, or has recently been sick with the flu, or feels like they're about to get sick with the flu. But everywhere we called to try to confirm this massive outbreak, we were assured that things are pretty much normal for this time of year.

I don't recall so many people dragging themselves around in misery last January. Maybe I've just lately fallen in with a sickly crowd.

Or maybe it's not the flu at all but some dreaded new pestilence which has suddenly descended on us, and we're not being told about it because there's no known cure and they don't want to panic the populace.

I think I'll blame it on a master conspiracy organized by B.C. Hydro, the Highways Department and the CIA. Even if they didn't do it, they already have enough plots laid at their feet that they shouldn't notice one more.

It's ironic to see Jim Metzler back at the regional board table rubbing elbows with Jack Marshall, they guy who took his job away in Gibsons. Metzler climbed back aboard after Bernie Mulligan named him alternate director for Area F. Since Mulligan is sharply restricting his political activities Metzler is fast becoming a regular fixture again.

Some people question how Metzler has the nerve to come back to the board table after taking such a drubbing at the polls. Mulligan says he couldn't find anybody else willing to accept all the grief that regional directors are heir to. Maybe Jim just enjoys getting kicked around.

If you're wondering why Barry Innes' Beach-Buoy-takeout operation has been halted midway through its expansion, it's because the building inspector slapped a stop work order on the job.

Barry and the Regional District don't see eye-to-eye on very many things. It's a simple problem really: he wants to do things his way, and they want him to do things their way. Looks like the judge will sort this one out.

Speaking of the judge, it's worth mentioning again, in case you haven't read or heard about it, that a $500 fine is now the norm here for an impaired driving conviction. On top of that you've got a mandatory three-month licence suspension and a six-month probated jail sentence. About the only way you can get a lower fine is to be unemployed.

Sure does sour the old line about one more for the road.

Gibsons is buzzing about the school board's decision to oppose issuance of a liquor permit for the Travelodge proposed to go up near the high school.

The feeling in some quarters is that the area is already aswarm with boozing establishments, and what difference does one more make — particularly since the motel folks won't even consider building if they don't get the licence. There may be a tough fight ahead on this one.

One last item that didn't find its way into print last month. Seems that when the Arts Council's work crew got ready to pour the foundation for the new Arts Centre in Sechelt, they suddenly remembered a very important accessory to any reputable construction project — a time capsule.

So King Anderson dashed over to Trail Bay Mall and rounded up a sackful of typical 20th Century paraphenalia. King says they din't fix a date for digging out the collection, but figured it would turn up naturally enough when the foundation began to deteriorate "in a couple of thousand years or so." That's building with confidence.

Student project well done

Editor, The Times:

The following letter, sent to Bruno Dombroski, merits exposure to our parents, teachers and students. We often hear of the bad things people do, but in my opinion we don't hear enough of the good.

The Industrial Ed students involved in this case are Bob Kobus, Doug Lloyd, Wayne Newcombe and John Richardson. They were in charge of a group of junior students who not only completed a school project but a community project as well.

Thanks Mr. Godkin for your very thoughtful letter.

Frank Holmes, principal
Pender Harbour Secondary School.

Dear Bruno,

I was rather surprised this morning to find our sign on the highway lying on its back among the ferns, and then a few yards farther on to discover a large post bearing my name. I immediately remembered that over three years ago you had said that you would like to make a signpost for our entrance on the highway.

I fully expected that in time you would fulfil your promise, but imagined it would be a carved plaque about two feet long and six inches wide. You can imagine my astonishment to find that the seedling you had chosen for that purpose had in three years grown into a huge totem pole, and setting it up in its place on the highway. I have always had a warm relationship with your school, and this gift will certainly enhance that, and be a very conspicuous reminder of it.

May I offer to you and to your students on behalf of my wife and myself our sincere best wishes for a happy Christmas and a most prosperous New Year.

To everyone who brightened the day at St. Mary's

Editor, The Times:

I would like through the medium of your paper to thank all those who helped in any way and donated decorations for St. Mary's Hospital Christmas 1977.

Now that the jolly Ho! Ho! Ho! and jingle bell season is over, along with the trala la's and joy to the world, Auld Lang Syne and hand shaking are fading into the background for another year. We are now undecking the halls of holly and lights and reflecting all of us that enjoyed bringing cheer to those less fortunate than ourselves and to the visitors and staff of St. Mary's Hospital.

To those in the background who seldom receive recognition but play a big part in the success of the Christmas cheer I would like to mention Mr. Jenkins and the Engineering Dept., who hang lights, man the ladders, provide tools etc; Mr. Gough and the grounds staff who look after the grounds lighting; Jackson Bros. Logging who yearly supply all the Christmas trees; Hayden Killam of Sechelt Building Supply provided all red cello for the decorative bows...and many others too many to mention who gave lights and other decorations and gave a helping hand. Next year when the Christmas lights go on again at St. Mary's, pause and reflect on all those that gave of their time at a busy season to make others happy, and maybe stop to visit a patient who may be lonesome. To all of those good people I offer my thanks and wish them a healthy and happy 1978.

Editor, The Times:

In recent weeks there have been several letters and articles in the Sunshine Coast area press concerning B.C. Hydro's plans for a high voltage transmission link between the Squamish area and Vancouver Island. This project would be an integral component of the high voltage transmission system needed to meet the expected long term power requirements of the Island. The route for the transmission line would traverse parts of the Sunshine Coast region. It appears that there are a number of misunderstandings about this project — and Hydro's motives. The purpose of this letter is to review and clarify the planning process.

The question of "whether or not" a project of this nature is required — and its timing — must be B.C. Hydro's responsibility as the agency accountable for meeting the electrical energy needs of the province. However the question of "how" a project will be done should involve discussion with those who would be affected by it.

In this respect, B.C. Hydro's route planning policy for major transmission projects is basically as follows: (1) transmission lines must be planned not only in a technically and economically responsible way, but with due regard for environmental and social concerns as well. (2) advice on environmental issues can best be obtained from independent consulting teams with expertise in wildlife, forestry, recreation, land use, etc., and consultants' reports will generally be publicly available, and (3) final route location decisions will not be made by Hydro until those affected by the project, as well as appropriate government departments, have had an opportunity to review Hydro's proposals and to comment on them.

To achieve the above, route planning is done in two stages. Phase 1 is a regional overview of all possible route options and their implications, both technically and environmentally. These are then narrowed down to a preferred "corridor", with as many potential variations as possible. The resulting Phase 1 report outlines the rationale for the route preference, and also provides a basic public information document for discussion of the route options with local groups and government resource agencies, before Hydro comes to a final route decision.

We have now reached this point in planning the transmission route from Squamish. The Phase 1 report was released last fall. Except for preliminary feasibility assessments of potential salt water crossing points, there have as yet been no field surveys.

Following discussion of the consultant's report with local and government groups, which may take several months, the consultant will prepare a final recommendation. B.C. Hydro's eventual route decision will then be published in the form of an Addendum to the Phase 1 report. This will complete Phase 1.

Once a basic "corridor" has eventually been decided upon, Phase II can then begin. This includes field surveys to determine a specific right of way along he chosen "corridor" as well as a detailed environmental assessment of the selected route. The Phase II report provides environmental guidelines for the eventual design, construction, and maintenance of the project.

This entire planning procedure is in line with the provincial government's "Guidelines or Linear Development", a copy of which can be obtained from the Environment and Land Use Committee Secretariat, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C.

At present we are, as described above, part way through Phase 1. The Phase 1 study, prepared by a consulting team coordinated by Beak Consultants Ltd., was originally expected to be released last spring, but was not available until fall 1977. Prior to this there was little that could be done in the way of public discussion beyond advising the Regional District and the local media that initial planning was under way, and publishing and Information Bulletin describing the project and the planning process. All of these were done in late 1976, over a year ago.

There is no precise or tidy process for obtaining public comment on a project of this nature that satisfies everyone. Local interest varies considerably, with circumstances, and who might be affected. In the Sunshine Coast area the Regional District has started things off with a public meeting at Madeira Park on January 21. There will no doubt be subsequent meetings with interest groups and others in the area. We are open to advice on the best way of achieving useful public input.

We recognize that few people in the Sunshine Coast area are pleased at the prospect of a high voltage transmission line passing through their area, particularly when the power it would carry is primarily destined for customers on Vancouver Island. It should not be overlooked, however, that a substation to be built in the Sunshine Coast area as part of this project would provide for the long term power needs of the Sechelt-Powell River area, and would eliminate the need for additional transmission lines from Cheekye originally planned for this purpose. Nor should it be overlooked that the power presently used on the Sunshine Coast has been delivered from major power projects over transmission lines affecting people in other parts of B.C.

Location, design, and construction of transmission lines is a complex and costly business but we are prepared to sit down and discuss local impacts and how best they can be minimized.

The timing for a final route decision is not fixed. We had originally hoped to have a basic route selected by the end of 1977, but owing to the delay in the availability of the consultant's report, and the apparent high level of local interest, this was not possible. We are now looking at the spring of 1978 for a route decision. In the meantime we hope to develop a constructive dialogue with those who have concerns about the impacts of this project.

I hope the above will help to clarify some of the misunderstandings that appear to have arisen.

ratepayers give their approval at the meeting later this month. Otherwise, he promises to drop the proposal and continue with the landscaping of his property, aspects of which have concerned some local environmentalists.

Angell's plans for his land, originally the site of a large hunting lodge, include damming Colvin Creek to create a fresh water trout pond. Angell states there was once such a lake on the property.

He also intends to dredge the creek mouth from its current 15 feet to 75 feet.

According to Angell, 75 feet is the original size of the creek mouth, but it was narrowed earlier this century by someone who bureid donkey sleds on the creek banks. Now Angell says the sleds are starting to rot and the creek is beginning to widen again.

"All I'm really doing is restoring the land to its original condition," he said.

Almond said.

Almond told Lee, "It was obvious to me that no board member could make a decision one way or another at that December 12 meeting."

It was for that reason, Almond said, that he called "a meeting of the people concerned so they could come up with a decision and control the thing themselves. If it does take another public hearing, and if people are satisfied, I don't care if it does cost a little extra money."

Director Morgan Thompson said it ought to be noted that Mike Jackson "has been extremely co-operative." The log sort was left off the district's planning map through no fault of Jackson's, and "he could have made it very sticky for us," Thompson said.

the board. He said both men had told him they didn't think the Wise subdivision was within their waterworks district's boundaries.

Dixon said his department was committed to putting in the distribution system for the Wise subdivision because of a $25,000 letter of credit filed by Wise to cover cost of the work. "Somebody has to do the work," he said. "If we do it, we're sure it's up to our standards." Either way, Mr. Wise is the one who's paying for it."

He said the question of whether the line would be extended to the high school also needs to be resolved shortly. "The school is going to have to put in a line somehow for fire protection. If we're not going to do it, the school board ought to be told quickly so they can make other arrangements."

Garden Corner

By Guy Symonds

"For the Rose is Beauty". It would seem that every poet who ever strung words together has written lines about the rose. But that short quotation from a somewhat less than famous bard seems to say it all.

This Corner with the gardener's eternal optimism refuses to dwell on the sunless hours, the late dawns and early nightfalls, and seeks relief in the eternal promise of a spring soon to come. Now the recent snow has passed as quickly as it come — not soon, it is devoutly hoped to return. The air is mild, and though there is no way that the ground will tolerate being tampered with yet, there is little harm surely in anticpating some of the delights to come.

So let's talk about one of the very greatest of those delights, the rose bush in the garden. Incidentally, the timing is not all that bad, because the experts say that just as soon as the ground can be worked, it will be time to set out your new rosebushes.

Probably one of the first and most basic items in dealing with this "Queen of the Garden" is familiarity with — or at least the ability to recognize — the various types of roses. This is not all that easy, and there are experts who cannot always identify all of them. But the most common ones can be recognized from description.

First the Hybrid Tea, which carry their blooms singly (but which include the Grandiflora, a hybrid cross with the Florabunda which has blooms the size of the Tea but has the ability to produce them in small clusters). They will bloom all summer and into the autumn.

Floribunda carry their blooms in clusters and include the Hybrid Polyantha. They bloom intermittently all summer.

Baby Ramblers or Polyanthas carry small blooms in profusion on low shrub-like plants and last throughout a long season.

How often have you heard someone speak longingly of "the old-fashioned rose that had such a wonderful scent"? These were what are called the Hybrid Perpetuals and were the forerunners of the Hybrid Teas. Nostalgic recollection of their perfume is no imagination as they were and are noted for their fragrance and size. Their drawback is that they fall in shapliness in comprison with the Hybrid Tea standards. They are, however, hardy and vigourous.

Then there are the Shrub Roses and their name are legion. They include the Moss Rose, Hybrid Musks, Hybrid Sweetbriers, Cabbage and a host of others, all of which have the one common feature of growing on sizeable shrubs.

Finally, on this coast particularly, we are all familiar with the Ramblers and the Climbers, because they are so adaptable and apparently so happy in this climate.

This is not a detailed list, but it might help someone who plans a planting of roses and would like to know what to expect from what is set out.

Not many homes or gardeners can support a rose garden or even a rose walk. That sort of use of the rose generally calls for a rather more grand conception of landscaping than most of us care to attempt. Also they need a lot or room and cannot stand a restricted environment. But it may be borne in mind that generally speaking roses are more impressive if they are massed or grouped rather than scattered throughout a garden in isolated individual bushes.

This thought may be carried through to varieties too. Even if a garden is small, keep the varieties together in groups. The same applies to height. Rose plants differ greatly and mixing short with tall indiscriminately will spoil the look of the bed and detract from the beauty of the bush and "the Rose is Beauty." More about planting later.

The Creek runoff

Fire Dept. needs help

By Annie Dempster, 885-3326

FIRE DEPT.

The Roberts Creek Fire Department is in dire need of volunteers. Our area is solely dependent on our local volunteer fire department for fire protection. At present the number of people giving this very necesasary service is far short of ideal. The department is covered by compensation and liability insurance for 25 people, male or female. At present, there are only 18 volunteers in the department.

If you are community minded and would like to become involved in a worthwhile cause, why not go down to the fire hall Monday night at 7 p.m. or give Glen Kraus (the fire chief) a call at 885-2919. The only requirement is that you be physically fit. The crew has a practice every Monday night for two hours from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. If your application is accepted, you will be sent to Vancouver for training. Kraus says, "For a volunteer department they are quite efficient. As a matter of fact, they are damn good." He also said, "Originally I hadn't planned to become socially involved as I figured I had a job to do, but when you work in such close contact with people and have to rely on one another, you can't help but become socially involved with them". The people in the department seem very close indeed and very much at ease with one another.

So come on you good people out there, let's help relieve our present firemen of some of their work load.

LEGION ELECTIONS

Roberts Creek Royal Canadian Legion Branch No. 219 held their election of officers on Wednesday, January 11. Ernie Fossett was elected president, replacing Roy Milner; Don Black - first vice president; Adam Hutchinson - treasurer. John Connor remains as secretary and Ron Oram was elected sargeant-at-arms. Cliff Beerman was the installing officer.

The branch is now accepting new memberships for fraternal affiliates. The cost is $15 annually.

The boys are starting a games night every Friday evening as of January 20. Sounds like fun. See you there. Marlene challenges Ernie to the first crib game.

THINK POSITIVE

Let's think positive on any new recreation plans that may come up in future.

HURRY BACK, JACK

Please hurry and get well Jack Tiernan. We miss you at school. Not one soul has cast an insult all week.

DOG PROBLEM

There seems to be a problem with dogs roaming at large in the area. One lady complained of three dogs chasing her and barking at her heels as she walked to the post office, and one of the dog's owners looking on and laughing. Hopefully the dogs are not vicious, but it can be a very frightening experience to a person who is not used to dogs chasing at her heels. Wouldn't it be ideal if we could keep our pets confined to our yards so as they are not an annoyance or frightening to others.

GRIPE OF THE WEEK
WATER SYSTEM

Gordon Dixon, regional district public works superintendent, will answer questions about expansions of the water system in Roberts Creek at the January 18 meeting tonight of the Community Association. The meeting begins at 8 p.m. in the Community Hall.

The 13th jinx

By Peggy Connor, 885-9347

FRIDAY 13 BRIDGE

The Merry-go-round general bridge party held in St. Hilda's Church Hall Friday, January 13, got off to a late start due to the 13th jinx that put a couple of the players in the ditch.

It was two separate cars and that is all we are going to say about that.

There are ten tables with a mixed group of avid bridge players who thoroughly enjoyed the evening.

All winners received prizes of plants, a gift that will grow for you. First prize for singles went to Charlie Humm and Fred Espley and second to Bessie Shaw and Lillian Thomas. Consolation winners were Helen Rutherford and Tom Lamb.

Couples winners were: First, Herb and Moria Richter; Second, John and Mae Parsons; Consolation prize, Lorna and Ron Huggins.

Refreshments were served by the host group who were the Sechelt Auxiliary to St. Mary's Hospital under the chairperson Margaret Humm.

TRAVELLERS

Ken and Martha Griffiths with Son Curt were off to California just before Christmas. They drove down to Monterey to visit their daughter Carmen Garrod. Carmen recently received her papers certifying she is now a C.S.R. court reporter. She is taking up duties at her first job in that capacity at the Monterey Court.

The Griffiths arrived the day the drought ended which made the Californians glad and them sad as they experienced B.C. weather. It was wet and miserable all during their visit.

Driving enabled them to stop as they wished at places of interest. One place they thought they would see was Alcatraz, but the bookings were filled for the week. Reservations are a necessity which they hadn't realized.

As Ken is a commercial fisherman they had a keen interest in the activities and the boats at the Fishermen's Wharf at San Francisco. They found sea otters most entertaining as they watched them frolicking in the water and cracking seashells on their bellies.

NEW ART BUILDING

The building for the Sunshine Coast Arts Council is fast taking shape. Take a drive around and have a look; it is just below Hackett Park.

Winners of the raffle held just before Christmas was Mrs. Dorothy Hall of Halfmoon Bay who won the painting by Yvette Kent of the Sechelt Towing tug "Sechelt Chief". This vessell is well known to the Halls as it plies the waters in front of their Welcome Beach home.

Second prize, a vase by Vicki, was won by Leisa Cummings of Madeira Park. Third prize, a basket, and the work of Doris Gust, was won by J. Hindson of Selma Park.

NEW RAFFLE

The next raffle for the Arts Council is already on the go with tickets available at Whitaker House for two bits a chance.

First prize will be a painting by artist Jean Pylot of Selma Park. It's a floral work. Second is a hanging terrarium with plants done by Dosie Bryant. Third is a pottery coffee pot by Mick Henry of Roberts Creek. They will all be drawn for around Easter time.

Each raffle goes towards the building fund so when you take a chance on the lovely prizes you also contribute to a building that will add to the character of Sechelt village.

Don't renew your car insurance until you've asked about...

All B.C. vehicles must carry the Basic Autoplan insurance. This protection gives you coverage of $75,000 Third Party Legal Liability and "No Fault" Accident Benefits.

If you feel this isn't adequate for your needs, ask any Autoplan agent or Motor Vehicle Branch office about the wide range of optional coverage that is available.

1. If you feel you need more Third Party Legal Liability coverage, it is available in amounts from $100,000 to $10 million.

2. Worried about fire, theft, windstorm, lightning? Specified Perils provides coverage against this and is available with a $50 deductible.

3. What about Comprehensive coverage? It provides protection against virtually all risks, including glass breakage, but not including collision damage. This is available as a package with Collision insurance or separately with a $50 deductible.

4. Many motorists purchase Collision coverage which pays for the cost of repairs to your vehicle in the event of an accident when you are at fault. This is available only with Comprehensive in a wide choice of deductibles.

5. You may have additional equipment such as a tape deck not installed by the manufacturer, a camper, canopy, winch, citizens band radio or other special equipment. You can be covered for these items and others. Any Autoplan agent or Motor Vehicle Branch office can provide you with information on this and other Autoplan coverages.

6. You can purchase Loss of Vehicle Use coverage, so that if your vehicle is not driveable as a result of an accident—for which you are responsible—you will be reimbursed for the cost of a substitute means of transportation. You are covered, under your basic policy, for Loss of Vehicle Use, if the loss is by theft.

7. Make certain you are in the proper rate class, which is based on vehicle use and the principal operator.

8. Do you hate line-ups? For your own convenience renew early. The deadline for renewal is midnight, Tuesday, February 28, 1978.

9. If you want to finance your premiums, the Corporation has established an Autoplan premium financing plan, that any Autoplan agent or Motor Vehicle Branch office can explain to you.

10. To renew simply take your renewal form to any Autoplan agent or Motor Vehicle Branch office. They will help you complete it, or make any changes and provide you with new decals and an insurance certificate. If you do not receive a renewal form by mail, take your present Vehicle Licence/Owner's Certificate and driver's licence to any Autoplan agent or Motor Vehicle Branch office.

British Columbia's Autoplan is independent and self-supporting. In Manitoba and Saskatchewan, government operated auto insurance plans are partially subsidized and offer poorer benefits than received by B.C. motorists. Still, ICBC rates are in line and sometimes lower. Here are examples for your specific region.

DRIVER: 30 years and over, or any female or married male over 25. No accidents in B.C. in the last 2 years, 3 years elsewhere. Vehicle used for pleasure only.

COVERAGE: Public Liability and Property Damage $200,000. Collision $100 deductible. Comprehensive $50 deductible.

AUTOMOBILES	Nanaimo B.C.	Swift Current Sask.	Flin Flon Man.
1970 Buick Skylark	$173	$148	$133
1974 Ford Mustang II	$186	$191	$150
1976 Dodge Coronet	$203	$224	$182

COMMUNITY NEWS

Though the Welcome Beach Hall has been closed for renovations for the past two weeks, it has been the scene of great activity with willing volunteers stripping the walls, installing acoustic tile, while a group of ladies were cleaning and painting the kitchen. The hall, with a sparkling newness, is now re-opened for action. Shuffleboard games are continuing this week and Ronnie Dunn's "Fun Yourself into Shape" class will be held tomorrow (Thursday) afternoon as usual at 1 p.m. There will be a cribbage afternoon on Sunday, January 22 at 2 p.m. Admission is 50 cents. Carpet bowling will resume on Monday, January 23 at 1:30 p.m.

All Halfmoon Bay volunteer firemen are urged to attend the firehall tonight, Wednesday, at 7 p.m. for the purpose of electing officers for 1978. A B.C. Hydro film on safety hazards will be shown.

Next evening of the film session will be at the hall on Thursday, January 26, at 7:30 p.m. with a sun-filled program about Mexico, Central America and Brazil. So, if you feel winter is closing in on you and you are wistfully thinking of your more fortunate friends basking in the sunshine of Hawaii, California, Arizona and Florida, this program offers you an evening of escape. After a visit to Mexico, you can swing through Guatemala, Honduras, Nicaragua and Costa Rica and drop in on Brazil for a visit to a coffee plantation and to see some interesting examples of Brazilian art and architecture.

AREA "B" RATEPAYERS ASSOCIATION

The Ratepayers have scheduled a general meeting at the hall for Monday, January 30, at 7:30 p.m. and notices have been mailed to all members. Speakers will be Peter Hoemberg, Regional Board Director for Area "B" and Art Angell.

The January meeting of the Halfmoon Bay Hospital Auxiliary was held at the home of Marie Ives with 18 members present. New officers installed were Geri Smith, president, Ruth Forrester, secretary and Helen Hain, treasurer. Three new members welcomed were Stella Maddock, Audrey Penn and Marj Nygard. Preliminary plans were discussed for a tea and sale of crafts in May. The Auxiliary's next Thrift Shop duty will be on February 4 for which donations will be gratefully received.

Eva Lyons is home after spending Christmas and the New Year with her daughter, Marilyn Russell, and her three children in Montreal. It was a real white Christmas with snow drifts up to five feet, but generally the weather was good, with bright days and lots of sunshine. On the return home, the flight was delayed for two hours by icing conditions.

Outstanding among the palefaces of Halfmoon Bay are four handsome suntans, the very sight of which is enough to set one thinking nostalgically of the Hawaiian sunshine and the soft Kona winds which created them.

The Trousdell family, Bob, Jean Carrie and Billy, are home after three weeks on Oahu, two of which were spend in Waikiki and one at Kuilima on the north shore of the island. There the beaches were impressive, but the seas usually too rough for swimming. However, the Hyatt Hotel where the Trousdells stayed, had a large swimming pool and horseback riding, which kept the youngsters happy and occupied. Though there were Christmas decorations everywhere the school choirs sang carols in most of the hotels, the Trousdells found it difficult to get into the Christmas mood. They took a tour in a small plane which flew them over all eight islands of Hawaii, and gave them some spectacular views of volcano craters. The plane landed on Maui, Kauai and the Kona coast of Hawaii where they had ground tours.

Maria Mahar would like to arrange a get-together of residents of the Sunshine Coast who hail from Newfoundland. Anyone interested in a Newfie get-together should telephone Mrs. Mahar at 885-9435 or see her at the B & J Store.

BEEFS AND BOUQUETS

We have received an interesting suggestion from Doreen Richardson that we include a "Beefs and Bouquets" items in the column each week and, as she feels sure we shall get plenty of beefs, she has started us off with a bouquet. While driving to the Arena in Sechelt on January 12, she got stuck in the gravel. She sat there for a while with her wheels refusing to do anything besides spinning and several cars passed her. Eventually a van stopped and out jumped Guy and Rolland Martel. They were most friendly and helpful and lost no time in towing her out of the rut.

The Trousdells also offered a bouquet to their wonderful neighbors Jim and Katherine Kelly, Pat Ness and Clarence Speck who took such good care of their house and animals during their absence.

Please telephone your beefs and bouquets for next week's column to 885-9479.

Mrs. Ruby Warne is welcoming the birth of her third great-grandchild, Travis Jordie Weir. The new baby, who is the son of Mrs. Warne's grandson, George Weir and his wife Jill, is a brother for Cara.

A young tom cat, calico-coloured with no tail, was befriended by Ruth Forrester during the recent snowstorm. As Ruth already has three cats of her own who resent the newcomer, she would like to find a good home for this gentle and affectionate animal. You can telephone her at 885-2418.

An Important Message to all Senior Citizens

The Government of British Columbia urges all senior citizens who may be eligible for SAFER and have not yet applied, to do so.

Shelter Aid for Elderly Renters (SAFER) is a programme introduced last July which gives senior citizens direct monthly cash payments to assist in the payment of rent. The amount of the SAFER payment is based on how much income the senior citizen receives and how much is paid for rent.

Eligibility

All senior citizens who meet EACH of the following conditions are eligible:

- 65 years or older
- renters
- paying more than 30% of their income for rent
- in receipt of Canadian Old Age Security
- the senior citizen OR spouse must have:

1) resided in British Columbia for two years immediately prior to application
OR
2) resided in British Columbia for a continuous five year period at any time.

Extension of Retro-Active Payment Period

When the SAFER programme was first introduced, information cards were sent to ALL senior citizens of British Columbia.

Based on the completed application forms received to date, it is apparent that many senior citizens who may be eligible for SAFER have not as yet applied. To ensure that all senior citizen renters in B.C. receive the full benefits due to them, we have extended the closing date for retroactive payments to March 31, 1978. Payments can extend back to July 1, 1977.

SAFER and Rent-Aid (Renters' Tax Credit)

This is to remind ALL senior citizens that they should apply for Rent-Aid when completing their 1977 Income Tax Return whether they have been receiving SAFER payments or not. Every senior citizen renting in the Province as of December 31, 1977 is entitled to a MINIMUM of $80.00 in Rent-Aid.

Full information, assistance and application forms are available at the B.C. Housing Management Commission in Vancouver and at the Regional Offices of the Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing in Victoria, Prince George, Kelowna and Cranbrook.

An application form and information can also be obtained by completing and mailing the coupon below to:

Boat courses set

The Sunshine Coast Power Squadron will hold their monthly meeting at the home of Kent Carruthers on Friday, January 20 at 8 p.m.

The Executive will meet at seven p.m.

The accelerated boating courses with instructors, Gordon Hall in Sechelt and Chuck Williams at Pender Harbour received the results of the basic boating exams: Twenty-two wrote the exam and 21 passed. Congratulations to all! Commander Chuck Williams hopes to present the graduates with their certificates the night of the 20th and swear in these new members.

Training Officer David Fyles reports the new class of Accelerated Basic Boating has commenced. It is being held at Elphinstone Secondary School in Gibsons, Wednesday evening at 7 p.m. Past Commander Dave Smethurst is the instructor and 14 have enrolled so far.

The Advanced Piloting Course with instructor Ted Ashton and Seamanship Sail are continuing at Sechelt.

We are looking forward to an interesting program in store for us. Gordon Hall is going to tell us about his Alaska trip.

All the best for 1978. May you never run out of wind or use your keel as a depth finder.

OUR RECENT SNOW may have been reduced to the odd patch in the shade in most areas along the coast, but there's still plenty to be found atop Mt. Elphinstone. Anyone willing to walk the last three of four miles up the logging road can find a winter wonderland near the Tetrahedron ski hut.

R.C. Hospital Auxiliary news

A gloomy, wet day didn't prevent 35 members of the Roberts Creek Hospital Auxiliary meeting at the Golf Club for their annual Luncheon and installation of officers.

President, Mrs. Wilma Rodgers, conducted a short meeting at which the committee chairmen were appointed, namely: Thrift Shop, Gladys and Jim Ironside; Phoning Committee, Charlotte Raines; Volunteer Chairman, Bunny Shupe; Sunshine, Lillian Thomas; Hostess, Betty Merrick. Formation of the Catering Committee was left until the next meeting.

Representatives on the Co-Ordinating Council are Wilma Rodgers and Pauline Lamb, with alternates Lil Flummerfelt and Madeline Grose. The meeting was then adjourned and after a short social pause, Mrs. Ada Dawe, Sechelt Citizen of the Year and a member of the Shelt Hospital Auxiliary, installed the officers for 1978 in a candlelight ceremony. She brought us greetings from the Sechelt members. Well-known to most it was a great pleasure to have her with us.

Justice was then done to the luncheon, prepared by Emmy Drohman and George Leith. Congratulations to you both and the empty plates were a tribute to the excellent fare.

We were pleased to welcome Lillian Shields back into the Auxiliary along with new members Lisa Graham, Lila Porter, Marion Proulx and Vivian Woodward. Auxiliaries can always absorb more people, who can usually find some aspect of volunteer work suited to their abilities and liking, either inside or outside the hospital. Next meeting Monday, February 14 at 11 a.m. St. Aidan's Hall. — Madeline Gross.

Catholic mass set for Egmont

A Catholic mass will be celebrated Sunday, July 22, 3 p.m. at the Egmont Community Hall.

Father Tom Nicholson said he had hopes for sufficient attendance to justify holding the service regularly, perhaps on a monthly basis.

Mass is now celebrated weekly at Sechelt, Gibsons and the Sechelt Indian Reserve.

THE GALES' Rick Ion, number 10, and Roy McBride, number 7, battle the North Van defence in their game Saturday. McBride's efforts were to no avail this time but paid off later with a goal late in the first period.

Gales split series with the Winterhawks

By ED LANDS

The Coast Gales got back on the winning track Saturday night with a 4-3 win over the North Vancouver Winterhawks, but fell off again Sunday, losing the rematch 9-7.

In the first period Saturday it looked as though the Hawks might walk away from the Gales. With goals by Willets and Gould the Hawks appeared ready to greet the first intermission with a two goal cushion.

Suddenly, with seconds remaining, Roy McBride decided to even things up a little and scored on a pass from linemate Dave Mewhort.

Most noteworthy in the opening period was the bone crunching check handed out by defenceman Rick Ion early in the game.

Ion caught the Hawks' Lachance with his head down and promptly dealt out an uplifting experience to the North Van forward.

In leaving the ice, Lachance needed assistance from two of his fellow players and never returned to the game.

Referee Mike Gagnon decided some consolation was needed for the visitors and awarded Ion an elbowing penalty.

At 8:15 of the second period the Winterhawks' Gould picked up his second goal to put his team ahead 3-1. Jim Gray then brought the Gales back to within a goal of the visitors at 12:55, with Les Hopkins and Stu Orpen assisting.

The third period saw Gale's Mewhort tied up the game at 1:57 with Sean Van Streppen assisting.

The stage was now set for young Bobby Dixon to send home the winner with less than four minutes left.

Centreman Robbie Williams made a very heads-up play, spotting his left-winger open in the slot; Dixon's quick shot was the key factor in the goal.

Sunday's rematch between the two clubs resulted in a high scoring affair, the locals bowing out 9-7.

With the score tied 7-7 late in the third period, a flukey Winterhawks goal scored by Davis proved to be the winner. An empty net goal rounded out the scoring.

Gales's scorers were Hopkins (3), Mewhort, Ivan Dixon (2) and Butch Rogers. North Van scorers were Davis (3), Woodman (2), Willets, Matsen, Mason and Ennant.

On the rocks

— by Pat Edwards

Response has been good to the mixed bonspiel scheduled for the coming week-end. Don't forget the rink must be skipped by a lady curler. A number of the league rinks are juggling positions and entering this fun-'spiel. If you haven't already done so, get your name on the list posted at the rink. The registration fee is only $10 per rink, and the fun you will have is guaranteed to be well worth the money. Refreshments will be available, too.

The Canfor bonspiel held last week was a very successful event, with the Dave Gant rink taking top honours. Dave and his rink consisting of Jan Newbauer at lead, Roger Hocknell playing second and Dan Reitlo third, will represent Port Mellon at the Canfor 'spiel in Prince George in March. Good luck, fellas!

The high school rep. team with sponsor Harry Turner travelled to North Vancouver for a bonspiel over the week-end. We will bring you their results next week.

Focus on fitness

Straighten up for the health of it

By IAN HUNTER
Physiotherapist, St. Mary's Hospital

The Fitness Program on our coast offers you the opportunity to voluntarily maintain your fitness and upgrade it through activity. The Medical Profession and its associated professions provides care and rehabilitation to return you to standards of health and fitness, within generally accepted norms, when some circumstance has reduced this level.

However, to complete the package there is a need to apply some general "rules to live by." Call these what you will — correct application of body mechanics, preventative medicine, safety rules. Even your fitness program, which in itself is a form of preventative medicine, may prove your undoing if you ignore the safety rules which tie our package together. Even if you don't participate in the Fitness Program, the "rules to live by" are essential and if they are ignored, you will certainly participate in the other half of our package sooner or later as some of you have experienced already.

The members of our fitness team are very aware of these "safety rules" and, as part of their area of expertise is "preventing" disability, they will be reminding you (if you know already) and teaching you (if you don't) how to apply some of these "safety rules."

Good posture, defined as an alignment of the body parts so that there is perfect balance of one part on another, a state that can be maintained with the minimum of muscular effort and which is aesthetically pleasing to the eye, is one of the major safety rules to observe. This "good posture" is something to be maintained through activity as well as in static situations. When it is not, it throws stress on the body which may result in injury and so must be an indivisible part of anything you do.

This leads us to some easily appreciated examples of this: lifting, lifting and turning, and reaching. Lifting an object, whether heavy or light, should always be done by bending the knees while maintaining "good posture" of the back. To bend the back and lift is to adopt "poor posture" while performing an activity, and this leads to a situation where the risk of injury is greatly multiplied. When lifting is done correctly, the posture of the back is maintained throughout the activity and the legs are used correctly within their mechanical boundaries.

Similarly, with turning and lifting, we may lift correctly only to risk squirting out slipped discs here there and everywhere by not moving our feet. Correctly, of course, we should lift with our legs and a straight back, then move our feet in the direction that the object is next required. This falls then exactly within the rules of the game.

Reaching is another situation in which over-extension of the spine constitutes poor postural position with a resultant stress of body mechanics. Whenever anything is out of reach of a normally raised arm then a stepping stool should be used.

Lifting objects and then holding them away from you is a No-No. Perhaps the object is too bulky, or maybe it will dirty your best bib and tucker. Whatever the reason — look out! You are courting disaster. The outstretched arms lengthens the lever and greatly increases the stress on the spine. Hug the object close to your chest.

T.V. slump; another legacy of our age. A back's best friend is a straight backed hard chair. If this is not available then it's a good idea to learn to sit properly in any chair. Here's how: tilt head back then bring it forward tucking in chin as you do it. This will straighten your back. Tighten your tummy and raise your chest. Now move back to the back rest, maintaining your position. Incidentally, all you drivers, this is the correct driving position — close to the pedals with the seat belt in position and perhaps a hard back rest — available, commercially.

None of this is easy, is it? Nothing worthwhile ever is, trite but no less true.

There are a few things to make life easier; ladies, whilst ironing, men, whilst working at the workbench, place one foot on a low stool or block of wood, it will stave off poor posture followed by fatigue — try it and see.

Lastly for now, when in doubt — Don't! When an object is too bulky or too heavy always get help — you'll save time in the end.

Wildlife club looks for aid

At the first meeting of the recently elected executive the necessity of members getting their feet wet in the running of the Club activities instead of sitting on the sidelines and letting someone else do all the work was emphasized.

New keen members are required and perhaps the meeting of Jan. 11 was indicative of what to expect this year. There was a short business meeting and the Greenpeace whale saving film was shown thanks to the efforts of Barry Lavender. It was a really excellent film and seemed to meet with the approval of the twenty or thirty people present.

More advertising of the Club's activities will be given to the press and all members will be filling in the new application form which tries to define the interests of the individual. A program to try and meet those interests will be developed and a newsletter will be put out when enough material has been collected.

The Club will get more involved in local affairs and conservation will try to cover the fish and wildlife aspect as well as people and the problems affecting them, i.e. coastal oil transportation, B.C. Hydro, etc., and it is hoped that there will be more co-operation between the Wildlife Club and other organizations interested in the same objectives.

The Juniors will be asked what other activities apart from shooting they would be interested in, the idea being to involve them more in general Club affairs.

Films will be shown at regular monthly meetings held on the first Wednesday of every month at 7:30 at the Clubhouse. We now have a list of National Film Board releases dealing with environmental and wildlife subjects and we will also be taking advantage of the offer of Elphinstone School to use the video tapes available through the Resource Centre. At the next meeting, the video tape dealing with the subject of mercury poisoning, Minimata disease, will be shown.

Shooting is in the care of a new co-ordinator and interest in this field is growing. The Junior program is well under way on Monday nights, pistol shooting on Tuesdays and .22 shooting on Thursdays. Efforts are to be made to organize a women's shooting group and more, much more, emphasis will be placed on the use and safety of firearms in the upcoming CORE program, passing of which is an essential part of getting a hunter's licence for the first time.

Two Club fishing derbies will be held, one early in the year for the enthusiast and the second in the summer, as a more social affair. Gerry Berdahl has volunteered his services to demonstrate the skills of fly tying and fly casting. This will take place on Wednesday evenings and will be for members only. Phone Garry to confirm starting date of this program.

Now it is up to the membership to get in there with their Executive and make this a year to be remembered. Keep in mind that the Club is only as good as the effort the members put into it and it is up to each and everyone to get involved.

The workshop will be a combination of demonstrations, exercise and dance sessions, and talks covering a range of related topics including the history of belly dancing, traditional and cabaret costumes and how to make them, make-up, jewellery, and good records and books on the subject.

No previous dancing experience is necessary, and participants need bring only a notebook if they wish to make notes, and a piece of fruit if they wish a light snack. Dress should be comfortable to move in, and tea will be provided.

The fee for the workshop is $12, and pre-registration and advance payment are necessary by Monday, January 23rd. Those interested are asked to call Fitness Service at 885-3611, or drop in at our office above Whitaker House.

Lockstead raps transport study's recommendations

MLA Don Lockstead, NDP transportation critic, last week blasted a provincial government-sponsored study, saying that if the report's recommendations to withdraw transportation subsidies were carried out, they would lead to a doubling or tripling of fares.

Lockstead also said, however, that the recommendations would likely not be accepted by the government because to do so "would be political suicide."

The study was conducted by the Center for Transportation Studies at the University of British Columbia for the B.C. Department of Energy.

The study area included the B.C. coast from Powell River north on the mainland and Campbell River north on Vancouver Island.

Because of the variety of northern transportation needs, the current system of subsidizing individual companies should be phased out and replaced with transportation allowances to individuals in isolated communities, according to the study.

This would allow those individuals to make their own transportation choices based on their own needs, the study says, and would be more equitable than any subsidy system.

Isolated communities are defined as those not serviced by rail or connected by paved road to a provincial highway system.

Lockstead said discontinuance of subsidies would lead to increases in freight rates of 300 percent or more in some areas. And another ferry rate increase "would be a economic disaster for the coast," he said.

Lockstead said the NDP does support some of the study's recommendations, such as federal upgrading of multi-purpose docking facilities on the coast, opening of some private wharves to the public, upgrading navigational aids and construction of an airport for the Bella Bella area.

Recreation committee meets

The January meeting of the Halfmoon Bay Recreation Committee was held at the home of Chairman Peggy Connor owing to the Welcome Beach Hall being closed for alterations.

The next meeting, Monday, Feb. 13, will be the Annual meeting for the group and will be held at 7:30 p.m. at Welcome Beach Hall. A good program is planned and all interested people in the Halfmoon Bay area are welcome to attend.

Reports on the Christmas party held for the children showed it was a most successful event for the young of the area. A suggestion that it be held in the afternoon next year met with good response as the youngest members form the largest numbers.

The memorial fund for Jim Cooper is growing. Anyone wishing to donate to the fund that will be used as a scholarship for an athletic student, may do so by sending it to Mrs. Donna Perry, RR 1, Halfmoon Bay.

Barbara Laakso gave a report on cross country skiing. She is willing to take a group and show them the tricks and trails for this popular sport.

It was decided to send a delegate to the Seminar for Commissioners to be held at the Mission Leisure Centre, in Mission on February 1. The very fitting theme "Planning Process" should be of great assistance in planning for the new park hoped for in this area. Mr. Clive Justice, a landscape architect and park planner, and Mr. Brian Johnston, consultant and founder of Professional Environmental Recreation Consultants Ltd., will be there.

Both guests have been involved in many Parks and Recreational Master Plan Processes in communities in Western Canada.

Recreation is a universal experience which should be enjoyed by all and for which each of us has some responsibility.

Playing fields are the prime need in this area. District Lot 1623 is where plans are being made to fill this need.

All interested in sport activity are asked to attend the meeting on February 13 at the hall, to assist in plans for the park.

Barbara Laakso is nominating chairman for the elections to be held at this meeting. Nominations for directors are to be sent or phoned to her at 885-9617.

Eleven members were present at the meeting including a newcomer to the area, Mrs. Helen Stephen from Atlin.

Forthcoming plans include the Easter egg hunt and pancake breakfast. A hike to Smugglers Cove will take place next week.

Corrections

Sechelt Indian Band Chief Calvin Craigan was mistakenly identified in a Times photograph last week as Stu Craigen, 1977 recipient of the band's Athlete of the Year award. The Times regrets the error.

Also, it was reported that former Gibsons Mayor Larry Labonte had been presented a gavel by Mayor Lorne Blaine at council's January 3 meeting. Although scheduled to receive the award on that date, Labonte was prevented from attending the meeting by weather conditions, as was the Times reporter.

Two lifesaving courses planned

Two lifesaving courses, one in cardio-pulmonary resuscitation and another in survival first aid are to be offered on the Peninsula next month.

Cardio-pulmonary resuscitation is a new technique that can be applied when treating a person whose breathing and heart beat has ceased. It will maintain life until the victim can be transferred to hospital.

According to Continuing Education Co-ordinator Karin Hoemberg, whose department is sponsoring the course, statistics show that a startling 60 per cent of victims will die before the arrival of skilled help unless cardio-pulmonary resuscitation is available.

The first class will begin at 7:30 p.m., February 16, in the library of Sechelt elementary school. Another three sessions will be held on following Thursdays. Each class lasts for an hour and a half and the course fee is $6.

The program, to be taught by Fitness Service worker Evans Hermon, is open to policemen, firemen, lifeguards, rescue workers, high-risk industry employees, families of cardiac patients and others interested in learning the technique of cardio-pulmonary resuscitation.

A course in survival first aid will begin February 1 at Elphinstone secondary school in Room 111. A fee of $7.50 is charged for eight hours of instruction to be taught by Mary Fraser.

Successful candidates will receive a certificate from the Workers Compensation Board.

Persons wishing to register for this course should contact Fraser at 886-2512.

Those interested in cardio-pulmonary resuscitation class should contact the Centre for Continuing Education at 885-3512.

Gibsons Hospital Auxiliary report

The first regular monthly meeting in 1978 was held on Wednesday, 11 January 1978, in our new quarters above Ken's Lucky Dollar. The room is large and well ventilated and will amply suit our purpose once our belongings are all unpacked and everything set in its proper place, which will give it a more homey atmosphere.

Under these rather trying circumstances our President, Joan Rigby, brought the meeting to order and conducted an excellent meeting considering her lengthy agenda.

Annual reports were heard from the President as well as Committee Chairpersons, and a very pretty picture was painted of all the volunteer activities carried out over the past year as well as many worthwhile fund raising projects in aid of purchasing equipment for the betterment of the patients at St. Mary's Hospital. The enthusiasm shown by All Auxilians has been very gratifying indeed and we wish to salute them for their efforts and trust that next year we can do even better!

December reports were also heard from the various committees, which included the results of a Christmas party for the Extended Care Patients in St. Mary's Hospital. In Annie Metcalfe's words, the party was a delight to all the patients. Twenty members worked for a total of 76 hours.

We wish to thank you, the public, once again for contributing so generously to our Christmas Card Fund Raising Project. It was indeed a great success and the money will be given to St. Mary's Hospital.

A two minute silence was observed in memory of Mrs. Jeannie Meadows, who passed away during the Yuletide Season. She will be sadly missed by all our members.

Our President informed us that one of our members, Mrs. Marguerite Myers had the misfortune to fall and hurt her back. We wish you a speedy recovery Marguerite and hope to have you back with us real soon.

The next meeting of our Auxiliary will be held on Wednesday, February 1, 1978 in our new quarters above Ken's Lucky Dollar. As always we look forward to a full turnout. See you there! — Marie Trainor.

Outstanding business loans by the chartered banks have quadrupled during the last ten years, the Canadian Banker's Association says.

Egmont talk on Cheekye line scheduled tonight

Vera McAllister, alternate regional board director for Area A, will conduct a discussion of B.C. Hydro's proposed Cheekye transmission line at the Egmont Community Centre tonight, January 18.

The discussion will begin about 8:30 p.m., following the annual meeting of the Egmont Community Centre Club, which begins at 7:30 p.m. Non-members are invited to attend at either time.

McAllister has studied the Hydro consultant's report on the proposed 500 kilovolt transmission line. The report recommends that the line cross the northern peninsula at Sakinaw Lake and, failing that, be routed through the Egmont-Earls Cove area. The line is designed to serve energy requirements for Vancouver Island as projected by B.C. Hydro and is scheduled for completion in 1983.

A community club representative described the meeting tonight as especially significant in that a public meeting to discuss the plan with Hydro officials has been set for Saturday, January 21, 2 p.m. at the Madeira Park Community Hall.

Alcoholics Anonymous

By Vern Giesbrecht

There are about 100 members of Alcoholics Anonymous on the Sechelt Peninsula, men and women who came to realize that their craving for alcohol was controlling, and in some cases, slowly ruining their lives.

At their weekly meetings — Monday at the Athletic Hall in Gibsons, Wednesday at Madeira Park Community Hall, Thursday at Wilson Creek Community Hall, all starting at 8:30 p.m. — members may discuss one of the 12 steps in the AA program, listen to a doctor or other guest speaker or relate personal experiences. They also have social gatherings, such as birthday parties, with the number of candles on the cake indicating how long the honored member has been in AA.

As one member put it, the AA method of dealing with alcoholism combines elements of religion, psychology and group therapy. The first of the 12 steps states, "We admitted we were powerless over alcohol . . . that our lives had become unmanageable". Other steps include making a decision "to turn our will and our lives over to the care of God as we understand him," making a "searching and fearless moral inventory of ourselves," and correcting wrongs that had been committed while in the grip of alcohol. The twelfth step states, "Having had a spiritual awakening as a result of these steps, we tried to carry this message to alcoholics, and to practise these principles in all our affairs".

At the AA meeting I attended recently, there was an air of camaraderie and good humor, but the underlying tone was serious.

I heard stories of repeated failures to overcome drinking problems, self-deception, of victories and of lives that had new purpose since sobriety was achieved.

"My name is X and I am an alcoholic," members began their talk, to be greeted by a chorus of "Hi, X."

These are excerpts from some of their talks.

"I kept drinking because I wasn't honest with myself. In the city when I looked for a washroom, I never went to the bus depot or a service station or a shopping centre or a restaurant. Oh no, I went to a beer parlor . . . and invariably someone would say, 'Hi there, haven't seen you in a long time.' Of course I had never seen the guy before in my life but I'd wind up buying him a beer. I'd tell myself I was just staying for one beer, but then I'd look for someone to coax me to have one more. This might go on for three or four hours . . . and then I'd go home drunk and tell my wife I really had intended to be home for supper . . .

"Like many alcoholics, I rationalized for a long time before I realized I was one. 'I'm not an alcoholic,' I'd say, 'I'm a weekend drinker, just a beer drinker. I'm not on skid row.' I was bankrupt, morally, physically and mentally, but I didn't know it. The minute I took that first drink I could no more control my faculties than I could fly to the moon. Often I wouldn't stop drinking until I fell off the chair or someone hauled me home.

"For four years I tried to control my drinking but it didn't work. I was a typical alcoholic — I drank every day and drank too damn much, I was an embarrassment to my family, full of remorse and sorrow, and I'd swear up and down that I would stop. Before the sun was down I'd be at it again . . .

"After going on a rip-snorter of a drunk for five days, I got the number of a person in AA from my wife, who was in Al-Anon. She made me phone, because unless an alcoholic looks for help himself, it won't work.

"I attended three AA meetings a week at first and I've been a member for almost four years. It's getting better. I'm slowly learning how to live without booze and I'm straightening out, one day at a time. I never found happiness in a bottle . . . to me, alcohol is a poison now."

Another speaker: "I've been up and down two or three times, but thank God I had the nerve to get back into AA before I got into a real disaster. In more than 30 years in business, I made a lot of mistakes because of alcohol, and it was all my fault. No one put a gun to my head and said, 'You've got to drink this mickey'.

"I've proved to myself in the last 2½ years that you must attend the meetings . . . None of us can really say that we've got it licked. If you want to stay sober, get into the (AA) fellowship. I can't put into words how thankful I am to be in AA . . . Life becomes very precious when you're sober and clear-minded."

Another spoke of people who "didn't make a second try" to achieve sobriety. "I was a pallbearer for some of them."

He told the group that at first he had been "too proud to join AA, to be called an alcoholic. I remember when they called the roll at the first meeting, I looked around the table and thought, if any one of those guys looks at me . . . I'll plow him. But no one did.

"There have been many discussions about honesty around these tables. I think if I continue to honestly and thoroughly look at myself, then I have a reasonable chance of success. Rarely do we see a person fail when he thoroughly follows our 12 steps."

An AA member who at one time "loved being a rounder" told of being complimented by a new acquaintance. "He said, 'You don't fit what you look like; there must be a reason.' I said I have to change my life because alcohol had controlled me. It made me feel good (to hear the compliment) because I know what I was like . . . but I got a second chance and was lucky enough to take it. I'm grateful that it shows up that I'm not a failure anymore."

Another person at the meeting contended that while the support of other reformed alcoholics is important, the AA program works only "if the person is there strictly for himself."

He added, "If one of you got drunk, I'd feel sorry for you, but I'd still pat myself on the back and say, there but for the grace of God go I." He said an alcoholic cannot be cured if he is pressured into attending AA meetings and expects "something magical" to happen.

A member who had spoken earlier agreed that the first step toward recovery is a person's desire to seek help for himself.

"Sometimes we get a new member who wants to sober up the whole world, but unless a person is really and truly convinced that he has a problem and needs help, the program is not too successful."

Some of the members said that since joining AA, they were surprised to learn that many people do not drink, that they can enjoy social functions and other activities without drinking, and that they can associate with people who drink, without being tempted to drink.

"If I'm offered a drink, I simply say, 'I don't drink, thank you'," said one member. "I find that no other explanation is necessary."
