Area C group presents revised Sechelt study plan

Charging that the Sechelt Vicinity Study includes "some unrealistic and inflexible operational policies," a group of Area C property owners recently unveiled their own version of the community study.

The alternate plan basically is a revision of the Regional District study. It follows the outline of the official study, but includes extensive deletions and amendments favoured by the property owners.

The revision would offer greater freedom to residential, commercial and industrial developers and would place less emphasis on environmental concerns than does the official study.

The Area 'C' plan was drawn up by two committees of land owners and developers put together by Davis Bay resident Jack Whitaker.

They began their work in April after the release of the initial draft of the Sechelt Vicinity Study (also known as Bylaw 109) by the Sunshine Coast Regional District.

Both plans cover the village of Sechelt, West Sechelt, Porpoise Bay, Selma Park, Davis Bay and neighbouring reserve lands. The Sechelt Indian Band was represented on the vicinity study's planning committee but was not invited to attend the discussions held by the Area C property owners.

The Area 'C' alternate draft claims the vicinity study "as it is presently constituted...will more likely add to the conflict" over further development around the village of Sechelt.

It adds: "Bylaw 109, which has received its first reading, is an interesting mix of idealistic and desirable goals with some unrealistic and inflexible operational policies set out to obtain them.

"This alternate plan has been drafted in an attempt to provide the Sunshine Coast Regional Board with a viable alternative to Bylaw 109" and "has been formulated to stand the test of economic justification and to allow for orderly growth without the community sacrificing its unique position."

Emphasising that any vicinity study must be only a "guide" for future reference, the property owners say theirs "shall be altered as necessary" and "reviewed within three years of its implementation and every two years thereafter."

The Regional District's vicinity study would remain unaltered "so long as it is an accurate expression of community values and governmental willingness to abide by its provisions." It would be reviewed two years after its adoption and thereafter once every five years.

Major differences exist in the objectives and policies of the two documents.

The vicinity study recommends that population growth "and associated development" be moderated and that "the rate of change of the community is to be a consideration whenever approval of a major development is contemplated." The Area 'C' alternative maintains the plan should "promote associated services and amenities according to population growth and requirements" and "encourages the use of comprehenseive areas of development."

The property owners' plan deletes the vicinity study's objective development "in recognition that the sprawl of development into rural areas is harmful to the ecology, expensive to service and encourages poor use of land in development areas."

The vicinity plan wants "to establish zones of low intensity use based on topographic features" and "to cluster higher intensity development in distinct and seperate areas." The alternate draft disagrees, encouraging "the use of zones based on topographic features" and supporting "higher intensity development where feasible and-or desirable."

The basic philosophical differences between the two plans clash with Area C's repudiation of the "central core" concept endorsed in the vicinity study.

The vicinity study supports development of "the core and populated area of the Sechelt vicinity as the service and population centre of the mid-part of the Regional District."

"The central core philosophy is to be rejected in toto," say the property owners "and substituted by smaller core areas" connected by strip development.

Under environmental concerns, the vicinity study calls for the protection of Sechelt Inlet from pollution by requiring "that development proposals for the Sechelt Inlet drainage areas, including subdivisions, be reviewed by Environment Canada before approval.

"Development in the vicinity," continues the official study," will not be acceptable unless it adheres to standards adequate to protect the current amenities and values of the community."

The alternate plan omits mention of any environmental protection agencies or review of construction and states "development in the vicinity will adhere to standards adequate to protect the current amentities and values of the community."

The vicinity study also discourages any development "which may cause drainage of harmful wastes or surface runoff into sensitive areas." The property owners "encourage development which may not cause excessive drainage of harmful wastes or surface runoff into sensitive areas."

The alternate draft omits the vicinity study's proposal for a three story maximum building height "in order to maintain a human scale in the community" as well as its suggestions for underground wiring and "a program for tree planting in developed areas."

The vicinity plan would also impose strict limitations on the type of construction in residential areas. Higher density housing would be permitted only near the central core of Sechelt and apartment blocks would be banned altogether.

The alternate draft would "permit and encourage" all types of higher density housing in the area, including apartment blocks.

The property owners want "a conspicuous location" for those industries that depend on passing trade. The vicinity plan would like them conspicuous but grouped together "to reduce conflicts."

The official study reccomends that a light industrial area be established near the airport. The alternate draft wants industrial areas "in addition to those currently existing."

The two plans are also in direct conflict over future commercial areas around Sechelt.

The vicinity study wants a "single, expanded main retail shopping" location in the village core and a ban on shopping areas that would compete with Sechelt.

The property owners state that "owing to the high price and possible shortage of

Sechelt will ban trail bikes

Sechelt aldermen, fed up with complaints about noisy trailbikes, will ban their use within the village boundaries.

Potential dirt daredevils are to be confined to the boundaries of District Lot 1472.

A bylaw, to be drafted in conjunction with the local RCMP, will give police the power to confiscate any bike ridden in Sechelt. To retreive it, the owner will have to pay the towing charge.

At the July 6 meeting of council RCMP Sgt. Doug Farenholtz suggested that aldermen base their law upon existing City of Kamloops legislation.

Said Frenholtz: "In Kamloops an RCMP officer can have the bike towed away and-or charge the owner for an infraction. If they don't answer the summons they are taken before the courts forcibly, mandatorily."

But Farenholz was uncertain that such a bylaw would be upheld in a court of law. "We would have to see," he said.

The Sechelt bylaw was given first reading and is now to be reviewed by legal counsel for the village.

The aldermen also agreed to support in principle the rezoning of a residential lot on Shorncliffe Ave. to institutional.

Dzidra Rozenthal explained to the council that she intends to establish an intermediate care home on the premises and would like to add an addition to accommodate 25 patients.

The rezoning, which will have to go to public hearing, was supported by Acting Mayor Morgan Thompson who said he saw no reason for any objections to the facility.

Tourists to Sechelt over the next few weeks will be greeted by major construction work in the downtown area.

The village will install sidewalks on the north side of Cowrie Street and B.C. Tel will put in underground wiring at the same time.

Survey planned for Langdale area

Regional District staff will begin a geographic inventory next month of the eastern peninsula from Langdale to Port Mellon, according to district planner Roybn Addison.

The inventory is an initial step toward development of a community plan for the area, which has been requested by Area F Director Bernie Mulligan.

Addison said the study will attempt to describe the characteristics of shoreline and upland areas of the region to enable planners to define potential uses for the land.

Two industrial proposals in the area are now being processed by the Regional District, but Addison said the relative scarcity of flat land in the vicinity probably would inhibit further industrialization to any significant degree.

She expressed optimism that the proposed industrial uses would be compatible with future recreational and residential development.

Addison said the georgraphic inventory would be conducted by student summer employees of the district.

Of the two pending proposals, a land use contract to Archie Haleta for a chipper mill at Twin Creeks is nearer final approval. That contract has been given third reading by the district and forwarded to Victoria for approval. Lawyers are now drafting restrictive covenants for the contract which will include protection of the creeks as salmon spawning grounds. The operation is expected to employ about 24 persons.

The second proposal is for a sawmill at Ouellet Creek to be built by L&K Lumber Company of North Vancouver. The plan has been given first and second readings by directors and Environment Canada is now studying the site plan. The sawmill, if approved, would not begin operation for about three years and would be phased in over a period of four years. It is expected eventually to employ about 250 people.

L&K spokesman initially said that the company would bring in about 70 management people and would hire the remainder of their employees locally. Since that time, however, company officials have publicly expressed reservations about the stability of the local work force.

Paper talks are faltering

Labor contract negotiations in the province's pulp and paper industry moved closer to a complete breakdown over the weekend.

Union negotiators representing the joint bargaining committee of the Canadian Paperworkers Union and the Pulp, Paper and Woodworkers of Canada firmly rejected what the industry said was its final offer.

The proposal, made Friday morning, would give the unions' 13,000 B.C. members, including Port Mellon employees, an across-the-board wage increase of $1 an hour, improved vacations, an extra statutory holiday and additional fringe benefits under a two-year contract.

The industry's offer would boost the current base rate to $7.51 in the first year and $8.01 effective next July 1.

Previous contracts expired June 30 but no plans for a strike vote have been announced by the unions.

Negotiators for the unions see improvements in pension benefits as crucial to any settlement. They also want a cost of living adjustment clause and improved overtime provisions in return for dropping their original insistence on a one-year contract.

The industry and the union are now both proposing a two year contract term.

Meanwhile, production has halted at Port Mellon for the month of July as the facility undertakes its annual maintenance program. Some employees are participating in the maintenance work; others have been given extended leaves of absence until the mill reopens August 1.

According to CanFor management, no employees have been laid off at Port Mellon.

Weekly garbage pickup started

Sunshine Coast Disposal Services last week began weekly garbage collection service for residents in the Regional District.

Manager Ray Chamberlin said the changeover from bi-weekly collection was proceeding smoothly and that no difficulties had been encountered.

Regional District directors in February approved the weekly collection under a three-year contract awarded to the disposal company. The district is paying $6,000 per month for the increased service, as opposed to $3,800 per month for bi-weekly collection.

Directors estimated in February that weekly pickup would cost the average household about $5 or $6 more per year.

THE SPIRIT of free enterprise lives — for 10 cents. This lemonade stand earned $2.75 in two days of operation according to the proprietors, Kirsti McKinnon, 10, James Hanson, 8, and Donna Rhodes, 9. The young entrepeneurs also cut costs by recycling their cups to later customers. (They are on Highway 101 near Gibsons).

Tempers flare over recreation plans

Tempers flared in last Tuesday's Gibsons Council meeting as an ad hoc recreation committee seeking improvements for Brothers Park was told that all of the village recreation money for this year is already allocated.

Led by recently-appointed Sechelt Elementary Principal Brian Butcher, a Gibsons resident, the committee objected particularly to the village's planned expenditure of some $32,000 to install new tennis courts at Dougal and Brothers parks.

Elphinstone Secondary teacher Geoff Madoc-Jones told the council such an expenditure is "wrong with the condition of Brothers Park as it is now."

Butcher said the committee represents some 400 children and adults who participate in soccer, rugby, softball, t-ball and bronco ball activities in Gibsons.

Butcher requested a two-phase improvement program for Brothers Park. Phase one, he said, would consist of resurfacing the two ball diamonds, providing fencing, changing rooms, wash rooms and new dugouts and bleachers. Phase two would include a soccer and rugby field and an off-street parking area.

"The feeling about Brothers Park is that it's a grubby place to be and we'd like a facility we can be proud of," Butcher said.

He told the aldermen his committee understood that recreation money is available to the village and "we would like to have some input into how that is spent."

However, Alderman Lorraine Goddard told the group "the money you heard about is our NIP grant, but it's too late now to change" the projects covered under the grant.

"If there is any money left," Goddard said, "I will take your priorities into consideration." Goddard is chairman of the village's recreation committee.

As committee members continued to argue their case to council and to question the need for more tennis courts, Alderman Jim Metzler snapped, "If you people have something to offer, I'd like to hear it. All you've done is criticize. I've heard no constructive criticism. What are you doing to help?"

Gibsons Athletic Association member Shirley Macey replied to Metzler that "each of these people here has spent hours and hours of their time" working to develop recreational programs in Gibsons.

Goddard defused the antagonism by offering to meet with the committee to discuss their proposals and the village's financial situation with respect to recreation.

Such a meeting was held Friday, July 8, and both Goddard and Butcher later used the word "amicable" in describing the tone of the gathering.

"We realize we're stuck with the tennis courts," Butcher said. "But we'd like to see a year-by-year plan developed for improving Brothers Park."

Goddard said she had agreed to future meetings with the committee in order to give them a voice in recreation planning.

According to Butcher, committee members other than those mentioned above, include Barry Lynn, president of the Gibsons Athletic Association; Jan deReus, representing the minor soccer club, and Freeman Reynolds, representing the men's softball league.

Gibsons will spend about $400,000 this year on recreation facilities under its Neighbourhood Improvement Program grant. This includes $200,000 in federal money, $100,000 from the province and $100,000 from the village.

Most of that money will go to pay for a swimming pool currently under construction behind the Gibsons Winter Club. Goddard said the current estimate is that the pool will cost about $317,000. It is expected to be open by December 1, she said.

Other planned facilities, besides the two tennis courts, include a net or concrete practice tennis backboard in Dougal Park and development "as far as our money goes" of a soccer-rugby field in Brothers Park, according to Goddard.

Sechelt man, 35 charged with rape

RCMP last week charged an unemployed 35-year-old Sechelt man with the rape of a Sechelt woman.

The man, Edwin Joe, was in police custody on the weekend pending a bail hearing.

According to RCMP, the incident occurred about 1:35 p.m. Friday, July 8, at the breakwater below Selma Park. The woman, said to be in her late 30s, was visiting friends who live near the breakwater prior to the incident.

Officer Gordon McIntosh said the last rape charge which he can recall from this area was in September 1973.

Sea Cavalcade schedule set

Sea Cavalcade organizers last week presented Gibsons Council with a preliminary schedule of events for the annual celebration, set this year for Friday, August 5, through Sunday, August 7.

Sea Cavalcade spokesman Don Pearsell requested that aldermen authorize use of several village streets for the Cavalcade parade August 6 and blocking off Gower Point Road at Dougal Park the same day for the duration of activities at the park. He also asked that Gibsons investigate the possibility of extending the village's liability insurance to cover the three-day event.

Council approved the requests in principle.

The tentative schedule of events is as follows:

Friday, August 5 — (All events at Gibsons wharf, except as otherwise indicated.) Introduction of Miss Sea Cavalcade Queen and contestants. The queen will be selected July 27. Boat blow-up, followed by marine war of hoses featuring the "Whangdale Fire Department." Live entertainment. Gibsons Kinsmen Club's beer garden at Dougal Park, 7 p.m.-1 a.m. Judging for best-decorated boat. Reno night sponsored by Sechelt Kinsmen Club. Teen dance at Elphinstone tennis courts, sponsored by the Navy League. Fireworks display beginning at sunset.

Saturday, August 6 — (All events at Dougal Park, except as otherwise indicated.) Parade beginning 10 a.m. from Sunnycrest Mall, proceeding down Highway 101 and Gower Point Road to Dougal Park. Prizes will be awarded for best commercial float, best float, best novelty entry and best clown. Entrants may obtain further information by contacting Richard Macedo at Richard's Men's Wear, Sunnycrest Mall, 886-2116.

War of Hoses beginning at noon. Pet show, bike and costume parade, children's poster contest, pulp bale and various other games and concessions. Beer garden, 2 p.m.-1 a.m. Queen's Ball at Gibsons Legion Hall.

Sunday, August 7 — (All events at Armour's Beach, except as otherwise indicated.) Children's fishing derby beginning at 10 a.m. at Gibsons wharf. Long distance swim from Keats Island, tugboat and dozerboat competitions, log burling contest and other adult and children's water sports. Second judging for best-decorated boat.

Sea Cavalcade organizers are seeking sponsors for several events, including salmon barbecues Saturday and Sunday, a soap box derby and a 10-speed bike race. Individual entertainers are also wanted for Friday and Saturday. Interested persons may contact Don Pearsell at 886-7687.

New hockey club for coast

The organization of a new amateur hockey club for the Sunshine Coast was announced last week, coincidental with the news that the Commercial hockey league is folding.

The new club, named the Gales, will play a series of 40 exhibition games locally, competing against clubs from other provincial and U.S. towns.

Team manager Randy Rayment said the organization is not soliciting funds through the business community, but hopes to support itself in its first year through the sale of season tickets.

Rayment said the Gales would play against other amateur teams from Bellingham, Wash., and Seattle, Wash., Victoria, Nanaimo and many teams from the interior and lower mainland.

Further information on the Gales will be available in the July 20 Times.

Look before you leap

A group of Area C property owners has put a considerable amount of time and effort into dissecting the Sechelt Vicinity Study and patching it back together in a form that's more agreeable to them.

Community plans, which are in various stages of development now for several areas, are destined to become vitally important documents with a profound influence on the future of our areas. For this reason, we're happy to see a group of citizens involved in an intensive effort to formulate and express its viewpoint. That's all to the good.

But we're concerned that this alternate draft may receive the endorsement of a fair number of other citizens who won't really understand what they're endorsing. The Area C group has printed about 300 copies of their study revision and is distributing them with a form at the bottom which the reader is supposed to sign as an indication that he approves of the contents.

There's nothing wrong with that — except that most people are simply not going to understand the difference between the original vicinity study and the revision unless they sit down and make a point by point comparison between the two.

Having done this, the careful reader will learn that the revision will allow developers of all kinds a great deal more latitude in what they do and where they do it. The revision also minimises environmental considerations contained in the vicinity study.

If people understand this and wish to support the revised draft, that's fine. A community plan is supposed to be an accurate expression of community sentiment.

Our suggestion is that persons who are considering signing the statement of support for the study revision first pick up a copy of the original Sechelt Vicinity Study from the Regional District office in Sechelt.

The second-best plan is to give a careful reading to our story on the two documents on page 1 of this issue. That's not as effective as a first-hand comparison, but the story does highlight the major differences.

Make up your own mind about which is the better proposal, but know the facts before you decide.

The greening of Gibsons

Gibsons Council last Tuesday, almost as an afterthought in its regular order of business, officially voted to turn the village water system over to Regional District control.

It was obviously a difficult moment for Alderman Stu Metcalfe, who was chairing the meeting in the absence of the mayor. He fumbled for a moment before the vote was called, apparently trying to find some way to delay the inevitable just a little longer.

Metcalfe may be reflecting the feeling of some village residents who fear that Gibsons is losing some of its autonomy, and perhaps a little of its integrity, in relinquishing control of its water system.

But if the vote will remain a painful symbol for those persons, there are others who feel a sense of relief. Though prodded by financial difficulties, the move is nevertheless an indication that Gibsons may finally be acknowledging that she needs the rest of the peninsula as much as the rest of the peninsula needs her.

Maybe it won't be too many more years before those charges of parochialism draw only blank looks or a grin of amusement from folks who remember when.

Winning ways

By Tom Perry

Is B.C. Hydro trying to make our territory agree with its map?

We have the absurd situation here that Hydro's use of herbicides on the rights-of-way leads to unnatural conditions which Hydro uses to justify the further use of herbicides.

The desired effect of non-interference by broad-leafed trees, notably alder, can be achieved by copying nature. Walk a hundred meters into the forest and see how many alder saplings thrive there. It's too shady for them. So the solution is selective cutting of alder and the encouragement of everything else. Slashed alder branches should be used to mulch broad leafed shrubs like salmonberry and elder. These will in time compete favorably with the alder.

But an herbicide spray contaminates all the plants and the soil that sustains them (in addition to animal life). Then all growth is retarded for a time, and when plants do pring back, the hardier of broad-leafed species, like alder, will be even more evident.

It will take more time and money to begin the job properly. But a long-range perspective on the overall quality of our lives, including values that can't be measured by money, is increasingly necessary. We must somewhere draw a line on the limit of environmental pollution that we can tolerate in the interest of short-term dollar profits.

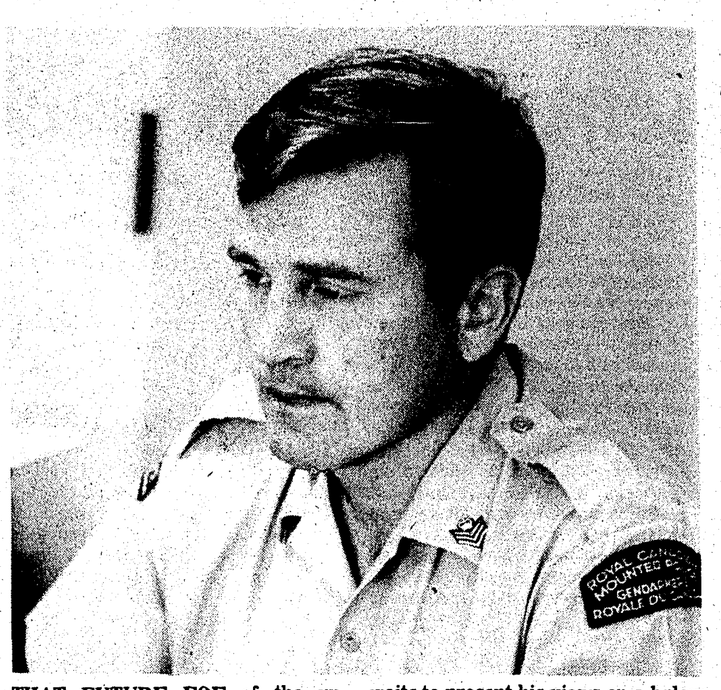
Individual, social and environmental health are always prior concerns, and we must insist that our various service agencies be responsive to them.

With contaminants like 2,4-D and penta the problem is especially urgent. With these it is obvious that a crime against the environment has the same stature as a crime against society. We are rightfully concerned about the damaging genetic effects of radiation, and these phenoxy chemicals are known to accomplish the same results in laboratory animals. Since genetic material is structurally the same in all forms of life, I contend that we've already reached the limit of acceptable risk.

Our previous exposure to radiation, pesticides and other material may already have done damage that is just now appearing among us. Pesticide expert Merriam Doucet of Vancouver tells of studies done by Dr. Nickerson, a Washington gynocologist. According to his figures, mongoloid births (attributable to a genetic accident) among women 35-39 have tripled during the past six years.

In 1964 a statement by President Kennedy's Secretary of the Interior, Steward Udall, set a new policy: "It is essential that all pesticides, herbicides, and related chemicals be applied in a manner fully consistent with the protection of the entire environment. Any contemplated use of these chemicals must take into account both known and possible environmental effects. The guiding rule for the department shall be that when there is a reasonable doubt regarding the environmental effects of the use of a given pesticide, no use should be made."

That should be the policy here. And if Hydro and others won't voluntarily stop spraying herbicides and distributing penta-soaked materials among us then the Regional Board should apply for a court injunction. Merriam Doucet is sitting on 29,000 pieces of evidence indicating the phenoxy compounds are dangerous to our health and to the health of future generations!



THAT FUTURE FOE of the unmuffled trail bike Sgt. Doug Farenholtz of the Sechelt RCMP waits to present his views on a bylaw to ban the machines from within village boundaries.

Archie Bunker and Walter Cronkite — electronic fifth columnists among us

By MARYANNE WEST

The way the government is appointing commissions, task forces and enquiries these days, we'll soon have so many generals there'll be no one left to mind the store.

And there's another one coming.

The talk in Ottawa (where everyone has an inside track and prior knowledge of what decisions will be made) is that the CRTC, which is expected to hand down its report into alleged bias in the CBC by Monday, July 18, will recommend a Royal Commission into the whole broadcasting system, a commission which will be appointed in August.

This, undoubtedly is the right time for us to re-assess and strengthen broadcasting in Canada, the national unity "crises" having finally brought home to the federal government the importance of communications in this strung-out country, something they had previously ignored or taken for granted.

The proliferation of cable service in the past decade has completely changed the environment for Canadian television. The system was set up with public and private sectors to balance each other, with the option of added commercial channels as the market allowed to provide a wider choice. Now with cable making the whole North American continent virtually into one community, Canadian television has to compete with the big American networks and their all-persuasive promotion. The result is hardly surprising and the latest figures indicate that at any given time approximately 80 percent of Torontonians will be watching American rather than Canadian programming.

The CRTC has been caught in the middle of this problem. Pierre Juneau and Harry Boyle have warned of the impending danger to Canadian culture of this deluge from abroad, but the commission has at the same time bowed to public pressure and licensed more and more cable operators. Now enterprising Yukoners have built their own ground station to bring in American programming via satellite and are prepared to defy the CRTC. Again we hear the cry, "We have a right to watch what we want".

McLuhan warned us years ago that the technology of television would have a homogenizing effect on society, and now we can see how it works. It looks as though the distribution of television signals via cable has not been the gift horse we once thought, but a Trojan horse. Unless we have the will to make dynamic changes in our system so that it can compete, American broadcasting may prove to have been the fifth column which has taken over this country without a shot being fire.

I put the national unity "crises" in quotes, because it seems to me that Quebec is not the real issue, only a symptom of a far larger problem. What we are seeing surely is the confrontation of two forces in society. On the one hand are the pressures of modern technological society towards homogenization, where individuality becomes lost in the push towards a global village. Against this pressure rises the cry for decentralization, the need of people to retain small groups where their individuality can still be recognized. So we have nationalist groups springing up all over the place, in Europe and even in the U.S., where Martha's Vineyard talks about secession.

In Canada French Canadians, Inuit and Indians are seeing a resurgence of cultural energy in an effort to stem the tide of North American sameness. The question the rest of us should be asking ourselves surely is do we have a similar desire to fight a rear guard action for Canadian values and way of life, if indeed they are any longer different from the U.S.'s?

I think it may well prove to be a last ditch stand against the inevitable changes in our civilization. I doubt whether small national sovereign entities really make such sense any more given the problems of world wide pollution, famine, over population, etc. with which mankind has to cope if we are to see Spaceship Earth survive. But logic really has little to do with our decisions. We act usually from the response to our emotions and surely enough of us are emotionally tied to Canada that we won't give up without a whimper?

The Canadian Broadcasting League at its annual meeting in Ottawa last month voted to commit all its resources for the next two years to a counter-offensive against the American broadcast invasion, and expressed concern that genuinely Canadian broadcasting is withering on the vine and could simply disappear from the airwaves in the next few years.

The League is on record as urging a Royal Commission to study the entire broadcasting sytesm and will welcome the opportunity to make a substantial contribution from the "audience" or "consumer" point of view. The goal is not to deprive Canadians of American programming but to strengthen Canadian programming, because it is vital to Canadian unity and the development of Canadian values and identity.

The newly-elected president of the League, Dr. Hugo MacPherson of Montreal, expressed our need for a strong Canadian broadcasting system very simply. He said, "Surely, all Canadians agree we have something to say to one another and to the rest of the world. How shall we say if it our national broadcasting system became merely a "distribution system" for American wit, wisdom, values and heritage?"

Redroo-- one f or two?

Editor, The Times:

Adrian Stott has had a few things to say in the July 6 Times, and I think a few things should be corrected or explained.

Is he so weary that he cannot put two f's on the word Redrooff's, which was Redrooff's long before he arrived on the Sunshine Coast? I'm sick and tired of come-latelys and news announcers to name some wanting to change long standing names just because they are too lazy to do it ight. The reason of the spelling of Redrooffs is really lost in past years. It has something to do with another name being used to name the road, so leave it alone. Why doesn't Mr. Stott try to change the name of Snodgrass or Hogg roads? They have double letters. But I guess he doesn't have to write those names as often.

The next item is the children on bikes. Leaving the law aside, what counts is the child's life. If a person on a bike faces traffic (two more f's), then there are two people taking care of their safety. How many children have been killed by sloppy drivers coming up behind and not heard? People walk facing traffic for the same reason. Think on it.

You forgot one, Mr. Stott. The bay on Redrooffs Road is called Sargeant Bay by the naval charts, which for me is the correct name, not Nor-West Bay which is a name associated with Nor-West Bay logging, which came and went since Sargeant Bay was named. Let's have one name, the right one, so everybody knows what they are talking about.

Keith Comyn,
Halfmoon Bay.

WITH THE ARRIVAL of Tom Nishimura, the first Canada Manpower official assigned full time to the Sunshine Coast, the manpower centre in Sechelt will now be open from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekdays. Nishimura will actively search for new job openings in the area and counsel unemployed workers. The government plans to relocate the centre, possibly to Gibsons, so that better services can be offered to peninsula residents.

LOTS OF PARKING

Gibsons recently proposed to introduce a parking bylaw. It hasn't yet done so, mainly because of a recent law case in Kelowna over technical points in issuing parking tickets, but I expect it will eventually. Unfortunatley, no copy of Gibsons' proposal is available to the public. However, parking on the peninsula is a steadily growing issue, so it seems worthwhile to give a little thought to the "parking problem."

When we decide to drive somewhere, we want to be able to find a safe and legal parking space, quickly and near our destination. Yet it's almost a cliche that we can seldom do this in most built-up areas. Gibsons' decision to bring in a bylaw shows that parking can become a problem even in small centres, and in fact Sechelt is also starting to have difficulties on Cowrie Street.

Perversely, parking difficulties arise because of the misguided way many think the parking problem can be solved. It's a common belief that the solution is for local government to provide large amounts of parking, free or at very low rates, wherever it is needed. These people think this is not only possible, but also beneficial to everyone. It isn't.

It all comes down to the question of who should pay for parking. Why should the general public be expected to finance this part of the cost of driving at all? It would be laughable to suggest that some other driving essential, such as gasoline, should be given away free at the taxpayers' expense.

Someone has to pay for parking, and it isn't cheap. A parked car takes up a lot of land, and land, particularly in a shopping area, is expensive. If a driver doesn't pay a proper rent for using this land, naturally the landowners will be reluctant to use it for parking. It doesn't matter either whether the owner is government. If it is, the expense of using the land for providing unprofitable parking just goes on the taxes, which is resisted politically. With no-one really wanting to provide the land, it's no wonder parking is usually in short supply.

But unlike other cases, too little parking space doesn't result in an increase in parking rates. No, the "noble" local government struggles to keep the rates low (at its taxpayers' expense), thinking this will help the motorist and the shopkeepers at least. But what actually happens is that the few cheap parking spaces are almost always full, so the motorist has to waste time and gas driving around trying to find somewhere, anywhere, to leave his car. The frustration this causes can even convince the driver to shop in another area, where things may be better. So no-one actually benefits.

It would be better for all concerned if the price for parking were set high enough to ensure that a few spaces were always empty in each area. If the driver's time is worth anything, paying this price would probably in reality be cheaper for him. A straight hourly rate for each space, at a level based on parking demand there, would also encourage long-term parkers to put their cars in cheaper spots which would make sure that the more convenient parking was used by those most needing it.

However, this solution is resisted, and instead time limits on parking are proposed. It somehow seems to be thought better that seven cars use a parking spot for one hour, than one car for seven hours (or even for an hour and a half). Why there is this strange attitude toward parking is beyond me. If, for example, all the hotel rooms in town were full, would we say it was better for a person to be forced to change his room each night rather than stay in it for a week? All a time limit scheme really does is produce inconvenience. It has almost no effect in making more vacant parking spaces available when you want one.

Some people claim that short time limits make nearby shops more attractive. But, surely, the person taking a longer time shopping, and buying more, is the person the shopkeepers really want to attract. However, his trip will be cut short because he has to go and move his car. It would be better if the merchants provided parking at their own expense for their customers, anyway. It seems unjust that public land should be given over to parking just to benefit the small group of merchants.

But there, again, is irony. Merchants would probably gladly provide parking lots of their own free will (rather than at the dubious insistence of local bylaws as at present), but they are used to getting a return on their investments. Yet if they tried the reasonable approach of charging an economic price for parking in their lots, they would be compared unfavourably with the local government and its cheap parking. And anyway, drivers would probably still choose to mill around on the street hoping to be lucky enough to find a public space rather than enter a private lot at those "exorbitant" prices. So the government's cheap parking policy really does prevent the supply of more parking.

I'm afraid the parking problem will never be solved until we admit that parking is a commodity like any other. If you try to make it free, or price it below cost, it will be abused and always in short supply. This means that the first step in a real solution of Gibsons' (and Sechelt's) parking difficulties would be to start charging for all public parking, so that the private supply of pay parking lots will be encouraged. This is particularly important for street parking for other reasons, too, as it is well known that this type of parking causes many accidents quite apart from making the roads narrower and so increasing traffic congestion.

So please, Gibsons council, when we do get to see your new parking bylaw, make sure it will call for parking meters or ticket-issuing machines, not just increased policing of one hour limits in the lower village by your new bylaw enforcement officer.

DATELINE...the Sunshine Coast...-titillating rumours to tantalize your fancy. News, views and the latest tattle from people in the know...an absolutely smashing start to the social season was the strawberry tea held July 1 to honour Queen and Country. Attire was simple but too, too elegant. Not a few heaving bosoms were observed as the maple leaf was flapping in the breeze...have you heard...-champagne sipping is making a comeback now the government has decreased the price of B.C. sparkling white...whoever would have imagined...Kevin and Ellen Ryan welcomed in their jetset marriage with receptions in Norway, Scotland and a carrot cake decorated like an eastern mosque. The happy young couple swear they have no plans to embrace any unusual religion...we know who we are talking about...that's the clever young man busy turning his tool shed into a home. The cramped but cosy interior will feature a skylight to illuminate the spot where he once stored his lawn mower. B.F. assures your social commentator that this is bound to be the coming thing...oh, those kinky upper middle class ladies...guess who's wife (the one with the locally prominent last name) swears her orlon carpeted home in Davis Bay would be surrounded by hippies...but luckily they own the surrounding houses and can beat them off. Good for you, Mrs. W....just imagine what all those sandel clad feet could do to the neighbourhood property values...He wants to be our next leader...expect an announcement soon from Morgan the polyester men's wear man. He has his eye on the Mayor's seat...a regular reader is incensed at the service provided by a local restaurant. Last week, she complains, she waited an hour for her Greek salad and cocktail to arrive. And to make matters worse there was no tonic for the gin. Tch, tch...

The next in spot for the right crowd is quickly becoming the harbour area in Gibsons. A hamburger stand is set to open any moment but we hear the village council is none too happy about the idea...and all you young boogiers out there can hot-dog the night away if and when the harbour sprouts a disco...Latest sport among the trendy is trying to beat the dog catcher to your wandering Afghan hound...that charming beige box coming towards you down the road is really Adrian Stott, newly reunited with his Deux-Cheaveaux (that's en francais for gas saver)...did anyone notice (blush) those manly hairy legs sported by our very own Justice Minister last weekend...oooh Ron, it's enough to make one join Jack Horner...and was that Bob McClelland drinking beer late one night in Gibsons? And after his own government declared wine was better for his health!

Until next time faithful gossip lovers...keep those rumours coming...

Sensationalism

Editor, The Times:

We, the undersigned, feel that the article in the July 6th issue of your newspaper regarding the Miss Sea Cavalcade Pageant was uncomplimentary in tone and did not reflect the feelings and the attitudes of the people involved; instead it reflected a biased viewpoint on the part of your reporter. We did not appreciate being misquoted and quoted out of context for the sake of sensationalism.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Verna Richard, T. Wright, Jon McRae, Cyndie Jones, Colleen Kurucz, Nancy Honeybunn, Holly Comeau.

• Area C group study plan

gasoline, shopping areas should be established in local areas. While the core of Sechelt is recognized as existing, it must not be allowed to negate local commercial expansion."

Discussing tourist facilities, the vicinity study proposes providing "compact tourist accomodation areas in locations of particular scenic and recreational attraction", however, "strip development of motels, restaurants and other tourist establishments shall be discouraged."

The Area 'C' group proposes "denser developments of motels, restaurants and other commercial enterprises," saying "particular attention should be paid to anything that will encourage all forms of tourism."

Under "Recreational, Conservational and Cultural" policies, the vicinity study maintains "ecological preservation is one of the major considerations and objectives in all development decisions."

The property owners say, "Ecological preservation is a consideration in development decisions."

Visitor recreation should be directed "into those activities that have a low negative impact on the environment and community," says the vicinity plan.

Visitor recreation should be directed "into those activities that have a positive impact on the community," replies the alternative plan.

The vicinity study would "emphasize public recreation in the vicinity while discouraging recreational residential development."

The Area 'C' draft would "emphasize public recreation in the vicinity while encouraging recreational residential development."

Any tourism location, says the vicinity study, is not an appropriate commercial area and shall not include businesses that depend on road traffic for their customers.

The Area 'C' group would allow commercial businesses to locate in tourist areas.

In Davis Bay, tourist facilities should not be extended as the surrounding residential development makes this impracticable, according to the vicinity study. But the Area 'C' group, many of whom live in Davis Bay, say tourist accommodation and commercial enterprises in that area should be enlarged.

The alternate draft also deletes the vicinity plan's acknowledgement of the Davis Bay beach "as a major recreation source of the vicinity" which should be made into a public park.

The vicinity study suggests a "more rational use of transportation alternatives and routes," while the property owners request "more transportation alternatives and routes."

Industrial sites and other "heavy vehicle traffic generators" should build near the proposed Sechelt by-pass says the vicinity study. The Area C plan omits this suggestion.

Also missing from the Area C draft are the suggestions to develop "mass transport services" and to discourage cars from the village centre.

In rural areas the property owners would like a maximum residential density of 1 lot per 0.1 hectares. The vicinity plan would restrict this density to a maximum of 1 lot per 2 hectares.

At the end of the draft prepared by the Area 'C' group is a form which readers are asked to sign in support of the alternate proposal.

Both versions of the vicinity study will be debated at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, July 19 at a public meeting to be held in the Sechelt Senior Citizens Hall.

Judge dismisses charge against school dist. supt.

A drinking and driving charge against local School Superintendent John Denley was dismissed in provincial court last week after what police termed "a mixup".

Judge Ian Walker ordered the dismissal following failure by the prosecutor to prove Denley had been served with the results of his breathalyzer reading.

The judge refused to grant an adjournment so the RCMP constable who administered the test could be summoned to give evidence.

Denley was charged with driving with a blood alcohol reading of over .08 after his car was stopped January 6 by the Gibsons RCMP.

In an unrelated case during the July 6 session of provincial court, Gordon Sopow was found guilty of refusing to take a breathalyzer test. He was fined $500 by the judge and placed on three months probation.

Focus on Fitness

By CAROLYNN BICHLER

Physical fitness can and should be a part of everyone's way of life, and I've got just the way to make becoming and staying fit a joy and a pleasure, yoga. The word yoga means union, a union between the body, mind and emotions.

Yoga is a marvellous way to attain a firm, supple body as well as a calm and relaxed mind. Unlike many other forms of exercise yoga asanas, or postures, are done without the usual sweat and strain attached to "getting in shape."

Another worthwhile component that makes yoga special is relaxation. In today's busy, world we seldom seem to relax, but relaxation is an important aspect of yoga. Being able to let go and really relax is necessary for survival in this uptight 20th century. Yoga has been teaching relaxation along with slow and gradual movements and breathing for centuries. So you see that yoga isn't some fly-by-night fad, but a tried and true method of improving yourself physically, mentally and emotionally.

By moving slowly when you perform the asanas, your muscles get a better workout, which helps you to have more elasticity in your everyday movements. After yoga you feel more alive, awake. It's a positive form of exercise; you don't wear yourself to a frazzle, and when you have completed your postures you completely relax. When you are finished you should be refreshed, full of energy, feeling healthy and happy.

Yoga asanas and breathing help to increase the circulation and keep the arteries elastic. The postures are good for stretching and limbering muscles. The elasticity of muscles plays an important role in keeping the body youthful. Yoga exercises in maintaining the flexibility of the spine and ligaments. By twisting and other movements, blood is distributed evenly throughout the body.

Yoga is a relaxing way to get in shape physically, mentally and emotionally. Many books have been written on the subject and are available in our local book stores. There are even programs on TV if you need that extra push to motivate you.

Yoga is a very personal form of exercise. You can do asanas in your home, by yourself, or join a class and exercise in a group. Yoga is never competitive; each person works according to their own body, being careful not to hurt themselves by pushing their bodies too far. Yoga is a wonderful, passive way to help maintain proper weight, girth and muscle tone; and to learn to relax, feel super, have energy, and breathe deeply using your lungs to their proper capacity. Try it, you have everything to gain, you'll like it!

Squaringly yours

— by Maurice Hemstreet

Last Saturday evening in our Square H. room, Harry and I with the help of over two sets of the Country Stars square dance club really gave my new PA system a terrific work out. It came through with flying colours as Harry led off the evening by teaching a new round dance called In The Mood and then we carried on with the usual type square dance work shop where if someone wasn't too sure of a specific figure we would go through it until the whole set moved smoothly? I think.

You know, when you are up on the callers dias and looking out over the floor filled with square dancers and you toss out a square dance call you know exactly what all of the square dancers are going to do, how long the movement takes and where each couple will be at the end of that call. Now when I get on the floor and Harry is doing his usual great job of calling and he throws out a call like scoot-back, well I have just one thought in mind — what in tarnation am I doing out here. However we do have fun.

In last Saturday's Van. Sun there was a great write up on the square dancing at the tennis courts at Stanley Park where caller Vic Harris has been doing the calling for a number of years. This takes place on a Thursday evening from eight o'clock till ten p.m. and I think we should go down and see what it's all about. I believe we can make the last ferry back if we have a police escort. Don't you square dancers think it's a good idea?

My, how time marches on, so I will see all of you square dancers at Al Jacques on Redrooffs Road Saturday about noonish or so. For information call 885-2645. Square dancing continues to grow. Have a good day, CHEERIO.

Halfmoon Bay Happenings

— by Mary Tinkley

COUNTRY FAIR

The fair at Cooper's Green, Redrooffs, on Saturday, July 16, will be bigger and better than ever because this year two organizations, the Welcome Beach Community Association and the Halfmoon Bay Recreation Commission, are joint convenors.

The fair will start off with a parade at noon and will be followed by the opening of stalls of home baking, white elephants, books — in fact, something for everyone. Alex Ellis advises that he will be operating a Farmer's Market for which he would appreciate donations of surplus garden produce, flowers, jams and jellies.

For the children there will be a fish-pond, used toys, guessing games and games of skill. Meanwhile, parents can relax over a game of bingo. Refreshments available will be hot dogs, tea, coffee, soft drinks and popcorn. There will be a last chance to get raffle tickets on the beautiful hope chest, afghan and leather purse, and winners of these fine prizes will be drawn during the afternoon.

The parade is open to children up to the age of 13 in three age categories. Children can enter singly, in pairs or in groups of 3 or more, with the age of the eldest member of the group setting the age category. Judging will be based on the use of beach-combed and recycled materials, local or water themes, originality and effort. Children entering the parade should complete the entry forms which are being distributed in the mail and should register their entry at Cooper's Green at 11:40 a.m. on Saturday. Judging will take place at 11:50 a.m., with the parade following.

WEDDING

The Church of His Presence, Redrooffs, was the setting for the marriage on July 2 of Joan Gillespie and David Marshall, with the Rev. Alex Macleod of Vancouver officiating. The bride was dressed in a floor-length gown of white eyelet embroidery and wore a white orchid in her hair. She was escorted to the altar by her elder son, Patrick. Cecile Marshall, sister-in-law to the groom, was Matron of Honour, attired in a pale yellow gown with a corsage of yellow rosebuds. The groom's niece, Debbie Marshall, made a most attractive flower girl, in a pink and white floor-length dress and carrying a basket of yellow daisies and rose petals. Best man was the groom's brother, Ronald Marshall. Also in attendance were the bride's younger son Blair and Trevor and Kevin Marshall, sons of the groom. Elsie Julian gave some delightful selections on the organ.

Following the ceremony, a reception dinner was held at the Northwood home of the groom's parents, Olive and Keith Comyn. The Comyns and Marshalls expressed great pleasure in welcoming the bride and her two sons into the family and the happy couple received 35 guests, relatives and close friends. The lovely floral decorations at the church and at the Comyn home were generously provided by several of the area's most famous gardeners. After a honeymoon in Calgary, the couple will settle in their home in Vernon.

REGIONAL RECRETION PLAN

Since so much concern is being expressed about recent increases in taxes, it was surprising that only 17 local residents turned up at the Welcome Beach Hall on July 6 to hear what the Parks and Recreation Commission was proposing for the referendum which is likely to take place before the end of this year. Chairman Jack Whitaker itemized the proposals which the commission estimated would be covered by a 2 mill tax. Shirley Baillie put up a valiant and well-prepared case for the Pender Harbour swimming pool, one of the most expensive of the projects included in the plan. The reserve supply of water which the pool would offer is understandably a good selling point to an area which has so recently seen its school burn to the ground for lack of water.

The general opinion expressed at the meeting was that the programme was rather ambitious for an area of only 15,500 people. Some of the older people present who complained bitterly about increased taxation, pointed out that while young people's income keeps up with inflation, for those on fixed incomes there are only so many dollars to go around. Others thought that curlers should pay for their own facility and that some of the other items were unnecessary. The commission undoubtedly got the message that only some major surgery might save their plan from defeat.

BEACH AND COUNTRY CLUB

At the annual general meeting of the Redrooffs Beach and Country Club on July 3, the year's programme was planned and the following officers were elected: David Birrell, president; Sharon Hunt, treasurer and Donna Rowles, secretary.

ANCHOR STORY

When sea captains get together, it is hardly surprising to learn that the talk invariably turns to ships, tides and anchors. Recently Captain John Cates of North Vancouver was the guest of the Len Werseens and when he visited Captain Bill Dolmage, they talked about the huge anchor which lies on a rock just off the Dolmage property. This anchor was brought from England and used for mooring war vessels when the Royal Navy was in charge of Esquimalt. During the First World War, when the Canadian Navy took over Esquimalt, the moorings were discarded. Three of these anchors were presumably sold to someone who took them to North Vancouver, for both John Cates and Bill Dolmage remember playing around them as boys.

Around 1945, the Boys' Clubs of Canada started a summer camp at Potlatch Creek in Howe Sound. They obtained a float and anchored it off the camp. Later, when Bill and some of his friends built a proper piling dock, they had to dispose of the remains of the float. In pulling in the mooring chains, lo and behold, there was one of the anchors. The club gave it to Bill and he had it on his dock in Vancouver until he moved up to the bay.

TRIP TO QUEBEC

Andre and Bernice Martel are home on Southwood after an 8,000 mile drive to Quebec and back to visit Mrs. Martel's father and 10 brothers and sisters. One of her brothers is in Sudbury where they stopped off for their first visit. In Quebec they visited her father at Ferme Neuve in Gatineau County and brothers and sisters through Gatineau and Labelle counties. Mrs. Martel had seen her father and three other members of her family who had visited her in British Columbia, but she had not seen the other seven brothers and sisters for 10 years. What wonderful visits they had and how much there was to talk about!

The only disappointing factor of the trip was the weather. It rained all the way across Canada and out of the 25 days of their holiday, only five days were sunny. Mrs. Martel reports that she found Quebec very divided on the question of separation, with just about as many people for it as against it.

BEAR SIGHTING IN REDROOFFS

Bessie Maybee had a shock recently when she thought she was going to get a close look at a deer which she could hear moving around in the bushes close to her house. To her amazement, she found herself gazing into the eyes of a bear, so hurried back into the safety of her house

SICK LIST

Gladys Grognet is home on Northwood after nine weeks in hospital, four weeks of which were spent in St. Mary's Hospital and five weeks in Richmond Hospital where she underwent surgery. Resting at her home, she is being assisted by her granddaughter, Jenny Trim of Vancouver. Olive Clear, following hip surgery at St. Paul's Hospital, has been transferred back to St. Mary's Hospital. Also in St. Mary's are Ev Shannon and Jim Cooper.

"Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." (John 8:32)

How well do we ponder these works and plumb to the depths the significance of this great promise?

Mary Baker Eddy writes, "Truth brings the elements of liberty. On its banner is the Soul-inspired motto, 'Slavery is abolished.' — No power can withsthand divine love. — What is it that binds man with iron shackles to sin, sickness and death? Whatever enslaves man is opposed to the divine government. Truth makes man free." (Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures Pg. 224).

Applying for a Social Insurance Number for the first time?

Don't listen to how someone did it last year.

Two things have changed.

Where you apply for a Social Insurance Number and what you need when you apply. Where? Your local UIC office. What will you need? Proof of your identity.

If you were born in Canada, you'll need a primary document like a birth certificate or a baptismal certificate from Quebec. Naturalized Canadians need their citizenship certificates. If you're a landed immigrant you'll need your immigration papers. Originals or certified copies are needed.

You'll also need secondary identification. It can be something official with your name on it, like a driver's licence or a school report card. Here photocopies are fine.

You don't want these important documents lost or misplaced. That's why we ask you to go, in person, to your local UIC office. They'll approve your documents on the spot, help you with your application and send it to Ottawa. You can take your documents home right away. You'll get your Social Insurance Number card in the mail.

If you can't get to a UIC office you can go to a Canada Manpower Centre. Or you can mail your application direct to Ottawa. But you'll have to send original documents or certified copies. And if there are problems with your application or documents it's going to take longer to iron them out than it would face to face in a local office.

Establishing your identity is the best way to make sure your Social Insurance Number stays with the right person. And that's pretty important.

GREG SCHNEIDER. 13, was the overall winner last week in the skateboard competition at Sunnycrest Mall. Greg placed first in slalom competition and third in the freestyle event. He will now represent the Sunshine Coast in provincial competition in Vancouver. Greg will be a student at Elphinstone in September. The competition is sponsored by SuperValu and Coca-Cola.

Brazilian team here

One of the top men's volleyball teams from Brazil will be in Gibsons Tuesday, July 19, to conduct a volleyball clinic and to play a match against the British Columbia Select Team.

The match will be at Elphinstone gymnasium at 7:30 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults, $1 for teens and 50 cents for children 12 and under. Families will be admitted for $5.

The B.C. Select Team is composed primarily of UBC players, who have placed first and second in the Canadian Inter-Collegiate Championships the last two years, and players from the B.C. Olympic Club, who were first this year in the B.C. Senior Championships and second in the Canadian Championships.

The clinic will be conducted for the local Omega Sports Club, sponsor of the events, and for area high school players.

Among the competitions which the touring Brazilian team will play before the Gibsons stop will be a match against the Canadian Men's National Team and one against the Junior team, which will represent B.C. in the Pacific Rim Tournament this summer in Hawaii.

THE PENINSULA Times

Section B — Wednesday, July 13 1977 — Pages 1-8

It's disclosure deadline again

Attention all you local politicians. It's that time of year again.

Friday is the deadline for filing your semi-annual disclosure forms.

Passed by the provincial government in 1974, the Disclosures Act requires that school trustees, MLAs, municipal and regional district elected officials and certain public employees divulge details of any company stock, land holdings, creditors or business involvements.

The forms must be filed between the first and fifteenth days of January and July each year.

Reports by elected officials must be shown to the public upon request.

Persons convicted of failing to comply with the act can be fined up to $10,000 and ordered to repay any financial gains made during their term of office.

Last fall Sechelt council was the subject of an RCMP report to the Attorney-General's Department after public complaints that aldermen were ignoring the legislation.

No charges were filed as a result of that investigation.

Lockstead

— Legislature Report

COAST SHIPPING AND FERRIES

It amazes me in a province with 10,000 miles of coastline, that the government does not see fit to improve services to the people who live on this coast. Those in power don't seem to realize that up-coast people rely on coastal shipping and ferry services the way others rely on roads and railways. People and goods must move efficiently and cheaply to improve trade and commerce.

In the Legislature on June 17 I repeatedly pointed out these facts to the Minister of Transport, Jack Davis. His reponse to the problem has been a slight reduction in ferry rates to non-residents, no reduction to residents and, after much prodding by myself and Sunshine Coast residents, he has instructed the ferries on the Langdale-Horseshoe Bay run to open the newsstand and restaurants. I see this as a token victory for the people of the Sunshine Coast.

In the matter of self-propelled freight and passenger service to the North Coast, I pointed out that 80 per cent of B.C.'s shipyards are idle and that the workers in these yards should be put back to work building the vessels necessary to properly service this coast. By building ships we could create employment and provide better service.

FOLIAR SPRAYS BY B.C. HYDRO

In the very serious matter of the spraying by B.C. Hydro of right-of-ways with 2,4-D and 2,4,5-T both Gary Lauk, MLA for Vancouver Centre and I pointed out to Rafe Mair, Minister of Consumer Services, the very real and serious threat the people of the Sunshine Coast feel from this type of spraying. I pointed out that I have received over 1,000 letters and signatures on petitions against foliar sprays.

The reply of the Minister of Transport (who incidentally, is in charge of B.C. Hydro) was, "That's Environment."

I find it incredible that a minister can be so insensitive to the thousand people concerned with spraying to answer, "That's another department" when he is in charge of the people doing the spraying.

Instead of using hazardous chemical sprays, crews should be hired to clear the brush. This would provide much needed jobs for local people without endangering the residents of the area.

SENIOR CITIZENS MEDICAL FOR AUTOMOBILE LICENSE

At present it is law that every senior citizen must obtain an annual medical checkup to ensure he or she is physically able to drive an automobile. Not only is this inconvenient but to an elderly pensioner it is also expensive, as this medical is at present not covered by the government medical plan nor is the doctor's bill paid by the Motor Vehicle Branch. Therefor a senior citizen does not pay X dollars for his license, he or she pays X plus the cost of the medical.

I have again stated in the House that I feel this additional license charge for senior citizens is unfair and should be covered by the B.C. Medical Plan. I am happy to say that the Minister of Transport, Jack Davis has taken note of this and I hope this added expense to our senior citizens will soon be removed.

Redrooffs Water District negotiating regional merger

Almost 40 members were in attendance for the annual general meeting of the Redrooffs Waterworks District at the Welcome Beach Hall on July 3.

Chairman Chris Dalton, in his report on the condition of the works, said there is no shortage of water from Trout Lake and very little change in the water situation. The system continues to deteriorate and part of the line is still uncovered. The tank has been repaired and a new bottom installed. There is still no official maintenance staff, but Bill Urquhart has been of tremendous help and has come to the rescue on a number of occasions.

Dalton paid tribute to Secretary-manager John Winton for his administrative work and to the trustees who have contributed time and effort in a variety of ways.

The chairman advised the meeting that the trustees had received verbal assurance from Peter Hoemberg, Regional Board director for Area A that the Regional Board is now prepared to take over the liabilities and assets of the Redrooffs Waterworks District on the same terms as the rest of the system. Because of changes in provincial government legislation which give them access to grants formerly not available, the Board is prepared to waive the surcharge and the connection charges for the section of the line between Welcome Beach and the Urquhart property. Trustees of the Redrooffs Waterworks District were unanimous in recommending negotiations be continued on this basis.

In the event of agreement being reached, it will be necessary for users to make their own arrangements for hook-up from the property line for their individual houses. This would have to be done to Regional Board standards and subject to inspection. It was understood that the charge for tolls to the average household would be $87 per annum, made up of a $48 land charge and $39 user's charge.

Among the points raised by members was whether they would have any say in the location of the service at the property line and whether there was any likelihood of a surge tank to boost pressure at the end of such a long line. Because of the difficulty of burying the line along such a rocky section of the coast, questions were also asked about the possibility of lateral lines servicing several lots.

On receipt of written confirmation of the Regional Board's proposals, the trustees were authorized to continue negotiations and to reach a decision on behalf of the users.

Bob Forrester was re-elected for a further term and a vote of thanks was given to John Winton and the trustees.

Meanwhile, back at the pound

It was reported to Gibsons Council last week that in the village pound's first month of operation, 72 dog licenses were sold; 10 stray dogs had been picked up, of which nine were claimed and one adopted, the dogcatcher put 1,000 miles on the new van, and $445 in revenue was produced by the operation from licenses and fees.

A lot of folks feel that it is not worth it to balance the rear tires on a car, however, if you buy a new car and you look closely at the wheels, you will find that all 4 tires have been balanced. (Look for the little lead weights clipped to the rim). If you open the trunk of your brand new car you will see that even the spare tire has been balanced. Why would the car manufacturer go to the expense of balancing all 5 wheels? It is possible, because even a nickel savings per car, amounts to a lot of money when you multiply it by several million vehicles. Why, then do the manufacturers go to the time, trouble, and cost of balancing all 5 wheels? The answer is simply that they want the purchaser of their particular brand of car, to have a super-smooth, non bumping ride, and they know that balancing the wheels, assures them of such a ride. There are several other things that balancing will do for you, too. It will increase the tire mileage by making the tires ride smoothly, instead of bumping. It increases shock absorber life, and front and parts wear out less quickly because of the smooth riding. Even though the springs and shocks may hide the bumping of an out of balance tire, the bumping is still there, creating extra wear on the tires, the springs, and the shocks. For longer tire wear, and a smoother more comfortable ride, make sure that your tires are properly balanced. All 5 of them. — Sechelt OK Tire Store, corner of Wharf & Dolphin St., downtown Sechelt. CAN'T help but notice there are a great number of local cars driving along the sunny Peninsula roads with their snow tires still on! Did you know that a snow tire, because of the tread design, will wear out twice as fast on asphalt and gravel as a summer tire? It is therefore false economy to keep snow tires on your car all year long...Particularly if you are running radials. Also, a badly worn snow tire on the car is downright unsafe! Should you have to brake suddenly, or swerve at high speed on a rain wet road, the balding snow tire can and will skid badly! If you still have your snow tires on...won't you take the time to change over to summer tires now? For safety's sake and for economy's sake please do it now . . . That way, you may avoid having to buy snow tires again next winter, and even more important you may avoid a bad accident. O.K. LUXURY ITEM #3791
Large gracious home on 3/4 acre property. Tremendous view of Gulf. Good, quiet beachfront by woods trail. Phone as to view. Asking $140,000. JACK WARN, 886-2681 eves.

LARGE LOT #3764
132'x300' gives you .9 acre with delightful brook running through. Services on road. Located between Ice arena and Sechelt centre. Lots this size are hard to find and price is right at $15,000. DON HADDEN, 885-9504 eves.

INFLATION HEDGE #3813
3 bedroom home, 1120 sq ft built 1973. Beautiful says it. Add 2 self contained & furnished suites, the rent will pay the mortgage. All new home area in upper Gibsons. It's on sewer too. Also workshop and garden shed. Paved drive and carport. Much more. FP $69,950. PETER SMITH, 885-9463 eves.

A WOODS RETREAT #3819
Over 12 acres in Roberts Creek with well built cottage. Stream, woods and garden area. Well removed from highway. FP $76,000. JACK WARN, 886-2681 eves.

WATERFRONT LOT #3797
Level waterfront lot with evergreen trees. Just the right size to save for shade and beauty. No hills, no stairs required. On quiet road, village services, excellent view. Keep your small boat on the sand beach, or your large boat within view at the marina. Lot size 75' on water, 76' on road, 175' and 164' sides. FP $30,000. DON HADDEN, 885-9504 eves.

LUXURY HOME — PARK-LIKE SETTING #3804
1131 sq ft of very fine home. Built for owner who now cannot live there. All big rooms, 4 new top-line appliances. Huge carport under house roof. More features than space permits here. Running stream to property line. Ocean view and access. Details from PETER SMITH, 885-9463. Priced mid 70s.

4.5 ACRES IN A.L.R. #3814
With a rented cottage, on well water. Hydro and phone, Highway and side road frontage. Sunny exposure in Roberts Creek. $35,000 full price. JACK WARN, 886-2681 eves.

LARGE QUALITY HOME #3808
3 bedroom home. Living room has massive stone fireplace, whirlpool bath & sauna, plus 2 bathrooms, family room, den, 2 sundecks, with a panoramic harbor view. Better than waterfront. On a huge lot with southwest exposure. In the garden there are pools, lights, many shrubs & flowers and a small greenhouse. Some finishing details to be negotiated for a full price of $105,000. DON HADDEN, 885-9504 eves.

DAVIS BAY VIEW LOT #3759
Great view, terrain makes it so private. 106' on road, 102' on bottom. Great building sites. Easy access. Full local services. Asking $14,500 and worth it. PETER SMITH, 885-9463 eves.

SEA, SAND & SECURITY #3820
Vaucroft Beach recreation cabin close to lots of beachfront. Caretakers on hand all year in this island retreat. 2 bedrooms, living area, toilet & sink. $32,000. JACK WARN, 886-2681 eves.

HOLDING PROPERTY #3832
Cottage and 5 acres on highway in Roberts Creek. Zoned for subdivision or trailer park. Nicely treed and stretches over 600' from highway. $35,000. On regional water. JACK WARN, 886-2681.

BUY A PRIVATE PARK #3838
On 4.6 acres of beautifully laid out lawns. Orchard and gardens with year round stream thru. A comfortable 2 bedroom home in A-1 shape. Guest cottage also for $70,000. JACK WARN, 886-2681.

5 CLEARED, 5 WOODED #3809
Almost 10 acres in ALR with a 10 yr old home, 3 bedrooms, large living room, dining room, kitchen and utility. Carport under main roof. Easy to add to house. Oil furnace and fireplace. Wired for electric heat also. Prime place to keep a horse and raise some food. Asking $79,500. JACK WARN, 886-2681 eves.

THIS DAVIS BAY fast food outlet is still waiting for the shrubbery that is supposed to screen it from the highway. The building permit was granted by the Regional District on the condition that the lot was landscaped to lessen its impact on the surrounding area.

Sechelt Notes

PET PEEVE

I too have a pet peeve. For nigh on 20 years we have lived on Redrooffs Road. All of a sudden it is being spelled with one f. What right does one man have to come into an area and decide in his opinion it should have one f? Who cares where he looked for the spelling, if the people who have lived and are still living on the road like the way it is? That is their business. Unfortunately, when you are a planner you can put what you want on maps etc. and to heck with what the people want. (Editor's note: Peggy's too discreet to name names, but for the benefit of those who haven't followed the issue, she is referring to former Regional District planner Adrian Stott and his continuing one-man campaign to purge the second f from Redrooffs.)

TIMBER TRAILS RIDING CLUB

The monthly meeting of the Timber Trails Riding Club was held July 6 at the Sechelt Rod and Gun Clubhouse. Christa West, vice president, chaired the meeting.

The next meeting, Wednesday, August 3, will be an open house with displays of equestrian projects. Members of the public will be heartily welcomed.

The next horse show will be at the Tiddily Creek Ranch up Lockyer Road on August 7, fun show to watch as the horsemen put their animals through their paces.

BRUSHWOOD FARMS

The recent horse show held at Brushwood farms on June 26 was run by Bruce and Trish Cramer, a well organized event. The judge was Lynn Saunders of West Vancouver.

The three high point winner for the day for seniors was Kelly Beaumont; intermediate, Cindy MacLean; junior, Heidi Brongers.

Grand Champion in the halter class was young Chris Hopkins. Reserve Champion was Carrie Trousdell.

Over all champion for the day and the winner of the Pinto club Trophy was Heidi Brongers.

The next show at Brushwood Farms will be all trophy awards and will be held October 2.

VISITORS

John Bodnarek has his two sisters and their families visiting with his family plus his father Bill Bodnarek. John's father comes from Kamsack, Saskatchewan. Mr. and Mrs. George Andrychk are also from Kamsack. Mr. and Mrs. T. Stubbs come from Winnipeg.

COUNTRY FAIR

Halfmoon Bay Country Fair is this Saturday, July 16, at Cooper's Green on Redrooffs Road, starting at 12 noon. Invitation to all to attend. See you there.

Children's Books for ages one to ten. Picture stories, Pop-Ups, Heidi and Animal Kingdoms. Great entertainment anytime. — Miss Bee's, Sechelt.

'At the Back of the North Wind' – children's story for adults

At the back of the North Wind by Scots novelist George MacDonald, is another of those charming children's stories of the last century which is really more entertaining for adults. It's an allegory about the importance of understanding our individual roles in the world. Diamond, a small boy of humble parentage, is chosen by the beautiful wind lady to undertake an important mission to the world which involves compassion and loving kindness — qualities which are not less important in 1977.

The dramatization for radio, which can be heard on Special Occasion, Sunday at 5:05 p.m. is by Samantha Langevin, a Toronto actress who two years ago branched out into writing plays and stories. She plays the title role and also directs the play.

Seven years ago Samantha Langevin moved to Toronto from her native U.S. with her three children, two dogs and enough money for one month's rent. To tide the family over until she found work, she baked up to 16 loaves of bread daily which she sold from door to door. She has starred in plays staged at the St. Lawrence Centre in Toronto and the National Arts Centre and her 11-year-old son Christopher played the grandson in last year's CBC TV Special "A Gift to Last". Christopher plays the part of Diamond, Toby Farnow, his mother, Gordon Thompson, his father, and Nan Stuart the old women who owns the toy store.

GEORGE C. SCOTT gives advise as young Michael-James Wixted wages a tremendous battle with a marlin in "Islands in the Stream", opening Wednesday, July 13, at the Twilight.

Hemingway's 'Island in the Stream' at Twilight

"Islands in the Stream", a film based on the posthumously published novel by Ernest Hemingway, opens Wednesday, July 13, at the Twilight Theatre.

The movie is the story of a twice-divorced, middle-aged artist living in the Bahamas after a successful career in Paris, of his poignant relationship with his three young sons, and of what happens to this man when he finds himself drawn into war, away from his self-imposed isolation on the island.

RICHARD CHAMBERLAIN and Gemma Craven star in "The Slipper and the Rose", opening with a matinee Saturday, July 16, at the Twilight.

Star George C. Scott describes his role as that of a typical Hemingway anti-hero. These anti-heroes, says Scott, "know they are dead but won't quit. They are disenfranchised creatures and obsessed by death. They are burdened by a terrible loneliness."

Co-starring with Scott are British actor David Hemmings ("Blow-Up", "The Charge of the Light Brigade") Gilbert Roland, Susan Tyrrell and Claire Bloom.

"Islands in the Stream" was filmed on locations in Kauai, Hawaii. It runs through Saturday, July 16, and is rated for mature audiences.

Following at the Twilight is the musical fantasy "The Slipper and the Rose", based on the fairy tale of Cinderella. The film stars Richard Chamberlain as the prince and Gemma Craven as Cinderella.

Critical reviews have consistently praised the quality of the acting, the writing, the music and the photography in the film. Other stars in the production include Margaret Lockwood, Kenneth More, Michael Hordern, Annette Crosbie and the late Dame Edith Evans.

"The Slipper and the Rose" was filmed in Saltzburg, Austria, and London. It runs Sunday, July 17, through Tuesday, July 19, with a special 2 p.m. matinee Saturday, July 16. It is rated for general audiences.

SCHOOL REUNION

Gilbert and Ethel Plant of Madeira Park are trying to locate anyone who used to go to the Ponoka Brick School in Ponoka, Alberta. There is a school reunion Friday, July 29 which will be the beginning of a three-day event of dances, barbecues, remember-whens and a real old get-together of former classmates. Gil and Ethel have four relatives in their family who are all over 60 years and they will be attending. If anyone is interested, please get in touch with Ethel at 883-9054.

VISITORS TO PENDER HARBOUR

Doug and Millie Turner of Courtenay were in Madeira Park last week visiting Millie's sister. Millie used to have the hairdressing salon at the end of Warnock Road and Doug was in charge of the Water Board office in Madeira Park.

Harry and Edith Smith from R.C. Legion, Lord Nelson Br. 68 Van. have been visiting Don and Helen Berg (Berg's Nest) of P.H. Bill Evans of Madeira Park has known Harry since the war days.

IN AND OUT OF HOSPITAL

Ann Hewitt of Madeira Park has been in St. Mary's Hospital recuperating from a bout of overworking. She is involved in so many community projects that she can never say no to, and there isn't enough Ann to keep up to it. Don Tupper Fulton has had his operation on his hip and is now using a walker to get around. He is coming along fine now and the pneumonia is under control. All he wants now is to get mobile and come home. Jack Charbonneau, who has been coming along so well with his therapy treatments since his stroke some time ago, suffered another stroke and is in St. Mary's Hospital. Mrs. Katherine Jermain, a former long time resident of Pender Harbour, passed away in the Lions Gate Hospital July 1

LOGGING TRUCKS TAKE OFF

Trysdale Logging nearly lost two trucks when one they were unloading went in about 100 feet of water and the brakes failed on the other. Scotty Jackson from O.B. logging was taken to the hospital.

20 YEARS IN RCMP

On the evening of July 2, friends gathered at the home of Bob and Jean Prest to congratulate Bob on his 20 years in the RCMP. A lovely steak supper with all the trimmings was enjoyed by the guests. Those present were: Amy Hockey and her son Richard, Corporal Wayne Garton, Joey and Ray Kraft and daughter Toni, Muriel and Dave Stiglitz, Myrtle and Chick Page, Doris Edwardson, Margaret and Robin Prest.

PH LIONS CLUB

The PH Lions Club Recreational Park is now open.

PH SENIOR CITIZENS ASSOCIATION BR. 80

The first meeting of the newly formed gardening committee of the PH Senior Citizens Association took place last Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Bill McNaughton on Francis Peninsula Road. Art Joss, head of the Grounds Committee for the Health Clinic, his wife Mary, Isabel Ralph, Eric Brooks and Mary Ledingham attended. The purpose of the meeting was to discuss with Mr. Joss the plans for the clinic landscaping with a view to finding the best way senior citizens can assist with the project.

Eric Brooks, from his considerable experience in landscaping his own property, had much valuable information to offer on the choice of plants which are hardy in this area and need little care. After the discussion, Mrs. Ledingham and Mr. Brooks led the company on a relaxing walk through their beautiful parklike grounds. Another meeting of this committee is planned before the end of July.

PH AREA A HEALTH CLINIC AUXILIARY

Everyone is invited to participate in the Arts and Crafts exhibit sponsored by the Area A Health Clinic Auxiliary. This show will be held Saturday, August 27, at the Community Hall in Madeira Park. For further info please telephone Lou Farrell 883-9192 or Ruth Kobus 883-2283. The PH Health Clinic staff wishes to thank everyone for the delicious baking donated to the bake sale July 2 and special thanks go to the good customers for buying every crumb. Raffle winners were Rose Mueller, rug; Jean Haddon, three Teddy Bears; Linda Reid, apron set.

LOCAL WEDDING

Gail Dobrindt and David Girard of Garden Bay were united in marriage by the Reverend Godkin in St. Hildas Church at Sechelt on June 25 at 5:30 p.m. Reception was held at the R.C. Legion Br. 112 Hall. Best Man was Frank Anderson, Van.; ushers, Gerry Girard and Roy Williamson. Bride's attendants were Betty Sue, North Van; Suzanne Girard and a cousin of the bride. An uncle of Gails was the M.C. and the music was by the Whiskey Jacks from Sechelt. Helen Robertson catered to the wedding supper. Relatives and out of town guests were: Arvida and Joe Mickleberry, Squamish; Roland Girard, Van.; Ted Girard's sister Rachelle from Van.; Mr. and Mrs. Keith Revel from Coquitlam; Donna Bradley, Burnaby; Mary Gingell, Burnaby; Mrs. Shelby Anderson, Van.; Brian Jeffries, Richmond, and Becka Anderson, Van.

AMBULANCE

All residents in the area of PH and Egmont are asked to make a note of the Ambulance phone number. Many people phone the PH Clinic number when they need the ambulance and that is not the number to call. The Ambulance phone number is 883-2412, and the listing will be in the new book when it comes out this fall.

JILL AND FRANK LEAVING AREA

Frank and Jill Postlethwaite of Madeira Park will be leaving shortly to take up residence in Gibsons. Frank will be instructing the bands at the various schools there.

RUMOUR OR COMPLAINT

It is rumoured that the B.C. Ferries send workers from Langdale to Earls Cove when extra help is needed there and there are already standby (union) workers available in the Pender Harbour area. Also, when these workers get sent from Langdale they get overtime plus travel pay. A letter to find out if this is so is being sent to Don Lockstead and also to the B.C. Ferries and Marine Workers Union.
