Union board of health will request headquarters move

Members of the Coast Garibaldi Union Board of Health voted by a large majority last Wednesday to request that the Ministry of Health move the union's headquarters from Powell River to Gibsons, despite the contrary recommendation of Director Bruce Laing.

The board also voted to request that the new speech and hearing centre also be relocated from Powell River to Gibsons.

Impetus for the request comes primarily from complaints from the Howe Sound School District (Squamish) that location of the headquarters in Powell River results in restrictions on that district's health services because of its geographically remote location from Powell River. The health union also includes the Sechelt and Powell River school districts.

Moving the headquarters would involve an initial transfer of the union's four top administrators: Laing, the nursing supervisor, the chief health inspector and the office supervisor.

Laing argued that there is a greater concentration of staff in Powell River than in any other part of the union area and that "it is obvious to me that senior staff should be where the greatest concentration of personnel are."

He also said that the move "would be a great upheaval for the personnel involved.

"If it were for a very good reason, I would have to accept the move. But I don't see any great necessity at this time. The move would not result in any more service (for other areas). We do not serve; we are administrative personnel."

Lorraine Goddard, the Village of Gibsons representative to the board, quoted School District Supt. John Denley in arguing that "services tend to cluster around the senior staff."

Howe Sound School District Representative Margaret Marchant reflected her district's frustrations with the situation when she angrily asked Laing at one point, "Aren't we important? We've had to fight for everything we got."

Sechelt Village representative Joyce Kolibus was the only board member outside the Powell River area who declined to support the move to Gibsons. "The feeling I get from my area," she said, "is that it really doesn't matter very much one way or another."

Other representatives argued that while population is declining in the Powell River area, it is growing on the Sechelt Peninsula and in the Howe Sound area.

The board's recommendation will now go to the Ministry of Health for a decision on the matter.

In other business, the board heard that a regional dental consultant has been hired to service the Coast Garibaldi area and the central and upper Vancouver Island health units. The position has been vacant for some time as health officials had difficulty filling the job.

The board deferred a request by Laing that peninsula resident Sue Nichols be permanently retained as a part-time nutritionist. Nichols has recently completed a pre-natal nutrition study for the health unit, which Laing described as "very highly commended by doctors here.

"We are very fortunate in having such a highly-qualified person living in the community, and I feel we should make use of her abilities," Laing said.

The board indicated that they wanted more information on the proposed job definition before recommending Nichols' hiring.

Susan Frizzell reported to the board that the long term health care program now has an enrolment of 275 persons and that "since we just began building up the service at the beginning of January, it will probably increase regularly for the next couple of years."

She said the need for home care "is being felt more in this area" and that an adult day care project is under consideration by the local Community Resource Society.

Board deadlocked on review brief

Roberts Creek residents will have to suffer through another summer without increased water pressure, but a recent Regional District public utilities committee decision may alleviate the problem by next year.

Directors recommended extension of the third zone water line to Flume Road to ensure an adequate water supply to the area.

In a report at the April 20 PUC meeting, Works Sup't. Gordon Dixon said the extension would be a stage by stage process that will eventually alleviate the water pressure problem in Roberts Creek.

However, because of the need for a cost analysis to determine the funding of the project, there will be no improvement in time for the hot weather this summer.

Once started, the project to expand the 14 inch main will take approximately three years.

The PUC received a letter from Cameo Lands Ltd. advising that the company has paid its contribution of $24,700 to the Field Rd. waterline extension and will install the 2,800 feet of line fronting the proposed industrial park. The works superintendent said that digging for this project will start in approximately one week.

In other committee business, directors recommended immediate development of a water system along North Rd., Chamberline Rd., Chekwelp Indian Reserve, Upper Reed Rd. and Upper Granthams.

Directors want to start negotiations with the Village of Gibsons for pumping from Zone 2 to Zone 3 through its new 250,000 gallon reservoir to service the expansion.

A study remains to be done to determine the method of financing the project.

The directors discussed the possibility of entering into direct negotiations with the Indian Band Council concerning the westward expansion of the district water system through Sechelt to Halfmoon Bay.

A plan to put a 14 inch water line through a common utility corridor was recently set back when provincial agencies and B.C. Hydro did not accept the corridor concept.

The board discussed digging up the present 6 inch main through the area and replacing it with an 8 inch line as a temporary measure to enable the servicing of Halfmoon Bay.

Martin Dayton and Agris Berzins of Dayton & Knight engineering firm were present at the meeting to discuss sewage system alternatives at Langdale and outlined a $1 million plan that met with the Committee's tentative approval.

Berzins described a $1 million plan to establish a sewage collection system at Langdale and then pump the effluent to Gibsons to be discharged through its treatment plant, as "a long term solution and one we're technically enthused about."

He said the plan would allow the eventual hook up of Hopkins Landing, Soames Pt. and Granthams Landing through a series of lift stations and could potentially service the entire area.

Berzins said funding for the project is available through federal and provincial grant programs that could possibly pick up between 60 and 90 per cent of the cost of the sewer system.

Directors asked the firm to finish its Langdale study on the basis of that plan, and decided to approach Gibsons council to see if it is agreeable to the plan.

Regional directors okay garbage dump proposal

Regional directors have recommended the establishment of a central waste disposal site near Sechelt where all Peninsula garbage picked up by contractors would be dumped.

The Public Utilities Committee decision was a result of two years of pressure to upgrade the Peninsula's four dumps to Pollution Control Board requirements and follows a vow made by directors in January to come up with a firm decision by February.

The PUC approved a plan at an April 20 meeting to establish a level B waste disposal site at a new location near the present Sechelt dump, while retaining dumps in Pender Harbour and Gibsons as level C dumps for local use. The dump presently operating at Halfmoon Bay would be shut down.

Directors rejected a motion made by Garbage Committee chairman George Gibb to establish a central site in Roberts Creek, "the centre of the garbage population". As part of his plan, Gibb also proposed closing down the Sechelt, Gibsons and Halfmoon Bay dumps, but continuing the operation of the Pender Harbour site.

Directors sitting on the PUC turned down Gibb's suggestions because Dayton and Knight, the district's engineering firm, opposed a site in Roberts Creek.

Dayton and Knight made a report to the regional board in January suggesting four optional plans to upgrade the Peninsula's dumping system, but Gibb said the firm "never really said" why it was against a Roberts Creek site.

Gibb said he has spent the last six weeks talking to "everybody who knows anything about garbage" and looking into the possibility of a convenient site in Roberts Creek.

He said directors "sort of informally" asked him to look into other possible solutions, but now he says his efforts were a waste of time considering Thursday night's decision.

"I may as well have save all my time," said Gibb.

Gibb called the decision to locate the central disposal site in the geographically central location of Sechelt "inconvenient as hell and expensive as hell".

"We're going to be trucking 75 per cent of the garbage," he said, "because it's not the distance that has the garbage, it's the

Tennis pros are rebuffed in Gibsons

After receiving the approval of Sechelt Council to use village tennis courts to conduct lessons, two Vancouver tennis pros have apparently had the same scheme turned down by Gibsons Council.

Although Gibson clerk Jack Copland says the request to use the courts is "sort of in limbo right now", village council defeated a motion to concur with the request if a successful application for a business licence was made.

In a brief to council, at the April 18 meeting, Jeff Brown and Gordon Harvey asked council's permission to use the courts one and a half hours in the morning twice a week and several hours in the afternoon and evening.

Brown and Harvey would charge $24 for a six-hour group session and $12 an hour for private lessons to provide what they called an "effective and proficient tennis instruction system for the Sunshine Coast."

Mayor Lorne Blain cast the deciding vote against the motion on the "moral principle" that the taxpayers have already paid for the courts, and that they should not be used for a commercial venture.

Harvey commented that since the taxpayers had an investment in the courts they might like to see them used to their best potential.

Copland said that the matter will probably come up at another meeting under unfinished business because of the lack of a firm decision by council.

They haven't really said no," said the clerk, "but then they haven't said yes, either."

In other business, council denied an application for a business licence for a combination gift and tea shop in the

In defence of the smoker and boozer

"Somebody's got to speak up for the smoker and the boozer in this province and it might as well be me," said Mackenzie MLA Don Lockstead.

The chain-smoking politician told the legislative assembly on April 11 that the government's recent tax increases for tobacco and liquor were "taxing working people, unemployed people, more than...people with a lot of money."

Lockstead said, "It doesn't matter to these rich people over here if it costs them $5 a pack. They could pay $10 a pack.... They could pay $50 and $100 a bottle for imported wines, while we peasants drink British Columbia wines."

The provinces 1978 budget increased the cigarette tax from 12 cents to 24 cents for a package of 25 cigarettes, effective April 11. Alcohol prices in government liquor stores were raised to produce an additional $20 million in revenue this year.

By way of comparison, other provinces tax cigarettes per package as follows: Alberta, 8 cents; Saskatchewan, 24 cents; Manitoba, 20 cents; Nova Scotia, 15 cents; Prince Edward Island, 20 cents, and Newfoundland, 33 cents.

A job well done

Congratulations are in order to the Festival Committee and the numerous talented participants in the Fifth Annual Sunshine Coast Music, Drama and Dance Festival.

The event was, as always, a welcome opportunity for bolstering one's confidence in this community and perhaps especially in the children. The whole thing just makes you feel good and maybe that's all that needs to be said about it.

The award donors, too numerous to be mentioned here, do not go unnoticed or unappreciated. And the festival committee gets one big round of applause for a job well done.

That committee consists of Chairman Peter Prescesky and members Florence Prescesky, Aletta Gilker, Mae Freer, Jean Milward, Brian Butcher, Frank Holmes, Les Fowler and Kay Hatcher. Tell them "thanks" the next time you run into one of them.

Hydro plans Cheekye survey

The following letter was sent to Regional Board chairman Harry Almond by the B.C. Hydro and Power Authority:

Dear Mr. Almond:

This letter is to advise the Regional District of Sunshine Coast and others concerned of our plans to initiate field surveys on the segment of the transmission line route between Cheekye Substation and Salmon Inlet (see sketch map, attached).

As you may be aware, with the exception of some very preliminary feasibility surveys of potential water crossings, there have been no field surveys conducted for the routing of this project. Further, it is not our intention to conduct field surveys on those segments of the project where alternative basic corridors are being assessed and publicly discussed (Sechelt Peninsula, Nelson Island) until the consultant's final "addendum" to the consultant's Phase I report is published, and a conclusion with respect to a final route alignment is reached.

However on the segment of the project lying between Cheekye Substation and Salmon Inlet there are no reasonable alternatives to the preferred route. Much of this part of the corridor is in rugged terrain with heavy snowfall and difficult access problems. In this respect, for field work on the ground we are dependent upon the seasons, and we plan to take advantage of the coming summer months to begin some route surveys on this segment of the line. Any property owners who might be directly affected by this survey will, of course, be contacted in advance.

Please be assured that field investigations on this segment of the project in no way commit Hydro to construction of the project, nor do they indicate a final route decision. This decision can not be reached for some months yet, and you will be fully advised. If you have questions or comments, please let me know.

Big Brother is no longer in Victoria

Editor, The Times:

Harry Almond, Chairman of the Sunshine Coast Regional Board, George Gibb, Area E Director, and Frank West, Chairman of the Elphinstone Electors Association, are all in favour of the Sunshine Coast Regional Board.

Regional government is intended to provide local representation; presumably this is preferable to provincial government, which is uninformed as to the needs and wishes of the people of this area.

De-centralization is the name of the game, and Almond, Gibb and West firmly believe that the provincial government should de-centralize its power, and give some of it to the regional board.

Surprisingly, once they have acquired power to govern, Almond, Gibb and West don't believe in de-centralization anymore. As a matter of fact, suddenly they are in favour of centralization of government!

Harry Almond is reported as having suggested scrapping the municipalities, and having one entire regional district. Geroge Gibb is reported as having proposed that the Gibsons voters should have been overridden when they refused to join the water function. And Frank West is reported to have said that the Electors Association fully supported the idea of one regional district for the entire area, although no mention will be made of this in their brief.

You may wonder why people who endorse the principle of decentralization, would do a complete about-face, and propose that the Sunshine Coast have one central government, the regional board.

The answer can be found in two little words that keep cropping up in their suggestions and recommendations, More power in central areas, More power to extend general services, Power to override municipalities, More power over zoning and enviornmental control!

Don't look now, but Big Brother isn't in Victoria anymore.

A time of reckoning for the CBC

By MARYANNE WEST

There will be a CBC shareholders meeting in Ottawa in June. Because the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, in which you and I and Hans Schmidt across the street are all shareholders, is a somewhat different organization from Sun Life or Mac Blo, shareholders meetings are somewhat different too, though the basic premise of accountability is the same.

Broadcasting in Canada is not only a complex system of complementary private and public sectors, but where government is concerned, of a particularly senstive nature.

The CBC is officially responsible to its shareholders through Parliament and each year appears before the appropriate Parliamentary Committee to account for itself and how its mandate is being met.

The Broadcasting Act specifies that the CBC should: "(1) be a balanced service of information, enlightenment and entertainment for people of different ages, interests and tastes covering the whole range of programming in fair proportion; (2) be extended to all parts of Canada, as public funds become available; (3) be in English and French, serving the special needs of geographic regions, and actively contributing to the flow and exchange of cultural and regional information and entertainment, and (4) contribute to the development of national unity and provide for a continuing expression of Canadian identity."

In recent years the CRTC has provided greater opportunity for grassroots discussion of CBC programming by separating individual station licence renewals and hearing them in the major centres across the country. One was held recently in Vancouver, Victoria and Kamloops. The hearing which will be held June 12 in the Government Conference Centre, Ottawa, is the important licence renewal for the whole network operations.

It is important because the CBC has increasingly come under criticism in recent years as Canadians have become more aware of its importance to national unity and our feelings of self-worth as a nation distinct from our neighbours. The CRTC puts it this way: "The unique contribution that the CBC has made to Canadian society has become increasingly difficult to maintain as integrated communication services have proliferated. The CBC has become, therefore, more crucial than ever before maintaining the national purpose in broadcasting, and for achieving the policy objectives of the Broadcasting Act. The changes in the publicly-supported and private elements of the Canadian Broadcasting system seriously threaten the CBC's traditional role and suggest the need for continuous analysis and planning to ensure the continued development of policies and programs designed to maintin the CBC's key role in the national broadcasting system".

The CRTC goes on to itemize the points which it finds of particular importance and gives a brief summary under each heading of the historical background to their concern.

The following are the headings under which the CRTC proposes to conduct discussion and of which it invites your opinions as a shareholder in the Corporation.

(1) The CBC's expression of Canada — relevant to this are the effect of CBC's organizational and operational structure, its programming philosophy, how schedules reflect the diversity of the regions, and the development and exposure of Canadian talent.

(2) The public's right to be informed — standards of professional journalism, the rules of debate, the right to reply and the requirements of evidence in support of assertion, the public's vital freedom to receive accurate information and informed commentary on all sides of important questions of public concern.

(3) Programming — mass appeal of diversity of choice. In both the 1974 decision and the Report of the Committee of Inquiry into the CBC last year the CRTC has emphasized its belief that while the CBC must no[illegible] come[illegible]ice for a small minority, that w[illegible] contin[illegible] provide a "popular" broadcasting service, it should strongly guard against considering itself a mass medium. "The range of viewers reached is much more relevant and important than the numerical size of any particular audience." CBC's standards must be qualitative rather than quantitative.

(4) The question of the CBC's commercial constraints — you may remember that the CRTC's 1974 decision contained the recommendation that CBC television phase out its dependence upon advertising revenues over a period of 5-10 years but the government wouldn't guarantee extra funding to replace lost revenues only that it expected CBC to do more with less.

(5) The CBC as an open and responsible public service — the CBC is working on plans for special network advisory council on Agriculture, the Arts, Science and Music as well as a general advisory council. CRTC notes that the views of individuals and groups regarding this important issue will be of particular interest to them.

(6) CBC's International service.

(7) CBC Facilities, extension of service, and financial support.

(8) The CBC's reflection of special and minority needs — do you feel the CBC enables British Columbians to express themselves to each other and equally important to the rest of Canada. How do you feel about the policy for economic reasons to centralize the radio news from Toronto? Do you find CBC radio programming overly city oriented? Do you recognize Canada's multi-racial society when you watch television or listen to radio?

This is your opportunity to express your views. Write to the CRTC, 100 Metcalfe St., Ottawa, K1A 0N2 with a copy to the CBC, 1500 Bronson Ave., Ottawa, K1G 3J5. Both letters must be registered with the receipt for the CBC's copy enclosed in the letter to the CRTC.

To simplify the procedures, I will enclose your letters with mine. Just forward to the Peninsula Times office, Box 310, Sechelt, and I will get the copies made. Please enclose 25 cents for your share of costs.

I would welcome input for a brief as well. Phone 886-2147. There is a deadline. Letters must be received by the CRTC by May 12, 1978.

Thank you to Sechelt Taxi

Editor, The Times:

The Resource Society's MiniBus was booked one recent day to take Mrs. Lou Pierce from the Extended Care Ward of St. Mary's Hospital to her home for the afternoon where a birthday party had been arranged for her. Unfortunately the driver of the bus was ill and it looked for a while that the party would be without the honored guest, as the means of transportation had to accommodate a wheel chair.

However, Betty Crosby, bus dispatcher, phoned the Sechelt Taxi Company to see if a driver could be spared to drive the bus. Mr. Neil McLardy, co-owner of the company came to the rescue and party arrangements were successfuly concluded. Neil, thanks.

Good things are still happening

Editor, The Times:

The news appears to reflect only unpleasant or negative happenings and often leaves one feeling depressed. People have stated to me they no longer care to read the papers or watch the news because it's so distressing.

Take heart, there are many positive and wonderful things happening all around us. We see it daily through the Resource Society's Volunteer Bureau. Volunteers give others the benefit of their time and talents in a variety of ways. There are also those who hear of a personal need in the community and quietly assist with no expectation of acknowledgement or credit.

Recently a personal need was brought to the attention of the Volunteer Bureau. A young mother raising her family alone and living far from the villages was having a difficult time managing the family laundry as she had no machine or transportation to a laundromat. The problem was solved through one phone call and the kindness and generosity of a community member who donated and delivered a spin washer-dryer machine.

So you see the good things are still happening. Just when you feel discouraged along comes someone who renews our faith in mankind.

Thanks good neighbour — a gold medal and a good day to you.

The level B dump proposed for Sechelt will have to be covered with landfill every other day and the two satellite C dumps will have to be maintained in the same way once a week.

However Gibb said he doubts this plan will meet with Pollution Control Board requirements. "It's their job to determine what the standards are, not the board's," he said.

Gibb said that he was told by a PCB official that not one garbage dump in the province is up to the board's standards, including the four dumps in the jurisdiction of the Sunshine Coast Regional District.

"I think this is the whole crux of the matter, said Gibb. "How can we expect, as a government body, people to abide by our regulations when we don't follow somebody else's?"

Meanwhile, the Area B Ratepayers Association will meet to discuss the closure of the Halfmoon Bay dump.

Ralph Mahar, an executive of the ratepayers association, told the Times that the closure of the dump would be "a little ridiculous" and particularly inconvenient for the summer residents of the area.

Mahar said that the Halfmoon Bay disposal site is a well-used dump, in spite of regular garbage collection service in the area.

"People who come up for weekends don't want to leave their garbage out until the Wednesday pick up, so they usually drop it off at the dump before leaving the Peninsula Sunday night," said Mahar.

Mahar said that he personally uses the dump three or four times a week because he has a store and because in the summer people dump their garbage at his B and J Store.

"It's hard enough to get people to use the dump as it is, but asking them to drive to Pender Harbour or Sechelt is a bit much," he said. "I wouldn't wish that Sechelt dump road on anybody.

AREA "B" RATEPAYERS

At a meeting of the directors of Area "B" Ratepayers' Association held on April 17, George Murray gave a report on a meeting of the HMB Volunteer Fire Department which he and Harold Ives had attended as liaison officers for discussion of the budget.

The department's budget, he said, was $27,836, which, after payment of principal and interest, leaves an operating budget of $12,356, with fixed expenses approximately $6,000. There is still a shortage of fire hydrants which cost approximately $1,200 each to install and for which the fire department pays $15 a year rental. Where there seems to be a special need for extra hydrants, requests should be made to Fire Chief Dave Reid at 885-3859. It had been hoped to set up four satellite stations, but so far the budget has stretched to only two flotation pumps, one of which has to stay with the fire truck. Satellite stations will be established as funds permit at the discretion of the Chief.

The agreed policy of the Fire Department is that though they will be prepared to answer other calls, their first priority will be to homes in the Halfmoon Bay Fire District.

The Board agreed to approach the Regional District about the possibility of more boat launching facilities in the area. They also expressed grave concern about the safety factor of the experiment with grooves on certain sections of highway.

A proud great-grandfather is Vince Shannon who has received word of the birth of his third great-grandchild, born to his granddaughter, Donna Jackson and her husband Brian at Millet, south of Edmonton. As Donna is a tiny five-foot-one-inch mother and Brian a six-foot-two-inch dad, the family will be watching the growth of the baby with more than ordinary interest.

John Ellis, home from Whitehorse recently for a visit with his parents, was delighted to be able to have a talk with his cousins, Dennis and Jane Birk who are sailing across the Pacific in their Tahiti ketch. The conversation was carried on by way of a combination hookup of radio and telephone and was made possible by Jane's father, Frank Larson of Seattle who is a ham radio operator.

Beverley Silvey was down from Powell River last weekend to visit her mother, Pat Ness. She was accompanied by her two daughters, Pam and Shelley, who were anxious to take part in the celebration of Grandpa Clarence Speck's birthday.

BEEFS AND BOUQUETS

At the request of Bill Sexton, this week's bouquet goes to Dr. Dennis Bailey and his staff at the Gibsons Animal Clinic for the devoted and sympathetic care they gave to his Labrador dog Tara after she was hit by a truck. When Lyell Hayter rushed her to Gibsons, the operating table was all ready for her and the staff ready to start working on her. Bill claims that no child entering a Vancouver hospital could have had more loving and devoted care. After 26 stitches and four days at the clinic, Tara is home and reunited with the Sexton family.

Fort Langley trip

RCMP RECRUIT

Robert Nestman, number three son of Leo and Doreen Nestman of Selma Park started his training on April third at the RCMP barracks in Regina. He is enjoying the realization of his longtime ambition to pursue this career with the force.

FORT LANGLEY TRIP

Seventy grade five students from Sechelt Elementary went on a field trip to Fort Langley Friday, April 21.

They travelled on two school buses from the school to the ferry where they walked on and were picked up by a charter bus at Horseshoe Bay.

This sort of trip works well. The students learned a great deal on the spot where a lot of history was made.

Teachers Judy Gates, Stewart Hercus and Mel Campbell had their students co-operating as if they were in a classroom, yet they were given a little more leeway. However, when the volume rose too high, one word from the teacher was enough to settle the group down.

Extra help in the way of volunteers were four mothers along to make sure no one got lost, this time they were; Shannon Stockwell, Faye Innes, Pat Crucil and myself. Each adult was in charge of about seven kids, the teachers had double that.

Starting with a tour of the Farm Museum where the working implements were on display for farming, the group went from there to the Centennial Museum. Here a lady explained the kitchen devices in use when everything was made from scratch. Also in this building they had a display of original art paintings from the National Art Gallery in Ottawa. There are only four places in Canada included on the tour for display, and Fort Langley is fortunate to be one. Unfortunately there was not enough time to really examine these valuable paintings as they were not really on the itinerary.

Lunches were eagerly opened and enjoyed on the grass in front of the Fort. This was followed by a slide show and talk on the history of Fort Langley.

Then it was time to enter the Fort Langley National Historic Park, and if you haven't been there let me recommend that you go.

Stepping into the enclosure is like stepping back 100 years. We formed into three groups with each group escorted by a guide in period clothing.

The Big House, used as the officers quarters now contains interpretive display and period furnishings. In the Artisan building two old crafts, hand carpentry and coopering with related tools are presented. Our lady guide gave a good demonstration of how both these crafts were done. The same at the blacksmith's shop. In making a nail she proved just as adept as any smithy.

The climbing of the steep stairs in the bastion was worthwhile for the view but also to see just why this spot was picked for the fort, still showing lots of green pasture along the river banks.

The trading goods store was where one learned what the fort was really all about, as they displayed the furs as brought in by the trappers and the goods to be traded for their value.

I do not intend to tell all we saw. For one thing it would take pages, but learning from seeing in the actual setting with either the original equipment or replicas is quite an experience. It is better to go to the site and see for yourself. I know I learned a great deal of how certain things started. For instance, Salmon is found in many old time Hawaiian dishes but not in Hawaiian waters. Salmon salted down in barrels shipped from Fort Langley on sailing ships sailed from here to the Hawaiian Islands where ships from many lands picked up cargoes some taking it back to California.

The people in charge of the exhibits complimented the teachers on the behaviour of their students and said they would be welcome to come back anytime.

There was a little overexuberance on the part of a few of the pupils on the ferry ride home. While this is may be not excusable, it is perhaps understandable when one takes in the long program they had participated in, in an orderly fashion.

BIRTHDAYS AT EXTENDED CARE

Celebrating birthdays for the month of April in the Extended Care at St. Mary's Hospital were Dr. Zetkin, Tom Wood, Don Stewart and Mrs. Sharon Wakeland. Gibsons extended care volunteer chairman Annie Metcalf was ably assisted by Gladys Palmer and Jean Wyngaert. Bingo games provided the entertainment. Jean Longelly donated the lovely corsage for Mrs. Wakeland from her greenhouse.

Lillian Peters activity aid was on hand to assist as were other staff Grace Davis, Ivy Lee, Ruby Ono, Debbie Cunliffe, Shirley McAughtrie and Jack Boundy.

The Creek runoff

A huge success

By Annie Dempster, 885-3326

FUN FAIR HUGE SUCCESS

The Fun Fair at Roberts Creek Elementary on Friday night was indeed a great success. The number of people that turned out to support the fair was absolutely fantastic. The dunking tank seemed to be one of the main attractions with some of the kids and several of the teachers taking turns in the tank. When the teachers took their turns it was too good an opportunity for the kids to pass up to vent any little hostilities they might be harboring for one reason or another. In any case, the people who did go in certainly deserve some sort of award for bravery. It was mighty chilly outside and the water wasn't anywhere near warm.

The bake table was laden with all sorts of homemade goodies as usual. The ladies in this area are just great when it comes to donating to any of the bake sales. As fast as the baking was being sold, there were people bringing more in.

The little ones had a great evening with all the games there were for them and they just loved the flea market.

Mention must be made of all the hard work that went into the raffle. Marilee Mulligan went around to most of the merchants in Sechelt, Roberts Creek and Gibsons asking for donations for the raffle before she and her husband left for Scotland. The merchants were most generous and so, the prizes offered were many and varied. Paddi Peterson took on the huge task of organizing all the prizes, making up the tickets and distributing them to the kids to sell, plus making sure that all the tickets were turned back in before the draw. Paddi also made up the food hampers (which were very attractively done) and distributed them to the winners.

Mr. Bob Wetmore, principal at the school, said, "I've been in several of these affairs but have never seen so few problems with the setting up of the operation, and the kids were extremely well behaved." Bob was also heard saying, "Who says you have to have a bar set up to make money at these functions?"

All in all, it was a mighty fine evening. The kids will be high on it for quite a while. Thanks again to the teachers and parents that put it all together.

The monies made from the fair were well over $600. Not bad for a night's work in a small community.

SCHOOL DANCE

One would think that after all the work that went into the fair, people would be too tired to consider another undertaking for a while. Not so for the parents and teachers from Roberts Creek. They are in the throes of planning their annual pot luck dinner and dance. This affair is gaining more popularity every year, and so it should, as it is always a lovely affair. It brings people together who might never get a chance to meet otherwise, who all share a common bond—having kids attending the same school.

The pot luck smorgasbord dinner and dance is Saturday, May 6 at the Roberts Creek Community Hall. The doors will open at 7 p.m. and there will be a happy hour till 8 p.m. when dinner will be served at 8 SHARP. After dinner, there will be dancing till 1 a.m. to the well-known band "Eclipse". Tickets are now on sale at Seaview Market at $3 each. Hope to see lots of you there.

LADIES SOFTBALL

Softball season officially starts on Tuesday, May 2, at 6:45 p.m. at the Elphinstone Field when the Roberts Creek ladies softball team will play against the Cedars Inn team. The ladies will be playing every Tuesday and Thursday evening. Watch the sports page for times and fields.

Why not come out and cheer the ladies on? It's great for their morale.

BINGO WINNER

The lucky winner at last week's bingo in the Sechelt Legion was Muriel Sully from Hall Rd. Muriel won the jackpot of $500 and two tickets to Reno for May 13. She got it in 52 calls.

Eva McConnell from Selma Park was also a winner as Muriel plans to take Eva to Reno with her.

Congratulations girls, we're happy for you.

LEGION AUXILIARY

The ladies auxiliary to the Roberts Creek Legion Branch 219 will hold an executive meeting on Monday, May 1, in the Legion Hall.

WAYS AND MEANS MEETING

There will be a meeting of the Roberts Creek Community Association Ways and Means Committee on Thursday, April 27, at 3:30 p.m. at the Womens' Centre. If you have any ideas or energy you would like to share, please come and do so. A reminder that Ways and Means is trying to raise money to help with the building and equipping of a community centre for Roberts Creek.

The meeting on Thursday is to organize the next fund-raising project for our new Community Centre.

Flower show is a success

The Sechelt Garden Club held a very successful flower show in the Senior Citizens Hall on Saturday, April 15. The wide varieties of primroses, daffodils, tulips and house plants plus a number of flowering shrubs made a very colorful display. Two exotic plants, a giant amaryllis and a Clivia, and a large purple azalea added much to the show. A record number of plants were sold within 20 minutes of the opening of the show.

Winner of the rug raffle was Ann Hansom of West Sechelt. Proceeds of the raffle amounted to $130 which will be turned over to the Sunshine Coast Art Council building fund.

The winning ticket for the door prize was 924-299. Holder of this ticket may phone Lou Wilson (885-3154) to claim this item. If the holder does not phone within 10 days the second number 924-165 will become the winner and ticket 924-256 will win after a further wait of 10 days.

Mr. Harold Nelson, Mayor of Sechelt formally opened the show.—Jack MacLeod.

The fit never quit.

Lions Club auction

By Doris Edwardson, 883-2308

The P.H. Lions Club will be holding its annual auction on April 29 at 6 p.m. in the Madeira Park Community Hall. Items can be viewed all day before the auction begins. Auctioneers are John Haddock and Mike Cashaback. Everyone knows how much fun these Lions Club Auctions are and there are usually plants, tools, household furnishings, outboards, pictures and even live animals put up for bids so when the above-mentioned auctioneers get going it is very comical. Any last minute donations of household furnishings or other useful items will be picked up by the Lions if you phone 883-2387.

WORK BEE

South Pender Harbour Waterworks District will be holding a work bee at Haslam Lake April 29 to clear trees for a seeding program at a later date. Anyone interested is asked to bring a shovel or power saw. Transportation will be provided from the sign at the chlorination building on highway 101 at 9 a.m.

SENIOR CITIZENS' ASSN.

Joe McCann, treasurer of the Lion's Club, gave a short talk about the creation of Lion's Park last Monday evening at the April meeting of the P.H. Senior Citizen's Assoc. Br. 80. He spoke of the completion of the Harry Morrison Hall in the park and of the prospects for further recreational development there. He proposed that senior citizens should consider the advantages of building a bowling lawn in Lions Park. John Heidema was appointed to lock into the possibilities of the suggestion. Three films provided the entertainment for the evening: "Kenojuak" a beautiful portrayal of the famous Eskimo artist and her lovely work, "Pigs" a comical portrayal of the nature and character of ordinary barnyard porkers and "Survival in the Bush" an interesting but somewhat fanciful experiment in living off the land. The projector was lent through the kindness of the elementary school and operated by Fred Olson.

ROYAL CANADIAN LEGION

The R.C. Legion Br. 112 is having a dance on April 29 and the music will be by the North Vancouver Band Br. 118. This is a special appearance and there is no charge. IN THE NEWS

The driver of a Peninsula Roofing truck had a narrow escape when his truck hit a ridge of pavement on Highway 101 and went over the bank above the R.L. & B. trailer court last Thursday evening.

Jack Howe, formerly of Madeira Park and Jean Arnold of Surrey were married in Vancouver last month.

Jean Morrison is leaving on a trip to Holland, then later will be moving to Victoria.

B.C. Hydro has asked for a meeting on spraying in the Regional District.

Phone for help

More than 20,000 persons in British Columbia have used a special venereal disease telephone information service since it was established four months ago, says Health Minister Bob McClelland.

The service involves a toll-free telephone number available to persons outside Vancouver, and an answering system located in the health ministry's building, in Vancouver.

"The telephone information system went into effect in conjunction with an advertising campaign," said Mr. McClelland. "The public response indicates it was a very successful venture and it appears more persons are seeking early treatment of venereal symptoms than ever before."

The answering service was installed last September, with recorded messages providing information on symptoms of the six most common sexually trasmitted diseases, and the methods of prevention.

"We have noticed definite changes in attendance at VD treatment clinics as a result of our advertising campaign and the information line," said Mr. McClelland.

The toll free number is Zenith 4014, and it can be used by any person outside Vancouver.

How does the voter measure the concern of government? Certainly not by advertisements. If that were the gauge in this province there would be no need for elections; based on the statements emenating from the Social Credit government in victoria we are the cheeriest, brightest spot in Canada because of the government's concern for the economy and the people of B.C.

Surely a more realistic barometer of government concern is the amount of money it returns to the people who produce its wealth. The Social Credit government is making much of the $125 that will be returned to the average family in B.C. because of the reduction in sales tax. Yet because of various increases in the cost of services in the past two years, the Social Credit administration has taken out of the pockets of the people of B.C. $1500 per year. The reduction in sales tax is commendable but it was Socred imposed and Socred sustained for over two years. And, again, nothing has been done as far as a reduction in Hydro rates, I.C.B.C. rates or school tax levies.

On an aggregate basis the return to the people of the province is even worse. Last year's budget called for expenditures of $3.83 billion. The Provincial Gross Product increased by 4.3 per cent. What should be noted is how much this year's budget exceeds last year's cumulative total of $3.83 billion plus 4.3 per cent growth, discounting of course for inflation. It is only that figure which tells us how much this government cares about the unemployed, the struggling business people, the families that are losing their homes and so on.

The Social Credit government is allocating $100 million less in relative dollars this year as compared to last. The Minister of Finance is trumpeting the extraordinary qualities of his budget made no mention of this $100 million cut in the distribution of dollars.

The government's failure to provide any leadership or direction is reflected in some of the predictions for 1978. In its March 18 story on Woodward's Stores Ltd. the Financial Post noted "Woodward's strength in Alberta remains the chief attraction for security analysts, who are still jittery about the vulnerability of British Columbia's economy."

There's only one way to put that confidence back into the economy. The government must invest in the province. Instead of withdrawing from the provincial marketplace, the government should pursue its share of the goals of a mixed economy. Given the ultra-conservative premise upon which the Social Credit party rests, however, I doubt that kind of action is possible. The practise of cooling a cold economy and showing a lack of compassion for the people of the province will continue.

BOOK REVIEW

There are lots of good books for kids to read. We'd like to start telling you about some of them. One is called MARY OF MILE 18. It is written by a Canadian woman named Ann Blades.

Mary Fehr lives with her family on their farm in the north. It is very cold with lots of snow and the northern lights flash in the sky at night. Mary gets out of her bed at night to look at the lights and listen to their crackling music. She pretends that the music will bring something special.

One day on the way home from school Mary sees a puppy in the snow. "Please father can I keep him?" "You know the rules, he says, our animals must work for us or give us food." Unhappily Mary carries the wolf pup into the woods and let him go.

At night when everyone is asleep, a coyote comes to the Fehrs henhouse. A screech in the night wakes everyone up. Mr. Fehr gets his gun and scares the coyote away. Wolf pup is standicg at the henhouse wagging his tail. "So it was you who warned us," he says. He picks the puppy up and takes him home to Mary.

Look for it at your school library.

Last week's cross word puzzle was won by SUSIE ANDERSON, 11, of SECHELT.

THERE WAS A LOT of enthusiasm and a lot of partners at this lemonade stand in Sechelt last week, but unfortunately not many customers. Hard to figure: at five cents a cup, the price was certainly right. Maybe it had something to do with the fact that the partners seemed more interested in consuming the produce than in selling it.

Christian Science

"Then shall ye call upon me, and ye shall go and pray unto me, and I will hearken unto you." (Jer. 29 12)

Do we doubt that prayer is effective? Are our needs really met?

Mary Baker Eddy writes: "Are we benefited by praying? Yes, the desire which goes for hungering after righteousness is blessed of our Father, and it does not return unto us void".

And again, "Our Master taught his disciples one brief prayer, which we name after him the Lord's Prayer. Our Master said, 'After this manner therefore pray ye,' and then he gave that prayer that covers all human needs." (pp2 and 16 Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures.)

Stop smoking with Operation Kick-It

Statistics released by Health and Welfare Canada recently showed that British Columbia was the largest per-capita non-smoking population in Canada, with only 40 per cent of the adult population still smoking cigarettes regularly. This compares with the province of Quebec, in which 50 per cent of the adult population still smokes.

For several years, the B.C. Tuberculosis-Christmas Seal Society has been actively involved in a massive education program (aimed at elementary and high-school students throughout British Columbia), which employs films, lectures and class projects to teach the students the health hazards of cigarette smoking. Approximately 12,000 students receive information from the society's nurse educator through this program each year.

Another society undertaking, begun in January 1975, is Operation Kick It, (a program designed to help smokers kick the habit of cigarette smiking. In the years since the program began, to the time of the survey in early '77, an estimated 3,000 individuals had participated in Operation Kick It. Classes are held in schools, community centres, hospitals, health units and businesses.

An army of volunteer counsellors lead the 11-week sessions which make up the program. These volunteers will act as counsellors for the Kick It programs in many parts of the province. Operation Kick It employs methods drawn from many sources, but is generally based on a group-therapy principle. Smokers who register for the program are taught why they smoke, and how to stop smoking.

The participants do not quit "cold turkey" on the first or even the fifth session. They are encouraged to keep track of the number of cigarettes they smoke, when they smoke them, and to rate their level of desire for each cigarette on a scale of one to six. A card wrapped around their cigarette package reminds them to keep an accurate record. Definite patterns in smoking are easy to see in only a few days.

Operation Kick It is free, and is provided by Christmas Seals as a free public service. Locations throughout the province are planned for 1978.

Further information about Operation Kick It may be obtained by writing to the B.C Tuberculosis-Christmas Seal Society, 906 West Broadway, Vancouver B.C. V5Z 1K7, or by telephoning 731-4961.

The main science area will be equipped with lab tables and will have sliding blackboard on the east and south walls. The third room is the greenhouse. This is approximately 8 feet by 20 feet, fully-glassed room with a southwestern exposure. Colours of the science lab will be biege and chocolate with orange tack boards.

Youth gets suspended sentence for taking car

Gregory Martin August pleaded guilty in provincial court April 19 to taking a car with the owner's consent and was given a one-year suspended sentence.

Speaking on behalf of the 18-year-old Sechelt youth, Joyce Maykut asked Judge J.S.P. Johnson to consider a discharge when sentencing August because of his age.

Maykut said he was only 17 years old when "on impulse" August drove the 1971 Pinto that he discovered with the keys in the ignition.

"He's a quiet boy and generally not a troublesome character," said Maykut.

The judge said that he did not feel a conditional discharge was in order considering the offence.

During that period August must report to the probation officer.

Nineteen-year-old David George White was fined $500 in default 14 days in jail after pleading guilty to failing to report an accident.

White, an construction worker, was driving a friend's truck when he hit another vehicle March 18 in Gibsons. He told the court that he had planned to report the accident the next day because there were drunk people in the truck, but that he was later "sort of talked out of it by friends."

The man's licence will also be suspended.

Gibsons logger Ray Rowland was fined $250 after a bar room scuffle in Vernon resulted in charges of wilful damage and refusing to leave a licenced premises when requested to do so.

The 26-year-old Rowland said he had been celebrating the finishing of a log cabin with his brother when he got a "bit rowdy with his brother and a friend" and was asked to leave the Lakeside Motor Inn. Rowland returned a couple of hours later and during the course of a "minor scuffle" with a waiter, ripped the jukebox speaker wires out of the wall.

A 23-year-old Gibsons boom man pleaded guilty to impaired driving and failing to provide a breath sample after hitting a police car while drunk November 24, 1977, causing $245 worth of damage.

Stanley Samuel Sopow will have until August 1 to pay a $650 fine in default 21 days in jail. Since the damage to the police car was over $200, his licence will be suspended for six months.

Sopow will take the impaired drivers course during a six-month probation period.

Paul Emil Gallant of Sechelt pleaded guilty to driving while having a blood alcohol level over .08. Gallant, a Jervis Inlet logger, was fined $500 and had his licence suspended.

Timber Days firming up

Sechelt's Timber Days celebration, scheduled for May 21-22, got another shot in the arm last week when Lil Fraser, coordinator of last year's event, agreed to take on responsibility for the loggers' sports and the Sechelt and District Chamber of Commerce consented to coordinate the annual parade.

Graham Craig will be master of ceremonies.

Parade application forms will be available shortly at local businesses, Fraser said.

For more information on the parade, which will have a Capt. Cook Bicentennial theme, phone the chamber office at 885-3100 or Fraser at 885-2894.

Police news

Freak accident injures man

A Powell River man was slightly injured April 20 when a "grapefruit-sized" stone was thrown from between the double-wheels of a truck and sent hurtling through the windshield of the man's car, travelling behind the truck.

The man, Peter Kamilieris, was grazed on the head by the rock. He was treated and released from St. Mary's Hospital. The accident occurred on Hwy. 101 near Madeira Park.

Sechelt RCMP said that if the truck could be located, the driver would be charged for not having adequate mud flaps on the vehicle.

Also on April 20, Sechelt police conducted a drug raid on an apartment in the new complex on Dolphin St., seizing about 11 ounces of marijuana and arresting several persons on the premises. Charges were pending.

Patricia Murphey reported finding a 14-foot boat with a motor floating unattended in Halfmoon Bay on April 17. Cliff Southwood found a Russian Wolfhound the same day near the corner of Redroffs and Southwood. Persons with any information regarding the above are requested to contact Sechelt RCMP.

A house trailer at Coopers Green was broken into April 17 and two bottles of liquor stolen.

Joyce Higgs reported a purse stolen out of her unattended vehicle while it was parked in front of the Sechelt Motor Vehicle office about 3 p.m. on April 19.

In the Gibsons area, a quantity of lumber, paint and nails was stolen from the Kinsmen House in Dougal Park on April 18. The material, valued at about $100, was later recovered and two youths interviewed by police in connection with the incident.

Three cougars were reported roaming in the Port Mellon area on April 20. One of the animals was subsequently shot by Conservation Officer Jamie Stephen, according to police.

$100 winner in Kin Win

Gordon Montgomery of Gibsons was one of 45 persons who each won $100 last week in the Kinsmen Rehabilitation Foundation's Kin Win lottery for the disabled.

A Nanaimo man won the $1,000 top Early Bird prize. Another Early Bird draw will be held May 20. Final draw in the lottery will be July 25.

Development programs

Other assistance through the Department of Housing, Province of British Columbia, includes:

Co-operative Housing Assistance

Aid provided through interim financing and High-Impact Grants for non-profit housing co-operatives.

Land Servicing Program

Short-term financing for municipalities servicing land for housing throughout B.C. Mostly for essential water, sanitary sewer, storm drainage or others on both private and public lands.

Replotting Assistance Program

Enabling incorporated municipalities to eliminate unwanted legal and road patterns if their existing grid patterns are unsuitable. Helps minicipalities to introduce community plans more in keeping with local needs and topography.

Municipal Incentive Grant

Encourages municipalities to promote housing construction on already serviced land with grants totalling $1,500 per eligible unit to be made available to designated municipal governments. These grants are made up of $1,000 from CMHC and an additional $500 grant from the province.

Neighbourhood Improvement Program

Works with the federal program, with costs shared between three levels of government — federal, 50 per cent; provincial 25 per cent and municipal 25 per cent. Funds are supplied to upgrade older residential neighbourhoods worth saving and improvement of social and recreational facilities.

Remote Area Housing

The federal and provincial governments share on a 75-25 basis the construction costs of new homes in remote areas which are made available to low and moderate income families in communities with a population of less than 2,500.

Crown Land Inventory

This is a special project of the Ministry of Housing being carried out to compile an inventory land suitable for housing purposes. This information was mapped and reports written to achieve a community profile for each B.C. Municipality.

New home buyer protection plans

British Columbia, Ontario Quebec, Saskatchewan, Nova Scotia, New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island are committed in principle to a buyer protection plan which will give new-home buyers a one-year warranty on builder-caused defects plus optional insurance against major structural defects for an additional four years. The plan will also protect buyers from builders lacking in necessary technical skills and those who end up in bankruptcy. For information about the plan, contact any local office of HUDAC (Housing and Urban Development Association of Canada) or write HUDAC, 37 King Street East, Toronto.

Federal programs

National Housing Act

Since 1954 when the present National Housing Act was introduced, over 1,000,000 Insured Mortgage Loans have been granted for the purchase of newly built or existing homes. These loans, which are probably the most familiar housing help to those in the real estate profession, allows borrowers up to 95 per cent of the value of the home, which can be repayed in up to 35 or even 40 years.

Approved Lender Loans

These are NHA loans provided by private companies such as chartered banks, life insurance companies and trust and loan companies authorized by the federal government to lend under the terms of the Act. A list of lenders is always available from the nearest CMHC office.

Direct Loans

Direct loans from CMHC are available only in those areas not normally serviced by approved lenders.

Loans for New Homes

At the present time, insured loans may be made to the owners of new homes for up to 95 per cent of the first $47,000 of lending value plus 75 per cent of the balance up to a maximum established by CMHC on a local and regional basis. (In all cases the lending value is established by CMHC and may vary from the actual market price.) Changes in figures are always available at the nearest CMHC office.

Loans for Existing Housing

Loans to aid in the purchase or purcase and improvement of existing houses are also made under NHA regulations. For a single unit, 95 per cent of the first $47,000 of lending value, plus 75 per cent of the balance up to a maximum established by the corporation on a local and regional basis may be borrowed. Comparable loans are available for a duplex or both units of a semi-detached dwelling, for the improvement of a property already owned or for refinancing a property. The principal purpose of this assistance is to provide greater opportunity for people to own and improve their own homes.

General Information

To ensure the housing it supports is a sound investment, the Act requires CMHC to determine lending values of properties, prescribe construction standards and perform compliance inspections during construction. Standards are developed by a Committee of representatives from CMHC, government and private industry and the requirements are set out in "Residential Standards" which forms a part of the National Building Code. Inspection is carried out at least three times at fixed stages during construction.

Mortgage repayment is amortized for the life of the loan, arranged in equal monthly istalments which include payment of interest and principal and an amount equal to one-twelfth of the estimated annual municipal taxes. As a general rule the total annual payment on principal, interest and taxes should not exceed 30 per cent of the annual income of the borrower, including a portion or all of the spouses's income. The applicant must provide at least 5 per cent of the lending valued towards the purchase from his own resources which may be in the form of cash, land or labor or a combination of these.

Home purchase assistance

This program makes funds available to buyers of new or older homes, provided the cost of the home is within specified price limits. The assistance can be in the form of a $1,000 grant on new homes or a $5,000 second mortgage loan on new or older homes. To be eligible the house had to be bought on or after June 30, 1976. The previous Home Acquisition Act was in effect until November 30, 1976.

The $1,000 grant is available only for the purchase of a new home, i.e. where the applicant is the first occupant of the house. If anyone has occupied any part of the house, it cannot qualify as a new home.

The second mortgage loan is available for the purchase of a new or older home that is a single family dwelling, or a property that is subdivided under the Strate Titles Act, or a mobile home that is owned by the applicant, and is affixed to the applicant's land. The mobile home may be located in a mobile park.

The cost of the mobile home must still fall within the designated price limits. In this case, "cost" is determined by totalling the following:

i) The cost of the land
ii) The purchase price of the mobile home less the cost of furniture and appliances.
iii) The cost of any improvements to the land.

The mobile home must be subject to assessment for property tax purposes.

If there is a chattel mortgage or conditional sales contract registered against the mobile home, the second mortgage cannot exceed the difference between the value of the mobile home itself (without value of land and cost of affixing) and the amount registered against it.

Senior Citizens housing

Under the Elderly Citizens' Housing Aid Act, the Ministry provides grants to encourage non-profit sponsors such as service clubs, churches, ethnic and other groups to build and manage various types of senior citizen housing.

The program provides:
— grants of up to one third of capital cost to self-contained home developments;
— grants of 35 per cent for boarding residences and facilities offering special care for occupants;

As of December 31, 1976, the Ministry was assisting in the construction of 1,348 senior citizen units, of which 1,085 were under the Act described above. There were 1,414 starts in 1976 (1,286 under the Act) and 2,491 completions (1,017 under the Act).

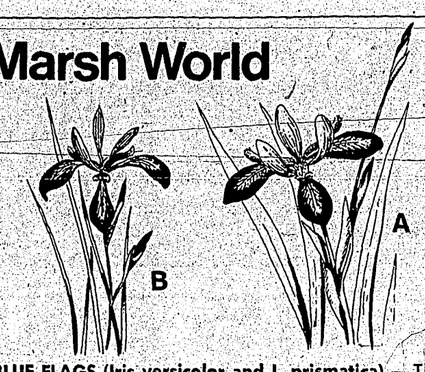
Marsh World



BLUE FLAGS (Iris versicolor and I. prismatica) — This attractive marsh plant commonly called wild iris is one of our most colorful wildflowers. (A) The western form is larger with long sword-like leaves. The wide spreading flower is deep blue-purple with finely patterned, dark, vein-like streaks fanning out from the yellow center. (B) The eastern form is characterized by narrow grass-like leaves. Although smaller, it is equally colorful. Both grow along marsh edges and wet meadows, blooming from May to June and growing up to three feet in height.

The term condominium

Condominium living is a popular answer to the need for less costly home ownership for many people. Whether you choose this type ownership for your first home, or as an easier lifestyle when your family is grown, you have a wide choice from the many designs available on the lower mainland. Though the idea dates back twenty five hundred years, the first condominium units appeared locally in the late nineteen sixties.

The terms condominium, or strata title refer to a type of ownership rather than a particular style. They can be apartments, townhouses, duplexes or even clusters of single family dwellings in a strata title project.

Condominiums can be purchased in small units, large projects, or high-rises, with extra facilities such as swimming pools, saunas and tennis courts often included in the larger projects. Investigate all types of condominiums before you buy, to make sure it will suit your particular lifestyle.

Century West — Sechelt

Explaining the term "Buyers market"

The words buyers' market should not throw fear into the breast of a vendor. Instead, it can work in his favour. Traditionally, more houses are made available on the market at this time of year, and though this may present some buyer-confusion, you may be sure that a good property, realistically priced, and made attractive to potential purchasers, will be chosen by a buyer who will be happy with his choice because he has had great comparison opportunity. Convenience, location, condition, space and facilities, neighbourhood and price are the six major considerations that govern any buyer's choice. If your property meets most or all of the average buyer's needs you can depend on plenty of activity and an eventual satisfactory sale. Existing homes on the market today are good value because they can never be duplicated at the same price again.

Take care with home insulation

Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Rafe Mair has warned against "dishonest contractors peddling inferior home insulation products", and has extended the original three-day cooling off period to SEVEN DAYS in which B.C. Consumers can cancel door-to-door sales contracts.

He urged everyone to be aware of requirements for federal grants, and that salesmen may gloss over the fact that this year the grants apply only to B.C. homes built before 1941. He also reminded anyone considering insulating this year to remember that the federal grants are payable only for two-thirds of the cost of materials up to a maximum of $350, and that labour costs are not included in the grants. This grant is also taxable, which fact has escaped many applicants.

He cautions potential customers to get at least two separate estimates from reliable contractors and check with a local Better Business Bureau or T.F. 800-663-3145.

Nazi hunter won't forget

By Vern Giesbrecht

Almost everyone with access to a television set was watching Holocaust last week, it seems. At least the NBC "mini-series" on the extermination of Jews by the Nazis before and during the Second World War was a popular topic of discussion among teachers and students, with whom I spend most of my time.

"It's pretty gross," commented a Grade 8 student, referring not to the series but to the horrible slaughter it depicted.

"The show is too much of a fantasy," said a teacher. "I doesn't hurt the way a documentary would . . ."

For Simon Wiesenthal, the Holocaust has never stopped hurting, even though he was one of the lucky ones, being liberated from the Mauthausen death camp in 1945. Since then, he has devoted his life to tracking down Nazi murderers. He has been astoundingly successful, rooting out and bringing to trial some 1,100 Nazi criminals, including Adolf Eichmann and the Gestapo sergeant who clomped up the stairs of a house in Amsterdam to arrest Anne Frank and seven others, in an attic hideaway in August, 1944. Yet, he says, the number of Nazi criminals tried and convicted represents "only the tip of the iceberg" and he admits, "We'll never get every Nazi criminal and helper."

Standing before an audience of more than 1,000 at the Schara Tzedeck Synagogue in Vancouver last Tuesday, Wiesenthal acknowledged a standing ovation and tried to play down his reputation as a famous "Nazi hunter".

"I'm not the Jewish James Bond, nor Don Quixote . . ." he said.

Certainly he didn't cut a dashing or outlandish figure. With his subdued grey suit, grey moustache and weary face, he looked his age, 60, for for an hour and 20 minutes there was a virtual silence in the large synagogue as he spoke, calmly but passionately.

There was little emotion in the audience, composed largely of Jews. Some of the listeners nodded in remembrance or agreement as he spoke, others twisted their hands or wiped away a tear.

Wiesenthal did not speak of the 89 members of his family who perished in the Holocaust, nor of his experiences in the concentration camp. Instead, he detailed some of the obstacles blocking his campaign to avenge the victims of the Nazi genocide and warned that what happened to Jews — and Gentiles — in Europe during the Nazi regime could happen again elsewhere in the world.

Efforts to bring the Nazi criminals to justice have been hindered by three main factors, Wiesenthal said: the false definition of war criminals, the law, and the number of persons killed.

The biggest extermination of Jews took place 800 to 1,000 miles from the combat zone and had little to do with the war, he said. "The war made the crimes possible, but can't excuse them," he said. Most of the Nazi murderers were not soldiers, fighting against other soldiers and taking the risk of being wounded or killed, and 90 per cent of them survived the war, Wiesenthal said. The term "war criminal" doesn't fit them.

Regarding the legal obstacle, Wiesenthal said the definition of mass murder became obsolete in Hitler's time. "It used to be that if a person went insane and shot four or five people, he was a mass murderer, but in Hitler's time, there was a new type of mass murder, the murder from the desk. With a telephone call . . . he gave the orders and killed thousands of victims.

"In one case a man was responsible for the deaths of 700,000 people, but he has only one life, so for this enormous crime, he paid with his life. There was another man, Franz Novak, an Austrian, who transported 1,700,000 Jews to Auschwitz for Eichmann. He had three trials . . . and was finally sentenced to nine years. So people say, 'For the death of my father, he has 25 seconds in jail' for 'For the death of my family, he was three minutes in jail.'

"People said to me, 'Don't wait for a trial, give us the names and addresses, we will do it.'" I said, 'How many will you be able to kill before you're stopped. Maybe 600, then the goverrment will stop you. So, people will say, the Nazis killed the Jews during the war, after the war the Jews killed the Nazis. (Even though) it's 600 against six million, they'll say, it's finished.'

"'People say to me sometimes, 'You saved the life of a criminal.' It would have been very easy to kill Eichmann in Argentina . . . but we need the criminals on trial as witnesses for history. The trial is more important than the criminal."

The third obstacle, Wiesenthal said, was created when Jewish survivors of the Holocaust seemed to forget about the five million Gentiles who were also exterminated by the Nazis. "I saw it coming in '47 and '48 and I told the Jewish organizations, talk about 11 million killed, including six million Jews, talk about the gypsies, the Serbs, the Poles, the 40,000 Dutchmen who were also killed . . . After the war, it was possible to make a brotherhood of victims. Now, the majority of Jews don't know about the Nazi problem and they ignore the figures. Some say they're not the survivors because no one from their family was in the gas chambers but the Nazis tried to kill all the Jews so I say, every Jew is a survivor."

Wiesenthal has little patience for those who say the Nazis are old and sick and should be left to die in peace. "This is wrong! There are seven million Nazis alive today and they're depending on the young generation."

There wouldn't be as many Nazis alive if Wiesenthal had his way but he said many Nazis escaped from Europe during the Cold War, when Allied efforts to try them were reduced, and there are still thousands of them living today under false names.

For a long time, he said, it was hard to find anyone in Germany who would admit knowledge of Hitler's atrocities. "Old people would say, 'I was against Hitler. I heard some rumors (about the death camps) but I saw nothing.' I never met a man who said, 'Yes, I was a Nazi' but with the growth of neo-Nazi groups today, people are willing to say they're Nazis."

Wiesenthal reserved his harshest words for Nazi "helpers", many of whom, he said, live in Canada, the United States and Australia today. "They're worse than the Nazis because the assassins had the excuse that they were ordered to commit crimes but the helpers from the Baltic and other countries volunteered to help the Nazis. They helped kill, they turned in people and in many cases they made a profit from the property (of the victims)."

Among the anecdotes Wiesenthal told was the story of his five-year search for Karl Silberbauer, the policeman who arrested Anne Frank and her family in an attic in Amsterdam. He finally caught up to Silberbauer in Vienna, Austria (on Nov. 23, 1963), aided by a Polish joke about reading the telephone directory to fall asleep. After the capture, he learned that Silberbauer had attended the play based on the young Jewish girls's diary. (Although Wiesenthal didn't mention it, Silberbauer was merely suspended from his job with the Vienna police department).

Wiesenthal also told of accompanying three rabbis to a Jewish library in Austria and seeing one of the rabbis faint when he found a book from his home, with an inscription from his sister, which read in part: "The murderers are in the village, in the next house. Please don't forget us, don't forget our memory."

"I still grow cold every time I think of it," Wiesenthal said. "It's our duty to execute this last will . . . It's my personal tragedy that my office (Jewish Documentation Centre) is the last one in the world. It's not an easy life. Many similar offices have closed, but I'm like the Japanese soldier who didn't realize that the war was over."

Wiesenthal ended his talk with a warning and an appeal.

"What happened can happen again . . . When hatred becomes a government policy, as in Idi Amin's Uganda, place in South America, Biafra . . . then a holocaust is possible. Our generation was completely unprepared for hatred. We couldn't imagine it could happen in Germany, where we were so integrated.

"Dear young friends, watch the beginning propaganda of hatred, separating Jews and Gentiles, saying Jews have no right to sit in parks, to travel on the same buses . . . The effect of all this made the 'final solution' a normal, expectable conclusion.

"Our freedom is not a gift from heaven. This freedom we must win every day."

MB not unduly 'bugged'

Ambrosia beetles are small, winged insects whose dietary preference for hemlock and fir wood could cost the B.C. forest industry up to $7 million in damages annually if their appetities are not drastically curbed.

The damage estimate comes from the Pacific Forest Research Centre in Victoria, which says the switch by logging companies form traditional water-sorting methods to dry-land grading has increased the ambrosia beetles' activity.

Adult beetles emerge in the spring and are attracted to piles of cut hemlock and fir, where they bore through the logs, creating tunnels and reducing the wood's market value.

While the beetle has "always been around and is endemic to this area," they cause only minor damage locally, says Gabrielle Sartisohn, a forester with MacMillan Bloedel's Stillwater division.

"In this division our only dry-land sorting is done on a sort of peninsula on Powell Lake," said Mrs. Sartisohn, adding that damage caused at the four-acre site by the beetle had not noticeably increased in the past few years.

Logs that are hit by the beetle "are usually salvaged for pulp," she said.

RORY WALKER received the Tom Robilliard Memorial Cup for being the year's most outstanding player at the Minor Hockey banquet held at Elphinstone high school on Friday, April 21. Walker, a defenceman for Legion 140 was praised by coach Carl Kohuch as "a good example to the league, for his dedication to his team, good sportsmanship and his ability." Walker scored 21 goals and never missed a practice or game. Coach of the year award went to Steve Esselemont. Individual awards for most sportsmanlike player in each of the divisions went to: Darren Kohuch in the Atom Division, Murry Grant in the Pee Wee division, Wilfred Leithbridge and Steve Ono in the Bantam Division and Steve Brakett in the Midget Juvenile Division.

Ladies bowling wind-up luncheon

The Ladies Wednesday Bowling Club held their luncheon at the Golf Club on April 19.

President Sylvia Wood is certain the Hepcats, or should we say Pepcats, will enjoy the Crucil Trophy, presented by Mrs. Chris Crucil, for being league champions.

Rhe roll off winner was the Five Funnies, second the Hepcats, third the Splats and fourth the Greenhorns. High Three goes to Evelyn Purnell with a 737, High Single Ev Chappel with a 313 and a well-earned High Average by Lil McCourt with 198. Three team high was the Five Squares, scoring 2,859. The Smilers got the team high with 1,082.

Eleanor Burnacki wins the Most Improved Trophy. Next year Eleanor will take a shot at the high single. It's whispered that Alice Auwillette won the Low score trophy. Geratol sandwich for you next year, Alice.

Our spares, bless them, may you ever be around. Attendance spoons were much appreciated. May you all have pleasant memories with your mugs (glass ones, I mean).

Special thanks to our secretary Hilda Mitten. May your pencil never need sharpening. And to Treasurer Betty Laidlaw, may your cash never run dry. Finally to Ruth Slade (spare kid), may your phone never be silent. Thanks to these gals for a job well done and a welcome to next year's executive elect.

A few parting words from a first time president: "Help me to remain humble through obstacles and failures but hide not mine eyes from the prize that comes with victory." — Sylvia Wood.

B.C. Native soccer team lineup picked

The following players will form the team that will represent the Sechelt Peninsula at the British Columbia Native Soccer Championship Zone Playoffs on May 20-22 at Capilano Park in North Vancouver:

Tony Paul, Garry Feschuk, Darren Dixon, Angus Craigan, Robert Joe, Bradly Joe, Vern Joe, Barry Johnson, Rick August, Willard Joe, Jerry Johnson, Stuart Craigan, Tom Paul, Burce Joe, Earl John, Keith Julius, Billy August and Herb August.

Chiefs go to coast finals

The Sechelt Chiefs will meet the Pender Harbour Bananas for the Coast League Cup in May. The Chiefs clinched second place position in the league after knocking Wakefield out of the semi-finals on April 23 at Hacket Park.

Both teams went into the game even, Wakefield scored early and the Chiefs tied it up at half time. Defensemen on both sides played well rebuffing frequent onslaughts by forwards and keeping the ball in center field.

But in the second half something gave in the Wakefield ranks. The Chiefs started getting more shots at the goal, went in scoring one goal after another and won the match 6—1.

Attention steelhead anglers

By RICK CROSBY

The Department of Conservation reminds all steelhead anglers to mail their self-addressed, prepaid punch card which expired on March 31. This is the first year that the punch card is to be returned by anglers. The information is vital to improved management programs aimed at providing better steelhead catches.

Estimates of total catch from each river will be made from the punch cards. of more importance, the card will provide information for each river on the distribution of the catch throughout the year enabling the evaluation of the separation of winter and summer steelhead.

Annual information on the angler catch of steelhead together with information on catches by the Indian food fisheries and commercial net fisheries is basic to steelhead enhancement projects under the Federal—Provincial Salmonid Enhancement Program.

BASEBALL

Four mixed teans, two girls softball teams, two mini bronco teams for 9 and 10 year olds and two bronco teams for 11 and 12 year olds have been organized in Gibsons. First game is scheduled for May 1. There is a coaches meeting on Wednesday, April 26, 8 p.m. at the Gibsons Athletic Association Hall.

FIGURE SKATING

Elizabeth Corban, Linda Leitner and Shauna Proke are entering The Spring Figure Skating competition at the Sun God Arena in Delta on May 11 and 14.

The Figure Skating Club is pleased with this year's season and looks forward to open ice next October. In the meantime the club is looking for a new instructor to teach group lessons.

RIDING CLUB

A reminder that the training clinic with instructor Lynn Saunders will be held on Sunday, April 30. Phone 885-9295 for more information.

LADIES GOLF

Windy rainy weather didn't stop Wilma Sim from getting a hole in one on the 8th green in the Ladies Tuesday golf tournament on April 18. The match was won by Norma Gaines with Wilma Sim placing second.

Margaret Arbuckle won the regular nine hole match and Greta Patterson came second.

At the Ladies Spring luncheon on April 13 Margaret Arbuckle was presented with her hole-in-one pin.

GIBSONS WILDLIFE CLUB

On Wednesday, May 3, Art McPhee from the Provincial Emergency Program will be discussing land search and rescue procedures stressing in particular what steps to take when reporting lost persons and the availability of outside help. Bill Lawson of the auxiliary R.C.M.P. will demonstrate the specifics of search and rescue techniques including map and compass work and radio communication.

From May through September the Inshore Rescue Unit will be based at Garden Bay to answer distress calls from Lasqueti Island down through Malaspina Strait through Welcome Pass, as far south as Trail Islands. Last year using an inflatable zodiac the rescue unit answered 124 calls in these waters.

FISHING

Fishing has picked up in the Gibsons area. Springs in the 14 pound range are coming in from both Port Mellon and the gap. High winds have kept anyone from finding out if the bluebacks are running outside.

Pender Harbour is still very active with fishermen catching their limit in both bluebacks and springs.

The Gibsons Wildlife Club is holding its annual Trout Derby May 6 and 7 at Ruby and Sakinaw lakes.

The derby starts at 3 p.m. on May 6 and runs to 3 p.m. the next day. The weigh-in will be at the Ruby Lake Motel. Prizes will be awarded to the kids and trophies to the adults.

GOLF

Twenty-four players from Gibsons, Sechelt, Pender Harbour and Texada Island competed in the Lions Club tournament at the Sunshine Coast Golf Club on Sunday, April 23. This year's meet was organized by Pender Harbour club members Doug Haddon and Eric Attila.

Low gross winner was Bob Darney. Low net winner was Mike Shanks. Both are Sunshine Coast Lions club members. The Texada Island Lions club won the Devries trophy. The texada club will host next year's tournament.

Playing the ninth fairway recently, Lorne Mason got off a fine shot that travelled over 400 yards. It seems his ball soared over the ninth green onto the roadway where it rolled down towards the highway to approximately the eighth tee, hotly pursued by Lorne.

RUGBY

The Gibsons Rugby Club held their Awards Banquet night at the Gibsons Curling Club on Saturday, April 22. Following are the winners; Best Back Ian Yates, Best forward Ryan Matthews, Rookie of the year Bill Henderson, Outstanding high school player Rick Lawson. The Gerry Ferris award went to Pat Gaines and the Gary Grey award was presented to Leif Mjanes.

This coming weekend Gibsons goes to beacons Field Park in Vancouver to play the Den Stu Rugby Club from Tokyo, Japan.

Volleyball team nets bronze medal

The Sunshine Coast Pacesetters returned Monday from Smithers, B.C. with bronze medals for their efforts at the Provincial Juvenile Women's Volleyball Tournament. The Sunshine Coast team played well throughout the tourney losing only to the teams which eventually finished above them. With three players unable to make the trip, bench strength was quite shaalow. In what turned out to be the match to decide whether the Pacesetters would play for the gold medals, the local girls lost a thriling match to the Victoria Y team, the evental winners. The girls were a bit tense the first game as they were concerned about the 6foot 4 inch middle attacker on the Victoria squad. However, some excellent defensive play by the team proved to them that the big girl was stopable. The Pacesetters lost this first game 15—12, after leading 5—0, but stormed back in the second game to lead 10—3. Victoria, with a strong bench, subbed in fresh players throughout this long contest and picked away until the locals led by less and less. The marathon game, the longest of the whole tournament, ended with Victoria on top by a score of 19—17.

In play for the Bronze medal the Pacesetters were loose and confident and had little difficulty handling the team from Fort Saint John. In the final match, Victoria, the come from behind squad had to do just that to beat Smithers 3 games to 2 in the best of five contest. The Smithers team, led the match 2 games to none, but Victoria rebounded to win three in a row.

Final standings in the tournament were: first Victoria Y; second Smithers Kanatas; third Sunshine Coast Pacesetters; fourth Fort Saint John; fifth Vancouver Chimos; sixth Prince George; seventh Terrace Kemodes; eighth Kamakaze.

Victoria and Smithers will now go to the Canadian Championships in Fredericton, N.B. next month. There are extra berths available for teams who apply and can afford to pay their own way, and it is expected that the Chimo club will apply for one of these berths.—Bob Cotter

Squaringly yours

By Maurice Hemstreet

Hey there, fellow square dancers. Hang ontoyourhats and a here we go with the latest in square dance news on The Sunshine Coast with The Country Stars.

Last Friday night with caller Harry Robertson in high gear and over five sets on the floor we really had quite a time.

At coffee time I was at the far end of the table and couldn't hear what the President had to say but one thing makes me wonder. How come the Pres. didn't get to the square dance till 9 p.m.? Any information on this late arrival would be welcome. Maybe there is a great story there that is untold so far.

Mary Wardrop and Ethel Scrimshaw admit to having another birthday but are still only 39. Somehow I just don't understand. I imagine that next year they will only be 38. My, what a fantastic way to go thru life.

I had mentioned before that our President Merrill Bowes had helped Harry do a tip. Well, he helped again only this time he said that he had practiced a singing call, a tune known as Island in the Sun. Well, Merrill, Pres., Sir, I hate to tell you this, but the sun hasn't come up again for over five days. More practice may help. This is only a wild guess, not a professional opinion.

April 22 — The Country Stars motored up to the Welcome Beach Hall where we joined the Welcome Beach Community members for an evening of fun in square dancing, contras and ballroom dancing.

Caller Harry Robertson MC'd the evening and we had quite a time keeping an eye on our President Merrill Bowes. Even his good Taw Louise had a time making him behave. I think he has a severe case of second and third childhood overlapping.

Phyliss Moore, Bill Fraser and Ethel Scrimshaw celebrated their birthdays and no doubt have joined the 39ers club. Ethel, how many birthdays do you celebrate in a given year? Somewhere I thought that you had just been mentioned. Anyway a happy birthday to you all.

At final count there were 22 Country Stars and 27 community members. That makes a total of 49 all told (well, some didn't) but I must say that I missed Janet Allen and Mary Tinkley who a few years back were the main instigators of square dancing in The Welcome Beach Hall. Hope to see you next time.

At this time on behalf of The Country Stars we thank you all for a wonderful evening. The food at coffee time was just fantastic. The friendship of the Welcome Beach Community members cannot be surpassed by anyone and we hope that you all enjoyed our demonstration as to how modern square dancing is taught and danced for fun and you all sure showed us how to strip the willow, but I must admit that our group were not TOO good.

Harry and I thank you for the bottle of soothing syrup and once again from our square dance club to your community club we thank you and hope that you enjoyed the evening as much as we did.

Oh, by the way, What well known mouse doth play while the cat is away, hummmmm? And now I must say, have a good day and may God bless.

Garden Corner

By Guy Symonds

Each year it seems that there are more and different varieties of tomatoes on the shelves of the garden shops and nurseries.

Not so long ago a tomato was a tomato was a tomato, but now it seems this is qualified more every season. Whatever the kind, however, there is no doubt as to its popularity, second only, it is claimed, to green peas on the family table. Which is quite a change from the times when the "love-apple" as it was called was seriously regarded as a poison!

So now we have early and late, table and canning, patio and cherry, pear-shaped and yellow tomatoes, all very delicious. Most gardeners like to try different things, and tomatoes offer an excellent opportunity to gratify this modest desire.

Probably the easiest mistake to make, and therefore the most common one, is setting out the plants when the season is not far enough advanced. And how very easy it is this year when the weatherman has been playing tricks on us. A warm dry March continuing well into April changed suddenly into more seasonable if unwelcome West Coast cold, rain and wind.

So the tomato plants are still in the cold frame, open to the air all day but closed off at night.

First, the all important matter of the soil, Rich and loamy and slightly on the acid side is the rule. Most of us have our own idea about "loamy", but to this gardener it means some light clay, mixed with sand and a high proportion of humus. This comes from previous years of building up with compost, peatmoss and similar materials. And here a word of caution. Heavy manuring will grow tomato plants like crazy, but the crop of fruit will be disappointing. Potash and phosphates grow seed and fruit, so rather than load up with manure use something like a 4-10-10 for fertilizing. The soil must be "open" and easily warmed—no sticky lumps or hard crust formation to deny oxygen.

Plan to stake your garden tomato plants, one stake per bush of course. The location must be as sunny as possible because they are real sun lovers. Plants for setting out should be short-jointed, that is with the leaves fairly close together on the stem. Avoid tall spindly plants with yellowish leaves, no matter how attractive the price. Since tomato plants will grow to four feet or more, stakes should be five feet or better above ground.

Holes for plants must be big enough to take the roots without crowding and about 2½ feet apart according to the growth habit of the variety. Tomato plants root freely from the stem buried below ground so it is a good idea to sink them to the first leaf. Then water well to get the soil particles in around all the little roots. Three-[illegible] them with water.

Once you have them growing in their permanent home, cultivation is important. A good idea is to mulch them with some kind of cover like straw or old hay to keep the weeds down and retain the moisture. They must be tied to the stakes as they grow but never so tightly as to strangle them.

Pruning is the next vital matter. All the little leafy shoots that show up between the branches and the stem, all the little laterals or sideshoots should be pinched off as soon as they appear. Once the plants are as high as you want them and the season is so far advanced that any more fruit set would be too late to develop, pinch off the tops of the main shoots or growing tips.

The practice of removing parts of the plant to speed ripening is not in this gardener's experience as a wise move. It must be remembered that leaves feed the plant and if they are taken away to any large extent the whole organism must suffer. Never let the plants get dry—this is vital. Always water from below. Some growers keep a movable roof shelter over their tomatoes, raising it as the plants grow. This protects them from the rain and the danger of split fruit.

May all your tomatoes of whatever shape, size or colour be true 'Love fruit", bringing a bountiful reward for all the care bestowed on them.

Book Look

By MURRIE REDMAN

I NEVER PROMISED YOU A ROSE GARDEN by Hannah Green, Holt, Rinehart, Winston c1964.

This is not a new book (copyright 1964), but the fact that it was an awarding winning film at the recent Academy Awards presentations makes it of current interest.

It is suitable for both adults and adolescents and is, in fact, vital if one is to understand the mental illness, schizophrenia. One of the beauties of fiction is that a human situation can be explored fully, adding all the colour necessary to help the reader fully comprehend a given experience: a larger than life concept.

The novel takes us into the world of Deborah Blau, daughter of middle class immigrants who try a little too hard in their efforts to make the life of their bright girl better than theirs. They are "good parents" who sent her to the "best camps and schools but who had no idea of the suffering that their little Jewish daughter endured in the prejudices of other children. Deborah who was intelligent enough to see the love and good intentions of her parents began, at an early age, to build another world in which to escape, the world of Yr.

In adolescence she yearned for companionship and found it in the Collect, a body of counsellors from her secret world. Her other world was friendly, comfortable and beautiful. More and more she turned to it for solace, and more and more it demanded that she stay. The Collect advised her to destroy the Deborah that wanted the real world.

Suicide attempts forced her parents to send Deborah to a mental hospital for help. It was not an easy decision. "They...looked like people in shock, and he thought briefly: wound-shock—the cutting away of a daughter."

Fortunately, it was a good hospital and Deborah was lucky enough to have a fine doctor who was aptly named Furii by the Collect. The doctor helped Deborah to fight the forces of Yr and return to reality. The battle took more than two years. There were regressions, successes and finally victory but not without sacrifice. Deborah's high school education had to be curtailed and she had to cope with a society unprepared to deal with mental illness. "In some ways reality was as private a kingdom as Yr. The dimension of meaning could never be made plain to people whose survival depended on its abridgment or eradication."

At one point in the book, Deborah explains how she welcomes the "pack", a treatment in which the patient is wrapped tightly in wet sheets and placed in firm restraints. The method helps patients to struggle with their violence but not do damage to themselves or others. It seems cruel to the unfamiliar, but for Deborah who often asked for the treatment, it meant that she had control over her illness. She would complete the treatment feeling exhausted but knowing that another battle with Yr had been fought and won. "She rested, trying to save the clarity that was permitting her to see down into her mind."

Another aspect of the novel is the close relationship established between patients. Even in their bad moments, they seem to have an understanding of and sympathy for one another. They could see beyond the outer mask of the sickness, through, to the real person beyond. "They shared a rare thing...a touching of minds, a touching of feelings".

After reading this book by Green, you might like to read another by her, IN THIS SIGN. It is the story of a young, deaf couple attempting to live in a world that understands their struggle as little as they can imagine one that is not silent.

Leo Hopper was active in Sr. Citizens Assn.

By ROBERT FOXALL

We had just returned from the April 21 general meeting of Sr. Citizens Assn. Br. 69 when we heard that Leo Hopper had succumbed to injuries received in an automobile accident two weeks ago.

This was a great shock to his many friends and fellow members. Leo was an active member of Branch 69. He had been treasurer for a term, had been a vice-president and at the time of his death was serving on the board of directors. He was a great and jolly friend to us all. Our sympathy goes to Edith. I understand that interment will be in Illinois at the place of his birth.

There will be a memorial service at the United Church in Davis Bay at a time to be announced, and a service Thursday, April 27, 2 p.m. in Boal Chapel, 1505 Lillooet Rd., North Vancouver.

A good turn-out of members April 21 met new members Jack and Kay Hermiston and heard a satisfactory financial report. We now have 255 paid-up members.

It was announced that Charlie Humm would take charge of the Monday After Carpet Bowling Program while Jack Eldred and many other members are away on the bus trip to Disneyland.

Reporting for transportation and for entertainment, Dave Hayward advised the Fourth Thursday will take place as usual on April 27. There will be bingo and then an opportunity for other games and a refreshment interval. Dave also told us that planning at the moment was in anticipation of trips to Powell River (about the end of May), a visit to Pemberton and later a trip to Park & Tilford Gardens. Later in the summer is the possibility of a tour to Barkerville and of course at the proper time, the Seniors Day at the PNE. Sounds like an interesting summer.

Attention was drawn to the fact that a number of books have been placed in the circulating library by Mr. and Mrs. Stevens.

Elizabeth Derby for the Ways and Means Committee reported that the plant sale was well organized and that planning for the May Tea and Bake Sale is off to a good start. Posters prepared by Mrs. Lillian Peterson will be posted right after the plant [illegible] of the craft group were busy on articles for the craft and novelty tables. Tickets for the macrame hanger are now available and members are asked to take at least one book each. This draw will take place June 15.

A member, Mr. Al Mellis, has built a doll house, which was on display at the meeting (an excellent piece of workmanship) and the craft group are making furnishings for it. This will be the subject of a raffle to be drawn at our Christmas Dinner. Besides the new members introduced at the beginning of the meeting, the following had become members since our last meeting — Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Baron, Davis Bay; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Firth, West Sechelt and Mr. and Mrs. Ed Yarrow, West Sechelt.

The telephoning committee is asked to make a special effort to advise members about the Spring Tea and Bake Sale to be held at Our Hall on Saturday, May 13, commencing at 1:30 p.m. Urge them to attend and to bring a friend.

It was reported that the evening dance held April 19 had been a most enjoyable and successful affair. This concludes the dancing as a regular feature until the end of summer.

The Executive Meeting scheduled for May 2 is postponed to May 9 because of the absence of many members of the executive on the Disneyland tour.

Just before starting to write this I was advised that we are to have a busload of Powell River Seniors pay us a visit on May 9. We will provide them with coffee and a light lunch and then show them our shopping areas and some of our scenic spots. Be sure to turn out on that day.

Shop-Easy winners for the month were: absent — Gillie McLeod, Joyce Williams and Jean Pettit and present — Iris Corbett, Dorothy Campbell and Eva Hayward.
