Foul weather claims 4 in peninsula waters

A rash of boating accidents off the Sechelt Peninsula last week claimed the lives of three men, and as of press time Sunday, a fourth man, presumed drowned, had not been found.

The dead are identified as Daryl Draney, 34, of Bella Coola and 33 year-old Elgin Gordon, also of Bella Coola.

The two were headed from Vancouver to Bella Coola, October 23, with a newly-purchased 22-foot pleasure craft when they encountered difficulties in rough seas.

A second accident Saturday claimed the life of sailboater Jack Poston, 20, of Vancouver. Poston drowned after he fell overboard in heavy seas. Missing is Allan Dalgliesh, 24, also of Vancouver. He jumped in to save Poston.

The tragedy occurred last Saturday afternoon as Poston, Dalgliesh and two crew members returned to Vancouver after visiting Gibsons in a 27-foot rental sailboat.

In heavy rains and swells of up to six feet, Poston fell overboard as the boat neared the south end of Keats Island.

Poston, a swimmer, was not wearing a life jacket, however, Dalgliesh donned his and dived in to save his friend.

The remaining crew members were unable to locate the two and an extensive search was called.

Using flares that lit up the night sky from Davis Bay to Roberts Creek, air sea rescue crews, RCMP, and 12 volunteer civilian boats from the area searched through the night for the pair.

Poston's body was recovered half a mile off Gower Point near Gibsons at 7 a.m. Sunday. The search continues for Dalgliesh.

Gordon, who was president of the Bella Coola United Fishermens and Allied Workers Union local, died last Monday in heavy seas and south east winds of up to 40 knots.

Their light fibreglass boat, a 22-foot Chris Craft called the Sunray was found bashed and overturned Tuesday by local log salvager Manley Fischer. It had drifted overnight to the south end of Thormanby Island.

Draney, a logger who just purchased the Sunray, was found Tuesday drowned in his survival suit near the lighthouse at Merry Island.

The search for Gordon was called off Wednesday, but reinstated after Vancouver UFAWU officials launched a protest.

The union sent telegrams to Minister of Defence Barney Danson and Transport Minister Otto Lang demanding the search be carried on for more than three days.

The rescue centre had told the union that its resources had been strained to the limit by an overload of emergencies. Centre spokesmen told the union that they had only six aircraft to cover its million square mile territory.

Gordon, who was also wearing an expensive-make of survival suit, was found by a hover craft search team Friday off Gabriola Island.

His body was sent to Richmond Hover Craft Station for autopsy.

The Sunray is moored at Smuggler Cove awaiting insurance investigators.

Gibsons residents

Minds made up on referendum issue

"You've got your minds made up already," observed Brian Loewen at the second recreational referendum information meeting last Wednesday in the United Church Hall in Gibsons.

Loewen, a member of the Regional district recreation committee representing the arena, made the remark as once again the subject of the referendum created a stir on the peninsula.

Wednesday night it seemed to be the Gibsons Curling Club against the Sechelt Curling Club and Gibsons against the rest of the peninsula as residents from that area demanded committee members to justify the holding of a referendum that would finance 12 recreation projects.

A bone of contention with Gibsons residents is a $200,000 expenditure for an extension to the Sechelt arena that would provide curling and hockey seven days a week.

At present hockey players used the ice five days a week and then the ice is shaved and turned over to culers for two days. A procedure, Loewen says, now costs the arena $300 a week.

The Gibsons club, however, finds public financing of another curling club "a little hard to take" after financing their own club with private funds and membership fees.

And according to Gibsons club officials, their rink has openings that could be filled by Sechelt players. Past-president Ray Chamberlin said a letter was sent to the Sechelt Curling Club and the regional district earlier this year offering empty rinks to curlers.

"That letter was never answered," said Chamberlin.

Recreation committee chairman Dick Derby said the committee had checked capacities at both rinks two years ago and thought at that time there was a demand for more curling space.

Chamberlin, however, said this year the Gibsons club has 20 vacant rinks in prime time.

"Twenty rinks is just not any use to us," said Sechelt club spokesman Gordon Dixon. "We need 40, 50, 60 rinks."

Committee member explained to those in attendance that joint-financing of

Hydro approves Cheekye corridor

B.C. Hydro has okayed a consultant's recommended corridor for the planed 500-kilovolt transmission line due to pass through the Sechelt Peninsula enroute from the Lower Mainland to Vancouver Island.

The announcement was made last Thursday along with the release of the second volume of the Beak report despite a promise made by a Hydro spokesman that there would be opportunity for public discussion of the full consultant's report prior to a final decision on the corridor.

The recommmended corridor shows a bulge on the Sechelt Peninsula representing Beak Consultants Ltd's view that a broader range of route options should be maintained in that area until more detailed studies can be completed.

The addendum to the Beak report, also released on Thursday, says that since the Sechelt Peninsula area is the most densely populated section of the mainland portion of the recommended corridor, "it was natural that the public commentary and objections to the project from this area would be substantial."

The report said that it was evident during the public consultation program on the peninsula that this is a rapidly developing residential and recreational area and the data sources status. Also, that residents of the area suggested alternate corridors across the peninsula that were not originally considered acceptable by Beak Consultants or B.C. Hydro during the initial studies.

"It is recommended, therefore," said the report, "that the corridor crossing the Sechelt Peninsual be sufficiently broad to incorporate all the options originally discussed by Beak in the Phase I Study Report and those subsequently identified during public consultations."

It is anticipated that a final route decision in this specific area will not be made before early 1979.

Volume II of the Beak report recommends a corridor route between Cape Cockburn on Nelson Island and the Dunsmuir Substation near Qualicum Bay on Vancouver Island, that will not use Lasqueti Island as a stepping stone for the line.

Lasqueti Island residents had raised environmental and social objections to construction of the line through their island.

The addendum said that volume II of the Beak report was accepted by Hydro "prior to specific comment."

"However," the report read, "substantial public comment was received in advance of completion of the Volume II report, and the recommended route has

Firestone 500s replaced

By GRETCHEN HARLOW

Although details for a massive recall of problem-plagued Firestone 500 tires have not been announced in Canada, with a little perserverance owners can get replacements, as Gibsons resident Mickey Parsey discovered last week.

Two weeks ago a Firestone 500 on Parsey's two year-old Plymouth blew out on the freeway as he was rushing to catch the last ferry home.

"With no warning the tire blew," he said, "Fortunately it was a back tire and there was no damage, but it was a very dangerous situation. When I got home I saw the front one was ready to go too."

The tires had 9,000 miles wear on them, said Parsey, and they were tracking in an S shape instead of a straight line.

Local firestone dealers were unable to help Parsey.

And when he phoned a Firestone office in Vancouver, he was told the Canadian government said Firestone tires were safe.

A second call to Firestone's head office was also unsuccessful. "I had a hole in a tire you could throw a cat through and they told me it was because of the recent publicity, and that I was just imagining it."

After further discussion he was told he could bring the tires in for inspection, but they must be on the car.

Finally a dealer at 4300 Kingsway was persuaded to let him just bring the tires in, and Parsey was happily surprised when he received five brand new Firestone 700 radials for the cost of the adjustments.

In an interview Friday with Firestone's district retail manager Gary Harwood, the Times was not surprised to learn that "We're handling it (the recall) as if there wasn't one."

Harwood said that while recall procedures have not been announced, troubled tire owners can negotiate a satisfactory agreement with the company "99 per cent of the time," under the firm's regular tire policy.

However, when details of the recall of nearly one million of the 500 steel-belted radials is announced it is estimated it will cost Firestone $23 million.

In the United States, Firestone has agreed to replace free of charge, every 500 steel-belted radial manufactured between September 1, 1975 and May 1, 1976 that is still on the road.

FAULTY FIRESTONE 500 owner Mickey Parsey displays tire which blew without warning while he was rushing to catch the last ferry home. It could have been a tragedy, but Parsey, who was unhurt in the incident, is pretty happy with the five new tires he received for his trouble.

Not so funny

Thanks to the wonders of modern technology those of you who could not attend the latest in a series of information meetings on the recreation referendum will have a chance to view the meeting at Elphinstone Secondary School tonight (Wednesday).

Elphinstone Student Research Productions video-taped the meeting and will be showing the program at 7:30 p.m. at the high school.

The tape, which will cost you approximately 90 minutes of your time to watch, will afford you with the opportunity of seeing where your much-maligned school tax dollar goes.

But more importantly, it will give you a chance to see local politicians in action, and in view of the upcoming elections, the students at Elphinstone couldn't have picked a better time or subject.

The residents of Gibsons are also stars in this production and you will see and hear what your friends have to say about this contentious subject.

Important insights on how not to conduct a public meeting will also be shown. The committee will not identify its members until five minutes before the end of the meeting, and then only at the request of a confused member of the audience. Concerned taxpayers will not reveal their identities. Several people will often speak at the same time.

This is a "don't miss" show, especially if you plan to vote November 18. Comedy. Parental guidance suggested.

Reflections

60 years of marriage

By Vern Giesbrecht

"This would be a good way to start the article," suggested the friendly, gray-haired woman: "Jessie Muir Lamont and James Albert Dowdie were married on October 30, 1918."

It seemed as good a way as any to begin a brief account of a long marriage. Jim and Jessie Dowdie, who live on Trueman Road in Gibsons, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary Saturday afternoon with a tea for close friends and relatives. A few days earlier, they shared some of the highlights of their life with me, all the while protesting gently that there wasn't much to write about.

Jim, from Yorkshire, and Jessie, a Scottish lass, were married in the Dalmuir Congregational Church in Scotland, at the tag end of the First World War. It was not a very large wedding, Jessie recalls, but there was a reception and dance following the service. Jim, an army private, was able to get time off for the wedding.

"When you were married," I asked them, "did you ever imagine that you'd get to celebrate your 60th anniversary?"

"No," said Jim. "I thought if we reached 60 (years of age) we'd be lucky."

Their life has not been without hardship and illness but they've remained cheerful nevertheless.

Some marriages fail, Jessie said, because couples won't "stick out the hard times, won't tough it out, but will run away when something doesn't please them."

The Dowdies moved to Canada in 1921, settling in Revelstoke, where Jim did maintenance work for the CPR. During the Depression, in 1937, his connections with the CPR enabled him to return to Britain, where idle plants were getting geared up for another war. He worked on various defence projects until his health broke and the Dowdies returned to Canada in 1944, settling in Prince Rupert.

"We crossed the Atlantic on a liner that had been converted to a troop ship," Jessie said. "I guess we should have been nervous but after five years of war-time living and a bombing in which we lost all our possessions, it was just another part of the war."

In Prince Rupert, Jim worked in the Columbia Cellulose pulp mill until he retired in 1959. Then the Dowdies moved to Gibsons, a town they had visited in the 1930s.

"It was such a lovely, quiet little place when we first saw it and we always thought we'd like to come back," Jessie said. "It was like a second home to us, so it was only natural that we'd move here to retire.

When they first visited Gibsons, Jessie recalled, "there was no electricity and no indoor plumbing. I can remember when the Winns had the only phone in Gibsons. The people were friendly, the fishing was good...and we still find it's a grand place to live."

Jim reminisced about some of the old-time Gibsons residents they knew, the Fletchers, the Armours, the Truemans . . . and mentioned how clean the beaches were iin the 1930s.

"The fishing was really great," he said. "In those days fishermen never got through The Gap without catching their limit."

The Dowdies have kept busy during their retirement years. Jessie has been active in the United Church (conveniently located two houses away) and her paintings decorate the house. Jim has done a great deal of volunteer work, and is an avid gardener. At the ages of 80 and 83, their eyesight is still good and they both enjoy reading.

"People say I look as if I've sailed through life without any troubles," Jessie commented. "They can't believe I've been married 60 years. It's true that I'm not exactly decrepit, but I don't try to be young except up here." She laughed and tapped her head.

"I think the secret is that we've been active. I like to paint every chance I get, for instance."

"I rescued that one," her husband interjected, pointing to a watercolor on the kitchen wall. "It was going to be thrown out...I go bragging about her pictures of flowers. She can't be beat."

If Jessie has a talent for painting flowers and other scenes, Jim has a knack for growing them. The wedge-shaped yard abounds with chrysanthemums, marigolds, daisies, roses, nasturtium, dahlias, Japanese lanterns, and other flowers.

Before I ended the interview, I asked them what they appreciated most about each other.

Jim laughed when Jessie mused, "Can I think of a good thing about him? Well, if we have an argument, we end up laughing. And, I can trust him."

"That's right," said Jim. "You should be able to by now."

He added, after a moment of thought, "I can leave the responsibility of running the house with her and I like that...We understand each other."

Because this column is being written prior to Saturday's anniversary celebration, I can only assume that the event was a success.

Master of ceremonies Nels Moore, who has known the Dowdies and their son Fred for 10 years, was hoping that the mail strike would not prevent messages of congratulations from the Queen, Prime Minister Trudeau and Premier Bennett from reaching the Dowdies.

"It's going to be a friendly, simple gathering," he said on Thursday.

"Jim and Jessie Dowdie are very special people. They are so generous with their time and talents and have done so much good for so many people in years gone by. They're always doing something for others, but they're very modest about it."

JIM AND JESSIE Dowdie at their Gibsons home, where they have since retired in 1969. After 60 years of marriage, love and trust the Dowdies say: "We understand each other."

been reviewed and generally accepted by provincial government agencies.

"Therefore in Hydro's judgement the recommended "corridor" for this segment of the project is the most acceptable from an environmental and social point of view."

Hydro spokesman Dave Robertson, who had said in September that there would be "an opportunity for public discussion" of the full report before a final decision was made on the line, told the Times Volume II of the Beak report does "not really affect the Sechelt area."

"Volume I really has more to do with that area," said Robertson. He said, however, that Hydro may still elicit public reaction to the plan.

"The question is what form it would take," he said. It would probably be along the lines of discussions with property owners.

"It won't mean hiring a big hall and having a confrontation meeting."

Howard White, Pender Harbour Ratepayers Association secretary, told the Times that north peninsula residents want a "full public discussion."

"We won't be satisfied unless we get another general meeting out of Hydro," said White.

He said that although Hydro has always been vague about what form public discussions must take, Pender Harbour residents were promised a public hearing by Dr. John O'Riordan, assistant director of the Environment and Land Use Committee Secretariat's Special Projects Unit.

The Times learned Friday that O'Riordan is on a sabbatical leave. His replacement, Brian Gates, was unavailable for comment.

ELUC is one of two provincial bodies which must rule on the acceptability of the proposed transmission line.

White also said that Hydro's concession of leaving Lasqueti off the route is "insincere, if not dishonest."

None of us believe that they have made a sacrifice," said White.

Regional District Area A Director Joe Harrison echoed White's sentiments at a board meeting Thursday night.

"I'm a little bit concerned that Hydro intends to represent this as a concession to the people launching protest of the project," Harrison told directors. "They might want it to appear this way, but if they do it is extremely dishonest."

"The day is coming very soon," said White, "when there will be a terrible scenic horror on the north end of the peninsula.

"This is a half a billion dollar project and it's mind-boggling."

The transmission line, which is to take power from Cheekye Substation near Squamish to Dunsmuir Substation near Qualicum Bay, will consist of two circuits, each with a total length of about 160 kilometres including submarine cable sections.

Hydro said in the report released Thursday that the first circuit of the Cheekye-Dunsmuir line will need to be in service by fall, 1983, at the latest if projected increases in Vancouver Island power demand are to be met. A second circuit would be added in fall, 1986.

To meet this schedule, Hydro plans to have second-stage studies begun immediately. These will determine the exact route of the line within the corridor and inlcude detailed investigation of its potential environmental and social impact.

Copies of the reports are being sent to local and regional officials, libraries, interest groups and Hydro district offices in the areas concerned.

recreation projects will mean that everyone on the peninsula can get seomething out of the referendum, even if it does mean that some areas will have to "subsidize" others.

"I think that's a very poor concept," said one man.

"That's the attitude that's breaking up Canada," said committee-member Norm Watson.

Area C Director Charles Lee, the board representative on the committee, said the people in his area are virtually getting nothing from the package, but are not "yelling and bitching and screaming". "I admire the people in Area C that are not doing this," said Lee.

Ald. Ted Hume, who has compaigned against the referendum, told those present at the meeting: "I'm bull-headed and I say down with it."

Regional board directors gave three readings to the referendum bylaw at the Thursday regular board meeting. The referendum will go ahead as planned November 18 and will need 50 per cent plus one vote to pass.

Directors have said they will publish the bylaw in the local press before November 18.

Russian slide-show

By Mary Tinkley, 885-9479

People came to the Welcome Beach Hall last Thurday from Sechelt, Sandy Hook and even as far off as Gibsons to see the slide show presented by Valerie and Jim Brown.

The slides covered a three-month trip which the Browns took in the summer of 1975, crossing the Soviet Socialist Republic which constitutes one sixth of the world's surface. They flew from Japan to Khabarovsk which is close to the Manchurian border. From Khabarovsk they crossed Russia by bus, plane and the Trans-Siberian Railway, finishing up the tour at Moscow and Leningrad. The Trans-Siberian Railway skirts Lake Baikal, the sixth largest lake in the world, into which 323 rivers drain.

The slides pictures Irkutsk, with its wide streets and vast power dam — one of the largest in the world. They crossed into Mongolia with its different race of people and then went through the Gobi Desert. Here they lodged in yurts, collapsible tents made out of wooden slats covered with woollen blankets. The slides showed the yurts to be spacious and comfortable, with openings at the top to allow the fire smoke to escape.

At Alma Ata they were again close to the Chinese border and continued on to Tashkent on the Sir Darya River. From Ashkabad, the capital of Turkmenistan, they flew across the Caspian Sea to Yerevan to Armenia and visited Lake Sevan which has an elevation of over 6,000 feet but never freezes. In Georgia, they visited Tbiliski in the heart of the wine country, where wine is cheap and plentiful.

The Browns showed some excellent slides of Moscow, including the university, Red Square, Lenin's Tomb and a particularly lovely church built by Ivan the Terrible. They offered some outstanding slides of the Winter Palace in Leningrad, with its tapestries, inlaid parquet floors and 117 staircases.

The Browns report that throughout their tour they found the people of Russia friendly and hospitable. Most of them live in well-heated apartments and have television, refrigerators, bicycles and skis. Many of the slides showed modern high-rise hotels and apartment blocks right across the USSR. There were slides of ornate, gold-domed churches, magnificent war memorials and vast covered markets with a profusion of exotic fruits and vegetables. One slide showed a house which had sunk into the permafrost to the extent of an entire storey. Though in the cities they visited, the Browns were free go to anywhere they wished, they say they never saw a slum area.

BEEFS AND BOUQUETS

We have pleasure in awarding this week's Bouquet to Valerie and Jim Brown for the exceptionally fine show of slides, for the beauty and quality of their pictures and for that adventurous trip which they made three years ago.

Here's a chance to help the Halfmoon Bay Fire Department to raise money for the purchase of more equipment. The department is holding a raffle for which tickets, 50 cents each, are available from any fireman or from the B&J Store. The first two prizes are attractive chrome lamps made from fire extinguishers. The third prizes is a smoke detector and the fourth a fire extinguisher.

The fire department is planning a substation with a floater pump and 1½ inch hose, but no definite decision has yet been reached as to its location. Firemen are now on their winter schedule which includes Sunday morning truck practices. There will still be Wednesday night meetings at the Firehall for exercises with other equipment.

A young Halfmoon Bay athlete who will certainly bear watching is Kenny Sorensen who spends all his spare time in the swimming pool at Gibsons or on the track. He came first in the Sunfrost Cross Country Race arranged by Gibsons Elementary on October 21, competing against participants from Vancouver as well as Sunshine Coast elementary schools.

At the Jack Temple home last week were Jack Jr. and his wife Kelly who were on their way home from their honeymoon to settle in their Vancouver home. Jack's sister, Maureen Smith of Prince George lent them a camper in which they spent their honeymoon touring around California.

Sechelt notes

Honouring Marie

by Peggy Connor, 885-9347

The Sechelt Chamber of Commerce pays tribute to the Citizen of the Year, Mrs. Marie Montgomery of West Sechelt, Saturday, November 4.

A night of dinner and dancing at the Parthenon is open to everyone. Tickets are $12 per person and are available at Uncle Mick's in the Trail Bay Mall or Morgan's Mens Wear on Cowrie Street.

IN MEMORY OF MARGARET LAMB

The Sunshine Coast Registered Nurses Association of B.C. are trying to up their Margaret Lamb Bursary Fund from $100 to $150 to aid a prospective nurse.

To do this they have a raffle going with good monetary prizes at $1 per ticket. Tickets are available from the Nurses.

Margaret Lamb was also a Good Citizen of the year and now another member of the nursing group, Marie Montgomery, is being honored the same way.

The draw will take place December 15.

CEDAR CHEST

That beautiful cedar chest on view many days at the Mall will be drawn this Saturday, November 4 at the Senior Citizens Hall. This is the Holy Family Parish Fall Bazaar where many other items will be drawn for and also handmade items to buy. Admission is 75 cents for adults, 35 cents for children.

THE "WHAT'S NEW? FASHION SHOW"

Jobs Daughters will be showing the latest in fashions on Monday, November 6 starting at 7 p.m. in the Trail Bay Mall Shopping Center.

Their honored queen is Kim Bryson and this is her show to raise money for the group and also entertain the public. The Jobies will model the latest in co-ordinates, sleepwear, dresses and casual wear.

Commentator is one Peggy Connor who bears a resemblance to the picture at the top of this column.

Tickets are $1.25 and available in the Mall or from the girls. Besides the fashions, the girls are planning other entertainment. Should be a fun evening.

GO BACK TO SCHOOL

If you have time and inclination to go back to school with the kids, the teachers will make you very welcome. They need assistance for field trips. I can personally tell you this is fun and educational, making plans for class parties, helping with a hot lunch.

The hot soup served the students at lunch was met with great response by the children. The big problem was help to make the soup, as usual this fell to one or two women, unfortunately the same women each time. The number of children attending this Sechelt Elementary means an equal amount of mothers more or less. If even only a few more could spend a day a month, or a day a week the work would balance out, one hour or so from 11 a.m. would make a small dent in your day.

Teaching a craft or skill, helping with the primary students with their skating, and other interesting things.

This is not just for parents of children in school, anyone who wishes to help will be just as welcome.

Volunteer Co-ordinator is Mrs. Holly Lehmann 885-9364 or phone the school. You will be glad you did.

SALUTE TO THE TEACHERS

The recent field trip to Seattle took a lot of planning and responsibility for the teachers. On behalf of the parents, thank you for taking the interest and the time to provide this opportunity to the students.

There was a little disappointment in the showing of King Tuts treasures. It would have been more interesting with a talking guide, however the feeling that they really took note of the famous relics of the past is there, and in years to come they will look back on the memory of what they saw with great interest. They were impressed.

Goldrush host regular Roberts Creek visitor

By ANNIE DEMPSTER

Terry David Mulligan, the popular host of CBC radio's Goldrush hour is a regular visitor to Roberts Creek. His father is Pat Mulligan, retired game officer and local golf hero.

Terry became interested in radio around 1959 when he was a member of the RCMP. He joined the force in Kamloops and served in Red Deer, Alberta. It was in 1964 when he met Hal Weaver from CKRD Red Deer that his interest in radio began. He was intrigued with records and the panels at the radio station. He had some musical background as he did major in music at school and had played the trumpet for 12 years in several bands, such as, the Kamloops Rube Band (well known for their Dixieland on march) and the Arthur Delamont band in Vancouver.

As his love for radio grew, he decided to resign from the RCMP and pursue a career in that direction. He started as a disc jockey in Red Deer and went on to Calgary, Regina, CFUN and to CKLG, where he was one of the people instrumental in starting LG FM. His big dream throughout it all was to get to the prestigious CHUM in Toronto, and after five years his dream was realized.

Unfortunately, his dream was just that, a dream. The station was not what he had imagined. Terry found the experience dehumanizing, totally impersonal and a lot of garbage. The same 20 records were played over and over again till he got so tired of listening to them he couldn't bear it any more, so he quit, as all the fun had gone out of radio for him. At this point he took a long break and toured Europe and Africa.

On his return home, Terry joined CKFH, but had to return to Vancouver after a few months because of family reasons. He became known as the three-month wonder in Toronto radio circles. Back in Vancouver, he worked for various stations, but lost interest as he felt it was just not fun anymore.

In 1971, he decided to freelance. He thoroughly enjoyed his new pursuits but got weary of eating macaroni and cheese. He was then hired to do some ads for Molson's golden for TV with Julie Amato, Jane Eastwood, Steve Weston (from Trouble with Tracy), Gilda Radner and Dan Ackroyd. He never saw any of the ads but did learn a lot of do's and don'ts from them.

Enjoying a lot of fame from the ads, he thought he's best return to Vancouver and practice some humility. He did 70 commercials for the Bay with Franz Russel. All the ads were on the spot and ad-libbed using all their own stuff. They must surely hold the record for doing the most ads in one day as they did 15 at BCTV.

Terry's macaroni and cheese days have really paid off as along with his Goldrush Hour, he has hosted three one-hour Canadian Express programs for CBC television, as well as hosting some of the Loto Canada programs.

When asked if he could predict where music is heading, Terry replied: "No one can predict what will happen, but that rock is in need of a leader. Elvis was the greatest and Springsteen is the man to follow."

He doesn't think that new wave (punk) will last very long, but that it will influence music in the next five years. He feels the best rocker in the business today is Bruce Springsteen. Terry says Springsteen's concerts are the best he's ever seen.

According to Terry, the top ten rock groups in Canada today hail from Vancouver. If you have songs you've written or you feel you would like to sing professionally, send a tape to Susan Inglebert, the producer of Goldrush at CBC, Box 4600, Vancouver.

Although Terry has been interviewed by as many as 55 people in a month he seemingly remains untouched by all his fame. He is a wonderful, warm person who does his best to make one feel at ease. It is our pleasure to have him as a visitor to our community.

Farewell Logger Jack

By Doris Edwardson, 883-2308

On October 26 Jacke Rouse of Madeira Park passed away in St. Mary's Hospital. A few days previous to his passing he had an accident while attempting to help move a shuffleboard and fell off the porch. He was rushed to the hospital by our local ambulance and was found to have broken ribs and a punctured lung. He died later of a heart attack.

Jack was born in Ladysmith 75 years ago and had a twin brother Robert who was accidently killed in Churchill Bay, Pender Harbour when he was in his early teens. He called himself Logger Jack, having logged up and down the B.C. coast, worked on many seine boats and had two boats of his own, Rambling Kid and Kathleen R., from which he trolled and cod fished. Today Jack's faithful and constant companion Fussy is waiting for Jack to come home. This beautiful German Shepherd dog adopted Jack quite awhile ago and is being cared for by Jack's sister Martha Warnock.

Jack had a son Laurence, daughters Kathleen, Leona and Gladys; sisters Martha Warnock and Agnes Mullen. Predeceased by his sisters Flora Scoular and Janie Edwardson and brother Charlie Higgins. Graveside service was held at Forest View Cemetery on Warnock Road Monday, October 30 at 2 p.m..

This year they are having an entirely new Casino Night as there will be dancing and patrons are requested to come in costume if they can possibly do so. Maybe you could dress up in the styles of the Roaring Twenties or Riverboat Gambler-style costumes.

They hope to create a Gay '90s atmosphere, so there will be Honky Tonk music. There will be a prize for the best costume and also a Texas Mickey will be raffled. Games of chance, blackjack, crown and anchor, those cute mousies, balloons, darts, etc. There will be NO BINGO. Proceeds go back into the community.

'Simple Relaxation' author makes return visit

Making a return visit to Redrooffs last week was Laura Mitchell, an English physiotherapist who was a guest at the home of her nephew, Dr. John Mitchell. Miss Mitchell was in Canada a year ago to launch her book, "Simple Relaxation" which has since sold 10,000 copies. The second edition is now available, published by John Murray and distributed in Canada by Birch and Langland.

The book is the result of the author's own struggle with osteo-arthritis and her experiments to obtain relief and relaxation, based on her extensive knowledge of the physiology of the body. At Redrooffs she was resting after a strenuous few days in Vancouver, where she was interviewed by John Reynolds on CJOR and Barry Clark on CKNW. She appeared on television in the Bob Switzer and the Hamel shows and was interviewed by Helen Bateson for an article which appeared in last Wednesday's Province.

Laura Mitchell is now working on a new book on "Movement" in which she will review all the different kinds of movement from yoga to joggging, giving a physiological explanation of how they work on the body, so that people can choose the method which best suits their needs. Among the methods she will review in her book are Ti Chi, a Chinese form of movement, much used for the training of warriors and popularly practiced in China on mats in the parks. She will offer for consideration the Alexander method which was well known before the First World War and for which there are schools in England and America. The Mensendick Norwegian method can be practiced singly or in classes and is an exact method of training muscle control wherever it may be needed. At Welcome Beach, Miss Mitchell was introduced to carpet bowling, which she considered an excellent form of movement and which may consequently find a place in her new book.

Laura Mitchell teaches living anatomy at the London School of Occupational Therapy and has a weekly class in St. Mary's Woolnoth Church in the City of London, where business men and women can spend their lunchtime break learning to relax and relieve their tensions. In her work of teaching the young people of England, she reports that their attitudes have changed considerably since the late sixties. The present generation of young people, she says, are much more serious minded and extremely interested in their work and their future.

Laura Mitchell is not the only author in this talented Mitchell family. Her nephew, Dr. John Mitchell, in collaboration with Dr. Arthur Rook of Cambridge, England, has recently published a monumental 800-page treatise on Botanical Dermatology. — Mary Tinkley.

By MAURICE HEMSTREET

Hello there fellow square dancers, once gain I am right on time with bringing you the up-to-date news flashes with The Sunshine Coast Country Stars square dance club.

Yes, with caller Harry Robertson on stage and over three sets of dancers on the floor, another great evening of fun, relaxation and frustrations were soon to become history and you know that I have told you before that there is no better way to forget your troubles than to join a fantastic square dance club like ours.

Harry's aunt and uncle, Lorne and Elaine Ingram from Prince George, dropped in to see how modern square dancing was done and I think that this bothered Harry a bit, as he asked Lorne, how come your hair is still nice and dark, you're slim and trim and well, it's just not fair that the snow has fallen so thick on my top and I sag here and there; what happend:

Advice from an older one — Well, Harry, your aunt and uncle are a very nice couple and we wish that they were closer so that they could join our square dancers. Now, for the last part of your question, neither Webster nor I can come up with phrases or words that will ease your conscience. Sorry, old fellow.

There are many square dances coming up in the future, so watch The Peninsula Times for further places and times, and now I must get along or miss the bus, so have a good day — see you next week when Slim Pickens will be on stage. Bye for now.

A VISIT TO SEATTLE

Recently all the grade 6 & 7 classes in the Sechelt school district spent two days in Seattle visiting the King Tut Exhibit and other points of interest in the area. The following is part of a journal written by a grade 6 student.

By Andrea Rayment

Sechelt Elementary - 5:30 am — Trip to ferry was uneventful, just good old Highway 101, mile after mile.

Langdale Terminal - 6:30 am — Peninsula school bus dropped us off at the ferry terminal and 119 kids walked onto the ferry.

Horseshoe Bay Terminal - 7:15 am — In our groups we walked up to the foot passenger place and hopped onto our assigned buses. (Us grade sixes got the S.M.T.!!! including washrooms, ashtrays and FUN!!!)Seattle Fair Grounds - 2:00 pm — Arrived at World's Fair Grounds and discovered a wait of 1 1/2 hours till being able to get into King Tut. We picked a spot and plunked ourselves down on the ground, and waited . . . waited . . . waited . . .

International Bazaar - 3:00 — After an hour or so some of us went in to the International Bazaar, which has a little gift shop for each country in the world. While going through we stopped in a small room in which they had antique pianos that cost 10-25c to run. That was really neat! I also stopped off at a small gift shop where I bought some postcards and a Hershey bar (only 15c!!) I also bought a small Phillipine toy which Ashley has already managed to demolish. I think all the kids that went through the International Bazaar really enjoyed it.

Seattle Art Centre - King Tut - 3:30 pm — Many precautions were pointed out to us by the guide before we were permitted in. These few things made the exhibit not as interesting as told:

1. All articles were exposed to us before actually seeing the exhibit.
2. The way the exhibit was displayed.
3. I feel the exhibit was built up too much, yet the exhibit was fairly interesting in itself.

Food Circus - Dinner - 5:30 pm — We went to the International Food Faire for dinner which has about 50 different stalls with food from different countries. This was all on two different levels, which was decorated very modernly with fountains, mirrors, etc. Most of us ate at Luigi's, an Italian restaurant.

Monorail - 6:00 pm — The ride was short but enjoyable, but I thought it was really neat. By the way, the monorail was built for the World's Fair as a more convenient way of travelling.

Hotel - 6:30-4:00 am — Since there are many things that should not be known by anyone over the age of 12, I will leave this section blank.

McDonalds - breakfast - 9:00 am — For breakfast I had hotcakes, sausage, hash browns and orange juice. We had to eat quickly though, as the rest of the schools were waiting.

Home!! Time — who cares!! z-z-z-z-z-z

Power squadron meeting news

The October 20 meeting was held at the home of Bruce and Sylvia Woodsworth and was chaired by Comdr. Kent Carruthers, just back from the National Power Squadron Convention in Toronto.

He stated a new maintenance course will be available soon for those interested in improving their mechanical knowledge and skills.

Dave Smethurst informed the meeting that Tom Sheldon will be showing his excellent and colourful underwater slides at the next meeting on November 17.

We were pleased to meet Ret. Comdr. Bob Maxwell and his wife, Joy, formerly of Calgary, who have made an application to join the Sunshine Coast Power Squadron. Welcome Aboard!

After the business meeting adjourned, Woodswroth, surrounded by charts and aided by projected photographs traced his summer cruise of one thousand and seventy statute miles, through numerous hazards to Bella Coola, Ocean Falls, Sir Alexander MacKenzie's monument, Bella Bella and back.

CBC Radio schedules

CBC Radio schedules are not available this week due to the mail strike. It is hoped that arrangements can be made for the new CBC Radio Program Guide to be available at no cost to listeners on the Sunshine Coast — in the meantime a limited number of copies of the third issue October 21-November 3 are at this newspaper office.

One man's garbage

by George Campbell

I recently wrote a column on the difficulties I had in persuading my son to take out that trash. That particular column promopted some rather interesting remarks . . . like the one I got from my son, "Dad, please don't write anything more about me. I'm sick of people stopping me on the street to ask if I've taken out the garbage."

I don't remember taking out the garbage being such a hassle when I was a kid, but then I was brought up during the thirties and we probably ate most of ours.

I DO remember that we had a garbage CAN, which to a thirteen year old boy made a lot more sense than these plastic bags we have today. I mean, how can you make a shield for sword fighting out of the lid of a plastic bag?

I also remember walking down the lane and looking through the neighbors' garbage cans for "treasures". Treasures like those large-sized Pacific and Carnation milk cans. You put the can on a cement sidewalk and pounded the instep of your foot down on it until the edge of the can turned inwards and clamped on to your boot. With one of those cans clamped on to each foot you could clump down a cement sidewalk or a tar road and make like the milkman's horse.

Another thing we used to look for in those garbage cans, was wheels. Three feet of building lath with another piece nailed across one end to make a 'T' was an ideal wheel pusher. You rolled the wheel down the lath to get it moving, then you kept it going by pushing it with the crosspiece. I bet I ran 100 miles playing with a wheel and a stick like that when I was a kid.

If you were lucky enough to find two wheels joined together by an axle, why you were just the richest kid on the block, that's all!

You could build a push-cart or else join up with another kid who had two wheels and make a "bug". (We didn't call them go-carts, or coasters, in those days. They were "bugs").

We would spend two days scrounging boards, nails, rope, and maybe even a steering wheel from a wrecked car. Then after a great deal of sweat, determination, and plain old nail pounding, we would have a semi-mobile device that looked like a refuge from a junk man's nightmare. But not to us. To us it looked sleeker than a $20,000 Alfa Romeo.

There would always be a big argument about who would get to take her down the hill first, but it didn't really matter because the thing would come apart in a dozen places on the first run. We spent more time fixin', than coastin', but boy, it sure was fun.

Bottles and light bults were taken out of garbage cans and put on stumps in vacant lots for target practice. There wasn't a kid in my block who couldn't knock the eye out of a rat at 20 paces. (At least according to the kid, he could.)

Yes, those were the days when garbage had some real substance to it. Who would have thought that the scrawny little kid that used to wander down the lane looking through the garbage would one day end up writing it?

I think I'll go out and look through the trash bin.

Elphie news

On October 23, 450 students from the Sunshine Coast, of which 27 were from Elphinstone, went to the Tutekhamen exhibition in Seattle. The exhibition was described as spectacular. Enlarged photographs of the tomb covered the walls surrounding the display, making it seem as if you were really in the digging site. The artifacts on display were mind boggling in the delicacy and style of the art work. Everyone felt the long trip was well worth it.

The Elphinstone students and those from Gibsons Elementary stayed in a hotel called the Mayflower. The next morning the buses were somehow mixed up and the Elphinstone students ended up going to the zoo instead of the Boeing Jet Company plant. The trip was a great success. — Michael Duteau.

Info collected for waste forum

A great deal of information is being collected and reproduced for the Community Forum. This is being gathered from the Vancouver Public Library, and by means of letters. We are conducting a weekly phone survey to tell people about the Forum and sample opinions. Last week we asked how you dispose of waste paper and newspapers. 45 per cent put it in the garbage for pick-up, 55 per cent either burnt it, used it for compost of recycled it.

We will have representative of the Pollution Control Board on our panel discussion. George Gibb Regional Board Director and Brett McGillivray will also be panel members. Don Lockstead, M.L.A. and Jack Pearsall, M.P. have accepted our invitation to attend the Forum. So make sure you attend on December 3rd at Elphinstone Secondary.

Joint use priorities set

Community projects in Pender Harbour, Langdale, Roberts Creek and possibly Wilson Creek were chosen as 1979 funding priorities by the joint use committee of the regional district and school board Wednesday.

However, the committee felt the recommendations for allocation of its $75,000 budget were tentative pending the outcome of both regional district elections and recreation referendum in November.

"We're really sitting in limbo now til after the referendum and elections," Regional District Chairman Harry Almond told the meeting.

The committee, formed to avoid duplication in spending of regional district and school board tax dollars on public recreation facilities, recommended completion of kitchen facilities at Pender Harbour School, expansion of Langdale School's gymnasium, construction of a community hall in Roberts Creek, and possibly a hall in Wilson Creek as its priorities.

Part of the group's problem is making long term plans for funds that may only be spent at a rate of one mill per year.

However, Almond suggested that the committee investigate the possibilities of borrowing for the capital expenditures and repaying them in yearly installments.

The Pender Harbour kitchen is estimated to cost $5,000, while Langdale's gym expansion is estimated to cost between $40,000 and $70,000 depending upon size, and no estimates were made for the Roberts Creek hall.

Almond told the group, allocations should be based upon concrete evidence of need in the community. Continuing education co-ordinator Karin Hoemberg said the Langdale Gym is less used this year than last. Community feeling seems to be that the installation of showers in the gym, only improved use for outdoor sports groups, she said.

She favored the Roberts Creek community hall project, and said the gym there is filled to capacity every night of the week.

"It seems to me Roberts Creek is the only area where the people will work to establish a better facility for adults...To me there is a strong community feeling in Roberts Creek.

Depending upon the referendum outcome, we can really see what that is."

Area F regional director Bernie Mulligan countered that the Langdale gym was no use to anyone at its present size. He added that the school principal had also fixed several evening activities at the gym.

Hoemberg said the difference between Langdale and Roberts Creek was that "the people never seem to use the gym for social adult functions, and that's not due to its size."

She said Langdale people tended to use the Elphinstone gym for that.

District Superintendent of Schools John Denley suggested the board follow closely a joint regional district and school board expenditure towards Bowen Island's community Hall. There the community spent $180,000 for an addition onto the school building.

He said it would aid decision making for the Wilson Creek project.

Wilson Creek family daycare to end Nov. 3

Daycare for 20 children provided through the Wilson Creek Family Daycare project will be discontinued November 3, co-ordinator Sharon Craig announced last week.

Notification of the closure was given following rejection of the group's application for funding through the Human Resources Department.

"There's been some angry reactions," said Craig, but she could not say whether the group would reapply for funds next year.

However, the local Human Resources office will attempt to fill the gap, by continuing to subsidize daycare for families with daycare arrangements. It will also attempt to locate workers for families who need them.

Fred Taylor, District supervisor of the local human resources office, said "It's (Family Daycare Service) a very sophisticated service. There's no doubt in my mind they've provided a needed service to the community."

Taylor said the service as provided by the Human Resources office will probably mean families may have to find their own daycare, or possibly be put on a waiting list.

The Wilson Creek Community Association daycare operated under a Canada Works grant for the past year had not only supplied and matched families with care workers, but screened the workers, provided library facilities, counselling, training, assessment and referrals.

Taylor said all families are eligible for a human resource department funded subsidy. However the amount varies according to income.

Taylor said he was also aware there had been a misunderstanding between the Family Daycare Service and human resources regional manager Sid Abma.

Craig said the service has been assured that if it established itself, funding would be forthcoming, after the Canada Works Grant expired.

However, after almost one year of operation, Abma told the group no money had been provided in this year's budget for any daycare facilities on the Sunshine Coast.

Most of the activity of the Family Daycare Service has been in the lower part of the peninsula, but the group had plans to extend its service to the entire coast, including 50 children in the Sechelt Indian Band.

The group also planned development of resource files for workers to upgrade their knowledge, library expansion and co-operative purchasing of art supplies, development of a cassette library of children's music and investigation of liability insurance for daycare workers.

Student research group attends CRTC hearings

Last Wednesday, October 25 we went to the Canadian Radio-Television and Telecommunications Commission Hearings to gain firsthand knowledge on license renewals in the Canadian broadcasting system. Also we met with Commissioner Mrs. Pat Pearce and Barry Grainger of the CRTC's Broadcast Programme Directorate concerning the briefs which we went in an which we did not present formally to the whole Commission because Coast cable's Licence renewal was a "non-appearing" item. We took with us a tape of the herbicide Forum held earlier this year edited to give the Commission an understanding of the research done by students and the community response. The session we attended considered a presentation by White Rock Cable Company about their Community Channel - they had been reprimanded last year for not doing enough community productions.

A brief was presented by Vancouver Cable to add to the distribution of its Pay-TV service to downtown hotels. Delta Cable applied for an extra N.S. station, Channel 11 which would given them a total of six American Stations.

In the spring we plan to have a Forum on Community Television for the Sunshine Coast. We hope to present this in the style of a Hearing and hopefully will have a commissioner on the panel.

WEEKLY PHONE SURVEY

Owing to the pressure of school field trips - some of the class spent two days in Seattle and the others a day in Vancouver, the phone survey only covered 40 homes instead of the usual 100. The question this week was, do you put organic or kitchen waste in the garbage or on the compost - of the forty - 18 put their kitchen waste in the garbage, 12 on the compost heap, 1 in the sewer, 1 recycled part to the chickens and the dog, seven were not at home and one hung up on us. One person reported difficulty composting during the bear season.

DONATION

We gratefully acknowledge a donation of $100 from the Regional District to help with costs of research and art materials for the December 3 Forum on waste disposal. — Bill Hume, Steven Ripper.

The fourth in a series of MB reports:

Good jobs & good times. The forests we're planting will be big enough for both.

The best of both worlds: the forest.
The forests are British Columbia's most important source of jobs. But they're also a great natural playground—made to order for camping, hiking, boating, nature study or just unwinding. At MacMillan Bloedel, we're managing the forest with both needs in mind.

The renewable resource.
We know how you feel when you see a newly harvested area. It's not a pretty sight—but it will be beautiful again before many years. What you're looking at is just one phase in the life cycle of a forest crop.
In a world of dwindling natural resources, you may be glad to know there's one that's renewable.

Trees: our number one crop.
We farm trees just like any other crop. Right after the harvest, we prepare the land for replanting or seeding. In a few years' time, a healthy young forest will be growing there. It may not be ready to harvest in your lifetime, but while it's maturing it will be ready to receive visitors.

Welcome to the woods.
The new forest soon becomes a home for animals—and a haven for people. In all our logging divisions, MacMillan Bloedel keeps roads open to the public except when safety considerations intervene. You're welcome to visit almost any time.

40 years of environmental concern.
At MacMillan Bloedel, we were concerned about the environment long before it became fashionable. And we've been doing something about it. Our reforestation program has continued since 1938. In that time we've planted more than 100 million trees in B.C. to give a helping hand to nature. It's a partnership that means good jobs and good times for generations to come.

THE Times REAL ESTATE SECTION

The possible 6 figure income

In nineteen twenty one, the average annual income for a Canadian working man was one thousand fifty seven dollars a year. It took thirty years and a depression before this sum doubled to two thousand one hundred twenty seven dollars. But in the next twenty three years, a 450 per cent increase was experienced and the average wage was eleven thousand six hundred eighty three dollars in 1974. According to financial experts, if pay increases continue at 8 per cent annually, in only twenty seven years the average Canadian male will earn one hundred thousand dollars a year. These facts are mathematically valid, not wild speculation, but other factors should be noted too. If the battle against inflation is lost and prices keep rising, then how much will that annual income of one hundred thousand dollars buy? Employee productivity must be improved and inflation conquered, so Canadians don't become the highest paid poor country in the world.

What can one family do?

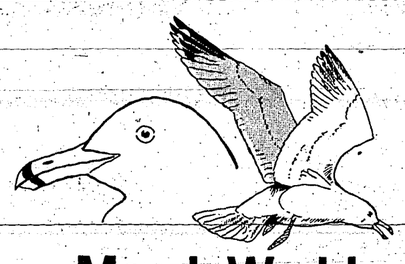
The environmental issue is full of myths and realities, scientific hoopla and documented fact.

The only sure thing that no one discounts is that the problem is here now and will continue into the future.

The Real Estate Board of Greater Vancouver produced a pamphlet six years ago entitled WHAT CAN ONE FAMILY DO?, outlining many contributions that can be made within the family unit to preserve the environment through resource conservation, wise buying habits, and restrictions on use of non-renewable resources.

One hundred and twenty thousand of these pamphlets were distributed in the community in two editions, and now a third edition has been prepared to be circulated free through the board office and your local neighbourhood real estate office.

It will be ready soon, and you can ask for your copy of ENERGY AND THE ENVIRONMENT — WHAT CAN ONE FAMILY DO?, a public service conservation pamphlet.



Marsh World

Ducks Unlimited (Canada)

RING-BILLED GULL — A medium-sized white-headed, gray-backed gull, found chiefly on the prairies and often seen about marshes. The distinguishing feature is the black band which encircles the bill near the tip and yellow-green legs and feet. It nests in loose colonies, sometimes among other gulls (such as the California), and generally on boulder strewn islands but at other times on suitable open points of land along the waters' edge. It appears to have no predatory habits harmful to water birds, with its chief food consisting of insects many of which are taken from cultivated land.

FIRST AID TIP

from ST. JOHN AMBULANCE

BEE AND WASP STINGS

● Can be fatal ● If casualty is showing signs of allergic reaction (swelling around the eyes and mouth, hives, severe nausea and difficulty in breathing) seek immediate medical aid ● Start artificial respiration if necessary and take precautions to prevent shock (reassure casualty, keep warm) ● If there is no allergic reaction, remove the sting by using tweezers or the point of a cooled needle which has passed through a flame ● Remove the sting by depressing the skin around the puncture ● Avoid squeezing it ● Antihistamine creams, rubbing alcohol, weak ammonia solution or a solution of bicarbonate of soda may be applied immediately ● If sting is in the mouth, give a mouthwash of 1 tsp. of bicarbonate of soda to a glass of water ● If there is much swelling, place casualty on his side and give ice to suck ● Obtain medical aid.

Home mortgages

Mortgages are vehicles that have made it possible for Canada to become one of the highest home-ownership countries in the world. They are provided by banks, trust, mortgage companies, credit unions and individuals, and because of this competition, there are many options open to the home buyer. Shop around for a mortgage, just as you would for a house. It is to the advantage of the potential home buyer to negotiate the term which suits him best . . . the term being the time allowed before the mortgage must be re-negotiated. When the term comes up for renegotiation, you are not obligated to stay with the same lender, but you should be aware that placing a mortgage with another lender could involve legal expenses that may cancel out any savings on interest rates. Ask your licensed real estate professional to guide you in your choice of mortgage for the property you are buying.

Housing myths

A recent study across the United States challenges the myth of the affordability crisis in housing.

During 1976 six single family home sales reached an unprecedented rate, and new construction rose to higher than ever levels. Statistics show nearly half of all buyers were under thirty five and the analysts also noted that while home prices have risen at a rate two per cent higher than inflation each year for fifteen years, so has the median income, so incomes and prices have been virtually parallel.

The real culprits in the increasing cost of home ownership are interest rates, property taxes and spiralling utility and repair costs.

Action at local and federal levels could alleviate some of these cost increases through income tax amendments regarding interest, and local property tax reductions by further provincial payments.

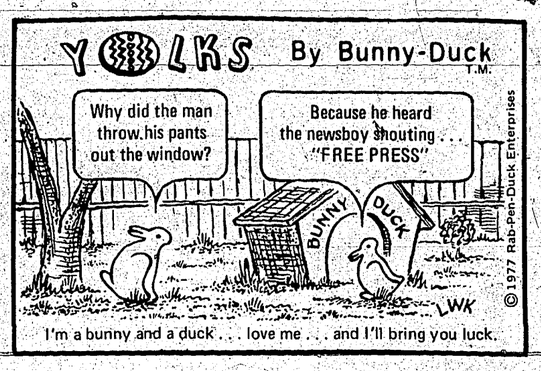
Saving mortgage money

Mortgage financing is the only method by which most people are able to buy their own homes.

There have been many criticism of the cost of borrowing mortgage money, and many mortgagors are not given information on how to increase their payments as their incomes increase in order to save considerable mortgage interest.

When applying for a mortgage or reviewing it, pay close attention to prepayment privileges. If you use the prepayment privilege wisely and regularly you can save many dollars and years of mortgage debt. One example of mortgage cost saving is based on a forty thousand dollar loan at eleven per cent over thirty five years in which it was calculated that an additional twenty dollar per month payment resulted in a saving of approximately forty one thousand dollars over the live of the mortgage.

A minimum monthly mortgage payment habit could become expensive!



Fire insurance

Each year Canadians lose millions of dollars through fire damage, and these losses are continuing to escalate.

Even more sad than the actual loss of a structure itself is the trauma of losing precious family momentos or valuable collections that are irreplaceable.

Property owners should give a great deal of thought to insurance coverage, and have a broker or agent check with several companies for the best quote on your behalf. Be sure you understand the terms and conditions of loss, and that antiques, jewellry, important papers, are listed fully.

Ask your neighbourhood real estate agent for a copy of the HOUSEHOLD INVENTORY pamphlet, and list your assets and their values carefully.

Role of the real estate agent

When a seller purchaser requires the service and assistance of a real estate licensee, remuneration for this service is a commission out of the price paid to the seller. This does not mean that only the seller is protected, because as middleman, the agent also protects the interests of the buyer. Licensed professional real estate people operate under the Real Estate Act and Real Estate Boards' Codes of Ethics which demand that interests of both buyer and seller be protected. Also as a matter of practicality, the agent wants both buyer and seller as future clients or satisfied customers who will recommend him for further business. Those vendors and buyers who need the assistance of real estate personnel in their purchase or sale can depend on a licensed agent who belongs to a Real Estate Board with firm codes and standards.

People in the market for a home

The residential home you buy is probably the biggest investment you will ever make, so plan it as carefully as you would plan an investment portfolio. Study your lifestyle, and decide what you need most for your family. Set your priorities down on paper . . . with the most important items first. Price, down payment available and monthly payments are probably the most important to every buyer. Then space needs . . . number of bedrooms, bathrooms . . . recreational or family area and other conveniences. Location is important — do you need to be near public schools . . . private schools . . . a college? When your needs are written down, contact a local real estate agent who has the services of the Real Estate Board's Multiple Listing Service available. He will be able to check his listings for the properties that fall within your own guidelines . . . and you'll soon be viewing a number of properties in order to make the all-important choice of a home of your own.

Drivers needed to transport housebound

Have you ever considered what it would be like to get into the village for a doctor's appointment — if you did not have a car? Most of us tend to take our cars for granted and just go from A to B — until they are not working.

There are many people here on the peninsula who do not have any form of transportation of their own. Some are too elderly to be able to drive their own cars even if they had them. Some people are housebound because they are looking after a sick or handicapped person.

Have you the time to drive someone, even occasionally, for an outing or to a doctor's appointment? Drivers and visitors are needed in all parts of the Sunshine Coast.

In the Gibsons area, drivers are needed to transport clients to the Adult Day Care. Clients are taken to the Day Care Centre about 9:30 a.m. and return home about 2:30 p.m. It is hoped that several people might be willing to share this task on Tuesday and Thursdays. Also needed in the Gibsons area are volunteers to visit elderly people. Could you share a craft or household skill with the elderly?

In Pender Harbour, volunteers are needed to transport people to the Health Clinic. Could you spend some time with an invalid so that his wife could get out of the house for short periods? Also needed in this area are visitors to elderly people and someone to help a partially handicapped person become more physically fit. What time can you spare?

In Sechelt a volunteer is needed to read to a senior citizen who so loves to read but is unable to do so. A school is looking for a person with artistic skills to help in the development of a language arts program. Sponsors are needed to supervise people involved in the community probation program. Wooden toys and jig saw puzzles are needed for a day care program.

If you would like to investigate further some of these opportunities, please contact the Volunteer Bureau at 885-3821.

Minerals by the month

Centuries ago, when many of the ancient peoples were of similar beliefs and faiths, they followed charts pertaining to their monthly food consumption, the belief being that the body required larger amounts of a vitamin or mineral during certain months or season than it does at other times.

According to this chart, the minerals most beneficial to the human system for the month of October are magnesium, copper and zinc. The foods that should be concentrated on are meat in moderation (unless one's metabolism requires a vegetarian diet) eggs, milk, dried fruits and yellow vegetables.

During a time of changing seasons, especially from summer to winter, it is important to keep the bodily system strong with a high resistance level, yet at the same time to eat sparingly in order to give the stomach a rest from the over-indulgence of the past summer and autumn months.

To complete the year according to this ancient chart, stemming from a time when our most common diseases of today were virtually unknown, the rest is as follows; For November one must look to phosphorus, calcium and manganese for better heatlth and should eat as many as possible of the following foods: asparagus, figs, carob, sage, cauliflower, turnips, turkey, chicken and wild game.

In December, nutrition should include phosphorus, sodium and iron, and one should consider in his diet, fish, especially halibut and cod, whole grains, lean meats, baked potatoes, peas corn and beans.

In order to have perfect health, we are subject to the laws of nature, which may require at times that we break agreements with our traditions.

Remember, good health is our birthright, but few people are so fortunate. With some effort and discipline regarding our eating habits, perfect health is attainable, and perhaps the thought of a "flourishing" world community is not so remote. This will come about only through minds based on healthy bodies. Happy eating! — Jeff Brown, The Fitness and Recreation Service.

EXERCISE DANCE CLASS

All women who like to dance choreographed routines and who would like to exercise to be able to do it better are invited to join an advanced Aerobic Dance and Exercise Class being held on Mondays from 4 to 6 p.m. in the mezzanine of Pender Harbour High School Gym.

The class features an hour of aerobic dance designed to exercise and stimulate the cardio-vascular system, while at the same time strengthen and tone the muscles of the arms, legs and torso. This is preceded by an hour of stretching, limbering and balancing movements.

And the advanced aerobic dance music has even more bounce and rhythm than the beginning songs, complete with Hustle moves and other modern dance routines. This class is definitely a dancer's delight and may make you one if you're not already. For more information please call the recreation service at 885-5440 or Robi Peters at 883-9923.

MOMS AND TOTS EXERCISES

Besides the Moms and Tots exercise sessions at the United Church Hall in Gibsons on Tuesdays from 9:30 to 11:30 a.m., slightly different classes are being held in Sechelt on Mondays and Thursdays from 9 to 10 a.m. in St. Hilda's Hall. These classes are for both Moms and Tots to participate in and tots are not only encouraged to join in the movements with mom if they so desire, but a time is specifically set aside for moms to help them with some movements of their own.

These classes are divided into four segments. First, there is 15 minutes of limbering and warm-up exercises followed by 15 minutes of Yoga. Then there is 15 minutes of aerobic dance and finally a tumbling session where Moms help their youngsters learn the co-ordination and muscular control necessary to master basic tumbling movements.

These classes are open to women with or without children. The fee is $1 per session. For more information please call 885-5440 or Carole Leibel at 885-5279.

KIDS' BASKETBALL CLINICS

To introduce children and teenagers to the rules and game of basketball, the Fitness and Recreation Service is sponsing basketball clinics every Saturday morning from 10:30 to 12:30 in the gym at Chatelech School, beginning November 4. To be led by John Grames, these sessions are free and are open to students of all ages. They have been planned to acquaint the participants with the rules and basic moves of basketball, and to allow them time to practice and to play the game. All that is required of the students is to wear running shoes. For more information about these basketball clinics, please call the Recreation Service at 885-5440.

MEN'S BASKETBALL

All men who would like to get together once or twice a week and get a workout by playing basketball are invited to join in any of the games going on at the following times and locations: Sechelt Elementary Gym on Wednesdays from 8:30 to 10 p.m., Elphinstone gym on Sundays from 5 to 7 p.m.; Pender Harbour Senior Secondary School gym on Thursdays from 8 to 10 p.m. Teams will be formed each evening from those present, and play will be fast, fun and informal. There is a possibility that if sufficient interest is shown, regular teams and a league could develop, but for now no formal teams will be organized. Anyone wishing more information about these games call the Recreation Service at 885-5440. (Note: games have already started in Gibsons and Pender Harbour, but won't begin in Sechelt until November.)

Ladies golf

By AUDREY McKENZIE

Tuesday, October 24th, was the final day of the Ladies Golf Season. A social 9 hole tournament, with teams of four, playing selective shots, was played.

Winners, with a 41, were Doreen Matthew's team of Greta Patterson, Rita Hincks and Lenora Inglis. Second with 42, Audrey McKenzie's team of Margaret Arbuckle, Hazel Wright and Olive Shaw.

Fifty-two ladies attended the luncheon, followed by the Annual meeting. Match Committee Chairman, Margaret Arbuckle reported on the eventful year for the Ladies of the Golf Club.

Competitive games were held on 30 consecutive Tuesdays, and thanks to the beautiful Sunshine Coast weather, not one day was rained out.

An eight member Team won the Cup for the second year, in a two game Inter-club match with Squamish Golf Club.

Zone Two Area of B.C. (lower mainland) introduced a Third Team competition this year and our Club proudly brought home the Trophy.

We played at Seymour Gold Club, in the Provincial finals and lost by only one point. Team members and spares were Lil Bullied, Kay Budd, Eileen Evans, Lil Fraser, Norma Gaines, Audrey McKenzie, Vera Munro, Jessie Pritchard, Glenna Salahub and Mardi Scott.

Trophies presented were Club Championship, won by Virginia Douglas; Senior Ladies Trophy, Iva Peterson; Back to School Trophy, Adeline Clarke; Ruth Bowman Trophy, Doreen Matthews; Most improved Golfer Trophy, Mardi Scott and Nine Hole players tournament, Hazel Wright.

Our Club Pin was won by Glenna Salahub and Wilma Sim recorded the only hole-in-one for the Ladies.

That old cliche "Practise makes Perfect" proved true for those who were busy improving their game through the year. Helen Milburn and Vera Munro each collected four individual prizes for the 18 hole competitions and in the Nine holers, Eleanor Dann and Greta Patterson each received three.

Handicap Chairman, Audrey Jost reported a great reduction in handicaps this year with Kay Mittelsteadt reducing 7 strokes, Eileen Evans and Audrey McKenzie each 6 strokes and Doreen Mathews 5. The exception was Mardi Scott, a pupil of Roy Taylor's Winter Golf lessons for beginners, two years ago, Mardi started this season with a 38 handicap and through her enthusiasm and hard work cut 10 strokes to a 28 handicap.

This year a Past-Captain's Pin was established and all previous Captains were thanked for their contributions and dedicated work for bringing Ladies Golf up to the standards it is today.

Past Captains honored, since the Club's inception in 1969, were Virginia Douglas, Lee Redman, Doreen Gregory, Belle Dube, Norma Gaines, Lenora Inglis, Moira Clement, Eileen Evans and Lil Bullied.

Elected Officers for 1979 are Ladies Captain, Jessie Pritchard; Vice Captain, Helen Milburn; Sec.-Treas., Leila Comrie; Match Chairman, Wilma Sim; Handicaps, Betty Laidlaw; Rules, Mardi Scott and Publicity, Audrey McKenzie.

Tuesday marked the end of our organized golf, but not the end of golf for our Ladies. Any sunny day, through the fall and winner, you will see Lady Golfers out enjoying their game on our lovely course, one of the prettiest and greatest assets on the Sunshine Coast.

Bananas down Chiefs

The Pender Harbour Bananas scalped the Sechelt Chiefs 5-3 in their first win in this season's soccer action.

The victory came after suffering five defeats at the hands of the Chiefs who had taken all the honors in the six game series.

Top Bananas during the match were Peter Kenney who was singled out for all around excellence, and Herbie August noted for his good defensive work.

Curling news

The pre-season free ice time was well used, and what a delight it was to see so many new faces out trying the sport.

The Opening Bonspiel was just as gratifying with a good turnout. The Spiel was highlighted by a delicious Dinner, thanks to Faye Hansen and Associates. Dancing was enjoyed to music by the Music Man from Powell River who is always popular here.

Sunday's playoffs provided some fun and games resulting in two Skips curling the final game under very binding circumstances!

A new Rink to watch for this year is the Brooks Rink, composed of four boys from Chatelech Jr. High, they showed some real impressive curling in the Opening Spiel.

Final results of the Spiel are as follows:

A Event: Gravelle Rink, 2nd Swartzfager.
B Event: Brassenet, 2nd Clark.
C Event: Dixon, 2nd Brooks.
D Event: Kearney, 2nd Davis.

There is still room for two Men's Rinks on Monday nights at 7 p.m. phone Larry at 885-9088 to register.

Coming up in the not so distant future is the Christmas Fun Spiel on Dec. 20th, AND make your plans now to attend the New Year's Eve Dance, sponsored by the Curling Club, at the Arena with the Music Man once more in attendance.

Tickets will be reserved for this event and the Curlers will be given first chance. More about this later. See you on the ice!

Stompers stomp Raiders 3-1

The Wakefield Stompers defeated the Gibsons' Raiders 3-1 in Sunday's senior league match.

Goal scorers for the Stompers were Gary Radymski scoring one and Al Nickerson with two. John Kruse played an excellent game in goal, and defenceman John Nickerson and Kelly Bonerack also played well for Wakefield.

On the rocks

— by Pat Edwards

League curling is going full swing, but there is still room for more rinks. If you are interested, call the rink and leave your name with Gus.

The men's open bonspiel will be held on November 24, 25 and 26, and the local quota of 16 rinks is already filled. Looks as if the men are well on the way to another successful 'spiel.

The semi-annual general meeting will be held on November 28 at 8 p.m. in the lounge. All curlers are urged to keep this night open for a very important meeting.

Book Look

By MURRIE REDMAN

SHADOWS edited by Charles Grant. Doubleday Science Fiction c1978, 182 pages, $9.95.

All the stories in SHADOWS are new. You won't be disappointed at the quality of writing or the variety of subjects chosen by the editor. So often one comes across the same tale seen in either a magazine or book and feels cheated out of a story. It's like finding too many hard centres in a box of all-sorts chocolates.

The stories all deal with the unusual. They take place in various time periods, happen to different classes of people, and are a chilling blend of both science fiction and the occult. Many lay claim to all three aspects.

"Naples" has a man of Italian descent return to his homeland to search out a mysterious aunt. The old woman who was feared by villagers, attempted to avoid him but he persisted and was sorry to find that the horrible curse laid on her was now his.

In "Deathlove", a newly dead lover visits his lady. She senses his presence and even his touch as he awaits her demise. Another similar tale revolves around a rather mad school teacher who abhors yet invites the stares of an elderly neighbour who peers through his window into hers. When he dies she inherits the ghost of a child that had haunted him.

And then we have the unfortunate butcher whose brain injury forces him to live with a hand that is controlled by the right side of his brain while the left side stands by unable to help. When the hand begins to take over, the butcher takes the matter "in hand", you might say, in a rather drastic way.

Not all the stories are deadly serious. One called "Picture" tells about Farley and his pursuit of a lovely lady who is unattainable without the assistance of the devil. When Farley finally finds the Evil One in the form of Doctor Horner he finds out that devils are not to be trusted. The final score in this gambit is Devil, one and Farley souless.

There are, of course, 13 stories in the collection. Each is introduced in terms which prepare the reader for the terror beyond. Subtle references to what lies ahead, are part of the fun in reading these carefully plotted speculations into the unknown. Such greats as Stephen King who wrote THE SHINING and CARRIE appear as authors.

Nice to curl up with on a stormy night, with the fog horn in the background is SHADOWS.

JUST MONKEYING AROUND are Garth Frizzell, Michael Lewis, Leona Lewis, Robbie and Lisa McCourt, and supervisor Sandy MacDonald. The kids are participants in Wilson Creek Community Hall's after school program. The program is for six to 12 year-olds and is held every week day, from 2:30 to 6:30 p.m.

After school program solves parents' problems

Have you ever heard the refrain: "But if I take the job, attend the class, join that group, what will I do with my kids after school?"

Wilson Creek has come up with a solution to the problem. They are running an After School Program for kids aged 6-12, at the Wilson Creek Community Hall.

The program includes activities indoors and out in a safe, supervised and friendly atmosphere.

The successful previous Summer Fun programs will provide a model to follow. There will be games, sports, hikes, field trips, films, arts and crafts under group leaders. The community hall houses a library and reading corner for storytime and the kitchen facilities will be used to prepare hot nutritious snacks.

The kids in the program will also have access to other community facilities and events. They can use the community workshop or join gymnastics at the school.

The program provides a healthy environment for 6-12 year olds, 2:30-6:30 p.m. every day. The fee is $50 per child per month (full time) and subsidies are available through the local Human Resources Office.

There is a limit of 20 in this program and spaces are filling up. Parents can get information or register their children by calling the Wilson Creek Community Office at 885-5422.

Seniors No. 69 view slides

By ROBERT FOXALL

Fourth Thursday, Oct. 26: after a lively session of Bingo, the members present were treated via the medium of slides to a delightful series of trips which took us, under the guidance of Irene and Hugh Duff, from the warmth of Florida to glaciers of the Columbia Icefield via N. Quebec, where we saw the zoo at St. Felicient with its otters and hippos, buffalos, llamas, polar bears and Bengal tigers all disporting themselves in spite of, or in enjoyment of the snow that was evident in some scenes.

In passing we visited the Gaspe Peninsula and were treat to the magnificance of Mt. Eisenhower and Mt.Rundle and the beauty of Lake Louise in Alberta. We went through Rogers Pass and made a side trip to the Game Farm near Penticton. Going down the Fraser we stopped for a look at the Fish Hatchery and Ladders in Hell's Gate Canyon and then through the wonder of flight, found ourselves in Hawaii where we shook off the chills of the earlier part of the trip.

My thanks and those of all the audience go to Irene and Hugh for a most entertaining tour.

Saturday the 28th was, of course, our big Fall Bazaar and Tea. While your reporter was unable to attend the tea, he did manage a trip to the Hall just before the opening and saw the beautiful decorations in an Autumn motif. The bountiful display of cooking made me want to stay and buy out the works. Next week I will try and have the names of all of the winners in the draw, but until then I can tell you that Mrs. Gladys Prost was the winner of the quilt and Esther Wagoner took home the hot pads.

Next big event is the luncheon for our Powell River friends at noon of Nov. 1. Don't miss this event.

The executive will meet at 10 a.m. Nov. 7; the November General Meeting will be Nov. 16 and Fourth Thursday will be Nov. 23. In case you are bored between times, don't forget Carpet Bowling on Mondays and dancing on Wednesdays.

Does your monthly heat bill leave you cold?

If opening your heat bill gives you the chills, maybe it's time to investigate another way of heating.
In fact, there's one heating fuel that's inexpensive and in plentiful supply.
Wood.
Which brings us to the Fisher Stove. It burns wood so efficiently it can trim 50% or more off your heating bill.
You see, a Fisher Stove is made from heavy plate steel that's carefully welded to make sure it's virtually airtight. (Gaps in the seams could suck in air and waste fuel.) It has patented spin draft controls so you can easily regulate the amount of heat it puts out. And its unique two-step design gives a Fisher two cooking surfaces with two different temperatures.
So whether you want to heat a single room or an entire house, look into a Fisher. And help make heat bills a whole lot easier to live with.

The Garden Corner

Winter pruning time

By Guy Symonds

This week we greet the arrival of another winter by setting the clocks back. The darkness of the evening will descend upon us earlier, but there is the compensating fact that some of us anyway will not have to get up in the dark of the morning.

The garden is rather a depressing sight, except for the curly kale which flourishes, the brussel sprouts which show promise (they were 79cents a pound in the stores the other day) and the leeks. These last will not be very good because the art of growing them still eludes this grower, but there will be some of a harvestable size. The answer one suspects is more and yet more potash which this ground seems to lack. On the other hand some summer turnips that were left to their own devices all summer are the size of ones head - and that does not argue lack of potash. So the problem is yet to solve.

The good thought is that soon one may feel justified in planning for the next harvest, last year's mistakes and disappointments still fresh in the mind and maybe some exciting new ideas to try out.

But between now and then many of us will be toying with the pruning shears, trying to remember all the do's and dont's of an operation which despite the assurances of the experts seems to be of the nature of an occult science. Those same experts sound in the advice to gardeners about to prune like the famous advice by Mr. Punch to young men about to get married - "Don't"!

As always the proper course between the "don't touch it" and the "let's go" is in between and the only way to evaluate the situation is to get down to basics and identify the conditions that good pruning can affect.

First, quite obviously it can control an undesirable habit of growth. A shrub for instance that may be too tall, too big or too bushy for the site.

Pruning removes dead, dying or diseased wood and induces compact growth by the cutting out of some of even the healthy wood. It will help to size and shape a tree or shrub and induce better fruiting and flowering by careful and proper thinning.

But it must always be remembered that cutting or pruning not only encourages but induces growth of more wood. Many an uninformed but enthusiastic gardener - including this one - has found to his sorrow.

Without a doubt, indiscriminate cutting ruins more good growing things than the complete neglect which for some seem to be the only alternative.

If you are looking at your shade tree, just trim away the branches that interfere with traffic or access. If it is necessary to cut away some of the top to let in more light, remember on no account to touch the central leader. And always bear in mind that two small cuts are better than one big one.

Treat flowering trees the same way only remember that if you thin the top growth too drastically the flowering may be adversely affected.

Older shrubs where the growth has been allowed to become rank may be cut right back to encourage new shoots from the base. Some like lilacs and forsythia should be pruned shortly after flowering. As with rhododendrons the dead blooms on these should have been removed immediately the flowering was over.

Coniferous trees generally present no problem provided one essential rule is observed. If the subject is a pine of the Scotch or Austrian variety for instance, do not touch it until the new succulent growth appears in the summer. If they are cut now, there will be a black, ugly scar or many such which the tree will never lose. Douglas fir or hemlock on the other hand are not a bit fussy and may be pruned just about any time. Pruning of the laterals of these trees by pinching off the buds can bring the most amazing results in the way of heavy bushiness as this gardener has found from such experience with them.

This is not a professional garden column so no attempt is made to instruct. It is a guide only. So if you are seized with the desire to go out and cut things just because you have heard that it is the thing to do in the winter, the Corner would ask you to make sure of what you want to accomplish and exactly what you must do to that end.

Pruning seems to be a bit like carpentry where the rule is "measure twice and cut once". In other words make very sure of what you are doing before you commit an error that cannot be corrected.
