Says Almond

Report OK, but how soon before it's scrapped?

Regional district board chairman Harry Almond said Sunday he is generally pleased with the Regional District Review Committee's recommendations to maintain the regional form of government.

"But how long will it take for Mr. Curtis (Minister of Municipal Affairs and Housing) to throw it into the waste paper basket?" added Almond.

The committee's 52 recommendations came after a year of hearings with regional boards and cover boundaries, finances, political and administrative structures, functions and responsibilities, and the jurisdictional role of regional governments.

"The report shows we have a need for the regional district concept. In my area of Roberts Creek we have used the regional district to achieve what we wanted to achieve," he said.

He stated he was certain the provincial government will pay heed to the reports recommendations.

"I got the impression they were really trying to get at the facts. Their questions were very searching and to disregard their statements would be foolish."

But he said he would like to know in detail how the government is going to go about implementing such proposals as the changes in municipal boundaries.

Asked about a map in the report that proposed change in regional district boundaries to amalgamate the Sunshine Coast Regional District and the Powell River Regional District, Almond said it wouldn't be practical.

"The people on the committee didn't understand this area. We will oppose the amalgamation and so will a lot of the Powell River people I have talked to. It just wouldn't really gain anything," he said.

The suggestion was made, Almond explained, because the two districts are on the same road system.

"But North Vancouver is on the same road system as ours, too. Alaska and Mexico are on the same road system."

He said other SCRD directors have looked at the report and are generally agreed with the recommendations and opposed the joining with the PRRD.

"Areas A, B and D are definitely quite happy about the report," he added.

Area E director George Gibb stated he thought the report committee did a good job but that he "couldn't get too excited one way or the other" about what will happen to the report now.

"Politicians are always ruining good clinical solutions. They play political games and don't implement anything clinical in a responsible fashion without favoritism and string pulling," said Gibb.

He mentioned a recommendation in the report that called for increased public knowledge of the policies and programs of the districts.

He added that the SSRD should have a public relations person to do this job that is not a director on the board.

"The community doesn't know about things like the regional district paying for improved kitchen facilities at Elphinstone, Chatelech and Pender high schools so the schools can be used after school hours. People were complaining about nothing to do at night so we put a bit of money into the schools and now they are being used. If they want to have a public dance at the schools, they now have the kitchen facilities."

He said the report was good in providing information for people who have been critical of regional government.

"Maybe the people who were making carte blanche criticisms will now have some background before they open their mouths," added Gibb.

He said the report will also help regional districts to communicate with each other.

Asked about the amalgamation of SCRD with Powell River he said the regional district here was unique in that the electoral areas had more population than any of the villages.

He suggested the SCRD should be on its own.

But Gibb wasn't any more optimistic about what will happen to the report when it's future is left up to the province's Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing.

"For two years the government has had a report on alternate banking systems. They haven't done anything with it," Gibb said.

AFTER OFFICIALLY opening the new Pender Harbour Secondary School by cutting the ribbon, Frances Flemming, a former principal of the school, models her corsage for school board chairman Don Douglas. Fleming and Douglas, along with others including Les Canty from the Minstry of Education, Joe Harrison of the Regional District and Doris Fuller of the Sechelt Teachers Association spoke at the opening ceremony December 1. Fleming urged the students and staff to make the new school a "shining lighthouse for the province."

Student forum airs garbage views

The question of whether to use garbage dumps as at present, or to change to incinerators that burn garbage or re-educate the public about recycling habits was never really answered at Elphinstone's impressive student-run forum Sunday.

But people representing all angles of waste disposal had a chance to have their say.

About ten groups ranging from solar energy advocates to the Cedar Grove Elementary School Thrift Shop traded wares and information i the school auditorium.

Later, a panel chosen from the Pollution Control Branch, private disposal engineers, concerned citizens and regional district board told approximately 50 interested residents of their roles in handling garbage.

The forum was video-taped by Delta Cable for a later Channel 10 telecast while the school's own Student Research Productions filmed the action in the gym.

Giving the waste theme a historical slant, panelist Brett McGillvray told the forum that people in England in 1870 were indignant about a law being passed that said they had to stop throwing their garbage out the window.

"Then they learned about cholera, plague and typhoid. But are we really any different today? We take out garbage from the street and put it in our backyard," he said.

He said because of dangers of contamination of water by leeching from garbage disposal sites, the solution to present levels of waste disposal was a "Complex technology."

"The solution, I believe, is to cut down on garbage," he added.

Some people on the Sunshine Coast, he said, were depositing garbage by separating cans and bottles from paper and organic matter.

He suggested people here should be allowed only one can every two weeks of unsorted garbage.

"The saving (in processing the waste) could pay for a proper sanitary landfill process," added McGillvray.

Panelist and Area E Director George Gibb told the group the cost to the taxpayer of maintaining the garbage dump and buying equipment to run it was reaching $200,000 a year.

He suggested as an alternative a $2 million incineration system, but said problems of metal disposal and ashes would have to be solved in this system.

"It's your choice," he told the forum, "and this choice could be made by referendum. One pollutant that results from incineration is hot air. But we've been accused of having that at regional board meetings anyway."

Panelist and landfill consultant Pat Benjamin explained that the incinerator units were now available in sizes to serve the areas of lesser population such as the peninsula.

He described the incinerator as a controlled air device that burns waste and when the smoke rises it is burned a second time before release into the atmosphere.

"This secondary combustion meets Pollution Control Board standards for the area," he stated.

McGillvray argued that the cost for incineration was "outrageous" and that it didn't treat the problem but only the symptoms.

First to the open microphone at the meeting was regional board chairman Harry Almond who asked panelist and PCB representative Dr. Don Mason how long the district could continue with garbage dumps the way they are now operated.

"The way we're doing it isn't good because of burning and leeching. We've been doing it this way for a number of years. When is the axe going to fall?" he asked Mason.

But Mason explained that the PCB doesn't shut down sanitary landfill sites.

"We don't work that way. Our approach is to improve the operation so that the waste people generate is disposed of in the fashion that is least harmful to people and the environment."

The students' consciousness in putting on the forum did not go without a commendation from Coast Chilcotin MP Jack Fearsall, a guest at the event, along with MLA Don Lockstead.

Surveying the displays before the panel met, Pearsall indicated that the students deserved all the attention he and other government representatives could give them.

"As parliamentary secretary for the Minister of Environment, I'm here to listen and do what I can to answer questions," Pearsall said.

He said he was also favorably impressed by a forum presented by the students earlier this year based on use of herbicides and their environmental effects.

The herbicide forum contributed to the launching of a regional district appeal to the PCB to ban use of the herbicide Tordon 10K under Hydro power lines.

About 100 Elphinstone students contributed to the event, according to organizer Marta MacKown. The information has been collected by the students since September.

EVEN THE YOUNG students got into the spirit of recycling at Elphinstone school's waste disposal forum Sunday. Even if their junk wasn't another man's treasure, they appear to be enjoying the venture immensely.

SCRD planner resigns

Sunshine Coast Regional District Planner Robyn Addison has resigned to take a post in Victoria with the Ministry of Municipal Affairs.

"It's a logical professional step for me," she told the Times in an interview Sunday.

Addision, who has been with the SCRD for two years, will start her job with Municipal Affairs in January. She will work in the ministry's planning services department co-ordinating plans throughout the province. The same type of plans, she said, she has been involved with the development of on the Sunshine Coast.

"It's a healthy thing for planners to move around — most stay in one place between three and five years," she said. "I hadn't planned to leave but this job with the ministry just came up."

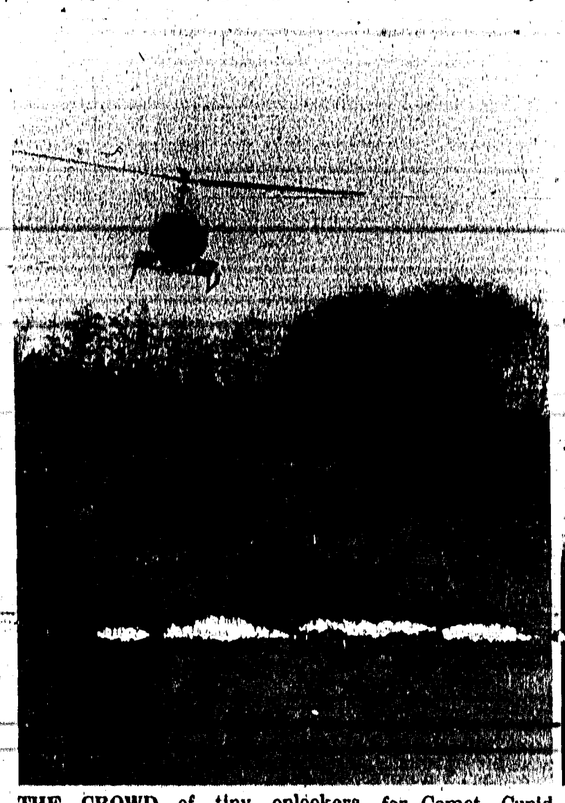
During her two years with the SCRD Addison says the public attitude toward planners has been gradually changing.

"There certainly was a lot of opposition to planners," she said. However, that attitude has largely changed, she said, because people are beginning to understand a planner's function in the community.

ROBYN ADDISON
. . . "logical professional step"

"This last year has been really pleasant," said Addison.

Regional Board directors Thursday night accepted Addison's resignation with regret and voted to send her a commendation "for a job well done."



THE CROWD of tiny onlookers outside of Sunnycrest Mall in Gibsons Saturday may have been gaping up for Comet, Cupid, Donner, Blitzen and company pulling this man's sleigh through the drizzle; but none were disappointed when he put down in a whirlybird instead. They crowded around, followed him inside, sat on his knee, while he listened to the Christmas wishes. With elves working overtime at the North Pole, we're sure he'll be back Christmas Eve with a big bag of presents for the ones who are good.

Not wasted

Last Sunday, for the third time in just over a year, the students of Elphinstone Secondary School again expertly pulled off a community involvement coup d'etat with the public forum on waste disposal.

It is both unique and commendable that an elected government body like the regional board will go to those young people and given them encouragment to show their expertise in organizing a public event. The students, as in the past, rose to the task and did it well.

Even the students of Cedar Grove Elementary got into the act and brought junk from home for their thrift sale.

But the real accolades go to the 30 students in Marta MacKown's Communications 11 class, backed up by many more from Social Studies classes, who made posters covering every aspect of getting rid of the garbage we create in our consumer society.

It's often that people of school age are victims of sophisticated advertising campaigns by the big enterprises that want to sell their goods and will exploit any age group to do so. It is rare that students rise above their role as a marketplace for the sharpie hucksters and become the ones who can help us find out what to do with the leftovers — the garbage in a material society.

A lot of people went into making the forum a good place to look at how we treat the throw-away aspects of our life and landscape. The elected officials come not only because they have a job to do but because it is inspiring to watch the coming generation take an issue like waste disposal and put it into perspective. The students may now know more about it than anyone since they are not a special interest group.

In a way, they reversed their student roles and became the educators.

It's doubtful if anyone who attended read every word on the multitude of information posters, or saw every film or slide presentation, or studied every display of ways of getting rid of our garbage without despoiling the countryside. But there was probably something there for everybody interested in the subject.

With waste disposal becoming a major concern, especially with the increasing burden of population in this district, the students who worked long hours and did impressive research into the various ways of handling the garbage problem should be thanked for what we can learn from it.

READER'S RIGHT

Chrismas not so stupid

Editor, The Times:

As a candidate in the "Ho hum: election '78", I take exception to your editorial and the quote, "If you keep your mouth shut, no one will know how stupid you are"!

Therre is a double inference here. The voters must be stupid when they cannot come up with an issue! And among the candidates, those who WON, did so by not revealing their stupidity, but were smart enough NOT to return the questionnaire.

Those who LOST, did so because they returned the questionnaire and revealed all. And unfortunately, did not include controversial subjects that neither the press nor the voters could not make an issue of.

In my own case, the portfolio I was shooting for had to do with airport and recreational affairs, both of which I have some knowledge and interest in. Unfortunately, neither of these subjects seem to be dear to the hearts of the villagers as they do not lie within the confines of the village boundaries. But there will be important decisions made in the next year or so by council and some of them will be controversial and a drain on the budget. I would like to have been involved in those decisions.

If the press was looking for issues, why did they not attend the all-candidates meeting on November 14th? Many subjects were discussed and the meeting ran over the alloted two hours. Hank Hall conducted a good meeting which was sponsored by the Chamber of Commerce. The attendance included at least 20 voters which I understand was at least four times the turnout at Gibsons. And you may have picked up on at least one subject and whipped it into an issue, even if it had been Burnell Gordons demand for enforcement of a bylaw to prevent littering of the streets and spitting on the sidewalks under a health and welfare act. Give 'em hell, Burnell!

The sidewalks on Cowrie Street were a sore point, due to the poles which fill most of the space. We did learn that they were put in by the highways department and that the poles will disappear when the wires go underground. I may have gained the six votes I needed to win a seat on council by promoting sidewalks on Ocean Avenue, Dolphin, Trail and Wharf, so the old folks and school kids could walk in comfort and safety on their way to shopping, mail and school. But as the old saying goes, "Too soon oldt; too late shmart"!

There were some minor disagreements among the candidates but none of them real issue material. Joyce Kolibas gained some votes by her pure honesty when she did not have an answer to some questions and for past performance. Larry McDonald's financial background worked well for him, and Norm Watson gave us the benefit of his past experience on council and the regional board.

In my own case, a lot more homework on issues within the village boundaries and past council performance would probably have gained me the seven votes I needed to earn a seat on council, but I will have a year to learn the ropes before the next election, and God willing, have another shot at a new career in politics.

And though I do not appreciate your editorial, I do apreciate the questionnaire and the coverage you gave it. The format was good and in my case, allowed me to get across to the public, some of the things I am interested in for our village and the Sunshine Coast, and for this I thank you!

Numbing November

Numbing November. The month to remember. Mars on the rise. Wet green firewood along with special sales on gruel for the HO HO HO and beneficial finance that is happily ahead for this month.

Much as I hate to take issue with our own philosophical poet, little Ned Schwartz, let him consider what those "No longer blushing brides, in their almost best dresses, clutching their afternoon watercolours" could be doing with their time. They could be rolling and grappling with the plumber on a hearth rug. They might remain slack-jawed and glued to four hours of daily TV Soap Serials. They could even creep into closet and sneak-read old Ladies Home Journals . . . With all the terrible world problems we have; our rotten egg board, the price of rubber bread rising, street pot holes so enormous as to require new ferry services . . . I feel that Ned can just hope those nice ladies will keep right on painting their charming little watercolours and more power to them.

While castigating columnists calumnies, in the Jock News-sheet to the south of us there is one George Matthews whose penetrating persiflage has come out against sex, power, and the world's two oldest professions. I wish he would turn his vast, in depth editorial powers to more positive social reform. Let him ponder the heartbreak of terminal acne or consider the plight of that poor man in Gibsons who had a heart at [illegible] logging [illegible] Health Food Store.

George, please, allow the tired judges to continue their pursuit of the exhausted soiled doves. After all everyone has to make a living and those ladies don't get unemployment insurance or Canada Pension Plan or anything.

Without their judges they would be out on the street. — Marcia Poultice.

WAGONLOAD OF YOUNG people on the Boulevard at Sechelt in 1913. Building in background was Bert Whitaker's second store, converted into Sechelt's first non-Indian school in 1912 and into the first telegraph office in 1913. Ada Cook (Mrs. Dawe) holding reins and Eric Carlson (teamster to Bert Whitaker) standing behind her. The others were houseguests from Vancouver visiting the Cook home.

Photo dates from about 1912-1913 and is used by courtesy of Mrs. Robert Delong, who as Winnie Morgan came to live in Sechelt in 1910 and was several times a guest of Mrs. Carlson.

What's in a name?

By HELEN DAWE

During the decade 1904 to 1914 the Carlson family gave its name to no less than three geographic features on the Sechelt Peninsula: Carlson Creek flows from Carlson Lake east into Sechelt Inlet, south of Piper Point. Carlson Point lies on the west side of Sechelt Inlet across the salt chuck from Gray Creek and Four Mile Point. The official Gazetteer of B.C. locates these places at 49 degrees N., 123 degrees W.

Members of the family were known by two different surnames, Carlson and Hermanson. The father of the household, Herman Carlson, was born in Sweden about 1845. He was a farmer by occupation and a member of the Lutheran church. In accordance with the ancient Swedish custom his two eldest sons formed their father's forename and thus were known as Ellis and Ivar Hermanson.

However, the younger sons of Herman and Otilia N. Carlson adopted the new world form of nomenclature and were known as Eric, Gust and Axel Carlson. The daughters of the house did not become residents of Sechelt and apparently lived in the United States.

The first members of the family to come to the peninsula were Ellis and Ivar Hermanson, both of whom were master carpenters and also boat builders. Their names appeared originally in the Sechelt directory in 1904, at which time Bert Whitaker had several building projects in hand. He held the contract to erect the first Indian Residential School, a wooden building which opened in the summer of 1904. In 1905-1906 he put up his third store and post office on the Trail Bay waterfront, and at the same time his father, Alfred Whitaker, was building a home on the Boulevard where it meets the east side of Trail Ave. All those structures — school, store and house — were three storeys high.

Alfred Whitaker's youngest son, Ronald Francis, died in Sechelt in 1971. He described to me in detail the building of his father's beautiful residence "Beach House", later converted into "Sechelt Inn". Ron said in part: "The construction work was done by Ellis Hermanson, who was a wonderful carpenter and put up most of Bert's buildings. He later showed me how to build my own cottage, located just west of where Parker's Hardware is now on Cowrie St."

Ron's cottage still stands at No. [illegible] brother's widow, Mae J. Whitaker, and it now houses Bullwinkle Glassworks and Pentangle Plants.

Although there is no proof, it would seem highly likely that Ellis Hermanson constructed Whitaker House, which at time of writing still stands on the S.E. corner of Inlet and Cowrie. This palpable reminder of the village's early history was ready for occupancy by the summer of 1907. It seemed to receive the kiss of death at a meeting of Sechelt Municipal Council on November 15, 1978.

There is no doubt whatever that Ellis Hermanson supervised construction of the tall and graceful Sechelt Indian Church, Our Lady of Lourdes, erected in 1906-1907 and destroyed by fire in October 1971. Clarence Joe, the historian of his people, used to write a newspaper column. In 1950 he published the following:

"After long discussion on the new church, a white man, Mr. Ellis, was hired to run the building. The braves went out to their hand logging camps in order to raise money to build the church. Younger members of the tribe were ordered by the chiefs to help the carpenter boss." Mr. Ellis was of course Ellis Hermanson.

Earle Gray, son on Mary Gray of West Sechelt, published an article about the church in a 1949 issue of the Vancouver Province. He wrote that it was erected "under the direction of three Swedish carpenters". Perhaps Ivar Hermanson was one of the trio.

Harry Roberts, now in his 90's, worked for Bert Whitaker at Sechelt during the approximate period 1902-1904. In his book "The Trail of Chack Chack" he mentioned the Hermanson brothers and wrote that "the older one was a fine master carpenter and he and I were good friends". He also wrote that the two were the sons of the first manual training teacher of Finland when the subject was introduced there". This story seems inaccurate and the family was definitely Swedish. Perhaps Mr. Roberts confused Herman Carlson with some member of the Finnish community which settled at Gibsons around 1905.

In August 1906 Ellis Hermanson seems to have taken a little vacation, perhaps a camping trip, I surmise this from his account in the journal of Whitaker's general store in that month, which shows the purchase of one cod line (50cents), one billy (20 cents), one pail (75 cents), one frypan (60 cents), tobacco ($4.04) and rowlocks ($2.50).

Arnold McQuarrie came to Sechelt as a schoolboy in 1912 but about 1918 moved to Powell River, where he still resides. He told me that his father had a boat built for him at the works of "Ellis Hermanson and Son", located near Bert Whitaker's old windmill and pumphouse. The mill, which [illegible] farm, [illegible] located about where the Chuck Block stands today, on Cowrie west of the lane behind the Bank of Montreal. Half a century later Norman Burley tapped the same water source to serve the laundromat he operated nearby.

Ellis Hermanson was the only one of the brothers who had a wife and family living in Sechelt.

Lost and found

Editor, The Times:

Does anyone know a little girl whose name may be Sherry and who has a friend Tyler? She turned in a necklace which she had found on the floor at the Eastern Star Bazaar at Roberts Creek and waited patiently for half an hour when it was claimed after a second announcement. I was so busy that I did not thank her adequately and should like to do so.

Too often we read of the bad things our young people have done and too seldom do we take the time to compliment the ones who deserve our commendation. They may come to think it doesn't matter if they are honest and considerate. I'm sure the lady who had her necklace turned in will feel as I do.

Thanks to Sherry and all those, young or not so young, who realize that it can mean so much to have lost articles returned. They are often irreplaceable or have a very sentimental value.

Come to a birthday party

Editor, The Times:

May I take advantage of your kindness to extend to all the people of the Sunshine Coast an invitation to a birthday party? It will be held in celebration of the birth of Jesus the King of Kings, the source of all our joy at this time of year.

There will be two parts to this celebration — (not at 7:30 as previously announced), and the second at Bethel Baptist Church, Sechelt on December 17, also at 8 p.m.

We shall sing at the top of our voices the Christmas hymns and carols led by the Sunshine Choristers, our very own community choir, and there will be coffee following.

Let us rejoice together.

Thank-you once again.

Small talk

Keeping the spirit

By Ned Schwartz

Rita Sober brought by a yellow sucker for me this week. It's supposed to be lemon flavoured I think, but you know they just don't make suckers like they used to.

That's kind of how life is, isn't it? You ask for a box of chocolate creams and you get a lemon sucker. I don't think she likes my poems.

In the anti-perspirant news this week comes the annoucement that the joint use committee of the regional district and school district has recommended that $70,000 go towards expansion of the Roberts Creek Elementary School gym under next year's budget.

The idea is that this could be the first installment on a combination gym and new community hall with Roberts Creek folks picking up the balance of the cost through some mix of grants and taxes.

A larger community hall would be a great relief for the sweating masses that regularly pack the present small and poorly ventilated hall for the Creek's popular boogies . . . excuse me; I notice Annie Dempster says we're supposed to call them "shuffles" now. (I guess we're all getting older.)

After waiting for so long and depending so much on the dicey recreation referendum to provide money for a new hall, the joint use committee recommendation is an exciting breakthrough.

The shufflers, of course, wouldn't be the only or even the main beneficiaries of the scheme.

Bingo players who feel restricted to 15 or 20 cards could expand to 30 or 40. And with better parking arrangements, they wouldn't have to dodge Hall Road traffic while lugging their winings back to the car.

And what a great break for the kids to have a full size gym. And maybe there could finally be a proper stage. And maybe . . . well, who knows?

This is probably running ahead of the game. After all, $70,000 won't do the job — although nobody seems to have a good estimate yet on exactly how much it would take.

There are other problems too. Some people in Roberts Creek are pretty firmly committed to having any new community hall in Cliff Gilker Park and don't like the restrictions that would attach to sharing the facility with the school.

What's going to happen now is that there's [illegible] one heck of a debate as people in the Creek try to reach a consensus on where this new building ought to be and just exactly what it ought to be. (There are also people who make a distinction between a "community hall" and a "community centre.")

This debate has mostly been submerged for the past year or two because people know it's going to be troublesome and because it has been more important to build community support around the general idea rather than argue about how to spend money nobody had yet.

But now the debate is going to start, and I don't mind telling you it has me worried. I spent all day Thursday puttering around the pumpkin patch, picking out stones that Old Man Winter's pushing up out of the ground, and just cogitating on this whole matter.

The think that kept coming into my head is that maybe we shouldn't take this money. There's plent of worse things than being poor, you know.

It seems like in the last year or so, people around here have been treating each other like we were something special. If you had to put a name on it, maybe we'd just call if the Spirit of Roberts Creek Daze.

Well, I kind of hunkered down and took a big handful of dirt and tried to figure out what's important in all this. And it wasn't really too hard to do. If there's a choice to be made, I'd rather have the Spirit of Roberts Creek Daze than the fanciest darned community hall anybody could dream up. And that's a fact.

So when people get to discussing all this I just hope they remember there's no building in the world that's more important than what we've got right now.

Naturally enough this brings to mind another poem. It's a little bit silly, but it has to do with the serious matter of losing something important. I hope Rita Sober likes it better than last week's poem. Anyway, it's pretty short.

Well, she tickled my string, gumlovied the crackers out of my sour.
And who was I not to laugh?
Did I laugh? I'll tell you I did.
I tore the turnips off the chimney.
I flushed the maypole down the goldfish bowl.
Gosh, but it was happy
in the snuggle kissy stuff.
Before the avocado days turned up meatloaf.

The last thing I've got to do this week is give the box of chocolate creams award to Robyn Addison.

Maybe some people won't agree with that. She's the regional district planner who announced her resignation last week, and of course one of the things planners are required to do is spend a lot of their time getting crosswise with people.

Well, Robyn's done that now and again. But I [illegible] fa[illegible] near as I could tell she was usually right too. She's been probably the most influential person on the peninsula during her stay here, and I think she's leaving the place just a little better than she found it. She's also a nice person and a passable volleyball player.

Ned Schwartz, a pumpkin farmer, is 4¼ inches tall and lives in Roberts Creek.

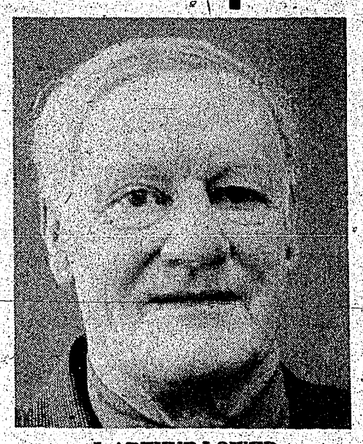
West Sechelt resident publishes book

The University of British Columbia Press has just published Ocean of Destiny, A Concise History of the North Pacific by J. Arthur Lower, a part-time resident of West Sechelt.

Lower and his wife Thelma have been holidaying on the Sunshine Coast for over 30 years and about 15 years ago they made their permanent summer residence at West Sechelt. Although Lower is an ardent sports fisherman enjoying to the full his salmon trolling off the Trail Islands, it is necessary that he still spends time researching Canadian history in libraries, archives and industries.

Canadian born, Lower is one of Canada's most-read historians. His book, An Outline History of Canada has passed the best-seller figure of 50,000. Two years ago he published Canada on the Pacific Rim.

Any students who have attended Grades 10 or 11 in B.C. schools during the last 10 years will be familiar with A Nation Developing. In addition, he has written numerous articles for historical magazines and was co-founder and contributor to McClelland and Stewart's Curriculum Resource Book Series, which is authorized in many schools throughout Canada.



J. ARTHUR LOWER
... wrote Ocean of Destiny

Lower, of Scottish and English parentage, moved with his family across Canada living in Montreal, Winnipeg, Cranbrook and New Westminster, where he was a teacher for many years before becoming vice-principal of the University Hill Secondary School in Vancouver. Later he became an administrator in the Vancouver school system and presently is a relief administrator at Langara College.

Outside of education, Lower has been an active community member. He has been a past-president of the Vancouver Historical Society, a provincial co-ordinator for UNICEF Christmas cards and a national co-ordinator for Interchange of Canadian Studies. In 1967 he received the Canadian Centennial Award for Community service.

Lower's writings cover a wide range of history from selections of world documents to a North American comparison of Canadian and United States governments to a panoramic overview of Canada's history. His first interests, however, are to British Columbia.

He feels strongly that most Canadians, especially those east of the Manitoba border, do not realize that Canada is a three-ocean nation, facing the Atlantic, Arctic and Pacific. In his wide reading of British Columbia's history he has been impressed by the relationships of western Canada with other countries bordering in the Pacific. Ancient contacts between the North West Coast and Asians go back to prehistoric times. Modern contacts began over two centuries ago.

Today the North Pacific Ocean is encircled by seven nations and four of them are among the most influential in today's world of affairs.

According to Lower, Canadians, whether they be from east or the west must recognize that Canada's future will depend on the development of its relationships with other nations of the North Pacific.

Panel coordinator was student Karl Johnston. Jim Douglas was technical coordinator of the student video production.

Students passed out questionnaires at the school gym door asking the 100 or more people who attended the several displays two questions about their own garbage.

Would you separate recoverable waste, tins, paper and glass before pick-up?

Would you support weekly pick-up so that recoverable waste can be recycled?

Results of the poll will be published in the Times, December 13.

Christmas concert

By Annie Dempster, 885-3326

The annual Christmas concert of Roberts Creek Elementary will take place on Wednesday afternoon, December 13, and Thursday evening, December 14, at the school. Wednesday's performance will be a dress rehearsal and will allow for the students to see the concert, but the public is invited to attend if they wish. Thursday evening's performance will be for the public.

Grade Three teacher Roy Robinson once again undertook the tremendous responsibility of producing this year's concert. "Once Upon A Christmas" is the title of the play. There will be carolling after the production. The concert this year sounds like it will be better than ever. Hope to see a full house as usual, as the kids do love playing to an audience.

SPIRIT OF FRIENDSHIP

Linda Taylor from Metcalfe Road wishes to thank Santa and his elves or whoever the good samaritan was that delivered a load of nice, dry alder to her door and covered it in plastic to keep it dry. The person or persons that so unselfishly gave of their time and sweat certainly knows the true meaning of friendship and neighborliness. Linda and her boys were really touched by this totally unselfish act. She could not express enough gratitude.

WELCOME NORDSTROMS

The people of Henderson Road would like to welcome Bert and Margaretta Nordstrom to the neighborhood. Bert and Marg have been regular visitors to the Creek for several years and have just completed building their home on Henderson. They fell so much in love with the Creek that they decided to move over before Bert retires, so it means Bert will have to commute to Vancouver all the time. It will be great having you for neighbors, folks. Best of luck in your new home.

BIRTHDAY GREETINGS

Marlene Longman will celebrate her 30th? birthday on Thursday, December 7. Very best wishes, Marlene. Really it's not so bad; it becomes easier to accept as time goes by.

TURKEY BINGO

Elphinstone Recreation will be having their turkey bingos Tuesday, December 12, and Tuesday, December 19, at the community hall.

FRANCES AND CLIFF Southwood were married after a whirlwind courtship 50 years ago! The still-happy couple joined family and friends Saturday night at the Halfmoon Bay Inn to celebrate the momentous occasion.

Southwoods celebrate their 50th anniversary

On Saturday, December 2, Cliff and Frances Southwood celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary with a party attended by more than 40 guests. At the Halfmoon Inn, with John Hamilton as Master of Ceremonies, a delicious smorgasbord supper was served, followed by toasts to a remarkable couple, who had proved themselves as worthy pioneers in the tough Chilcotin country, and who, in their five years on the Redrooffs Road had earned the respect and friendship of their neighbours.

Following the supper, all the guests were invited to the Frank Jorgensen home, where the party continued far into the night with music and dancing. Cliff played the organ and showed some slides of Puntzi Lake where he and Frances had lived for 20 years.

Cliff was born in Abergavenny, Wales, in 1903 and after serving with the Royal Navy, he came to Canada in 1924. Frances was born in Colfax, Washington and moved with her family to Alberta when she was eight years old.

By 1928 when their paths were to cross, Cliff had taken up a half section of land 25 miles west of Sunnynook, Alberta. He drove a team into Sunnynook one day with a load of wheat and went to the hotel for a meal. Frances was waiting at table and, since Cliff is a man who never lets the grass grow under his feet, he invited her to the Saturday night dance, which was the start of a whirlwind courtship. Six weeks later they were married.

By the following year, wheat prices had dropped and the depression was on its way. Then came the war, and Cliff joined the Royal Canadian Air Force, serving five years as senior armament instructor with Pacific Command, specializing in bombing. Meanwhile Frances worked as head cook at the sergeants' mess at De Winton, south of Calgary.

At the end of the war, Cliff opened a gun shop in New Westminster which proved very successful, but by 1951, they were both anxious to get back to the land. Heading north to the Chilcotin country, they settled at Puntzi Lake, 125 miles west of Williams Lake, where they developed a ranch and built a fishing and hunting lodge. It was hard life and the winters were bitterly cold, but one of the greatest hardships was the isolation. They had no hydro, but Cliff, a practical, resourceful man, put in his own power plant. He traded in furs, mainly lynx, put up ice in the winter time and by means of a sprinkling system which he devised, he drew wonderful crops of potatoes in an area where he had been assured it was impossible to grow potatoes. He learned the Chilcotin language and got along well with the Indians. With the help of 32 Indians, he built five and a half miles of log fence in 90 days which he claims be some sort of a record. Meanwhile, Frances who had grown up on a farm, did her share of the chores and broke saddle horses. She broke her last saddle horse in 1968 when she was 59-years-old.

In 1973, the Southwoods decided it was time to retire. They browsed around the coast looking for a place to settle and it was quite by chance that they discovered the spot which is now their home. Work was being done on the highway so traffic was diverted to the Redrooffs Road. In following the diversion, the Southwoods discovered Southwood Road. When they found Frances Avenue nearby and learned that there was an excellent lot for sale right at the junction of Southwood and the Redrooffs Road, they were convinced that they need look no further. During the past five years they have built a comfortable home, and made a wide circle of friends. Still an enthusiastic gardener, Cliff has won a reputation for growing the best crops of corn in the district.

The Southwoods have two daughters and three grandchildren. Their daughters, Mildred Fadenrecht and Yvonne Oster are both psychiatric nurses. Yvonne put herself through university and has a B.A. from UBC. Mildred and her husband Don are now operating the Puntzi Lake Lodge.

Cliff's hobbies are chess and organ music. He has a Wurlitzer organ which he spends many enjoyable hours playing. He studied music while a boy in Wales and became organist of the Baptist Church in Abergavenny. While he was in the Royal Navy, he played the organ at Gibraltar Cathedral. Since coming to Canada he has played organs at the old Colonial Theatre in Vancouver and in Christchurch Cathedral, Calgary.

Some of the guests at last Saturday's celebration had first met the Southwoods when they visited the Puntzi Lake lodge for hunting and fishing holidays. Two couples who were sufficiently inspired by the pioneering to want to follow in the Southwoods' footsteps are pulling up their roots and heading north to settle at Puntzi Lake. They are Joe and Anne Heynens of Richmond and Chuck and Feetie Carrick of Kent, Washington. Other out-of-town guests present at the party were the Southwoods' daughters, Mildred Fadenrecht of Puntzi Lake with husband Don and Yvonne Oster of Surrey, Cecil and Virginia Lacey of Kent, Washington, Smitty and Freda Smith from Montesano, Washington and Ken and Olive Montgomery from New Westminster. — Mary Tinkley.

Seniors 69 end year with parties

By ROBERT FOXALL

Your reporter made a terrible mistake last week and used the wrong date for the bus trip to Vancouver. The correct date is December 7.

I have been informed by reliable authorities that all tickets for our Christmas Dinner have been sold. Sounds like we should have a good time that day, December 14 at noon.

It is requested by Jean Sherlock that you book your tickets for the New Year's Eve party not later than December 14. This so that she may have plenty of time to lay in supplies before stocks are depleted by holiday crowds.

Another date to remember is the monthly general meeting to be held December 21. Be sure to turn out if only to be able to wish your fellow members a "Very Merry Christmas".

Salmonid Enhancement Update'78

Two years ago, members of the Salmonid Enhancement Program of the Federal Department of Fisheries and Oceans, visited your community to hear your concerns and your opinions on the proposed Federal/Provincial Salmonid Enhancement Program.

In response to your request that they return to report on the hearings of '76, the Salmonid Enhancement team is coming back to outline to you what it has, and has not, done regarding your concerns. We also want more input. What do you want Salmonid Enhancement to do now? How? When? Where? Why?

The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. and is divided into two parts:

PART 1. A PROGRESS REPORT
What has been done as a result of the 1976 meeting?

PART 2. WHAT'S NEXT?
Where should Salmonid Enhancement go from here?

Each person or organization will have 10 minutes in which to present a written or oral brief outlining their concerns and/or recommendations. Longer written submissions will be accepted up to January 12, 1979 and may be mailed to:

Halfmoon Bay happenings

Tribute to Larry

By Mary Tinkley, 885-9479

Larry McAllister, who is presumed drowned after falling overboard from the Fishboat "Star Pacific" on the night of November 25, had been associated with Halfmoon Bay for more than 20 years. He had been a frequent visitor at the homes of his aunt, Mildred Swain and of his grandfather, the late Milford McAllister who died in 1975 in his 99th year.

A kind and thoughtful person, Larry was a beloved member of the McAllister family and, following the family tradition, he became a fisherman like his father and grandfather before him. He had been living in North Vancouver, but recently decided to move to Sechelt. He had rented a house on Norvan Road and had moved his furniture there, but the family had not yet moved in. He had had a successful season of fishing and he and his brother Greg were still fishing on the "Star Pacific". In fact, the future looked bright and encouraging, when tragedy struck.

Left to mourn his loss are his wife Audrey, 8-year old daughter, Cheryl, his parents, Ernest and Virginia McAllister of Sechelt, two sisters, Dixie and Carol Dubois, a brother Gregory, his aunt Mildred Swain and his uncle, Fred McAllister of North Vancouver.

An old school friend of Larry's, the Rev. Dennis Morgan, was in Sechelt to conduct a memorial service at St. Hilda's Church on December 2.

COFFEE PARTY

The regular monthly meeting of the Halfmoon Bay Recreation Commission will be held on Monday, December 11 at 7:30 p.m. and will take the form of a coffee party at the Welcome Beach Hall. New parents to the area are particularly urged to come along and meet their neighbours. Among the matters to be discussed will be the Christmas party for children up to the age of 12 planned for December 17. Parents who have not yet registered their children for the party will have an oportunity of doing so on this occasion.

GAS STATION FOR THE BAY

"Ask and it shall be given unto you, Mary Tinkley", was the greeting which your correspondent received from Joan Clarkson last weekend. She was referring to a meeting concerning a Settlement Plan for Area "B" when your correspondent pointed out the need for a gas station in Halfmoon Bay. Joan and Ken Clarkson read the report and decided to do something about it. They have installed gas pumps and Esso gas should be available at the Halfmoon Inn any day now. Ken is also planning to have a tow-truck available for service shortly.

Recent guests at the Jack Mercer home at Secret Cove were two old friends Dorothy and Bob Salter of Shuswap. The two families met when they were neighbours in Victoria 30 years ago and as the two women were both having their first babies, they found much in common. Now, 30 years after, they still had plenty to talk about and much of it was shop talk, for they are all in the marina business. While Jack and Jean run the Buccaneer Marina, the Salters are operating the Wild Rose Marina at Shuswap.

New residents of Halfmoon Bay are Ken Clarkson's sister, June Fletcher and husband Bob. Bob who recently completed 25 years' service in the Royal Canadian Air Force, saw six months' service in Cyprus and was later stationed at Calgary. They are renting one of the Clarkson houses and Bob plans to set up a bookkeeping service.

Sechelt notes

Crowds at fair

by Peggy Connor, 885-9347

All grades from kindergarten to Grade 7 participated to make Sechelt Elementary School's Craft Fair, held Friday, December 1, an outstanding success.

Parents showed up in great numbers, the flow of people like the midway at the PNE and community spirit prevailed.

Paintings, ceramic dishes and jewelry, macrame, rocking chairs made from clothes pins, candles of great variety, place mats, plants, decorative vases, pencil holders, Christmas decorations and many more attractive items, were made by the students, and up for sale.

The cake decorating contest showed the ingenuity and artistic talent of the 175 taking part.

Some of the best cakes went as prizes to the cake walkers. This event is like musical chairs, only you step on numbered papers, then a number is drawn and if you are standing on the right number you win a cake.

The gymnasium was full of fun and games, target balloons, putting, bowling, treasure trails, fish pond, basketball throw, bean bag throw and all kinds of fun things to do.

There was a hot dog stand and a tearoom with crumpets. A beautiful gingerbread house was raffled, made and donated by Mrs. Maynard. The winner was Mrs. Shirley Peters.

The work was done by the students aided knowledge-wise by the teachers and some materials from the parents.

The donations from the merchants were overwhelming, the only ones not donating were the people who did not have the authority to do so. The donations were for the bingo prizes which were excellent, I can testify to that, I won three!

Launching out on the craft fair, the staff had no idea it would be the tremendous success it was. Tickets were sold to be exchanged for goods. They would have done better if they had realized the number of people coming. Another year they will be prepared for larger crowds.

It looks like they made over $2,000 and this will be used totally for the student activities — enlarged skating program, field trips, many extras not provided in the school budget yet necessary to make well-rounded scholars.

We have some great kind of people teaching at our elementary school to put such enthusiasm into a project like this! They inspired the students, the parents, involved the merchants and all the community. Last night's craft fair did far more than raise money, it raised hopes of a greater pulling together for a fantastic community.

ART SHOW

The Sechelt Sketch Club, operating under the auspices of the Coast Art Society, held an art show at St. Hilda's Hall in Sechelt, November 25.

Many people took advantage of the opportunity to view the latest works of local artists. The pleasure was in the eyes of the viewers as the quality of paintings was excellent.

To mention a few, the totem poles and local scenes of Fran Ovens, the impressive trees of Barbara Gough and Molly Almond, Olla Arnold's flowers had personality, Helen McConachie and Trudy Small's beautiful colors in their abstracts and the people scenes by Kay Haugh were very interesting.

The enjoyment derived from a show as this, is in recognizing the artist by the painting. Past observation of the different artists works on view at Whitaker House helped.

The Murrays, Charles and Alice stand out in this regard, as do S. Boutilier, Irene Crowell, Doris Crowston, Gertu Viitanen, Kay Wells, Kay Cole, Jo Thompson Warne, Rita Sober, Simi Vertanen, Nell Whaites, I. Bruce and Jean Pylot. In fact all the artists have their own manner of painting. Included in this group is Viv Chamerlain who is currently having her own show in Nelson.

The idea of the show was to inform the public as to the sort of work being done by local artists and thus encourage others to join their group. All persons are welcome to join the Sketch club and the Coast Art Society.

A few new members works were included in this past show.

All paintings represented new works, four were sold. Total realized from the show was $133 and this has been handed over to the Building Committee Fund, Post Office Box 1753, Sechelt, B.C. VON 3A0.

Fran Ovens with the help of the members of the sketch club provided an interesting afternoon, leaving us looking forward to more of the same. Get our your paints.

THREE BIRTHDAYS CELEBRATED

The party was at the Extended Care Lounge of St. Mary's Hospital and the birthday celebrants were three patients, Alice Oswald, Alberta Soaholm and Adolph Swanson.

Happy to be hosting, were the Halfmoon Bay Auxiliary to St. Mary's Hospital. Alice Halford, Evelyn Shellshear, Mary Murray, Thelma MacDonald, Karen Stelk and son Scott, Mary Mcdonald and May Holgate attended.

It was a luncheon party followed by "Bingo" with everyone getting a prize. A pleasant time for all was had on Nov. 17.

LEGION LADIES

The ladies of the No. 140 Branch of the Legion held a successful bazaar and tea [illegible] well attending. The line up was long for tea cup reader Madame Eva Lyons, who sees many things in the tea cups.

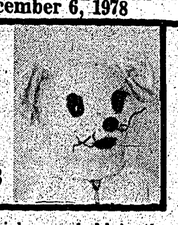
Pender Harbour Nibbles...

Nude Santa?

By Queen Rat, 883-2308



Santa Claus has lost two Christmas costumes and he is going to need them very soon for some parties he is going to in various parts of the Harbour. If anyone has any information on where they are, please contact Ruth Kobus, 883-9603. There is no Reward — only Thanks. That's what Christmas is all about, making others happy.

EGMONT BAZAAR

The Egmont Community Club are having a bazaar Saturday, December 9 at 2 p.m. featuring homebaking, arts and crafts and their numerous raffles — plus refreshments. There is also a new heating system in the hall.

ROYAL CANADIAN LEGION BR. 112

There will be a Turkey Shoot at the Legion Saturday, December 9 starting at 1 p.m. Don't bring your rifles, bring your darts. For those who have no darts, some are available at the bar.

PENDER HARBOUR COMMUNITY CLUB

Many thanks to everyone who helped with the Fishermen's Homecoming Smorgasbord and Dance and also to all those who were so generous in their donations of food. This message is from President Penson and the Community Club executive. The Thursday night Bingo still has the Reno trip for two and it will be 56 calls next week.

PENDER HARBOUR AND DISTRICT WILDLIFE SOCIETY

The PH & District Wildlife Society is off to a good start with new members joining every day. President Wilf Harper chaired the last meeting which was held in the Madeira Park School library on November 26 at 2 p.m. A very interesting film on ducks was shown, also slides of UBC students in charge of a salmon enhancement program very similar to the one starting in our area. The work on Anderson Creek project is progressing. This society is not only for adults but for youngsters, also it is educational and children are encouraged to join. Memberships are $10 for a family and $7.50 single. Wendy Skapski is in charge of this and anyone wishing to join should contact her. The next general meeting will be on January 22 at the Madeira Park Elementary School library at 7:30 p.m. See you there.

CHURCH LADIES GROUP

The Church Ladies Group wish to thank all those who responded to their bake sale, those who did baking and turned around and bought, also. Close to $300 was realized. The cement for the church has been poured and work has commenced.

PENDER HARBOUR SENIOR CITIZENS' ASSOCIATION BR. 80

Considering the glacial mood of the night, a surprising number of members and guests attended the Annual Meeting of the PH Senior Citizens Br. 80. Friends were happy to welcome home Jean Rousseau after her stay in the Interior. Mrs. Evelyn Olson conducted the installation ceremony for the new executive officers and presented the gavel to Jack Heidema, president-elect for the coming year.

Gladys Brown announced that the Christmas Party will be held on December 18 in the Madeira Park Community Hall. Les Fowler and his choir have generously offered to sing for the party. Ticket arrangements can be made by members and their friends by contacting Nell Lillington, 883-2352 between now and December 8. Price this year is $6. Each guest is requested to bring a small wrapped gift for the tree. Peg Riley who is in charge of decorating the hall, will need energetic helpers to work on the afternoon of December 18. Volunteers please phone 883-2230. After the business meeting, a 90-minute feature film "Wilderness Family" was shown, a movie for nature enthusiasts.

MASSED BAND CONCERT

On the evening of December 11 at 7:30 there will be a massed Band Concert. This is the first time for the Sunshine Coast, consisting of 70 people. Our own community band, Elphinstone High School Band, and Chatelech Jr. High School Board will play separately and then together. Bill Rayment will direct both the Community Band and Elphinstone in a Christmas Concert. Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for senior citizens and children. Come out and enjoy a musical evening. The event will be held at Pender Harbour Secondary School.

Book Look

By MURRIE REDMAN

MINING by G.W. Taylor, BIG TIMBER, BIG MEN by Carol J. Lind, RANCHING by Ed Gould, TRUCKING by Andy Craig. All published by Hancock House and indexed.

These large, profusely illustrated volumes will make welcome additions to the book shelves of people interested in the industries. Libraries, also, could find them invaluable as references because of their indexing and glossaries.

Most of the authors have had experience in the fields they write about. They treat their subjects historically and offer the reader plenty of illustrations. I especially enjoyed TRUCKING by Andy Craig, first, because the man is a trucker himself and second, because he writes in an enjoyable, casual style that makes for easy reading.

Craig admits that he is not an academic. His education began and ended in a one room school house, but his training as a trucker was accomplished on the road.

For those of you old enough to remember the Fraser Canyon highway in the days before paving, this book will recall many scary moments when the narrow lanes and slides made the trip a death-defying feat. Craig remembers, too, when trucks had to dodge horse drawn wagons or help pull out a buddy who was stranded in the gumbo or deep snow. He relates the sagas of various companies that plied the highways since 1900. And not forgotten are the trucks of today, the huge steel monsters that loom up on us in all their deisel glory.

Mining began with the great gold finds and continues with its economic problems today. G.W. Taylor, associated with mining for 47 years, presents a more serious history of the industry. He presses the fact that, in his opinion, "mineral discoveries are made by inspired, intelligent, determined people, not by the bureaucratic . . . organizations." He warns that the private sector cannot be counted on to take up the entire burden of mineral exploration without government assistance. He suggests that there should be action to further mining exploration and thus employment, with legislation possibly in the form of tax breaks.

Mining has come up to the surface for the most part, and the author shows modern mechanized mining techniques at the end of the book. Having visited a molybdenum operation and seen its well provided town in the heart of a wilderness area, I do believe mining can be safe and economic. Steps have been taken to reforest lands that are turned up by the mining process and workers are ensuring healthier practises in the industry.

"The Worthless Land" was what they called the range, says Ed Gould. How men and women suffered many hardships to built the cattle industry is what his book, RANCHING, is all about. He relates the days of drought, famine, rust and "terrible winter". He encompasses the whole West and not just B.C. in his story of how the real cowboy survived.

BIG TIMBER, BIG MEN is the history of logging in the Northwest. Carol Lind says his book is about "an industry in change". He emphasizes the fact that the emergence of unions was a hard fought battle that paid off for the worker as well as the owner. The "Wobblies" who set up the IWW, for example, shed blood to win their simple demands for clean facilities and decent meals in logging camps. One interesting but violent chapter relates the Centralia Incident in which a man was lynched in the cause. It is a grand and colorful tale about our major local industry.

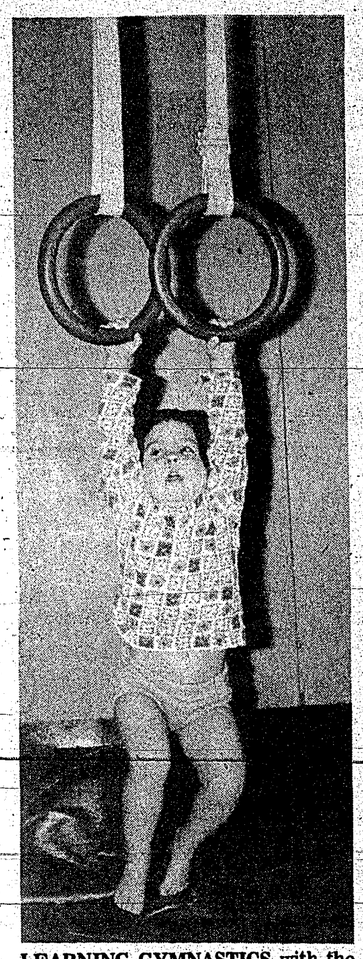
Volunteer helpline

Teens help tots with weekly gym program

This week the focus will be upon some of the projects the Volunteer Bureau is involved with and some of the volunteers who have made these projects successful. It should first be pointed out that the Volunteer Bureau is only one of the services administered by the Sunshine Coast Community Resource Society. The society also sponsors the Homemakers, the Minibus and Senior Services.



LEARNING GYMNASTICS with the help of volunteers Wendi Rottluff, Neil Redshaw, Lynn Strom, Vicki Hawken, Ester Michaud and Kathy McPhee are local tots.

This fall, six teenagers have been volunteering their time to help with a Gym for Tots program. Each Friday they cheerfully moved the mats and heavy equipment from storage to the gym and then back again after the class. The volunteers related so well to the preschoolers. It was a treat to watch the expressions of joy upon the faces of the children and volunteers as they enthusiastically moved around the gym. The teenagers' presence made a big difference to the success of the program.

Volunteers crochet and knit afghans for the Save the Children program. Some of you might have seen the display Laurlee Solli set up at the Elphinstone Forum this past Sunday. Laurlee co-ordinates this program. She arranges for volunteers to unravel old sweaters and then takes this wool to other volunteers who make the afghans. Later, the afghans are sent to Vancouver for distribution to various parts of the world. Most of the blankets from here have been sent to Korea. Have you ever tried crocheting an afghan? One of our volunteers, Marie Firth, has crocheted 15 afghans since she joined the Volunteer Bureau last spring. That's quite an accomplishment.

Volunteer drivers not only make sure that their passengers get to their destination safely but also make sure that the trip is an enjoyable one. Drivers such as Ted Dinsley, Bill Butler, Jack MacLeod, Susan Wiggins, Marie Steel and Virginia McClymount respond on a regular basis to transport people throughout the Sunshine Coast and even occasionally to Vancouver. Spending time with other people in a car can be an enriching experience.

Volunteers are everywhere. These are only a few of the people who are working through the Volunteer Bureau but they are representative of the contribution being made to make this a better community.

ANITA FISHER proudly displays the medal she won in the B.C. Coast Figure Skating Competition recently. Anita, a member of the local figure skating club, came second overall in the B.C. Coast meet.

Work begins on economic study

The Sunshine Coast Economic Adjustment Committee will begin work on an economic base study for the region in December 1978. The study recommendations are to concentrate on improving employment opportunities while maintaining and enhancing social, environmental and economic characteristics of the Sunshine Coast.

The study will include a report on the economic and social factors of special concern to the funding groups sponsoring the study; 1) manpower and employment opportunities, 2) outlook for development of primary and secondary industry, 3) service and recreational industry, 4) role of the Sunshine Coast as a recreation housing and retirement community, 5) the role of committee has representatives from the Village of Gibsons, Village of Sechelt, Gibsons Chamber of Commerce, Sechelt Chamber of Commerce, Sunshine Coast Regional District, Local 1-71 International Woodworkers of America, a secondary industry group and Employment and Immigtation.

Each contributing agency appointed one representative to sit on the Committee. The representatives are: Al Wagner, Chairman; Frank Leitner, Dan Devlin, Hank Hall, John Jorgens, Peter Erington, Brian Stelck, and Howe Thompson. Regional District staff will provide support services and co-ordination.

Bennett to speak at Socred convention

Duncan Sim, president of the MacKenzie constituency of the Social Credit Party, announced that Premier Bill Bennett would attend and be the keynote speaker at the Nomination Convention of the riding to be held on January 21, 1979 at 1:30 p.m. in the Beach Gardens Hotel in Powell River.

A candidate for the upcoming provincial election will be nominated at this convention. The convention will be chaired by Dan Hanuse, Director for Region One of the party, which includes all of Vancouver Island and the MacKenzie constituency.

More than 400 Delegates from the constituency, which ranges from Port Mellon in the South to Ocean Falls and Bella Coola in the North, are expected to be in attendance at the meeting.

Sim said that a new executive had been elected at the recent Annual Meeting and that a revitalization of the Social Credit Party in this constituency is well under way. At present, the MLA for this area is a member of the NDP.

NES news

When we arrived at school on Tuesday we found that it had snowed about an inch, but as usual, the first rain a day later washed it away. It rained a lot this week, but it also snowed, or rather, tried to snow a little.

Monday was a non-instructional day.

We now have another boat to use, loaned to us by MEDUSA, the same people who loaned us the Price. The new boat, the MEDUSA 2, is a 24-foot aluminum herring skiff with twin 35 horse power motors, which makes it the fastest boat we have.

We have also gotten a new plankton net to fish with. It is shaped like an airport windsock, the net made of very fine mesh. The students will probably be looking at plankton under microscopes.

The water problem of last week has been resolved. Mother Nature warmed up the ground a little and now our pipes aren't frozen.

Also last week, the students were given report cards. Most of the marks were pretty good, considering all the extra work we have to do, as well as keep up the academics.

Last, but not least, on Thursday night we had a salmon barbecue and oyster soup. These dishes were very well liked, so much so that a few people went off diets and willpower tests to eat some of this luxurious food. — Mike Frankland, Stephanie Read.

Bread rises

OTTAWA — It has been learned that the retail price of a loaf of bread will jump by at least five cents beginning Jan. 1, because the federal government has decided to scrap a wheat subsidy paid to millers.

Transport Minister Otto Lang, is to introduce legislation in the Commons authorizing an increase in the minimum price paid to wheat farmers to $4 a bushel.

Pessimist Society meeting cancelled

The Pessimists Society wishes to announce the cancellation of its annual meeting which was to have been held December 17 at Elphinstone school in Gibsons.

The executive of the Society has decided it will probably be snowing and the miserable, rotten weather on that evening would prevent members from attending. It would be far wiser to cancel. The meeting will be held in March and this newspaper will carry further news of the society's activities.

Participate in Canada's Employment Tax Credit Program.

The Employment Tax Credit Program was introduced by the Government of Canada to stimulate employment in the private sector.

In essence, we're encouraging you to expand your work force by providing a tax break for your business.

The potential annual tax credit for each new employee is over $3,000. And there is no limit to the number of new employees you can hire.

Now, by using the experience we've gained so far, we've changed the program to make it even more attractive.

Up to 33⅓% more tax credit.
The maximum term for the tax credit has been increased from nine to 12 months for each new employee. That means up to 33⅓% more tax credit.

Greater eligibility.
We have expanded the number and types of businesses eligible to benefit. Now almost every business that's been operating in Canada for a year or more can join in.

Wider choice of new employees.
Now, almost anyone who's unemployed and registered at a Canada Employment Centre for a minimum of two weeks is eligible.

A minimum of red tape.
We've simplified the procedure, so you can do the whole thing, from beginning to end, with just two single-page forms.

For full details on the program, contact any Canada Employment Centre/ Canada Manpower Centre.

Illegal wood cutting could mean $500 fine

Judge J.S.P. Johnson last week cautioned peninsula residents who cut down trees for firewood in the area to get a permit and do it legally or they run the risk of being fined and losing their vehicle, chainsaw and equipment.

He made the comments in imposing a $200 fine against towboat workers Alan Richard Wilson in Sechelt Provincial Court Wednesday. Wilson pleaded guilty to the Forest Act charge of cutting down a tree on crown land and removing the wood.

Maximum fine for the offence is $500 and confiscation of vehicle and equipment.

Wilson's truck and tools were seized by forestry officers but returned to him the same day.

Crown prosecutor Eric Chesterley told the court there have been about 100 cases filed in the past year of people cutting wood on crown land.

Wilson was charged by forestry officers August 31 in a tree farm area two miles north of Highway 101 on the B and K Logging road near Gibsons.

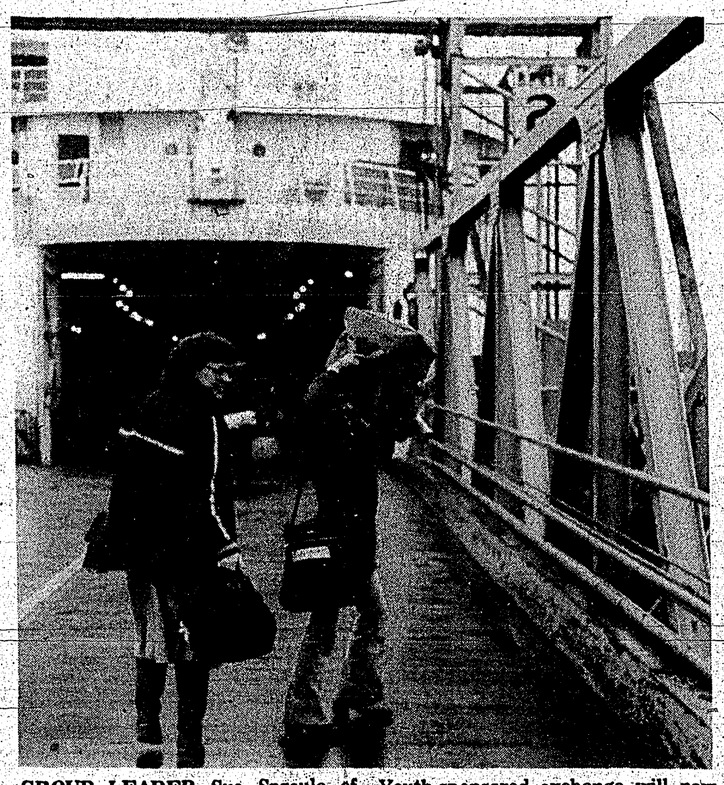
At the same session, Vancouver men Roberto Quibuyen, Listo Elbo, and Pedro Villon Suratos were each fined $25 for taking more than the legal limit of oysters.

The charge was laid October 8 when the three men were stopped in Sechelt and found to have 223 oysters in their car. Legal limit is 15 per person. Maximum fine for the Fisheries Act offence is $1,000.

In other court news, William Wilfred Laking was found guilty of driving with a blood alcohol content over .08.

He was fined $1,800 and put on probation for three years during which time he cannot hold a driver's licence, operate a motor vehicle, or consume alcohol.

Laking was stopped on Highway 101 south of St. Mary's Hospital July 16 after local RCMP received a complaint of a car being driven erratically.



GROUP LEADER Sue Sproule of Montreal and exchange student Ruslan Massaraeng of Indonesia board a B.C. ferry after 10 weeks in the Gibsons area. Fourteen students from several provinces in Indonesia and Canada along with Sproule and Djailani Oesman spent their activity-filled visit working and learning with local merchants. The Canada World Youth-sponsored exchange will now see the Canadians visiting Indonesia for a similar time. While here, the students helped at Gibsons businesses, with senior citizens programs, and at the museum and village offices. The trip is via Vancouver, Banff, Calgary and San Francisco.

Emotional plea nets 100 hours

An emotional plea by defence counsel Griff Layne got the mercy of the provincial court and resulted in a sentence of 100 hours of community service instead of a fine for a local woman last week.

Judge J.S.P. Johnson handed down the unusual retribution Wednesday in finding Monica Lisa John guilty of failing to remain and at the scene of an accident and driving without due care and attention.

The charges were laid after a $2,500 motor vehicle accident June 16 at the Highway 101 intersection with Hydro Road.

Court was told a Datsun pickup driven by James Morris of Madeira Park was hit broadside by a sedan driven by a woman identified as John. Witnesses said the car then backed up and speeded away. Charges were later laid against John.

There were no serious injuries in the mishap.

Layne told Judge Johnson his client was a "victim of circumstance" and described her case as "very distressed" and "pathetic".

He said John was on social assistance and her husband was unemployed.

After the lawyer's petition for leniency, the judge suspended sentence but put the woman on a one-year probation and ordered psychiatric counselling. She is also prohibited from holding a driver's licence or operating a motor vehicle. In addition, she must put up a $100 bond and do 50 hours of community work on each count.

Maximum penalty for leaving the scene is a $500 fine or six months. The other charge has a maximum penalty of six points.

Court briefs name mix-up

Confused identities in Court Briefs on page A-8 of the November 29 edition of this paper have been brought to our attention by court officials.

William E. Ewen is the name that should have been used in connection with a charge of drinking driving after the Garden Bay boating mishap. The name Donald David Richardson was used erroneously though he had been scheduled to appear on similar charges the same day and time.

In the same story, the names of two 18-year-old youths found guilty on separate marijuana-possession charges were transposed. The suspended sentence went to Brian Thomas Beaudoin and the $100 fine went to Pierre Joseph Berdahl.

The Times regrets any inconvenience or embarrassment caused by these misplaced names.

Thieves make off with transmission

Gibsons RCMP report two thefts in the area November 27. At 1 p.m. the theft of a standard transmission was reported from a 1956 Chev panel truck parked near Pratt Road. Later the same day, a residence on Skyline Drive on the bluff reported a break and entry and theft of two small portable radios and a carton of cigarettes.

Sechelt fisherman Lawrence McAllister, 37, is still listed by the Gibsons detachment as missing and presumed drowned.

McAllister apparently fell overboard from the fishing vessel Star Pacific while enroute from Vancouver to Qualicum Beach November 25.

An extensive 15-hour search failed to recover the body.

Salmonid group meets tonight

Members of the Salmonid Enhancement Program of the federal government will be in Sechelt at the Senior Citizens Hall at 7:30 p.m. tonight (December 6) to gain local input into the program.

Each person or organization will have 10 minutes in which to present a written or oral brief outlining their concerns or recommendations.

The meeting was previously scheduled for locations in Earls Cove, but was moved to Sechelt to attract a larger number of interested persons.

The Opportunity of a Lifetime

Everyone is looking for a decent opportunity, and Tempo Products & Construction is offering you just that, a chance to have the home of your choice built to your specifications but at an affordable price. When you contract Tempo Products & Construction to build your home it will be one of quality materials, quality workmanship and quality service to you, the customer.

Of course there are reasons for everything, just as there are reasons for Tempo's low price, so let's examine a couple.

First, we build on the volume basis, so the profit figures per home are substantially lowered, reflected by the low price.

Second, a home can be built in 1 1/2 months with the proper organization and co-ordination combined with accurate & quality workmanship adding up to savings which in turn are passed on to you.

Now, then, what does this low price include?

* A complete, detailed and personalized home planning service.
* Handling of blueprints, permits and inspections.
* Thermal pane windows, complete with wood window returns & all wood trim throughout home.
* 8" ceiling & insulation, & insulated wall pockets.
* 5/8" tongue & groove sub-floor plywood, glued to floor joists & 5/8" roof plywood.
* brick chimney & fireplace
* all exterior sundecks fibreglassed.
* concrete sidewalks and driveways.

As can be seen, nothing in the home is left unfinished, because we don't know how to cut corners. Yet we maintain a low price and a quality [illegible] retirement home, repair job or small renovation, please don't hesitate to call GREG LEMKY at 886-2706.

Remember, don't let this opportunity of a lifetime pass YOU by.

The Garden Corner

Clean up for spring

By Guy Symonds

At this time of the year, November and December, there is little of a practical nature to write about relating either to the vegetable or the flower garden. Everyone seems to agree on one point however, that it is the time to do a "clean-up" job.

That needs little explanation. Every gardener can keep himself busy when the weather allows him to move around outside, making the place look a little less desolate.

In this gardener's opinion, however, it is an excellent time to plan for next year in the vegetable production line, because one of the important procedures is the rotation of crops in their areas of use. This is particularly true of the brassicas which should not use the same soil two years in succession. If there has been any indication of club root in the cabbage, brussell sprouts, kale or other of the cole crops, these must not be planted again in that area. In fact it is wiser to leave them out altogether for several years. This vicious disease responds to no known treatment though heavy liming is said to help. From personal experience this is true only to a very limited extent.

Everyone has or should have a plan of the 1977 garden but in any case can probably remember the locations of the various vegetables very well, without any reminder. So the thing to do is to take that plan and switch things around so that the roots were where the green stuff was. Carrots for instance will do well in ground that was fertilized the previous year and not only do not need but should not have additional feed of a nitrogenous nature.

Another exercise this gardener finds profitable as well as interesting is to go over the successes and failures and plan to correct them. Inevitably he finds in the following season that other mistakes have been made — perfection in the garden as elsewhere is an illusion and, also in the garden as elsewhere, the pleasure must be in the journey as well as in the arrival.

To illustrate, far too many vegetable marrows and zucchini were planted and after exhausting the generosity of friends who took them out of the kindness of their hearts, some had to be consigned to the compost heap. Lettuce, too, were badly handled. The early leaf variety were sown in one of those tapes that have the fertilized incorporated and to this gardener's surprise flourished mightily. But then the cos lettuce, always previously a problem, also did well and to cap it all the buttercrunch plants took off and were above average. All of which, while it calls for gratitude to a bountiful Nature, is a sad commentary on the gardener's intelligence who permitted the situation. It is made even worse by the fact that he knows better! Summer turnips, too, were very successful in the ground. Unfortunately, it was found too late that the lady of the house refused to include them in a menu! They grew to the size of one's head before being cast out! Cauliflower were a bit of a problem. It was expected to harvest creamy white heads but while they started out that way, they turned a pinkish brown as they matured despite the fact that the leaves were bent over to shield them from the hot sun. It did not affect the flavor but certainly indicated that something was wrong. Also they were attacked by small slugs about half an inch long, and that is another problem to solve. The cabbage also suffered from these beasts and a Malathion spray did not have much effect.

The experiment of putting chunks of wet paper undej the tomato plants at least did not do any harm, but it was a good tomato year and certainly the plants that had the benefit of mushroom compost at their feeding place had the best results.

Then again one feels that there is a great deal more to learn about the timing of bedding plants to get green vegetables as late in the summer as possible and this is going to be the subject for study. It would seem that plant suppliers clean up their stocks and make room for other things. Which is of course what they must do to stay in business.

An experiment on a very small scale in over wintering some brassicas is being watched with interest with the idea of getting some early green stuff. Then again if one could find any green peas around it might be fun to experiment with a sowing right now. The garden stores of course do not have any seed and to do this next year will mean saving some of ones own crop for seed.

So this is the time for this kind of planning and thinking, always in the blessed knowledge that while the land shows a relentless face, down where it counts abundant life is waiting for the magic of Spring.

Tasty Tips from Checkerboard Kitchens

Cereal Makes A Delightful Filling For Orange Brunch Cake

Orange Brunch Cake starts out with a standard sweet yeast dough. The really unusual part is the filling—moist and jelly-like with a delightful hint of orange. The unusual ingredient is breakfast cereal—bite-size crispy rice squares, added to give texture, flavor and nutrition. Crush the cereal, blend with sweetened orange juice and cook a few minutes, until very thick.

ORANGE BRUNCH CAKE

2 tablespoons and 2 tablespoons butter or margarine
3/4 cup and 1/4 cup sugar
1/2 cup orange juice
1 tablespoon grated orange peel
3 cups Rice Chex cereal (bite-size crispy rice squares) crushed to 1 cup
1/3 cup chopped pecans
1 package active dry yeast
1/4 cup warm water (105-115°)
1 teaspoon salt
1/2 cup milk, scalded
2 1/2 to 3 cups all-purpose flour, unsifted

Combine 2 tablespoons butter, 3/4 cup sugar, orange juice and peel in saucepan. Heat to boiling. Stir in cereal and nuts. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until very thick (about 3-4 minutes). Let cool. Sprinkle yeast in warm water. Stir to dissolve. Set aside. Combine 2 tablespoons butter, 1/4 cup sugar, salt and milk in large bowl. Add egg and yeast. Mix well. Gradually add enough of the flour to form a stiff dough. Stir vigorously after each addition. Knead 15-20 times on lightly floured board until smooth and no longer sticky, working in some of the remaining flour to make a very stiff dough. Cover with plastic wrap or waxed paper and let rise (on board) 30 minutes.

Roll out on lightly floured board to 15 x 8 inch rectangle. Spread filling lengthwise down center third of dough. Cut 1-inch wide strips in dough from filling to outer edges. Fold alternate strips over filling at an angle to form a braid. Transfer to greased baking sheet. Or, form into a ring joining ends securely. Cover. Let rise in warm place (80-85°) until doubled in bulk (about 40-60 minutes). Bake at 350° about 15-20 minutes or until golden brown. Cool on rack. Drizzle with confectioners icing and sprinkle with nuts if desired. Makes 1 cake.

Realistic insurance coverage

Has your insurance protection kept pace with the value of the home you are insuring? Increased values in real property over recent years, as well as escalating values for such insurables as precious stones, collectors' items, and antiques, could mean that your present coverage does not give you the protection you deserve. When did you last check to make sure that if you experienced a fire your insurance policy will give you adequate coverage? Have you purchased new furniture or expensive appliances that are not included in your present policy? Increased building costs have possibly outstripped the formula existing when you replaced your insurance protection, and the same insurance protection, and the same accommodation could not be duplicated at the stated rate if destroyed by fire. It will be too late to check AFTER a fire, so do it now and guard against possible crippling loss.

MORE ABOUT . . .

Hermanson volunteered their labour to build a new Sechelt Public School, located then at the head of Porpoise Bay.

Eric and Axel Carlson were registed at the Sechelt Hotel on October 5, 1908: Perhaps they and their parents were recent arrivals.

On August 26, 1909 Herman Carlson applied to pre-empt District Lot 3047. His name was given to the creek where beside which his home was built. Unfortunately he did not live to enjoy his new farm for long. Herman Carlson died at Sechelt on December 12, 1910, aged 65 years. His widow continued to live on the bank of Carlson Creek, where she was a gracious hostess, delighted to have guests.

Ada Cook (later Mrs. Sam Dawe) can remember an occasion in 1912 when Eric Carlson rowed her and Winnie Morgan (later Mrs. Robert S. Delong) up the Inlet to visit his mother. Mrs. Carlson had unforgettably huge geraniums growing in a washtub outside her house. Her dinner guests at noon on Sunday were served roast venison with wild cranberry jelly, oaten porridge and gravy.

Winnie Morgan collected a series of photographs recording another visit to the Carlson home about 1912 or 1913. A large party of friends, including Winnie's mother and her brothers Jim and George travelled from the Porpoise Bay wharf aboard the launch "Ada". Winnie's pictures show the group aboard the launch, enjoying tea on Mrs. Carlson's extensive lawn, and their hostess seated outside her white cottage with the mountains in the background.

Under the date of November 28, 1912 the Dept. of Lands gave notice in the B.C. Gazette that D.L. 3047 had been surveyed. Then on December 29, 1913, Mrs. Otilia N. Carlson received the Crown Grant to these 176 acres, for which she paid $176.

By a stroke of luck I found an accurate description of Mrs. Carlson's farm. This happened when Ray Winterburn, in charge of the Assessment Authority of B.C. office in Sechelt, showed me an old booklet containing carbon copies of a few pages from the field book of Mr. Brown, who was the assessor of Sunshine Coast properties 60 years ago.

Mr. Brown's inspection of D.L. 3047 was dated July 10, 1919, at which time Otilia Carlson was living at 349 Benton St., Portland, Ore. Of the 176 acres, three were under cultivation, 20 possible to be cultivated, 77 only possible for grazing, and 76 acres of rock or waste land. Total value of the land was $1,610, up from $176 paid for the raw land six years previously. In addition, there was a dwelling-house valued at $200, several barns and outbuildings appraised at $100, plus improvements such as clearing assessed at $400, making a total value of $2,310. Today these figures seem too low to be possible.

Eric Carlson was Bert Whitaker's teamster and looked after the dairy herd. Ada Dawe recalls that in 1912 and 1913 she used to carry an empty, covered milk pail from her home to the kitchen of the Whitaker Hotel. There the Chinese cook would fill the pails of various customers. One one occasion Ada went to pass the time of day with friends in the hotel sitting room while waiting for the milk. Suddenly there was a great noise from the kitchen, caused by the cook when he took the lid off Ada's pail and two or three frogs jumped out at him. Eric Carlson and his companions had conspired to set up the joke.

Ronald Whitaker told me the following story, recounted in his own words: "Eric Carlson, who was teamster for my brother, had an accident which I saw when I was in the store one day. His team got out of control and raced down the wharf with Eric tugging at the reins. He jumped off the wagon but the horses went over the end and drowned. The heavy harness kept the animals from rising. At low tide the bodies were recovered and dragged out to sea."

The horses were a splended team and the whole population of Sechelt was saddened by their loss. The wharf on Trail Bay was demolished in 1971 because it was in a hazardous condition.

The Carlson and Hermanson brothers were still living in Sechelt late in 1914, but prior to the end of the war in 1918 they had all moved to the United States. Winnie Morgan Delong continued to be a friend of Eric and Ivar when her family moved to San Diego in 1920 and the two brothers were living there. She now resides in Vancouver and up until recently kept in touch with Eric Carlson. In his 80's he and his wife Anna were living in Twisp, Washington. Ivar died many years ago.

The Garden Corner

Time for planning

By Guy Symonds

The last Corner discussed in rather rambling fashion the need to do some planning and decided that now, almost at the nadir of the seasons, is a good time. With that in mind we thought we'd pass along some information taken from a booklet written by Alan Littler who at the last time of hearing was a top horticulturist in the provincial government service. Littler's book bears the title "The Home Vegetable Garden" — which says it all.

He starts out by pointing out the various possibilities of developing a place to grow vegetables, all of which really depend on the amount of ground available and then goes on to the matter of the preparation of the soil.

The next chapter, however, is what interests us at this moment. It is entitled "Planning the Garden", and starts off by emphasizing the need for systematic planning.

He points out that some of the perennials which are quite happy to stay where they are planted year in and year out, should go at one end where they are out of the way. Among these are asparagus, rhubarb, horse radish and any of the herbs the gardener likes to grow.

Although he maintains that a plot of land 25 feet by 50 feet will supply a small family with all its vegetables for summer and fall if properly managed, his actual diagrammed-illustration considers an area 50 feet square and lays it out to take advantage of climatic conditions in the Coastal Strip of this province. He also provides details for a garden of similar size located in the interior of the province.

In the diagram the author runs all his rows from north to south starting at the eastern end with the permanent fixtures mentioned above, allowing a space four feet wide for them. The next three foot-wide strip he provides for tomatoes and the next three feet is reserved for early potatoes. Another, however, says that these after harvest will be followed by cauliflower and sprouts. An 18-inch wide row of radishes to be followed by head lettuce as they mature is succeded by another row of the same size carrying spinach with late beets taking over after the spinach is used up.

Early peas take up the next two foot-row followed up by Swede turnips, the next two feet by early lettuce followed by the main crop carrots. Beets, carrots and parsnips in that order each take a full row 18 inches wide with another of the same width given over to summer turnips and kohl rabi. He allows a three foot wide row for corn and here this gardener has the temerity to disagree with Littler. Corn is not easy to grow hereabouts and if planted in a row or even tow rows has a hard time getting fertilized. It does best in a square block, which however is admittedly an awkward area in a garden. Marrow, cucumber and squash take up the next four feet of full row while cabbage will need a full 2.6 inches to itself, as will celery. The rest of the 2,500 square feet of vegetable garden is given over to the late potato crop, except for a strip nine feet wide to accommodate pole beans and onions.

These suggestions are not of course carved in stone and one can make changes to accommodate individual preferences. No mention for instance is made of leeks which are a favorite vegetable while kohl rabi arouses no enthusiasm whatever. But the germ of the idea is there to be used as a guide.

In the accompanying narrative Littler explains the idea of "succession cropping" in those locations where the season is long enough, which provision one would say certainly obtains on this peninsula. As shown is the diagram described early radishes, spinach and lettuce may be followed by late beans, cauliflower or sprouts.

Then there is "companion cropping" which is the growing of two crops on the same land at the same time. He suggests that the small globe shaped radish, leaf lettuce and spinach may be grown between rows of beets carrots and parsnips. Tomatoes and sweet corn, he says, if planted between rows of early peas and early potatoes become will established by the time the latter crops have matured.

With all due respect to Littler, with whom this gardener has no right to argue, it does seem that he is over-simplifying the program a bit. Undoubtedly these things can be done but they cannot be done casually. Probably he takes it for granted but it is this gardener's experience that the greatest care has to be taken when one is trying to double up either on the season or the carrying capacity of the land. Hereabouts the problem is liable to show up in moisture for germination. Then again this light land warms up to the extent that it is too hot for germinating some seeds even if the moisture is right. It's a bit ticklish for most of us.

So the warning one would like to pass along with these ideas is — pay great attention to the husbandry. Undoubtedly with a little thought and planning the carrying capacity of the land can be increased and now between seasons, is a very good time to think about it.

Bell Ringers here Dec. 10

A unique and fascinating group is coming to the Sunshine Coast to entertain us in a Christmas concert.

The Bell Ringers of Highland United Church in North Vancouver will be performing at the Gibsons Elementary School gym on December 10 at 7:30 p.m.

The handbells consist of three octaves of Schulmerich Bells. The bells come from Schulmerich Carillons in Sellersville, Pennsylvania now, but did originate in Holland.

The group, consisting of 11 girls ranging in age from 13 to 19, handbells. An excellent sense of rhythm is essential for such a group because 11 become the one instrument we hear.

The bells were donated to the Highland United Church in 1970 in memory of a musical family who had recently died. The bells ring about once a month in the church and also throughout the Lower Mainland in other churches, hospitals, senior citizens lodges, banquets and in the public malls at Christmas.

Also on the program will be selections by the Sunshine Choristers, well-known for their performances on the peninsula.

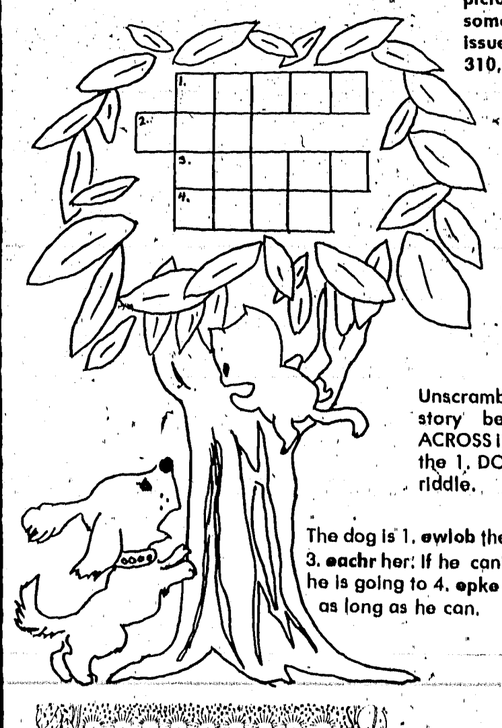
We've been getting lots of entries in the Santa Coloring Contest. Keep them coming — you have 'til December 8th to get them to us. Also, how about sending us some nice Christmas pictures — we'd like to have some to use in our Christmas issue. So send it all to us at Box 310, Sechelt. Get Busy!!



A LIDDLE RIDDLE FOR YOU

What does a dog have that a tree needs too?

Unscramble the words in the story below and put them ACROSS in the puzzle. Then read the 1. DOWN word to solve the riddle.

The dog is 1. owlob the 2. act. He wants to 3. eachr her. If he can't do that, he is going to 4. epke her there as long as he can.

NUMBER MAGIC

Be a number magician. Tell several friends that through arithmetic you can make them all end up with the number 3 — no matter what number they begin with. Here's how to do it. Ask each friend to think of a number. Then have each of them follow these steps: 1] multiply the number by 3; 2] add 7; 3] add the number they started with; 4] add 5; 5] divide by 4; 6] subtract the number they started with. Announce to your friends that they all have the number '3' and see how surprised they'll be.

WHEN IS YOUR BIRTH DAY ??

The following is an editorial written in the Chatelech "News and Views" by Mr. Joe Belanger, who was custodian at that time at Chatelech but is now at Langdale Elementary. His article is well worth discussing with your parents or teacher as it applies to every student on the peninsula.

Our school is not merely an institution. It is not merely a building where we gather in groups and classes, to be told what we must do and learn.

Our school is, in effect, an extension of our home. How many times are we told, guided, shown what we should, or should not do, at home — and all of it to our betterment. Our school then, provides us with the wherewithal to expand our knowledge in a multitude of areas, which otherwise, we could not hope to achieve.

In the same vein, we must protect, and respect the physical aspects of our school. Since it is an extension of our home, each and every one of us is a guest of our fellow student, in this his/her home. How then, if we are guests in our friend's home, we automatically respect this fact, we don't just drop garbage every which way, we don't deliberately break things up, write on walls, hang around doing nothing of value. In conclusion then, it is incumbent upon us, to do all we can to keep our school as clean and neat as possible. It is our individual duty to keep an eye on, and report those who dirty our home. It is up to us to take pride and to show the whole district that we have the best, and neatest school on the go — both academically and physically. Let's take pride, we have good reason for it.

JUST FOR FUN!

He: What are those things floating in the water?
She: Jellyfish.
He: What flavor?

Mil: How do you make a statue of a dinosaur?
Bill: I don't know.
Mil: It's easy. Just get a block of marble and chip away everything that doesn't look like a dinosaur.

Bert: You should see Bill. He's in the big time now.
Myrt: What's he doing?
Bert: He's selling grandfather clocks.

Mrs. Gab: If your friend is so ugly, why doesn't she go to a beauty parlour for a mud pack?
Mrs. Blab: Well, she did last year, and for three days she was beautiful.
Mrs. Gab: And then what happened?
Mrs. Blab: The mud fell off.

MAKE IT!

FANTASY FUDGE

1 c white sugar
2 c brown sugar
1/2 c butter
2/3 c evaporated milk
6 oz. caramel [illegible] into chips
1 c chopped nuts
1 tsp vanilla
1/2 jar Kraft Marshmallow Cream

Mix sugar, butter & milk. Bring to a boil. Stir 5 min. to soft ball stage (238 F). remove from heat. Stir in marshmallow cream, vanilla, caramel or chocolate chips & nuts. Beat until well mixed. Pour into a buttered pan.

TRAVIS MURYN, 10, and his editorial staff present Elves Club president Rod Clarke with a hard-earned cheque for $10.39 toward Christmas hampers for the needy. Travis and Richard Baba, Tino Sorrento, and Tony Duffy recently put out Cedar Grove Elementary School's first nine-page newspaper, The Family Paper, and raised the money selling it to fellow students. Elves Club is expected to distibute 130 hampers this year.

Holiday secrets

By Ann

The man with the white whiskers is due soon. It's time of intense excitement and anticipation. Packages are hidden away in the most obscure places. My Santa starts poking things away in his special "hide-ee-holes" long before the day rolls around.

For the cook, it's a good idea to have a few secrets tucked away to add to the holiday flavor.

This and that ideas:

HOLIDAY OLIVES

Ripe olives and rosy pimentos glisten with a sharp tangy dressing.

Drain one large can of black pitted olives. Place in a jar with one can (4 oz) of pimentos, drained and sliced into medium wide strips. Pour two thirds of a cup of wine vinegar or cider vinegar and ¼ cup olive oil or or salad oil, cover; shake to mix well. Let stand overnight to blend the flavor. Drain well before serving.

AMBROSIA

Pull and section 6 to 8 large oranges. Combine with 2 cans (16 oz each) pineapple chunks and 1 cup of shredded or flaked coconut. Chill. Makes 8 to 10 servings. (If oranges are not sweet enough, add a small amount of sugar.)

DESSERT COFFEE (Javanese Style)

Serves as both a coffee and a dessert.

For six servings, brew six cups of regular strength coffee. Place a large scoop of vanilla ice cream in each of the six cups; slowly pour hot coffee over; drizzle one tablespoon of chocolate syrup down the inside of each cup. Top with a spoonful of whipped cream and a maraschina cherry.

QUICK FROSTING (for sheet cakes)

1 cup sugar
¼ teasp. cream of tartar
½teasp. salt.
1 teasp. vanilla or other flavoring.
1 egg white.

Dump all into mixing bowl. Add ½ cup of boiling water. Start electric mixer and beat at high speed until frosting stands in peaks.

GOLDEN GIBLET GRAVY

Another do ahead, for gravy is so easy to make once the savory broth is ready.

Combine turkey giblets (except liver) and neck with 1 medium-sized onion, chopped; handful of celery tops; 1 teasp. salt; 1 bay leaf; 4 cups water in a medium saucepan. Simmer for 1 hour, until tender. Add liver during the last 20 minutes of cooking. Strain the stock; measure; add water to make 4 cups. Finely chop or grind the giblets to add to the stuffing mix, or stir into the broth to make giblet gravy. (This much can be done the day ahead.)

After turkey is removed from pan, slowly pour fat into a measuring cup, leaving all the brown droppings in the pan. Blend into the drippings ½ cup flour; gradually stir in 4 cups of stock and giblets. Cook, stirring constantly and scraping baked-on juices from bottom and sides of pan. Cook till gravy thickens. Boil for 1 minute. Makes 4 cups of really good gravy.

Christmas service coming up soon

There will be a service of carols and readings sponsored by the Sunshine Coast Ministerial Association in preparation for Christmas.

The Sunshine Choristers will also perform at the services to be held at the Gibsons United Church on December 12 at 7:30 p.m. and at the Bethel Baptist Church in Sechelt on December 17 at 7:30 p.m.

GIBSONS CO-OPERATIVE HOUSING ASSOCIATION

Meeting to be Held at Gibsons Legion Hall No. 109

DECEMBER 10th, STARTING 1 P.M.

IN FORMATION

34 Units - Own Your Own Co-operative Home

1. WHAT IS A CO-OPERATIVE?

A Housing Co-operative is a group of people incorporated under the Co-operative Act for the purpose of owning and controlling the property and the building of the housing development which they occupy.

2. WHAT DO YOU OWN?

You own shares in the whole complex — not the unit leased to you from the Co-operative.

3. WHAT IS THE COST?

A small down payment and monthly payments projected on the following basis:

1 BEDROOM SUITE — $130 PER MO.
2 BEDROOM SUITE — $165 PER MO.
3 BEDROOM SUITE — $185 PER MO.

These payments could be lower to qualifying members. Once fixed, these payments include all costs other than your own electricity consumption. There are no other charges. You may qualify for provincial assistance of $52.50 per month for five years under the family first home Grant program, which will further reduce these payments.

4. WHAT ARE THE BENEFITS?

A. High quality housing at reasonable cost.
B. You control your own living environment co-operatively with other interested members.
C. Control your own monthly payments by taking advantage of available government programs and considering the well-being and financial health of your co-operative.
D. Each member is considered to be a homeowner.
E. You become part of a large increasing organization throughout Canada interested in lobbying for and improving the housing standards of individuals.

5. WHO CAN JOIN?

Co-operatives are intended principally for families of modest and moderate income, pensioners and handicapped. There is no discrimination due to sex, creed, religion or marital status.

6. WHO RUNS THE PROJECT?

A board of directors elected democratically from amongst the members, often assisted by an outside management company. In this way problems connected with your home and general environment receive attention from people with first-hand knowledge of the circumstances.

7. WHO CAN VOTE AT MEETINGS?

All members receive only one vote, irrespective of shares owned or monthly payment.

8. CAN YOU SELL YOUR INTEREST IN THE CO-OPERATIVE?

Yes. Sale of your shares in the Co-operative is usually quick and simple with no legal fees etc. involved. Shares appreciate modestly in accordance with the cost of living increase.

9. ARE CO-OPERATIVES A NEW IDEA?

No. There have been co-operatives on-going for almost 20 years. The oldest one in B.C. is in Vancouver and has been operating for close to 7 years. Presently there are over 30 co-operatives in the province.

10. WHAT DO THE AUTHORITIES SAY?

They find that this is one of the best ways to provide good housing for people and to avoid low-cost, run-down projects. This project has agreement in principle from the Village of Gibsons and Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

11. WHAT WILL BE DONE ABOUT RENOVATIONS?

Discussion have gone on to completely renovate the building, provide extra parking, a large playground area, re-carpet entrances and all suites, re-paint inside and out where necessary and update appliances, cabinets etc.

Contact immediately for best choice of suites and further information

Redskins on the ball

The winners of the soccer league this year were the Sechelt Redskins in a 2 to 1 victory over the Pender Harbour Bananas. The Bananas finished runner-up, and the consolation went to the Gibsons Raiders. That left us with Wakefield Stompers 4th, Sechelt Chiefs 5th and Wakefield 6th.

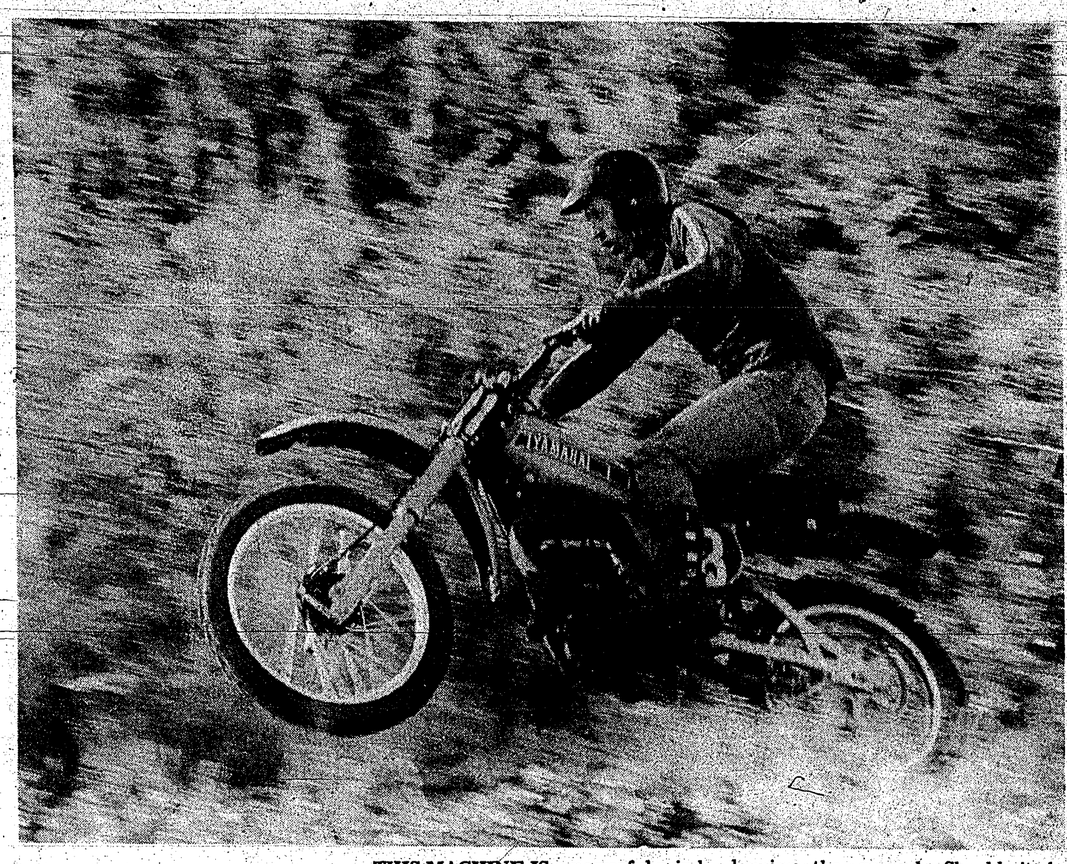
In the trophy ceremonies, Best Defenceman went to Rick Little, Top Goal Scorer was Jerry Mercer, Best Goal Keeper Kmin Inglis, Most Valuable Player was Chucky Feschuck and Most Sportsman-like Player was Ian Dixon.

The All Stars were:

Daren Dixon, Gorden Kammerle, John Kruse, Herb August, Earl John, Robert Joe, Keith Julias, Mark Lyden, Rick August, John Nickerson, Jerome Julian, Bill Sneddon, Dan Paul, Bob Weston, Keith Julias, John Mercer, Pat Doyle and Calven Craigan.

This weekend has been one of endurance for the boys in the soccer uniforms, as they fought rain, winds, mud puddles, soggy fields, mean referees and linesmen with faulty vision. I'd just like to say that I thought these boys did a fantastic job.

It isn't easy to be a good sport when the water is dribbling down your nose and you don't know what team you're on because everyone is so caked in mud, that you can't recognize one player from the other. These guys turned up and played and ran the best they could, they couldn't just stand around and freeze — they had to keep their bodies warm by moving as fast as they could. So congratulations to all of them for really trying. — Sharon Schroeder.



THIS MACHINE IS a powerful mind-altering drug that produces a high without a hangover, a trip that takes you somewhere or flying without leaving the ground. Should it be banned or should bikers be allowed to continue their evil ways?

Coast Strokers

Ban the bike

By Dennis Gray

There is strong evidence to suggest that motorcycles are a powerful mind altering drug — a high without a hangover, a trip that takes you somewhere or flying without leaving the ground. Once bitten, like malaria, bike fever can return years later.

If politicians ever tweak to the pleasurable addiction of motorcycles they will ban them, brown bag and tax them out of reach or keep them for themselves (which may even keep a few provincial court judges off the streets at night). Already several small Quebec towns in eastern Canada have banned motorcycles. Can Ottawa be far behind?

If the government does find a place in the garages of the nation, one could face charges for throwing a leg over his motorcycle and taking a powder on your bike may mean you won't be back for five to ten. LSD and users of speed may have new cell partners, for speed has been synonymous with motorcycles for nearly a century.

There is, however, little evidence that speeding motorcycles are harmful, assuming one avoids sudden stops. In fact, the opposite may be true. It has been noted that glue sniffers, who trade in their thinner can, for a gasoline can, show signs of sanity and colour in their cheeks.

But if motorcycles are banned, like everything else prohibited, they will become more popular and just go underground. Moto-cross riders will be trading in their knobbies for shovels and motorcycles will be in the headlines: 'Police Break Up Large Piston Ring' — Police today raided an old barn where a gang of two stroke (wash your mouth out) piston smugglers had been under surveillance for two weeks. They found the largest haul of raw crated bikes to date. Street value was estimated to be equivalent to three or four hundred gallons of gasoline. Police chief Slim Bacon who led the raid, said he cannot understand why young people are not satisfied with healthy pastimes like smokin', boozing or chasing wimmin.

There will be the usual rag tag band of placard waving protesters chanting that motorcycles don't lead to a life of fast cars and they are not addictive, which may be true.

I personally am not hooked — I can take 'em or leave 'em. It's just my wife's unreasonable attitude; she says if I take that damn bike to bed she is leaving.

I first noticed the effects of bikes several years ago on a young family man, who seemed well adjusted and firmly directed on a course to a successful life of excess, when he found motorcycles and was hooked like a mail sack by a speeding train.

He took to wearing on weekends, old ragged clothes which often got soiled with mud and grease. He even began hauling his family with him. Within a short time he could remember his youngest kid's name — he even began smiling and laughing (a sure sign you're hooked). But their families are the real victims, they spend their summers sailing across the country, north to south and east to west, staying in motels and campsites not knowing where they may be next.

I cannot think of anything else as much fun in public that is legal, so perhaps they should be banned. The politicians talked about taking capital punishement to the people so they may give us a vote on this. In which case — don't take my word for it, come out and try them yourself. Keep strokin.

Curling news

In just two short weeks the Christmas Mini-Bonspiel will be under way. The date is December 20, the time is 6 p.m. with two-ender games.

Food will be available and dancing will follow. With all the pre-Christmas activities going on it's easy to put it off, so phone now to register with Larry at 885-9908 or Ed at 885-2067. Price is $20 per rink.

Looking ahead a little more, don't forget our New Years Dance. Tickets will be on sale this week from the Curling Club Executive. Curlers will have first choice but there are only 120 tickets printed. The price is $30 per couple and includes dinner.

Ladies Curling had a better turn-out on Tuesday but there is still room for more ladies. That's Tuesday from 9:15 to 11:15 a.m. Babysitting available and the price is only $2.50 per game. See you on the ice! — Anne Rennie.

bowling

The bowling scores as of November 29:

Ruth Walker, 274 (624); Betty Laidlaw, 206 (508); Erna Cole, 232 (461); Lynne Pike, 206 (566); Janice Haslett, 216 (513); Brenda Subert, 210 (504); Flo Stavert, 207 (526); Marge Nicholson, 267 (623); Ruth Slade, 218 (543); Lil McCourt, 221 (572) and Judy Sim 212 (556).

FISHING REPORT

The fishing is still going very good. Local fisherman are catching quite a few fair-sized salmon. At one time it looked like we were running low on salmon but I guess we were wrong.

Some local fishermen went out and told me that they were catching plenty of prawn and they were good sized.

PENDER HARBOUR BOWLING

These are the scores as of November 29:

Dan Wilery 234, Norman Edwardson 203, Carol Reid 225, 203, (617); Art Clemas 240, Orbeta Delos Santos 214, Merle Hately 260 (605).

THE SECHELT REDSKINS won the soccer tournament this year beating out Pender Harbour Bananas, Wakefield Stompers, Sechelt Chiefs and Wakefield United. Top goal scorer this year is Jerry Mercer.

Power Squadron treated to underwater slide show

Sunshine Coast Power Squadron held their monthly meeting at the home of Len Van Egmond (S-C Reg.) with an excellent turnout of over 54 members.

The squadron was delighted to welcome from the Pacific Mainland District:
District Commander (Wally) H.T. Walters (White Rock Squadron) and his wife Audrey.
Administrative Officer Doug Thorn (Vanc. Squadron) and his wife Sheila.
Secretary Donald Duncan (White Rock) and his wife Dolores.
Executive Officer Chuck Farrand (Sur Del) and his wife Doris.
Retired D-C Lorne Riding (Alouette Squadron) — we missed you, Gwen.
D-C (Ret). Roy H. Summerfield, Ltd. at Large (Vanc. Squadron) and his wife Marnie.
District Training Officer Gordon T. Lea (Van. Squadron) and his wife Lila.

Pledged and received membership by D-C Wally Walters were Mike Meyer and Ron Protocky.

Harold Clay was called upon by Cmd. Ken Carruthers and (Cmd. ret.) Chuck Williams presented him with his Fifth Merit Mark. Sylvia Woodsworth was also called upon to answer enquiries as to how well was the continuing care of the "Oh Damn" Trophy. She reported she was dusting it and it was well displayed. An onside comment heard was, "The painting by Vivian Chamberlain depicting the scene was hung crooked as well as the trophy on display." When hubby Bruce remonstrated, Sylvia replied, "It was a crooked setup so that's the way it stays!"

It was also noted that during the summer, after four years of TLC, Gloria and Dave Fyles launched their boat "Sunshine Girl". May they look forward to many months of pleasant cruising with their family.

Roy Summerfield of Pacific Mainland Dist. also explained in a very lucid and light-hearted manner the loss of his anchor and chain while on the stag cruise of the Vanc. Squadron.

The highlight of the evening was the presentation of Diver Tom Sheldon's exciting underwater slides of marine life in color; of capturing such shots as the eye of an eel, varying types of sponges, cruistaceans, marine animals and the eggs of fish with the male subsequently taking care of them.

He is a qualified diving instructor, residing in Gibsons with wife and two children. Instruction is available through him at the Continuing Education Program. You receive class instruction in the Gibsons Pool and if you pass — into the SEA for further instruction. No one had realized such breathtaking beauties existed underwater between Gibsons and Powell River.

Squaringly yours

By MAURICE HEMSTREET

Hello fellow square dancers, justashortcolumn today as somehow I got behind this week, however, not to worry-worie-wory Oh! shecks, don't let anything bother you.

Last week at the square dance with good young me on stage and four sets of dancers on the floor, everything was just great, I didn't even make a mistake, well only a few, well let's face facts, if you do something perfect then you are expected to do that all the time.

The Christmas square dance party will be held on December 15 where there will be an exchange of presents, girls will bring for girls and boys will bring a present for a boy, and not to exceed $1 so use your imagination. All square dancers welcome. Preparations are also under way for The Sunshine Coast Country Stars, New Years Eve square dance — more on this next week.

It's good to see Marv Volen back on the floor after spending time in the horizontal hotel, Marv, didn't you know that's no place to be.

Well, by the time you have read this column, Harry Robertson will have made his first trip away from The Country Stars to call the squares at Campbell River. I would have gone but there is one square dance lady up there, who has chased me up the wall a couple of times, and all her husband would say, is when she is chasing me, she is leaving him alone. Well, I hope she don't get a hold of this paper, but in case she does, she is an awfully nice square dance person.

Well, I must get along so keep smilin, have a good day, and caller Harry will be back on stage this coming Friday. See you at the square dance. Hasta la fista.

Remember those lovely Laura Secord Hostess Gift Boxes you Ooh'd! and Aah'd! over last year? We have them again now, so don't delay, get yours soon! — Miss Bee's, Sechelt.

Lockstead fears ferry rate hike

The Social Credit government is preparing the public mentally for yet another ferry rate increase, according to Don Lockstead, NDP MLA for Mackenzie.

He said a campaign to draw to the attention of ferry passengers the amount of the so-called subsidy to the ferry corporation is "a slick public relations job suggested by the Socreds by some motivational research consultants."

The campaign includes blue printed cards passed out to ferry passengers reading, "The cost of your journey is subsidized by the taxpayers of British Columbia. This year, the subsidy will amount to approximately $46.6 million." The same message appears on signs in the ferries, but they are printed without any punctuation.

"The purpose behind this campaign is sinister," Lockstead said. "Every British Columbian knows the ferries don't make money. They never were intended to make a profit and they are supported by public funds just like the highways, schools and hospitals."

He said the only conceivable reason for the campaign is that the government wants to make ferry passengers feel guilty about the public expense of the ferry system.

"It is clear that Sam Bawlf (the Social Credit minister responsible for ferries) wants the users of the ferries to feel they are getting something they don't deserve," Lockstead said. "Once that impression is planted, he will be free to raise ferry rates again as the Socreds did in 1976 with disastrous results to coastal and Vancouver Island local economies."
