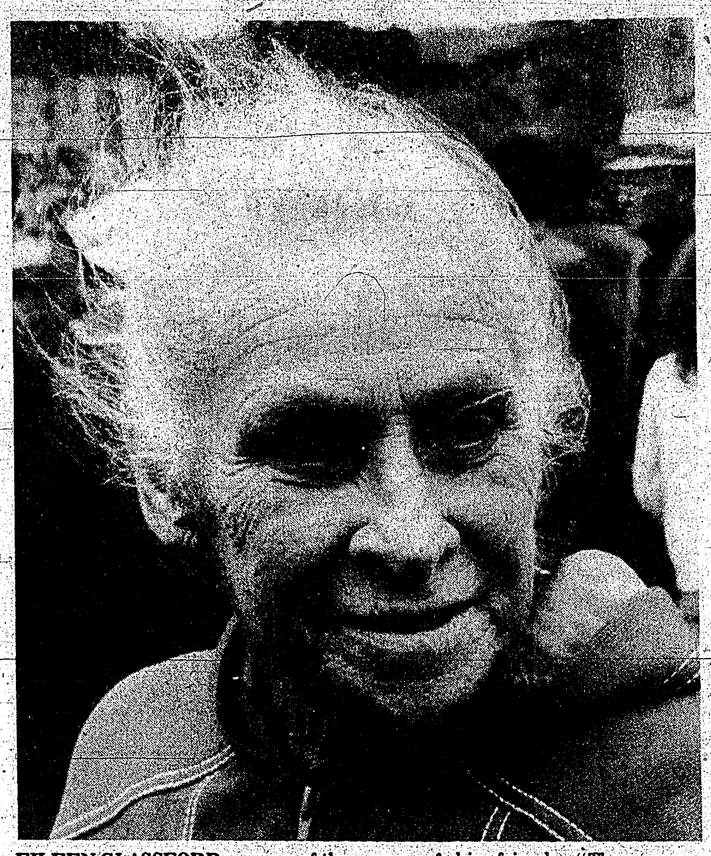
Eileen Glassford dies in house fire



EILEEN GLASSFORD was one of the most-loved pioneers of the Gibsons area. Local historian Les Peterson says of his friend: "There were always children around her house. They looked upon her as a mother."

By ROBERT ANDREW

One of Gibsons most-respected pioneer citizens and a much-admired teacher and athlete, Eileen Glassford, died early Tuesday morning when flames engulfed her often-visited stone and wood waterfront house on Marine Drive.

She was 70 years of age and had taught school in the district for 40 years.

RCMP said a sister, Norah Hill, was also in the house at the time the blaze broke out but escaped serious injury.

She is reported to have made an attempt to re-enter the house but was restrained.

It is believed the fire smouldered first then burst into flames that woke Mrs. Hill then quickly gutted the 67-year-old structure.

Gibsons firemen responded immediately to the alarm and had the fire under control in about an hour, police reported.

An avid supporter of local threatre and the Beachcombers television series in her later years, Mrs. Glassford is still remembered as an expert athlete in swimming and diving and, as Eileen Whitake, a long-time record holder in the women's high jump.

She taught in Gibsons Elementary School beginning in 1949 and later in Elphinstone Secondary until her retirement in 1971.

In previous years she was a teacher at Port Mellon school.

"As a teacher she had us all green with envy. She could take the students with difficulty and she was tremendous with them," recalls Clou Day, a fellow teacher who retired the same time as Mrs. Glassford.

Mrs. Day related how the two of them had gotten together one weekend in the fall of 1949 and by themselves put a shake roof on the Glassford house.

"It's the first roof I ever put on in this area. I drove by the house after the fire and that was the roof they punched a hole through. It never had a leak in it before," Mr. Day said.

She related other memories after the tragedy.

"Before there was a road to Port Mellon, someone would come along in a fishboat and pick us up and we'd go up there for a little party."

A fellow worker in the NDP Bookstore with Mrs. Glassford and her sister Norah, Ann Burns, remembers her as far back as 1912 when the area was a settlement of just a few homes.

"She came here for the summer as a girl in 1912 and camped here and met her mother. She was an expert swimmer and diver and good enough to keep up to the boys her age. She was a very good athlete at the time. I think she swam over from Keats Island at one time," recollected Mrs. Burns.

Her last husband, was a grandson of George Gibson after whom the village is named. She had been married twice previously. According to friend and local historian, Les Peterson, the Glassfords arrived in the area just a few years after the Gibsons came, in about 1887.

John's older sister, now Grace Chamberlain of Gibsons, was the first white child born in the settlement, that became the present village, he said.

Peterson, a former student of Mrs. Glassford, remembers her as being very fond of children.

"There were always children around her house. They looked upon her as a mother.

She was also highly regarded by people in the Sechelt Indian Band and gave her support as a teacher to band students in the late 60's when they demonstrated against the treatment they had been receiving in public schools.

"Everybody on the reserve called her "Ta' a" (granny). She was one individual who was not an Indian, who went out of her way to help Indian people," band manager Gilbert Joe said.

"She was quite attached to some of our younger people, especially the female students and took some of them into her home. Her job was in jeopardy (when she supported the demonstration)," added Joe.

In her teaching yers, she is also remembered as an enthusiastic physical education instructor who encouraged folk dancing and theatre.

A former student recalled that she was known to do the make-up for as many as 60 performers in a run of a school play and supplied all her own material for it.

She was later a force behind the Driftwood Players and was largely responsible for getting young Indian actor Pat John into the Gibsons-based Beachcomber television series.

She was an active resource person for the producers of the show, said Coast News editor John Burnside, a former teacher who worked with her in the early 1970's. She found houses for the crew when they arrived, and provided details of the communities as well as taking part in the plays, said Burnside, a former Driftwood Players member.

"She had a great appetite for life," he added.

For the past two years, Mrs. Glassford has had a major interest in Glassford Publications, the company that puts out the Coast News paper.

Another Coast News employee, photographer Ian Corrance, knew her for 10 years and has fond recollections.

"She cooked a dandy Sunday dinner. And she was the only one I know with the patience to teach me bridge," said Corrance.

Mrs. Glassford was predeceased by her husband, former owner of John's Taxi in the village, who died May 29, 1966. She is survived by her sister Norah, nieces Norma Doyle and Jill Hill, stepdaughter Beverly Campbell, and stepsons Don, Gerry, David and John Glassford.

Funeral services were held Saturday at 2 p.m. at Gibsons United Church.

Marina won't be foisted on public

Gibsons Mayor Lorne Blain last week said the proposed marina for the harbour would not be foisted on the public and would have to get over a few hurdles including a public referendum before it could be constructed.

He made the remarks at the swearing in ceremony for new aldermen Lorraine Goddard and Dick Fitchett.

He said council had been criticized for spending money on a marina feasibility study but explained that any village project that cost taxpayers money had to be seriously studied.

"We can't just spend the money. We have to see first if it is feasible," the mayor said.

"First, the federal people have to be willing to participate. Then it has to be approved by the marina committee (two aldermen and two people from the community at large)."

"Then it has to be cleared by council and finally it must be taken to referendum preceded by a public meeting," Blain explained.

He added that before being okayed, council had to be sure the village is in a financial position to handle it and it had to be established that the marina "could handle itself financially."

He said the project is now at the first step with an engineering firm working on a feasibility study.

He stated the federal authorities have found it too costly to put the project in the area south from Armor Beach to the wharf.

"If done it will have to be built in the bay because it is much cheaper," he said.

The mayor told the new council that in the ensuing year they would have to scrutinize expenditures knocking off any that are not necessary.

"We are asking the taxpayer to support council by not asking for frivolous services," he added.

The mayor announced the 1979 committee appointments at the same time with Goddard as deputy mayor, and head of finance, wages and policy, recreation and health committees.

Fitchett heads up fire, planning, building and zoning committees, and is program co-ordinator. Ald Jack Marshall heads public works, water and sewer committees and Ald. Larry Trainor takes over airport and marine, library and museum, tourism and wharf committees and Provincial Emergency Program.

Gibsons chamber protests school board office move to Sechelt

The Gibsons Chamber of Commerce will lodge a formal protest against a School District No. 46 decision to move its administrative offices to Sechelt, according to the organization's president.

Jon McRae told the Times that the chamber is "going after them to reconsider."

The school board made the decision to move the six-classroom portable presently at the Pender Harbour Secondary School site to the Chatelech school grounds to serve as a permanent board office, at a special meeting held December 5.

The lease on the school board's present office expires at the end of June 1979 and Secretary Roy Mills said there is "considerable need to have a permanent school board office."

"We're a bit on the crowded side now," Mills said of the board's quarters in the municipal building in Gibsons.

Mills said the board chose the Sechelt site over a site in Gibsons and a three-acre site on Highway 101 and Lockyer Rd. in Roberts Creek because it is more central to the district as a whole.

The site in Roberts Creek would be "equally inconvenient for everyone", he said.

He said the Village of Gibsons offered the board a "very attractive lease term" on a site near the one they now occupy.

Mills said the cost to move the portable from Pender Harbour and do any renovations would be approximately $45,000 and an additional $10,700 would be necessary for on-site work.

The board has applied to the Ministry of Education for cost-sharing.

The new office will be approximately 5,400 square feet and will house Continuing Education and Special Education staff, would probably serve as central stores and include an enlarged board room, said Mills.

The board's present office is 2,800 square feet.

"The portable will make a very fine board office," he said.

Mills said that people in Pender Harbour now having to use the office in Gibsons find the drive a long haul. "Locating in Sechelt is an acceptable plum to that end of the community."

McRae, however, is concerned that the move will effect business in Gibsons.

"A merchant has to be concerned every time he loses a potential customer," said McRae. "We'd like to see the employment down here."

McRae said he feels that the decision is shortsighted in view of a planned move by L and K Logging to the Gibsons area.

That company will bring 200 jobs to the Gibsons area, he said, and a potential 2,100 new residents. "And a large percentage of them will be school-age children," he said.

"The object now is to inconvenience 8,000 people in the Gibsons area to convenience 3,000 in Pender Harbour," said McRae.

McRae said he feels that the board voted for the move to Sechelt because only two people on the board live south of Sechelt, trustees Joanna Rotluff (Gibsons) and Brian Hodgins (Bowen Island). Board chairman Don Douglas is also a Gibsons resident.

"We're not very pleased at all," said McRae. "We feel that Gibsons has made a good offer as any on their property."

McRae said the chamber will present a letter to trustees at tonight's (December 13) school board meeting at 7 p.m. in the Gibsons school board office.

Board chairman Don Douglas was unavailable for comment.

New wingwall at Langdale

The ministry of highways has awarded a contract for wingwall replacement at No. 1 berth at the Langdale ferry terminal, Highways Minister Alex Fraser has announced.

The contract award went to the Fraser River Pile Driving Company Ltd., of New Westminster, the firm having submitted the lowest of three tenders at a bid price of $203,302.

Following preparatory work in December, the work crew of 12 will continue the project after the Christmas holiday, finishing the job in about six weeks.

The contract calls for the removal and salvage or disposal of existing H-pile and timber wingwalls and the construction of starboard and port structures to replace them. Wingwalls are structures to hold a vessel safely in its berth.

All contract measurements are in metric.

Total cost, including engineering supervision and materials, will be $615,000.

Cards still up in air

Cancellation of a December 4 meeting of B.C. Ferry Corporation's board of directors has postponed a decision on the fate of Sunshine Coast commuter cards.

Bill Bouchard, the corporation's traffic manager, had told Gibsons, Sechelt, Powell River and Sunshine Coast representatives that residents would know before the end of the year whether their cards would be reissued or revalidated.

He told them reissuance or revalidation was necessary "because there has been some abuse" of the cards, which entitle holders to discounts on local ferry run.

Bouchard told the Times Friday, however, that the meeting at which a decision was to be made was cancelled and postponed to early January.

Following the rescheduled meeting, Bouchard said a decision will be announced "as soon as possible."

Powell River Municipal Clerk John Murray had told Bouchard at a November meeting that the municipality could not possibly revalidate 14,000 cards before the end of the year.

"I really don't think the abuse factor warrants reissuance," Murray told Sunshine Coast representatives at the November 22 meeting with Bouchard.

Which way?

Sechelt Village (council) has applied to the province for revenue sharing in the building of a $300,000 road project making Teredo Street a main highway eastbound and Cowrie Street a one-way westbound.

The project is slated for completion in summer 1979.

The plan, recently submitted for Department of Highways approval, will involve the four-block-long upgrading and paving of Teredo from Wharf Street to Shorn Cliff Avenue where it joins the present Highway 101.

The Teredo-Cowrie project is an interim measure until a proposed limited-access through highway is constructed by the provincial highways ministry.

In a letter to regional Highways Dept. head Tucker Forsyth, Village Clerk Tom Wood said that the population and the number of cars in use in Sechelt is growing and new stores and expansions are emerging.

He was referring in part to the planned four-store expansion of the Trail Bay shopping centre now on the drawing boards.

The one-way designation of the streets is in order to eliminate left turns across oncoming traffic, a chief cause of traffic congestion.

Wood said the road plan is compatible with the official community plan for the village. He said in the letter that Teredo would handle some 80 per cent of municipal road traffic.

Municipal general revenue is expected to pick up the tab for 10 per cent of the total, or $30,000.

The village is asking for $120,000 of the total to come in from Municipal Finance Act debentures over 10 years at 11.5 per cent with the remaining $150,000 to come from a revenue sharing grant.

Cost of the debenture interest is $21,500.

The opening of Teredo will serve not only the Trail Bay Mall addition but will open up 17 undeveloped lots for commercial purposes and one for residential.

Under a development bylaw given first reading at Sechelt council Wednesday, developers of these subdivisions on Teredo will pay a development cost charge for projects larger than three self-contained dwelling units or non-residential projects worth more than $25,000.

Ed Nicholson elected new SCRD chairman

Area B Director Ed Nicholson was elected Sunshine Coast Regional Board Chairman last Thursday with a 6-2 victory over opponent Area C Director Charles Lee.

Nicholson, who joined the board in April of this year to fill in for retiring director Peter Hoemberg as the Area B alternate, was elected to the Area B seat in the November 18 election.

He was nominated for the chairmanship by outgoing chairman Harry Almond.

Nicholson's victory followed an unprecedented request from Lee to allow nominees to "state (their) qualifications." Almond, a three-time chairman of the board, told the Times that nominees have never given pre-balloting speeches before because "it's just not necessary."

"Everybody knows everybody else and have pretty well made up their minds beforehand anyway," he said.

However directors agreed to Lee's request and permitted the nominees five minutes each to state their qualifications.

Nicholson told directors that although he "didn't come here to make an election speech" his main focus in the chairmanship would be in improving relationships — between the board and SCRD staff, between the board and the public and among board members.

This, he said was "most important" in view of past happenings on the board and he made a call for a "degree of mutual respect" among members.

Lee, reading a prepared statement, told members that he had 44 years as an administrator in all facets of business to his credit. Since he is 69 and retired, said Lee, he would be able to attend SCRD offices every day thus offering approximately "$20,000 of time and expertise" to the position as chairman.

Lee also added, before being cut off by chairman and SCRD Secretary-Treasurer Anne Pressley for extending his five minute limit, that Nicholson had earlier in the day tried to make a "deal" with him about the chairmanship.

He said that Nicholson agreed that if he won the chairmanship and it did not work out after three months, he would step down and let Lee assume the position.

"In short, it was a deal," said Lee, adding that Nicholson "vastly underrates my integrity."

Nicholson said later that he had only made the suggestion to Lee and was not making any deals with him.

The new chairman suggested as the first motion of the board that his position be reviewed in three months to determine whether he was doing an adequate job.

Board members, however, said that such a motion would not be necessary.

Lee, who was nominated for the chairmanship by Area A Director Joe Harrison, was also nominated by Harrison as vice-chairman and took the position with no opposition.

Nicholson told board members that because of his full-time job with the school district as co-ordinator of special education he would be leaning heavily on Lee. He appointed Lee chairman of the Finance and Airport committees, and

CHARLES LEE . . . lost his bid

Why not Lee?

At last Thursday night's SCRD inaugural board meeting Area C Director Charles Lee read one of his familiar prepared statements to board members.

This time, though, he wasn't blasting overspending, the recreation plan or the local press. He was campaigning for board chairman.

As usual the statement was rife with statistics. He's had 44 years experience as an administrator and he gave directors a blow-by-blow account of his successful career. Now retired, he tells directors he can attend the SCRD offices every day and can offer $20,000 worth of time and expertise.

It sounds pretty good to us, but why didn't he get elected?

His opponent was a young man — a gentleman, says Lee but one with limited experience and a full-time job to boot.

And a man, if we are to believe Lee, who offers "deals" for the chairmanship. A man who vastly underrates Lee's integrity. A man who reminds Lee of a son.

A man who won the chairmanship, receiving all votes except those from Lee and his nominator.

Why?

Outgoing chairman Harry Almond attributes it partly to Lee's flamboyance. "He'd be very valuable to the board if he can sit tight and use his knowledge in the right quarter," Almond told the Times.

Which might mean fighting for something instead of always against something.

The regional board needs strong directors. It needs directors with the confidence and experience Lee obviously has.

But it needs a chairman who channels the fighters and strong directors into positive action, and one who won't let his personality get larger than the issues at hand.

Year-end nostalgia

I wonder why they removed the running boards from cars. Those of us who are labouring under a heavy load of year-end nostalgia carry very fond memories of running boards. They were handy for carrying extra oil, the strapping on of luggage, the hanging on of extra passengers, pals and puppies; standing on and gaining purchase when vehicle required pushing through rain and snow; carrying batteries groceries, bikes, golf bags, bridge partners, interesting rocks, plants, great Aunts tools, maneure . . . oh well they were nice.

Those old cars — mine was a 1929 Nash 7 passenger with two snap up jump seats facing backwards in the rear, a trunk and spare tire or 2 — were great. Some nice boys of the era painted it a flashy two-tone red and yellow. That handsome vehicle belched its way around hill and dale for 18 months. Police officers smiled and waved and even sometimes pushed. All Montreal chuckled and seemed determined to assist in getting it to my destination. I was 16 and life was fun.

There were other, smaller cars at the time with rumble seats. Mothers of the era took terrible exception to rumble seats, seeing them as the sport for awful deflowering and sundry smaller sexual infractions. What were those mothers thinking? Where had they been? Those rumble seats were cold, freezing in winter; wet windy and dusty with no windshield to protect eyes and hair. They were small too, not even much good when parked at Point Morose by the lake under trees and a full moon.

Sometimes mothers are strange, worrying about distant improbable defeats when maybe they ought to take up patrolling their own laurel hedge. One mother of my acquaintance, a diligent gardener, was dutifully edging around her Deodara when she came upon a neatly and carefully contrived set of ladder steps leading up to her daughters window. The Deodara was a huge tree. It was a section of the garden which could and had been tidily ignored for more than two years. The steps were painted and blended in perfectly with the house siding. The ground was well trampled. No weeds grew there. I am so glad we still celebrate Mothers Day.

I certainly wonder about the mail services in Toronto. The post offices here agree that Toronto is the worst of all their mailing points. I lost so many parcels, irreplaceable photos and letters that I also lost my temper, which always works to my disadvantage. I sent off a registered parcel complete with Fragile stickers and printed on the side "Please do not steal" - "contents unpalatable". The parcel was so well wrapped and marked that it annoyed those bums at the Toronto P.O. and it shot back to me in 7 days. It had to go by special courier.

Now I have a postal panacea. Mark your Toronto parcels thusly: "Biological Specimen of no Commercial Value . . . Do Not Puncture". That really scares them. All my mail is zapping right through now.

Christmas is the season when the person who "has it all together" knows exactly which runner to put on which foot at 6 a.m. and how to light a fire with green wood minus kindling. — Marcia Poultice.

"RUNNING BOARDS were handy for carrying extra oil, the strapping on of luggage, the hanging on of extra passengers, pals and puppies, standing on and gaining purchase when vehicle required pushing through rain and snow, carrying batteries, groceries, bikes, golf bags, bridge partners, interesting rocks, plants, great Aunts, tools and manure."

Reflections

Christmas alone

By Vern Giesbrecht

In the latest issue of Westworld magazine, Daniel Wood writes about people who spend Christmas on duty — a fireman, a late night disc jockey, a nurse, a taxi driver, for example — while the rest of us are at home with our families.

CJOR disc jockey Terry Moore remembered a lonely Christmas Eve in Kingston, Ontario.

". . . Because I worked the night-shift rolling records, I never got to meet anyone else in the station. The gnome, that was me. I was new in town. It wasn't bad during the show, but after.

"Here were all the songs going through my head, and me walking through a snowy Kingston to an empty apartment feeling like I'd just dropped in from Neptune. No friends, no relatives. Zero. The temperature was even colder.

"I ended up in the Superior Restaurant . . . The only customer. And I ate a dinner I'll never forget either: for Christmas dinner a toasted salami sandwich, a glass of milk, and a bowl of rice pudding. The fate of a late-night DJ."

The first and only time I spent Christmas on duty was a rather pleasant experience, though my Christmas meal was even simpler than Moore's.

During my university days, I worked as a porter on the CN trains running between Vancouver and Winnipeg and when I got a chance to make a couple of trips during the Christmas break, I took it, even though it meant I would spend most of the holidays working.

Passengers and crew were in a jolly mood as the Trans-Continental wound its way across the frozen country. In the Prairies the windows were frosted and the vestibules between the sleeping cars often had to be swept free of the fine snow that had drifted in. We flashed past countless frozen ponds that swarmed with bundled up skaters and marvelled at the gargantuan icicles than hung from the eaves of the little train stations we passed.

On Christmas Eve we were in Winnipeg. Half a dozen porters gathered at the porters' quarters, and ancient green building on Notre Dame Avenue, to watch the Rangers - Leafs hockey game on television. There was a special feeling of closeness among us, because it was Christmas Eve.

We didn't say much as we walked to the CN station on Main, Al, Peter, Gordie, Don, Wayne and I. I was remembering other Christmases; singing or reciting a verse or playing a shepherd in a Christmas pageant at church, excitedly opening gifts, carolling, listening to Handel's "Messiah" on CHWK Radio, driving up to Westminister Abbey in Mission for the special midnight mass, sharing love and warmth with family and friends.

I didn't give much thought to roast turkey and cranberry sauce until we found the restaurants closed and had to settle for grilled cheese sandwiches in the station. I don't remember if we exchanged Christmas greetings; perhaps we did. We were all preoccupied, but not morose, as we waited to go on duty. Al played chess with a pot-bellied old man on one of the polished benches. The rest of us flipped idly through magazines.

Finally it was time to get changed and board the train for the return trip. In our homes, Christmas trees would still be sparkling, our gifts would await us, unopened. Perhaps a slice or two of turkey would be left.

Most of all, we hoped that the love and joy of Christmas, which had lasted through the centuries, would still be there when we came home.

Veterans say thank you

On behalf of the Poppy Committee of Gibsons Branch No. 109 of the Royal Canadian Legion I wish to thank everyone, the public, merchants, service and business organizations who contributed so generously to our Poppy Fund.

Small man, small heart

Editor, The Times:

Letter in reply to November 29 article by Ned Schwartz;

Dear Ned,

Hi there! I read your prose and thought it was hilarious but subtley sneering. You seem to be really down on middle-aged female artists clamouring for a little attention.

Any of us who attended the art critique last year, must surely be a little put out at your dubious wit.

Even you must need a little recognition from time to time and $2 isn't such a bad price to pay.

Ned, you definitely need cheering up. All those negative thoughts are supposed to be harmful.

Maybe the whole problem stems from being 4¼ inches tall and having a tiny heart.

Great response to student forum

Editor, The Times:

Elphinstone Student Research Productions would like to extend their thanks to the community for their great response to our forum. We were pleased with the turn-out and the positive attitudes of everyone attending.

During the forum students handed out a recycling questionnaire asking — would you be prepared to separate recoverable waste, i.e. paper, tins, glass, before pick-up? Seventy-four of the 78 forms returned replied yes and four were negative. The second question - would you support weekly pick-up if recoverable waste would be recycled, received 72 affirmative answers to 6 against.

Thrift sales were a success. The grads collected $150 much needed dollars for their graduation activities. The Cedar Grove Grade 5's supervised by their teacher Barry Krangle collected $50. The remaining articles were donated to the Elves Club, a very worthy cause.

Due to the great response we have already started our research for another forum to be held in the spring and to consider the possibility of Community Television. We hope to present this forum as a CRTC Hearing.

Again we would like to thank the community for their response and participation.

Keep up the good work!

Small talk

Gibsons goes punk

By Ned Schwartz

Well, I reckon we can just kiss Gibsons goodbye. Scratch her off the map. Don't forget to turn off the lights when you leave.

Anyhow that was the reaction from some corners last week after the school board decided to move their offices to Sechelt.

With the school board going, can the Coast Garibaldi Health Unit be far behind?

Most of the remaining businesses in the Lower Village are just scraping by. And you know the Beachcombers series won't go on forever.

Meanwhile, with the sewer going in, Sechelt is poised on the edge of a building boom. B.C. Tel says Sechelt is the major growth centre on the peninsula.

The enrolment at Gibsons Elementary is declining while Sechelt Elementary is cramming em into closets.

When they put in the Gibsons by-pass a few years from now, folks will be able to just zip right up the coast without even a howdy-do for the village.

It's pretty clear that if Gibsons is going to keep the store open they're going to need something special to make folks sit up and take notice. Gibsons needs pizazz, and that sure don't mean some ho-hum tieup for fancy Vancouver boats.

They need something downright unique that'll make those cash registers start jingling again.

Well, after thinking this through pretty careful I came up with this one true logical solution.

Gibsons has to become the punk rock capital of Canada. I can't see any other way around it.

Now it's true that some people who ought to know say that punk has peaked, that New Wave is what's happening now.

But I figure that leaves us with a strong market. There must be millions of people still around who haven't got properly spit on or who never got a chance to wear one of those gold razor blade necklaces.

So we got to convince Mayor Lorne Blain how it's in the best interest of this community that he should dye his hair green and start dressing out in black leather and leopard skins and like that.

Then SuperValu has to pick up the cue by cancelling this silly small town Dogfish Derby and take out full page ads in the Sun and Province letting everybody know that from now on it's going to be strictly chicken blood and feces slinging in Gibsons.

That's the sort of thing that'll put some life back into the village.

Probably in just about one week the place will be so overrun with CBC reporters and Toronto trendies that they'll be taking reservations to get into the laundromat. And you gotta remember, all those people are gonna be buying hamburgers and toilet paper. Oh, it'll be a swell scene.

Naturally, some locals won't like it much. But that's just fine, too, because they'll all be selling their houses lickety split and, boy, won't that put a smile back on Jon McRae's face when they're lined up a block long outside his office? You know it will.

Yessir, Gibsons sure will be booming after we get rid of this worn out Bruno Gerussi image and get on with what's really happening. It won't exactly be what your typical up-tight family style person would describe as "nice", but it sure will give Sechelt a run for their money in the old building permits department. And isn't that what's important?

Ned Schwartz, a pumpkin farmer, is 4½ inches tall and lives in Roberts Creek.

retained his own position—on the Management committee.

He also appointed Almond and Area E Director George Gibb to the Building committee, Gibsons Director Jack Marshall to the Coast-Garibaldi Union Board of Health, Gibb to continue with the Garbage committee and Harrison to Hospital Board.

He said he was deferring other committee appointments until he had an opportunity to discuss with directors their interests and experiences in various areas.

Outgoing chairman Almond said Sunday that it is "a good thing" that Nicholson has "almost unanimous support of the board."

Last year Almond and Hoemberg tied 4-4 for the seat and it took a 25-minute caucus and three-rounds of balloting before Almond was finally elected.

"I've had a fair amount of co-operation considering it was a very diversly made up board," said Almond. "If you don't get co-operation, you can't do a damn thing."

Almond chose not to bid for the seat this year "mainly because it's time to give someone else a chance," he said.

The oath of office was administered by Judge Charles Mittelsteadt to returning directors Nicholson and Almond and to new Directors Harold Nelson and David Hunter. Peggy Connor, David Fyles and Dennis Davison were also sworn in as alternate directors.

KATHIE TUPPERT, a former taxi driver on the peninsula is not the regular mini-bus driver. She hopes her passengers regard a trip more than just a bus service. The trip should be an adventure, she says.

New bus driver loves peninsula scenery

By HOWARD BUSHNELL

The Mini-Bus service was faced with a serious problem recently. The driver of the bus left the area, and the bus dispatcher Betty Crosby took another job within the Sunshine Coast Community Resouce Society.

The society has been fortunate and has been able to find two qualified people to continue the Mini-Bus service. The new dispatcher, Norma Clark, will be starting her job soon, and the new driver, Kathie Tuppert, is already on the job. Tuppert had previously worked as the Mini-Bus relief driver and she is pleased that she can now perform the duties on a regular basis. Already some of her passengers have expressed their pleasure with the society's choice.

The Mini-Bus service is funded by the Department of Human Resources and was established to provide transportation to the residents of the area who have no other means of transportation. The service is extended to individuals who have medical or related appointments, people involved with the homemakers program, certain volunteers, and various other necessary services.

The bus service is administered by a committee headed by Art McPhee. Part of the committee's job is to maintain a list of priorities for the use of the bus service. These priorities have been approved by the Ministry of Human Resources for approval. McPhee is happy with the operation of the service but he would like to see the service expanded.

Currently the Mini-Bus service is funded only for the uses shown on the list of priorities, and for operation during regular working hours. This means that the people in this area who do not have transportation, and who cannot afford the cost of a taxi, have no way of participating in activities, day or night. For example, many people now residing in the long term care unit at St. Mary's Hospital are limited if they would like to join in any civic or social activities.

This problem might be solved if additional funding could be obtained to provide for a part-time driver and perhaps another vehicle. Money to supplement the existing service would have to be obtained from another government department and locally subscribed funds. McPhee is hopefull that a solution can be found so that our house bound, institution bound, citizens can lead a more normal life.

For Tuppert's part, she recognizes the need for a transportation service. She goes one step farther and adds a little extra to this service. She feels that the people who use the bus should enjoy the trip.

Tuppert loves the peninsula and can't think of anything nicer than being able to see the scenery every day. She hopes that her passengers regard their trip as more than just a bus service. The trip should be an adventure, especially for someone who doesn't leave home often, and she does all she can to make the ride something special.

At one time Tuppert drove a taxi here on the coast. That experience helps her to find many of the isolated homes, but it has also given her an appreciation of the needs of some of her passengers. If people have trouble getting in the bus she doesn't feel that they should have to ask for help. To save an elderly or handicapped person's pride she will try to help them, when they need it.

At the end of each day she asks herself if she has done something worthwhile. Since she started this job the answer has always been yes. But for Kathie it's an especially nice day if someone has taken the trouble to say, "thank you."

If you require the use of the Mini-Bus for a necessary appointment please call 885-5012 at least one day before the trip is required. A reminder — there is a limited number of seats on the bus and the seats are filled on a medical priority basis.

If you are in quest of a Jewel Box for someone special this Christmas, come in and see our fine selection. We will be pleased to display them for you. — Miss Bee's, Sechelt.

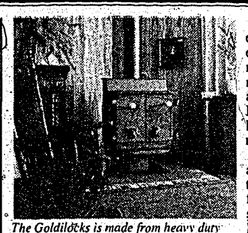
It Can Cut Mobile Home Heat Bills By 50% Or More.



The Goldilocks is made from heavy duty 1/4" and 3/16" steel. It measures 36" high x 24" wide x 26" deep, weighs 420 lbs., has a 6" flue size and accepts logs to 16".

In an age of expensive energy, saving money on heat may sound like a fairy tale. But this Goldilocks is for real.

It gives you all the advantages of the famous "Bear" series of Fisher Stoves. It meets all HUD construction and installation requirements for radiant heaters in mobile homes. It also has been tested and listed by Underwriters Laboratory (U.L.) and has passed all safety standards for radiant heaters and fireplace stoves.

UL Listed

For conventional and "energy efficient" homes, too.

The Goldilocks is designed to heat an area up to 1250 square feet (10,000 cubic feet). Normally, it's installed in homes that require a supply of outside air to feed the flames, like mobile homes or super-insulated "energy efficient" houses. But it can easily be adapted for a variety of other installations as well.

With its doors open, the Goldilocks is a fireplace that adds charm to any decor. Closed, it's a highly efficient radiant heater with exceptional temperature control.

Unlike many stoves, the Goldilocks doesn't waste the volatile gases that contain most of wood's energy. Instead, it produces almost complete combustion, and directs the flames to the stove's sides for maximum radiation of heat.

Easy to install.

There's no need for fans or ducts. The Goldilocks heats by natural convection, a method proven over hundreds of years.

And installation is simple. With proper clearance, expensive wall protection is not needed because there's a special shield built into the back of the stove.

So if you're fed up with high heat bills, here's the perfect solution.

A little beauty called Goldilocks.

Part of the beauty of every Fisher Stove is its looks. This model has nickel-plated doors.

Participate in Canada's Employment Tax Credit Program.

The Employment Tax Credit Program was introduced by the Government of Canada to stimulate employment in the private sector.

In essence, we're encouraging you to expand your work force by providing a tax break for your business.

The potential annual tax credit for each new employee is over $3,000. And there is no limit to the number of new employees you can hire.

Now, by using the experience we've gained so far, we've changed the program to make it even more attractive.

Up to 33⅓% more tax credit.

The maximum term for the tax credit has been increased from nine to 12 months for each new employee. That means up to 33⅓% more tax credit.

Greater eligibility.

We have expanded the number and types of businesses eligible to benefit. Now almost every business that's been operating in Canada for a year or more can join in.

Wider choice of new employees.

Now, almost anyone who's unemployed and registered at a Canada Employment Centre for a minimum of two weeks is eligible.

A minimum of red tape.

We've simplified the procedure, so you can do the whole thing, from beginning to end, with just two single-page forms.

For full details on the program, contact any Canada Employment Centre/Canada Manpower Centre.

Fire Dept. Survey

By Mary Tinkley, 885-9479

The Halfmoon Bay Volunteer Fire Department is planning a survey of all homes in the district and will be sending out questionnaires early in the new year to obtain the necessary information. From this survey, the firemen plan to build up a card index which will be kept permanently in the fire truck and which will enable them to give the utmost help in the event of a fire. Particularly in homes where there are children, it may make all the difference in the world if the firemen know the layout of the house and where the bedrooms are. It is hoped that all residents will co-operate in helping the firemen to help YOU.

In July, a training officer of the Vancouver Fire Marshall's office visited Halfmoon Bay and conducted a three-night course in the use of fire extinguishers and lifesaving equipment. The firemen who took the course have now received certificates from the Fire Marshall's office which will soon adorn the walls of the firehall. Further training is being planned for some of the firemen. The department has been invited to send two of its members to Vancouver for a few days' practical training in fire-fighting. During the daytime they will take a course of instruction and they will spend their evenings on call in the firehall, attending any fires to which their hosts are called.

The annual firemen's ball for all firemen of the Sunshine Coast was held last Saturday at Roberts Creek Hall, hosted by the Roberts Creek Volunteer Fire Department. Emergency crews were left to cover all districts.

The December business meeting of the department will be held on Wednesday, December 20, when winners will be drawn for the Fire Department raffle. So, if you haven't yet bought a chance on the beautiful chrome lamps, smoke alarm and fire extinguisher, tickets are available from any of the firemen or at the post office or the B & J Store.

COMMUNITY NEWS

At an executive meeting of the Welcome Beach Community Association last week it was reported that membership had now reached a figure of 141 members. Two sessions of the Christmas dinner will be held on Friday, December 15 and Saturday, December 16, both at 6:30 p.m. Members should check their tickets to see which night a place had been reserved for them. Both dinners will be catered by Helen Robertson and there is no need to bring dishes.

A party is also being planned for members on New Year's Eve at 9 p.m. at the hall. Please bring your own refreshments, including mixes, glasses, something for the snack table and $1 for admission.

High score winners at the whist drive on December 2 were Bill Fraser and Eileen Greaves, with consolation prizes going to Fred Greaves and Ella Hilder, a house guest of the Al Lawson's. Next whist drive will be on January 6 at 8 p.m.

On Tuesday, January 9 at 10 a.m. the Ladies Auxiliary to the Welcome Beach Hall will meet at the hall to plan the social evenings for the rest of the season. All ladies interested in hall activities are welcome to attend.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

The Christmas smorgasbord of the Halfmoon Bay Hospital Auxiliary had never been happier or more sparkling than it was this year in the gracious setting of the Bill Dolmage home. The ladies had surpassed themselves in the preparation of many lucious dishes, so that even the most enthusiastic weight-watchers threw caution to the wind and took no account of calories.

President Geri Smith welcomed the following new members and their husbands: Dorothy Stacey with husband Jim and Nita Haugland. She read a letter of thanks from the administrator of St. Mary's Hospital for the gift of a television set which the auxiliary had presented to the Extended Care Unit. She expressed special thanks to Mary and Bill Dolmage for the use of their home and for all the help they had given. She paid tribute to the convenors, Jean Mercer and Mary Macdonald and to all the ladies who had assisted them.

But even on such a happy occasion there was one sad note when members said goodbye to Alice Young who had been a faithful and hard-working member for many years and who was moving to Toronto. On behalf of the members, Queenie Burrows presented her with a silver souvenir spoon.

RAFFLE WINNERS

Joan Mackereth supervised the drawing of the winners in the Christmas raffle and the following were the lucky names: the afghan made by Mary Murray was won by W. Mattis of Pender Harbour, while Norma Clark of Sechelt was the winner of the painting by Mae Parsons, Evelyn Shellshear won the Christmas Cheer and John Wilson of Sechelt the grocery hamper. A special raffle for a handsome soup tureen was won by Bernie Ackerman and Alice Burdett was the winner of the mini-raffle, a centrepiece made by Carmen Grassie.

The next meeting of the auxilary will be at the Welcome Beach Hall on Monday, January 8 at 8 p.m., and not the usual first Monday of the month.

CHRISTMAS SPIRIT

With the approach of Christmas, let us spare a thought for the lonely and the sick, for whom Christmas is not necessarily going to be a happy one. One of those still in hospital at St. Mary's is Ross Conquest who seems to be enjoying visits by his old friends and neighbors.

Pender Harbour Nibbles...

Health clinic bazaar

By Queen Rat, 883-2308

The Pender Harbour Health Clinic Bazaar was held December 2. Arts and crafts folks supplied most of the merchandise and it was really beautiful.

Violet Evans, publicity chairman, said the auxiliary gives its heartfelt thanks to the people for bringing their wares to the bazaar.

There was knitting, sewing, homebaking, painting by the dabblers, ceramics, Christmas decorations, macrame, jewelry, corsages, cushions and Christmas stockings.

The refreshment counter featured sandwiches made to order, scones with cheese, Christmas cake, butter tarts and shortbread.

The children's Fea Market was a beehive of activity. It featured bookmarks, baking, plants and novelties.

Maureen Griffiths won the gingerbread house raffle. The big dog donated by Carolyn Jefferies was won by Pauline Babcock. Ted Temple's rocking horse was won by Gail Ralston. Mrs. Simmer's afghan was won by Evans Hermon. The Christmas cake decorated as a doll donated by Pauline Babcock was won by Marg Rankin. The smocked apron donated by Vi Berntzen was won by Bunny Smith. Luncheon for two donated by the Pender Harbour Hotel was won by Pat Garrison. The big brother teddy bear donated by Vi Tyner was won by Pauline Babcock. The Snoopy made and donated by Lou Farrell was won by Louisa Penson. The raffle of the floral arrangement for workers and exhibitors was won by Dot Farrell.

The labor and donations that go into organizing a successful bazaar show how much the auxiliary appreciates the health clinic.

If you missed the opportunity to help support your clinic then please be sure to give a hand next time you are called on.

Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year from the Pender Harbour Health Clinic.

Hello fellow square dancers, pull up a chair and bend an ear as I try to put all the following words in the right place, to bring you up to date on the local square dance news.

On December 2, Bert and Elaine Croston, Syd and Loraine Conroy, Tom and Gladys Parish and Louise Mason accompanied caller Harry Robertson and his good wife Deanna up to Campbell River. Harry took the spotlite on stage and according to those who went with him, did a real bang up job of square dance calling for The Campbell River Ripple Rocketts square dance club. With four sets on the floor, Harry said it was truly the greatest experience in his square dance life and that they were a great group of square dancers. It was just like being at home and although they had quite a time getting on the ferry for Comox all went well with the help of Ron and Jean Turner and a good time was had by all.

Unfortunately, no one in our club would like to write this column and unless I can go along on these square dance trips, no one ever brings back very much information, so I have to do a lot of guessing. However, my friend Jean Turner always tells the truth, so next time I see her I shall find out just what kind of a Saturday night square dance this one was like.

On December 8 it was carry on caller Harry as The Sunshine Coast Country Stars filled the floor with four sets, not bad at all. The Roberts Creek School Gym was just a jumping.

This coming Friday evening will be The Country Stars Christmas square dance party with the usual exchange of gifts at coffee time, and it will also be the last square dance of the 1977-78 square dance season, easy level with the odd hot square thrown in. All square dancers welcome.

Plans for our New Years Eve square dance are under way, so more on this next week, so be sure to go out and buy your Peninsula Times and keep in stride with the local news of our area. So with that in mind have a good day, see you at the square dance, keep a smile on your face, Christmas is just around the corner, buy, buy now.

'Now You're Logging' is a book for all

NOW YOU'RE LOGGING by Bus Griffiths. Published by Harbour Publishing. $15.

When I was introduced to this book it excited me very much.

The colorful dust-cover with the brilliant paintings was most attractive and was full of promise. The whole work is true to that promise.

Bus Griffiths spent five years of his life conjuring up the experiences he had in the forest. He added an intriguing romance to a great salty tale about the adventures of rough and ready men making their living in hard and dangerous circumstances.

All the "lingo" of the woods is carefully explained so that when one has read the book he has become so immersed in the life that he feels that he has been there. This is accomplished not merely by the written word set up by a printer and presented as such. All of the text has been carefully and clearly hand-lettered and every paragraph of it is illustrated with splendid drawings in greath depth and detail.

That the memory of it all and the imagination of the story should be executed and illustrated by one man makes this a prodigious work.

For us, living on the Coast, there is some reflected glory in the fact that Bus Griffiths lives just across the straits from us, at Fanny Bay, where he did the job, and that it is published by Harbour Publishing — just up the road at Madeira Park.

"Now You're Logging" is a book for all. Children can glean much from the clear and interesting illustrations; loggers can glory in their own memories; highly educated people can enjoy the thoroughly good work and the humblest of folk can spend a long time wading through its delights.

It is going to be a much-talked-of book.

Clinic auxiliary thanked by official

On December 6 at 7:30 p.m. Joe Harrison, vice-president of the Medical Clinic Society thanked the Women's Auxiliary in Pender Harbour for their stalwart efforts to raise money for the Medical Clinic and its equipment.

He mentioned it was 10 years since the inception of the clinic idea and the Women's Auxiliary had been an untiring element in their support to make a dream become a reality.

At this reception, held in the clinic, Ruth Kobus, president of the Women's Auxiliary presented Harrison with a cheque for the new electrocardiogram machine that was on display.

Dr. Judi Hayward explained the tracings of the electrical impulses recorded by the machine and then a film on the physiology of the heart and cardiac attacks was shown.

Forty-five people attended the reception given by the board members of the Clinic.

Coalition to take action on energy issues

NARAMATA — More than 70 delegates from 45 public interest groups from across the province met here December 1-3 and outlined the structure of the B.C. Energy Coalition (BCEC). The province's lack of a comprehensive energy policy formed the basis of unity among the delegates.

A Hot Spots Map of B.C. brought delegates up to date on over 80 energy-related projects in B.C., including: the Site 'C' dam near Fort St. John on the Peace River; Uranium exploration and mining throughout B.C.; the vast Hat Creek and other coal reserves and port expansions at Roberts Bank and at Prince Rupert; the twin 500,000 volt Cheekye-Dunsmuir transmission cables to Vancouver Island and the planned nuclear power generators for Vancouver Island.

Most important, the BCEC delegates decided to meet on a regular basis in the future and to co-ordinate action on these and other energy issues upcoming in British Columbia.

Workshops of small groups and plenary sessions discussed the following topics: communication between groups and regions, legislative action, public education, research and funding.

For further information about these or other energy issues contact either your local environmental group or the co-ordinating office of the BCEC at 2882 West 8th Ave., Vancouver, B.C. V6K 2B9. (Phone 732-9338.)

GIBSONS

Gibsons RCMP have apprehended a juvenile in connection with three recent break-ins in the area.

The youth will appear in court at a later date and face two counts of break, entry and theft and one charge of break and entry.

Police report a residence on Shoal Lookout, Gower Point was robbed of $300, tools, radios and a watch December 3, and that the Cedar Grove Elementary School was broken into the next day and $100 was taken.

All money and goods have been returned.

The Gibsons detachment is asking motorists to pay more attention to the seriousness of hit and run charges after a rash of unreported small accidents in the area.

They report five accidents with $100 to $300 damages in only three days last week in which the driver took off without reporting.

The mishaps occurred at Roberts Creek, the government wharf, SuperValu parking lot and Cedars Inn.

Police are warning that serious trouble can result for motorists convicted of hit and run offences.

SECHELT

Sechelt RCMP report that a break and entry occured at Sechelt Building Supplies sometime between December 2 and 4. Three hundred dollars in cash was stolen from a cash box after the thieves gained entry through a rear window.

Police say a glass-cutter was used.

A 1970 Maverick two-door tan color automobile was stolen from the Homestead Restaurant parking lot December 1. The car has not yet been recovered and has licence number PKG 152.

On December 2 police found a car overturned in a ditch just past the Wakefield on Highway 101. There were no occupants in the car, but the driver was later determined to be Ed Jefferies.

There was a break-in at the Sew Easy on Cowrie St. in Sechelt December 5. Entry was gained by forcing the back door and culprits pried the cash drawer open and stole a small amount of cash.

Police say the fishboat Christie Lee was reported overdue on December 6. After a search by the local police boat the boat was spotted being towed by another craft.

The 30 foot boat had apparently had mechanical trouble and had lost radio contact.

A vacant house in Madeira Park was broken into by vandals December 5. Police say the vandals damaged the interior of the house and then turned the thermostat up to 80 degrees.

Also on December 5, a CB radio was stolen from an unlocked car on Mermaid St. in Sechelt.

There was a break-in at Canadian Propane in Sechelt December 6. The hinges were removed from the rear door but nothing else was stolen.

A cassette player, hoodscoop, distributor cap and ignition wires from a 1976 Mustang were stolen from the vehicle December 7. The car was parked in the Pender Harbour Chevron station awaiting repairs.

Sgt. Bob Evans reminds motorists that roadblocks and vehicle checks will be stepped up over the festive season.

AT A SOLEMN CEREMONY at the SCRD board meeting last week, Harold Nelson, Peggy Connor, Dennis Davison, David Fyles, David Hunter, Harry Almond and Ed Nicholson were sworn in as regional board directors and alternates. Judge Charles Mittelsteadt did the honors.

Take a step in the right direction. Take a few.

False alarm sends man to jail for 2 hours

A 19-year-old former peninsula resident spent two hours in jail Wednesday and was put on probation for six months after pleading guilty to setting off a false fire alarm in Gibsons October 26.

Keith Joseph Como was also told by the Provincial Court Judge C.I. Walker to do 25 hours community work and to write a letter of apology to the fire department for making them answer the false alarm.

Asked by Walker if he had any different feeling after his brief visit to jail and if he had profited by it, the youth said he had.

Crown counsel Eric Chesterly said he thought the act is something deserving some kind of punishment because not many people who do it are apprehended.

Probation officer Neil MacKenzie described Como as an upstanding citizen who had worked in the pulp mill and was an active athlete.

He said the false alarm was an act of bravado that he had been prompted by the youth hearing about a similar false alarm set off a week before.

Como will perform his community service in Quesnel where he now lives.

In other court news, first-offender Richard Gordon Clements pleaded guilty to a charge of theft under $200 and was given a six month suspended sentence. The goods in question were welding cable and a grease gun worth $182.50.

Drinking driving charges brought fines for three motorists in court last week. All three entered guilty pleas. John Douglas A. MacKay was fined $500, Kelly Mathew Bodnarek paid a $200 fine and after an appeal for leniency from defence counsel Richard Israels, Virginia Joanne McKenzie paid a minimum $50 fine. She was given a one year probation.

The Opportunity of a Lifetime

Everyone is looking for a decent opportunity, and Tempo Products & Construction is offering you just that, a chance to have the home of your choice built to your specifications but at an affordable price. When you contract Tempo Products & Construction to build your home it will be one of quality materials, quality workmanship and quality service to you, the customer.

Of course there are reasons for everything, just as there are reasons for Tempo's low price, so let's examine a couple.

First, we build on the volume basis, so the profit figures per home are substantially lowered, reflected by the low price.

Second, a home can be built in 1 1/2 months with the proper organization and co-ordination combined with accurate & quality workmanship adding up to savings which in turn are passed on to you.

Now, then, what does this low price include?

* A complete, detailed and personalized home planning service.
* Handling of blueprints, permits and inspections.
* Thermal pane windows, complete with wood window returns & all wood trim throughout home.
* 8" ceiling & insulation, & insulated wall pockets.
* 5/8" tongue & groove sub-floor plywood, glued to floor joists & 5/8" roof plywood.
* brick chimney & fireplace
* all exterior sundecks fibreglassed.
* concrete sidewalks and driveways.

As can be seen, nothing in the home is left unfinished, because we don't know how to cut corners. Yet we maintain a low price and a quality product.

So, whether you're interested in a new home, summer home, retirement home, RRAP job or smaller ... please don't hesitate to call GREG LEMKY at 886-2706.

Remember, don't let this opportunity of a lifetime pass YOU by.

New Family First Home Programme

Applications are now being accepted under the provincial government's new Family First Home Programme, Municipal Affairs and Housing Minister Hugh Curtis announced.

"More than 7,000 inquiries have been received by the Ministry since the programme was first announced in the legislature last spring" said Curtis.

It is important to note that benefits will be retroactive on all new or used homes including mobile homes and condominiums purchased on and after April 11, 1978.

"Those eligible for the programme will be families with a dependent child under 19 who are purchasing their first ever home. This includes single parent and adoptive families" said Curtis. Eligibility is subject to residentcy requirements and the price of the home must fall within price limits established by the Ministry.

There are two options under the programme — either a maximum grant of $2,500 to be applied to reduce the mortgage, or $52.50 per month for five years to assist in meeting mortgage payments. The choice of option will be up to the applicant. The maximum value of a grant cannot exceed 20 per cent of the purchase price of a home.

Curtis said, "Among those who have written for details of the new programme, more interest has been shown in the $52.50 per month option than the outright $2,500 grant."

He added, "This is a form of assistance which should form a permanent part of direct financial help to first-time family home buyers. I hope it is something which can be enriched over the next several years."

Application forms are available at all government agents, and the Ministry's regional offices in Vancouver, Victoria, Cranbrook, Kelowna and Prince George.

The provincial government has increased the rent maximums allowable under the SAFER programme to aid elderly renters, Municipal Affairs and Housing Minister Hugh Curtis announced.

"The amendments should see increased benefits for the majority of SAFER recipients and may permit others previously ineligible to join the programme," said Curtis.

SAFER, within certain maximums, pays 75 per cent of the amount by which a senior's rent exceeds 30 per cent of his or her income. Previously, only the first $175 of a senior's monthly rent could be used in calculating the amount of SAFER entitlement. "This has now been increased to $205, as SAFER statistics and other information available to the Ministry indicates that 90 per cent of all single senior citizen renters pay rents below that figure," said Curtis. The increased rent maximum for couples is $225 per month.

The SAFER programme was introduced in July, 1977, and requires that a SAFER recipient annually re-confirm his or her eligibility. "Many seniors saw their monthly SAFER benefits recently decrease because the programme took into account their increased income over the year but could not allow for rent increases over the old maximums." Curtis added that "These revised rent maximums will see a significant increase in most SAFER recipients' benefits."

As an example, a senior citizen renter whose income was just under $300 per month, as assured under the Province's Guaranteed Available Income for Need programme (GAIN), and whose rent was $200 per month, can now receive over $80 in monthly SAFER benefits. This is an incrase of $20 per month over the benefits that could be made available to such a recipient under the old rent maximums.

The increase, effective September 1, 1978, will appear on the September SAFER month-end cheques.

Curtis said, "For those renters aged 65 or better who did not previously apply for SAFER benefits but who now may qualify, I urge that they contact our SAFER office to obtain an application form." Application forms are available by writing to:

SAFER,
Ministry of Municipal Affairs and Housing,
Parliament Buildings,
Victoria, B.C.
V8W 3E1.

and from Ministry offices throughout the Province or from the B.C. Housing Management Commission in Vancouver.

Curtis pointed out that SAFER is specifically designed to assist senior citizens with their rent payments and takes into account both income and rent in determining benefits payable. If a person's income increases over the year to a much greater extent than their rent, then he or she must recognize that SAFER benefits in future years may decrease slightly. For this reason, this increase in rent maximums will only increase the benefits of those seniors who are paying a rent greater than $175 per month for single persons and $200 for couples.

Landscaping for energy conservation

If you're landscaping a new home, prepare for energy conservation. Landscaping with trees, shrubs and fences can help reduce heat gains and losses through the shell of a house, can reduce direct radiation from the sun in summer, so cooling systems will use less energy. Dense shrubs planted next to a foundation block wind and create an insulating dead air space next to the building. The higher these shrubs grow, the more insulation they provide. Trees strategically placed provide protection from the wind and modify outside temperatures by evaporative cooling. Use deciduous trees because in summer they provide shade from sun, and in winter the bare branches allow the sun's rays to provide additional warmth and light. Air conditioners in a fully-shaded house work only half as much as air conditioners in an unshaded house, according to tests and dense shrubbery around a house saved up to 23 per cent in fuel. So plan and plant for energy conservation, a public service from the Real Estate Board of Vancouver.

New SPCA formed on Sunshine Coast

The Sunshine Coast Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals has reorganized and is starting its 1979 membership drive this month.

A public meeting will be held early in January, but in the meantime, booths will be set up in the Sunnycrest and Trail Bay Malls, and in the Madeira Park shopping centre on December 16 and 23, for the purpose of selling memberships and receiving any donations that anyone might wish to make.

If it will be difficult for members of the public to be at the shopping centres at these dates, SPCA memberships can be bought by forwarding the application below to Box 1686, Sechelt and the endorsed membership card will be mailed back. The fee is $5 for a membership valid until December 31, 1979.

The $5 membership includes $500,000 insurance coverage in the event a member's animal were to cause bodily injury or property damage to a third party.

To expedite the processing of matters requiring the attention of the SPCA, the peninsula has been divided into smaller areas. The Pender Harbour area runs from Egmont to Middle Point, the Halfmoon Bay area from Middle Point to the southern part of Redrooffs Rd., the Sechelt from the south of Redrooffs Rd. to Wilson Creek, the Roberts Creek area from the girl guide camp to the cemetery, the Gibsons from the cemetery to Langdale, and the Langdale-Port Mellon from the ferry terminal to Port Mellon.

In the event of a complaint, the public is asked to contact the assistant inspector of the area, not Len Wray. It will be the job of the assistant Inspector to assess the situation on hand and advise the inspector, Len Wray, should a seizure of the animal or some similar action be necessary.

The principle behind this approach is to expedite complaints through a local person who is closer and usually more aware of local conditions and problems. Should the local assistant inspector not be available at the time of complaint, then one of the directors should be called who will make every effort to ensure an assistant inspector is available as soon as possible.

The organisation of the new SPCA has been set up to speed up the solving of complaints. To ensure a continuity of this, the public are asked to follow the procedures as described. By-passing, such as calling Len Wray from Pender Harbour or Halfmoon Bay, will only frustrate the system and result in delay.

The officers of the new society are: Officers: President Bill Walkey, 885-2505; Vice-Pres. Doug Elson, 886-2534; Treasurer Laura McAuley, 886-7105; Secretary Catherine Long, 886-8045.

Directors: Pearl Trethewey, 886-7852; Wendy Beaudoin, 883-9279; Ken McAuley, 886-7105; Sid Miles, 885-9295; Marian Haase, 883-2369; Connie Cross, 883-9388.

Inspector: Len Wray, (Langdale-Port Mellon) 886-2664.

Asst. Inspectors: Wendy Beaudoin (Pender Harbour), 883-9279; Casey Brennan (Halfmoon Bay), 885-3903; Beverley Northway (Roberts Creek), 886-9652; Laura McAuley (Gibsons), 886-7105.

Volunteer required for the Sechelt area (Redrooffs-Wilson Creek).

Any queries as to adoption of pets, euthanasia, spaying etc. should be directed to your local director.

There will be a spay clinic available to members of the SPCA only. The cost of the operation involved will be approximately $20 for male dogs, $30 for female dogs, $17.50 for male cats and $25 for female cats.

While at the shopping centres, the public is asked to discuss any preferences and other points with the SPCA representative. It is the intention of the SPCA to service the areas thoroughly and suggestions are welcome.

SPCA PRESIDENT Bill Walkey and Brutus gear up for the society's 1979 membership drive. The 120 pound bull mastiff is 12 months old and still growing.

Gibsons auxiliary enjoys lunch

Fifty-five members and visitors of the Gibsons Hospital Auxiliary enjoyed their Christmas luncheon meeting at the Gibsons Arena. The ladies of the Curling Rink catered so well, auxiliary husbands may have suffered at dinnertime.

Ida Leslie became Mrs. Santa Claus and distributed gifts to each lady. It was fitting that the first two door prizes were won by Edna Husby and Helen Weinhandl, as these two ladies are not only hard-working members of the auxiliary, but also hard-working caterers at the Arena. Amy Blain and Margaret Inglis won the other two door prizes.

Because it was a social meeting, the business was condensed. The combined contribution through the Gift and Thrift Shops, the Extended Care Unit and Physiotherapy saw 27 volunteers work 126 hours in and for the hospital during the month of November.

Novelties and hand knit garments were displayed before going on to the Gift Shop for sale. Phoebe Blomgren's crafts were greatly admired.

The auxiliary has enjoyed catering to the Gibsons Lions Club and were happy to serve their Ladies Night, October 28, at Harmony Hall. They served a turkey dinner for the CNIB December 8 at the same hall.

The quilt is now ready to tie and have the border sewn on. Watch for it. It is lovely and well worth the $1 raffle ticket price.

Vi Harris, chairman of the nominating committee, read the slate of officers, which was adopted as presented. Pres: Joan B. Rigby, 1st Vice-Pres: Ida Leslie, 2nd Vice-Pres: Stella Morrow, Secretary: Pearl Dove, Treas: Marge Langdale.

At the January 10 meeting, 12:30 p.m. Calvary Baptist Church, Park Rd., these officers will be installed by Mrs. Vera Temoin, the area representative for the Lower Mainland of the BCAHA.

The auxiliary welcomed Evelyn Cooper, Etoile Mundell, Nancy Stewart and Mary Butler as visitors and hopefully members.

Remember, you have an opportunity to contribute to the hospital as well as send Christmas greetings to local friends, by depositing to the Gibsons Hospital Auxiliary Christmas Card account at any of the three local banks. The deadline for contributions is noon, December 15. You may also contact Amy Blain.

If you are out there in the community and looking for a place to give your time, talent and at times your treasure, join the auxiliary at its next meeting. The auxiliary will welcome you and put you to work.

THE SMILE OF NEW Gibsons alderman Lorraine Goddard may not last through all the village business of the coming year but it was there as she swore the Oath of Office and the Oath of Allegiance last week before Justice of the Peace Dan Devlin.

UBCM seminar held recently

Gibsons Alderman Dick Fitchett, Sechelt Alderman Larry Macdonald and Regional Board Director David Hunter attended the two-day seminar sponsored by the UBCM for newly-elected municipal and regional members.

Several knowledgeable mayors, senior civil servants from Municipal Affairs and professional civic officials presented excellent papers and talks on diverse municipal subjects.

These included government framework, responsibilities of mayors, aldermen and regional directors and other key topics such as planning and land use, public works and utilities, solid waste disposal, municipal finances, financial assistance and revenue sharing and housing and transit.

These two days of talks, seminars and workshops gave an excellent overview of how municipal and regional officers can best serve their constituents. — Submitted by Area F Director David Hunter.

CHRISTMAS WITH SANTA CLAUS

Christmas for Santa was very busy because he had to load the sleigh with all sorts of toys, jumping jacks, teddy bears, toy airplanes, pogo sticks, trucks, dolls, stuffed animals, bikes and all sorts of toys. His wife, Mrs. Claus, was making all homemade gingerbread and candles and little presents to put in the Children's Stockings. Then Santa put on his cap and coat and his black boots and went to hitch the reindeer, Dasher, Dancer, Prancer, Comet, Cupid, Donner and Blitzen. Then the elfs put all the toys in the sleigh and away Santa went and went to all the houses, down the chimneys and filled the stockings and when he had finished he told his wife he had finished and the next morning all the children would be happy because Santa was there.

Dear Santa,

STUCK

by Cindy Janiewick

On Christmas Eve Santa said "Hurry, Hurry, the little boys and girls are waiting".

The Elfs filled up the big bag and called Santa. He came with his bright red suit. He loaded his bag filled with toys on his sled. Then he shouted to his reindeer and flew out of sight. He stopped at a house and another and another and so on, but finally he got to a house that had left something to eat. When he looked at the food, he couldn't control himself. There were cakes, cookies, pop, fruit, candy and lots of other goodies. Then he thought he better get going. Santa was OK until he reached the top of the chimney, he got his arms and head out but he couldn't get his body out! Santa was stuck! So, he called to his reindeer but they were tied to the sled. He called his elfs, but they were too small. (They were only a foot high and too weak.) Then Santa realized he was too fat from all the goodies he ate. So Santa called for help. The little boy in the house heard Santa's cry. He came out, got a ladder and climbed up on the roof. And you know what? He pulled Santa out! So Santa said thank-you and gave the boy another special present for pulling him out. And then he flew off in his sled.

SANTA'S IN TROUBLE

by Kelly Cousins

One day I was walking in the woods, it was a cold wintery night and there was a snow storm. As I got closer to the North Pole I heard noises. I was going to see Santa, of course. Well, as I walked closer and closer to Santa's workshop the noises grew louder and louder. I was finally there. I was at Santa's workshop. All Santa's Elves weren't working and it was Christmas Eve. Then I went to talk to Santa in his house, but he wasn't there either.

So I went in the place where Santa kept all his toys when they are made. There I saw a big machine and mean looking Bear. And he had Santa and all the Elves and all the toys in glass bubbles. Could this be the end of Christmas, I thought to myself. I had to save Christmas, so I tryed to sneak in. I got in and broke the spell. The bad Bear just disappeared into thin air. Then Santa said to me "That's a job well done, how about you coming on a ride to deliver the toys with me?". So I said "Sure".

Christmas punch

By Ann

Colorful bowls of punch and taste-tantalizing appetizers add a touch of glamour to Christmastime celebrating. If you expect a large crowd, why not offer your friends a choice of two punches — Pink Perfection, made with wine, and Iced Mint Mist. Service them with your choice of appetizers.

PINK PERFECTION PUNCH

3 tablesp. cinnamin candies ("red hots")
¼ cup sugar
¼ cup warm water
1 can (46-48 oz.) pineapple-grapefruit drink
1 quart ginger ale, chilled
1 large bottle Calif. Muscot wine, chilled (light wine)

Cook the "red hots" candies, sugar and water for a few minutes until the candy dissolves. Cool. Combine with other ingredients and serve over crushed ice. This will make about three quarts.

ICED MINT MIST

2 (6 oz.) cans frozen concentrated lemonlimade
5 cups water
2 cups light rum
1 cup creme de menthe

Mix all ingredients in a large pitcher. Chill well and serve over crushed ice. For a larger party double the recipe and use the punch bowl. (The smaller recipe will make 10 to 12 servings).

ORANGE WINE CUP

4½ cups orange juice
2 bottles Reisling or other white wine, chilled
4 cups light rum
½ cup orange liqueur
sugar - orange slices - maraschino cherries or strawberries

Put the orange juice into a punch bowl. Add the wine, rum and orange liqueur. Add sugar to taste. Add plenty of ice and mix well. Garnish the punch with rounds of floating orange slices — topped with a maraschino cherry half. Will make about four quarts, enough to serve 12 to 14 people.

EMERALD CAKE (for St. Pat's Day too)

1 pkg white cake mix
1 pkg (3 oz.) lime flavored gelatin
¾ cup water
½ cup corn oil
4 eggs, unbeaten

Empty cake mix into a large bowl. Add remaining ingredients. Beat three minutes, until smooth and creamy. Pour batter into two square cake pans which have been lightly oiled and lined on the bottoms with waxed paper. Bake for 40 minutes in a 350 degree F. oven. Cool in the pans for 10 minutes. Remove the cakes from pans and finish cooling on wire cake racks. Swirl Fluffy Frosting thickly over cold cake.

FLUFFY LIME FROSTING

1 egg white
two-thirds cup granulated sugar
1 pkg. (3 oz.) lime-flavored gelatin
1 teasp. vanilla
½ cup boiling water

Combine egg white, sugar, gelatin and vanilla in a mixing bowl. Mix well. Add the boiling water and beat on high speed with electric mixer until peaks form (five to six minutes.) Makes about four cups, or enough to lavishly cover tops and sides of cake.

Best wishes from all of us to all of you for a happy holiday season.

A call for resident salmon

The following is a brief presented to the salmonid enhancement Program public meeting of December 6 by local developer Hank Hall:

RESIDENT OR WILD ONE

The heading of this submission Mr. Chairman, may seem strange to your committee, but it could well be one of the success guages of your Salmon Enhancement Program.

Sportsmen in the sport of hunting use this term often, for it is quite common to have resident or wild game or fowl, yet this term is actually unknown when we relate it to the salmon sports fishery.

Residency in the salmon fishery is becoming a new word and it is hoped that further research and concentrated effort by leaders of the Salmon Enhancement Program will create a strong resident salmon population for the B.C. salmon sports fishery.

In this regard Mr. Chairman, I take this opportunity of introducing your committee to an area which is highly suited for resident salmon and is perhaps the best area in B.C. to explore, achieve and monitor a resident salmon sports fishery program.

The inland sea is 50 miles of protected inland waterway with 150 miles of shoreline that has deep cold calm channels open to the main Jervis Inlet through the Skookumchuck, a natural control gate provided by Mother Nature.

The many creeks and rivers of the area could provide excellent resident salmon spawning channels unaccessible to vehicle traffic and accessible by the sea only, giving added security to spawning salmon and hatchery fingerlings.

Following are some of the benefits offered by our proposed inland sea resident salmon fishery:

FOR THE SALMON ENHANCEMENT PROGRAM

1. A low cost experimental proving ground for a pilot resident salmon program within 30 miles of Vancouver, yet protected from the sometime destructive habits of man.
2. Controlled access to assist in monitoring the effectiveness of the program.
3. The single entrance at the Skookumchuck creates excellent sport and commercial fishing control.

FOR THE PUBLIC AT LARGE

1. A tidal sport salmon fishery within a 2 gallon gas distance from Vancouver, or a pleasant 2 hour scenic bus and ferry ride, or 15 minutes by air.
2. An all season, all weather, wind protected sport salmon fishing area at a cost that the one plus million lower income residents of the Lower Mainland can afford.
3. A tidal sport fishery where 98 per cent of the waterfront is owned and controlled by the Government, thereby providing a low cost fishing and nature experience for the boating public.

FOR THE SUNSHINE COAST ECONOMIC BASE

1. A $1 million addition to the areas annual tourist industry.
2. Increased provincial parks branch promotion and expansion of their Sechelt Inlet overnite marine park campsites.
3. Orient Committee with Park Program. (copy of Program enclosed).

In conclusion we strongly recommend that the Salmon Enhancement Program engage in a pilot salmon residency program for Sechelt Inlets.

Tourism in the inland sea is dependent on a good salmon sport fishery, we therefore ask that a Resident Salmon Program be started in 1979 to compliment the Parks Branch Marine Campsite System.

When sports fishermen use the term resident salmon on a daily basis Mr. Chairman, we then will know that your Salmon Enhancement Program has indeed been successful.

Thank you.

Forum televised

Residents of the Sunshine Coast who were unable to attend the panel discussion on waste disposal at the recent community forum will be able to see the program on Channel 10 if you are a subscriber in the Sechelt area, tonight (December 13).

The panel discussion was taped by a professional crew from Delta Community Television in colour and we wish to express our thanks to them, and to Coast Cablevision for showing it on Cable 10. The film will also be seen in Delta. Submitted by Karl Johnston.

ON A MUDDY Sunday afternoon at the Enduro-cross, Hugh Duffy of Gibsons and his partner finished fourth in the 300 cc class.

Coast Strokers

Ouch!

By Dennis Gray

When the long race was finally over, I stumbled away from my bike looking for the train that ran over me and wondering how gravity got turned up so high that I have to walk this deep sea shuffle.

I scarcely have the strength to put one foot in front of the other, my arms hang like pulverized logs, long past feeling any pain, my back aches from the effects of my head and my tail bone trying to meet halfway, my hands tremble as I raise them to remove my helmet and they are covered with mud and blood and are steaming like a fresh gutted chicken.

The mud is everywhere, it sucks at my boots, it sticks my leathers to my butt like a mustard plaster, it's down my neck, in my ears, my teeth grit with it and my eyes are red and sore from sharing their sockets with the gritty muck.

My well of energy, a drought at the best of times is now devastated, I have none left, even my lungs which had been working like a blacksmiths bellows pulling in the raw mud chunky air, seem to require more energy than I can find to give them. I collapse in the back of the van like a ham strung hound, to lick my wounds and think on the last four hours that caused my pitiable condition.

The event was called an ENDURO-CROSS and was the best (or worst) of both sports. It was run in the pouring rain, December 3 near Abbotsford airport. The enduro was mostly a single mud rut winding through the tunnel like gloom of thick willow, over slippery roots and logs, through deep-banked creeks and knuckle busting pylon-like trees.

The moto-cross section, once we had passed the last creek, was almost relaxing by comparison. The four-hour competition was a team event with two riders riding the two and one half mile course in relays. The lap times started out at about five minutes but soon doubled that as conditions got worse and fatigue set in.

We were doing fine, riding 15 minutes and resting 15, until my partner ran out of gas in the bowels of the bush. This left us a lap behind with just one bike and one rider, an old man who was fast running out of fuel, too. My body began sending me reminders of something I already knew — I was out of shape and the last 45 minutes of the race began to feel like my last also.

It was not until I had changed to dry clothes and settled my sore buns gently in the seat for our ride home that any pleasurable thoughts entered my body. Then strangely enough I began to feel what could only be described as an insane pleasure in being encased in this worn protesting body, a satisfaction that every part of my being has been heard from, has been tested and made to earn it's keep. A pleasure in knowing that although we were far from the best there, we were the best we could be, we did the best we could do, we had utterly and completely used our resources and it felt good.

During the long day, everybody, whether first or last, passed someone, somewhere and this added a small coin of pleasure to the day's wealth also.

There was no fame, no glory, no trophy and all that racing took us nowhere, but it was a whole lot less devastating than a hangover, and though it may sound stupid, to me it is part of the challenge, the resistance so essential to life, and anyone who is truly alive has met and welcomed the challenge in their own way, whether it is in sports, business or just butting heads. Keep stroking.

Rod and gun club news

Turn out next Thursday and support the Rod and Gun Club. There is a nominating committee composed of Archie Scott and Tom Bitting. Let them know if you are willing to serve on the 1979 executive.

You can not expect the same ones to do the work all the time. There are many important issues which come up during the year and need your support.

Do you have your ticket for Saturday night? This is the club's big event of the year and merits your support. There will be a good band for the dance.

Since the Citizens' Hall was being used Friday night it was agreed to do the decorating on Saturday morning at 10 a.m. It will not be a big job but any one who is free at that time is asked to turn out and help.

A letter from the RCMP reminds all pistol shooters that the current 'Permits to Carry' expire on Dec. 31st.

All revalidations are to be submitted through the club secretary and permits must be accompanied by a notation confirming that the applicant is a club member in good standing. Permits will not be revalidated otherwise. Bring the permit to the December meeting.

There will be a Turkey Shoot December 17 at the clubhouse at Wilson Creek. There will be prizes for best score for hunting rifle, .22 and shot-gun. The shoot starts at 1 p.m. Everyone is welcome.

Magic and variety show will go on

The Sechelt Minor Hockey Association has pulled out of sponsorship of the Magic and Variety Show scheduled for Elphinstone School December 22.

The show, however, will go on under the sponsorship of the producers, Tyee Productions of Courtenay.

Association president Jim Gray said Saturday that some peninsula merchants who had sent in money for tickets may have had the wrong impression and may have thought all the money made was to go to minor hockey.

He explained that about 20 per cent of the total take would have gone to the association and about 80 per cent to the cost of putting on the show.

He said the association had contacted most of the merchants to the effect that their cheques, where necessary, were being returned. The tickets reading "proceeds to the Minor Hockey Association" were to be invalidated, Gray said.

He added that the association was still in support of the show and would be contributing to it without direct sponsorship.

Redskins nip Chiefs

By Sharon Schroeder, 883-2573

In soccer this week the Redskins played the Chiefs at Sechelt Indian Reserve field. The score at the end of the game was Redskins 2, Chiefs 1. The goals for the Redskins were made by Stuie Creighen and Timmy Joe.

FISHING REPORT

Despite the nasty weather we've been having, the fishing hasn't slowed down at all. Out at Keats Island everyone has been out first thing in the morning and fishing off the docks down by the cable sign. They have been catching 16 to 22 pound spring salmon and they've been catching them early in the morning. The fishing seems to slow down a bit before afternoon.

By MURRIE REDMAN

BUSH POEMS by Peter Trower, Illus. by Bus Griffiths, Harbour Publishing c1978. PS by Pam Benner and Sharron McMillen,

Peter Trower is recognized nationally now as an indigenous B.C. poet. His training was taken at the life level. He was a logger, and is a member of the common people. Common poet he is not, however. He turns out images, metaphors and superb word combinations that would make even the best educated aspiring poet envious.

BUSH POEMS is one of the finest collections I have read in a long while. It presents joy in work, in fellow workmen, in the forest. It tells of violent accidents that occur to man and beast in the tough work of the logger. It reminiscences about the days when logging was mostly hand labour.

Trower's language is forth-right and honest. It cusses when suitable and whispers gently when needed. It is loud with word sounds of a mechanized industry and soft in the stillness of a deserted ghost camp. It is perfection in description.

When writing to "The Last Spar-Tree on Elphinstone Mountain":

Dream on in peace old tree,
perhaps you're a truer monument to man than any rocktop crucifix in Rio De Janeiro.

And in "The Mountains-The Valley":

Around us now
the house huge boulders of an ancient rockslide that built its town of ruin before men came beyond, a glory hole of stumps pitching to the glacial river.

When writing about the summer's "Early Shift":

At four-thirty a.m.
by the ghostly gas station
a piece of silver paper wind-scratching across the asphalt is a noisy insect for the nerves.

Bus Griffiths' drawings make apt companionship with Trower's words. He has captured the heavy mountain rain, the silence of the snows there and the strength of the men who work on the woods. I not only recommend that you read Trower, I predict that he will stand along side others like Robert Service and Mark Twain as a people's poet par excellence.

Pam Benner and Sharron McMillen are to be thanked for offering their intimate moments in PS, a collection of little poems that allow us to share in human communion, a gamut of emotions about love, sadness and worship.

While the Delta 10 television crew was here last Sunday to film the Community Forum it also taped four interviews with pioneers of the Sunshine Coast which will become a part of a series "Window on the West" presently running on Community Channel 10 in the Lower Mainland.

Bert Nelson, a former CBC staff announcer and now a resident of Wilson Creek talked with Ada Dawe of Sechelt, Richard Reeves of Robert's Creek and Ida Higgs and Ted Winegarden of Gibsons about their memories of earlier days in this area. The tapes will be edited to a series of half hour interviews and will include still photographs from the collection in Elphinstone Pioneers Museum.

It will be shown by Coast cablevision over our Channel 10, sometime in January — the date will be announced.

MINDOR EIDET really has a steak in the Elves Club. The Burnaby man bought a raffle ticket from the group and was the lucky winner of a hindquarter of beef. Barrie Thomas of Gibsons won the second prize of a turkey and Irene Sheppard of Pender Harbour came away with third prize of a ham.

Cheekye line does not justify nuclear plant

B.C. Hydro's vice president for corporate affairs, Charles W. Nash, today branded as "nonsense" some critics' suggestions that Hydro is planning a new 500,000-volt powerline to Vancouver Island for the purpose of transmitting nuclear power to the mainland.

In an address to the Rotary Club of Chemainus, Nash said: "If a nuclear plant had been acceptable it could have been built years ago with a capacity of two million kilowatts — to assume the bulk of the Vancouver Island load — and to use existing submarine cables to transmit the balance of the capacity back to the mainland.

"While there are merits to nuclear generation, there is no need for a new 500,000-volt circuit to justify a nuclear plant," he said.

The coming 500,000-volt cables, to be built from Cheekye substation on the mainland to Dunsmuir on the Island at a cost of $350 million, will not be in service until fall, 1983.

"For this reason Hydro has had to say to some large industries that have only recently asked for more power for expansion — 'sorry, please wait until the new submarine circuit is in service.'

"What are the alternatives?" he asked. "Is there not a quicker and less costly solution?"

There are alternatives, he suggested, "but considering the timing, cost, and environmental impacts, none of them is practical."

Listing the alternatives, Nash said the Island's undeveloped hydroelectric potential is small and has environmental drawbacks; a nuclear plant could not be ready in time; oil-fired turbines are too expensive to operate; the limited surplus hog fuel available is needed to replace fuel oil in the forest industry, and the contributions from alternate forms of energy over the next 20 years is likely to be small.

"Perhaps there could be some subtraction from the load which would help bring supply and demand most closely into balance," he suggested.

"Some of the options for reducing the rate of growth are industrial co-generation, gas supply for the Island, peak load control, alternate forms of energy, and the positive efforts toward conservation and more efficient use of energy."

The possibility of natural gas being supply to the Island by pipeline is being studied by Hydro and the B.C. Energy Commission. If this plan proves to be workable, it could reduce further growth in electric space heating and water heating loads, but even so it could have no effect before 1983, Nash said.

"Probably the most effective means of controlling the rate of load growth is for everyone to get serious about practicing conservation," Nash advised.

"Hydro encourages people in a number of ways to adopt this attitude."

Christian Science

"A word to the wise is sufficient". So goes an old saying. How often we yearn to say what is meaningful and helpful to one who needs helpful guidance or who has suffered loss.

"Wise sayings and garrulous talk may fall to the ground, rather than on the ear or heart of the hearer; but a tender sentiment felt, or a kind word spoken, at the right moment, is never wasted." (Misc. Writings by Mary Baker Eddy Pg. 127.)

The Garden Corner

The earth resteth

By Guy Symonds

A chap named George Herbert who lived in the 17th century wrote some beautiful poetry. Beautiful, that is, judged by standards that until recent years allowed such decisions. Today if a writing rhymes and scans it cannot qualify as poetry, which as some would have it has abandoned all form and execution in favour of the one over-riding principle — that it is thought needing expression. the reader must do the rest.

Anyway, when Herbert said "the earth resteth" at this time of the year he described it as a "cupboard of food" or a "cabinet of pleasure."

But while the poetic thought may stir the imagination, the farmer and gardener are concerned with the hard facts. The hardest of these is the condition of the earth or soil as it is called in the trade, which constitutes the cupboard or cabinet.

In a series offered by the provincial government one pamphlet deals with the soil in relation to the organic matter it contains.

The first thing to realize about this life-giving and life-saving layer of a few inches which we take so much for granted, is that this is all that stands between man and annihilation.

Worth, one would say, a little thought.

The second thing is that this is not an inert substance, if it were it would not support life. On the contrary it is living matter composed of untold millions of micro organisims and the substances that are manufactured by them. Moreover, these micro organisms are in a continual state of development and disappearance or rather conversion as the organic matter, the billions of insect carcasses and vegetable matter in varying stages of decomposition, break down into the inorganic elements which make up plant food. When fresh organic matter is added the many different micro organisms "bloom" and the effect is seen on the vegetation.

Once the easily decomposible portion is used up, the micro organism population dies back, slowly liberating inorganic nutrients for plant use. The rest of the decomposing material is now "humus" and slowly breaks down over a long period of time. Meanwhile it is doing a terrific job. Even its dark color is valuable since this absorbs the light and raises the soil temperature.

It binds together fine particles but breaks down the heavy clays thus vastly improving the physical condition of the soil, aerating it and allowing the water to penetrate. It acts as a reservoir of plant nutrients and prevents soil erosion with consequent loss of nutrients.

From that very inadequate sketch of what the soil has to do, it is possible to appreciate its tremendous importance and the vital necessity of preserving and encouraging it to function as it was intended.

Humus is not as easy to come as it was in the days when a large part of the population was engaged in agriculture. It was held in such high esteem in the England of a bygone day that an agreement between landlord and a tenant farmer might contain a proviso that a stated amount of "old process" linseed cake, that is with a good proportion of the oil left in it, should be fed actually out in the pastures, so as to be sure that values should be maintained. As for selling a spoonfull of manure off the farm, that was just about equivalent to high treason and brought severe penalties.

This soil maintenance is of course the reason for the compost heap and the measure of its importance to the garden.

The nutrients can be supplied in chemical or inorganic form but nothing can take the place of the humus if it is allowed to disappear by neglect.

Drainage and fertility go hand in hand. While organic matter will accumulate more rapidly in poorly-drained land, the lack of oxygen due to the presence of water prevents its decomposition by the micro organisms that cannot exist without it.

Man, in his impatience to get more and get it quickly, tries all kinds of short cuts. The science of "hyponics" for example has developed the technique of growing things using nothing but chemical nutrients in water solution. Interesting, but at the moment not practical. Then because we want tomatoes in a season when Nature doesn't want to grow them, we have to resort to soilless agriculture, growing these fruits in sawdust to avoid apparently unavoidable soil fungi. But overall it is this "cupboard of food and cabinet of pleasure", the earth under our feet that we must rely upon to feed our people — and its care is our responsibility.

Christmas Seal campaign goal $4,800 on coast

The 1978 Christmas Seal campaign has reached the half-way mark in its goal to raise $700,000.

Target for the Sunshine Coast area is $4,800, $1,900 having been raised as of December 4. The Christmas Seal Committee Chairman is Patricia Murphy of Halfmoon Bay.

The actual dollars received are a little less than at the same time last year, but may be due in part to postal disruptions in early November when the Campaign was launched reports Bill King, President of the B.C. Lung Association.

With all homes in British Columbia having now received Christmas Seals in their mail box, donations are beginning to pick up he says, and he is optimistic that the campaign goal will be reached.

King also said that the recent change of name to the British Columbia Lung Association — it was formerly the British Columbia Tuberculosis-Christmas Seal Society — now indicates more accurately to the public the modern wider scope of the Association's work.

With tuberculosis now a controllable disease, the present thrust of research funded by Christmas Seal dollars is centred on asthma, chronic bronchitis and emphysema — the most rapidly growing group of diseases in Canada today. It is perhaps not generally known that an estimated 5.8 million Canadians suffer from some form of lung disease.

Christmas Seal dollars are used not only to support medical personnel but to assist with capital expenditures. The recent purchase of an electron microscope for the Pulmonary Research Laboratory of St. Paul's Hospital allows magnification almost one million times, allowing researchers hitherto unavailable data. In co-operation with another agency, the purchase of a mobile lung function testing unit will take a fully equipped laboratory to the workplaces of British Columbia in the investigation of occupational health hazards.

Volunteer helpline

Volunteers help others learn a variety of skills

The educational opportunities available here on the Sunshine Coast have been improved through the efforts of volunteers. These volunteers must be very patient people who care about helping others learn. Through their efforts with others they gain added insight, and the pleasure of helping someone else.

Some volunteers are working as teaching assistants. These people make it possible for the regular teacher to provide a better program and give those who need it a special helping hand. These volunteers have a variety of life skills. Some are former teachers, some have been secretaries, some have spent most of their life being homemakers, but all have one common characteristic — they like, and care for, children. If they have expertise they assist in planning and developing programs. Otherwise they are trained by the teachers.

In Sechelt, Hilda Mackinnon has set up a remedial math program and Nancy Steward is implementing a language development program for children with speech problems. Helen Hall works on a one-to-one basis with children.

In Gibsons, Val Marus and Marjorie Wilson help children to improve their reading skills. They might sit and listen to a child read aloud, or spend time helping the child to recognize single words.

Madeira Park has volunteers helping as teaching assistants. Volunteers like Pam Anderson and Barb Lewes work on an individual basis with students. They help students to increase their attention span so that they can work better on their own. They might work with a student at the Craig Controlled reader, or help a student improve his spelling.

Without exception, the teachers, the students, and the volunteers find this co-operative effort to be very rewarding. The schools are pleased to be able to increase the child's opportunities through the use of volunteers; and are especially happy with the volunteers who have given their time. Students reach new goals in learning when they are given this individual attention and their self esteem grows. The volunteers feel good when they can be part of this growing experience.

Helping in the educational field extends far beyond the scope of the school. People like Ted Dinsley help at the Achievement Workshop. This is a special facility set up to give the retarded a practical learning place of their own. Art McPhee and Verla Hobson tutor a blind adult. They have opened a whole new world of learning for him as they have assisted him with his high school studies, and by also being a special friend, Belle Dube visits, and reads to an almost blind woman. Thus the woman is able to keep abreast of the subjects which she so enjoys.

At this time of year people are putting all of their energies in the Christmas festivities and don't usually think about getting involved with new projects. However, it might be a good time to think about what you may be able to do in the new year. Here area few volunteer opportunities to consider:

Through continuing education, adults are learning English as a second language. Some of these students need individual assistance beyond the classroom setting. Perhaps you would like to listen to a person read in English, or help by dictating some material, or just spending time talking casually with the student. The more precise English that a person hears, the quicker a person can master the new language. Volunteers are needed in Gibsons, Roberts Creek and Sechelt.

Volunteers are needed to assist in regular classrooms, and in the learning assistance area. A person must be willing to commit himself on a continuing and regular basis.

If you have some skills in a craft area that you would like to share with some students, your help is needed on a short term basis.

A volunteer is needed to work with a teenager, helping him with his speech. The helper must have patience, read easily, hear well, and be willing to spend and hour several times a week.

Assistants are needed for a gymnastics program for school age children in Madeira Park. Have you had any dance training, or previous involvement with gymnastics? As long as you are interested in gymnastics, and are willing to learn, you will be trained to be an effective teaching assistant. This is one area where it is absolutely necessary to have many trained assistants helping the students on an individual basis. Can you free yourself for two hours in the evening, or at 8:15 a.m. for one hour.

A volunteer is needed to help a blind student with a typing course. This would involve taping the lessons and then supervising the individual's progress.

If you are interested in becoming a volunteer in any of these programs after Christmas, or you would like to investigate any other possibilities, please call the Sunshine Coast Community Resource Society's Volunteer Bureau at 885-3821. If you are aware of any areas where volunteers are needed, please pass this information along to the bureau. There is usually someone in the community who is willing to fill that need.
