Alternate route proposal splits Cheekye-Dunsmuir opponents

By Helen Parker

An alternate route for the B.C. Hydro Cheekye-Dunsmuir 500 kv transmission line suggested by the Sakinaw Lake Property Owners and Leaseholders Association has upset two Earl's Cove residents who feel they have been "double-crossed."

The Sakinaw Lake group proposed a route which would travel up Sechelt Inlet and cut overland through Doristron, Earl's Cove, Egmont and the Ambrose Lake Ecological Reserve and would include building a substation on approximately 30 acres in an Earl's Cove residential area.

This route was the main topic on the agenda of a two-hour meeting chaired September 6 by SCRD chairman Ed Nicholson and which included B.C. Hydro's Charles Nash and Eamon Crowley, ELUC representative Brian Gates, members of the Sakinaw Lake association, Pender Harbour Ratepayers and residents from Egmont and Earl's Cove.

"We feel it wasn't a very nice thing for them to do," Mrs. Ethel Williams of Earl's Cove said.

"We're all fighting Hydro together and we felt they let the association (Cheekye-Dunsmuir Alliance) down by this suggestion.

Mrs. Williams and her husband Doug attended the meeting to register their protests on behalf of Earl's Cove residents to the alternative route which they heard about only "10 days" before the meeting.

Mrs. Williams said there was "no way of hiding" a huge substation which would be built on the top of a hill.

"Surely there is another place they can put it without interferring with the people's lifestyles," she said.

"We are not summer people here."

The 10 permanent residents, mostly old-age pensioners, depend on radio and television, she added.

Howie White of the Pender Harbour Ratepayers said the proposal accomplished nothing, but created a "bit of a split" between the Sakinaw Lake and Earl's Cove-Egmont people.

"It also puts them (Sakinaw Lake group) in an unflattering light which may reflect on their credibility with Hydro," White said.

"The Sakinaw Lake people are under the gun now the line is going through. They are feeling desperate, but I don't feel it has done them any good.

"I don't feel the route they have put forward is viable."

Aside from a "monstrous" substation in an Earl's Cove residential area, the route would cross over Waugh and North Lakes, water sources for the area, and Klein Lake, a recreational reserve.

The right-of-way would expose an "extensive piece of Sechelt Inlet from Storm Bay to Doriston," White said where the present route proposal cuts across Sechelt Inlet and "into the trees."

Other disadvantages would be the unsightliness to marine traffic on Agamemnon Channel and environmental impact on the Ambrose Lake Ecological Reserve.

"It's main advantage would be that it would get the line out of Sakinaw Lake and the Pender Harbour watershed, but it would have these other serious drawbacks," White said.

This proves further "there is no acceptable route across the peninsula," he added, and this will continue to be the Ratepayers' position.

Because the agenda was so limited, there was no discussion on economic consultant Marvin Shaffer's recommendation B.C. Hydro conduct a cost-benefit analysis.

There was also an "off-hand dismissal" by B.C. Hydro on attempted discussion of the underwater route from Reception Point, Halfmoon Bay to Nile Creek.

On the Reception Point to Nanoose Bay underwater route, "Hydro once again reiterated it was acceptable," White said.

"In Eamon Crowley's words, Hydro would love to go that route."

Once over to Nanoose Bay, however, a 30-mile overland corridor would have to be cut to get the line up to Dunsmuir which could cause "terrible devastation" to Vancouver Island.

"For the first time it was mentioned the Dunsmuir station could be moved down to Nanoose Bay," he siad.

White said the alliance will press for "a wider frame of reference" to discuss Shaffer's recommendations if a public hearing is granted for all areas affected by the line.

"If we can only discuss environmental problems, then we will still take it (public hearing)," he said.

Nicholson said it is still the position of Sunshine Coast Regional Board "there is just no suitable route through the peninsula."

He could see "no point in holding further meetings to explore the northern route" and if Hydro proceeds over the objections of the residents it would be "extremely unfortunate."

"If the line is necessary, and not too many people are convinced of that, the best place is the Reception Point take-off and Vancouver Island should take a hard look at the landing point," Nicholson said.

"If Vancouver Island is so desperate for power, they should be prepared to consider the environmental impact on the island."

In a statement at the meeting, Mrs. Iris Griffith of Egmont sympathised with the island's need for power:

"We must be ready to accept inconveniences, maybe even some dangers because across the Gulf of Georgia it could mean economic life or stagnation, people's jobs, their standard of living, perhaps even whether or not they can continue to live on the beautiful island," Mrs. Griffith said.

"Most of us here (at the meeting) may think this transmission line is the best way to bring power to the island.

"I can agree with the reasoning of the people who think this way, but many of my neighbors and I are suspicious of the facts on which that reasoning is based.

"So far as we know, almost all the figures and conclusions have come from B.C. Hydro. . ."

Mrs. Griffith added if the line is "needed or not, ugly or not, there is one impact we can and should avoid."

"The large land surface of a power line right-of-way should not be regularly coated with a herbicide.

"If anyone wants to argue in favor of herbicides on this line, feel free. Just please don't bring in the subject of comparative costs.

"Any outfit that wants to spend a billion dollars without checking to see if it is necessary you can call a lot of names, but you can't call it hard-up."

IT WAS BACK to school last week for the students of School District No. 46. While administrators puzzled over such things as over-enrolment at Elphinstone Senior Secondary and under-enrolment at Chatelech Junior Secondary and the mysterious appearance of more Grade 11's then planned for, Halfmoon Bay students in grades one to three were above all that and just spent a quiet Friday afternoon.

Strike threat drives business owners bats

Threats of strike by ferryworkers have driven tourists away and are driving some business owners to distraction.

Tyee Airways is one business where the threat of a strike "sure raises hell," chief piilot Ted Keniston said.

Unsure whether the ferries are running, people book flights. Once they learn they won't be stranded on the other side of the strait or sound — "they not only don't show up (for the flight), they don't even phone to cancel reservations," he said.

"Not cancelling reservations is one of our biggest costs."

If the ferryworkers do strike, Tyee will provide an "airbus service" to Vancouver, "every hour on the hour."

"People will have to come in and take their chances," Keniston said. "We just can't take reservations."

The Nanaimo schedule will probably remain the same as will up-inlet flights on which logging camps rely.

The resort business is suffering also. Owner of the Bella Beach Motel in Davis Bay Mrs. Tuija Haikonen said, "There have been lots of cancellations.

"Usually at this time, it (business) should be good. Fishermen and older people come over because the children are back in school and they won't come because of it (threat of strike)."

Sunnycrest Motor Hotel owner Matt Mooney said last week it has been "pretty slack in the last few days."

However, he said, "it's hard to say whether it's the ferries or the weather."

Manager of the Pender Harbour Auto Court Em Stait said, "it's not very good for business."

The Auto Court has not been as "badly hit this year, because we had CBC here," she said.

In other years, however, threats and strikes have left "all the cabins available" when week-long visitors have cancelled their reservations.

Peter Benjafield of Fisherman's Resort, Garden Bay is angry at the overall effect of threatened strike action on the economy of the coast.

"People just don't make arrangements to come here in the future when the travel is unreliable," Benjafield said.

"Even at the hint of a strike, people leave." We don't have any campers here."

"It's not only us. People don't buy gas

Grade 11 population boom

An "unexpected number" of Grade 11 students appeared at Elphinstone Secondary School last week which has the School District No. 46 administration "baffled," secretary-treasurer Roy Mills said.

"Usually, you have a pretty good idea how many grade 11s you're going to have," Mills said.

"We don't know where they came from. The growth in the district is still small, but it's definitely there."

At the most, 175 Grade 11s were expected to show on the first day. As of September 7, 205 Grade 11s were registered at Elphinstone.

Superintendant John Denley last week was studying the situation, which could cause program space problems.

"The school is full," Denley said. "We're analysing the program and the need and standing by to add teachers or facilities.

As of September 7, 655 students were enrolled at Elphinstone. At the end of June 639 students were enrolled and estimates for September enrolment was 600.

The optimum capacity of Elphinstone, based on education ministry requirements, is 538, Denley said.

"We have portables there," he said. "But even with the portables, it's a tight squeeze."

This year is projected as the peak enrolment year by the ministry for this district.

However, Denley said, "it will hit us next year, by the feeling of the district."

In the meantime, Elphinstone will be full for the next two years.

While Elphinstone may be over-enrolled, Chatelech's enrolment has decreased from 243 to 218 this September.

This also may affect staffing and programming.

"It may mean pulling a teacher out and we don't want to do that," Mills said.

Overall enrolment in the district has exceeded the estimate for 1979. An increase of 40 full-time equivalent students were expected when school doors opened September 4, but as of September 5, 105 more than last year were taking their places in the classrooms.

Kindergarten students, counted as half-time students, topped the estimate of 190 to 195 students at 206 (or 103 fulltime equivalent).

Including kindergarten students, enrolment for the district is 2,700 full-time equivalent students.

The significant increase in kindergarten students showed up at Sechelt Elementary where 33 students necessitates a full-time kindergarten.

Co-op will seek court ruling

The Elphinstone Co-operative's vote to go into voluntary liquidation may be inconclusive, but its doors will close either by foreclosure or by voluntary liquidation says the President.

Co-op president Fred Holland told the Times the Co-op is faced with foreclosure by the Federated Co-op, who is owed $130,000, but hopefully a judge in the B.C. Supreme Court sometime this week will allow the Co-op to go into voluntary liquidation.

Following a legal opinion which invalidated a ruling by acting chairman Eric Inglis that a favorable resolution by the membership to go into voluntary liquidation, the Co-op's board of directors decided to go to the courts to allow them to go into voluntary liquidation before their creditors foreclosed.

"Our creditors (federated Co-op) are going to force us into bankruptcy, but by applying to the courts for a ruling, we hope to gain more time for disposal of our assets. Which means we should be able to get a better deal," Holland said.

The reason the vote failed was 75 per cent of the membership voting must be in favor of an extraordinary resolution. One hundred and nine voted. Eighty-seven voted to support the resolution, 27 voted to defeat it and one ballot was spoiled. If the spoiled ballot was counted as representing a voting member present, which it was by the legal opinion, the resolution failed with a percentage of 74.3.

The acting chairman had ruled the spoiled ballot was not to be counted, but his decision was eventually overturned.

Meanwhile, the board of directors hopes to convince the courts they should go into voluntary liquidation, rather than being foreclosed by the Federated Co-op.

Despite Federated Co-op's threats, Holland still doesn't hold any animosity towards them.

"They were called a lot of bad names at the general meeting and I don't think it was fair. If I was owed as much money as we owe them, I would have done the same thing.

"They have been trying to help us for over a year and now that we have gone against their recommendations they are going to foreclose on us. Yes, I think that is fair," Holland said.

He also said the Co-op was losing more money now because they were forced to hire lawyers and "lawyers certainly don't cost peanuts."

The Co-op presently is only clearing stock and will be making no further purchases of goods. Holland said there would be another general meeting once the legal implications are cleared up.

Hospital ceremonies

St. Mary's Hospital Board of Trustees cordially invite all residents of the Sunshine Coast to attend the opening ceremonies of the Addition and Renovations of St. Mary's Hospital on September 22, 1979 at 1400 hours.

Refreshments will be served following the ceremonies and guided tours.

Joint-use facility committee to decide on sites

The purchase of Len Van Egmond property for the Joint Use facility has run into a snag as the regional and school boards have indicated to the Village of Sechelt they don't like the location of the property.

A joint-use facility committee meeting was tentatively scheduled to take place Tuesday afternoon to discuss all the property proposals.

Alderman Morgan Thompson told the Times the meeting will be a sit down session. The village will go over all the available property and give the pros and cons to the representatives from the school and regional boards.

"We understood that we were to go ahead and buy the property for the joint-use facility, but now we find out that the regional board and the school board don't like what we have chosen.

"I guess it was a misunderstanding. We were working under a very loose agreement with the regional and school boards," Thompson said.

SCRD chairman Ed Nicholson said it was a matter of clarification.

"We had to clarify with the village that we feel we should have been consulted on the location of the site. We wanted to be located centrally in the village if that is possible," Nicholson said.

He also said the Egmond property wasn't a convenient site and it required rezoning as well as quite a bit of fill.

"There are several difficulties with it, but we also realize there is a limited number of sites available in the village. Other than the Shorncliffe site, it is my understanding there isn't another site which is convenient," Nicholson said.

Alderman Larry MacDonald pointed out there was only five or six places and the Egmond place was the best one considering the purchase price.

MacDonald said at the moment the Egmond property might be inconvenient, but if the community plan is followed, its location will be a good one.

"If you look at the community plan, the property touches on two connector roads and when the Highway 101 bypass is built it will be in a good location," MacDonald said.

Despite, The Village of Sechelt's moves to purchase the property, no firm agreement on the cost sharing and ownership arrangment between the Village and the other two parles has been arranged.

Nicholson said SCRD was still waiting for confirmation on its request to borrow the needed money before it would be willing to enter a legal commitment.

Divide and conquor

If B.C. Hydro could grin, it would have a large happy face smile the size of a Cheekye-Dunsmuir line following the meeting between them and local opponents.

Divide and conquer is the oldest game in the book, but usually you have to play some dirty game to accomplish it. B.C. Hydro didn't have to, the Cheekye-Dunsmuir Alliance did it to themselves.

By proposing the alternate route which will travel up Sechelt Inlet and cut overland through Doriston, Earl's Cove Egmont and the Ambrose Lake Ecological Reserve, the Sakinaw Lake Property Owners and Leaseholders Association have played right into the hands of Hydro.

It's no wonder the Earl's Cove residents feel double-crossed, but worse yet, the Sakinaw group has probably given Hydro an excuse to continue on the original route across Sakinaw Lake.

Hydro can now argue there is no viable alternate route which will make everyone happy.

Goodbye to the Co-op

Its sad to see the Elphinstone Co-op go down the drain, but we believe the majority decision by the board of directors was a correct one.

Any smart businessman knows when a company is losing as much money as the Co-op has for the past three years, it's best to cut your losses as much as possible by going out of business.

Those who argue the society should keep going, but sell the building to pay off the debt obviously wouldn't make good monopoly players or, for that matter, businessmen.

Sure the Co-op has been running for over 60 years, but when a business is in as much trouble as the Co-op is, starting from scratch is a much better proposition than trying to make such a losing proposition work.

Particularily when you consider just under 75 per cent of the members in attendance wanted to go into voluntary liquidation.

Valid and pertinent information was not downplayed at the meeting, the majority of people were just looking at the problem in a realistic manner — If they continued to run the store, the losses would increase and any equity left in the building could be lost.

The Co-op in Gibson was suffering from a terminal case of poor location and lack of parking. And by the age and number of people who turned out to the meeting two weeks ago, it looked as if it just didn't have very much new blood in it.

The alternatives given by opponents of the liquidation were not thought out nor were they presented in a way in which the members present could make a sensible decision on them.

Yes it would have been nice if the Co-op could have survived, but its present financial position just doesn't allow it. We hope those members who wanted to keep it open will start a direct charge co-op on their own and we will be the first ones to wish then all the best of luck.

So long to Mary

The newspaper business tends to be one of high turnovers, writers, reporters and editors come and go with the same frequency the ferry workers threaten strike action.

Quite often the only thing which is consistent about a newspaper is its inconsistency, which is why the Penninsula Times and our readers will miss our long time Halfmoon Bay columnist Mary (Tinkley) Shannon who is writing her last regular column for us this week.

Mrs. Shannon has been a regular contributor to the community pages of the Times since the mid-sixties. She has outlasted more editors than we care to count and during that time Mrs. Shannon has provided us with many an entertaining insight into the world of Halfmoon Bay.

Mary who is just recently married wants to take a rest and to travel with her new husband. We wish her the best of luck and from all of us who have enjoyed her column over the years — we will miss you.

My major fault

by Helen Parker

My major fault, or at least the one which rates up there with eating, talking and sleeping too much, is leaving things until the last minute. An analyst would have something suitably analytical to say about it.

My excuse is I work better under pressure, but the truth is I just can't bring myself to do anything ahead of time, including this column which is always the last thing I write.

I hope every week maybe there won't be enough room on the editorial page for it and this week I've managed to leave it so long there's only a few inches left.

I never wanted to write it regularly. I think I should only write it when I have something to say. Of course, if I had it my way, I'd never have anything to say, which a number of people think anyway.

In case anyone was wondering what the black splotch is at the top of this column, it's a line drop-out of me and a camera. It's meant to make me look "on the job."

I fought against having any picture until the editor threatened to print the one of me reading the Vancouver Sun career opportunity ads at my desk — when I probably could have been writing this column.

Letters to the Editor

"It's grand" to be needed says granny

Editor,
The Times:

I would like to thank all the people, who phoned me in answer to my "Granny for hire" ad. My phone never stopped ringing. When my husband passed away June 30, 1979 the thing I missed most was the business phone. It became silent.

Do your grandparents realize how needed you are?

I have had 12 calls in two days from women with children, who say my children have a grandma in England, Scotland, Toronto, Vancouver, Winnipeg, Courtenay, Parksville, North Van, Nanaimo, Delta, Burnaby and Edmonton. "She can't come. Will you take her place and be our grandma?".

What a feeling to be so needed. It's grand. I see a need from six young women with children, raising them alone, on a small wage and finding it tough to find a sitter they can really trust like they would a "grandma".

I had two girls who phoned sounding very young, asking if I could please be their grandma, as grandma, wasn't around any more and they just missed them so awful bad.

I have had two distress calls in the night, which I was very happy to answer. It is wonderful to be needed. The reward of a loving child calling me "grandma" is something all the money in the world couldn't buy.

I see a real need for a big sister club. Are there any "grandmas" wanting a job? Put an ad in the paper. You will be swamped.

I have seven and three-quarter grandchildren of my own and seven children, now I have lots more. A small girl asked me last night, "Did I give presents at Xmas to all my grandchildren" including her? Do you know the answer? I don't yet.

They all ask me, "Where is your grandpa" We need a grandpa too.

So I tell them to put an ad in the local paper. "Wanted a loving kind grandpa, who buys ice-cream and tells stories." They might just find one. They miss a grandpa too.

Volunteer tutors needed

Editor,
The Times;

An Adult Basic Education program will be available this fall, sponsored by Continuing Education.

ABE will be taught to adults who cannot read or write and to those who want to become better at it. Basic Reading and Writing will be taught on a one to one basis.

Volunteer tutors are needed. The volunteers will be assisted and guided by a teacher. The teacher-co-ordinator will match volunteers and students and plan individual programs. Help is also needed in the passing the word along to prospective students. Many who hide their inability to read and write will be relieved to find a solution to their problems. All inquiries will be treated confidentially. There is a $5 registration fee, but the course is free.

For information and registration call Continuing Education, 885-3512. If you wish to find out more about tutoring, leave your name with the Volunteer Bureau, 885-5881.

I trust that all members had a good summer and that they managed to get in a little resting because the business transacted and the plans laid at the Executive Meeting indicate that we have a busy Fall Season ahead of us.

Carpet Bowling will commence on Sept. 17, make a note of the date all you bowlers who have managed to clean up the garden. No definite date has been set for the commencement of Dancing because some members of the Orchestra were away.

There will be a Plant and Flower Sale Sept. 29th. with Coffee and sandwiches being available. This event will open at 10 a.m. Gardeners get your Plants potted up ready for this day.

Eva Killian advised us that the Ways & Means Committee had invited Joe Benner who had donated the Table which will be raffled at the Fall Bazaar, to attend and open the bazaar on Oct. 27. I hope many of you have seen this magnificant table. It is well worth while buying some tickets to have this table in your living room.

It was decided to hold the Christmas Dinner on Dec. 13th. The Branch will absorb half of the cost of the Dinner but the cost to the membership cannot be decided until quotations are received. The membership list will be closed as at Oct. 31st. for the purpose of this Dinner.

Dave Hayward advised that he was making plans for a trip to Coquitlam but could not give a firm date at the moment and also reminded us that the Photo Contest would close at the end of Sept. with the prize-winner being announced at our October meeting.

At the time of the Executive Meeting the membership stood at 311 and we would expect to see this grow as soon as we swing into Fall Activity with our General Meeting of Sept. 20th.

Thanks to the good work of some of the male members the sewer hook-up has been completed and the bills have all been paid. In spite of this, Treasurer Ivan reported our finances in a very healthy condition. Oh yes. the Furnace has been inspected and checked and it too, is in healthy condition so we can promise a warm welcome to our first meeting which I will repeat will occur Sept. 20th.

A fine line

Someone with vision

— by Bruce Robinson

I have often wondered when a legitimate spokesman for progress on the Sunshine Coast would surface. Someone with a vision which would appeal to all, a plan that would nobly fulfill the potential of our little piece of paradise, offending none in the process. Hold on to your hats. I have found a man with a vision.

While working in the Times' office late one evening, pecking away on my copy, I heard a faint scratching at the window. I looked out to see a frail, pathetic creature motioning me with what appeared to be his last reserve of energy. This fading apparition of a man turned out to be Purd E. Prophit, a former ball-bearing manufacturer in Vancouver who had sold his business and come to Sechelt to escape urban madness.

Clutched in his claw-like hand was a grimy notebook, the contents of which included, according to Purd, a host of revelations about how to develop the Sunshine Coast. This project had become an obsession with Purd, had occupied all his waking hours, he said, and had exhausted him to his present state of collapse. He promised to reveal his master plan to me only if I would abandon my evening's labours and drive him to Vancouver, so that he could conduct certain undisclosed business.

Purd was offering me the opportunity to be the first writer to publish his thoughts on the development of the Peninsula. Whether it was the maniacal glint of dedication in his eyes or the prospect of postponing my own work for the evening, I don't know. But I drove him to the mainland, and now his ideas are recorded for the benefit of developers and real estate agents, speculators and planners, and for each of you who has wondered what may become of our home.

When the ferry left the terminal, Purd, obviously confident that I was going to honour my half of the bargain, uttered his first "pearl of wisdom," this without so much as sneaking a peek at his almanac. He knew his material.

"The first thing you gotta do is simulate the economy. And what is it that simulates the the economy? People, We need more people." At this point I asked Purd how he planned to recruit people. "Well, what you gotta do is pretty obvious," Purd said to me, clearly dismayed that I had to ask such a simple-minded question. "First of all, we send out invitations to the people in Vancouver to come on up. Once people get here, they always like it, so you gotta figure a bunch of 'em will stay. Once they decide to stay, they'll buy stuff in our stores and open up new industries, and we'll have a simulated economy."

Purd was slowly becoming an inspired speaker. "But just to make sure all them city folk feel comfortable when they get here, I figure we oughta put traffic lights every half mile on the Sunshine Coast Highway. Then, later, we gotta put a fence around whatever trees is left after the folks build their houses, and when we're finished, we'll call those fenced-in trees, parks. City folks like parks. Maybe we'll get a monkey or two to climb around in the trees. There'll be a wadin pool in the middle of the trees, and we'll stick a seal or an otter in it. People are suckers for otters. We could charge emission. . . ."

At this point, Purd finally turned to his notes, carefully opening the ravaged book. He began to quote directly, speaking with a hushed reverence, in awe of his own words. "Each subdivision will be named after a sea animal. EEl Estates, Seagull Square, Blue Heron Bog, Crab Corner and so on. The town planners will be fired 'cuz they'd just meddle and mess things up, though to tell ya the truth, I don't think them developer fellas listen to 'em much anyway. To simulate business, nuthin' will be zoned anything. People will be able to build anything they want, anywhere."

Again his voice began to grow in force and intensity. "The Pacific National Exhibition will be moved to Halfmoon Bay, 'cuz all them city folks will need somethin' to entertain themselves in the country. The residents of Redrooffs can make some extra money by runnin' the midway, and the Volunteer Fire Department can watch over the kiddy rides."

Purd concluded with a generalization about the indigenous Sunshine Coasters. "If you goes in the bars in this area — you'll find them people is changin' their tune from three and four years ago. They wuz' on that environment bandwagon for a while, but now they got smart. Now, they wants industry and development. And we's gonna give it to 'em. Maybe, said Purd, with mist in his eyes, "I'll even start up my old ball-bearing factory.

Our driving had brought us to the West Vancouver Village, and suddenly Purd stiffened in his seat. "That's it! That's it! That's where I wanna go!" I looked across the street to the golden arches of MacDonald's. "Stop the car! Stop the car!" I pulled into the MacDonald's parking lot and Purd leapt out of the car while it was still moving. "This is the first thing we're gonna get on the Sunshine Coast!" he cried wildly. "No more of that nuts and berries stuff!" And then he was off, pushing two youngsters aside as he rushed to the counter for a quarter pounder. He was ordering a second when I quietly pulled out of the parking lot.

Wage increases no longer the scape goat for inflation

Carillon

With Bill Bell.

One of the more interesting economic items to pass over my desk in recent weeks points out a shift in the blame for inflation. No longer are wage increases brought about by union demands pinpointed as the cause of inflation, but rather the increases in government spending.

That's right, after more than a decade of inflation being blamed on the "irresponsible" demands of "big labor", several prominent economists in recent articles in Time magazine as well as various trade and commerce journals put out by large corporations have decided it wasn't your wage increases after all. (I wondered when they would get around to looking at Canada Statistics which showed inflation was rising faster than the average wage increases.)

Now the large companies have switched the blame to excess goverment spending, one has to wonder when the Joe Clark government will turn around and blame the corporation's excessive profits for inflation.

It could be the start of something big, but actually the large companies faced with Stats Canada figures could do nothing else but blame the government for inflation. After all, they wouldn't want you to think inflation was caused by their increased profit margin.

Still, some of the new economists' arguments have merit, but to place all the blame for inflation on the government is just as bad as blaming the poor working stiff who demands more income because inflation has eaten up his pay cheque.

Certainly the economists must realize there are several factors causing inflation, including government spending, excessive profits and large increases in wages. No one sector can be completely condemned.

What disturbs me most about these new economists' views, promoted by such multi-national corporations as Exxon and Dow Chemical is their recommendations of massive tax incentives for themselves. They call for long term tax incentives to encourage savings and investment, but they aren't specific on what government programs should be cut out with the lost tax revenues.

Some say to cut social and pension programs, but which social programs is the government to cut? Unemployment insurance? Welfare? Medical?

Another problem which occured to me in their arguments is most of their points dealt with supply and demand. On one hand they say we are consuming too much and not investing and saving enough. And in the same breath they are telling us our industries aren't producing enough.

Well, in my books if we slow our consumption, while the industries we are working for are increasing their production, who is going to buy the extra goods.

So this is the Sunshine Coast, I'd hate to see what the rain forests of Ocean Falls are like. Well at least the two new boat people families will feel a little less disoriented arriving during our own version of the monsoons.

And the phone calls keep coming in complaining about the "free press" this paper is giving SCRD Director Charles Lee. I told the complainers they should write a letter to the editor, but on second thought if they use all of their descriptive pronouns we wouldn't be able to print them anyway.

Getting used to having competition, but I keep getting the impulse when someone says "you're the only newspaper which I read," to respond with a, "I bet you say that to all the editors."

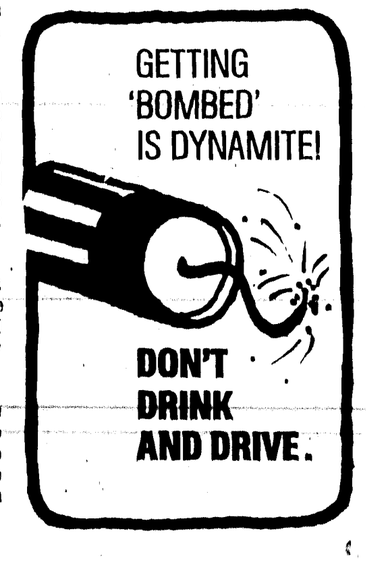
For all those people who are against the immigration of the boat people into Canada, claiming that we should keep Canada Canadian. The following quote was heard on CBC, "A Canadian is only an immigrant with seniority."



More Letters to the Editor

"Enquiry went to wrong office"

Editor,
The Times,

Thank you for your constructive editorial of Sept. 5th, to clear up a couple of points for public edification.

I already gave all relevant regulations references, but Chairman Ed, says "I don't know what kind of legal position this puts him (Lee) in", so I will help him and spell it out. Bylaw No. 1 stripped of verbiage says, meetings OTHER than Regular meetings shall be called (not held) at a Meeting of the Regional Board, for specific purpose, called by NOTICE mailed to each director at least five days before the meeting, meetings other than a Regular meeting (Read "In Camera") shall state "the specific purpose of purposes of the meeting.

None of this was done, it was therefore outside the statutory provisions, therefore illegally convened. WHY?

Just published SCRD Policy Manual says No. 7 (a) in part. Board members and staff have equal access to the following procedures" etc., Same para (a) (1) deals with complaints between board members, to be dealt with in-Camera and so on. What seems to have escaped Chairman Ed. is that an Alternate is in fact an alternate DIRECTOR and is entitled to exactly the same privileges and assumes the same remuneration and responsibilities as the Elected Director, and cannot be barred from attendance at any meeting. No special resolution was made or called for the in-camera meeting, and Chairman Ed should have known, this was therefore an illegal meeting, and leaves Alternate Killam with a clear option to sue the individual members of the Regional Board.

Whilst writing I would say that we have other similar misapplied procedures on the record recently, and it is only a matter of time before some Citizen will perceive the opportunity to recover damages to the cost of the citizenry at large. I am teed off with trying to bring this to the Board attention, perhaps via your medium a few citizens will give it a swing. This is practicality not pedantry.

To simplify your Editorial, according to an inverted saying of Chairman Ed. my defense of Alternate Killam was "unfair to Killam" ergo I was too kind to certain Board members. Editor, you are right, enough is enough! We have had eight months of this sort of nonsense, this moral and legal myopic blundering, to this Director at least, it seems the Municipal enquiry went to the wrong office in Sechelt. It may well have a deciding element with Minister of Municipal affairs in his again deferred decision to November, as to the usefulness and fate of Regional Boards.

Charles Lee,
Regional Director,
Area "C".

Watch your purses

Editor, The Times:

With regard to the letter sent by Mrs. Pollack (of Aug. 22). I too was robbed of my wallet in the ferry washroom.

I was on my way to Vancouver to a show some of our city's sights to a Dutch guest. I did not miss my wallet till it was time to leave the ferry. My day of fun in Vancouver was quite spoilt. So please watch your money and wallets, ladies, especially in the washrooms because evidently a thief or thieves are around the ferries.

Wear you bags, zippered, on a long shoulder-strap. I sincerely thank the deckhand and stewardess for their kindness and concern for the return of my OAP card, driver's licence, communter card, etc. which were later found.

I can only hope that the mean thief reads this too and has feeling of remorse.

Horrified

Editor, The Times:

While buying school supplies last week, I was horrified to find a huge price difference on one item in particular — Sargents crayons. The first store advertised a discount on school supplies and the crayons were marked $1.10. At the second store the crayons were 59c.

Even with the discount, the $1.10 crayons were outrageously more expensive than the idential item in the other store. Most mothers have neither time nor inclination to shop comparatively and I hate to see such people deceived.

One answer would be for the school board to approve school supply kits at cost to each child to be given out at the beginning of each term. I believe that certain school districts in B.C. have adopted this procedure successfully.

Sunrise

On certain mornings, long awaited, as the sun slowgilds the treetops 'cross the bay.
An unheralded performance of a dawn ballet commences,
For the ballarina sunbeams whirl out stage centre, front,
To arabesque and pirroute and even pause awhile;
Rejoice in their reflection of the sea.
Time calls the tune though,
While a westwind points the way
As each performer exits swiftly in the dawn
Save for one, who in defiance, leaping high in silent rapture,
long pursues her gold enchantment; then is gone.
In the sudden hush that follows. . .
A lingering pause of unpaced heartbeats. . .
Across the empty sea there falls
The saltlace curtain of another day.

Special decals help to combat child abuse

B.C. Tel last week began placing special decals on more than 4000 coin telephones throughout the province to assist British Columbians in reporting incidents of child abuse.

Mike Reigh, Coin Telephone Manager, said the decals are being placed on coin telephones in every outdoor booth in B.C., as well as those units located in bus depots, hospitals, laundromats, public libraries and schools.

"As a policy, we do not put any type of sticker on our coin telephones," Reigh said. "However, we are responding to a request from the Provincial Government to participate in a public awareness program that is of an urgent nature."

Reigh said B.C. Tel has worked closely with the Ministry of Human Resources since the infant stages of the "Helpline" to put the Zenith line into effect. On August 10 the ministry began operating the 24-hour, toll-free telephone number — Zenith 1234 — to which complaints about child abuse and neglect in B.C. can be reported by any citizen.

"The application of these decals is a once only project until such time as the ministry assesses the effectiveness of the program," Reigh said.

He noted that all stickers will be put on the coin tel units by September 7, the day the governmnt begins its province-wide advertising and public service campaign, as part of the public awareness program.

HOLIDAY IN EUROPE

The Biernacki's of Sechelt, Teodor and Eleanor spent a wonderful seven weeks in West Germany with a few side trips, to Italy.

Eleanor and her sister from West Germany spent a month at a health Spa in Malente coming away feeling greatly rejuvenated.

NORTH TO ALASKA

Jim and Mary Bannerman with two other couples travelled with two campers 6,000 miles on a trip long looked forward to, up the Alaska Highway.

They were in Dawson City for the big celebration August 17 the city was in a terrible state due to the flood, stores still sitting in the middle of the streets up on blocks. The only rain while they were there was the night before the parade.

Then it was over the Northern Route Top of the World to Fairbanks, then down to Anchorage, Seaward City to Portage Glacier with its enormous size icebergs. Chipped ice for their drinks right from the glacier.

The Bannerman caravan of two spent two fabulous days in McKinley Park where they boarded a free bus for a eighty-seven mile trip through the park, an eight or ten hour trip — but with buses travelling all the time you may get off one, walk around, and then hop on another.

The roads were exceptionally good, they experienced no car trouble but the second camper had six flat tires!

The highest price paid for gas was in Alaska with the smaller gallon it was $1.76, Pacific Milk can at 83 cents and they paid up to seven dollars per night for campsite, mostly they were $2.50. The campsites in many places left a lot to be desired, laundry well nigh impossible. It was a fabulous trip and they have many pictures to prove it.

Halfmoon Bay happenings

Winds of change

Mary Shannon, Ph. 885-9765

September has seen some changes around Halfmoon Bay with Maria Mahar presiding over the post office in its new location at the B & J Store and a new teacher at the Halfmoon Bay School. With Miriam Davie transferred to the Cedar Grove School, the new Halfmoon Bay teacher is Lorene Taylor, whose husband, Quentin Doherty is teaching at the Davis Bay School. For the past three years they have been teaching at a 2-room school outside Fort St. John in the Peace River School District. They are now comfortably settled in their new home at Middle Point which they bought from Marie Fenn. Parents who have not yet met Mrs. Taylor will have an opportunity to do so on September 19, when they are invited to a parents' night at the school at 7:30 p.m.

Another imminent change is that there will be a new name heading this column next week — not new to the area, but new to the column. Ruth Forrester, invited to take over the column, has agreed to give it a try and we are sure she will bring her great skills and vitality to keeping our readers informed of what is happening in the community. You can telephone your news items to her at 885-2418.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

When the Halfmoon Bay Hospital Auxiliary met for its September meeting Mary Murray took the Chair in the absence of President Geri Smith. Attendance was small as a number of the members were still on vacation.

It was decided to make a quilt for the Christmas raffle. Alice Halford had already made the top in a star design and it is planned to have a series of old-fashioned quilting bees at the John Holgate home. The Auxiliary's next Thrift Shop duty will be on September 29 for which donations will be gratefully received by Convenor Evelyn Shellshear.

THE BUSY HARVEY'S

The Mel Harvey home at Welcome Beach has been humming with activity during this past summer. Among their many visitors were their nephew Richard Harvey from Malaysia with his wife and son. Richard was serving with the Peace Corps in Malaya as an advisor on agricultrural methods when he met and married Habiba, who was director of nursing in a Malayan hospital. The Harveys also entertained many of their relatives from California, including Mel's brother and sister-in-law, Homer and Phyllis Harvey of Hughson and their daughter, Adele Godsberry, with husband Dalton from Modesto. After working for four years on the building of a five-ton yacht, with the help of many good friends, Mel managed to get it launched this summer. At a champagne launching at the Redrooffs Beach, his pride and joy was christened "Melmar". Mary too was able to find time to spend three weeks at Knoxville, Tennessee after her elder son had been hurt in an accident. It gave her her first opportunity of meeting her new grandson.

In the near future, the Harveys are off to Modesto, California to visit Mel's mother, Anna Harvey who is 97 years old. This wonderful old lady, who was one of the first nurses to receive a licence in Los Angeles, did some pioneering in Canada. She and her husband came north after their marriage in 1905 to homestead at Irricana, north-east of Calgary, where they turned the first sod in 1911. After a few years they returned to the more congenial climate of California where Mrs. Harvey has lived ever since.

WEDDING BELLS

Guests of Dorothy Temple last week were her sister and brother-in-law, Esther and Doug Anderson of Squamish. While here they attended the Madeira Park wedding of their daughter, Pamela Anderson to John Hedderson of Madeira Park. Pam, who has been a regular visitor to the Temple home at Redrooffs since her childhood, wore her mother's ivory satin wedding gown for her marriage. Also in the area to attend the wedding were Pam's sister, Kelly, with husband Jack Temple Jr. and John's parents from Ontario.

Another wedding took May Holgate to Mapleridge for the marriage of her son Bill Buss of Everett Washington to Brenda Hughson, a high school teacher at Coquitlam. May brought some of the wedding guests home with her for a visit. She has been entertaining her father, George Hodkin of Regina and relatives from California.

FROM ME TO YOU

"Halfmoon Bay Happenings" has been appearing in the Times under my name for nearly 13 years, which has only been possible because of the cooperation and help I have received from my readers and because Peggy Connor has been good enough to fill in for me on the occasions when I have been away on trips. It has been a rich and rewarding experience — not so much financially as in personal contacts. I have shared your joys and wept with you in your sorrows. In thought I have travelled with you through your most exciting and romantic vacations in almost every part of the world. In listening to your reminiscences, I have relived with you, visits to the ancient cities of Europe, the exotic countries of the Far East, bus and train rides across Asia, canoe trips down the Yukon and cruises by luxury liner and sailboat to the Caribbean and the islands of the Pacific.

I have always received the utmost encouragement and help from the editors of the Times with whom I have worked — Doug Wheeler, Dick Proctor, Don Morberg, Dennis Fitzgerald, Terri Brandemuller, Bob Andrews and Bill Bell. Because of ther generous support, the column has played no small part in developing the Halfmoon Bay community to the healthy and active group it is to-day. So I thank you one and all and would ask that you give this same support to Ruth Forrester.

I am not saying good-bye, for I shall still be an active and interested member of the Halfmoon Bay community.

IF ONE LIFE is saved because of a Vial of Life, it will be worth the cost of the program, ambulance unit chief Mike Baecke (left) says. The entire stock (500) of Vials of Life were distributed in two days at the Trail Bay Mall last week. More of the vials, which are free, will be available soon. The Vial of Life, a program sponsored by the Lions club, contains a sheet to be filled out with a person's medical history and placed in the capsule and attached to the top shelf of your refrigerator. A sticker on the door indicates to the ambulance attendant you are participating in the program. To reserve a Vial of Life, please call Sechelt ambulance at 885-9607.

Women's Aglow Fellowship meeting

BY Phyllis Dorst

Our meeting of the Women's Aglow Fellowship was held on August 21 at 11:30 a.m. in Harmony Hall. We enjoyed a delicious cold plate lunch with warm friends, old and new.

Our guest speakers were MARJORIE POPE and DIANE McCLELLAND. Marjorie is from North Vancouver and Diane is from Port Coquitlam. Both of our sisters shared lovingly with us, how the Lord has been working in their lives and how He will work in our lives too if we but trust in Him. It was a beautiful meeting and many of us were reluctant to leave. We are looking forward to having Marjorie and Diane with us again.

Our next meeting is September 18 at 11:30 a.m. in Harmony Hall. Lunch will be served at no charge. Babysitting is also available. Our guest speaker will be (Mrs.) Edith Simmons of the Salvation Army. Some of the speakers we will be having in the future include: Elsie Sperling - President of the Mainland Area Board of the W.A.F. and Sister Aquina — a spirit-filled Catholic nun originally from Alberta.

Come and bring a friend!!!

Don't Forget: God Loves You and so do we!!!

"...Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do." (Luke 23 34)

Jesus' love embraced even those who nailed him to the cross. Displayed on Mary Baker Eddy's bedroom wall were these words, "When others hate, oppose, ignore, help me, dear God, to love them more." (Archives and Library of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, Boston, MA)

The Creek runoff

Spirit of '79

By Jeanie Norton, 886-9609

Somebody made the comment the other day that spirit in Roberts Creek seems to have died. That fits with the observation that Roberts Creek is noted for "being negative" and not being able to "get it together".

Well folks, if ever we're going to show the world at large and the Peninsula in particular that Roberts Creek CAN accomplish something, this is it. We've talked about a new Community Hall for five years. The Ways and Means Committee have been hard at work for the last two years raising money and support. And we've got over half the funding for the asking.

All we need is your vote in the Referendum on Saturday, September 22. We're asking for approval of a tax increase of 2 mills at the most. That's about $15 per year for the average homeowner. Not much when you consider that we'll be getting a multi-purpose facility that will serve the needs of the School and the Community for years to come.

What we want is a gymnasium large enough to provide the kids with a good physical education program and the adults with a community sports and recreation centre. And an auditorium with proper staging and acoustics for theatre productions and concerts, a facility singularly lacking on the Coast. And a Hall to accomodate activities ranging from bazaars to Bingo to dances.

It's a dream, but it's a dream with foresight and it can come true with your support. You'll be receiving more information in the mail this week. You're asked to read it carefully and come to the Forum at the Hall on Monday, September 17 at 8 p.m. It's your chance to ask questions and show us that spirit in Roberts Creek has NOT died.

SOCCER

Graham Heap has taken on the task of coaching the Roberts Creek ladies soccer team this year. He's called the first practice for this Sunday, September 16, at 11 a.m. at the School. Players of any calibre are welcome. It's a lot of fun and a good way to get your exercise. Phone Graham at 885-5546 if you have any questions.

VOLLEYBALL

The School gymnasium has been booked for Thursday night volleyball and it is expected to start next week at 7:30. Regulars and newcomers are welcome.

MUSIC

If you're looking for entertainment this weekend, Bob Carpenter, Budge Schachte, and Ken Dalgleish will be playing at The Peninsula Hotel. They were a big hit at the Cedars a couple of weeks ago and shouldn't be missed.

COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION

The Community Association's September meeting is next Wednesday, September 19, at 8 p.m. at the Community Hall. It's the first meeting after the summer so there will be a few things to catch up on and discuss.

DAZE PICS

What happened to all those pictures that were being snapped at the Roberts Creek Daze, particularly at the Beachcombers game? How about bringing them into the Store to show Marlene?

Blomgren chosen for $500 bursary

At a meeting of the directors of the Sunshine Coast Scholarship Bursary and Loan Society last week, Joan Blomgren was chosen to receive the $500.00 bursary offered by the Society for the first time this year, to a student entering second or third year, at a post-secondary institution.

It is hoped that this will be an annual award but since loans have first priority on the Society's funds it will depend on the availability of funds each year.

Joan is registered in her second year at Capilano College and plans to continue on to Simon Fraser University for a degree in teaching.

Any donations or enquiries may be sent to Mrs. Beatrice Rankin, R.R. No. 1, Sechelt. To date this year the Society has loaned $3,000.00 and another $3,495 is out, some being repaid in monthly payments and some not yet due.

VOLUNTEER HELPLINE

Helping people help themselves

Joan Albers is the learning assistance teacher at Gibsons Elementary. A major part of her job is to establish and implement individualized programs for students so each can concentrate on the areas requiring the greatest development. Students spend a part of a day in this area of the school and then return to their regular classroom.

Thus many students are given this special attention, each on an individualized basis. Obviously one teacher cannot give the amount of attention required by each child. There is a tremendous need for volunteer help. With the attention given by volunteers, the problem of the troubled students are more likely to be diminished or solved and with the bright student, aptitudes and abilities can be more fully developed. The role of the volunteer in extending the services which the teacher can provide, should not be underestimated.

Volunteers so frequently report they have found this one-to-one relationship with a student to be extremely rewarding. The backgrounds of these helpers are varied. Few have had previous formal teaching experience but all share a common interest in helping a child or teenager. Training and continual guidance is provided by the teacher. If you have patience and a willingness to learn, why don't you help someone begin the school year on a more positive footing. Gibsons Elementary and many other schools need your help in this area and in other areas of the school program — Be that volunteer!

Here are a few specific request for you to consider. — Other opportunities and more information about these can be obtained from the Community Service Volunteer Bureau, by calling 885-5881.

Develop a special friendship with an elderly adult confined to home, assist a gifted child in writing and classical music, knit or crochet, Develop a special friendship with a young boy, Sell tickets for a non profit cultural event, Write, Babysit preschoolers while mothers attend classes, Develop a special relationship with an elderly patient, Billet, Drive — using your van, Work for seniors in office, Consult in landscaping project, Type, Organize scrapbook, Drive — fulfilling occasional but urgent needs, Develop a drama program, Assist adult students outside classroom setting.

The skills that you learn as a volunteer can open many doors for you. You might develop some lifelong friendships. You may confirm that you really possess all those talents which friends and relatives have been telling you about for many years. You may even develop that confidence. You may find out that a particular occupation is worth pursuing. You may begin to feel energized and fullfilled.

MONTHLY MEETINGS

The monthly meetings sponsored by the Volunteer Bureau begin again on September 17 (third Monday of the month) at 1:30 p.m. at Bethel Baptist Church. These meetings are open to any volunteers or potential volunteers on the Sunshine Coast. It is an opportunity to meet other people who are active in the community and to share some learning experiences and information with others.

This meeting will feature one of three slide-tape presentations which were produced this summer under a Young Canada Works project. Karl Johnston, Brian Wall and Steve Ripper used their creative talents to produce these audio-visual presentations which promote volunteerism on the Sunshine Coast. Their efforts will soon be very visible. The boys hope the quality of their work will have a major impact upon the people who are privileged to see and hear these productions. Many hours were spent in interviewing, researching, photographing, writing scripts, recording, and editing.

It is really encouraging to see teenagers grasping an opportunity and making use of their talents. This project is only a stepping stone for these young men. Make sure you take any opportunity to see their work. All three slide tape presentations will be projected in the Sunnycrest Mall in Gibsons on Friday evening, September 21 and all day, Saturday, September 22. Other showings will take place throughout the penninsula at later dates.

If you are wondering how you might become more involved in the community and thus become a more stimulated and exciting person, call the Sunshine Coast Community Services Society's Volunteer Bureau at 885-5881. We are always interested in knowing what needs we can meet in the community. If you are aware of any places where volunteers could be helpful, please call us today.

Tidal power still a question

Sechelt Inlet has been singled out by B.C. Hydro engineers as one of the more economically-feasible sources of tidal power in the province, B.C. Hydro announced last week in a press release.

However, "the cost of harnessing the province's tides for electric power generation would be prohibitive," Hydro concluded.

Sechelt Inlet has the electric energy potential of 170 million kilowatt-hours annually, enough to meet the annual needs of Prince Rupert or about one-third of the annual requirements of Kamloops, but excluding bulk power requirements.

B.C. Hydro's figures show even the most attractive tidal power project sites (Sechelt Inlet and Observatory Inlet near Prince Rupert) would cost several times as much to develop as conventional hydro-electric, coal-fired thermal or nuclear power.

Thirteen locations with a total net annual energy potential of more than 13 billion kilowatt hours, or about one-half Hydro's present load requirements, were identified by Hydro engineers.

Estimated costs for the Observatory and Sechelt Inlets projects, which were singled out for more detailed study, are $243 million for Sechelt Inlet and $2,498 million for Observatory Inlet. These costs are based on figures from studies of the Bay of Fundy tidal prospect off Nova Scotia, and are eight times those for the same energy from potential hydroelectric sites, Hydro said.

B.C. Hydro plans to carry on a continuing review of the tidal potential in B.C. and periodically re-evaluate it in view of rising energy costs and new technological developments.

Pender Harbour happenings

Best wishes - good luck

by Doris Edwardson 883-2308

Ruby Lake Restaurant was the designated place for old friends to meet for a farewell dinner party for long time Pender Harbour resident, Bunny Smith, who is leaving for Duncan, Vancouver Island this week.

Last Wednesday evening, September 5, Bunny was wished the best of luck by Ivy Potts, Alice and George Ibey, Jean and Jack Paterson, Lisa and Pat Garrison, Doris Edwardson, Wilf Harper, June and Mike Cashaback, Ted and Ann Manyk, Al Lloyd, Bobby and Phil Brodeur, Eleanor and Jim Reid, May and Ernie Widman and Nickolas Shutens.

Bunny came from Vancouver, B.C. where she had been working as a ward clerk at Shaughnessy Hospital for 10 years, to Pender Harbour, and decided to settle down in Madeira Park at the M and B Marina owned by Mary and Bill Evans, Seattle, which was later purchased by Harold Clay and is now Madeira Marina, owned by Ruth and Bob King.

Many folks will remember Bunny's German Shepherd, a seeing eye dog, Woofie, who used to meet the School ferry and wait for the children to throw sandwiches in the water, then he would jump in and chase the seagulls. Bunny and her uncle Bernard Clarke had the mail route 1960 to 69. Captain Kent, Joyce Lee, Vi Tyner and Betty Higgins and Pearl Derricot, who worked in the Madeira Park Post Office will always be remembered by Bunny. The Ladies Auxiliary to Br. 112 Royal Canadian Legion will miss Bunny as she was congenial and active member.

TOURISTS VIEW

At Ruby Lake, the other evening, I had a chance to talk about the tourists views on tourism here. Mr. and Mrs. Weston Futrell, Dumas, Texas were on holidays and travelled the circle tour. He said the fuel situation stinks here, the same as theirs. This is the first time they have ever been in B.C. and the country is beautiful, which we already know. They have eaten and enjoyed the cod and salmon here and said they are almost as good as the steaks in Texas. The people here on the Sunshine coast are friendly and I will have some more views after I have corresponded with them.

ROYAL CANADIAN LEGION BR. 112.

The popular Meat Draw is back again. It will be this Saturday, September 15 from 2 to 4 p.m.

The October 13 dance at the R.C. Legion is cancelled due to the Oktoberfest.

APPRECIATION.

A Pender Harbour resident and two children wish to express their sincere thanks to a Sechelt merchant and two local constabulary for their help last Friday night.

Growing figs on the Sunshine Coast

JACK MacLEOD

After a summer vacation from formal meetings, the Sechelt Garden Club met in St. Hilda's hall, Wed. Sept 5 and the thirty-seven members present were treated to a very interesting and informative evening. Business portion of the meeting dealt with the mechanics of presenting the Fall Flower Show to be held in the Senior Citizens' hall Sechelt, Saturday Sept. 15.

The Club has presented these flower shows for a number of years and has received good support from the public. A sale of plants will be held and Tea and Refreshments served. Time 2 pm to 4:30 pm.

Rose Bancroft of Burnaby will judge the entries in 73 categories.

Two topics were discussed at the meeting. Colin Cole spoke on the growing of figs in this area, and Bill Cormack dealt with the subject of soil testing.

To many persons, the mention of fig production is accompanied by thoughts of California and other warm areas, but never here. Not so. Colin brought a branch from a fig tree in his garden on which there were some second crop figs. Two varieties of figs, — 'Brown Turkey' and 'Mission,' will thrive here.

Fig growing presents some rather unusual developments; no leaves appear until the month of May; there are two crops, the second one being five times greater than the first, and the fruit must be almost overripe to be at the best condition for eating. It is a splendid treat fresh, stewed or dried. But to get back to that second crop — for these to ripen successfully there must be a longer spell of warm weather than is usual in this area. Cool September days here, prevent full development of the fruit, so the first crop is really the only good crop locally.

The fig tree is half hardy in areas that have a spell of freezing weather, so the tree may appear to be a dead loss after a prolonged period of exposure to frost. However if the roots are protected by a layer of mulch, they will survive, but the new growth will be in the form of bush rather than tree.

Bill Cormack spoke on the necessity of soil testing.

He pointed out that in a heavy rain climate such as we have on this coast, much of the alkaline content of the soil is washed away or taken down into the subsoil. Good garden soil is made, not found, and after being made, this condition must be maintained by a continuous program of good garden practices. One of these practices is to discover whether the soil content is too acid or too alkaline.

To determine this, a soil testing kit is a must. This kit will show that an acidity measuring device has been developed, called the P H scale, which will measure the degrees of acidity or alkaline content.

The PH factor may vary from one spot to another in a garden; For a good guide to the general condition of the soil, take samples from four or five locations, mix them well, dry them out a little before making the test.

Before making a decision to correct or change the condition of the soil, the gardener should decide what he intends to plant in a certain area.

A grower who is keen on azaleas, heathers, rhododendrons, pieris etc., etc. will require an acid type soil, while the grower of carnations, onions, peas, alyssum nastursiums etc., etc. will require an alkaline soil.

Most garden books state what type of soil is best for various plants. Soil content can be changed, and again, garden books will reveal the method of changing the PH factor of soil. It is really not a difficult or complicated task.

Keep digging in manure, compost, seaweed, peat etc. into your soil, and results will be most rewarding.

Thanks to Colin Cole and Bill Cormack for their interesting and informative talks.

and they don't eat in restaurants."

If the ferryworkers do strike, "we don't get anything up here and the cost of oeeration goes up."

"Everyone makes a big song-and-dance about the island," he said, which is nearly self-sufficient.

"We're literally cut off here, the same as the Gulf Islands."

"If they do go on strike, they are going to lose money and they'll never make it up."

Sechelt Chamber of Commerce president Emma Campbell said business has "definitely dropped off."

"It really makes me mad. We are part of a community, part of a highway and I think we should be looked after without interruptions."

"And we have these interruptions every year."

Mrs. Campbell said she had to "compliment" Benjafield "for sticking up for our area here." Benjafield's comments on the possible strike were aired recently on CBC radio.

Reg Thomas, Sechelt Shop Easy, accountant-manager, said a strike for about a week would cause no problems as far as supplies are concerned.

Perishables, such as milk and produce, may last a week. If stocks are depleted, the store would have to make arrangements to barge supplies to Gibsons, then drive down to pick up the shipment.

This costs "about five times as much" as the usual transportation, Thomas said.

These costs would not be transferred to the consumer unless the strike was prolonged, about one month to six weeks.

"It's one of those operating things you have to absorb," Thomas said.

But, he said, "we've had it (the situation) before so we know how to react now and the suppliers bend over backwards to help us out."

Search and rescue organization started

By JOHN HIND-SMITH

On at the very least, one day every week, one sees one of those huge aeroplanes carrying probably in excess of 250 or 300 passengers passing over here heading for Vancouver International Airport, only a matter of minutes flying time away. I don't know why but I suppose it is something to do with prevailing winds and perhaps also something euphemistically called holding patterns or in other words waiting for your turn to land. In any event one sees these silver monsters sailing magestically overhead without a thought of anything going wrong, and after all, why should it? Isn't flying the safest form of transportation in the world, considering numbers of passengers carried and number of miles flow?

The object of this preamble is to bring to your attention the fact that these flying machines do pass over here and that accidents can and do happen. I wonder how many people stop to think a minute about what would happen and if any thought has gone into taking care of such a calamity.

On the other hand, what if one of the little guys from the YMCA camp went missing one summer day, who would go and look for him and what would be the chances of his survival? Actually his chances are very good as long as he does not panic and maybe builds himself a little shelter of boughs and stays put.

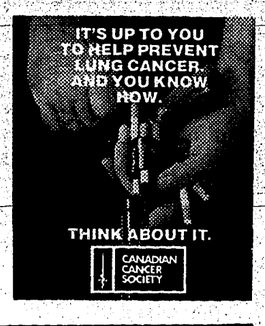
I say this because the Sunshine Coast now has its very own Search and Rescue organization. It is only small as yet, about 12 members in the Gibsons area and about half that number in Sechelt. But give us time and we'll grow and we are certainly looking for recruits. You don't have to be any special superman or high in academic achievements. All you need is a desire to help people in trouble and to be in reasonable physical condition, no wooden legs etc. There is no sex discrimination and age, although this has not been discussed to any extent would perhaps be seventeen and over. I believe we have one member who is probably about 16.

We recently became the proud owners of a couple of climbing ropes and a set of maps to cover the Sunshine Coast, use of which will, we hope, prevent our search and rescue members from getting lost themselves. So far we have had a course on map use, compass work and search patterns given by Bill Lawson of Sechelt and a first aid course given by Cliff Mahlman of Gibsons. We are hoping to have a course on basic rock climbing and stretcher manipulation and handling in rough country this fall and winter and certainly more practical exercises in the use of maps and compass. The group comes under the jurisdiction of the Provincial Emergency Programme whose local director is Mr. A. McPhee and is also in close contact with the local RCMP who would direct any search and rescue if it became necessary.

Since we first got this thing off the ground last Fall we have had eight calls, most of which were successfully concluded without direct participation, but the call for the existence of a volunteer group like this, was adequately justified and much of the credit is due to the Gibsons Wildlife Club for initiating this service in the first instance and continuing it on through its membership.

The hunting season is upon us and hunters get lost as well as hikers and even scuba divers go missing! We may be in for a busy season. We hope not but we should be prepared for the worse.

Anyone who would like to volunteer their services or would like more information could phone either 886-9131 for 886-9949.



Doing the Bowrons

Paddling a canoe for 116 km is not everyone's idea of a relaxing holiday, but for those seeking adventure and challenge this fall, few experiences can surpass canoeing the Bowrons.

Bowron Lakes is a wilderness park in the northern interior of B.C. encompassing a chain of some 13 lakes and many rivers and creeks. Six of these lakes linked by seven portages comprise a chain navigable by canoe.

The trip can be done in a week, but park officials recommend that 'voyageurs' plan for 10 days as storms occasionally make the lakes too rough for safe canoeing.

Rental canoes and supplies are available at the park entrance. However, if you plan to bring your own craft, the B.C. Automobile Association has some suggestions for safe transport to and from the lakes.

Take a trial run before departing, tie the canoe to the vehicle roof top carrier and drive around the block a few times to get used to changes in the vehicle handling.

Ensure that the canoe is very tightly attached. The club recommends nylon rope because it can be tied tauter than sisal rope. Use enough rope to fasten the canoe very firmly, but ensure the driver's front and rear vision is not impaired by a spider web of ropes.

A canoe that is improperly fastened may shift to one side while the vehicle turns or changes lanes. Wind turbulence caused by passing cars and trucks can cause a canoe to slip its moorings.

This same turbulence also buffets the canoe's underside forcing it upwards. It is not unusual along B.C. highways to see a poorly tied canoe airborn a few inches above the car roof.

When loading a roof top carrier with equipment and supplies, park logically with heaviest items at the bottom and all goods contained within the perimeters of the carrier. Cover the load with a tarp, tucking in all the edges and lace rope across the bulk so nothing escapes and no loose edges flap in the breeze. Stop occasionally along the route to check all securing ropes, suggests the BCAA.

Getting canoe and goods to the Bowron Lake Provincial Park is not the whole of the preparations.

Although the trip is a refreshing experience, it is very arduous. Anyone contemplating the circuit trip should have canoe handling experience especially mastery of the "J" stroke for good craft control and ease of paddling; be in good physical shape and know how to swim.

When packing for the trip observe these guidelines: Include extra food because the trip may take a day or two longer than planned and keep it light, everything you bring in must be taken out at the end of the trip and portaged a minimum of eight kilometres.

The Bowron Lakes is a wilderness park, and certain regulations are in force to preserve the natural sanctity.

Firearms and motorized vehicles are prohibited, as are cats, dogs and other animals. Camping is permitted only in designated areas along the lakeshores. All garbage must be removed.

Doing the Bowrons is not easy.

Those undertaking the challenge can expect conditions similar to those encountered by early explorers — phyysically demanding portages, cold weather and water, hardships and discomfort.

In return — a journey through the best B.C.'s outdoors can offer — clear lakes and streams, rugged mountain scenery and pristine wilderness.

Refugee families due to arrive

Two families of Vietnamese refugees are due to arrive in Sechelt near the end of this week. Their flight from Malaysia was scheduled to land in Montreal or Edmonton on Monday, September 10. Plans for them to stay at the military barracks (which are temporarily housing the refugees) for 48 hours and then fly to Vancouver on September 12 or 13.

Members of the Sunshine Coast Society for Vietnamese Refugees will meet the families at Vancouver International Airport and bring them back to Sechelt.

Very little information has been received about the families. It has been learned that one of the families is comprised of a 23 year old girl and her 18 and 15 year old brothers. The other family is a young 20 year old couple and the wife's 19 year old brother.

Initially the families will stay with Sechelt residents who have generously opened their homes to the refugees. When they have become oriented to their surroundings and have had time to rest, they will move into the house in Gibsons that the Society has rented. A few items are still needed for the Gibsons' house: iron, ironing board, chests of drawers, outdoor garbage cans, basic household tools (hammer, screw drivers etc.), a shower curtain rod and attachments, a kitchen chopping block, cooking wok, raincoats and umbrellas, a sewing machine (the 23 year old girl is a dressmaker and a sewing machine will help in establishing her as a local seamstress).

The Society has received word from Revenue Canada that it is now officially a "registered charity". Therefore all past and future donations are tax deductible. Receipts will be issued by the Society at the end of the tax year.

The Society is still accepting donations. Please make cheques or money orders payable to the Sunshine Coast Society for Vietnamese Refugees and send to P.O. Box 1186, Sechelt, B.C. For more information please phone Susan Nichols 885-9798 or Elaine Futterman 885-2395.

The Garden Corner

Spiritual blessing

By Guy Symonds

One of the spiritual blessings of a garden is that the person concerned with it must always be looking ahead. And that particularly to one in "the sere an yellow leaf" of life gives a great sense of continuity. Nothing dies — and matter is indestructible.

So it is, that now with the garden harvest just about over, and nothing much to do in the way of nurturing it, the mind jumps ahead to the next Spring, confident that "Springtime and Harvest shall not fail".

And what gives Spring its beauty so much as the early flowering bulbs? Well, from now and for the next couple of months will be the time to get them into the ground in the complete assurance that next February and March even with snow on the ground, the snowdrops and crocuses will appear to gladden the heart and delight the eye.

So we thought that for the next week or two we might take a look at the kinds of bulbs there are and the best times for planting them.

The list is a very long one, in fact there are some 38 names on the one we looked at, which one must agree is a far cry from the flower show one sees in most gardens at Springtime. With the exception of the Gladiolus, Montbretia, Schizostylis, Togridis and Watsonia which should all be set out in early Spring, the planting time is from August to October preceding that Spring — in other words, now. There is one exception, the Galtonia which we are told is scheduled for November planting.

But for our dear and well known friends, the Snowdrop, Crocus, Daffodil, Bluebell Hyacinth, Lily of the Valley and the Tulip, the end of October will be plenty late enough to get them set out in their new living quarters.

Besides this formidable list there is another to cover flowers that can gladden our hearts in the darkest days of winter particularly if one is so fortunate as to have a greenhouse. Even without one it is relatively simple to have narcisus hyacinths and others to greet the Christmas morn with their beauty.

There is not very much skill involved in planting bulbs. Mostly they will grow in any reasonably good garden soil. But one thing that contributes to their eye appeal is the way they are displayed and this depends on the imagination and landscaping artistry of the gardener.

A few general guidelines might be noted. Spring bulbs in flower are not usually very attractive when planted in rows or grown singly. Daffodils and snowdrops are particularly effective planted in grass or open woodland where they can remain undisturbed for several years. Certainly the daffodil flowers will get small but even when, or should say especially when they get quite tiny they are very attractive indeed in their dainty perfection. Near this gardener's home is a deserted farm property on which at one time some one lavished a great deal of loving care, and extremely hard work. Roses and Honeysuckle riot over every broken down gate and fence, all of which incidentally are home made of split cedar.

Among the grapevines which sprawl over hundreds of square feet and contend with the blackberry vines for living space, there appear each Spring clusters of daffodils where some one many years ago set them out in the front garden.

About the only direction necessary is that these bulbs should never be used in a formal environment or a stylized manner. Crocuses, Scilla, and the smaller bulbous Iris are ideal subjects for the rockery and will seed themselves. One hint is to arrange matters that when the bulb leaves die down they are covered with other growth. It goes without saying of course that the leaves must never be taken from the bulb or there will be nothing to produce flowers the following Spring.

"Naturalizing" is the key word for showing off narcissus and daffodil. It does not matter whether they are to be set in a "naturalized" environment or in a flower bed, it must be remembered that they will probably be there in one place for a long time, so it is worth while to take a little trouble to give them a permanent home.

We will talk more, about this next time and add some planting information.

Elves club meeting

Elves Club general meeting will be held at 8 p.m. September 7, 1979 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald at the corner of Orange Road and Hwy. 101.

The agenda will be the election of officers and a general discussion of things.

They need some more active members to keep their fine club going the way it has in the past. So if you are interested in joining the club or wish to get any information please phone the mediator at 886-2149.

Continuing education

In a few days the Continuing Education Program will drop into your mailbox and you will find a greater variety of courses than ever before.

Most of the courses start in the last week of September, but some 1-session lectures will be offered in the week prior to the real "take off".

Dr. Donald Estey, from the Pender Harbour Medical Clinic, has kindly accepted to give a free lecture on Birth Control on September 19, Wednesday, in Madeira Park Elementary School, Room 7. Women of all ages are welcome to hear the pros and cons about all available methods of birth control.

Breast cancer still claims more victims than any other form of cancer. However, it is a fact that early detection vastly reduces the number of terminal cases. And it is so easy, if you know how to do it. The Registered Nurses Association of B.C., Sechelt Chapter, has taken responsibility for an information evening on September 18, Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., in Chatelech Junior Secondary School, Room 114. A registered nurse will show a film demonstrating self examination and answer questions connected with the subject "Women Unite!".

Preventive Medicine is the subject for Dr. David Gerring's talk on October 11, Thursday, 6:30 - 8:00 p.m. in Chatelech Music Room. Dr. Gerring will mainly draw attention to the many common sense ways of keeping mentally and physically well, and he will show new ways of thinking about our responsibility toward ourselves and our children.

Dr. Beverley Pace, from the Gibsons Medcial Clinic, will give a free lecture on Birth Control on September 19, Wednesday, 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. in Elphinstone, Room 110. Dr. Pace will talk about the pill and the alternatives to this widely discussed method.

Care of the Sick Child will be dealt with by Dr. Lorne Walton in Elphinstone, Room 108, on September 20, Thursday, 7:30-9:30 p.m. How often have you looked at your sick child and wondered whether to call the doctor or not? Dr. Walton will talk about how parents can care for their sick child in the best possible way and he will explain that if's and but's of communicable diseases.

If you have questions of general interest which you would like to discuss with a professional person, please call 885-3512, Continuing Education, Karin Hoemberg, Coordinator, 9 a.m. - 4 p.m.

The Grub Bag

touch of Dixiland

By Ann

As the magic of fall blows in from the ocean and surrounding hills, it's time to scuff your shoes in the fallen leaves and softly in the moonlight and dream a wee bit of the summer left behind. The changing of the seasons always seem a mystery to me. Time just folds summer away into yesterday and tomorrow will pour the winter tides over the magic of the comming holidays.

This is a season when appetites are renewed and honed to a fined edge — no need to beg the young folks to be on time for dinner. It's time to keep a small fire going on the hearth to warm your toes and something cooking in the kitchen that says "dinner is going to be special." For just such a meal you might like to try:

Dixieland Ham and Chicken Pie

Blend in a saucepan three tablespoons butter or margarine; blend in three tablespoons flour, gradually add 2½ cups chicken stock or canned chicken broth.

Stir until thickened. Add one cup chopped ham and one cup diced cooked chicken. Season with sale and pepper to taste. Pour into a shallow round casserole about nine inches in diameter. Cover with cornbread batter:

Beat one egg lightly, add one tablespoon sugar (if you live above the Mason-Dixon line), one third cup milk and ¼ cup melted shortening or salad oil. Sift together two thirds cup flour, one third cup cornmeal, 1½ teaspoons baking powder ¼ teaspoon salt. Add liquids to cornmeal mixture all at once. Blend together with as few strokes as possible. Spread over top of meat and gravy. Bake in a hot oven 400 degrees F — 20 to 25 minutes, or until the cornbread is crispy and brown on top. serves five or six.

Shrimp Stuffed Peppers

Six green peppers
two tablespoon butter or margarine
one teaspoon prepared mustard
⅛ teaspoon each of: garlic-salt, onion salt and pepper.
two tablespoons finely-chopped parsley
one egg
½ cup soft breadcrumbs
½ cup finely-sliced celery
one can (3 oz) sliced muchrooms
two eight-oz cans tiny shrimp

Cut tops from peppers, remove seeds and parboil for five minutes. Drain. Blend butter or margarine with mustard, garlic and onion salts, pepper and parsley. Mix in slightly beaten egg, bread crumbs, celery, mushrooms and shrimp. Stuff mixture into drained and cooled pepper shells.

Place the stuffed peppers in a shallow baking pan and pour a little hot water in pan. Bake in hot oven (400 degrees F) for 20 to 30 minutes depending on pepper size. Makes six servings. You may serve a sauce with these.

"NO CONTACT"

Men's hockey league in the works

A competitive mens hockey league in the form of the S M H L (Senior Mens hockey League) has evolved as an amalgamation of the old commercial players, some Gales, former Industrial players as well as ex-juvenile players making up the nucleus.

With virtually no competitive hockey league over the past three seasons, it was decided that in the interest of the arena, as well as the young players coming up through the minor hockey ranks, that a competitive league be formed for the many players wishing to play the game. Consequently what has evolved is a five team league, which will be strictly of the "no hitting" variety. The league has been formulated after many of the mens leagues around the lower mainland, which also are resorting to the "no - contact" brand of hockey to keep the players playing.

As you may have heard the entire Ontario Hockey Association has turned to no hitting in the hopes that kids will return to the game and build up the inherent skills, all the leagues right through Senior and Intermediate are switching over.

It is felt this will be the only way to get hockey back on track and into the proper perspective locally. Also already scheduled by the league are five exhibition games scheduled for once a month, against various teams from around the lower mainland. The format calls for a "select" coach who will not be associated with any of the club teams to choose 16 players from the league for these various games to be played on a Saturday night and Sunday morning. The intent of this select team will be to try and get a representativee group off of the peninsula to play with each other at various times during the year, gearing themselves towards a yearend CHALLENGE SERIES as has taken place in the past with Powell River. This years series expects to be between Squamish and-or North Vancouver.

As previously mentioned the league will be strictly a no hitting one, with the league commissioner giving the referees complete control and authority to administer stiff suspensions to any player responsible for any violent infraction of the rules, or for any ATTEMPT to injure for that matter.

With five teams registered for the upcoming season sponsored by Pender Harbour area business', two Sechelt area sponsors, one from Gibsons and one from the Roberts Creek area; it appears that players may register with teams from their particular area if they wish, although they may play for any one of the five teams.

So that the league will be as competitive as possible, each team has secured a goalie and five skaters as a nucleus of talent. This then allows forty five openings for the five teams for players interested in registering with the league. Teams will still attempt to ice the 16 best available players so there may be some switching of teams, but once the league has frozen the rosters after the first one or two games, any players then deciding to play or those who move here wishing to play, will be drafted by the league to the teams lowest in the standings if it is deemed that player would help.

The league has been given ice time that is considered prime time, with four league games a week being played. Game times will be Thursday evening from 8:00 - 9:45 p.m., a double header on Saturdays beginning at 7:00 - 8:45 and game two going from 9:00 - 10:45 p.m. A Sunday game would go from 6:00 - 7:45 p.m. There would be the opportunity for each team to practice every second or third week with times available on Wednesday evening from 9:00 - 10:00 p.m. and Thursday 10:00 - 11:00 p.m. These times insure each team of being on the ice twice a week with either two games a week or at least a game and a practice.

The cost to play in the new league has not yet been finalized, but it will definitely be a minimum of $100 or a maximum of $120 for 20 weeks of competitive hockey. This works out to roughly $2 a session for the season per player which is pretty reasonable recreation. Incidentally, all monies will be paid in advance BEFORE any players step on the ice, certainly should players decide to withdraw for any reason, refunds will be given.

It will be the intention of the league to honor all decisions handed down by officials, so to attempt to give the league some stability through its officiating, the league will pay officials. Any person interested in referring or lining a non-contact hockey league, or even learning to do it may contact Bruce Wormald at 886-7303.

Players interested in the Senior Mens Hockey League should send their commitment in to the various representatives at your earliest convenience, and so that you don't miss out on playing with the team you want.

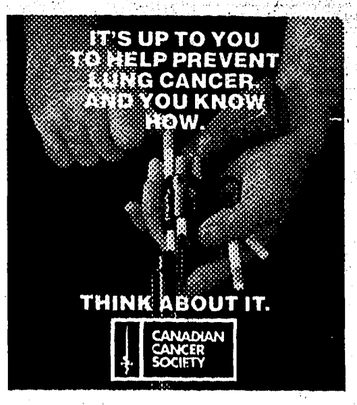
Summer golf winds down

by Ernie Hume

Very little news this week. The summer golf season is starting to wind down. The wet and windy days last week practically washed out the ladie's day on Tuesday. The brave souls who ventured to play managed nine holes, in an odd or even event. Eleanor Thompson placed 1st with Marg. Arbuckle second. In spite of the wet weather, 15 ladies battled the rain for 18 holes. Of the eight players who played nine holes, Beth Nidderly managed to win 1st place.

It is surprising how fast the fairways return to their rich green texture from the much needed rain that has fallen this past couple of weeks.

A report on the back to school and directors' tournament will be available.



A horse treat

Horse enthusiasts will get a treat this Sunday as the Timber Trail Riding Club will put on its Fall Horse Show.

The show is scheduled to start at 9:00 a.m. on Lockyer Road in Roberts Creek. Langley resident Ray Denyer will be making the trip up the coast to be a judge in the all day show which will start with halter, then, English and Western riding.

It promises to be lots of fun with games and the concession will serve homemade chili.

New band livens up coast

By Evi Blueth

Well known musicians Bob Carpenter, Budge Schachte, and Ken Dalgleish have recently formed a band that is already livening up coast bars. Their up-tempo music and good quality sound combined with Bob's original compositions make them an exciting and new experience.

They feel it is important that they are enjoying what they play and are considering incorporating more comedy into their routines. Presently their music could be categorized as "rock blues" but they are hoping not to limit themselves. Budge says, "We're aiming at keeping the audience happy". Although he finds the repetition of rock music a little boring he is feeling open to the many possibilities of this new band. Bob says, "We want to do fun songs to play. We want to become so good that even the noisiest bar crowd stops to listen."

All three musicians have been playing since their teens. Bob, guitarist and singer, born in Ontario, performed in coffee houses in Yorkville. He became more involved in the music business in Toronto and soon found himself in California working on an album with David Briggs. He describes those years, (between 25 and 28) as hectic and tiring. He began working on an album in LA where Brian Ahern, producer, set up a studio. Musicians such as Bill Payne, Emmy Lou Harris, Anne Murray and Diane Brooks were to be included on this album. Bob explains, "The album was finished in 75 but our lawyers couldn't see eye to eye so it was not released. They had it on the release charts, pressed 25,000 copies, then just melted them down, except in Japan where you can still find a copy. They just couldn't come to an agreement with the contract."

Bob's original compositions have been recorded by Bonnie Koloc, Billie Joe Shaver, Tom Rush and Emmy Lou Harris.

In Vancouver Bob performed in places such as the Bistro on 4th, the River Queen on Davie St. and recently he appeared at the Vancouver Folk Festival.

He hopes to make an album of his own songs in the near future. Although his more serious songs tend to be melancholy, he is also able to get an audience up and boogying.

In an effort to slow down, Bob moved to Robert's Creek in 1974. He set up a house painting business and claims that he and his partners have painted nearly all the local school walls.

Budge has recently been spending all his time practising, playing and teaching guitar. His main interest musically is writing compositions for vocal choir. Two of the people he has been influenced by are Paul Hindemith, a 20th century composer, and Hilm Holtz, a physicist fascinated by how physics relates to music. Previously Budge and Ken performed in a local band called "Up the Creek". Budge says, "Ideally I'd like to be playing in a jazz band, but unfortunately to make money one must make compromises." The band would like to be doing more experimental music but rock'n roll is the only sound appreciated by the local audience.

Ken Dalgleish, the piano man, was originally from California. He performed in various bands including a five piece jazz band with a horn player. He was tempted to become more involved with the music industry in California but decided against it. As he says, "I wanted to get away from all that craziness." The big-business, big-ego, fast-paced living didn't suit him so he moved up to Robert's Creek and set up the Alternate School in Gibsons.

He has been very active in community cultural events and sung in the local Madrigal group. The music for the Sunshine Kingdom, a local Driftwood Players presentation was composed by Ken. He also appeared on the CBC Peter Gzowski Show as a back-up musician for Peter Trower, local poet. He says, "I'm not star struck." He enjoys playing and being appreciated but feels no need to madly pursue fame and recognition. The enjoyment of actually doing the music and learning new tricks is more important to him.

The band is very new and not yet clear as to what direction it will move in. As Budge says, "We will collectively try and be happy." Recently they have been playing a lot of Dylan's and Jesse Winchester's songs. They are considering including a bass and drum player and would like to hear from anyone interested in the part. They have performed at Cedars, the Wakefield and the Peninsula. Hotel and hope to eventually play at local dances. Anyone wishing to contact them can call Bob at 885-9692.

The Frisco Kid is gunning to town

"The Frisco Kid" starts out somewhat like the Robert Klein joke about his childhood in the Catskill Mountains, "the Jewish Palm Springs."

Because Gene Wilder is its star, you would expect to see a madcap, bizarre Mel Brooksian farce. Nothing could be further from the truth.

Not even the title clues you in to the fact that this is one of the most unorthdox (no pun intended), lighthearted stories seen in some time.

It's 1850 and a group of Polish rabbis have selected Avram Balinski (Wilder), a kind but not too scholarly soul, to sail to America where a bride and a congregation await him in San Francisco. Because the chief Rabbi informs him that the city is somewhere near New York, it's not surprising that he gets very, very lost. Wilder docks in Philadelphia and heads westward. "The Frisco Kid" being the story of the "tsuris" (hardships) he encounters.

Wilder is marvelous. Bedecked in beard and yarmulke with twinkles in those mad blue eyes, he is the ultimate Torah-toting Jewish cowboy. Drawing on his own ethnic background. Wilder (nee Jerry Silverman) brings a warmth and humanity to the part that carries the movie along.

"The Frisco Kid" is a human, bittersweet comedy heavily laced with drama and sentiment. Although we might have preferred another helping of zaniness, Wilder more than makes up for it in warmth.

This is one modest little film that should bring some "nachas" (joy) to any ethnically aware audience. And to Gene Wilder, who is a delight, Mazel Tov! — Paul Hyman.

"That's Entertainment"

with Janine

Hello, here I am introducing an entertainment column for the Pen Times. This is a new undertaking for me so I'm not sure what direction this may take. Anything covered in this space is indeed merely my opinion!

Feedback would be welcomed and appreciated. In this way we may match up a cross-hatch of ideas, that will greatly contribute to the substance of this column.

The diversification of the subject matter under this heading is awesome when pondered upon; your own entertainment factor may be your neighbor's idea of hard labor!

However, if we proceed along the standard lines of television, films, recitals, public houses, fine dining, etc, we are still left with no small choice . . .

Selecting a subject at random, I did happen to drop into a prominent roadside drinking establishment the other evening to listen to a country and western group that had been previously recommended to me by an avid fan.

The Weston Airs consist of five humans and one dog. I found their form of entertainment relaxing, amusing and professional. They were able to cut loose and boogie hard. I was particularly impressed with the versatile piano back-up from the lady pianist.

Originally from Salmon Arm, the Weston Airs have now moved to Vancouver. They assured me they would be back, so I guess C & W fans may catch them next time around.

On the subject of fine dining, a friend and I enjoyed a pleasing meal at the newly-opened restaurant in Gibsons. The ambience was subdued and relaxing; the food tasty and well-presented, service was excellent and the fee modest for the feeling of satisfaction I was left with. I do wish these people well, dining out pleasurably certainly rates high on my entertainment list.

Up and coming this week at Ye Olde Peninsula Hotel is Bob Carpenter and his group.

Bob is back home on the coast after having recently played the Owen Sound Folk Festival and the second Annual Vancouver Folk Festival. He is a strong performer well-worth catching; maybe I shall see you there.

If you have information regarding coastal entertainment, future or past, or if you have comments, feel free to call and let me know what is happening.

Wishing all you ladies and gentlemen an entertaining week, I remain . . . sincerely, Janine.

ARTIFACTS

Photo Workshop

Sunshine Coast Arts Centre and Arts Council

This column is the first of many which will keep you up to date with news of the Sunshine Coast Arts Centre and Arts Council.

Of special interest to photographers will be the hand tinting and toning workshops conducted by Nomi Kaplan who is featured in the next exhibit at the Arts Centre. (Sept. 28 - Oct. 11). Nomi is a talented practitioner of this art form which has in recent years been resurrected from near obscurity after modern colour processes became popular.

The workshops will be held on Sat., Sept. 29, 4-6 p.m. and Thursday, October 11, 4-6 p.m. Fees will be $15.00 per person, per workshop, and classes will be limited to eight persons. Pre-registration is necessary - call 885-5412 to register.

JURIED SHOW

A juror has now been confirmed for the juried show of Sunshine Coast Art, to be held in early November. Chosen is Glenn Allison who is presently curator of the UBC Fine Arts Gallery, a director of Artcove consultants, and a director of the Greater Vancouver Artists' Gallery. In the past Glen was assistant curator at the Vancouver Art Gallery.

The Arts Council chose a juror from the Sunshine Coast to ensure a totally objective and educated eye to select works of art from our local artists.

All artists on the Sunshine Coast are encouraged to participate in this important event which will strike a healthy relationship between our artists and the Arts Centre. We hope to further promote promising local individuals beyond the boundaries of the Sunshine Coast and to inspire all artists in the development of their talents.

Paintings, drawings, prints, photographs, multi-media pieces, and sculptures will be accepted. Each artist will be able to submit up to three works of art. Fee is $5.00.

Participants will be asked to bring works to St. Hilda's Hall in Sechelt on November 3 between 9 and 11 a.m. The exhibit will be open on November 6, with a preview opening, the evening of November 5. Further information and entry forms will be available in the coming weeks.

Book Look

By MURRIE REDMAN

THE CURVE OF TIME by M. Wylie Blanchet, Gray's Publishing, 1977.

With summer now only a beautiful dream, it's time for reading by cosy fires and THE CURVE OF TIME is a perfect transition for the season.

"Capi" Blanchet, the author of this charming travelogue of the B.C. Coast, was a romantic figure herself. She, her husband and five children lived on Curteis Point on Vancouver Island. After Montreal, they felt their life was idyllic. But in 1927, Mr. Blanchet went missing from his boat and "Capi" was left with five children.

She became the children's teacher and many of her marvellous lessons were given on the "Caprice". With only the clothes on their backs and a bathing suit, they sailed and putted off for the summer every year, buying supplies as they went along or catching sealife and picking berries for food. What lucky children, what a wonderful teacher!

The small crew and their courageous skipper explored the coves and inlets, letting their curiosity and a simple mariner's book, chart them along. The "Caprice" was only 25 feet long and had a six and one-half foot beam — not very big for the six aboard. The wooden craft was sturdy though, and like its captain, true.

The author's observatons invite readers to share all the hidden doubts and silent warnings when rocks loomed or bears threatened. Blanchet's joy and deep respect for all things natural, while maintaining sensible distances are recorded in this journal.

The family's visits to ancient Indian villages near the Charlottes are especially intriguing. The author's accounts are even important - for now, many of the artifacts are gone, lonely to air-conditioned halls in museums, while she saw them through the vines and mosses as they were meant to be known. Blanchet's feelings as the small group walked awe-struck through deserted cedar lodges and past huge totems instill in the reader a history never again to be realized. Her surprise at looking up from the base of great cedars to see burial boxes, contents long gone, still hanging in the wind high above, is exquisite. Her mother's joy at watching the young, browned bodies tumbling in the salt chuck on the morning swim or rinsing out their only clothes in a waterfall splashing into a quiet bay is delightful.

The book rambles along comfortably as we meet the unusual people tucked recluse-like into coves along the seldom visited coast. They are the ones who retreated from the mainstream of life to exist in shacks papered with memories. They became friends of the Blanchets, exchanging news for apples or fish on summer visits. And the usual frustrations when boat engines fail or fears when the anchor drags at night can be appreciated by even the modern boater.

"Long shafts of sunlight crept through the valleys to strike the opposite snowcapped peaks. Down. . .down . . the shafts slowly dropped and spread . . .then caught and held our white sails. We stretched cold, stiff limbs; the mist rose off our dripping decks and canvas; we shouted, and the sleepy crew streamed up on deck to greet the sun."

IN ROBERTS CREEK

Referendum on Community Centre

The people of Roberts Creek will be asked to approve financing for a new $350,000 community centre in a Specified Area tax referendum on Saturday, September 22. Residents and taxpayers in the area from the Girl Guide Camp to Seaview Cemetery are eligible to vote on the proposed project to provide a new gymnasium for Roberts Creek Elementary and a new hall for the community at large.

Generally, the plan is for a full-sized gymnasium, large enough to accomodate a regulation-sized basketball court, with a stage for theatre productions, proper acoustics for concerts, lavatories, showers and changing rooms, a kitchen, at least one meeting room and storage area.

The terms of the referendum ask for authority to borrow up to the full $350,000 and lay responsibility for the entire cost of the project on the taxpayer. But Area D Director Harry Almond and the Finance Committee for the project estimate a tax increase of two mills or less, about $15 per year for owners of property with a market value of around $50,000. And the mill rate is expected to decline when the Volunteer Fire Department's new truck is paid off in 1981.

The project will proceed only if the balance of the funding can be obtained from other government sources. Once electoral approval is received for the specified area funding, application can be made for a provincial grant of one-third to one-half of the total cost, such as Pender Harbour recently received for their swimming pool.

There is also the possibility of federal grants and the availability of lottery proceeds is being investigated. And there is the promise of $80,000 from the Sunshine Coast's Joint Use Committee.

The idea of a new Community Hall was first raised about five years ago. The present hall is 45 years old and proving inadequate for the needs of the growing community. It is filled to capacity at dances. The lack of parking is a real problem, creating a fire hazard for traffic on the highway and at the fire hall. Investments in renovations and repairs have reached the point of diminishing return. And the heating bills are abominable.

The School, on the other hand, has an activity room that does not even accomodate a single volleyball court and is inadequate for functions such as the Christmas concert. Roberts Creek, unlike schools elsewhere in the Province, is an area of escalating enrolment and the present activity room could be converted into extra classrooms when the need arises. And, while the Department of Education's specifications do not yet warrant a larger gymnasium, it is felt that the needs of the students and the community of Roberts Creek do.

It is recognized that it is a waste to utilize facilities as expensive as schools on a daytime basis only. Schools are being used increasingly by the public at large. It is already School Board policy to make classrooms, shops, and gymnasiums available for adult use at reasonable cost. And since the Community Hall is used chiefly at night it seems only practical to combine the functions of the two facilities and thereby maximize use.

It was decided, therefore, to combine the plan for a new community hall with one for a gymnasium to be built behind the School.

Since the building will be on school property, the School Board will be the nominal owners and will be responsible for maintenance and operating costs. But in the end, it belongs to the taxpayer and a joint-use committee with equal representation from the School District and the Community will make the decisions as to its operation, including rentals, pursuant to a formal joint-use contract. The experience of similar joint-use projects at Whistler and Bowen Island will be drawn upon for guidance.

Voters will receive additional information about the project in the mail this week. And everybody is invited and urged to attend the public forum at the Community Hall on Monday, September 17, at 8 p.m. where a panel will be available to answer questions.

The Ways and Means Committee for the project are anxious to stimulate enthusiasm for the project and allay doubts. They hope that the success of and the community spirit generated by their Roberts Creek Daze is indicative of the support that will be demonstrated for the community centre project at the polls at the School on Saturday, September 22.
