Change in regional plan and bylaw could open industrial floodgate

A proposal to build a service industrial subdivision within the Sechelt Village core, if allowed to proceed, could be opening a floodgate to industrial development, says the Sunshine Coast Regional District chairman.

Chairman Ed Nicholson said the Pebble Holding proposal and the subsequent requests which would allow six parcels of land near the Hydro easement to be used for service industrial could create an awkward situation.

"There is a definite possibility that if we amend the sub-regional plan to allow service industrial it will be opening a floodgate," Nicholson said.

He pointed out there was property owned by Len Van Egmond, next to the Pebble Holdings' land, which would eventually have to be considered for rezoning into industrial if Pebble was allowed to proceed.

"What will Sechelt council do when Len Van Egmond wants to take his property out?" Nicholson asked.

Even more confusing is the question of whether or not Pebble Holdings will be able to go ahead without the blessing of the SCRD.

"If the Village of Sechelt goes ahead and completes the rezoning to allow the development and we decide not to amend the sub-regional plan, it's going to become a very awkward situation.

"The only way it can be resolved will be in the courts. It's purely a legal question," Nicholson speculated.

Although Pebble Holdings' requestion has not been ratified by the Village of Sechelt, their spokesman Stan Anderson had asked SCRD to amend its sub-regional plan from residential to allow service industrial on the proposed site.

However, an intervention by Cameo Industries, protesting the amendment caused the SCRD directors to table the application.

But if SCRD doesn't go along with the Village of Sechelt's decision, Alderman Morgan Thompson claims the proponents can go ahead anywyay.

"It's not our fault the regional plan is wrong. It's council's decision," not the regional board's," he said.

Still, Cameo Industries' Henry Hall dismissed Thompson's reasoning saying Victoria wants compliance between both the Sechelt Community plan and sub-regional plan.

He also said he wasn't against the local developer for trying, but was upset at the council for letting them do something they shouldn't be allowed to do.

"I'm not against the local developers, I'm against a council which doesn't know its business," he said.

In a letter to SCRD, Hall criticized the application pointing out several reasons why it should not be dealt with.

"The application to amend the sub-regional plan to allow an industrial subdivision in the Sechelt core is made by a private developer without the support or consent of the Sechelt Village Council, or the citizens of Sechelt," Hall said.

He also pointed out that the proper procedure for changing the plan would be to approach the general public first and notices should go out to all concerned parties.

However, Anderson claimed that Hall's accusations were not true.

"If we did not have the support of council the application would not be before you.

"If we did not have the consent of the citizens of the village, council would not have sent our zoning application to Victoria for ratification," Anderson said.

He went on to attack the motives of Hall saying it was an "obvious stall tactic."

"We ask that the application for amendment to go forward as proposed and see no reason why any delaying tactic by Mr. Hall be given any credibility by the planning committee.

"It is obvious that the stall tactic by Mr. Hall is motivated by his self interest in pushing his floundering Industrial Park," Anderson said.

According to Anderson, the amendment was being put forward at the request of five separate small businesses who feel they need the proximity of the business area in Sechelt in order to make their endeavors successful.

"The motivation in seeking this amendment is not financial gain as the lots are presently zoned for duplex and Pebble Holdings could market the finished product with equal profitability," Anderson said.

Despite Anderson's claims of Hall's self motivation, Hall, who owns an industrial park in Wilson Creek, claims his biggest concern is for the community of Sechelt.

"It just isn't in keeping with the regional plan and when you have a plan I think it should be followed," Hall pointed out.

TRANSMISSION LINE CONTROVERSY

Public hearing still up in the air

Environment Minister Rafe Mair said last week there was a strong possibility a public hearing would be held on the environmental impact of B.C. Hydro's proposed Cheekye-Dunsmuir 500 kilovolt transmission line.

Mair and B.C. Hydro officials met with members of the Sakinaw Lake Property Owners and Leaseholders Association on a trip to the lake July 23 to look over the present proposed route.

"We did a lot of arguing on justification and Mair stuck to his original statement that justificiation cannot be talked about any more," Howard White said.

Following up on Mair's near-compromise, the coalition consisting of members from each of the areas affected by the proposed transmission line met Saturday with Kim Roberts of the West Coast Environmental Law Association to prepare a brief which Roberts will present to Mair in another meeting.

On Friday evening, White, Roberts, Area A regional director Joe Harrison, MLA Robert Skelly (NDP Alberni), Hilda Kellington of the Cowichan Valley and Charles Nash of B.C. Hydro met on CKVU's Forum with Laurier Lapierre to discuss the transmission line.

Mair's trip to Sakinaw Lake enlightened Mair to the possible environmental damage to the lake, White said.

However, Mair said viewing the site personally was more useful than holding a public meeting.

"Maybe so, if he can to each part of the line where there was a problem and discussed it with the people from Egmont, Pender Harbour, Texada Island and Vancouver Island," White said.

"He could do it in one swoop with a public hearing in a central place."

Mair left with two alternative routes to study — the underwater route from Reception Point in Halfmoon Bay through the military reserve in Georgia Strait to Nile Creek and a new route worked out a few days before the meeting, White said.

This route crosses and travels up the west side of Sechelt Inlet, cuts overland behind North Lake and crosses Agamemnon Channel about one-quarter of a mile closer to the south mouth of the channel than the present proposed route.

This route would solve the problem of crossing over Sakinaw Lake and the mouth of Pender Harbour, but it would create an environmental conflict with Ambrose lake and dissatisfy North Lake residents, White said.

Ambrose Lake was set aside by the government as an ecological reserve for nesting waterfowl.

The Sakinaw Lake group still prefers the underwater route, White said.

Head of B.C. Hydro's Systems Design Eamon Crowley told them it was "completely out of the question, though he admitted it was technically feasible," White said.

This route would raise the cost of building the line nearly $150 million as well as increase maintenance costs, Crowley said.

"Mair checked him up a bit on that," White said.

"He said he wanted to see proof and Crowley said he would do a study on it."

After the 45-minute meeting at Jim Wolstencroft's home, Sakinaw Lake resident Ivo Cargnelli flew over the new proposed route with Crowley.

Attending the meeting also were two other Sakinaw Lake residents, Mair's deputy-minister and executive assistant, Alan Ferguson of the Environmental Land-Use Committee and Jim Stevenson of B.C. Hydro's engineering department.

Repayment scheme sought on $2.5 million SIB loan

An audit of the Sechelt Indian Band has resulted in several recommendations going to the provincial government concerning possible repayment schemes for a $2.5 million loan.

The government is trying to collect the loan made to SIB International in 1975 for the purchase of an Artic Harvester fishing boat.

According to Bob Exell, an advisor to the provincial government on Indian affairs, the SIB have not made any repayment on the loan.

However, a financial consultant was hired by the provincial government to look into the financial capabilities of the SIB and to come up with recommendations on a repayment scheme.

These recommendations have been put before Labour Minister Allan Williams and Economic Development Minister Don Phillips for approval.

"My understanding of the situation is that the consultant has come up with certain recommendations and it is now up to the ministers to okay them," Exell said.

Exell went on to say, if the ministers approve, the SIB would live up to those recommendations.

"He came up with a scheme he felt would be workable. Afterall the government wants the enterprise to succeed," he said.

However, SIB chairman Gilbert Joe has no idea what the consultant has put forward.

"Our whole financial structure is under review and that is why I don't think it would be fair to make a comment other than to say we haven't received those recommendations," Joe said.

What type of alternatives does the government have?

"SIB have a successful operation there and they can succeed if we don't put a heavy hand on them.

"Of course one of our possible alternatives would be to seize the bloody boat, but what good would that do," Exell said.

Planner hired

A West Vancouver private planning consultant was appointed Sechelt's village planner following an interview July 24 in the council chambers.

Dinnis Walton was retained on a full-time basis in August at a salary of $3,000 plus expenses to catch up on the backlog of zoning and subdivision applications. After the first month Walton is employed a minimum of four days per month or one day per week at $250 per day until December 31, 1979.

Walton's experience includes stints with the ministry of municipal affairs as planning officer in the regional planning division from 1960-1962 and with the London, England, County Council as planner in 1962.

From 1963 to 1974, Walton was the director of planning for the municipality of West Vancouver. Before his latest position as deputy-planner for the District of North Vancouver where he co-ordinated a series of land-use studies, Walton spent some time in Melbourne, Australia as the senior planner for research and development.

Walton said last week his first duties would be "steeping myself into the guidelines you have in existence and following up the course council has laid down."

The budgeted yearly amount for village planning ran out earlier this year. Village clerk-treasurer Malcolm Shanks said Walton will be studying other municipalities' methods of regaining planning costs from developers through subdivision and zoning applications.

In this way, the developers will be paying for most of Walton's salary, he said.

Sechelt interested in site

Sechelt village council has expressed interest in a portion of land owned by the Senior Citizens' Housing Society intending to locate a joint-use facility there, the Times learned last week.

The approximately two-acre section is part of the property on which the senior citizens' housing complex Greene Court is situated.

However, the society decided in a meeting June 24 to strike a committee to investigate future uses for the property and denied council's request to discuss its possible sale.

Council previously sought to rezone a one-acre portion of Block Seven from Residential I to Public Assembly in order to locate the joint-use facility which would house offices for the regional board, school board and municipality, a common boardroom and the library.

The council had a verbal agreement with Shorncliffe Development, Ltd., owners of Block Seven, to exchange the properties on which the municipal hall and library are located for the one acre portion and $20,000 and were in the process of formulating an interim agreement.

The agreement was sent to village's solicitors Bull, Housser and Tupper and a revised agreement was returned.

A Shorncliffe spokesman said since the public hearing July 11 where the bylaws concerning this and other rezonings were discussed, nothing further has been negotiated.

At a council meeting July 18, progress on most of the bylaws dealt with at the public hearing was delayed, including the rezoning of the remainner of Block Seven from Residential I to Commercial I.

If Shorncliffe cannot do something of a commercial nature with the remainders, the spokesman said, the whole block is needed if the company decides to subdivide for residential.

Also, as of July 25, there was a tentative offer from a buyer for the property, he said.

Since it was learned the remaining Greene Court property may be available, "we've had four or five people asking for it," society chairman Norm Burley said.

The committee will determine whether more housing should be constructed and if not, what should be done with the property, he said.

It will take some time before this decision is made and council was refused their request because "the village is in a rush."

"We're certainly not going to give the land away if there is a chance we might be building in the future."

Presently there are 24 units with 15 under construction.

Sechelt village clerk-treasurer Malcolm Shanks said the society "let it be known the land might be available for $1 and council followed it up."

Recent problems with the Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation may have caused some members of the society to reconsider future construction, he said.

Burley said some directors were "disgruntled" enough about the situation to warrant a new committee.

Acquiring the society's piece of land would eliminate many of the requirements council has to fulfil before taking over the one-acre portion of Block Seven, Shanks said.

Among the steps eliminated are rezoning and selling the library property which has caused some dismay among elder Sechelt residents.

Come one come all to Gibsons' Sea Cavalcade celebrations

Come on down to Gibsons this weekend and get your feet wet during the annual Gibsons Sea Cavalcade celebrations. Action is back-to-back from the opening ceremonies on Gibsons wharf 7 p.m. Friday to the final judging of the float-afloat contest and awards presentation 4:30 p.m. Sunday. This year's Cavalcade theme is Gibsons' Fifty Golden Years.

Continuing this year is the Sea Cavalcade Tennis Tournament. Tennis enthusiasts may enter in ladies', men's and mixed singles and doubles and should register at Trail Bay Sports in Sunnycrest Mall until noon tomorrow or phone 886-8020.

Ladies' and men's singles start 6 p.m. Friday, on the Elphinstone school courts. For time of play, phone Eric Cardinall at 886-7449. There are prizes for all winners and finalists and consolation prizes for first-round losers.

The Elphinstone Pioneer Museum is hosting an art exhibition emphasizing local history with its own collection of memorabilia and with a special three-day showing by the Vancouver Art Gallery of paintings on a nautical theme to match that of the Sea Cavalcade.

Local artists are invited to display their works, but since the weekend celebrations include a Craft Fair, the museum is concentrating on the finer arts — painting, sculpture, etc.

Artists displaying their work Aug. 4 will be charged a minimal fee. If you wish to show your work or want more information, phone 886-8232.

For the first — and possible last — time, the quantity and quality of men's facial hair could earn them a prize in the beard-judging contest on Gibsons wharf 7 p.m. Friday night. Those men with the largest, worst, best or salt-and-pepper beards will be rewarded.

And, the Sea Cavalcade committee warns, those beardless men without "old smoothie" buttons, beware of public abuse in the stocks.

Saturday's parade leaves the Sunnycrest Mall at 10 a.m. and ends at Dougal Park.

Contestants in the poster contest, bike and costume parade, bike race and Float-Afloat contest must pre-register.

About noon Sunday, Elphinstone Aero Club will stage its fly-past. Always a big draw, the watersports will pit men and women against each other in log-burling, greased pole and jousting events most of the day.

Labor flareup cools down at Port Mellon

A two-day talk session between union and management with an officer of the Labour Relations Board July 23 and 24 yielded employees of Canadian Forest Products' Port Mellon pulp mill "a few results, nothing too drastic," Canadian Paperworkers' Union spokesman Dave Gant said.

Sixteen hours of discussion in the Better Methods building in Port Mellon, including a tour of the mill which "opened the eyes" of some top Canfor people, resulted in promises of immediate action and further meetings, he aiad.

But in taking the results back to the local, Gant said the general response was negative.

"People don't trust Canfor. Negotiated items from two years ago have been put off and put off until their (Canfor's) credibility has gone down the drain," he said.

Management agreed to install air-conditioning in six of the hotter areas of the mill including the backtender's shack, batchcook digester area, recovery operators' room, steam plant operations room and assistant shift engineer's office and the recovery maintenance lunchroom.

Management agreed also to start immediately on shower and locker room facilities in steam and recovery. In another meeting August 13, both parties will discuss the possibility of a central shower and locker room facility for production workers.

"We certainly intend to do what we agreed to do as we have always done in the past," Port Mellon production manager Jim Earle said.

These tasks are "part of an on-going program in the improvement of working conditions at Port Mellon," and there has been "excellent progress over a number of years," he added.

"Nothing satisfactory was gained on a local hiring policy, Gant said, and the union will have to wait until mill manager Bill Hughes, who left on vacation just before the meeting, returns before resuming discussion.

The CPU local is looking into the possibility of preferential hiring relief for local young persons who need to earn money only during the summer months to continue their education.

If the term of employment is specified as summer months only, the company is not committed to employ them permanently, Gant said. Presently, employees are entitled to permanent employment after 30 days.

Earle said Canfor's hiring policy is "consistent."

"We don't give preference to local people, but then again, we don't discriminate against local people," he said.

The company has agreed to renegotiate holiday ground rules in late September and October in time for the 1980 holiday season.

These have not been renegotiated since they were first introduced in 1971, Gant said.

Employees now will be trained ahead two jobs at the minimum and will be given one day on each tour to operate the equipment related to the new jobs.

This will solve the problem of denying employees their earned time off because of shortages in manning.

Gant said the company does not feel there is much of a problem with employees unable to take their floaters, days-in-lieu or banked time.

The Industrial Relations department now will maintain all records of denied leave to monitor the problem.

"We told them their credibility is at stake," Gant said. There were bull session items agreed on two years ago which have not been followed up, he said.

"If they don't go ahead, there'll be nothing but chaos.".

A time for giving

And yet another group of "do gooders" comes knocking on our doors, asking for a slice of our already shrinking dollar. If it isn't the Marching Mothers then rest assured it will be the people who are out to save your lungs and heart.

It gets a bit tiring after awhile and it also makes you wonder if those tax dollars your paying are going towards anything else besides roads, sewers and maintaining the bureaucracy.

Still, the organizations and charities which hit you up for your spare change and extra dollars are a needed function in society. Most are do gooders, but not in the negative sense of the word.

They do good, filling a large vacuum in society, helping those who need help.

Fortunately most of those organizations don't have much work to do up here on the Sunshine Coast, unfortunately we quite often don't get to see what our dollars are doing.

However, this isn't the case with the Sunshine Coast Community Services Society who are now in the process of a fund raising drive.

Their services can be seen on any given day, providing adult daycare, homemakers and a minibus service for the handicapped. They help with the child care workers and in the alternate education schools.

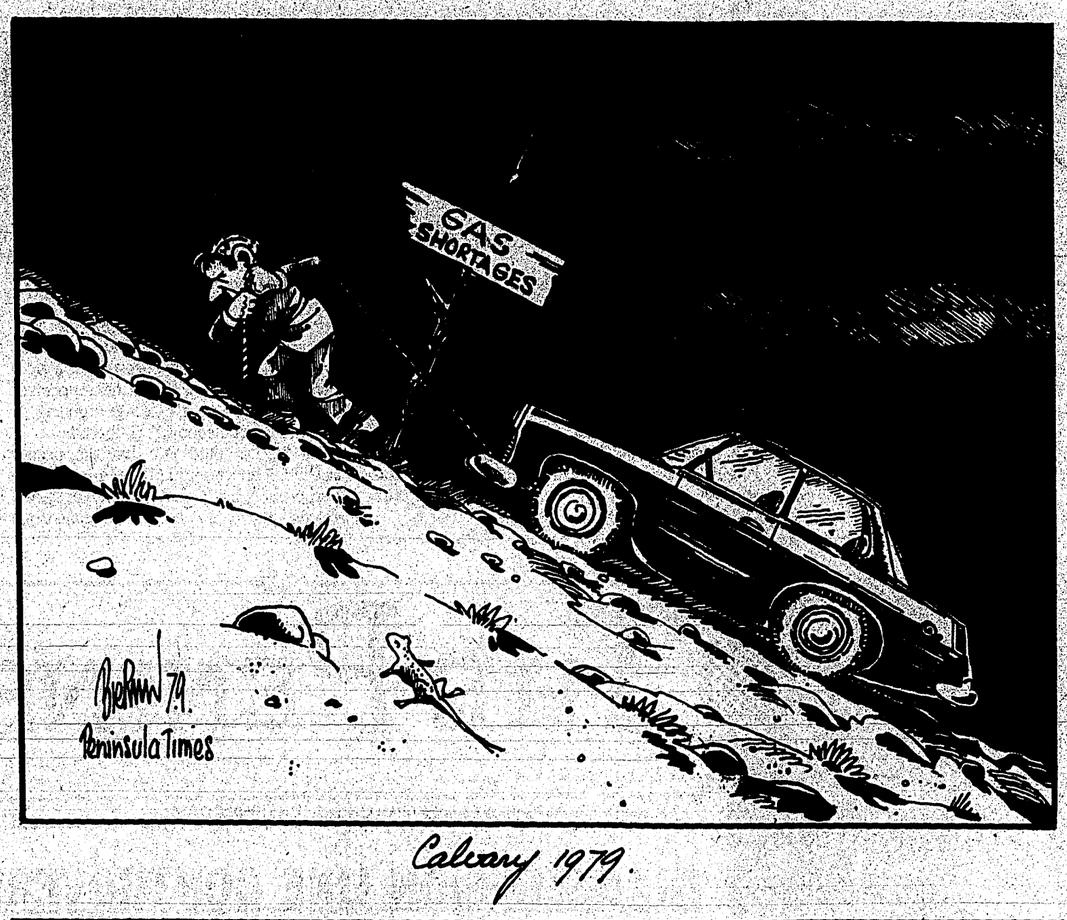
Best of all, they are largely a volunteer organization devoted to helping our community grow and become stronger.

These services are needed and without our support they just can't continue to serve the community adequately.

The old, the infirmed and the handicapped cannot be shuffled aside. They need, as we need, to become as independent as possible.

Without the support of the SCCSS this is almost impossible. They need not only your money, but also a little of your time.

So over the next few weeks just don't think about it, dig down into your wallets and your time schedules and perhaps you might find a little to spare — for the good of the community and your own piece of mind.



Report from Victoria

Rubber stamp?

by Don Lockstead
MLA Mackenzie Riding

One of the most important yet least-reported events of the past legislative session concerned B.C. Hydro's spending estimates. The government approved Hydro borrowings in excess of five billion dollars. The media treated the government's speedy passage of the Hydro borrowing bill as simple housekeeping legislation. In other words, little coverage.

In contrast, this month, one of the major stories on every newscast was the announcement by Minister of Energy, Mines and Petroleum Resources Jim Hewitt that the government would be making public a provincial energy policy some time in September. The point is not that the Social Credit government has taken four years to come up with an energy policy. No, the point is that, with the magnitude of Hydro's spending, we already have an energy policy. By virtue of the five billion dollar borrowing, there are projects in place that the Almight himself would have difficulty in removing.

If September's announcement is simply a rubber stamp, what then is the province's energy policy? Just listing off the projects such as the Site C dam on the Peace River and the Dunsmuir-Cheekye line provides the answer. The 500-kilovolt lines from the Mainland to Vancouver Island is going to be one of the most expensive parts of that energy policy. I have spoken before about the fear that residents of the Sunshine Coast have regarding the project, but my point this week is simply this: construction moratoriums exist only on paper. In the estimates that the government rushed through the House, Hydro will receive approximately $50 million to develop the line. Once spending begins, and indeed accelerates, an energy policy is in place no matter what the minister chooses to announce in September.

But the whole idea of an announcement from on high regarding an issue which has such widespread effects as a provincial energy policy strikes me as a bit inadequate. It shouldn't be done that way. A more rational and democratic approach to the development of an energy policy would be the public-hearings route.

That way Hydro would become a public utility in theory as will as practice. For too long the officials at Hydro have hidden between the description of Hydro as a publicly-owned corporation. Because of that description, the Hydro engineers see opposition to their plans as against the good of the province.

In terms of public money alone, it's time to put an end to the "top-down" system of energy policy information.

A sign of the times

First impression

by Bill Bell

A 19th century proverb says "First impressions are the most lasting." If that holds true then the Sunshine Coast's beauty and residents' friendliness has won a lifelong admirer.

Of course first impressions have been known to go wrong — one English Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain returned to England from Munich, Germany with the impression peace was at hand. That of course was in 1938.

Then there was General George Custard's love for the rolling hills of Little Big Horn as well as Captain Cook's description of the friendly natives of Hawaii.

History proved their first impressions wrong but I've got a hunch I'm going to enjoy working on the Pen Times.

YOUNGER DAYS

It isn't often a reporter finds himself reminded of his younger years in the course of his trade.

However, when I walked into the Sunshine Coast Regional Board meeting last Thursday night a long forgotten piece of history fell back into place.

Ridgeway Elementary, a school serving the Lower Lonsdale area in North Vancouver was built out of not quite red brick just after the first World War.

Those memories of grade seven at Ridgeway came pouring back into my mind. There I was standing in my running shoes, shorts and T-shirt before a gym teacher who couldn't of been much older than 20 years.

That teacher had his job cut out for him right from the start as he had a class filled to the brim with prime jerks.

We were the closest you could get to the blackboard jungle this side of Toronto, everyone of us thought we were tough and were willing to go to any extreme to prove it.

A lot of the class came from broken families with fathers who spent more time in the Olympic Hotel beer parlour than on the job. Grass still wasn't heard of much, but that didn't stop some of the guys getting high on such destructive things as glue or when you could find it, a concoction of Mountain Dew.

Mountain Dew was carefully mixed drink of at least ten different alcohol beverages skimmed carefully off of each bottle in the family liquor cabinet, replaced with an equal amount of water.

Lower Lonsdale at the time was made up of run-down poorly constructed war time homes built for the workers at Burrard Dry Docks.

Many of us would be pulled out of school by the health nurse for various infections and infestations. We never gave it a second thought.

Our spare hours would be spent down on the docks, bumming American smokes and booze off of the visiting Greek sailors.

Mind you not everyone at Ridgeway came from that background because as you moved up the hill, the richer your family was. I was in the middle where most of my good friends had parents who were aspiring to become middle class.

Still, we thought we were tough and a new teacher was marked for special attention.

This included the usual disrespect, verbal abuse and sluffing off, combined with almost every type of harrassment you can imagine.

The Lower Lonsdale boys would by the end of the year push the young teacher to the limit and each time we got what we deserved — double time and no canteen.

He worked us off our butts, push-ups, long distant running, stride jumps and worst of all no time for baseball games.

The young gym teacher wasn't liked, but some of us started to respect him as the year progressed, the gym teacher made a few mistakes. By the end of the school term everyone knew you didn't mess around in his class.

Why were all these memories brought back at a SCRD meeting in Sechelt? Because that young gym teacher was the chairman, Ed Nicholson.

Gone were all traces of insecurity which we used to our advantage to bug the hell out of him. Both of us have grown up a lot since those days at Ridgeway.

After the meeting, Ed who was just as surprised to see me as I was to see him, asked, "Your're not going to hold it against me are you, Bill? I was so young back then."

Heck no, Ed, I won't hold it against you, if you don't hold any grudges about the time I let the air out of all your tires. After all I was so young back then.

Naturalist corner...

THE FABLE OF THE FRUIT
By ALISON WATT, Park naturalish
Porpoise Bay Provincial Park.

As the summer moves on, its various faces show themselves. The fields and road sides are evolving from a sea of bright, showy blossoms to a more subtle product. Each of these blossoms provided a bright, inviting site for the collection of nectar or pollen by insects. The insect visitors unknowingly transfer pollen from flower to flower as they barge their way into the nectar containing portions of the flower. The pollen is quickly caught by the stigma-a sticky surface which opens to the ovary of the flower. The pollen produces a tube, which extends into the ovary, down which the sperm travel to fertilize the eggs.

Once fertilized, the ovaries begin to enlarge, forming the fruit, and it is at this time that the petals and sepals drop off. These bright appendages are no longer needed. So form the berries which are ripening fast and furiously at this time of year.

Other flowering plants go through a similar process but do not produce berries. They have different ways of accomplishing the same end. Some (such as the dandelion) have seeds attached to parachute-like structures. Being very light they can be transported for miles on the wind, far from the mother plant. Some plants disperse their seeds on burrs which get caught in the fur or pant leg of a passing animal until the animal removes them.

Berry producing plants have gone one step further; the often brightly coloured berries are consumed by many creatures, the seeds being deposited eventually, complete with fertilizer. Among the animals which take advantage of this food supply (bears, chipmunks, squirrels, skunks, birds) are people.

Which brings us to the often asked question "is it poisonous". This is often a difficult question to answer as the toxicity of quite a few species has not been established scientifically; some people are sensitive to certain berries at various stages of growth, or when grown in certain locations; and some otherwise tasty berries contain seeds that are toxic if eaten in quantity.

We are fortunate on the coast to have many edible berries. Among them are: salmonberries, blackberries, huckleberries, salal berries, raspberries and blueberries. Before collecting them though a positive identification should be made. A common misconception is that if a berry is eaten by other creatures it is safe for us to eat too. This is not true and good example of this is that of the bright red elderberry which we see hanging in bunches on bushes along the roadsides; these berries have been known to make people ill though the birds consume them voraciously.

For anyone interested in pursuing identification of our wild berries an excellent guide is Wild Berries of the Pacific Northwest by J.E. (Ted) Underhill. It describes and illustrates common berries as well as includes a number of recipes. Another way to learn about some of the local berries is to come along on my walk on Friday at 8:00 pm.

Other events this week:

Sat. (4th) Bird watch at the porpoise bay marsh 8:00 am.

Sun. Spider Hunt for kids 10:00 am, 8:00 pm a talk — "The Hole Truth About Woodpeckers".

Mon. 10:00 am. at Roberts Creek picnic site — a beach walk "under the rocks and in the sand".

Tues. 11:00 am I will be leading a walk into Skookumchuck. Meet at the Park info. sign on Egmont Road. There is a low tide of 1.3 at 11:40 am and a high tide of 15.3 at 6:55 pm.

Meet at the change house on the beach for any events at Porpoise Bay.

"Thou shalt have no other gods before me." (EX. 20 3)

Of this great commandment, Mary Baker Eddy writes, "The First Commandment is my favorite text. It demonstrates Christian Science. ——One infinite God, good, unifies men and nations; constitutes the brotherhood of man; ends wars; fulfils the Scripture, 'Love thy neighbor as thyself'; annihilates pagan and Christian idolatry, —whatever is wrong in social, civil, criminal, political, and religious codes; equalizes the sexes; annuls the curse on man, and leaves nothing that can sin, suffer, be punished or destroyed." # Thanks

Once again the Sunshine Coast Society for Vietnamese Refugees would like to thank all those people who have been so generous with their support toward sponsoring several families of refugees here on the coast.

The Society has now $3,500 in its bank account and $4,500 more in pledges. Material donations such as blankets, sheets, and towels are needed. Materials can be left at 1247 Dolphin St. — at the home of Howard and Maxine Pratt. Arrangements can be made to have these items picked up by phoning Elaine Futterman at 885-2395. Actual pickup will begin the second week of August.

The Society is still looking for low cost rental accommodation that will be available around the beginning of September.

For more information please phone Elaine Futterman at 885-2395.

Letters to the Editor

Have you noticed?

Editor, The Times:

Have you noticed how your monthly Hydro bill is going out of sight? One, two or three hundred dollars seems common. A lot of us are asking why.

Why do I pay 45 mills for power while Crown Zellerbach pays six mills? Why does Bonner sell power at six mills to the forest industry on the Island when it costs us between 13 and 25 mills to generate?

These are important questions and they deserve answers from Charles Nash, Vice-President in charge of B.C. Hydro's rhetoric machine.

What is clear is Hydro's debt which Nash calls a "mortgage" stands at 5.6 billions dollars. Anything which increases the debt, will boost the homeowner's bill. Projects such as the Cheekye line which threatens to increase the debt by one billion without providing one watt of new power will fall on our shoulders.

B.C. Hydro recently wrote a letter to the government urging them not to release the Schaffer report. The reason Hydro gives is that it will confuse the issue further. If Mr. Nash wishes to keep the record factual he would be wiser to supply us with information rather than his disingenuous attempt to discredit Hydro's critics.

The information "blackout" imposed by Hydro and the government are not helpful to the public debate on energy.

No one will be convinced by Nash's assurances regarding Hydro's nuclear plans. After all, Robert Bonner is the president of Hydro and he has made his pre-nuclear stand clear over and over again.

As for power export, the Province of July 19 reports:

"B.C. Hydro chairman Robert Bonner thinks Canada should increase its energy exports to help finance the country's future energy needs."

The article quotes Bonner speaking to the Electrical Engineers meeting in the Hotel Vancouver.

"We could obviously develop our own needs much more readily with 23 million people (Canada's population) and a foreign market rather than just ourselves."

Aside from the problem of logic which arises (that is satisfying our needs with power we have exported) Bonner's vision of our continental energy future is clear.

What is not clear is the social and environmental cost of acid rains from coal plants, drowned river valley farmlands, atomic wastes, defoliated powerlines, contaminated water supplies and skyrocketing electricity bills.

Hydro is currently selling just under half of its generating capacity in B.C., much of it below cost to industrial users. The monthly bill testifies to the crushing burden of Hydro debt carried by the homeowners. Hydro's plans for new projects can only increase our surplus capacity, our debt and our utility bills.

If I am wrong Mr. Nash, then I am in good company. During the past year Peter Peice of UBC, Drs. Cox and Helliwell dealing with hog fuel cogeneration, Paul H. Jones for the federal forestry branch, Marvin Schaffer and numerous other critics and consultants as well as members of the opposition have raised these matters.

It has become apparent to governments at all levels that what a Province editorial terms "the sad state of energy regulation in B.C." needs attention.

So spare us the claims of inaccuracies and the efforts to discredit your critics, Mr. Nash. We urge the government to release the Schaffer report rather than manipulate the information flow.

Medical aid

Editor, The Times:

Since the formation of the Medical Aid to Nicaragua Committee (MATN), conditions have worsened for hundreds of thousands of Nicaraguan refugees.

The war has devastated Nicaragua. Today, the country faces a disastrous economic future: an inherited foreign debt of two billion dollars, bombed-out cities and roads, and the prospect of no autumn harvest (important for food and export).

There is also a great need for medical supplies and this is why MATN was formed. MATN is raising money for medical supplies. All money collected will be channeled through the Catholic Relief Agency in Costa Rica and OXFAM-Canada. Both organizations have established aid projects for the refugees.

MATN has the support and endorsement of over fifty prominent British Columbia doctors, lawyers, professors and politicians. They have shown their concern. We would like you to show yours by sending a contribution for urgently needed medical supplies to MATN, 2524 CYPRESS ST., VAN. If you would like a tax deductible receipt please make your cheque payable to OXFAM-Canada.

Water pressure

Editor, The Times:

It's great to have good water pressure again in West Sechelt.

To Gordon and his staff along with members of the Regional Board who worked together with the Sechelt Indian Band to improve the water supply to West Sechelt, my thanks.

Young hero

Editor, The Times:

Yesterday morning our family had a horrifying emergency, but with the help of a 15-year-old boy it was made much easier.

We got up at 8 a.m. to go for a water ski. Our 13-year-old son went first. When he finished his ski he came barrelling into the dock with intentions of spraying me, his mother. He misjudged his speed and collided with the dock.

What I saw next was terrifying and I panicked. I screamed for help and our friends came and helped place him on the dock. One yelled to go get help. I went running down the beach to the other cottages to get help.

All I can remember saying is will someone please help me, 'I need help'.

Kevin, a 15-year-old came up and asked me what happened and then went running to our dock. By the time I got there, Kevin was very calm and had all the adults running around making stretchers, getting bandages etc. It was amazing.

On the way to the ambulance Kevin not only kept Craig from getting hysterical, but also me. A doctor who arrived on the scene about the same time as the ambulance said he couldn't have done more or better himeself.

I wanted to share this experience with others to let them know that there are great teenagers out there and that they should be told about as well as the others. Thank you, Kevin Strong.

Times COMMUNITY REPORT

Gibsons glimpses

Arts council

by Marion Alsager, 886-2458

The Community Arts Council has had an enormous amount of work done on their building at "grass roots" level. There are at least 20 such centres in B.C. and across Canada.

In my conversation with Verity Purdy, who is on the executive of the Arts Council, she says such a centre would bring people's talents together to share with others. Some focal points would be visual arts, music, ceramics and dance.

There is a need, now, for large amounts of money in order to be able to complete the community arts building in Sechelt. They will need to apply for all possible grants. There is a desire by all its members to move forward more quickly.

There are about 90 members, many young people and the "old backbone" who are joining together and working towards their goal. They NEED encouragement to put on a big campaign to raise operating money and a substantial amount is required.

In order to apply for grants, the council must set a STANDARD of excellence and quality. They need the general support from the community! Then all artists in any field could bring their art or crafts to be displayed in this building; a gathering place for all talents and a sharing place for their interests.

The opening date of the gallery will be August 4, 1979, see you there.

CURLING CLUB

The Curling Club barbecue which took place last Saturday was a great success, certainly going by the amount of food put away. Dennis tells us that three sides of pork (done in a dug out pit), plus 60 pounds of salmon were consumed.

Special thanks to Ron Baba, who took care of the pork cooking, Keith Frampton, Howie Harson and Pam and Dennis Suveges, who did a fanstastic job of convening this event. They hope it is the first of many more to be. The committee would also like to extend their appreciation for all the help from Gus Schneider and John Gaw. Many thanks fellas!

FUN GAME

The Cedars Ladies and Men's baseball team played a "fun" game against each others, with umpire Garry Fitchell calling a very fair play. It was a well fought battle and the men's team won by two runs only. After the game, a barbecue was held at the residence of Larry and Pam Knowles. Special guests were John and Chris Kavanagh and family, past owners of the Cedars Inn and new owners Mr. and Mrs. Tom Smith and family.

Visiting Ray and Vivian Chamberlin are granddaughters Cheryl and Brenda Painter of Duncan, B.C.; also Mercedes Zavala and Monica Batiz from Cuernavaca, Mexicó. Cheryl met Mercedes and Monica at Guide camp and invited them to visit her in Canada.

OOPS!

OOPS sorry, for omitting Melanie Mahlman, Fashion Show commentator's name from the Royal Parade of Fashions event held last Thursday evening. Sea Cavalcade Queen 1978-79, Mealanie did a fantastic job as commentator.

---

It is sad news to hear of Des Plourde passing away. The community will remember Des for his very active role in the Gibsons Athletic Association, his neighborliness, and other community efforts. He was a member of the 25 Year Club, Canadian Forest Products employee for 25 years at Port Mellon.

Des was respected by people in every walk of life and was well known for his love of fishing and the sea.

Queen Melanie Mahlman and her chaperone attended the Mission Pageant last weekend. We were given a tour of the city and were particularly impressed with seeing Westminster Abbey. Westminster Abbey is a Benedictine monastery located on a 600 foot elevation above the Fraser River, consisting of 200 acres that includes abbey grounds (beautiful), farm and seminary campus. Its most distinctive feature is the 169 foot tower with a ring of ten bells.

Mrs. Marjorie Roberts returned to Redhill, England following six weeks visit with her niece Joy Maxwell and husband Bob. Joy tells us that at the tender age of 70, Marjorie even went on a couple of fishing trips which started at 4 a.m. and she helped Max land a salmon. Marjorie would like to express her gratitude and appreciation to everyone who made her visit on the Sunshine Coast so memorable.

Congratulations to Bill Montgomery and Gayle Ono on their recent engagement.

A special service

Each morning and afternoon during the school year, the Minibus driver cheerfully picks up Aaron Kelly to transport him to and from Sechelt Elementary School. Although Aaron would prefer to travel with his classmates on the regular school bus, this is not possible because he is confined to a wheel chair which requires the special lift equipment provided by the Minibus.

For Mrs. Kelly, this services makes a big difference. She can and does when necessary lift Aaron into the car and then lifts the heavy wheel chair into the back of her station wagon. It is obviously a strain upon her.

The Kellys genuinely appreciate the service which the Minibus provides under the sponsorship of the Sunshine Coast Community Services Society. The Minibus also provides rides to seniors and to others on the coast who are in some way handicapped.

The Society is interested in serving the whole coastal community and is an active participant in helping the community to develop and to grow. The Homemakers, Volunteer Bureau, and Adult Daycare also play a growing role in serving the Sunshine Coast.

Seal flies Tyee

Mary Shannon, Ph. 885-9765

SEAL FLIES TYEE

Duck Rock Beach at Redrooffs is usually a lively place on summer afternoons and Sunday, July 22 was no exception. The beach and water swarmed with life for all the cottages were filled to overflowing and there were three generations at the Ross McAllister and Phil Dill cottages.

The centre of attraction was a baby seal which showed no fear of the crowd, but seemed to be in distress, trying to scramble up on to the boats and floats, as if it needed to rest.

It swam close beside a rowboat and scrambled up on to an oar and rested there. Bob Brodgesell telephoned Conservation Officer, Jamie Stephen who came straight away and, with the help of some of the people on the beach, lifted the pup into a tub. There was no sign of the mother, so it was assumed she had either abandoned the pup or had met with some disaster.

Since the young seal was only two or three days old, it was unable to fend for itself, so Jamie took it home with him and tried unsuccessfully to feed it with a bottle and nipple. Apparently pup seals do not suckle, but the female has a built in pump which actually forces the food into the pup's throat.

So Jamie force-fed the little creature and it settled down quite contentedly for the night. Next morning, in response to his plea, Tyee Air flew the seal into Vancouver where it is now being cared for in the Stanley Park Aquarium. When it is on solids it will be released, together with four other baby seals being cared for at the Aquarium.

BEEFS AND BOUQUETS

No Beefs this week, but our two bouquets go to Tyee who gave its usual passenger a free ride into Vancouver and to Jamie Stephen who obviously doesn't work on a five-day schedule when wild life is in trouble.

NORSAL CRUISE

The Welcome Beach Community Association chalked up another successful "first" on July 22 with the organization of a cruise around the Gulf of Georgia. The day was perfect, with warm sunshine and a soft breeze rippling the water, as one hundred people from Halfmoon Bay, Sechelt and Roberts Creek assembled at the Halfmoon Bay wharf.

They were in holiday mood as the MV Norsal slid gracefully into its mooring at the wharf and the passengers embarked. The ship had slipped her moorings and pulled off from the wharf when the pilot owner, Jack Fournier, received a request to return to the wharf.

Bernie Ackerman who had been acting as director of parking had been so engrossed with his responsibilities that he almost missed the boat. Fortunately his frantic waving and shouting attracted attention and the Norsal returned to the wharf to pick him up.

The Norsal headed through Welcome Pass and around the south end of Lasqueti Island, turning northward so that passengers had a close look at its rugged shoreline.

By lunchtime the ship was anchored in a cozy bay near the north end of Lasqueti. With appetites sharpened by the sun and fresh air, there was a dash to the galley, where a feast fit for a king was laid out 8 cold cuts, chili, salads and pies of all kinds. Then the ship continued north for a look at the strip mining on Texada Island and then south down the channel which lies between Lasqueti and Texada islands.

Passengers got a close look at some interesting shipping along this channel, such as the Tugboat Challenger towing a U.S. container ship, the Frank H. Brown and the Rivtow Log Carrier being towed by the Rivtow Lion.

On board there was something for everyone — congenial companionship, quiet corners where one could bask in the sunshine or just watch the scenery — and MUSIC! The lounge where there was a piano, quickly became the centre for those who loved to sing and what a wealth of talent came to light.

Included in the singing group were Patrick and Patricia Marphy, Ruth Forrester, George Carpenter and Bernie Ackerman and there was no dearth of pianists for Elsie Julian took turns with Daye McBrayne, a newcomer to Sechelt. Ruth Forrester had taken along her guitar to lead some community singing and, at the end of the trip, as the Norsal approached the Halfmoon Bay wharf, she struck up the music of "Halfmoon Bay", a delightful song which she had written and composed.

Grace Rutherford and her Welcome Beach Executive are certainly to be congratulated for coming up with such a popular innovation and for the magnificent job of organizing they did. Special thanks are due to the people who spent so much of their cruise time in the galley preparing and clearing away the lunch. They were Grace Rutherford, George and Mary Murray, Nancy Lawson, Dorothy Ackerman, Ruth Forrester, Alice Halford and her sister-in-law, Jean Ackery.

It was such a successful venture that pressure will certainly be put on the Welcome Beach Community Association to make this an annual event.

A deck chair which was left on board can be reclaimed by a telephone call to Grace Rutherford at 885-9672.

SQUARE DANCE PICNIC

The Redrooffs beaches were unusually quiet for the first part of July, but Duck Rock Beach burst into life on July 21 when Alan and Marguerite Jacques hosted their sixth annual square dance at Sandford Dene. More than seventy square dancers took part and they came from all over the Sunshine Coast and from Vancouver. There was a shortage of callers as the Maurice Hemstreets of the Country Stars and the Jim MacPhersons of the See-Saw Squares were unable to attend, but the Harry Robertsons were there and to help them out, Viv and Mary Pallot of the Jericho Bell Buoys, who were holidaying on Keats Island managed to hitch a ride into Redrooffs and share the calling.

An interesting diversion during the day was the arrival of a 50 ft. sailboat "Kalysaro", belonging to Bob and Lynne Blount, the daughter and son in law of one of the See-Saw members, Pauline Hellewell. The Blounts anchored their sailboat just off shore and were in good time to share the excellent picnic lunch.

The only complaint heard through-out the day was that when the dancers wanted to cool off between dances, they found the sea just a little too cool for comfort.

The Jacques' house guests who co-hosted the party were Les and Wynne Jacques and Ruth and Norm Hutton, all of the See-Saw Club.

HERE AND THERE

The garage sale recently held by the Halfmoon Bay Volunteer Fire Department was an outstanding success. The firemen want to extend their warmest thanks to all those who supported them by donations and by attending the sale. When Val Beirthol of Vancouver was asked to assist in the drawing of the raffle winner, she drew out the name of Gerry Grognet who won a fine fire extinguisher.

Guests at the Bob Brodgesell home have been Pam's daughter, Christine and her husband Robert Reed. The couple were married at Edmonton on July 7, drove out to the west coast and spent part of their honeymoon at the Brodgesell home. They are both teachers and will be settling in Red Deer, Alberta.

Larry and Liz Dill with their two children, Michelle and Stewart, have been spending a vacation at the cottage of Larry's parents, Phil and Mary Dill. Larry is a professor of biology at S.F.U.

Bill Urquhart is in St. Mary's Hospital following a heart attack.

The new owners of the Anne Pressley house at Redrooffs are George and Marg. Carpenter, who have had a surprising number of guests since they moved in a few weeks ago. Last week-end they had their daughter, Cathy and husband Claude Hansen, their daughter Donna, son Jim and Marg's sister, Thelma Kerr, all of North Vancouver. Their grandson, Jamie Hansen, has already adopted Halfmoon Bay as his second home and accompanied the Carpenters on the Norsal cruise.

At the Alex Ellis home are Hazel's sister and brother-in-law, Lillian and Richard Birk from Seattle. They sold their home on Southwood last year but they still plan to return to Redrooffs for their retirement in a few years.

Vial of Life

The Sunshine Coast Lions Club is sponsoring the Vial of Life program in the Sechelt area, and has purchased 500 vials, decals and medical forms for this purpose.

The Vial of Life program consists of a form containing pertinent medical information inside a plastic vial placed under the top shelf of the refrigerator.

Decals are provided to afix to the refrigerator door to identify the Vial of Life user. Anyone responding to an emergency call can easily find the information and understand the victims medical requirement.

This program has been developed primarily for the senior citizens, but is also of value to any person with special medical problems.

Anyone interested in obtaining the Vial of Life or wishing more information please contact the Sechelt ambulance, Mike Baecke at 885-9927.

Boating can be fun

Thinking about an outing this weekend? Consider taking a boat cruise. It's a great way to have a leisurely day, taking life easy. And at noon, you can stop along shore and share a delicious picnic lunch . . . with a bunch of ants!

Ants can find a picnic basket almost as soon as you set it down. Their sensitive antennae home-in on sandwiches and potato chips, and they're not at all bashful about inviting themselves to the party.

Despite having poor table manners, ants are beneficial and the folks at Allied Boating Association suggest you consider their positive side before condemming their anti-social behavior.

Primarily, ants are soil tillers. They keep dirt loose and productive for the growing of many native plants and agricultural crops. They also kill insect pests such as termites and the larvae of many destructive beetles.

Scientists have catalogued more than 15,000 species of ants around the world. They range from inch -long army ants in the tropics to small ants that herd other insects and "milk" them much the same as a dairy farmer. Some ants even take their "livestock" into their nests during winter and care for them.

There is no way to avoid ants on a picnic, but you can take time to study their way of life. Spend a few moments watching your sandwich crumbs disappear in the green jungle where ants live, and you'll have a better understanding of their value to man.

Book Look

By MURRIE REDMAN

TERMINATION ORDER by Philip Friedman, Dial (Doubleday) 1979, 323 pages.
CLASS REUNION by Rona Jaffe, Delacorte (Doubleday) 1979, 337 pages.

TERMINATION ORDER is an espionage thriller. Author Friedman admits that he "comes very close indeed to some truths". The truths of which he speaks are those connected with agencies like the KGB and the CIA. He hints that he has received "help" from people he cannot name, leading one to suspect that he has inside information.

The story opens as Gregory Moore, a CIA agent in Vienna working undercover as a computer company vice-president, learns that the Vienna office will be closed. Since he has just set up a counter activity with a KGB agent, he doesn't wish to see the Vienna cover disbanded. His bosses do not agree.

How he continues his program with the KGB agent, Rukovol, while trying to convince his superiors to remain open makes for tense reading. How he manages to stay alive when he becomes a target for some unknown hit man makes for edge-of-seat suspense.

Moore's worries about funds to carry on his operation, his romance with another agent and his strangely close relationship with the KGB agent has the ring of truth. His life is not the James Bond type that we average citizens fantacize. It is thankless, tiring dangerous, heartbreaking work, according to this realistic picture.

Friedman is author of "Rage" a movie with George C. Scott. He has been mathematician, construction worker, and lawyer, this New Yorker, and certainly, suspense writer. No doubt this book will become a movie, too.

Sloppier but non-the-less readable is Jaffe's CLASS REUNION. None of the characters could be real. They are blow-ups of people we knew would "turn out that way" in high school. Intimate looks at various stereo-types is the menu. Served up in flashback style are the Golden Girl, the Sport's Hero Playboy, the Poor Little Rich Girl, the Nice Girl Next Door, the Intellectual and the Nice Guy. They all meet at the college reunion to agonize about their pasts.

Where the book parts from anything like reality is that none of the folk are either happy or well adjusted. Their lives began a mess and have turned out even messier. Some of the graduates threw in their lots together for double jeopardy situations. It is a kind of soap opera supreme.

Jaffe does, however, build her characters carefully, developing them psychologically in lock-step fashion. She shows how each one of the four women and four men in her story reflect in adulthood what was their destiny in youth. Weaknesses then became obsessions later, secrets of the past became guilts of the future.

CLASS REUNION is the kind of book you like to indulge yourself in only occasionally.

Reflections — 100 slaps on the face

By Vern Giesbrecht

Several weeks ago I reached an important milestone, one that I dreaded but at the same time anticipated. The occasion was the receipt of my one hundredth rejection slip. In about four years of spare time writing, I have accumulated 100 slips of paper, usually form letters, telling me that my writing is not good enough or not suitable for a particular publication or too long or too short or otherwise unacceptable. No one likes being slapped in the face 100 times, so why do I take satisfaction in these repeated rebuffs?

Certainly it's not because I think the rejection slips will fetch grand prices when I become famous. Nor is it because I'm more masochistic than the average person. Finally, the reason is not that there's some inherent virtue in having one's writing rejected so frequently. I simply take pride in having persevered against what seem to be formidable odds.

I first began writing as a hobby a year or so after I left the newspaper business to become a teacher. Had I realized at that time that virtually all of my stories, articles and poems would be rejected, I might have abandoned my typewriter and turned to a hobby with a greater chance of success — perhaps wrestling alligators or leaping over canyons in a jet-powered motorcycle. In my zealous ignorance, however, I believed that after a brief apprenticeship my work would find quick favor among the editors of the land.

Not so. My fascinating tale of three hoboes who crash a city council meeting and wreak havoc when they're denied refreshments has been turned down by eight magazines. Reader's Digest refused to publish my heartwarming anecdote about a troubled child, entitled I Love You, Big Uncle. Two splendid basketball stories, The Hotshot and The Perfect Season, were dismissed by several editors, as were short stories such as Uncle Ned's Courtship, The Girl Who Wanted to be Pretty, Crisis at Darling River and Always Trust a Stranger. I'll never understand why my charming story about a portly snowman, The Death of Old Ralph, has never been printed or why numerous writers have been unkind to The Suitcase and Love and Terror.

There have been isolated successes two poems in Canadian Author and Bookman, an article in B.C. Teacher, two in Westworld, and short stories in two obscure magazines that inexplicably folded shortly after my masterpieces appeared. Three more stories were slated for publication but the journals that planned to print them went bankrupt before the world could enjoy my contributions. My total remuneration for the items that have been published came to $303.

Then $3 arrived yesterday, unexpectedly, from Canadian Author and Bookman, as token payment for a little poem published in January, 1978. The editor wrote, in part: "Nothing to go out and buy a steak dinner with — unless we're talking hamburger perhaps — but at least a gesture that we think is important. Lord knows it's hard to get rich as a poet, but we don't see why the majority of mags reckon a poet should starve for his art and pay out good money on envelopes, postage stamps, typewriter ribbons, etc. for the privilege. The least a writer's magazine should do, we feel, is let you show a profit, however small, on your submission to us . . ."

Perhaps I should have felt insulted by the $3 but I was pleased by the token, small as it was. Now, if some appreciably larger tokens should enter my mailbox, I would be even more pleased.

I'm already beginning to work toward my 200th rejection slip, although I'm confident my rate of acceptance will soon rise dramatically. Like anyone who tries to write, I believe I have something of interest and significance to say, and I won't relax until it's said as well as I can say it.

So, it's back to my drawer full of characters. They grow restive at times, eager to leap out and dance from their pages and into the hearts of readers. The characters I've created are almost real people to me. I have to keep a tight rein on them at times or else they'll take control.

Take Alfred Martin, for example. He started out as a real milquetoast, as wishy-washy as Charlie Brown, as silent as a shadow, but lately he's shown signs of liveliness and strength. He's grown interested in a woman, Beth Ryder, and I can see he won't be satisfied unless I make something of it. The guy's a violinist and all he knows, it seems, is music, so maybe I'll let him take Beth to a concert and see what happens.

He's smiling already; it's going to be a great evening, if he can just overcome his one big problem.

You can do it, Alfred, trust me. I've got it all figured out. Now, if I can just convince a publisher to go for the story. Since Alfred's bound to get a slap in the face along the way, perhaps his creator can avoid one, this time.

Lions Club gets okay on park

The Roberts Creek Lions Club got the go-ahead to develop Cliff Gilker Park from the Sunshine Coast Regional District last Thursday night.

The park which is presently being leased by the SCRD will still be used by both the Lions and the rest of the community.

Lions Club chartered secretary David Duffy told the SCRD directors they planned to use the park to its utmost potential and to ensure the parks upkeep.

The Lions plan to use volunteer labour and a Canada Works crew to develop the park.

SCRD did ask that before any development is started, the plans would be brought to the board.

New Art Centre to open

The new art centre at the corner of Trail and Medusa begins a new era for art for the Sunshine Coast when it opens its doors publicly for the first time on Saturday, August 4.

Everyone is cordially invited to come and see for themselves the cumulative efforts of many months of hard work. Refreshments will be served.

The Sunshine Coast Arts Council is pleased to be opening with exhibits of paintings by David Burggraf and ceramics by Muriel Parfitt.

David Burggraf was born in Chicago in 1943 and though he had no formal training in art, he was staging exhibits in his home city by the late 1960's.

His inspiration comes from the 16th Century Dutch School; this led him into developing his skills as a still-life painter. David feels an empathy for the power that can emanate from stillness and tranquility, and his often nocturnal effects can bring about a metaphysical aura.

Though David has been primarily interested in stilllife, his move to Roberts Creek ten years ago spawned an interest in landscape painting. The sense of quiet and subtle use of colour found in his earlier works are still evident.

Muriel Parfitt has 20 years experience with ceramics, which has allowed her to develop her own distinct feeling for clay. Most of her pieces are porcelain, and have an appearance of delicacy, each work is individual, and not necessarily functional.

Muriel is fascinated by the subtle forms found in nature, and often the shapes she creates suggest plants and shells.

Roberts Creek is her summer residence where she has her own propane gas kiln, which she set up in 1970. Muriel's reputation is well known thoughout B.C. where she has won several awards. In 1977, she was one of seven invited to show at the B. C. Potters Guild Invitational.

One of the objectives of the Sunshine Coast Arts Council is to provide a building of multi-cultural use with emphasis on quality in all fields of art. This includes the visual arts, music, performing arts, and crafts.

Hopefully the events will be diverse enough to include as many sectors of the community as possible. Local artists, as well as those from larger centres, will be featured.

Upcoming shows include an exhibt from the Artists Gallery in Vancouver, a juried show of local artists, a mask making workshop anu exhibit, a selection of local crafts, a music series, a 'culture wagon' to take people to Vancouver, plays and dance performances, plus much more. The program is being arranged by a selected steering committee and is open to further suggestions.

The Arts Centre will be open from 11-4 Tuesday through Saturday. Everyone welcome.

Loggers contest

by Peggy Connor 885-9347

Bigtime Loggers competition is coming to West Sechelt August 18, Saturday is the day and the grounds in front of Wakefield Inn are already prepared, the final touch the raising of the spar tree taking place Sunday, July 29.

Participants are coming from all over the world, some expected from Australia, U.S.A., loggers competing against other top calibre loggers. Rivalry for first place spurs each man on to excel over his past performances.

Ron Hartel from Sooke, World Champion Logger, Ken Nelson, former Sechelt man, a top man in logger events, this year in charge of the PNE Loggers Show, to name a couple who hope to be able to participate.

Ken Nelson is off this week to compete in the World Championships at Hayward, Wisconsin, specialty in the springboard chop, this will be televised in three week's time.

LOCAL BUSINESSES SUPPORT LOGGERS

The response and support coming from the local business people is what is making this all possible, plus the help from the local community and loggers.

After all, this area was largely built up due to the logging, many of the same people coming to retire worked here years ago, remembering how great it was.

There will be open class logger and open class novices, one even for ladies, the highlight of the day is the relay race, when the six man teams compete in each event and boy is there action then! Each man has one go to give his best shot for his team and if that kind of pressure doesn't lead to an exciting event nothing will.

Top prizes will be presented to worthy winners, a bonus prize for top logger of the day, a prize he certainly will have to win on his own ability.

The Wakefield Loggers Sports is headed by Ron Brackett and directors Garry and Rick Radymski. The Brackett family sons and daughters as loggers and cheerleaders at logging events are well known.

Garry and Rick Radymski, like their father was before them, are strong community supporters, running their business in a way that does credit to the area and themselves.

SECHELT MAY QUEEN

The complete story of our May Queen entry into the Sea Festival parade didn't make it into print last week so to bring events up to date:

Queen Lisa Blackwell and first princess Eileen McKibbin absent on Saturday, July 21, even royalty takes holidays, second princess Lavonne Innes did the honors for Sechelt. Becky Cavalier substituted for a princess. Also in the royalty party were Eric Sweet and John Rogers, gift bearer Jason Hindson, flower girls Lee McIntosh and Ulenda Knite.

Accompanying the float as chaperones were Dorothy Goeson and Sandy Cavalier, without these two ladies I doubt whether we would even have a May Queen.

Unfortunately the night before the parade the float was vandalized, patched up as well as it could be, however it was most disappointing. Then the parade itself was half an hour late in starting, the float's position was near the end of the parade so they had about a three hour wait before moving off.

The float entries were gorgeous and the kids thoroughly enjoyed the clowns and the parade, then staying overnight in a motel was an added adventure.

Our royal entourage are to be commended for taking the time and effort to represent the Sechelt area with our biggest asset, the children.

GREEN COURT HOUSING SOCIETY

The new block of accommodations at Greene Court are fast approaching completion, ready for tenants.

There is still time to apply and still vacancies on the list. Phone or write Mrs. Mary Walker at 885-9347 or RR 1, Halfmoon Bay, B.C. V0N 1Y0.

EXTENDED CARE ST. MARY'S HOSPITAL

It was Pender Harbour Auxiliary to St. Mary's Hospital's turn to entertain the patients in the Extended Care Unit.

The weather was in their favor on Monday, July 23, playing an important part in their plans which were for a picnic in the attractive garden patio made especially for this use.

Irene Temple and her assistants Gladys Brown, Elsbeth Logan, Peggy Riley and Clara Lee had brought fancy sandwiches and delicious sweets, along with a big birthday cake.

The birthday gal for the month of July was Thelma Aylwin who shared the cake with all those present.

The 14 patients enjoyed eating outside in the fresh air in the company of the auxiliary members.

Even thought it is holiday time and no meetings are held by the auxiliaries, work still goes on with the volunteers in the hospital. Hairdressers faithfully attend the beauty needs which help make the patients look their best so they feel better. Manicurist, patient feeders, flower care, library cart, gift cart doing extra work until the new show can be opened.

THE SUNSHINE COAST SERVICE SOCIETY

This society has sent out a questionnaire to all organizations so they may compile a list of whom to contact in the different groups. A very worthwhile idea if everyone co-operates, one place to phone to answer your questions re volunteering, who is in charge of what at the present time, with so many newcomers it must be confusing trying to find out who is president of this or that, what auxiliary for instance is in your area.

A needed service, take advantage of it.

REBEKAH LODGE SMORGASBORD

The Past Noble Grands of the Rebekah Lodge No. 82 held a smorgasbord at the home of Ivan and Eileen Smith Sunday, July 22 and for those lucky enough to attend, was a bountiful feast for a nominal sum of $2.50.

The purpose behind the event was to raise money for the Eye Bank and Visual Research, and to help with the new equipment and machines in the Vancouver General Hospital which the Oddfellows and Rebeccas have already donated $10,000 to purchase.

Held on the Smith's lawn with games of chance like bingo etc. to entertain those present.

Eileen's mother Mrs. Gorrie from Vancouver attended the occasion.

NO HOST LUNCHEON

The Rebekahs held a no host luncheon at the Parthenon to wish Mildred Whittaker the best of luck in her new abode on seventh avenue in New Westminster. The ladies presented her with a lovely Nell Whaites ceramic planter decorated with seashells etc., a fine memory of her time in Sechelt.

Mildred will be missed by the Sechelt Auxiliary to St. Mary's Hospital where she worked as a volunteer, a valuable member and friend in each organization she belonged. New Westminster's gain.

DOREEN JENKINS HOSTS

A lovely tea was held at the gracious home of Harry and Doreen Jenkins in Selma Park. Members of the St. Hilda's Church and other friends of Dorothy Greene's were present to bid adieu to the widow of Canon Alan Greene. Mrs. Greene moves to Royston on Vancouver Island in the near future.

SUNSHINE COAST ARTS COUNCIL

The steering committee have planned an interesting evening for members and others who have helped towards the building of the new Arts Centre on Friday, August 3.

Then on Saturday, August 4 the grand opening will take place for all to see the latest contribution to the Arts in Sechelt for the whole Sunshine Coast and visitors' pleasure.

Thanks Ernie

By JEANIE NORTON, 886-9609

THANKS ERNIE

"Prince of the Roberts Creek Legion" — there's nobody more deserving of the title than Ernie Fossett, crowned last Friday night by more than 60 friends and regulars at Branch 219. It was "Ernie Appreciation Night" replete with buffet supper, a cake, a crown for Ernie, several choruses of "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow", kisses from all the ladies, flowers for his wife Agnes, and luggage for his many trips to Reno.

The Legion was already hopping by the time Ernie arrived at 8:30 in answer to a distress call to work the bar, a plea he must have heard a thousand times. As impromptu M.C., Grover Proulx, said, Ernie does more than any other member to keep the little Legion going. And anyone who's imposed on Ernie's good nature until 4 a.m. can vouch for that.

The evening was a good mix of the "old" and the "young" — Ernie's long-time friends and cohorts and those who have come to love and appreciate him in more recent years. Ernie's comment on the gathering was about the "good people" in Roberts Creek, but nobody is more exemplary of the community than Ernie himself. You're a good man, Ernie Fossett!

PROGRESS REPORT

Movies, disco dancing, biking, hiking, camping, swimming, pottery, crafts, mime shows . . . all the things that make a summer great. That's what Wendy Eccles is providing for the kids in the Summer Fun Program and from the response of the kids themselves it's been a tremendous success.

It's been a busy month. They got into the swing of Roberts Creek Daze early, doing a fine job of decorating the backstop and field for the "Beachcombers" game. And the dragon they made for the parade was super — a most ferocious beast indeed.

The regular events have been going well — between 10 and 15 turn out daily and there are anywhere up to 20 for the movies on Wednesday afternoons. The mime classes with Gerardo Avila on Tuesdays are a big hit. And over 20 cyclists participated in the 5-mile bike-a-thon to camp Byng, raising over $50.

Disco's the scene among even the very young these days and the dance and light show last Thursday really got rolling after a few mixers. There's another on August 16, so don't miss it!

The big event this week is the camp-out at Porpoise Bay on Thursday night. There'll be a nocturnal nature walk, campfire and weenie roast, and a pancake breakfast. Sounds too good to miss!

A bottle drive is also planned for this week and a field trip to the PNE is scheduled for Thursday, August 23. August 30 is the wind-up with a potluck dinner, kids' displays and plays.

There's still a whole month of activities so check the calendar at Seaview Market for the schedule of events. The regular participants are really enthusiastic and keen, eager for each day's events.

Wendy's doing a great job — she deserves an "A" and a lot more for her efforts. She hasn't had as much help as she hoped for and could really use a hand, especially on Thursdays and Fridays. How about it?

DOUSE THOSE FIRES

There's no better finish to these hot beautiful days than an evening spent around a beachfire. But this long dry spell has left everything tinder dry and the whole of Roberts Creek could go if a fire got out of control.

So says Fire Chief Glen Kraus. The Fire Department had to answer two early morning calls last week to attend to fires left improperly doused. They were minor but there's no excuse for such alarms — there's a whole ocean of water nearby. Take care, eh folks?

SECHELT B.C. Hydro District line crew and portion of the office personnel receive the B.C. Safety Council Gold Award for 63,000 hours of accident free working time.

Hydro strikes gold

B.C. Hydro's Sechelt district staff recently won the B.C. Safety Council Gold Award for having 63,000 hours of accident free working time.

Deputy Manager for Metro Vancouver N.S. Kent made the presentation to the proud 28 staff members. The Sechelt district had already achieved the award of bronze and silver for accident free time.

In addition, the district staff has received the Accident Prevention Award from the vice president of Hydro's electrical operation. This achievement covers a consecutive 12 months in 1977-78, without loss time due to injury or industrial decease.

The district now strives for the only outstanding awards of honour, distinction and excellence.

"It is very satisfying to be part of a Hydro work force which has such an outstanding safety record and is ranked amongst the best throughout the Hydro system," said District Manager E. Hensch.

Cooper's Green

The controversy surrounding access to the beach at the Cooper's Green trailer court in Halfmoon Bay still hasn't been solved.

The Sunshine Coast Regional District board put off a decision on the access question at its Thursday meeting until they get a report from the planning department.

The Area "B" Ratepayers Association sent a letter to the board requesting the matter be dealt with and that the access be determined.

New water main raises pressure

The residents of West Sechelt, to Halfmoon Bay might have been waiting a long time for it, but the increased water pressure was well worth the wait.

Water poured through the 14 inch main from Chapman Creek for the first time last Wednesday, replacing the present six inch pipe.

The 14 inch water main took over five years to complete and is expected to take the pressure off at the peak periods.

Take a step in the right direction. Take a few.

A very successful tea

The annual summer tea of Mt. Elphinstone Chapter No. 65 Order of the Eastern Star was held early this month.

Mrs. Muriel Eggins Worth Matron gave a few words of welcome before introducing our Convenor Mrs. Jakie Donelly who passed to Mrs. Mary Gordon (a past Matron of Mt. Elphinstone) the privilege of describing the many activities and special projects the chapter is involved in to a most receptive audience. She then declared the tea opened officially in her own gracious manner.

The smiles of the workers and their cheerful manner belied the fact that a few short short minutes before the tea started the inclement weather had forced one and all to move everything into the social room of the Masonic Hall — it has been an established tradition that nothing dampens the spirits of Mt. Elphinstone chapter members and that the people from Egmont to Port Mellon always turn up to support their annual projects, so no apologies were required for the change of venue.

The beautifully appointed head table with its lovely lace tablecloth and floral centrepiece lent an extra lustre to the beautiful silver tea services at each end ably attended to by Past Matrons of Mt. Elphinstone and other past matrons from various B.C. chapters.

The Jobs Daughters of Bethel No. 28 under the supervision of Mrs. Lydie Hall worked diligently and happily serving those very thirsty people who had depleted the home baking table, purchased many tickets on the various draws and raffles and bought the wares of the mystery table, novelties tables and white elephant.

Honoured Queen Esther Michaud has reason to be proud of her members, and we are certain the customers were appreciative of their efforts. Lending an extra bit of enjoyment to the tea was our favourite fortune teller Mrs. Eva Lyons who fascinated all those who patronized her special table.

It was a pleasure to welcome so many out of town visitors besides our many faithful supporters from the peninsula. Greeting old friends and neighbours seemed to be a major pleasure and some of those we were able to see were Mesdames Margaret Swan, Margaret Trueman, Molly McColl, Alice Brooke Gr. Secty. of B.C., Mr. Stan Trueman, Mrs. Leona Gatz, son Ron and Leona's two great-granddaughters, Verna Milne, Margaret and Jim Foster and a contingent from Grace Chapter No. 29, Powell River.

Special mention is made of the great assistance the men of the chapter were: setting up outside and then helping to move us inside, proceeding to wash mountains of cups, saucers, spoons, and all those things used at teas. They smiled cheerfully through it all and then ended up congratulating us on a job well done.

Convenor Jakie Donelly would like to voice her appreciation to all who attended the tea and made her months of planning a success, to those who assisted in many ways — if they are not personally mentioned their efforts did not go unnoticed and we are quite sure our Dorothy Parsons and Sylvie Woodsworth who directed the tea, coffee, refreshment and dinner efforts will second her thoughts.

Counter booklets available through Canada Post

News of the release by Canada Post of the 4.25 counter booklets on July 3, 1979 was nearly eclipsed by the considerable interest shown in the Canoe-Kayak World Championships Stamp issued the same day.

The booklets are on sale at post office counters, philatelic outlets, and through the philatelic mail order service in Ottawa. Each contains twenty-five 17-cent Queen Elizabeth 11 definitives, and the covers are available in five separate designs featuring cartoons that encourage the use of the postal code. The cover designs are the same as those used on the 3.50 booklets issued last November.

The stamps in the booklets are 12 by 12½ perforation, similar to those in the 50-cent booklets released in March, but are different from the 13 perforation on the sheets of the same definitive. Seven of the stamps in the booklets are perforated on all four sides. The British American Bank Note Company printed these booklets as well as the 50-cent vending machine booklets issued in March.

If all five designs are ordered from philatelic mail order service (21.25), one of each will be provided. However, orders of less than five will be filled with a random selection of designs. Customers of the mail order service who had their orders returned may resubmit them for filling. No official first day covers or cancellations are provided for this booklet.

Political contributions

The Honourable Evan M. Wolfe, minister of finance, advised that regulations were approved today on policital contributions eligible for a Provincial Income Tax Credit.

The regulations clarify the amendment to the Income Tax Act which allows contributions for provincial political purposes to a recognized political party or candidate. The credit allowed is 75 per cent of the amount contributed if the amout is $100 or less, $75 plus 50 per cent on any contribution between $100 and $550, and $300 plus 33 and one-third per cent on any contribution over $550, with a maximum credit allowed of $550.

The minister stated the regulations set out the information to be shown on the contribution receipt and require that there be three copies of the receipt, one for the contributor, the second for the minister and the third to be retained by the political party or candidate.

The minister also stated the regulations clarify that in the case of a fund raising function for provincial political purposes where an admission charge or fee is made, the lesser of $25 or 50 per cent of the admission charge shall be for the expenses of the function.

The regulations also exclude annual membership fees in a recognized political party from eligibility for an Income Tax credit.

The minister advised that books, records and procedures necessary to be maintained and carried out by the political party or candidate in order for the contribution to be eligible for the tax credit are also detailed in the regulations.

EVERYBODY'S DOING IT!

And they sure are happy about it! What are they doing? Why, they're reading The TIMES... looking for a new home or car or job or washer or bicycle. ## In Memoriam

I count each day a little life with Birth and Death complete;
I cloister it from care & strife and keep it sane & sweet.
With eager eyes & greet the morn
Exultant as a boy
Knowing that I am newly born
To wonder & to joy.
And when the sunset splendours wane,
And ripe for rest am I,
Knowing that I will live again
Exultantly I die.
O that all life were but a day,
Sunny & sweet & sane!
And that at even I might say
"I sleep to wake again."
Mom, Calvin & Julie

Sea Cavalcade & Dogfish Derby featured in new tourist guide

Vistor information centres throughout Southwestern B.C. will this year be distributing new literature for the tourists. The material, produced by the Southwestern B.C. Tourist Association, will be available through each of the 31 outlets.

An important new piece is the 'Guide to Visitor Attractions in Southwestern B.C.' It lists over 50 fairs and festivals as will as highlighting the commercial and community visitor attractions of the region.

Another new brochure promotes the 'Nugget Route' (co-produced by the Cariboo Tourist Association) circle tour. The tour loop leaves Vanouver heading north through Squamish and Whistler and Lillooet and returning via Lytton to the Upper Fraser Valley and back to Vancouver, It provides historical, geographical and visitor information on the two to three day, 600 kilometre trip.

The Visitor's Guide to the Fraser Valley and the Fraser Canyon is this year being updated and expanded. The twenty-four page booklet provides map and community and attraction information in a concise and convenient manner. Its purpose is to inform the visitors and lure them off the busy roads to extend their stay within the Fraser Valley area.

All pieces of visitor literature (including the Southwestern B.C. Visitors Map) contain a strong message urging visitors to stop by local visitor information centres for more detailed information.

Winter tourism development manager appointed

J. Eric Carswell, 42, of Victoria has been appointed manager of Tourism B.C.'s winter market development, Tourism and Small Business Development Minister Don Phillips announced today.

He succeeds William D. Taylor, who was recently appointed director of the ministry's operations services branch.

'Carswell brings may years of travel experience to the ministry,' the minister said, 'particularly with retail and wholesale travel organizations and in the field of air-carrier marketing.'

Carswell was manager of Eaton's Travel in Victoria prior to his appointment and following seven years with Pacific Western Airlines as city sales manager.

Before joining PWA, he was a sales representative of Pan-American Airways for 12 years in Toronto, Winnipeg and Portland, Oregon.

Ideally situated on 90 feet of level, walk-out WATERFRONTAGE, being the only commercially zoned property in this area; the land itself is extremely valuable. Aside from store profits there is additional revenue from other sources, such as collection of wharfinger fees from the government wharf adjoining this property, plus post office and an upstairs revenue suite. This is an ideal husband-wife situation. Always wanted to be your own boss, then don't miss this opportunity.

Sechelt RCMP investigate local brawl

Sechelt RCMP are investigating a brawl which could result in assault charges against several of the "at least six or seven persons involved," Sgt. Robert Evans said last week.

The fight started in a residence in the area of East Porpoise Bay Rd. and Trident Ave. about 12:15 a.m. July 22 and some of the persons were admitted to St. Mary's Hospital.

Of the three Americans involved, one was admitted to hospital on his return to the U.S. because of injuries suffered in the fight. Three or four local juveniles were involved and there is evidence weapons were used, Evans said.

Clifford A. Strand of Gibsons suffered minor head injuries when the van he was driving left the highway on Davis Bay hill, hit a telephone pole and overturned down the bank into a ditch.

The accident, occurring about 12:20 p.m. July 26, caused approximately $5,000 damage to the 1979 Ford van. The van, owned by City National Leasing Company of South Vancouver, is undergoing a mechanical inspection to determine the cause of the accident.

A 12-foot fibreglass boat with a six horsepower Johnson outboard motor was reported stolen from the Madeira Park Government Wharf July 23.

The boat, purchased originally from Madeira Marina, is white with identifying letters "MM" on the outside and beige-pink on the inside. The value of the boat and motor is estimated at $400.

The Dept. of Highways reported July 23 three highway signs were knocked over during the weekend of July 14-15. Two "no camping overnight" signs and one curve sign were knocked over in the Davis Bay area.

Residents of a home on Ocean Ave. returned home from a holiday July 21 to find their back door damaged in an attempt by someone to break in. No entry was made.

A two-horsepower Johnson outboard motor valued at approxinately $285 was reported stolen July 26 from a Beach Ave. residence, Gibsons RCMP said last week. The motor is white with a red stripe.

The value of cedar siding reported stolen the same day from the area of Park Rd. and Highway 101 is unknown. Two tires were slashed on a car parked outside a Port Mellon home July 24.

Lumber and plywood valued at more than $200 was reported stolen from King Rd. July 23. A Sanyo AM-FM cassette-recorder valued at more than $200 was reported stolen from Seaview Place July 20. The cassette-recorder can be identified.

COAST CRAFTS

Local silk screen business

By EVI BLUETH

Everyone has seen Colin Swinney's community event t-shirts as the dogfish derby and the Grand Prix shirts, but no one knows what happens behind the scene. Colin has his silk screening operation set up in a huge old barn on his property on Lower Rd. in Roberts Creek. He is aiming at setting up a system that is very efficient and will enable him to handle a large volume of work. Presently he is busy renovating the buildings on his newly acquired land in preparation for a new studio.

Silk screening is the modern form of what is probably the oldest of all printing processes. It is the logical development of the principle used by the Japanese, who long ago learned to make very intricate stencils by gluing the cut design to a web of hair, thus making it possible to use isolated elements which could not otherwise be held in place.

The screen stencil ordinarily used consists of bolting screen or polyester stretched over a wooden frame. On this fabric is the design to be stencilled. This design may be produced by simply painting the areas which are to remain white with some substance, such as gum or shellac, which will make the silk impervious to the ink used. The stencil is placed in contact with the surface to be decorated and a puddle of ink is scraped from one end to the other by means of a rubber squeegee. This forces the ink through the open areas of the stencil and it adheres to the surface beneath. The stencil is then lifted from the decorated surface and the ink allowed to dry, after which another colour may be applied from another stencil, and so on.

The type of screening that Colin finds most efficient useds a photographic process. Fine detail in the pattern generally makes it advisable to make the stencil photographically, by impregnating the screen with a light sensitive material, and exposing it to light under a tracing of the pattern. The image is developed by washing with water, which removes the coating from the open areas where it has not been light hardened.

Colin built all his screens and made his own paddles for the four colour rotary press that he uses. He has been doing screening for nearly two years but feels that his learning has only just begun. Although the problems that come up are frustrating and time consuming he is determined to overcome them and improve his operation.

He learned his craft from Ra Wilson, a former resident of the coast who did screening. Collin said, "After learning the craft I didn't know what I would be doing for sure but I was intrigued and I enjoyed the work. I saw the potential for possibly making a living."

Previously Colin had worked as a stone mason, carpenter, ditch digger etc. but now he says, "I like being my own employer. I like not having to work in the rain." Colin improvises when necessary. He says, "A person has to take what is around them and make the most of it." He would much prefer to have a drying conveyor but presently he is working with a rack. He says, "It is not modern, but it works!"

Colin has done publicity for many local projects by making his t-shirts. Viki Lawrence assists Colin with her design ideas. Together they did the Timber Days, Roberts Creek Daze, and the Sea Cavalcade t-shirts. Colin printed the menus for Lord Jim's, did placemats for Bonnie Brooke Lodge and made several signs for real estate companies.

He hopes eventually to get away from doing the typical commercial work and get closer to doing just art forms. He wants to approach fine art qualities using surreallism, and super real art work, which require specific techniques of screening. He hopes to do unusual things. "I like having a customer who doesn't really care about how much he spends as long as he gets what he wants. I would like to do bolts of fabric, especially silk, and life size posters." Colin and Viki are hoping to go to Japan to study advanced screening techniques.

Colin is in favour of small cottage industries in the area. He says, 'I'd like to see Gibsons expand in a creative manner. Let's face it, tourism is one of our biggest businesses. It would be nicer to have that as one of our main sources of income rather than becoming an industrial area. I would like to see at all costs industry be kept to minimum, other than small non-polluting ones. This is one of the most beautiful places on earth and it would be a shame to see it spoiled."

Colin can be contacted at 886-2329 for any further information.

Sneddon wins Canfor tourney at Sunshine

Two more successful tournaments were held last weekend. The annual Canfor Tournament was won by W. Sneddon, Jnr, who shot a gross 78. Second prize went to Wilf Reiche with a score of 82. Low net winners were Luke Lappin and C. Jones.

The annual R.C.M.P. Tournament was held on Thursday with our stalwarts chasing birdies and pars instead of speeders and law breakers.

Seymour Golf & Country Club returned our visit last week. A good day was enjoyed by all with Sunshine Coast winning the event by a score of 20 to 10. The total score of these two matches was 30 to 27. A beautiful landscape painting by J. Budd and donated to the golf club for this special event, now adorns our clubhouse wall. It will be awarded to the winning club annually.

It is remarkable how well the fairways on the golf course are holding up with the long stretch of dry weather and the busy summer season.

Eric Bauer and his crew are to be congratulated for their fine efforts under the directorship of Larry Farr, Emma Drohman, and Isobel Barnes are still producing their tasty sandwiches, muffins, pies and tarts, in spite of the hot weather encountered this last while.

It has been reported that Bill Van Westen of Sunshine Coast Chrysler of Sechelt has offered the Sunshine Coast Golf & Country Club a prize of $1000 in merchandise to any player playing in the Sea Cavalcade Tournament, August 4 and 5, who can make a hole in one of the 5th hole. It's been done before men, so here's luck.

THE BALL was faster than this Cedars Inn player whose valiant effort went unrewarded when he failed to reach first base. But Cedars defeated Weldwood 5-3 in the third game of finals last week.

Child's fish derby

The Charles Brookman Memorial Children's Fishing Derby will be held from Davis Bay Wharf Saturday, August 4, 1979.

The fishing time is 12 noon to 3:30 p.m. for children 12 years and under. The boundary limits for contestants is Wilson Creek to West Sechelt.

Children must bring their own tackle and bait will be supplied. This year buzz bombs must not be used due to the danger to smaller children.

There are many prizes to be won in all categories including shiners, perch, dogfish, crabs, cod, etc.

Prizes and the trophy will be awarded between 3:30 and 4 p.m. on the wharf.

Remember that children not accompanied by an adult must wear a life jacket.

It would be appreciated if adults refrain from fishing at the wharf during this 12th annual children's derby.

Pender fishing

Preparations for the Annual Fish Derby August 4 and 5 sponsored by the Pender Harbour Auxiliary to St. Mary's Hospital are nearing completion.

Tickets are available from members and from Marinas and Resorts in the Pender Harbour area.

Watch for the display of prizes at the Centre Hardware in Madeira Park.

As in other years there are prizes of $100, $50 and $25 for the three largest salmon.

In addition are an assortment of prizes for Hidden Weights plus $10 for the largest cod.

For those ticket holders who don't fish there are draw prizes. First a trip for two to Reno. Second a Floater Jacket and third a screen door (how nice to be able to foil those pesky mosquitoes).

Proceeds go to St. Mary's Hospital. Do take a chance and help an invalid.

Provincial Museum

The Elphinstone Pioneer Museum, located at the Municipal Museum Building, corner of Winn and Gower Point Roads, Gibsons, is currently hosting a travelling exhibit, from the Provinical Museum in Victoria. It will be shown until August 17.

The exhibit, entitled Frank Swannell, British Columbia Land Surveyor, is by the B.C. Provincial Museum, in cooperation with the B.C. Provincial Archives, and funded by the National Museums of Canada (please credit). It is made up of photographs from the Frank C. Swannell Colletion of the Provincial Archives, and shows the difficulty of travel in British Columbia in the decades following the turn of the century. This is illustrated through the life and work of a land surveyor, Frank Swannell.

We are one of the first community museums to display this exhibit, as it has just recently completed its premiere showing in Victoria.

The museum also has other travelling exhibits booked into 1980, and will announce their openings. For more information please phone the museum at 886-8232.

HONEST CO-OP VALUE
ANOTHER REASON TO SHOP CO-OP
Elphinstone Co-Op is pleased to introduce to the Sunshine Coast a new concept in meat sales. Instead of, as is common practice in the retail food business, offering you only a few "lost leader" specials each week, we are going out on a limb and for a period of 3 months
ALL MEAT ITEMS WILL BE REDUCED BY 15%
And when we say all meat items we mean every meat item in our meat department including cold cuts etc. Further, we will not be inflating the price of meat to do this but will be offering a straight 15% off our everyday retail competitive prices. If this experiment works it will continue into other departments.
WE'RE NOT KIDDING WHEN WE SAY "DON'T JUST SHOP — SHOP CO-OP" THERE IS A DIFFERENCE
Please note that due to the small mark up this discount will not apply on sides or hinds of beef or pork.

Woodlot licences

The ministry of forests has produced a white paper dealing with policies and procedures relating to woodlot licences.

The objective of the program, explains Hugh Bancroft, of the timber management branch is "to promote small-scale forestry in the province by making Crown forest land available to small enterprises and the owners of small parcels of forest land who wish to bring such parcels under management and engage in silviculture and forest production activities."

The white paper has been produced to obtain views of all interested and concerned parties before policies and procedures are finalized.

Copies of the paper are available from the Ministry's Information Services Branch, 1450 Government Street, Victoria, V8W 3E7; and also from ministry regional headquarters in Vancouver, Kamloops, Nelson, Williams Lake, Prince George and Prince Rupert.

Deadline for submissions relating to the white paper is January 31 of next year.

Replies and comments on the paper are to be sent to the Director, Timber Management Branch, Ministry of Forests, 1450 Government Street, Victoria, B.C., V8W 3E7.

A dependable source

By Guy Symonds

One of the more dependable sources of knowledge on gardening which this gardener, and many others enjoys is the weekly broadcasts of Bernard Moore "the B.C. Gardener", on the CBC.

This last week he was talking about the compost heap in which I share his interest and belief. While there is naturally enough no new information to impart it did serve to remind us that , with the garden crops coming off and the consequent "refuse" available, now is the time to plan for the next year's invaluable asset to the gardener's equipment.

No new knowledge maybe for some, but a very good point that a compost heap is not a garbage dump. His recipe includes the addition of sand and pet moss alternating with the layers of vegetable matter from garden and kitchen.As well as the use of blood meal, bone meal and lime. The sand gets about four ounces of bone meal to the six inch layer, the vegetation the same amount of blood meal while the peat moss gets the addition of eight ounces of garden lime. He favours the two bin system, only he makes them, simply enough of four foot chicken wire lines with black plastic to attract the suns rays which help greatly in the process of decomposition. They are organized to be completed in fall and spring so that there is continuous supply of this invaluable material.

This gardener is looking forward to Mr. Moore's book which one hears is due on the book shelves about October, and it is hoped that he will not mind this column jumping the gun a bit so as to get the reminder to 100 slaps

This gardener spent a couple of days last week interviewing a dozen or so of the brightest brains in agriculture at the Research Station at Agassiz. This was for the agricultural industry but while there some of the literature put out by Canada Agriculture was picked up. Amongst this was the new issue of "Home Vegetable Growing" publication no. 1059 and available on request at no charge. It deals in simple terms with soils, tools, seeds, land preparation, and in fact pretty well all the details of the gardening operation including a detailed planting guide. There is also a description of the construction of the hotbed and the cold frame. Among the recommendations is that in the month of August in this province one can sow "deep heart endive" (completely new to this gardener), radish, spinach, and leaf lettuce for fall use. Presumable this is all sown in the open.

One of life's little discouragements for the gardener is that the learning process is so slow. Why is it one never seems to do the things one is determined to do — (this "one" speaks for himself only) Each year the problem is too much to harvest and consume at one time. Each year enthusiasm overcomes restraint and there is always too much as the season peaks.

Then comes the realization , come fall, there is not going to be too much to harvest. This year the broccoli was delayed a little but again the cauliflower are too early and "she who must be obeyed" rebels against the continuous flow of the abundant greenstuff into the kitchen.

Carelessness played a part too. The container of seedlings said "Brussel Sprouts" and in the press of the season it was not noticed until too late that they were broccoli. The mistake however is leading to an experiment. Some brussel sprout seed will be sown — there is some room now that the peas and broad beans are out of the way, and if the weather stays mild enough late enough maybe Christmas will see some kind of a crop.

One new item can be reported, that being the sowing of a packet of snap peas. Germination was not good but might not, in fact pretty certainly was not, the fault of the seed. Growth was good — the vines have to be staked as they grow to six feet, but the crop was decidedly light. However they cooked well and certainly were good eating. With no directions and bearing in mind pea pods can have weevils each pod was opened before cooking. They are a novelty but in the writers opinion not to be chosen to replace the standard varieties.

WON'T CLOSE

No referendum on Sechelt ice arena

The Sunshine Coast Regional District won't be holding a referendum on expanding the tax base area for the function of Sechelt arena operations.

In a close vote, with SCRD chairman Ed Nicholson casting the deciding vote, it was decided to defeat the resolution which would be designated area B and C and the Village of Sechelt in a cost sharing arrangement for the Arena.

Although the wording of the referendum said a $50,000 grant from the provincial government to cover past deficits was conditional on the assumption of operational control by the council of the village in cooperation with the regional district to establish a specified area, one Sechelt alderman doesn't think they will lose the grant.

Sechelt finance chairman Alderman Frode Jorgensen said the grant was not in jeopardy even if they don't hold a referendum. However, future grants could be in trouble.

"I'm certain that we will get the $50,000, but future grants could be a problem. We will have to take a long hard look at it, I don't know what we will decide," Jorgensen said.

Nicholson thinks there is a real possibility that the arena could close down and that the regional board will have to look at entire regional referendum.

"The reason I voted against the motion was there was no evidence to indicate residents in Area B and C are the principal users.

"Personally I believe it is a valuable community asset, but I wasn't prepared to vote in the affirmative on an issue that was so devided," he said.

A letter from the Area "C" Ratepayers' Association said they were against the referendum. Nicholson said he, as the director from area B, hadn't gotten one positive call about the referendum.

IT WAS a happy day for Clarice Clarkson of Pratt Rd., Gibsons when many of her friends joined her to help celebrate her 94th birthday last week. At the party were Florence Hale, Marlene Williams, Eva Kilian, Eva Webb, Donna Gaulin, Genevieve Gaulin, Mary E. Greaves, Maxine L. Graves and Mavis Christmas.

No logging near Chatterbox

MacMillan Bloedel has assured the Sunshine Coast Regional District board they will not be logging near Chatterbox Falls.

In a letter to SCRD, F.H. Moonen, a MacMillan Bloedel vice president, told the regional board its plans called for logging only 600 acres and not 9,000 as was reported.

"I wanted to reassure you that our current logging plan in Princess Louisa does not include, nor indeed comes within several miles of the Chatterbox Falls, nor will it be visible from the park or the lodge site," Moonen said.

He went on to point out the area which would be visible from the vicinity of Hamilton Island will be between 30 and 40 acres.

MacMillan Bloedel won't even be using Princess Louisa Inlet to take the logs out.

"Despite adverse grades, we will take the logs out over the existing road to the log dump on Queens Reach, not into the inlet.

"No further logging is planned until about 1990," Moonan said.

Meanwhile, the Young Life Society at Malibu and in North Vancouver along with the Princess Louisa Society have expressed relief that the logging plans are limited.

Moonen also promised an accelerated reforestation program to green over the cuts.

Minister of Lands, Parks and Housing James Chabot reiterated Mac-Bloes position in another letter to the regional board.

"It is my view that, given a sensitive and appropriate reforestation program, the attractiveness of the inlet will not suffer unduly," he said.

Investigation is over

The preliminary investigation of Sechelt council is over and the report is in the hands of Municipal Affairs deputy minister Bill Long, Dave Conway told the Times last week.

Conway and Mrs. Beth Tabor talked with council and Sechelt Ratepayers' chairman chuck Dowman and treasurer Ron Slack July 20.

The investigation was ordered by Municipal Affairs minister Bill Vander Zalm on the basis of a 27-page letter from the ratepayers' group alleging irregularities in council's handling of zoning, subdivision and development proposals.

Ratepayers' directors met with Sechelt council last week to "open lines of communication," Dowman said.

"It was a two-way conversation, there was no real discussion on anybody's actions," he said.

"They've hired a planner and put zoning on the back burner. That was the mission, so mission accomplished."

Island Trust reviews spill

The Islands Trust, meeting in Victoria last week, again reviewed the threat to the Trust Area posed by the possibility of oil spills. The meeting resolved that the Chairman, John Rich, write to the Honourable William N. Vander Zalm, Minister of Municipal Affairs, who is responsible for the Islands Trust. Vander Zalm is requested to encourage Governments to take further preventative actions to reduce the risk of oil spills.

Oil spills could result from fractures in shore based installations, accidents to local coastal tankers, or from collisions or other mishaps to large ocean-going tankers serving refineries. This last and most serious danger is highlighted by the proposed new oil port in Puget Sound or near Port Angeles.

A major oil spill would have devastating repercussions on the life of islanders, the local economy, the widely used recreational facilities and the natural environment. In a group of relatively small islands, much of the land and activity is closely related to the ocean and it's beaches.

For all tankers and other vessels, the Trust wishes to encourage Government and private interests to continue with the improvement of standards of safety, design and operation. The ideal solution, however, to the big tanker threat is a switch to land based pipelines such as the Alaska — Edmonton proposal and the connection to Cherry Point. As a much less desirable alternative, at least tanker traffic could be eliminated in Puget Sound if there was a pipeline from Port Angeles to Cherry Point.

Chairman John Rich's letter, copies of which have been sent to other Ministers and M.L.A.'s, concluded with the plea that the short time still available should be used by Governments to press for these safer alternatives which would improve the chances of avoiding what he describes as "a catastrophic oil spill".

West Coast Trail

The famous West Coast Trail on Vancouver Island has been described as 45 miles of the most spectacular hiking on the continent. This summer, the Canadian Hostelling Association is organizing a number of 8 day expeditions along this historic trail. Travelling by van to Port Renfrew, we will hike at a leisurely pace, taking time to explore the lush rain forest, endless stretches of sandy beach, and the sites of early homesteads and Indian villages.

The cost of the trip is $135.00 which includes food, van and ferry transportation, guiding instruction and most camping equipment. Because all the regularly scheduled trips have been fully booked, an extra trip is being planned from August 16-23.

For more information, contact the Canadian Hostelling Association, 3425 West Broadway, Vancouver, B.C., V6R 2B4 Phone : 736-3116 or 736-2674. In Victoria the address is number 10-720 Yates Street, Phone: 383-2114.

NSF cheques

B.C. Tel announced Thursday it has asked the Canadian Radio-television and Telecommunications Commission to approve a tarrif which will enable the Company to charge $6 for each NSF cheque it receives in payment of telephone bills.

The Company's submission to the regulatory agency said more than 13,000 such cheques were handled by B.C. Tel last year.

The proposed charge is designed to help recover the cost of processing cheques returned to B.C. Tel for non-sufficient funds and is expected to help discourage customers from paying phone bills with bad cheques. The estimated handling cost of each NSF cheque is $6.05.

The Company previously had advised the CRTC of its intention to assess a charge to customers for NSF cheques. The CRTC rules that such a charge could only be applied by B.C. Tel under an approved tariff and the federal court recently upheld that ruling.

HUSQVARNA

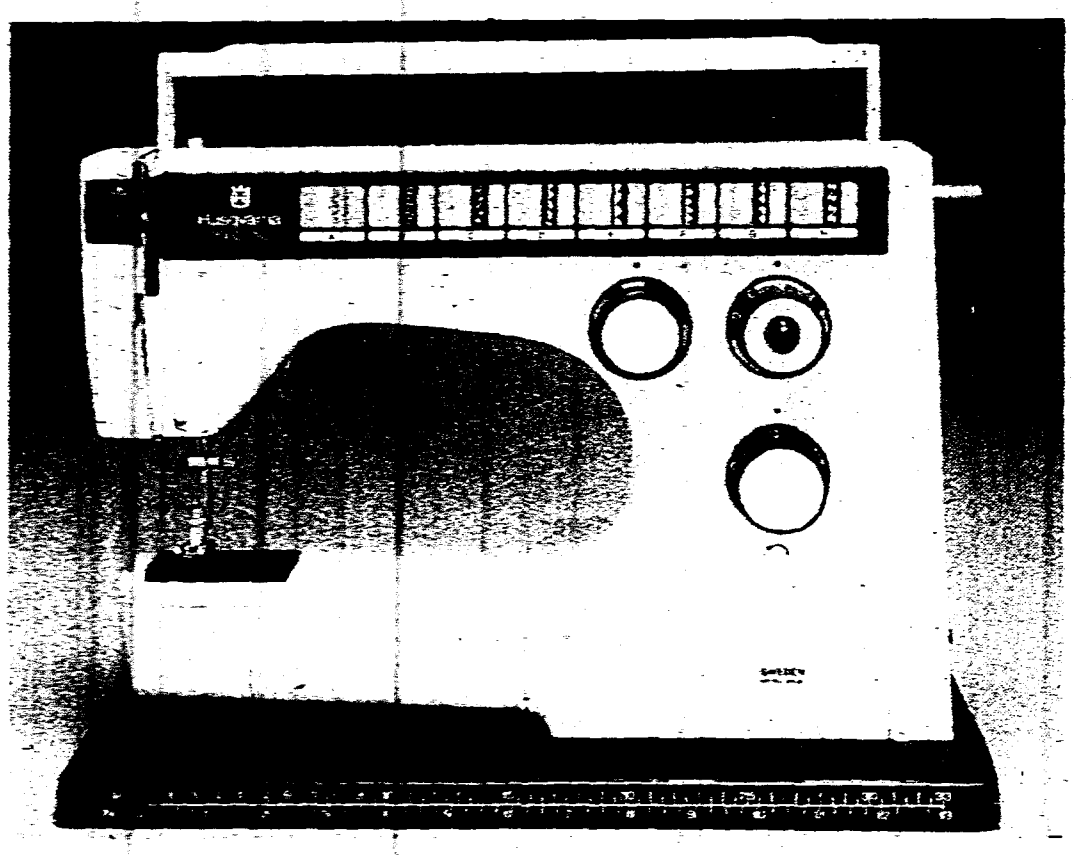
comes to the coast

The Husqvarna 2000 SL is built to last. It is constructed of special Swedish steel and superior quality components, carefully crafted by skilled workmen, to tolerances of 1,000th of a millimeter.

And the Husqvarna 2000 SL is built for unlimited sewing. Its technical refinements are not mere showpieces. They are there for one basic reason — to make sewing simpler.

This design makes the Husqvarna unique. Sewing is no longer a job, but becomes a pleasure, a recreation offering a world of artistic fulfilment.

But behind this pleasure lies Husqvarna's advanced technical skills.



• Jam-proof hook
• Automatic bobbin thread
• Easy bobbin winding
• Buttonholes in seconds
• Slow speed gear
• Easy threading
• Snap-on presser feet
• Free arm sewing
• Permanent lubrication
