The largest copper mines in the Dominion are situated at Phoenix. The Granby Co. employs 500 men, and has a monthly pay roll of over $50,000: Two railroads afford access to the city.

SEVENTEENTH YEAR — PHOENIX, B. C., SATURDAY, MAY 6, 1916 — NUMBER 43

Took In Phoenix

Last Saturday Arthur Caron "took Phoenix in" in two ways. Taking advantage of the four days' bank holiday, he visited several hotels and gave personal cheques payable on a Greenwood bank in exchange for entertainment. Before the same could be cashed he had vamoosed for points unknown. The provincial authorities in Bridesville, Greenwood and Phoenix are on the lookout for this party who speaks French and has a scar on his face.

Provincial Police Court

Pete Isazenko was fined $5 for assaulting Jan Stark in the Victoria mine Saturday morning.

For throwing stones and breaking the windows of a countryman living on Spion kopje, an Austrian named Nichlai Morkoski contributed the sum of $10 and costs for indulging in such playful antics as to cause the disturbance of the peace of mind of Frank Smith.

A sequel to the stone throwing case resulted in a fine of $5 and costs for the owner of the odd sounding name of Nykola Mykole. Mykola refused to appear in answer to a summons in connection with the above case and consequently was fined for contempt of court.

In Memoriam

Resolution adopted by Phoenix Miner's Union, No. 8, W. F. M.

Whereas, once more we stand in the presence of death, that the Impartial Leveler of all things has appeared among us, and the great democracy of the grave now claims its own; and whereas, in their death we have lost two comrades quiet and unassuming in manner and good union men under all circumstances;

Resolved, that we, their fellow workmen, extend our heartfelt sympathy to the relatives and friends of Walter Gildert and Joseph Ciacco. Also, that a copy of these resolutions be sent to their relatives and our charter be draped in black.

Chute Man Killed

Joseph Ciacco, a chuteman employed in the Granby mine was accidentially killed Tuesday by being crushed beiween the ore cats. Wednesday Dr. Arnott conducted the inquest, when the most searching inquiry failed to disclose a reason for the accident as he had no occasion to be in the locality where he lost his life. The deceased was a member of the local miners' union and about 21 years of age. Funeral arrangements will be announced later following arrival of a brother from Mountain Park, Alta.

Uuto Garage for Guests

James Marshall, of the Brooklyn hotel, stated this week that he had purchased the building formerly occupied by the Morrin, Thompson Co. as a hardware, at the corner of Dominion and Brooklyn avenues. The same will be converted into an auto garage accommodating four cars. At the present time about 75 cars are owned by residents in and about Phoenix, and there is every indication that the number will be considerably augmented judging from the number of deals pending. But half a dozen steps from the Brooklyn hotel, a hostlery synomous with the name of Marshall, guests will find this innovation a decided convenience.

SEXTETTE OF PRETTY GIRLS SEEN IN "FLORODORA"

B. C. Mining Items

Cobalt capitalists are investigating Kaslo mining properties.

Rich ore has been found near Lost Lake, seven miles south of Chesaw by the Nopp brothers and Price Fruit and Horace Smalley. The ledge assays $11 to $78. In a mining sense this region has been practically unexplored.

Hundreds of miners are stampeding from Fairbanks, Koyukuk, Iditarod, Kuskokwim and other points to Boob and Tolstoi creeks, in the Innoko district, where a rich gold strike is reported. Boob creek is a tributary of Tolstoi which flows into Diga river. The Diga discharges into the Innoko, which is an affluent of the Yukon. Three shafts are reported to have been sunk on Boob creek, showing a paystreak that yields $2 to the cubic foot. One prospector has drifted more than 30 feet through the paystreak. Practically every dog in Fairbanks has been commandeered by stampeding miners, and scores of gold hunters unable to get away over the trail, are anxiously awaiting the breaking up of the ice so that they may start in boats and canoes.

Granby Consolidated

The Granby Consolidated Mining, Smelting & Power company is preparing to construct an auxiliary energy station at its Hidden creek properties, according to information receivad from the principal offices of the corporation in New York, and the machinery is to be ordered soon. It is proposed to install equipment that will increase the capacity of the plant about 7,000 or 8,000 horsepower.

Last winter the company experienced difficulty in its operations at Hidden Creek because sufficient power could not be obtained on account of severe weather conditions. According to officials the auxiliary power plant to be constructed will eliminate all possibility of a recurrence of the same interference that was encountered during the extremely cold months just passed, and will allow the continuous operation of the plant throughout the entire year.

That the company's output suffered materially since October is indicated by the production figures made public for the various months. In that month the total production of the Hidden Creek and Grand Forks properties amounted to 4,142,499 pounds of copper, or only 75,000 pounds under the record outturn in September. In November, however, there was a falling off of more than 500,000 pounds, about 200,000 pounds of which was shown at the Hidden Creek and 300,000 pounds at Grand Forks. In December there was a gain of 200,000 pounds over the total of November, the output being 3,775,335 pounds, but this increase was contributed entirely by the Grand Forks smelter, the operations at Hidden Creek showing a slight decrease. The largest losses were suffered in January and February of this year. At the Hidden Creek property the February production was but 1,518,928 pounds. There was 240,000 pounds from that of February and was more than 1,000,000 pounds below the high production of September. There was naturally some decrease in the Grand Forks output during the cold months, but the February total, despite the severe weather showed a loss of 400,000 pounds. The additional power at Hidden Creek, therefore, it is believed will permit the operations during the winter months without the heavy decreases experienced this year.

The Granby company is now receiving some return on its holdings of the stock of the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co., Ltd., which it acquired about nine years ago, and from which company the Granby secured its main supply of fuel. The Crow's Nest company has recently resumed dividends at the rate of $1.50 a share quarterly.

Tonight, "Florodora"

F. Stuart-Whyte's all-star revival of Leslie Stuart's brilliant musical comedy success, "Florodora," will be the attraction at the Miners' Union opera house tonight.

From end to end of the nineteenth century the English drama received no more novel, no more charming, and for that matter, no more important accession than "Florodora." It is worth today all the other stage plays, opperettas and musical comedies written in England between the year 1800 and 1916, if only Gilbert & Sullivan's two foremost successes be counted out. It is a sounder, a more honest and a vastly more interesting piece of work than any single musical comedy ever originally written in English. Moreover its score contains some of the best music of the best British composers since Harry Purcell. For example: "Tell Me Pretty Maiden" sextette, "The Silver Star of Love," or "Tact." England should be proud of Leslie Stuart. He was the greatest writer of sweet song since King David. But even Stuart has never been able to compose a second "Florodora." Even transplanting the particularly palmy first act of the isle of "Floradora" into the big act of "Havanna" failed to make the latter piece a dazzling success. The music was simply not there, and all of the brilliant dialogue in the world could not have made it a logical successor to "Florodora," palm trees, moonlight bays and all of the trappings of "Florodora" thrown in for good measure.

Mr. Whyte's production of the piece is fully up to the high standard which was set by the original London and New York premieres.

A. Mellrud spent the past week on a tour, visiting Princeton, Hedley, Copper Mountain and Oroville. He states that there is a big land boom on at Oroville and that land is selling at $200 an acre. They are making great improvements at this point by irrigating the land.

Foster's Weather Report

Next disturbance will reach the Pacific coast about May 6, cross the Pacific slope by close of 7, central valleys 8 to 10, and the eastern sections 11. Warm wave will cross the Pacific slope about May 6, central valleys 8, eastern sections 10. Cool wave will cross the Pacific slope about May 9, central valleys 11, and eastern sections 13.

There will be a dangerous storm, causing severe weather from the Pacific to the Atlantic. Rains will be general and in some places heavy. High winds, called gales, are expected. This storm is expected to contain a double storm, which may unite in eastern sections and cause very dangerous storms.

To Recruit Monday

Capt. S. G. Kirk, officer commanding the Independent company, is acting as recruiting officer for the Two Hundred and Twenty-Fifth battalion, was in Greenwood with Recruiting Officer Sergt. J. S. Nye on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of last week when they secured three recruits besides interesting several who will enlist as soon as they can finish up their business.

Next Monday Capt. Kirk will arrive in Phoenix, when it is hoped that some of the eligible men will recognize their duty sufficiently well to respond to this call for recruits and follow in the footsteps of the other brave fellows who have already left this city and are "doing their bit." Some have already given their lives for the empire. What will you do?

In the Spring Is It a Cough?

Ontario Women's Advice.

Hamilton, Ont.—"I am a great believer in Dr. Pierce's medicines. I am speaking from the actual use of them and the great benefit I have derived therefrom. Shortly after my marriage I began ailing, had a very bad cough and got very thin and was run down. My people thought I was going into a decline. They got Dr. Pierce's 'Golden Medical Discovery' and this medicine completely cured me."—MRS. AMELIA HIBBARD, 26 Cheever St.

Kilbride, Ont.—"When I was only eleven months old my mother procured 'Golden Medical Discovery' for me. I have taken it several times myself since and about one year ago I gave it to my two children. They recovered very quickly with no bad results, after taking one bottle. I have recommended it to quite a number of late."—MRS. W. J. SMKINS, Kilbride, Ont.

The best time to cure a cough is when it starts. Ordinarily, a few doses of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will cure a cough at the beginning. But even when the cough is deep-seated and the body is wasted by emaciation, Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery will in most cases effect a permanent cure.

Get it to-day from any medicine dealer; it is a powerful blood purifier, so penetrating that it even gets at the impure deposits in the joints and carries them out of the system.

Remember it is not a patent medicine for its ingredients are printed on the wrapper. It's a pure glyceric extract of roots, made without alcohol.

Depend upon this grand remedy to give you the kind of blood that makes the skin clear, and puts ambition and energy into the entire body. You will not be disappointed. For free advice, write Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y. Trial package tablets 10 cents.

F. E. Simpson, editor and manager of the Victorian, has decided to give up the ghost as far as publication of that journal goes. Technical trouble arose over the matter of telegraphic service for Monday morning, and without capital to meet the emergency, the publication succumbed. "Dad" writes:

"We have never been a quitter, nor have we ever had a lingering love for a quitter. There are times, however, under certain conditions and circumstances, when a quitter who quits at a time when quitting is amply justified, displays both judgment and discretion. That time has arrived with the Victorian. . . . . what we have lost will be entered upon the ledger of hope that is not buried but slumbering. We quit with a kindly feeling toward all."

The editor of the Victorian is not the only man who put his hard-earned money into a coast publication only to see it pass away like a spring zephyr. Time after time members of the Fourth Estate and exponents of the Art Preservative of Arts ventured down where the iron horse goes down to the sea to drink and embarked in business. A spirit of commercialism ruled the cities of sorrow whose destinies they tried to mould. Perhaps no other enterprise exemplified more the truth of the saying, "Man made the cities and God made the towns," than that of the newspaper publisher. The virtue of honesty therein was a thing to be despised; a kick to help him on the dowaward path his reward for boosting. Who is there blames "Dad" for quitting? Who wants to be a beggar of crumbs from the rich man's table?

In one of the best speeches of the present legislative session, Ernest Miller, Grand Forks, ably outlined the history of workmens' compensation legislation and dealt with the chief provisions of the important compensation bill now before the House.

Mr. Miller said that this bill had been conceived upon the idea that it was the duty of every legislative body to pass legislation which would be in the interests of the physical, intellectual and moral well-being of the people as a whole. In carrying out that duty no legislation brought before that House in the past had been so important as this. It was well, before considering the nature of the bill, to recall what the present conditions were. There were evils affecting labor in existence which would be remedied more or less by this act. The existing law was based on the English common law, and was, therefore, bound to be defective and did not give the workman all the protection and compensation to which he was entitled. There were many things to which the employer could seize upon for his defence, such as the doctrine of common employment (the act or negligence of a fellow employee), and the matter of contributory negligence.

The adoption of the employers' liability act increased the chances of the workman recovering to some extent, but in its working out it had been found that workmen did not receive the compensation to which they were entitled, or that after they had been awarded it, little was left after paying their costs.

To secure information upon the working out of compensation laws elsewhere, the government had appointed a royal commission, but its powers were wide and covered many other matters affecting labor. A bill based on its findings was brought in and left before the House and the people over recess. In the interview the government took the wise precaution of appointing another committee to go into the matter. Upon its recommendations many chances were made to improve the bill.

The basis principles of the bill were that the workman was entitled to compensation from the industry in which he was employed, and that he was entitled to it without cost or litigation. It would eliminate all question as to who was to blame, and the elimination of all litigation would lead to better feelings between employers and employed. It would lead to every workman and those dependent upon him a feeling of security that whatever might happen to him in the chances of human existence, he and they would be provided for.

The section setting forth what indurtries and trades the act would apply to was very exhaustive, and it included two never before covered by a similar act—the men employed in civic police and fire brigades. The board was given a wide discretion in deciding what class an industry came under. In addition to farm laborers and domestic servants, to whom the act would not apply, it would not affect those engaged in electrical pursuits, travelling salesmen, members of the employer's family and outworkers. It was provided that in the case of a workman killed or injured outside the province while on the business of his employer, it would be dealt with as if the accident had happened within the province.

In the case of a workman permanently disabled, he would be entitled to compensation for the remainder of his life to the extent of fifty-five per cent. of his average earnings. The "waiting period," during which no compensation was granted is now two weeks, but the commission thought this too much of a contribution from the workman and cut the period down to three days. Any worker whose disability lasted over three days would, therefore, be entitled to compensation, but during the three days he was entitled to medical attendance. Where there was facial disfigurement there might be allowed a lump sum in compensation.

Employers were benefitted in that they were relieved from exorbitant damages and heavy law costs, and know from year to year just how much the matter of compensation would require them to pay out. The employees, on the other hand, knew absolutely that they were sure of compensation without cost and knew just what they would get.

An important principle of the bill had to do with medical aid. It had often happened that for lack of medical attention or first aid at the moment of the accident, workers had lost their lives or suffered disability or long periods of illness. The board would have control of this and would have authority to provide medical, surgical and hospital treatment, transportation, nursing, medicines, crutches and apparatus, and artificial limbs if necessary. Existing plans of medical aid in force between employers and employees which the board may consider "not less efficient in the interest both of the employer and of the general body of workmen" may be allowed to continue.

The system of assessment on the employers adopted was that known as the capitalized system, whereby there would be assessed annually an amount on each industry sufficient to meet the cost of compensation in the year before. This system had been decided to be the fairest and most satisfactory. The employers would be expected to retain from the wages of each man one cent a day for the medical fund and pay this over when he paid his assessment.

A question which had to be considered was that of whether there should be absolute state insurance or whether the insurance companies now operating should be allowed to take part in the business of insuring the employers against compensation for accidents. The decision of the commission that state insurance alone should be the principle adopted was one that would meet with the approval of the House, and it was borne out by the experience in the U. S. In Ohio it cost less than ten per cent. to administer the system of state insurance, but it cost 40 per cent. with the casualty companies. In Wisconsin it cost $2.07 to collect $1, while in Oregon it cost but $1.13, a saving to the Oregon employers of $351,522 in one year in premiums.

A most commendable feature of the act was that dealing with accident prevention, the board being given wide powers to make inquiries, appoint committees, supply information to employers and workmen, distribute bulletins and make such rules and regulations as would tend to prevent accidents.

Regarding the composition of the board of three men, Mr. Miller insisted that the greatest care must be exercised in the selection of these men. Their choice was just as important as that of a judge, if not more so, and the work should be an incentative to any man to give of the very best in him. The government would have to guard against the danger of appointing men who would not be able to forget politics, which would be a serious mistake.

Mr. Miller paid a tribute to the work of the committee which recently went into this question, and referred to the report made by its members and the bill now before the House as a proof of the zeal and faithfulness they had shown. It was possible some small changes might be found advisable in committee of the whole, but it was significent in favor of the bill that there were no complaints made regarding it from either employers or workmen.

NOT ENOUGH CHILDREN

ever receive the proper balance of food to sufficiently nourish both body and brain during the growing period when nature's demands are greater than in mature life. This is shown in so many pale faces, lean bodies, frequent colds, and lack of ambition.

For all such children we say with unmistakable earnestness: They need Scott's Emulsion, and need it now. It possesses in concentrated form the very food elements to enrich their blood. It changes weakness to strength; it makes them sturdy and strong and active.

STEVENS

Caught the Train for Trout

I am sitting today at the desk alone,
And the figures are hard to tame;
I'd like to shift to a mossy stone
Nor bother with pelf and fame.
I know a pool where the waters cool
Rest under the brawling falls,
And the song and gleam of that mountain stream
Oh, it calls, and calls, and calls!

There are hooks and lines in a wayward store
Where the ranchors buy their socks,
And the miners get their powder and fuse
And the pretty girls buy their frocks.
I wonder how long that tackle will lie
As useless as an empty spool,
Unless I happen along to buy,
And sneak for that mountain pool.

Oh, bother the flies, I guess I've enough,
I know where the worms are thick;
By Billy's old barn—Oh, they are the stuff—
You can dig a quart with a stick.
The reel is all right and the line is tight,
And if they should happen to fail,
There's little birch rods that are fit for gods
When they follow the trout-brook trail.

I jing! The demon has rung me up—
The "central" up in the woods—
Waders, and creel, and a pocket cup!
I'm after the only goods.
Wire for hank and the old buck-board—
The secret, I guess, is out—
Don't bother me now—you'll get in a row—
I'm catching a train for trout!

to try Zam-Buk for that chronic sore or ulcer from which you are suffering. This herbal balm has cured many such cases when every other treatment failed.

Mrs. Dubois, of Imperial St., Vancouver, can verify this. Her daughter writes: "Mother had such ulcers on her feet that she was unable to walk. She had doctors' advice and treatment, but nothing did her any good, and we were beginning to think she would never be cured, when a friend advised her to try Zam-Buk. She did so, and—surprising as it sounds—after a week's treatment with Zam-Buk she was able to walk without pain. She continued applying Zam-Buk until the ulcers were completely healed, and she has not known a moment's discomfort since."

Zam-Buk is equally good for eczema, and all skin diseases, ringworm, blood-poisoning, abscesses, piles, burns, scalds, cuts, and all skin injuries. All druggists 50c. box, 3 for $1.25, or from Zam-Buk Co., Toronto, for price. Send 1c. stamp for return postage on free trial box.

Production and Thrift

CANADA'S CALL FOR SERVICE AT HOME

Produce More and Save More

The Empire needs food. If you are not in the fighting line you may be in the producing line. Labour is limited—all the more reason to do more than ever before. Grow food for the men who are fighting for you. The Allies need all the food that you can produce. Every little helps. You are responsible for your own work. If you cannot produce as much as you would like, produce all you can. Work with the right spirit. Put fighting energy into your effort and produce now when it counts. The more you produce the more you can save. Producing and saving are war-service.

Make Your Labor Efficient

In war-time do not waste time and energy on unimportant and unprofitable work. Economize labour. Put off unproductive work till after the war, and, if possible, help in producing something needed now. Let us not waste labour. Canada needs if all. If possible help to feed the Allies. Make your backyard a productive garden. Cultivate it with a will. Make your labour count for as much as possible.

Do Not Waste Materials

There should be no waste in war-time. Canada could pay the annual interest on her war expenditure out of what we waste on our farms, in our factories, in our homes. Every pound of food saved from waste is as good as a pound of increased production. The way for a nation to save is for every individual to save. France is strong today because of thrift in time of peace. The men and women of Great Britain are not only "doing" but are learning to "do without."

Spend Your Money Wisely

Practise economy in the home by eliminating luxuries. Wasting your dollars here weakens our strength at the Front. Your savings will help Canada to finance the war. Save your money for the next Dominion War issue. There can be no better investment.

A house shortage exists in Trail.

Vancouver has 71 licensed hotels.

Fernie only runs its water cart when it rains.

Big Jim McKee is champion plowman of Elko.

Ladner ships 3500 gallons of milk daily to Vancouver.

Swartz Bros. will open a fruit packing plant in Lillooet this year.

The Kaslo Kootenian is 20 years of age this month. Greetings, brother.

C. M. Andrews of Osceola, near Vernon, is an authority on mule foot hogs.

A recent Shropshire wool clip realized $2.40 a flock at Bozeman, Mont., or 30c a lb.

Wednesday morning, from 9 to 12, and Friday afternoon is ironing day in Penticton.

Calgary oil brokers exchange has but 8 members left out of a total of 200 two years ago.

British merchant vessels lost so far in the war total 4 per cent., or 6 per cent. of the tonnage afloat.

Revelstoke is almost broke because 1913 taxpayers failed to pay. Resort may be had to the courts.

Twenty years ago Col. E. S. Topping was the only voter in Trail failing a revision of the voters' list.

D. H. Cox has disposed of the Vernon hotel to R. Saunders and Hugh Cox for a consideration of $10,000.

There are 17 internment camps in Canada, four of them in British Columbia, accommodating 7,000 prisoners of war.

The first fine inflicted in many years in the province for riding a bicycle on the sidewalk was paid into court last Thursday at Victoria.

Charles Clifford, colored, and 11 other gen'lmen were arrested Friday in Vancouver. Vancouver cops have a keen scent for a poker game.

The Rossland Miner is evidently trying to live up to its political reputation these days. Its head letter has kerns shaped like Old Nick's horns.

Victoria's assessment has been cut 10 per cent. all around, equivalent to 33 per cent of the 1914 roll when land was assessed at $89,000,000.

For 92,000 cubic feet of water, which in Victoria represents 102, Portland laundrymen pay $77.60, Vancouver $64.40, Tacoma $45.80, and Seattle $42.80.

Twenty years ago W. Bullock-Webster captured a scorpion on his ranch at Keremos. It was sent to the curator at the provincial museum for classification.

"Maxwell goes 44 miles on one gallon" read a daily scarehead this week. Some day it will be possible to go from coast to coast on something less than a quart.

Returning to Seattle with 90,000 pounds of halibut after being out 22 days with five dories, each fisheman netted $400, the vessel's owner 1600 and the master $400.

For hurling a peanut through the window of the Grandview school and hitting the principal on the proboscis, the youthful offender was hailed into court. Sentence was suspended.

A man named Welch received 20 days last week at Molson for taking booze across the line. Washington is now like a Dowie temple, one has to leave his sin outside before entering.

Three shingle mills are in course of construction on the Capilano river, North Vancouver. Some of the clearest cedar in the province grows there, and one may split a shake 40 feet in length.

A loose brick necessitated six stitches in Geo. McCabe's head at Grand Forks this week. It fell 30 feet out of the smelter dust chamber. A coffin would have been in order for the owner of any other name.

The will of the late Samuel Brighouse, Vancouver, who died in England in 1913, is being contested. At one time he owned one-third of Vancouver, taking the land in lieu of cash for work performed for the government.

Proceeds of the Easter Monday dance under the auspices of the woman's auxiliary of St. John's church netted over $100 clear. No small credit for the success of the undertaking is due to the excellent floor committee; and the supper, well, you know the unfailing ability of the ladies in such matters.

Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Ingram, sr., returned Tuesday from Chicago where they took a five weeks' treatment in the Bernhart & McFadden institute. There were about 400 people receiving treatment at the time they were there. Their diet for the first 14 days consisted of milk and water. They returned home in fine health, and speak very highly of their treatment.

The service in St. Andrew's church on the evening of the 23rd was attended by the members of the local lodges of Oddfellows and Rebekahs. The church was crowded. Service of praise was under the leadership of R. McCammon. In addition to the hymns appropriate to the season, the choir rendered with fine effect the Hallelujah chorus and Sir H. W. Baker's fine version of the 23rd psalm, "The King of Love My Shepherd Is."

Showbills for "The Girl in Red" were posted by the female members of the company this week at New Westminster.

Nelson is to enjoy a new office building and central energy system this summer.
