TIME FOR A CHANGE

Everybody who is anxious to see this place go ahead will be glad to learn that the recent attempt to divert the appropriation to finish the wagon road to the canyon towards building trails in the Big Bend district, has failed, the government having decided that the money must be expended on the object for which it was voted or else lapse altogether. The HERALD has a shrewd suspicion that among this number may be reckoned quite a few of those who led away at first rather by their feelings than reason voted to have the appropriation diverted in the manner suggested by Mr. Kellie, but who on calmer consideration are now very glad to know that the wagon road and with it the steamboat service are assured. At the same time those who, like the HERALD, think that considerable money should also be expended this year on trail building in the wealthy mineral country to the north of Revelstoke, may rest assured that Mr. Kellie, who is now at Victoria, will not find the government unwilling to incur an increase of expenditure above the appropriation, if, as of course can, good reasons be shown for its necessity. Mr. Kellie's recent attempt to rob this place of the canyon wagon road was not only an outrage but a totally unnecessary one. The money could have been obtained for this object last session if Mr. Kellie had not been either too modest or too lazy to ask for it and it can be got now, if he goes the right way about it. The root of the whole trouble seems to be that Revelstoke is represented or rather misrepresented by a member, who carries no weight with either side of the house and whose whole available stock of energy seems to be consumed during the vacation in devising petty schemes for the benefit of his supporters and the injury of his opponents. As long as Revelstoke and district are represented by this class of man, so long our business men may expect to be put to considerable trouble and occasionally expense in fighting the battles of this place at Victoria for themselves. So far our member has been found consistently opposition to any project put forward with a view to the progress of Revelstoke. In the matter of the protection of the river bank, of the incorporation of the town, lastly of this canyon road, to mention only recent and salient instances, so far from Mr. Kellie proving of any assistance to the party of progressive ideas in Revelstoke he has always been one of the worst obstacles, which it has had to encounter.

The HERALD would like to draw the attention of the city council to that part of the report of the recent delegation to Victoria which refers to the recent appointments to the police and license commissions in this place. Now, while most strenuously objecting to the principle involved in these appointments and considering that the recommendations of the city council should have been adopted by the executive council of the province in the first place, the HERALD has never given utterance to any objection against the persons nominated, as we now know and as of course was always obvious, by Mr. Kellie for these appointments. With one exception the HERALD considers them good appointments. That one exception is taken not only by the HERALD but by almost everybody else in town, except of course Mr. Kellie and his select advisers. This appointment we are assured, can be upset, if the proper representations are made. The HERALD urges upon the city council the propriety of making them while there is yet time, that is before the 30th day of this month, when the appointments will have to be renewed.

A SUCCESSFUL DELEGATION

An Interview With the Executive Council—The Waggon Road to the Canyon Will be Built—Money Can be Obtained for Trails, if They are Necessary, and, if Properly Applied for.—The Appointments to the Police and License Commissions Here.

Messrs. H. J. Bourne and H. A. Brown, the delegates sent by the business men of Revelstoke, returned from Victoria Sunday morning. They were well pleased with their interview with the members of the executive council, whom they met in a body. They found that a letter had already been sent to Mr. Kellie stating that the money appropriated for the canyon waggon road could not be diverted from the object for which it was voted. The vote for the road had been passed at Mr. Kellie's instance and it would be difficult for the executive to explain to the legislature its diversion to other objects. It would be, in fact impossible to divert it. Even if the money was not spent on the road it would be as difficult to get the same amount to expend on trails as if the appropriation was actually used on the road. If proper representations for their necessity were made it would be still possible for Mr. Kellie to get money to expend on trails in the Big Bend district. Mr. Cotton had already written to Mr. Kellie stating that the special appropriation for the wagon road could not be diverted from its specific purpose. Mr. Hume, being asked, stated that he considered the wagon road a necessity, and that knowing the river as he did, he did not consider that the canyon could have been made navigable with the small amount of money which had been spent on it. In his estimation, having done business up there for some years, the only way to open up the Big Bend was by a wagon road to the head of the canyon and steamboat connection above. Once it was opened up in this way, trails would become necessary. The executive assured the delegates that the money would be spent for that purpose for which it was voted.

With regard to the recent appointments to the license and police commissions here Mr. Martin stated that they had been made at the direct request of Mr. Kellie. It was supposed by the executive that he had recommended persons who were acceptable to the people of Revelstoke. The commissions would expire on June 30th and if the appointments made at Mr. Kellie's recommendation were not acceptible to the people, proper representations should be made to have them altered. Otherwise they would be renewed.

The delegates were most courteously received and left the executive chamber thoroughly satisfied with the results of their interview.

DOMINION DAY

Excursion to St. Leon Hot Springs Arranged by the Methodist Sunday School.

The committee of the Methodist church Sunday school have arranged to hold a picnic excursion to the St. Leon Hot Springs on Dominion Day. An invitation is extended to the Presbyterian church Sunday school to attend in a body and to all children. Transportation for children under 14 free. A cheap rate will be arranged for adults. The excursion will leave town at 8 a.m. and return at about 7 o'clock in the evening, giving several hours at the springs. The Revelstoke Brass Band has consented to give their services for the day.

DISALLOWED

The Anti-Japanese Act Interfered With by the Dominion

OTTAWA, Ont., June 5.—An order-in-council has been passed disallowing the anti-Japanese legislation in British Columbia. The Semlin-Martin government refused to amend the act as desired by Imperial authorities, stating that it would impede desirable immigration to permit an influx of Japanese and would operate to the detriment of the laboring classes. The main bill only has been disallowed. The companies bills, of which there are a number, will remain in operation.

Mining Matters in the Lardeau

Dave Cowan and John Hickman leave today to commence work on the Lucky Four, a group of claims situated on Boulder creek, about seven miles from Trout Lake.

Work will be commenced on the Silver Queen in the course of a few days. Dave Cowan received orders to continue the work of crosscutting just as soon as he could get supplies to the property.

J. W. Westfall, superintendent for the Old Gold & Primrose Mining Co., came in this week from Rossland. He will commence work on two of the company's property, and will use a largely increased force of men. The properties the work will be done on are two of the finest strikes made in the district.

Messrs. Morrison, McCord and Johnson have given an option for 30 days on the John L. Group to Jas. Dixon of Vancouver. The value placed on the property is $20,000.

The Silver Belt group, on Brown's creek, west of the south fork of the Lardeau river and upon the famous Silver Cup ledge, will be actively worked the coming summer. The owners, H. H. Johnstone and M. H. Dobie, of Rossland, and G. K. Morton, St. Thomas, Ont., will be associated with eastern capitalists as a syndicate, to develop, survey and crown grant the three claims and incorporate a company, the properties being meantime vested in trustees.—Trout Lake Topic.

Leaving the Country

KASLO, June 1.—On to-day's train there were 120 passengers, the largest number the train has brought in for some time. They were mostly miners from Whitewater and Sandon who are on their way out of the country. All the mines in the district shut down today letting out their men, the greater part of these are going to the Cœur d'Alenes, Montana and Colorado, while some will remain here doing assessment work and waiting for the mines to open up again. A good many of the miners were in favor of accepting the $3 and going back to work, but the majority wanted to fight for their demanded rights, so it was decided to refuse the offer of the mine owners. Kaslo is full of idle miners at present as a result.

OUTFIT FOR TETE JAUNE CACHE

Leaving Golden by Boat and Pack Train—A Bridge Built Across Wood River—A Live Member Makes a Live District.

The first pack train of ten horses, carrying about a ton of supplies, went out this morning for Tete Jaune Cache. This comprised Sprott's and Deacon's outfit. Another party will start tomorrow and further parties will follow almost daily. The large party being sent by W. G. Mitchell-Innes will leave Golden on Sunday morning. The boat has been completed and launched on the Kicking Horse. She is named the Good Luck and will be in command of Capt. Hatch who will take her down the Columbia to Beaver. A carload of supplies has been shipped to Beaver, and this and other boats sent by rail will be loaded up there and taken down on the Columbia river. The pack trains will meet the boats at Surprise Rapids and portage the supplies there. After being lowered through the rapids the boat will again load up and take the supplies to the rapids below the lake where they will again unload to the pack train. This plan of operation will have the advantage that it will lighten the travel for the horses, especially over the snow-clad summit between Donald and Bush river.

F. Holiday, Morin and party will start on Monday. Fred's services as an experienced prospector have been in demand in packing up in a suitable way for the trip the supplies derived from the different merchants. He has also been commissioned by the government to build a bridge over Wood river. As this has been a dangerous crossing the work will be a great convenience to the gold seekers traveling the trail.

Frank Berthiaume is taking the two government boats that will be placed on Bush river down with him. The boats are being shipped to Beaver and will be taken down the river from there.

A relief party has been sent out with supplies from Donald to meet Archdeacon McKay on his return from the Cache.

The Slocan Closes Down

The Nelson Tribune's reporter at New Denver writes as follows, under date of Friday last:

Thursday marked the inception of the first struggle in this camp between capital and labor. Apart from the fact that that there were a few more men in town, no one would be aware that a determined contest was on between organized forces, or that anything unusual was taking place. Throughout the various towns there is no perceptible excitement and not the slightest indication of trouble. Almost all the mines have closed down and the skilled labor is idle. The exceptions which follow suit on June 12th, when the eight hour law comes into force. The cessation of work applies to the underground work mainly, for several properties are continuing surface development. Many of the men are heading for the Lardeau-Duncan country, where they will spend the summer prospecting. In the towns, however, one can notice a contraction in business circles and the merchants are complaining of deteriorating sales. Some of the hotel keepers in the camp are favoring the closing of their dining rooms so as not to incur the expense of holding up the men. Luckily, however, these advocates are few in number and the men will find universal good treatment as in days of yore. It is reported that the mine owners have given warning to the men on their respective staffs refusing to sign the new schedule that they will not get another chance for employment when the wage question is settled. No farmers from Manitoba or Ontario have yet made their appearance to take the place of the men on strike.

The Story of a Broken Pledge

VICTORIA, June 3.—A violent altercation between ministers Martin and Cotton took place yesterday at a private interview between the members of a Vancouver delegation and the executive respecting Deadman's Island, and though the delegation pledged themselves to secrecy as to the proceedings, a story of an unseemly row has leaked out, together with other information. As one delegate put it, Martin simply made a rag of Cotton, charging him with rank disloyalty to Vancouver, of which Martin proclaimed himself the champion. He freely revealed details of the proceeding of recent cabinet meetings, and, it is said, virtually gave Cotton the lie. Semlin seemed greatly distressed at Martin's violence and repeatedly begged him to be more temperate, but the attorney-general took no notice of the premier's remonstrances.

Tragedy on the Lake of Clouds

LAGGAN, Alberta, June 3.—(via Seattle).—Between 25 and 30 Indians, including men, women and children, were today drowned in the Lake of Clouds, near the Canadian Pacific Railway, which crosses the reservation, while coming to attend a potlatch. They were travelling in boats, rudely manufactured of caribou skins, when two long boats collided. Both vessels were rendered useless and the entire party lost. A third vessel, bearing skins of deer, bear, mountain sheep and goats, and manned by four Indians, reached the spot as the last survivor slipped from the capsized boat and disappeared in the glacier-fed waters of the lake. Dense clouds were resting over the surface of the lake and were responsible for the accident.

Miners! Steer Clear of the Slocan

The following has been received, duly authenticated, at the Vancouver World office:

"Owing to a reduction in miners' wages, caused by the enforcement of the eight hour law, the miners are all idle and the mines are shut down, therefore all working men are warned to keep away from the Slocan and Kootenay country, B.C., until present troubles are amicably settled between the mine owners and miners."

Sec. Sandon Miners' Union.

A PEACE OFFERING

At last the attention of the Dominion cabinet has been drawn to the unfavorable state that the Liberal party in Winnipeg and Manitoba is rapidly falling into. The immense energy the various Conservative organizations in that province have been devoting to preparations for the coming elections, and the great headway that they have made, have forced the cabinet to consider what policy of conciliation it would be best to pursue.

Of course the Hon. J. Israel Tarte comes to the fore at once. Bribery pure and simple is what he suggests. He has spent millions of the public money in Quebec to hold that province to its allegiance; surely the same policy will pay in Manitoba. Accordingly he assists his colleagues to furbish up their memory of pre election pledges and triumphantly hits upon the St. Andrews Rapids scheme. Just the thing for Manitoba, says Tarte, and prepares to spend some more of the public money in an attempt to secure the province to the Liberal party. It is now announced that some $200,000 will be spent this year on clearing the rapids and a further sum of $500,000 will be included in the estimates next year.

There can be no doubt as to the benefit that this scheme will bring to Winnipeg and the province of Manitoba at large. But why has the performance been delayed so long, and why has it been decided on at so suspicious a moment? Why have the promises given in pre-election days in 1896 not been carried out until the eve of the provincial elections is at hand and a bye-election is pending? While the people of Manitoba will no doubt be glad that the Rapids are at last to be cleared, yet they will have the sense to see that this is merely a sop thrown to appease their just wrath and will therefore not allow their opposition to the government to be undermined by it. The expenditure of public money for the public benefit is one of the duties of government, but when it becomes a case of using such expenditure for party ends it is a time to speak out boldly and call a halt.

The redistribution bill now before parliament may be all right as far as it applies to Ontario, but it fails to give additional representation either to Alberta or any part of Western Canada and for that reason is defective. The Vancouver World (Liberal) puts up a strong kick because the claims of the mainland of B. C. have been ignored, and there is an equally vigorous protest coming from the western half of the Territories. If there was any justification whatever for a redistribution bill it is to be found right here, and yet the government has turned us down in cold blood.

GOOD ACT

The bill introduced into the Dominion house on Saturday last by Sir Henry Joly to amend the wheat inspection act is an important one, and will have good results on wheat export from Canada. It provides that after September 1, 1899, all Manitoba and Ontario, west of Port Arthur, shall be formed into one district, with the same inspectors doing duty. All grain exported from the Territories passing through Winnipeg or Emerson en route east, shall be inspected at these points and shall be placed in elevators only as graded at those points except in certain cases when through congestion of traffic it may be necessary to send the grain to Fort William to be inspected.

The grades shall be fixed by the 1st day of November in each year and samples of the grades are to be supplied by the inspector, on demand, a certificate to accompany each sample, and a charge to be made for same as approved by the minister of inland revenue.

Particular precautions are provided for preventing the mixing of grades in an elevator. Should the inspector find that the wheat in any elevator is being reduced in quality below that of the public elevators he must see that no such wheat shall pass inspection except on a lower grade.

The bill seems to be framed with the intention of keeping up the grades of western wheat, and, as such, should meet with the support of our western members. It is but too well known that in the past the grades have not always been of even quality, and it is of vital importance to the country that they should be kept up to the highest standard.

It is a peculiar thing that the American proposal to the peace conference to regard all sick and wounded in battle as neutrals has been opposed by the czar's representatives. Perhaps he regards the best way to insure peace is to kill off the soldiers. Such a refusal is more worthy of the half civilized Filipinos than the ruler of a great European empire.

The list of winning mounts in Great Britain is headed by Madden with 43, Sam Loates is next with 41, Tom Loates 39, Tom Cannon 38, Tod Sloan and Rickaby a tie with 32. Sloan rode 16 consecutive losers.

Dr. Dawson, of the Dominion geological survey, states that while petroleum has not been found at Athabasca, indications at Egg and Pelican lakes in Northern Alberta were such as to justify a further prosecution of the search.

The Richmond Guardian, dealing with the gerrymander, instances four counties under the new bill—Brant, Norfolk, Parry Sound and Kent—for which eight members are allowed for 127,931 population, or one member for every 15,991 people. Another set of counties—Simcoe, Welland and Toronto—have eight members for a population of 280,244, or one for each 35,655 people. Why is it, asks the Guardian, that the first eight members will each represent 15,991 people, and that the second eight will each represent more than twice that number. The answer is obvious. The first eight will represent Liberal constituencies, and the second eight Conservative constituencies.

To obtain rapidly the knowledge of the value of reefs or ledges nothing is to be compared with the Diamond Core Drill, which will prove more in 30 days than an outfit of men tunnelling or sinking shafts could prove in ten years.
The Diamond Core Drill can pierce the mountains and take the secret of what it contains from their very hearts, and the more solid the rock formation, the quicker it will do its work.
The Diamond Core Drill is so constructed that it can be taken to pieces and packed on the backs of horses and carried and worked almost inaccessible places where water can be obtained,—and it be in almost any part of British Columbia.

STRIKERS CAUSE TROUBLE

Grand Orange Lodge Decide to Bar Liquor Dealers

The French Race Horse Holocaust Shot Yesterday

Paris, June 1.—There was a grave crisis here yesterday, but the republic stands on a firmer foundation than ever before. Without any excitement, turmoil, or the necessity of police interference, the public heard the procurator general, M. Manau, conclude his address before the court of cassation, a speech in which he proclaimed the innocence of Dreyfus, wherein he declared that the famous bordereau had been written by Major Esterhazy. Dreyfus is certain to have a new trial.

SLDIERS ACQUITTED

Paris, June 1.—Deroulede and Habert, on trial on the charge of inciting the soldiers to insubordination in connection with the election of President Loubet, were acquitted today.

WAR AND PEACE

The Hague, June 1.—Both sections of the disarmament committee met today, but failed to agree with regard to the question of new inventions of armaments.

NO LIQUOR FOR THEM

Toronto, June 1—The Grand Orange lodge of British America yesterday decided after a warm debate and upon a pretty close vote, that for the future no persons engaged in the manufacture or sale of spirituous liquor may become members of an Orange lodge.

A MISSING COON

Vancouver, June 1.—A St. Louis colored man named Scott, en route to this city, where he intended to join the Curtis Company of Jubilee singers, which sails for Australia tomorrow, jumped from the train near Calgary on Monday night, and is now believed to have been killed as no word concerning him has been received by Curtis.

STRIKERS GIVE MORE TROUBLE

Buffalo, N. Y., June 1.—The trouble on the docks here has broken out again. Last night at 6 o'clock 2,500 freight handlers quit work claiming the contractors were violating the contract which was signed when the men resumed work last week. The strikers held a meeting later, and it was announced that the grain shovellers would quit work today if the freight handlers' grievances were not remedied.

WHY THE RACE WAS LOST

London, June 1.—In the Derby race yesterday the French horse Holocauste, Sloan up, broke his fetlock joint and had to be shot. Some think he might have won, but for this accident.

CANADIAN MARKSMEN

Ottawa, June 1.—This season's Bisley team will assemble at Montreal on June 23rd and sail next day.

ALARMING REPORTS DENIED

London, June 1.—The British Medical Journal today says it has the best authority for stating that the alarmist reports in regard to Queen Victoria's eyesight are erroneous and the rumors of a contemplated operation are mere inventions.

WELSHMEN IN CANADA

The Cardiff (Wales) Western Mail says in connection with a photograph of some Welsh settlers in Alberta, which it publishes:

"The persons in the photograph are Mr. Thomas Smith, Mrs. Smith, Miss Smith, Mr. D. J. Roberts, Mrs. Roberts and child, Mr. James and Mrs. James, and Mr. J. Scard. Mr. Smith went out with the first Welsh party to 'Crow's Nest' and after braving the hardships (which have been fully described already in the columns of The Western Mail) now finds himself in a comparatively independent position. Mr. Smith is a bright example of what pluck and perseverance will accomplish in Western Canada. The photograph shows him in a comfortable home. He is shift boss at Fernie. Like a canny Welshman, Mr. Smith does not say much to directly encourage his countrymen to follow his example, preferring to allow them to infer from his own successful career as to what may be done by industry in that country. It is Mr. Smith's intention eventually to settle on the land and to take to farming. From what I can gather from his letters it will not be long ere he acquires sufficient capital to enable him to do this. Mr. Smith, Mrs. Parry continued, "is not the only successful Welsh emigrant; all those who have persevered are succeeding beyond expectation."

"Are there any others you could Welsh emigrants now in Canada who left your district?"

"There are many——"

"Can you give definite instances?"

"Yes, of course. Mr. Heath is perhaps, the most striking I know of. He left Wales with the first Welsh party in indifferent health, asthma being his trouble. He was only occasionally able to work when in this country. His complaint has been entirely cured in Canada. He sent money to pay the passage of his two sons. He has acquired a comfortable residence in Canmore, which he has furnished and fully paid for, and the rest of his family are leaving very shortly. What is wanted to succeed is a little patience and perseverance. All who remain for a year are well satisfied; that is long enough to find out what the country is."

"Are there any other you could mention?"

"Yes, there are numbers, and I may say their wives have reason to be thankful that this is the case, for during the strike they were receiving good money from their husbands in Canada, while their neighbors were really in want. I hung the photograph (produced above) in my window, but so large a crowd gathered round that I was obliged to withdraw it."

Vancouver, B. C., June 2.—Death has removed Bishop Durieu, the Roman Catholic bishop at New Westminster. His demise occurred at 2 o'clock yesterday morning at the Episcopal palace at New Westminster. MISSING CHILD FOUND

Garnerville, N. Y., June 2.—Marion Clark, the 21 month old infant kidnapped from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Clark, of New York city, on May 21st, has been found two miles south of Sloatsburg, a village about eight miles from here. BOATING FATALITY

Little Current, June 2.—A boat containing Fred Willis, his wife, two children and John Griffith was capsized near the mouth of Whitefish river this morning, drowning Mr. Willis and both children.

NEWS FROM CANOE RIVER

Golden, May 31.—(Special)—Word reached town yesterday of the first fatality among those who have gone to the new gold fields on Canoe river.

L. Michet, a young man of Swiss extraction, was drowned by the upsetting of a boat in which he and a companion, named Totton, were in. The other members of the party not being able to assist. This party left Golden the first week of May.

Several parties of gold seekers leave this week for the Canoe river district by trail, taking their supplies on ponies.

Steps are being taken to send a representative of the provincial government to Canoe river, which will be a move in the right direction, as at present all business connected with claims has to be transacted at Golden.

There is every likelihood of several properties near here passing shortly into the hands of companies who will develop them, which will do much to establish the claim of North East Kootenay as one of the best districts in Britsh Columbia.

La Minerve, the French Conservative organ in Montreal, has suspended publication. It is understood that a new morning French Conservative paper will be established shortly with plenty of capital behind it. Joseph Royal is mentioned as its editor.

The treasury in England has decided not to proceed against Hooley, the meteoric company promoter, on the charges of fraud laid against him.

Paderewski, the "inconsolable widower" has been secretly wedded to Ellen Gorski, the divorced wife of a famous violinist.

The Fitzsimmons-Jeffries fight is to take place on the evening of June 3rd. The pugilists will fight 25 rounds instead of 20.

OUT OF THE MOUTHS OF BABES.

[BY JULIA CRAWFORD UNDERWOOD.]

What led Herr Schweppe to join the Amanites, no one knew but the elders. The Amanites did not gossip about it. They were not given to gossiping about anything. Work, duty, God—these were all their thoughts. But the visitors to the close-lying Amana villages seldom failed to notice that Herr Schweppe was a gentleman and wonder how he came to joint the Amanites, with their plain clothes and lives of toil. The mystery was hid in the books of the elders. There was once a visitor who claimed that he had a glimpse of the page and saw "Bismarck" writen twice on Herr Schweppe's record. The name was Von Schweppe, too, this visitor said, though it was only Schweppe now.

Be that as it may, Herr Schweppe's daughter, Annie, bore the traits of noble German bith. She was a darkhaired, dark-eyed maid, appearing among the other girls of the community like a bit of Sevres ware surrounded by pieces of useful but homely plain china. Little did the thrifty, godly Amanites care for such beauty. In Amana a yard of blue calico was accounted as worth far more than a dimple.

The sorrows of exile killed Herr Schweppe when Annie was a child, before she had grown so beautiful. Annie had never seen a mirror, and no one told her of her beauty. Her mother gloated over it in secret. She loved Annie far better than the elders would have ever sanctioned, but when the child was near she was silent and cold. The life of repression had had its effects on poor Mother Schweppe.

In Amana the elders discouraged love-making. Men and women entered the church by different doors, and a line of sawdust-box cuspidores marked off the men's side of the house. But among the girls at Amana Gasthaus were two persons who did not have the law of Amana in their hearts. They were not Amana girls, but came from the outside, for no Amanite would have perimtted his daughter to be subjected to the gaze of the strangers in the Gasthaus. It was Madge and Nora, alas! who put all the mischief into Annie's mind.

June moonlight was falling over the yellow wheat fields, and the fragrance of grapevine blossoms on the wall half intoxicated Annie as she leaned out of the square window next the slanting roof of her mother's cottage. It was while Annie was thinking of the land that might lie outside of Amana that Madge and Nora came along and asked her to go with them to their "party." And Annie stole away and went.

A ghostly little "party" it was, of Madge and Nora and Annie and only three others, in the hotel kitchen, and as they sat in the glare of the oil lamp reflector it seemed to Annie the wildest dissipation. Two sheepish young Amanites slouched on the bench at one side of the kitchen, nervously pulling their straw hats over their faces if anyone glanced at them. The third man was entirely unlike these. Annie, big-eyed and timorous, gazed at him in wonder. He wore such clothes as fitted him; his ruddy hair was brushed back from his ears, not over them as was the fashion of the Amanites. His face was cleanly shaven, his figure lithe and sinewy, and his merry eyes roved hither and thither while he regaled the company with music. It was a mouth organ which he played but no matter. To Annie it was heavenly. She had never before heard music of any kind, for the Amanites attached a penalty to even whistling. Suddenly Annie trembled and sobbed, and the player, conscience-smitten ceased his melody.

He was not a great stranger to her, as Annie had thought. He had, not so very many years ago, worn the blue jeans and straw hats of the community. He was no other than Hermann, the son of Herr Tappan, whom Annie had often seen in church when a child. Herr Tappan had been permitted by the community to send his son away to a college, for Hermann was to be the physician of the community, their Herr Doctor, as they called him.

Hermann understood the timidity of Annie. He, too, had once been restrained till all his thoughts were sadness. He bade the girls take her at once to her mother's cottage, and he watched them all till Annie had disappeared through the window.

But why should the young Herr Doctor come to Mother Schweppe's cottage next day, asking for the famous wine for his patients?

"Knowest thou not that I have disposed of it long before this time?" cried Motner Schweppe.

"I thought perhaps you might be making it again," faltered Hermann.

"Make wine in June. What sort of a man?" and Mother Schweppe laughed loudly and unmelodiously, much as one of her cabbages might have laughed.

And while her dull eyes were closed in mirth, Hermann crushed into Annie's hand a bit of paper and Annie, child though she was, hid herself among the grape vines before she dared open it.

"Thou art most beautiful; I love thee." That was all.

After that it was easy for Annie to climb down by the grapevine from her window, and once she went alone with Hermann far down the solitary railway track. But Madge loved Hermann, too, in her way, and being jealous she told Annie's mother.

The next day the elders came to Mother Schweppe's house. No one smiled, and the interview was full of long silences. Annie was taken down the street, an elder in front of her and an elder behind her. They put her in a house, far away from her mother, and gave her a double portion of work. Hermann, too was taen into a cloister, though he went laughing.

Six months' separation, six months' fasting, prayer and hard work was required, and if after that ordeal the two wished still to be married, the elders would consider the matter. A week passed. Hermann and Annie had sat in their places at the morning service, and it chanced that they, with meekly folded hands, emerged from the two doors of the church at the same moment. Suddenly each one advanced to the other. They met and walked away together. The elders were so astounded that for a moment no one could speak. There had never been such an audacious breach of the rules. Even the most venerable members of the community were dumfounded.

The whistle of an approaching train awoke them to action. "Disobedience" the chief elder cried, and all the elders hurried down to the railway station. Here they found Hermann and Annie impenitent and defiant. There was brief storm of angry words.

"We give you but one year to consider," said the longfaced chief elder. "You may never show your faces here again if you come not back within the year."

"Thou, Hermann, leavest thy aged father, and thou, Annie, thy mother," said another more kindly.

Annie looked down at her blue calico gown and her rough shoes. "What have they done for us?" she cried.

They ascended the steps of the car. "Give them goodby!" called Hermann, petulantly. "We come back no more." And the train pulled away.

"All the world loves a lover," said Herr Tappan to Mother Schweppe, sadly, "but the lover loves no one but himself and his sweetheart."

So Hermann and Annie went to the city. They were happy, and there seemd to be no ghosts at their fireside. "Father and mother think more of their carrots than they do of us," they would say merrily when they spoke of Amana at all.

In May their baby was born. He was a beautiful child and Hermann and Annie never tired of watching him. Hermann could scarcely tear himself away from baby to attend his patients. Contagious diseases he refused to treat. Baby might catch them. Annie's face grew softer as she looked at the child. For hours they would amuse themselves watching him clasp a leadpencil in his chubby fingers. They cut off a lock of baby's hair and saved it in the Bible.

"Whom does the baby look like, Annie?" asked Herman carelessly one day.

"Like you when you were a baby. I suppose," answered Annie gaily. Suddenly a startled look came into her eyes. The same thought came to Hermann at the same moment. He dropped on his knees before the child. "Did they think of me as we think of our baby?" he whispered. Annie was sobbing, "God may yet forgive us," she cried. "The year is not ended. We may still return."

The good Lord had not ended Mother Schweppe's life. Herr Tappan, too, was still trudging among his vegetables, when Hermann and Annie came back.

"It would have been a year tomorrow already," Herr Tappan said stolidly; but his withered lips went trembling, and he embraced Hermann and Annie and blessed them.

And Mother Schweppe paddled back to her cellar with a sly smile, returning full-handed. "I have all this time since last autumn kept six bottles of wine for thee,

MANUFACTURE OF PULP WOOD.

The Forests of the Territories Afford a Limitless Supply of Raw Material.

The manufacture of pulp is an industry which will ultimately become a leading one of Canada. In several places in the east it is carried on extensively, and the output finds ready sale in the United States and Europe, making a profitable return to the producers. The far west offers an advantageous field for similar enterprises. Here are illimitable stretches of spruce and poplar forests along the foothills from the boundary to beyond Peace river, and these forests extend up into the mountains. This material, which could easily be converted into money, is yearly going to waste. It is of little use to the lumberman and is not spared by him in getting out timber which are useful to him. It is slashed out of the way, it is recklessly destroyed and ever year fire plays havoc among it. Yet this material has grown to have a monetary value which places it among the most valuable items of the wealth of the forest. Americans cannot get enough of it and when the exportation of logs from Ontario was permitted many million feet of spruce and poplar were floated across the lakes to supply the pulp factories on the other side of the line, where the pulp making industry is the most profitable one. There is more of the raw material in Canada than anywhere else adn Canadians, having had their eyes opened to the important position they hold in this respect are preparing to take advantage of the situation and glean for themselves the rewards which await enterprise in this direction. The West seems particularly well fitted for manufactories of this kind. There are serviceable water powers to be had on many of the rivers in the Territories, sufficient to run large plants, and at the same time furnish waterways down which to float the raw materialf rom the hills. Even if these powers did not exist there is plenty of cheap coal which would admit of the application of steam power at small expense.

There are extensive spruce and poplar forests in the Crow's Nest Pass near the railway and adjacent to the greatest coal deposit on the continent. These forests extend along the mountain sides for miles and formerly were looked upon as possessing little value but now they are known to represent much wealth. Here are the raw material, the coal and the railway side by side and where could anyone seeking a location for a pulp manufactory find a more favorable combination than that. Calgary is another point where pulp making could be engaged in with every prospect of success. In the mountains to the west is plenty of pulp wood which could be brought in by train or floated down the Bow river. There is a splendid water supply at this point and the pulp could be manufactured into paper on the spot. There are great quantities of paper of all kinds consumed annually in Manitoba and the Territories alone, not to sneak of what is required in British Columbia. Great quantities are exported to Australia, but most of it is sent from Portland to Vancouver and thence shipped to Melbourne and Sydney. There is no good reason why Canadians should not have this trade or a share of it.

Round about Edmonton, too, and for many miles up the Saskatchewan river there are vast areas from which pulp wood could be taken in any quantity. There is also cheap coal at this point and the manufacture of pulp should be carried on on the North Saskatchewan at a profit. The United States and European markets will take all the pulp that can be sent them at prices which pay the mills. The process of manufacture is not difficult, nor is the machinery costly, and it should be an industry to attract capital. There are no statistics available as to the extent of the spruce and poplar forests in the Territories and they should be collected by the land department for the information of the public.

MINING REGULATIONS

Conditions Governing the Taking up of Claim by Miners.

The holder of a free miner's certificate who has discovered mineral in place, may locate a claim not exceeding 1500 feet long by 1500 wide, by marking it with two legal posts, one at each end, on the line of hit lode, or vein, and marking out the line between them. Upon each post shall be marked the name of the claim, the name of the person locating and the date, and the number of feet lying to the right and left of the line.

The claim shall be recorded with the mining recorder of the district within which it is situated, within 15 days after the location thereof, if located within 10 miles of the office of the recorder; one additional mile shall be allowed for such record for ever additional 10 miles or fraction thereof. In the event of a claim being more than 100 miles from a recorder's office and situated where other claims are being located, the free miners, not less than five in number, may appoint a free miner's recorder, but if the latter fails within three months to notify the nearest government mining recorder of his appointment, the claims which he may have recorded will be cancelled.

The fee for recording a claim is $5.

An expenditre of not less than $100 per year must be made on the claim, or a like amount paid to the mining recorder in lieu thereof. When $500 has been expended or paid in connexion with the location, the locator may, upon having a survey thereof made and upon complying with certain other requirements, purchase the land at the rate of per acre cash, but if the surface rights have already been disposed of, at $2 per acre.

THE LION'S CLAW

From the French of Francois Coppee.

Lieutenant Julien de Rhe had returned in a sad state from the his station in Cochin China. Convalescent, after three months' illness at his mother's home in Touraine he shivered at the first wintry breath in the autumn air, and was ordered by the doctor to Pau: "Just what you want— mild but bracing climate."

So in mid-November Julien sat in his sunny window in Hotel Garderes, gazed at the Pyrenees and smoking a cigarette in honor of his recovery.

"My faith! Pau is full of pretty women" he said to himself the first time he went to listen to the military band at the Place Royale. Neither libertine nor fop, the young fellow thrilled with fresh joy in living as he put on his coat with its Legion of Honor in the button hole— the rosette his mother laid on his bed when he was so ill, and that he thought he would only wear it in his coffin.

How jolly Pau was anyhow, with its vast horizon, its snowy peaks, its brilliant sun, the cosmopolitan crowd, where pretty foreigners chattered all the languages of Europe, like tropic birds in an aviary. A few sad sights, to be sure—the consumptive young Englishman in a bath chair, wrapped in plaids, with the eyes of a boiled fish, a black taffeta muffler over his mouth. It gave one a shiver, yet—man is so selfish—it made Julien remember what a skeleton he had been three months ago, and here he was cured, tossing silver coins to the beggars and watching the hearty little American girls in flyaway frocks and black gloves and stockings, dancing a "ring-around-a-rosy" to the band's quickstep.

Just the frame of mind for falling in love, wasn't it? Which the happy convalescent proceeded to do the first time he set eyes on Mlle. Olga Barbarine, the belle of the Russian colony, as she dismounted in front of Hotel Gasson—the coup de foudre, in fact. Back from fox hunting one evening at 5, she had slipped from her horse into th arms of the nimblest of her pink-coated adorers who rushed for her stirrup. Striking the veranda table with her crop she had called for a cup of milk, and drank it off at a draught. Looking like a Primaticcio goddess, her slim figure and copper-colored hair illuminated by the flaring sunset, she paused, laughed merrily, a creamy mustache on her upper lip. Suddenly grave, with a curt, imperious nod she left the redcoats and entered the hotel, tapping her riding habit with her whip.

Three days after, after many a "Who is she? I must know her!" to his acquaintances, Julien got himself introduced—not a difficult process—and joined the fair Russian's court.

Was she a Russian, after all, this intoxicating creature, who rode all day and waltzed all night? Yes, by her putative father, her mother's first husband, Count Barbarine.

But every one remembered that at the time of Olga's birth, her mother—the daughther, by the way, of a New York banker named Jacobson—was getting a divorce, probably on account of her notorious liaison with a northern prince royal, some Christian, or Oscar, or other. What was the nationality of a child brought up successively in a Scottish nursery; a Neapolitan conent; a Genevan pensionnat; was had slept helf her nights on the cushions of the express, whose memory was a stereoscope in which revolved a series of watering places and winter resorts, whither her mother, handsome still in spite of erysipelas, had carried the ennui of a faded coquette along with her samovar and her pet monkeys. The odd girl used to say, laughing at herself: "I am neither of London, nor of Vienna, nor of Petersburg, nor of Paris—I'm of the table d'hote."

Had she any family? Hardly more so. Her real father, the Oscar or Christian, so often referred to by Mme. Barbarine, had been dead some yeass, and the Russian count, her legal father, never bothered his head about her. Utterly bankrupt, a civilized Leather-Stocking, who won at the pigeon matches, his unerring gun gave him a living. The countess, in spite of her periodical attacs of maternal devotion, painfully holow, was gifted with one of the perfect, absolute, spherical egotisms that never show a flaw; when Olga at 8 had almost died of typhoid, Mme. Barbarine, of the white hands—for the saks of decency sitting up with her child—did not for once forget to put on her gants gras.

All this De Rhe learned after enlisting in the flying squadron that manoeuvered about the fair Olga. He began to love the strange girl who let him look into her eyes and who said to him, as she lit a pheresli cigarette, the day a friend presented him: "A... You are the man who is so much in love with me. How do you do?" Giving him a hearty handshake like a man. The sailor, truehearted fellow that he was, loved her the more he grew to understand and pity her. For he was right; Olga was fantastic, ill brought up, but neither a flirt nor a snob. Feeling, perhaps, the vanity of her life of pleasure, she judged, and that severely, her fox hunting adorers and her cotillion partners. All desired her, none esteemed her—none had made her an offer of marriage. So she pulled them up short if they ventured to speak too close to her ear in the whirl of the waltz, or pressed too long the hand she held out to them en camarade.

Julien, sensitive and discerning, discovered the secret high-heartedness of the "thoroughbred" as Olga was called. He loved her, too, for her beauty of course; and his head would swim when, at a pause in the dance, the auburnhaired goddess, with black eyes and the tea rose skin would lean on his arm and would intoxicate him with her starry gaze and violet breath. But he loved her above all for her sufferings, so proudly hidden. How his heart ached when he caught the sombre look Olga turned on her mother at afternoon tea, when Mmes. Barbarine, seated with the light discreetly beind her, evoked her royal conquests in northern courts.

He would marry her, snatch her out of this poisonous air, take her to his own saintly mother, show her a true family—save her. He sometimes ancied Olfga understood his purpose; as she handed him hi glass of Russian tea he thought he now and then caught, deep in her eyes, a gentle light that seemed to answer to his generous pity.

"Yes, mademoiselle, my leave is up next week. I leave Pau tomorrow and after a few days with my sister at Touraine, I shall go to Brest. In a year I shall be at sea again."

They were standing in the hotel writing room, near the open window, with its palpitating night sky.

"Good bye then, and bon voyage," said Olga in her frank firm voice. "But you must give me a little keepsake— that lion's claw you wear as a watch charm— a trophy of an African lion hunt did you say? It appels to the fierce and free in me, you know."

Julien took off the charm and put it into the gril's fingers. Suddenly grasping her hand in both of his, ardently, "I love you—will you be my wife?"

Olga freed herself, keeping the lion's claw, foldede her arms she looed at him apparently unmoved. "No, no; and yet you are the first to love me, and tell me so in that good way. That's why I refuse you."

"Olga," cried Julien in a choked voice.

"Listen to me and I will explain. I am not worthy of you you would be unhappy with me. You remember your sister's letter that you said you had lost? Well, I picked it up here and read it. She replied to the confidence you had made her of your love for me—a love I had long guessed. Her words showed me the vast difference between a true simple girl and me. And I saw, too, what a real family is—your family. Be grateful for the mother you have, M. de Rhe. I have a mother, too, but I have been forced to judge her. You have seen only her ridiculous sides, but I know her better. She would refuse you my hand because you are only of the gentry and in modern circumstances. She has decided that either I am to make a brilliant match—or—she will find something else. I know a lot, don't I, for a girl of 19? Horrible, isn't it? But it's true. That's why last winter we were at Nice, last summer at Scheveninghen, now at Pau. That's why we are rolling like trunks from one end of Europe to the other. Mamma was almost a princess royal, you see; and from 15 I've been given to understand that I was meant for an arch duchess at least, even if a left handed one. Marry a mere gentleman, almost a bourgeois! Ah! you are disgusted and I'm ashamed of myself. Do not protest. Besides I am expensive and useless, and you don't need me and I wouldn't make you happy—and I don't love you. Love is in the things that I've always been forbidden. Good bye. Get up and go away without a word. But leave me your lion's claw to remind me of the honest fellow whom I've treated honestly. Adieu!"

Three years later, one stormy night, the transport Du Couedic, back from Senongal, stopped at the Canaries to take on the mail. A package of papers was tossed into the officer's mess. De Rhe seated there, opened a three weeks' old Paris sheet, and under the heading of "Arrivals" read the following:

"H. M. the King of Suabia, in the strictest incognito, as Duke of Augsburg, is once more among us. An unfortunate accident occurred at the station. The Baronne de Hall, who, accompanied b her mother, Comtesse Barbarine, was travelling with his majesty, suddenly missed an ornament of small value but to which Mme. de Hall is, it seems, greatly attached—a lion's claw mounted in a golden circlet. Mme de Hall has offered 2000 francs for its recovery."

"My dear fellow, you'll miss your watch if you don't look sharp."

"Thanks" said Julien, throwing down the paper and springing up as in a dream.

That night the man at the wheel, alone on the bridge with the young officer, saw Julien pass his handkerchief several times over his face—strange, was it not—since, though therew as a stiff breeze, the spray did not reach them.

RAILWAY LAND REGULATIONS.

The Prices at Which Land Can be Got and the Terms of Sale.

Canadian Pacific Railway lands consist of the odd-numbered sections along the main line and branches. Railway lands are for sale at the various agencies of the company in the North West Territories at the following prices:

Lands of Assiniboia, east of the 3rd meridian, average $3 to $4 an acre.

Lands west of the 3rd meridian, including most of the valuable lands in the Calgary district, $3 per acre.

Lands in Saskatchewan, Battle, and Red Deer river districts, $3 per acre.

For the convenience of investors, maps showing in detail the lands and prices, have been prepared and will be sent free to applicants.

The aggregate amount of principal and interest is divided into ten instalments; the first to be paid at the time of purchase, the second two years from the date of purchase, the third in three years and so on.

Interest on the outstanding purchase money is payable in one year from date of purchase except in the case of an actual settler who breaks up at least one-sixteenth of the land within that time. No rebate of interest is allowed on hay lands.

The following table shows the amount of the annual instalments on a quarter section of 160 acres at different prices.

No. Acres	Price Per Acre	First Instal't	Nine equal Instal'ts of
160	$3.00	$ 71.90	$ 60.00
160	3.50	83.90	70.00
160	4.00	95.85	80.00
160	4.50	107.85	90.00
160	5.00	119.85	100.00
160	5.50	131.80	110.00
160	6.00	143.80	120.00

If land is paid for in full at time of purchase a reduction from price will be allowed equal to 10 per cent. on the amount paid in excess of the usual cash instalment.

Interest at 6 per cent will be charged on overdue instalments.

All sales are subject to the following general conditions:

All improvements placed upon land purchased to be maintained thereon until final payment as been made.

All taxes and assessments lawfully imposed upon the land or improvements to be paid by the purchaser.

The company reserves from sale, under the regulations, all mineral and coal lands, and lands containing timber in quantities, stone, slate, and marble quarries, lands with waterpower thereon, and tracts for townsites and railway purposes.

Mineral, coal and timber lands and quarries, and lands controlling waterpower will be disposed of on very moderate terms to persons giving satisfactory evidence of their intention and atilit to utilize same.

Liberal rates orf settlers and their effects are granted by the company over their railway.

Gold is found in the bars and beaches of the Saskatchewan, Macleod, Athabasca, Smoky and other rivers in small but paying quantities. These are known as the "poor man's diggings," and some settlers after seeding when the water is low turn miners and make from $1.50 to $4 per day.

The attendance at St. Peter's church has increased to such an extent as to render the construction of a chancel almost imperative. Dr. Paget has taken the matter in hand and will endeavor to raise funds among his friends in the old country to put up a suitable chancel, as the parish have the erection of a suitable vicarage in hand just now.

Big congregations attended the services in St. Peter church last Sunday. Dr. Paget preached in the morning from the gospel of the day, the parable of Dives and Lazarus, and in the evening took for his subject the stirring appeal of Joshua when taking leave of the children of Israel after successfully guiding them into the promised land, which formed the second lesson appointed for evensong for the day.

The morning service last Sunday in the Methodist church was devoted to the Sunday school children. The church had been beautifully decorated with flowers by the hands of the young people themselves and the service was very hearty and bright, being attended by a large congregation Rev. S. J. Thompson preached a stirring sermon, illustrating the action of sin and the grace of God in the human heart by the effect of certain chemicals on pure water, changing its color to black or white.
