An old timer in British Columbia, who has watched the progress of events in this province for the best part of the last half century, told the HERALD last week that within the next twenty years Kootenay ought to have a population of a million people within its boundaries. This may sound a bold prophecy for a district which today probably contains a population somewhere between fifty and seventy-five thousand, but if one looks back to the progress made by Kootenay within the last ten years and by the whole of British Columbia and western Canada within the past twenty, it does not appear so very extravagant. Twenty years ago Winnipeg was a rising town of some 10,000 people, Manitoba was just commencing to be settled, the Northwest was only known to its own Indians and a handful of traders, missionaries and mounted policemen and British Columbia, though part of the Dominion, was as little known by and had as little to do with "Canada," as the eastern provinces were then universally called in the west, as had the state of Calif. rain. The globe trotter of those days who had taken in our fair capital of Victoria in his wanderings was a travelled man indeed. To the pioneers of western Canada who remember those days and have watched the development of the country since, no forecast for the future can very well seem over sanguine.

It seems to the HERALD that the British Columbia government in deciding to exhaust all its efforts in making a creditable exhibit at the Glasgow exposition next year and to ignore the rival exhibition at Buffalo, is making a mistake, for which we in Kootenay will have as usual to pay the piper. This continual eye to the old country and old country capital is characteristic of Victoria, but it is an attitude not much appreciated in Kootenay. For the purposes of the mining investor, British Columbia is classed with the rest of Western America, and the people who best understand the situation and are best able to make use of it with advantage to themselves and the country are undoubtedly, as is only natural, our worthy cousins "on the other side" of the 49th parallel. Mining investment is with them a matter of business, not a gambling "flutter" or some kind of a fools' game. We want capital badly enough, but want it to be invested on business lines and spent in business methods and as far as the experience of Kootenay goes these lines and methods have been almost exclusively applied by capital in the hands of Canadians and Americans, wherever it originally came from. We prefer in short the Canadian or American mining man to the British company promoter, and it is the attention of the former and not the latter which we want our government to attract to the mineral resources of the district.

"A chiel's amang you! takin' notes" and faith he'll send them to the new mining commission. That is to say that certain of our prominent mining men have been invited by the government through the gold commissioners to present their opinions on the working of the mining acts to that body. Now the mining statutes of this province are pieces of legislation, which if not perfect, are at all events the products of considerable and careful hammering out and the bulk of their provisions have been derived through various sources from the actual customs and ideas of mining men and prospectors themselves. The more they are studied the less appear to be the changes, which it is desirable to make in them. Those that seem to be required are hardly ever the ones which commend themselves to eager theorists in editorial or official chairs at Victoria. In fact the main prayer of the mining men of Kootenay is that for Heaven's sake the legislature shall stop tinkering with the mineral act. There are a few amendments, which might be made, a clause or so struck out, a clause or so altered. The act should be made as favorable to the bona fide prospector and mining man and as discouraging to the claim jumper and mining shyster as possible. Regulations of a vexatious or impossible nature should be struck out or amended. There are one or two of this nature. Beyond that the mining commission, mining committee and legislature had better leave the act severely alone.

Calgary Industrial Exhibition.

In connection with this exhibition tickets will be sold Revelstoke to Calgary and return on Sept. 11th to 15th good to return up to and including the 16th at $7.80 for the round trip. As this is little more than half the one way fare it should ensure a good attendance from here.

Resolved that the city clerk be instructed to again ask the Department of the Interior for Villa Lot 40 for addition to the cemetery, pointing out that several graves are already on the lot in question and that it will be in other respects a desirable addition to the cemetery, particularly as the only means of access is through the lot.

A. H. Holdich came in from the Nettie L. on Sunday. He reports everything in the most satisfactory condition. The vein recently struck in the south drift is now estimated to be the true lead and what has all along been taken for the footwall of the lead is its hanging wall. There is eight feet of concentrating and three feet of solid galena, pyrites and grey copper in the new strike. Sixty tons of ore has been sacked ready for shipment when the snow flies.

Graham presides by a concert and dance with great eclat and a handsome souvenir of the occasion is the programme, a most tasteful and artistic affair, on which among old Revelstokers J. D. Graham figures as gold commissioner and host on the evening, W. H. Vickers as mining recorder on the Dalton Trail and W. G. Paxton as one of the dance committee. The new building is a smaller edition of the one familiar to Revelstokers on Government Hill.

THE REVELSTOKE CONVENTION

Several Candidates Who Would Like to Go to Parliament.

Rossland Miner.—There is considerable speculation rife as to who will be the candidate of the Liberal-Conservatives at the convention which is to be held at Revelstoke on the 15th instant. There are several candidates in the field. Among those are Hon. C. H. Mackintosh, A. S. Goodeve and Dr. Bowes of this city; John Elliott, barrister of Nelson. It is said that Revelstoke has no favorite son to put in the field. Kaslo might have a candidate up her sleeve, but if she has there has been no intimation made of the fact. It begins to look, however, that as if the choice really lay between the three aspirants for the nomination in this city. Governor Mackintosh has a number of good friends in this riding, who would like to see him returned to the Dominion parliament, in order to compensate him for the defeat which he sustained in the recent contest for the seat in the provincial house. The friends of Mayor Goodeve urge that it would be but a natural step for him to go from the Mayorship to parliament. Dr. E. Bowes, his friend says, has done yeoman service for his party, is a well informed and eloquent man and would make an excellent Dominion legislator. The delegates to the Revelstoke convention, however, will make the nomination.

THE FISH RIVER CAMP

Three Outfits Will Keep Up Work All Winter.

In a recent interview with the Rossland Miner, Hugh Hastings, the resident engineer for the Anglo-Lardeau Mining Syndicate of London Eng. said:

"There are three properties on Pool creek on which forces of men are working. Each of these intend to carry on work all winter. They are the Wide West mine, the Black Bear mines and the Bear Creek mines. As regards the assessment work, which has been done on a great number of claims, in some instances good showings have resulted. Most of the properties are of low grade, but high grade properties have been found, which improve as development proceeds. A few miles north of the junction of Pool and Fish creeks free gold has been found, but no great development has been done to prove anything. On Lexington creek the Banner group of mines are working, and expect to work all winter. Some very good prospects have been located on Boyd and Sable creeks, but as transportation is a very hard problem at present the majority of the prospectors merely content themselves with relocating instead of doing assessment work. On Sable creek, however, there are good trails for part of the way, and reports of good copper showings keep coming in. The prospectors do not go much higher up than Boyd creek, although there are claims located further up. This is because it is so hard getting supplies in. A man cannot carry more than 40 pounds going up the creek and it is impossible to take in a horse, except to the foot of the creeks. There is a good trail from Comaplix, 20 miles, up Fish creek, which then branches off and goes over a divide down Flat creek to Illecillewaet.

"The salvation of that country will come with the railway, which is very sadly needed. A line has been surveyed from Arrowhead, past Comaplix to Canoborn, and then across and down the creek again, passing to the east of Thomson's, Lauding to Trout Lake and thence down to Kootenay lake. This road, when it is constructed, will open up one of the best mining districts of British Columbia. It is certain that no road will be built this year.

BE READY.

It would answer the purpose of Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his friends to produce the impression upon the minds of the Conservatives that the elections will not be held in October, the while the maritime ministers visit their constituents and instruct them to take advantage of the status quo to perfect their organization.

Though no announcement has been made it is quite evident that the elections will not be delayed an hour beyond what is necessitated by the preparation of the voters' lists and the issuance of the writs. The government printing bureau has, according to the Ottawa Citizen, been working day and night rushing the lists, but it has not been equal to completing them as expeditiously as desired. Accordingly the work has been farmed out, and the Toronto World has found out that the "The Methodist Book Room is taxed to its utmost capacity and Howard & Cook, with offices in the Wesley building, are working overtime. Now it has come to light that for the past three weeks the Globe has had a special staff of printers at work on the lists. So far they have prepared those of eight or ten ridings, and there is still no let-up. The contract for this branche of the work has been let to James Murray & company, printers, but the Globe is doing the typesetting, and Murray only the supervision. A car load of voters lists was received by the government last week from Toronto where they had been printed. He must be blind indeed who cannot see in these signs evidence of an early election.

Rumor has it that there will be further delay, that the government's confidential agent, Edward Farrar, who has just returned from the West, has reported that the outlook is very discouraging for the party. But, while this doubtless is the fact, there is nothing in it to suggest delay. Why should the appeal be deferred? What would the government gain thereby? Matters have been steadily going from bad to worse and destruction is inevitable.

If the purpose of Sir Wilfrid be carried into effect, the nominations will be held on October 16th and the elections one week later. A delay of a week or two might be inevitable owing, as we have pointed out, to the backwardness of the lists. But in any event our friends should be ready for an election the last week of October or the first of November.

COURSE OF THE CATTLE MARKETS.

Much money has been made and lost in the export cattle business this season, says the Toronto Globe. In the early spring, when stall fed cattle of choice quality were put on the market, prices were high and the demand good. Dealers bought largely, and, in most cases, made good profits in the British markets. Drovers throughout the country became zealous in purchasing stock, and soon marketed all offerings. Other cattle finished on grass and entirely grass fatted, inferior stock, were hustled out while the prices were up. Suddenly the old country markets broke, freight rates advanced and exporters found on their hands cattle of undesirable quality, in many instances, at a time when the markets were on the decline. The result was that for the last week or two the cattle trade in Toronto has been very dull, some days several buyers declining to bid any price for cattle brought in for export. The export trade rules the markets. This condition, however, should not be regarded seriously, as short periods of depression usually occur at this season of year, when fruits and light delicacies are more largely consumed. The high prices realized for Canadian cattle at the recent Chicago auction offer much encouragement to breeders of good stock cattle througout the ominion. Of sixty cattle offered, the average price paid was almost $800 per head. For a choice two year old $2,600 was paid, while two others realized over $2,000 each. These sales are of vast benefit to every stock raiser in Canada, as they advertise the position the Domnion occupies as a base of supplies for finest stock.

FROM SOUTH AFRICA

Rev. Father Sinnet Writes From Honing Spruit.

From the Calgary Herald

The following is an extract from a letter received from Rev. J. C. Sinnett who went to South Africa as chaplain with the Second Canadian contingent, and who was for many years parish priest at Regina:

Honing Spruit, S. A., July 5.

By the time this reaches you, no doubt you will have long since read of what is going on in this region, I may say in this very place. Here it was that on June 22nd the Boers attacked our position and killed two of our men —Robert Kerr and J. M. Morden, both of Pincher Creek, Alberta, N. W. T. We placed them in their lowly resting place near by the spot where they fell. They came together from the same place, together they fought, together they were instantly killed, together they were buried. May God have mercy on them. There is one consoling thought connected with their tragic end. Each carried a small prayer book in his breast pocket. Through one of these the fatal ball passed before piercing the heart behind it. The book is made a relic for his poor sorrowing mother. I could not pass over this incident during the few words I said standing by the grave of our former companions. The burial of a person is ever sad, but, oh! it is doubly so when we gaze upon the mortal remains of one shattered and torn to pieces. Oh, war, cruel war! Would that those who at banquets are talking so eloquently of war—would, I say, that they were placed in the front rank before Boer rifles and I am certain their warlke spirit would be cooled somewhat! As it is they are safe, while scores are giving up their life's blood. Is there glory in war? I have had almost six months of it and I fail to see it yet.

The grave of the two young men may be seen from the train as it passes from Pretoria to Kronstad. The grave is surrounded by a wire fence and a cross has been raised by loving companions. At the grave all is ever solemn and as the last word is uttered we turn, with strange thoughts to the camp and to the future, and the thought seems expression:

"Who shall be next?"
"Few and short were the prayers we said
And we spoke not a word of sorrow,
But we steadfastly gazed at the face of the dead,
And bitterly thought of the morrow."

Above and beyond all comes the famous and true words:

"The path of glory leads but to the grave."

I hope before long to give you a few pictures I have taken with my kodak, and chiefly of this place of sorrow, but the postal servce is so badly disorganized I fear to trust the films at present. You shall, however, see them "some sweet day."

On the morning of June 22nd our men were being posted as scouts by Lieteuant Inglis, when suddenly from a opje near by a number of Boers opened fire. The Lieutenant was seriously wounded, our men retired to their prepared trenches, and for hours the shells fell thick and fast, and a shower of balls fell from pom poms and rifles. Thankful were we when evening came and only two failed to respond to their names. Several were wounded, but all are doing nicely in the hospital at Kronstad—that town of dead and dying.

Part of our men started this morning for Pretoria. The rest go to Kronstad for new horses, ours being either exhausted by famine, fatigued or shot. When remounted we go on to Pretoria. While thus waiting I am writing you these few imperfect lines.

De Wet seems to be the chief obstacle of the speedy end of the war. He is a born leader and general. Although a rough farmer and without any previous military training he has gained victories over and eluded our generals in turn. In vain so far have our bsst generals made effort to surround and capture him and his little army. Our men while anxious to get De Wet, still give him praise for his generalship.

As an instance of how well the Boer guns are served: Here, not 20 feet from where I pen these lines, a few days since a Boer gun, planted three miles away threw a shell at a train standing at a water tank. The shell did its work, and in doing so struc kone of the supports of the tank, as well as destroying a part of the train.

Roberts, Kitchener and Hamilton have pased here on their way to Pretoria. The war is not over, but shall be I think as soon as De Wet is taken. Rhodes is not with the fighters, but the report goes is "looking over the mines."

I do hope the war will shortly terminate, for we are all tired and sick of it. Kind regards to all.

J. C. SINNET.

LETTER FROM MAJOR SNYDER

The following letter has been received from Major Snyder, with the Stratheona Horse, written from Vlakfontein on July 7th, where the Strathcona's were a part of the advance guard of General Buller's army of occupation:

"I have had a taste of right hard fighting. The day before yesterday half of A. squadron was sent to Greylingstadt, our last camp, to reinforce C. squadron which was left there. I had to escort them through a bad part of the road with the balance of A. squadron and 50 men of B. squadron. We saw them through all right, but on our return were attacked about six miles from here. The Boers tried to outflank and ambush us near a water hole, but we held a section house on the railroad track for an hour till Ketchen's and Christie's troops, which were acting as rear guard, got up to us. When we got to camp six of Ketchen's troops were captured,one of whom was wounded. We also had three horses wounded besides the ones captured. We killed and wounded 10 of the enemy. Six men were killed by the Maxim gun fire. Benyon was with us in charge of the gun. The enemy did not know we had the Maxim along with us, as we had it on horse back and kept it hidden by the other horses. When it opened fire they ran like frightened deer There were nearly 400 Boers at us, as we since learned. At the time we did not think there were more than 50. Yesterday I went to Greylingstadt to escort General Buller to Heidebron. Seventy of Thorneycroft's mounted rifles and a party of Royal Horse artillery were protecting our fanks. The first shell went about 160 yards overhead; I was then riding alongside of General Buller. No other shells went near us. They continued an artillery duel for two hours. The same day C. squadron had a man killed near Greylingstad and the 50 men who left Canada last had a fight near Standerton while convoying some supplies this way, in which they had two men wounded. Sergeant Richards, formerly of the North West Mounted police, of A. squadron, who was with them earned the Victoria Cross, if they ever will give it to him, for bringing a wounded man out of action while under a heavy fire. I never thought so many bullets could fly around and no one be hit as I saw the day we were attacked at the well. The same day Harding did a plucky thing in capturing some Boers and disarming them. Constable Harding was formerly in the Mounted police detachment at Edmonton. The Strathcona's are now getting in all the fighting as they are mostly on outpost duty where all the fighting is as the Boers make no more stands."

THE MAN WHO HAD THE VOTE

The following is an unreported incident before one of the commissioners appointed to inquire into a certain English election petition:

What is your name?
George Jones.
Well, what do you know of this?
On the day of the election I went to the Spotted Dog.
What did you there?
I see'd a man.
Well, what did he do?
He gave me five shillings, and said as how I was to vote for ——.
Well, did you vote for Mr. ——?
No, sir.
What did you do then?
Went to the Pig and Whistle.
Well—there?
Then I see'd another man.
What did he do?
He gave me five shillings and said I was to vote for——.
And did you vote?
No, sir.
What did you do then?
I went to the Red Lion.
And there?
There I see'd a man too.
And did he give you five shillings and tell you to vote for Mr. ——?
He did.
And did you?
No, sir.
Why, here, on your own admission, you have obtained 15 shillings to vote for one of the candidates; did you vote at all?
No, sir.
Why not?
Because I ain't got no vote; it's my father, George Jones, who's an elector.

Macleod Advance: There are quite a number of wolves in the Rocky Coulee section of the district, several being run down and captured by cowmen last winter. A large white one has been helping himself occasionally to a tender colt or fat calf for a long time past. He is said to be a monster in size, leaving a footmark in the snow double the size of an ordinary wolf's track. As soon as snow falls so that tracking can be done the horsemen are going to get after his wolfship, their object being to put an end to his career of destruction.

Criticising a recent performance given in that city by the Australian Comedy company, the Nelson Miner says: The Australian Comedy company leave Nelson with more friends behind them than any other company that has ever appeared in this city. They have been just as excellent as their advance notices promised they would be and this is a record of which they may well be proud. Tonight they will again present Sapho and should have a bumper house.

ROBBERY AND ATTEMPTED MURDER

EUGENE McCLELLAND THE VICTIM OF A MURDEROUS OUTRAGE

Robbed, Gagged, Bound Hand and Foot and Thrown Into the Bow

From the Calgary Herald

One of the most cold blooded crimes known in the history of Canada was attempted in this city last week. Robbery was undoubtedly committed, and it was not the fault of the perpetrators that the crime of murder is not also to be laid to their charge.

Although the occurrence took place nearly a week ago, The Herald at the request of the chief of police refrained from making the facts known so that no obstacle should be placed in the way of the authorities in locating and arresting the perpetrators of the outrage.

The facts are simply these. A young man named Eugene McClelland who had been employed for some time at the C. P. R. depot, got into casual conversation with a stranger whom he met on the platform on the forenoon of Thursday last. After some talk about the weather and the general appearance of the city the stranger talked about the probability of securing employment and McClelland stated with a confident air of financial soundness that as far as he was concerned he didn't care whether he did any work for a couple of mnoths or so, as he had just received $150 from the United States in addition to his own savings. The stranger made no comment and they parted.

Later in the day, the stranger, who needed change for a $10 bill, seemed to be unable to get it at any of the banks or from any of the mercantile establishments in the city, and was obliged to approach young McClelland to see if he could oblige him. Of course he could, with pleasure, and the innocent young man produced his wad from his vest pocket and took two "V's" off the top for his newly found friend, which he exchanged for an "X" and replaced his money in pocket. They had some further conversation in the course of which McClelland stated that he slept in a room over the dining hall, and again they parted.

Nothing more took place till about bedtime when McClelland was not a little surprised on reaching the door of the building where he slept, to find the stranger awaiting him. His presence was explained by the fact that it was too early to go to bed, the night was fine, he had been suffering from a headache and he suggested a stroll before retiring. McClelland was willing and the two walked eastward and over the Elbow bridge beyond the barracks. Here the conversation turned on the excellent water with which Calgary was favored and the stranger insisted that they should go over to the bank of the Bow so that he might have a draught of the clear, cool liquid. They accordingly strolled over, and had just arrived at the river when another man, who seemed to have been lying in the brush jumped up and approached them. In the twinkling of an eye young McClelland was thrown to the ground and the two men proceeded to rob him of the money which he had foolishly shown in the earlier part of the day. Not contented with the amount in his vest pocket they proceeded to search him thoroughly and for this purpose tied his hands together with cords, and gagged him so as to prevent his shouting for assistance. They went through all his pockets, examined the lining of his clothing but could find nothing more than $150 or thereabouts.

Then the question arose—What was to be done with him? and here the fiendish coolness of the robbers showed itself. Without any hesitation they determined to throw the young man into the river, but before doing so tied his feet together with shoe laces. Then they flung him into the stream, though fortunately for him at a place where the water was not very deep. He struggled for dear life, and finally succeeded in freeing his legs, and fought his way to the shore. His assailants however were ready for him and again he was seized and tied as before. "Throw him out further, John, where it is deep," the terrified boy heard one of his assailants say to the other, and again he was flung into the ice cold water. Again he fought manfully and once more he reached the bank.

Late that night as Constables Fraser and Waldon were driving across the Elbow river bridge in search of a man who had committed an offence up town and who was supposed to have gone that way, they met blundering along the trail a young man who seemed to be either drunk or crazy. On examining him closely, they found young McClelland gagged and handcuffed groping his way back to town. They placed him in the rig, released his bonds and drove him to the police station. His mental condition was such that it was impossible to get any information from him as to what had happened to reduce him to such a condition. About noon the following day McClelland recovered possession of his faculties and was able to tell his terrible story.

Chief English at once began an investigation. Having secured all the information— and it was not a great deal—that McClelland could give him, he went to work to discover the perpetrators of the outrage. Hotel registers, boarding houses and other places were carefully examined to find some trace of the men who were so badly wanted. Telegrams were despatched all over the country and it was believed that a clue had been obtained at Medicine Hat. The matter was an exceedingly difficult one to deal with as the identity of one of the men was altogether unknown and a more or less accurate description of the other man was all that was available.

An arrest was made yesterday evening by the chief which may throw some light on the occurrence. A man who arrived from the west on the east bound express was standing on the platform and in the opinion of Chief English answered the description of one of the men he was looking for. After a careful scrutiny the chief determined to arrest him on suspicion, and made himself known. A moment afterwards McClelland, who was near by, walked up and pointing to the man with whom the chief was in conversation, and said "That is the man; no mistake." The man, who gave his name as Williams, was at once arrested and locked up. He was charged before Police Magistrate Smith this afternoon.

Concert of Powers Lacks Harmony

United States Demands Satisfaction Before Withdrawing from Pekin.

The Bubonic Plague in Great Britain.—Buller Attacks Botha in the Mountains.—Casualties in Strathcona Horse.

London, Sep. 5—The absence of news regarding the actual situation of affairs at Pekin continues as complete as the lack of information regarding the ultimate attitude of the powers towards the proposals now before the concert. Shanghai reports that an Imperial edict issued at Tai Yuan Fu appoints Li Hung Chang, Yung Lu, Hou Tung, tutor of the heir apparent, and Prince Ching commissioners to negotiate peace.

Four German warships arrived at Woo Hung yesterday, Septmber 4th. The unmistakeable condemnation of the talk to withdraw immediately from Pekin, which is voiced from all the foreign countries in the far east, is taken in some quarters as a forethought of the opinion which may be expected from the ministers when their views are obtained.

As already suggested the Russian proposals are capable of modification and it is thought in well informed circles that Lord Salisubry is striving to conform them more closely to the terms first formulated by the government at Washington.

According to a special despatch from St. Petersburg dealing with the question of Manchuria the Russian officials repudiate any intention permanently to occupy or annex Manchuria. The despatch adds that Russia will claim no territorial concessions provided the other powers refrain from so doing and express the hope that the question of indemnity can be settled by the co-operation of the allied powers.

Shanghai, Sep. 4.—Despatches announcing that the American government refuses to agree to the withdrawal of the troops from Pekin before satisfaction for the outrages and the loss of its subjects have been received here, and are applauded by the entire foreign colony in Shanghai.

Opinion seems to say that any other policy would be a vital blow to the prestige of the foreigners and would weaken their status in China. The local English papers denounce the proposals to evacuate Pekin and say that the Chinese would interpret evacuation as defeat. The masses of Chinamen now believe that the Chinese armies are victorious.

London, Sep. 5.—According to Shanghai advices Li Hung Chang wired the Chinese minister in London, Sir Chen Lee Feng Lui, as follows: Our St. Petersburg minister has persuaded Russia to leave Pekin. You are useless if you cannot persuade England. Six months rations for the British force, says the Tien Tsin correspondent of the Standard, wiring August 27th are being forwarded to Pekin. Li Hung Chang's protege, Ma Kien Chung, died at Shanghai on Monday. The Russian forces in Manchuria are now moving on Kirin, an important stratgetic position where there is a large arsenal. When Kirin has been captured they will occupy Mukden, the capital of the province of Leao Long.

CUTE OLD LI HUNG CHANG

Shanghai, Sep. 4.—General Woodville Rockvile, special United States commissioner, interviewed on the general, present and future situation in China and the prospects for peace negotiations says they will be conducted throughout a southern viceroy. There is a financial panic in Chinese business circles. Li Hung Chang remains here. He told the American and the British diplomats that the Russians had promised to withdraw from Pekin regardless of the policy of the other nations. The statement is not believed. It is thought probable that he is simultaneously assuring the Russians that the Americans and British have promised to withdraw. If the Chinese government is able to break the concert of the nations and bring about disagreement on the part of any government, in such a way as to secure any relaxation of the joint demands of all, the foreigners in China may as well pack up and leave. This is the very best opportunity to settle for all time, the status of foreigners in China. If that matter is not settled for now, the Chinese will be encouraged to persist in the present policy, and the powers will have the whole trouble to thrash out again every two or three years. I believe all the governments are impressed with this truth, and I believe most of them realize that a definite permanent settlement of the status of foreigners and the establishment of freedom in trade is now more important to them than the acquisition of territory.

THE SITUATION IN CHINA

London, Sep. 4.—The latest reliable Pekin despatch to date is now nearly a fortnight old. An undated despatch has been received at Vienna reporting that the allied troops marched through the Imperial palace on August 28th, but it was not known that this date has been fixed by the allied commanders for a formal promenade. There is no other news of any kind. The Vienna correspodent of the Standard telegraphs that he learns that the Germans, Austrians and Italians will remain in Pekin after the Russians withdraw.

EMPRESS DEFIES THE WORLD

Shanghai, Sep. 5.—The empress defies the allied army of Europe. She is for war upon the allies. The whole edict breathes defiance and undying hatred of foreigners. It explains to the viceroys that the court fled from Pekin because it was afraid the Christians would kill the emperor.

Washington, Sep. 5.—General belief here is that Russia will yield to the demands of the other powers. A cable was sent to General Chaffee in response to his query of yesterday. He is advised, pending negotiation for joint occupation of Pekin or joint withdrawal therefrom, and instructed to remain until further orders but is ordered to be in readiness for prompt retirement if the latter course is adopted.

CONFLAGRATION PREDICTED

Paris, Sep. 5.—A Hongkong despatch received here yestaerday states that natives predict a conflagration within a month. Placards have been posted in Canton intimating that the allies have been completely routed by the Chinese. A memorandum containing 200 signatures has been presented to the British minister imploring his assistance in reforming the government and establishing the capital at Pekin. The strike of coolies has ended.

ALLIES IN PEKIN

London, Sep. 6.—General Sir Alfred Gazelee wires as follows from Pekin, dated August 29:

"The allies marched through the forbidden city yesterday. The British had third place in the procession; Russians and Japanese being in greater strength."

FROM SOUTH AFRICA

London, Sep. 4.—The war office publishes the following despatch from Lord Roberts, dated September 1: "Buller marched with his force today from Helvetia on the way to Lydenburg, and is now in camp on the north bank of the river. Eleo's rear guard is racing before him without opposition. Paget reports that a small column of Baden-Powell's force under Plumer despatched by him drove off a small command under General Pretorius, east of Pinnarsveyer. Plumer captured a thousand head of cattle, 31 agons, 26 prisoners and 90 rifles. The families with the commando are being taken care of in our camp. The enemy managed to detail another supply train five miles south of the Klip river early this morning. Two men were killed, one wounded and 35 takee prisoners. Te engine was blown up and 13 trucks burned. A party of Brabant's Horse on duty at Klip river bridge, followed the enemy os soon as the report of the incident reached them, into the neighboring hills and recovered all the prisoners. Over 100 prisoners came into camp. Half of these were sent to Pretoria, and the remainder go tonight."
