ESCAPE OF S. S. RODDAM.

With His Ship on Fire and Sixteen of His Crew Dead, the Captain Navigated His Ship Forty Miles to Safety.

New York, May 19.—The Norton Line steamer Etona, Capt. Cantell, arrived here today from the River Plate via St. Lucia, where she called for bunker coal on May 10th.

"At St. Lucia on May 11th," said Captain Cantell, "I went on board the British steamer 'Roddam' which had escaped from the terrible volcanic eruptions at Martinique three days before. The ship was covered with a mass of fine blueish gray dust or ashes, of cement-like appearance. In some parts it lay two feet deep on the decks. This matter had fallen in a red hot state all over the steamer, setting fire to everything it struck that was burnable and when it fell on the men on board, burned off limbs and large pieces of flesh. This was shown by finding portions of human remains when the decks were cleared of the debris. The riggings, ropes, tarpaulins, sails and awnings, were charred or burned and most of the upper stanchions and spars had been swept overboard or destroyed by the fire. Skylights were smashed and cabins were filled with volcanic dust."

"I visited the captain of the Roddam at the hospital at St. Lucia, where he gave me an account of his terrible experience. He had just arrived and anchored at St. Pierre, Martinique, on the morning of Thursday 8th. The captain was standing near the accommodation ladder, talking to the vessels agent, who had come on board, when he saw what appeared to be an enormous black cloud like a wall with patches of fire in it, approaching from the land. With it came an immense tidal wave of boiling water accompanied by a loud and terrible noise. He shouted, 'Take shelter,' to the crew. Immediately the steamer was caught and tossed over on her side. Darkness fell like a pall, and volumes of red-hot matter showered down while the air was thick with sulphurous fumes and dust. The sea was a confused mass of boiling mud. Fire broke out on different parts of the ship. Screams, groans and shouts of agony from the injured people, mingled with the noise of boiling water and rushing air, together with the falling fire caused a most horrible confusion. This shock lasted for a few minutes. The captain of the Roddam, knowing that his vessel had steam, and instantly realizing the necessity of escaping rushed to the engineroom enunciator, and signalled below to start the engines at full speed.

"The tidal wave which had swept over the Roddam and nearly capsized her, had parted the cable and the vessel was adrift. When the engines started, it was found that the steering gear had become disabled in some manner, and could not be worked. For more than an hour the Roddam's engines worked, backing and going ahead, with the hope of keeping her away from land. Once she got dangerously near the steamer Rorgima. Both vessels were in flames. Some of those aboard jumped into the boiling water, some fell, dying, to the deck. All this time the red-hot matter was falling and the water was hissing and steaming dense masses of vapor. Smoke and dust filled the air and poisonous fumes spread about.

"After some time the Roddam's steering gear moved, and enabled the captain to head her out to sea and with considerable difficulty he managed to take her a little distance from the island.

"As the air cleared, the scene on board the ill-fated Roddam, became appalling. The screams from the injured became more audible. Some rushed about with their clothes on fire and large pieces of flesh burned from their arms, others in agony, lay writhing in the red hot dust. In about two hours, the air become gradually clear. An investigation of the casualties on board showed that besides the captain, who was frightfully injured, only two engineers, two sailors and the boatswain were able to do duty.

"Fire was still burning about the ship, and the rigging was in flames. The captain desided to reach the island of St. Lucia, 45 miles distant. This he succeeded in doing by six o'clock on the evening of May 16th. The steamer was difficult to handle owing to partially disabled steering which could not be made to work properly. In the time occupied on this voyage, the experience of the survivors was still worse than that already gone through. The brave captain and his few men fighting the fire and scalded and exhausted, struggled and worked trying to do something to assist their dying shipmates. Those working below stripped to keep up the steam.

"The captain suffering the greatest agony, succeeded in navigating his vessel safely to the port of Gastrie, St. Lucia, with 13 dead bodies lying on the deck. A sailor stood by constantly wiping the captain's eyes.

"I think the performance of the Roddam's captain was most wonderful, and the more so since I saw his condition. I don't understand how he kept up. When the steamer arrived at St. Lucia, and medical assistance was procured this brave man asked the doctors to attend to the others first and refused to be treated until this was done. My interview with the captain brought out this account. I left him in good spirits and receiving every comfort."

The Drill Shed

Contractor Kernaghan yesterday received a telegram from the Department of Public Works, Ottawa, asking him if he was prepared to sign a contract for the construction of the drill shed as per his tender and Mr. Kernaghan replied that he was ready, and it will only be a matter of a few days until the contract will be received here for signature, when construction of the long delayed drill shed will be commenced.

GOLDFIELDS THE CAMP.

Prospects are Bright for a Busy Summer.—The Saw Mill and Development of the Famous Camborne Group.

GOLDFIELDS, May 19.—It is expected the new saw mill will be running in about two or three weeks time. The machinery has been ordered and the mill will be run by electric power. The power to run the mill being furnished by the Northwest Development Syndicate, who have installed a 60 horse power electric dynamo on the Camborne Group adjoining Goldfields. Already there are enough buildings projected in the new town to keep the mill busy this season, besides what will be required by the Northwestern Development Syndicate in erecting buildings and stamp mill to operate their valuable free gold properties on Menhinnick Creek.

Two families have moved to Goldfields to be close to the big mines. This fact demonstrates that the town that is closest to the working mines will be the headquarters for the miners and the public generally. Goldfields is surrounded by the best and biggest free gold and silver mines in British Columbia.

Four men are now at work on the Alice Group doing the assessment work for the owner Mr. Perry. The Alice group is another property that will outfit at Goldfields.

Two men are employed on the Union Jack and Royal Standard near Goldfields doing development work.

Four men are employed steadily clearing and preparing the ground on the townsite here, and with the construction of the saw mill, the opening of the big Camborne group, the development of the Eva and Oyster and other properties adjacent to the town, Goldfields should be a good camp this summer.

A programme of sports, etc., will be arranged for the visitors and a good time generally is expected. ANOTHER ERUPTION.

Which Nearly Sinks H. M. S. Indefatigable and the U. S. S. Potomac.—A New Crator at Mount Pelee.

NEW YORK, May 21.—(Special)—At two o'clock this morning the town of Basse Point, Northern Martinique was overwhelmed by liquid mud from Mt. Pelee volcano. No lives were lost as people had been removed.

Yesterday the U. S. S. Potomac and the H. M. S. Indefatigable had a narrow escape from destruction. They were in St. Pierre harbor. A landing party from the Potomac was on shore when the commanding officer saw a column of smoke and gas rising from Mount Pelee. He immediately ordered all hands to the boats. They escaped to the vessel with coffin containing the remains of United States Consul Prentis. The Indefatigable was nearing shore when the officers saw smoke and turned from the land blowing siren to warn the Potomac. The wind kept the gas off till the vessels were safe. A huge stream of molten matter poured into the sea raising columns of steam and making the whole sea hideous, turning it a yellow green color. Detonations were continued and were accompanied by fearful storm of thunder, lightning and rain. New crators opened in Mount Pelee.

At six o'clock this morning heavy detonations were heard at St. Thomas Danish West Indies, from direction of Martinique.

Grounds or Sports?

A well attended meeting of the sports committee was held last evening in No. 2 fire hall to receive the report of the canvassing committee and decide what further action should be taken in regard to celebrating Coronation Day. Mayor O'Brien called the meeting to order and the canvassing committee reported $819 subscribed in cash and $95 in prizes, and a number of people still to be seen which would materially increase the amount. The question then came up whether the sports should be dropped and the energies of the citizens devoted to procuring suitable recreation grounds. After a long discussion it was decided that the canvassing committee go around to the subscribers again and explain the matter to them and find out what proportion of their subscriptions they would devote to holding sports on Coronation day and how much towards securing a recreation ground, the committee to report at a public meeting next Tuesday evening. To ascertain the opinion of those present a motion was introduced to the effect that the proposed sports be dropped and energies of the citizens be directed towards securing suitable recreation grounds for the city and that the city council be asked for a substantial grant for the purchase or improvement of such grounds. The motion was carried and the meeting adjourned.

AN APPALLING DISASTER

Tom Horn and Johnny Boyd Drowned in the Canyon at 11 O'Clock This Morning By the Upsetting of Their Canoe

At noon today the citizens of the town were startled by the news of an accident in the Canyon which resulted in Tom Horn and Johnny Boyd losing their lives. It appears that coming down the river in Tom Horn's Peterboro canoe were Tom Horn, J. D Boyd, E. A. Bradley, George Laforme and Chas. Richards, and at the upper end of the Canyon Messrs. Bradley, Laforme and Richards left the canoe, not caring to run the canyon in high water. Tom Horn and Johnny Boyd decided to make the run, and when well into the canyon and opposite the Big Slide, the boat was noticed by the men who are repairing the wagon road in the canyon, to take a shoot into the air at the Big Ripple and then plunge into the water and disappear. A moment later it appeared again with the two clinging to her and floated a short way down, when in one of the whirlpools the boat and occupants again disappeared from view, and that was the last seen of them by the men on the wagon road who were the observers of this very sad affair.

About 11:30 some of the men employed at the Revelstoke Lumber Co., mill noticed a boat floating bottom side up into the Big Eddy. On investigation it was discovered that there was a body clinging to the ropes of the boat. Constable R. Upper was notified of this fact and left immediately for the Big Eddy. The boat was hauled ashore, turned over and found to contain the body of Johny Boyd, his wrist having become entangled in the ropes of the boat, which held him fast. Up to the hour of going to press no word in regard to the whereabouts of the body of Mr. Horne is to hand and it is not likely that it will be recovered until lower water in the fall.

Thus in a moment Revelstoke is called upon to mourn for the death of two of her most popular and respected citizens who have made their homes in the city since the beginning of the town which sprung into existence at the time of construction in 1883. Mr. Horne leaves a widow and four children, the eldest being about 10 years old to mourn the loss of a loving husband and kind father, and to them the HERALD begs to convey the sympathy of the entire community.

Mr. Boyd was a widower, Mrs. Boyd having died some four years ago.

Railway Notes

G. Schulli, section foreman at Field for some years has resigned his position and in company with J. Guiletto has opened up a general store.

The Machinists demands of the C.P.R. have been satisfactorily settled and the local delegates who went to Winnipeg are expected home on the first train.

The local members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen met Monday night to arrange matters relative to the death of W. T. Peters in South Africa. The hall was draped in mourning and the engines on the Crow will be draped in memory of the departed one.—Cranbrook Herald.

John Thompson, a well known C.P.R. fireman, died at his home at Savonas last Saturday aged 22 and was interred at Ashcroft yesterday. Deceased was well known in Kamloops, having lived here for some considerable time and was a member of the K. of P. order.—Kamloops Sentinel.

With the advent of the C. P. R. summer time table on June 15th, there will be four standards of time in use on the system. At present there are three standards in use, Pacific, Maritime and Eastern Central. The fourth will be Atlantic Standard. The Intercolonial will adopt the Atlantic time standard, which is one hour faster than eastern.

An engine, of interest to nearly all railway men, is now making some trial experiments on the hill near Field. The engine in question is known as the "Shay Engine," and is exceedingly powerful, weighs some 110 tons and is capable of hauling 700 tons up a 4 per cent grade. The gearing is all on the right hand side and both engine and tender are connected by a system of cogwheels. The engine will eventually go to the Crow's Nest Pass road.

At the Methodist Church

In the absence of Rev. Mr. Ladner at Conference in Vancouver the service in the Methodist Church Sunday morning was conducted by Mr. Wilson, while in the evening it was in charge of the Epworth League and the choir. Mr. Johnson as president of the League presided. After the opening prayer the following was the order of the service:—Hymn, "Listen the Master Beseecheth"; Duet (piano and violin) Miss Savage and J. Taylor; Anthem, "Blessed be the Lord," by choir; Duet, Miss Fee and J. Taylor; Mr. Lafeaux then delivered a splendid address on Christian Endeavorers; Solo, Miss Fick, "Abide with me"; Quartette, "Softly now the Light of Day," Mrs. Dent, Miss Fee, Messrs. Taylor and Allum; Solo with cello obligato, "Rock of Ages," Mr. Allum; Miss Dent then read a very interesting paper on "Missions" which was attentively listened to by the large congregation. After which the singing of the hymn "One more Day's Work for Jesus" and the benediction brought the service to a close.

PATRONIZE HOME STORES.

There is a strike on in the printing department of the T. Eaton Company's departmental store, Toronto, and not only have the members of "Old 91" gone out on strike, but the Pressmen, Pressfeeders and Bookfolders have as well, and there are others of the employes that may follow suit. We presume it is fairly well understood that the average wage in this departmental store today is very small—a mere pittance. Think of asking a man with a family to provide for and house rent to pay, etc., to work for $10 a week, and nine hours a day at that, with high rents and the price of necessaries of life advanced from 40 to 50 per cent higher than they have ever been! It is a burning shame—we were going to say a monstrous crime! There is no doubt but that this departmental store and its factories attempts to set the standard of wages, and thus the skinning process is resorted to. Put a man in the Central Prison for six months if he steals some scrap iron from the Grand Trunk Railway, but lionize and idolize him if he has the ability to skin his fellowmen out of a thousand dollars in hard earned wages.

Let us appeal to our constituents. Instead of buying through the Mail Order system of the Eaton Company, patronize the merchants in your own vicinity and keep the cash in your own neighborhood. They can give you as good bargains and much better for that matter, than you can obtain in this store. And many so-called "bargains" are not bargains at all. The most gullible animal in the world is man and there is no gullibility equal to that involved in the bargain hunting humbug. Then quit the exhibition of your gullability and patronize your "home stores."

Island of St. Vincent.

St. Vincent, an island in the West Indies, discovered by Columbus in 1498, is situated 100 miles to the west of Barbadoes; it is 18 miles in length, 11 in breadth, and has an area of 132 square miles. Volcanic hills cross the island from north to south, intersected by beautiful and fertile valleys. In the northwest is the Souffriere, a volcanic mountain, (3,000 feet), of which the last violent eruption was in 1912; the crater is three miles in circumference and 500 feet in depth. The climate is humid and tolerably healthy (average rainfall nearly 80 inches). In 1827, when Charles I granted St. Vincent to the Earl of Carlisle, it was peopled by Caribs; in 1672 it wae given to Lord Willoughly, and in 1772 was granted, along with other islands to the Duke of Montagu by George I. After hostilities with the French and Caribs, it passed definitely to Great Britain in 1783. Immigrants were afterwards introduced and plantations cultivated; the chief products are sugar, rum, molasses and arrowroot. The capital is Kingston (population 5,493), the total population of the island being 42,200 including 2,700 Europeans and 30,000 Africans. The island was formerly under the general government of Windward Islands, Barbadoes being headquarters; but in 1885 Barbadoes was made a separate government, and Grenada, St. Vincent, Tobago and St. Lucia, were placed under a governor.

Her Love For Her Lions.

AN instance of the affection felt for wild beasts by their tamers cited by "St. Nicholas" is the case of Madame Blanca, the French tamer, who in the winter of 1900 was with the Bostock Wild Animal Show giving daily exhibitions in Baltimore, where her skill and daring with lions and tigers earned wide admiration. It will be remembered how fire suddenly descended on this menagerie one night and destroyed the animals, amid fearful scenes. And in the morning Blanca stood among the ruins and looked upon the charred bodies of her pets. Had she lost her dearest friends she could scarcely have shown deeper grief. She was in despair, and declared that she would never tame another group; she would leave the show business. And when the menagerie was stocked afresh with lions and tigers Blanca would not go near their cages. These were lions indeed, but not her lions, and she shook her head and mourned for "Bowzer," the handsomest lioness in captivity, and "Spitfire," and "Juliette," and the black-maned "Brutus." Nor could money tempt her. And the outcome was that this most successful woman lion-tamer in the world retired into private life—gave up her career simply because of her grief for these dead animals.

THE TIME TO CUT HAY

The aim of our farmers in growing forage crops is to produce from a given area as large a quantity as possible of the digestible nutrients in a palatable form. The time at which a forage crop is harvested may effect the crop in three ways, viz:—In the quantity of material harvested, in the composition of the crop and in the palatibility of the fodder. As a general rule it has been found that the greatest amount of dry matter is secured where forage crops are allowed to fully nature and ripen. The only exception is in the case of clovers and other legumes, there the leaves rattle off and are lost, either before or during the process of curing.

It does not follow that when a plant increases in its yield of dry matter that its nutritive value has proportionately increased. It is quite possible that changes in texture and composition of the dry substance may effect the greater yield. The dry matter of mature grass contains a larger proportion of crude fibre than the immature. The plant hardens in texture and loses, in both palatibility and digestibility. It is, therefore, usually advisable to begin cutting hay early, and where there is a large crop to be gathered, work should begin early in order that it be completed before the grass seeds are ripe enough to shell from the heads of the late cut grass. Chemical analysis has shown that plants are richer in protein in the earlier stages of growth than when fully grown or nearly mature. The chief with which our feeders have to contend, is the lack of protein in the rations made up of our common feeding stuffs and they should recognize the fact that by cutting early, they can get two crops of highly nitrogenous fodder, where they only get one by late cutting. Cutting the first crop even before the heads are fully grown will tend to cause a vigorous new growth and in this way a good crop of rowan is secured.

The two crops are more valuable, especially for feeding dairy cows, than one mature crop on account of the increased proportion of protein. The early cut hay seems more palatable to stock, and weight for weight more satisfactory. On the other hand by late cutting we secure a considerably larger quantity of carbo hydrates, which are valuable for feeding and of crude fibre which is of low feeding value.

For the dairy cows and sheep, grass should be cut early, since these animals do not relish hay that is woody and lacking in aroma; as is the case with late cut hay. For horses and fattening cattle latter cutting is allowable, as these animals subsist mostly on concentrated feed and hay serves more for "filling," as horsemen say. In tests made by Profe sors Sanborn and Henry in fattening steers with early and late cut hay, it was found that late cut hay gave the best results. If cutting is delayed too long the stems of the grass become tough and stringy and the seeds scatter from the heads. Such hay has little aroma and lacks palatability if not nutrients. Though an indefinite quantity, the aroma of grass has real value in rendering hay more palatable. When the sun dissipates the dew from the dying grass in the meadow, we detect the escaping aroma, because the dew in rising, carries some of it into the air. This is one reason why hay should not remain scattered over the field at night. Green colored, sweet smelling hay is really the best, and prudent farmers will not overlook such seemingly small points as preserving the aroma and preventing bleaching.

F. W. HODSON,
Live Stock Commissioner.

A Ping Pong Lunch.

The fact that millions of ping pong balls have already been manufactured is sufficient proof that the last game has caught on. Eight million ping pong balls have been turned out in London alone. This latest fad is not confined to the upper circle. Little public houses in back streets advertise ping pong; and an eating house in the vicinity of the stock exchange announced a special menu for the day as follows:

Special.
Boiled Rabbit
and
Ping Pong

Ping-pong is not a soup—nor are the wasted ping-pong xylonite balls served with sauce as a bechauffe. There is a ping-pong table so that the customers bitten by the prevailing craze can enjoy a game, whilst the chop is being cooked. I suppose if one has not a partner the attendants are experts at the game. Soon we will have the tables in Gorgonzola hall, and when the markets are dull, the pingpong corner can be kept merry.
