PEACE REIGNS AT LAST

Kitchener Reports Boer Leaders Have Signed Acceptance of Terms of Surrender—Great Rejoicing Everywhere.

About 1 o'clock on Sunday afternoon the War Office received the following despatch from Lord Kitchener, dated Pretoria, Saturday, May 31st. 11:15 p. m.:

"A document containing terms of surrender was signed here this evening at half past ten by all the Boer representatives, as well as Lord Milner and myself."

The clerk on duty at the war office transmitted this message to Buckingham Palace, where King Edward was lunching.

At about 5 o'clock word was received permitting the publication of this message, and the small notice which was stuck up outside the war office consisted of a copy of Lord Kitchener's cablegram. A similar notice was put up outside the Colonial Office.

In the clubs, hotels, the newspaper offices, which were almost all deserted, the momentous news was ticked out on the tape, then like wildfire and without any visible means for the transmission of the news, London awakened to the fact that the South African war was over. The inhabitants of the East End flocked to the Mansion House, just in time to see the Lord Mayor of London, Sir J. C. Dimsdale, come to the balcony on the front of the municipal headquarters, and announce that the terms of surrender had been signed in South Africa.

Amid many cheers, the Lord Mayor made a speech in which he expressed the hope that London would show its appreciation of the good news, by behaving itself decently, and in an orderly manner.

"Let us," said the Lord Mayor, in conclusion, "now pray for a long and happy period of peace."

LONDON, June 2.—The following message from King Edward to his people was issued after midnight:

"The King received the welcome news of the cessation of hostilities in South Africa with infinite satisfaction, and His Majesty trusts that peace may speedily be followed by the restoration of prosperity in his new domains, and that the feelings necessarily engendered by the war will give place to earnest co-operation on the part of His Majesty's South African subjects, in promoting the progress of the country."

According to a despatch to the Daily Express from Utrecht, Holland, Mr. Kruger was informed that peace had been declared shortly after 9 o'clock last night. Mr. Kruger had been asleep.

"My God!" he said, "it is impossible."

Mr. Kruger and his entourage, the despatch continues, hopes to be permitted to return to the Transvaal. This, however, is quite unlikely.

WINNIPEG, June 1.—The Mayor has proclaimed a half holiday tomorrow, in order that Winnipeggers may celebrate the conclusion of the peace negotiations between Briton and Boer.

MONTREAL, June 1.—The cablegram carrying the welcome news of peace was sent to the pastors of all churches, and read at the evening service, the congregations singing "God Save the King," which was also played on the chimes of several churches.

NEW YORK, June 2.—A special to the Herald from Washington says the news that peace had finally been signed between Great Britain and the Boers was received with satisfaction in official circles. Senator Cullom, the chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, said: "It is a great event, and one longed for by the nations of the earth, and cannot fail to be gratifying to the nations which have regards for the rights of men. There has been more or less difference of opinion among the people of this country as to the merits of the war, but whatever have been the merits, it is a great thing that the struggle is ended. I have been more or less in fear as to whether or not the negotiations for peace would succeed. This seems to make it conclusive that the struggle is over. There will doubtless be rejoicing everywhere."

Death of B. W. Temple.

It is with deep regret that we have to chronicle in this issue the sudden death of one of Revelstoke's most popular young men, Bert W. Temple. He was taken ill on Thursday and at 9:30 Saturday night he passed away, death resulting from diabete coma. The news was a shock to many as it was not generally known that he was ill.

Deceased was 19 years of age and the only son of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Temple. He had worked for some time as a machinist in the C. P. R. shops, but recently was employed in the baggage department at the depot. He was an active member of the Rocky Mountain Rifles, the Independent Band, No. 2 Fire Brigade, Court Mt. Beghie of the Independent Order of Foresters, and of the local lodge of the International Association of Machinists, also of St. Peter's Church Choir. Regular in attendance, faithful in the performance of his duties, a willing worker in all of these organizations he will be greatly missed and his place hard to fill.

The funeral took place Monday afternoon, the arrangements being in the hands of the local lodge of I. O. F., and was one of the largest ever seen in the city—a fitting testimony to the popularity of the deceased. The C. P. R. shops were closed for the day and flags floated at half mast throughout the city. The coffin was covered with the Union Jack, and a number of magnificent wreathes from the different organizations to which deceased belonged and from the many personal friends of deceased and family. The remains were conveyed from the house to St. Peter's Church, where a full choral service was held. On leaving the church the procession formed as follows: Rocky Mountain Rifles with arms reversed, male members of St. Peter's Church Choir, the Independent Band playing Webster's Funeral March, Kootenay Lodge, I. A. M., Court Mt. Beghie, I. O. F., bier and pall bearers, chief mourners, general mourners driving and on foot. The pall bearers were J. L. Smith, J. E. McLean and G. Beavo representing the Foresters, and K. Dodd, C. Palmer and J. Inches representing the machinists.

On reaching the grave a hymn was sung by the choir, and Rev. C. A. Procunier in a few words committed the body to its last resting place. The Foresters burial service was then read after which the Rocky Mountain Rifles lined up and fired three volleys over the grave, a parting salute to their departed comrade.

THE HERALD joins with the entire community in extending its sincere sympathy to the bereaved family in their deep affliction.

PLACER GOLD AT GOLDFIELDS

Rich Pay Dirt Discovered on the New Townsite of Goldfields — Great Excitement Prevails.

GOLDFIELDS, June 2.—The discovery of rich placer ground on Menhennick Creek, which practically runs through the townsite of Goldfields, is causing a big excitement here. The whole river has been staked from one end to the other. Clarence McDowell and his party have eight claims staked from which a splendid sample of coarse gold was taken a few days ago. This fact further demonstrates that Goldfields is the banner camp of the famous Fish River district. Within a mile of the town are the largest free milling gold groups in British Columbia, to say nothing of this last strike of rich placer ground practically within its boundaries.

THE TERMS OF SURRENDER

No Vital Point has been Abandoned by Lord Kitchener—Mr. Kruger has no Part in the Ratification.

LONDON, June 4.—In the House of Commons yesterday, the first words of the Treasury and Government leader, A. J. Balfour, announced the terms of peace in South Africa as follows: The burgher forces lay down their arms and hand over all rifles and munitions of war in their possession, or under their control. All prisoners are to be brought back as soon as possible to South Africa, without loss of liberty or property. No action is to be taken against prisoners, except where they are guilty of breach of the rules of war. Dutch is to be taught in the schools, if desired by the parents, and used in the courts if necessary. Rifles are allowed for protection. Military occupation is to be withdrawn as soon as possible, and self government substituted. There is to be no tax on the Transvaal to pay the cost of the war. The sum of £3,000,000 sterling is to be provided for re-stocking the Boer farms. Rebels are liable to trial, according to the law of the colony to which they belong. The rank and file will be disfranchised for life. The death penalty will not be inflicted.

The British authorities absolutely rejected the suggestion of the Boer delegates that the terms of surrender should be ratified by Mr. Kruger, and declared that the Boers in Europe had no hand in the settlement. The terms show that the British Government carried its contentions on every vital point, while the minor concessions, particularly those in regard to generous financial treatment, will greatly appeal to Boers in general.

AROUND THE RAILWAY YARD

Personal Paragraphs Pertaining to Railway Men Picked up By the Herald Man on His Daily Rounds.

Indications point to an amicable settlement of the C. N. R. carmen's troubles on the western division.

On account of a rush of work the C. P. R. shops are working overtime at present.

City Council.

A special meeting of the city council was held Saturday evening, Mayor O'Brien in the chair, and Ald. Taylor, Law, Manning, McMahon and McLeod present.

The Mayor brought up the question of improvements required to No. 1 fire hall. Resolved that the necessary improvements be referred to Public Works committee, and chief of No. 1 brigade authorised to have work done by day labor.

Ald. Taylor recommended purchase of lots 11 and 12, block 7, Second street, opposite B. Gainer's residence, for drill hall site. The price was $450.

The necessary petition was presented and it was resolved to introduce a bylaw, authorising the purchase, for submission to the ratepayers. The bylaw was read three times.

The bylaw authorising the borrowing of $8,000 for new city schools passed necessary readings for submission to the ratepayers.

Ald. McLeod introduced the matter of city levels. C. B. Hume & Co. were at sea regarding a level for their new block.

The Mayor pointed out importance of having fixed standards.

A lengthy discussion on the subject followed resulting in the Mayor being authorized to have standards fixed to mark permanent levels and a proper plan deposited in the city office.

McCrossan Interviewed.

A representative of the Eagle had a short interview with Mr. Chas. W. McCrossan this week. He had just arrived in camp and was not ready to give much information regarding the summer operations of his different companies.

We were assured that the smelter would work as soon as they could get ore and fluxes. Mr. McCrossan has not the shadow of a doubt about the smelter's success. He tells of standing and watching a Vulcan smelter working on all kinds of ore in Los Angeles among which was 100 pounds of Metropolitan ore, which was treated very satisfactorily, but, as Mr. McCrossan says, the best way to prove to the people of Ferguson that the Vulcan smelters are all right is to get this one turning out matte.

The Triune will be worked to its fullest capacity this summer. A large number of men have already left to clear out the trail and get the cabins in shape and as soon as packtrains can be got to the property the men will be put right to work. The Metropolitan will also be worked to about the same extent as last summer and the other properties will also receive some attention.—Eagle.

The Inquest Adjourned.

FERNIE, June 2.—Owing to the fact that counsel representing both the Miners' Union and the Crow's Nest Pass Coal Co. were agreeable to an adjournment of the coroner's inquest till one week from today, such action has been taken. Mr. Elias Rogers, managing director of the coal company, and Mr. J. H. Tonkin, the recently appointed mine superintendent, are both in town and the former will likely remain for some days, while the latter has assumed charge of the mines.

One hundred and fifteen bodies have now been taken out of the workings, and it is conservatively estimated that fifteen or twenty yet remain in some of the smaller rooms which have not yet been thoroughly explored. The little cemetery platted especially for the victims of the disaster is gradually filling up, but there are yet a number of vacant graves, which are ticketed with the names of men whose bodies are known to be in the mine.

The town is now quiet, and it is probable that as soon as all the bodies are out of the mine, the company will reopen the workings. The first work to be performed will be the repairing of the demolished overcasts for the carrying of air to and from the distant workings of the mine. Wreckage in the deeper workings will also have to be removed before actual mining operations recommence. None of the old miners will return to work till satisfied that all bodies have been removed and therefore it is unlikely that organized effort in the working of the mine will take place this week. While the Coal Creek mines are unproductive, the Coal company is working its mines at Michel and Morrissey with large forces of men. The coke ovens here have not been allowed to lie idle since the disaster and it is unlikely that the smelters have suffered to any great extent.

The Smelting Industry.

The mining situation in Montana, Idaho and Washington is tending to transfer the smelting industry to the Canadian side, and already a large amount of American capital is invested in Canadian smelters. The Canadian Pacific Railway has a smelter at Trail, and although the effect of its policy of giving terms, which include freight and treatment, is offset by an inclination to screw up the rate on ore to other Canadian smelters, it is instrumental in retaining business on the Canadian side. The Grand Forks smelter and the Dominion smelter are American enterprises located on the Canadian side, their situation being chosen with a single eye to permanent and profitable returns. The wet ores, indispensable as fluxes, are on the Canadian side, but as yet the dry ores required to give the resultant bullion sufficient value in silver, have not been discovered north of the line. As the dry ores are widely distributed throughout the northern mining states, and must be assembled at some point for smelting purposes, the most convenient location for the smelters is where the indispensable fluxes are to be found. The tariff laws help to turn the balance in favor of British Columbia, for there the smelter can collect ores from either side of the boundary free of duty, while there is a tariff of one and one half cents a pound on the lead contents of ore entering the United States. The transportation interests, of which J. J. Hill is the moving spirit, also brings an influence to bear in favor of smelting on the Canadian side. In fact the Canadian smelters are dependent on the completion of the branch lines he is pushing into British Columbia south. The Americans who have invested in Canadian smelters naturally regard the Canadian Pacific Railway as a rival, and are inclined to patronize the Great Northern because it is not engaged in the smelting industry. With the exception of Everett, on Puget Sound, which handles Canadian ore and foreign ores brought by water there is no silver-lead smelter on the Great Northern system south of the boundary except that in Great Falls The Grand Forks smelter, an American enterprise, on the Canadian side, will use Canadian wet ores to flux the dry ores from many tributary American points. Neihart, Baker, Libby Creek, Boulder and Big Mountain are silver producing districts in Montana, all tributary to the Grand Forks smelter. In Idaho the supply of silver ore is furnished by Pend d'Oreille and Boundary Creek districts, while in Washington, California and Old Dominion are also tributary to Grand Forks. Many of these dry ore camps have languished for want of a market, and the wet ore camps in British Columbia have been equally unfortunate. Smelting enterprise on the Canadian side has solved the problem, and the branches of the Great Northern Railway, which will pick up and assemble the ores from many points, are built on easy gradients that will make the handling of low grade ore profitable. The silver and gold ores of Republic, in Washington, will also find their way to Southern British Columbia to be smelted.

Anecdotal.

On one occasion Governor "Dick" Oglesby of Illinois went down to Joliet to inspect the State prison, and in one of the cells he found a very ugly man. "How did you get in here?" asked Oglesby. "Abduction," was the reply; "I tried to run off with a girl, and they caught me." "I'll pardon you as soon as I get back to Springfield," said the governor; "I don't see how you could expect to get a wife in any other way."

When he was plain Professor Thompson, Lord Kelvin invented the mirror galvanometer and siphon recorder, which made submarine telegraphy commercially practicable. It is related that one day when he was engaged on his deep-sea soundings work, he was discovered by a visitor experimenting with a long coil of wire. "What is that for?" enquired the visitor, pointing to the wire. "Making sounds," replied the professor. "Ah," said the guest, jocularly, "what kind of note does it give off?" "The deep C, of course," came the answer, like a shot, accompanied by the well-known twinkle in the professor's eye.

Not many years ago there was a veteran teacher in an Ontario high school who often made his classes wince under the lash of his bitter sarcasm and ready wit. One day a little half-starved yellow cur strayed into the school and the boys thought they saw a chance to express their feelings toward "Fussy," who was temporarily absent from the room. The frightened mongrel was picked up, fitted with a pair of spectacles and tied yelping on the teacher's chair. "Fussy" entered the room, walked to the desk, calmly surveyed the work of his pupils, and then turning to them said pleasantly: "In my absence, I see you have held a business meeting and elected one of your number chairman."

The late Professor Blackie, who was familiar to everyone in the streets of Edinburgh, had long, venerable, white locks. He was one day accosted by a very dirty little bootblack, with his "Clean your boots, sir?" The professor was impressed by the grime on the boy's face. "I don't want my boots cleaned, my lad," said he, "but if you'll go and wash your face I'll give you sixpence." "A' richt, sir!" was the boy's reply. Then he went over to a neighboring fountain and fulfilled his part of the bargain. When he returned he held out his hand for the money. "Well, my lad," said the professor, "you have earned your sixpence. Here it is." "I dinna want it," replied the boy, with a self-important air. "Ye can keep it and get your hair cut."

It is scarcely credible that so faithful a servant and so good a courtier as John Brown of Balmoral could ever deliberately have kept his sovereign waiting, but the London "Tatler" relates an anecdote which shows that he had a very human side. Brown was very fond of fishing, and one day, when he had a fine salmon on his hook, there came a message from the castle on Deeside, desiring his presence at once. Queen Victoria was going for her afternoon drive, and it was Brown's duty to attend her, as he always did, sitting in the rumble of the carriage. "Tell Her Majesty that I'll be quickly," he said. But the salmon was strong and could not be landed at once. Another and more urgent message reached him. "Tell Her Majesty that I have a salmon on, but I'll be in in a few minutes." Still the salmon held out, and a third and imperative command arrived. "Tell Her Majesty," shouted Brown, "that it's not possible for me to leave without the salmon!" Nor did he. But whether the Queen knew enough of fishing and fishermen to appreciate the circumstances is not told.

They Are Still There.

"I had a lot of old mining stocks in the house," said a Detroiter who invests in most anything to oblige a friend, "and when I went last fall I took along a list of them. One day in a Nevada town I asked a real estate estate man if he had ever heard of the Red Bird mine.

"Certainly,—I used to own half of it," he replied.

"'What became of it?'

"'Well, it's the well in my back yard today, and a good one it makes. There was no extra charge for it when I bought the place. It's the only $2,000,000 well in town.'

"'And what about the Lone Tree mine?'

"'The Lone Tree? Oh! that hole has long been used to bury dead Chinamen in. Makes a $3,000,000 tomb for them, and the critters are almost glad to die.'

"'The Blue Hill? Let me see. Why, I believe some saloon keeper over at the Hills is using it for a cellar. It keeps lager beer cool the year round without ice. Makes a nice little cellar for a million dollars.'

"'There is one more. I want to ask about the American Eagle mine. Perhaps you have heard of it?'

"'You have come to the right man. That was my $4,000 pet mine. Yes, sir, I helped to sink that shaft myself, and it was honest work. We put it down at least six feet while floating the stock.'

"'Ever raise any ore?'

"'Not an ounce?'

"'And no dividends were ever paid?'

"'Not a penny.'

"'And what finally became of the mine?'

"'It's right back of the livery stable over there, and the man keeps his feed in it. The Golconda is up the street and is used for a dump, while the None Such is down the street and is used for a town lockup. The Nonpariel is over on that hill, the Monte Christo just to the left of that grove, and the Bottom Dollar——'

"But I had heard enough, said the Detroiter, "and I came home and traded all my shares off for a rat trap with two doors, and made a big bargain at that."—Detroit Free Press.

Ranchers for the Province.

Mr. J. C. Conlin, manager of the local branch of the wholesale house of Pither & Leiser, has just returned from an extended trip through the interior of the province, says the Vancouver Province. Mr. Conlin on his business tour had occasion to make a more or less extended stop in every part of the big interior and has a good idea of business conditions there. He states that times are good in the mountains and in the ranching districts of the line of railway, but the most important item of all that he brings is one full of good portent for British Columbia.

Mr. Conlin met several men from the Northwest Territories inspecting the possibilities of British Columbia, for farming and grazing lands. They were delegates from the late lead-owners in the Northwest who have sold their ranches and farms in that country to immigrants from the United States. If the delegates report favorably upon the prospects in British Columbia, a whole colony of their friends and neighbors will follow them here.

The prospective settlers are all men of means, having disposed of their Northwest properties to good advantage, and are willing to pay a good price for land that will suit them.

What they seek is good land and a more favorable climate than that of Alberta and the Northwest. The delegates are now going through the Okanagan and Nicola Valleys, and will afterwards inspect the land prospects through the Fraser Valley, Chilliwack and the Delta.

Peauquette Hanged.

The sentence of death passed upon Louis Peauquette for the murder of Alfred Legere at Notch Hill was carried out this morning in the presence of the jail officials and a few others. The Rev. Father Michels was in attendance upon the unfortunate man at an early hour and until the very last administered spiritual consolation to him.

Promptly at 8 o'clock, Radcliffe, the hangman, bound the prisoner's arms and with a firm step and demeanour Peauquette walked to the scaffold. Beyond trembling he gave no sign of emotion. After the rope was adjusted the bolt was quickly drawn and the doomed man was launched into eternity. The pulse caused to beat in 8½ minutes and the heart four minutes later. Thirteen minutes after the drop fell, Dr. Wade, the jail surgeon, pronounced life extinct.

The usual formal inquest was held and the jury, consisting of J. Smith, (foreman), C.S. Stevens, G. T. Mallery, F. E. Armstrong, J. H. Wilson and J. T. Robinson, returned the usual verdict.—Kamloops Sentinel.
