WELCOMED HOME THE VETERAN

Nelson Does Honor to Her First Returning Hero From the South African War.

ALEXANDER S. LEE ARRIVES FROM THE SCENE OF ACTION

Alexander S. Lee, the first Nelson volunteer to reach home from the South African war, arrived here yesterday afternoon on the steamer Moyie. His reception was enthusiastic if somewhat informal, but Lee was made to understand that his Nelson friends were glad to have him home again and fully appreciated the fact of his having sacrificed a year of his life in a service where the rewards were few and the hardships many. He wore the active service jacket and trousers, topped off by a Scotch bonnet. The returned volunteer looked exceedingly well and is in perfect health. He came through the campaign without a scratch and was one of the very few men in the first contingent who never lost a day through sickness.

The Moyie arrived here yesterday afternoon over an hour ahead of time. This threw the arrangements for a reception all out of kilter, and about the time the reception committee and the militia company was preparing for the proceedings the whistles along the lake front announced the approach of the steamer. A mile up the lake the Moyie, which carried big flags at bow and stern in addition to the ordinary burgee, opened with a long blast from her whistles. This was taken up by the Kokanee and International and by the mills on the water front. The din drew 300 or 400 people to the wharf in a few minutes, and when the steamer tied up a ringing cheer went up for the returned volunteer. Lee shook hands all round and was then taken to the armory, where the militiamen of the city held a reception.

Contrary to the usual rule among the Canadian volunteers, Lee enjoyed his year in Africa. There were numerous drawbacks of course, but he was fortunate in escaping wounds and illness, and after becoming hardened to campaigning, the experience was pleasant for one with a taste for soldiering. Lee doesn't want any more service in Africa but he is quite willing to go to China or any other foreign country should volunteers be asked for. The Canadian regiment acquitted itself creditably and was put into places where good stuff was required, thereby indicating the confidence reposed in them by lord Roberts and lesser generals. They achieved a lasting reputation as foragers too. Soon after their arrival in Africa some wag called the Canadians "The Thousand Thieves" and the name stuck to them all over Africa. If there had been any loot in the country the Canadians would have brought back most of it, but the vast majority of Boers were so poor that in nine houses out of ten there was nothing as valuable as a pot of jam. Apparently most of the Boers seemed to live on corn meal and milk with mutton. The ordinary kitchen furniture consisted largely of a three-legged iron pot and few houses in the rural districts had even sugar. Lee sizes the Boer up as incorrigibly lazy and good for nothing. He has seen many fine farms which have been in the one family for several generations and all the ground under actual cultivation would be a few acres under the homestead. The balance of the land would be used for grazing, farmers evidently figuring out that this was less trouble. All the Boers seemed to want was the actual necessities of life and there were no signs about any of the farmers' houses to indicate that they ever aspired to even trifling luxuries. As the troops passed through the country the Boer women were willing to sell any king of supplies they possessed to the soldiers, and so far as he saw had but little of the antipathy to the British as ascribed to them.

Lee was at Paardeburg when Cronje capitulated. The Nelson man was serving with the Maxim gun squad under captain Hodgins, and they had their weapon on an eminence from which splendid practice could be had. During the siege of Cronje's laager the Maxim disabled one Boer gun and played with deadly effect on the trenches. Some of the troops wanted to storm the laager with the bayonet, but lord Roberts would not permit this because of the loss of life that would be entailed needlessly, as he had a cordon of 70,000 men around the Boer entrenchment, and the latter must give in when they realized this fact. A few days passed around until on the evening of the anniversary of Majuba Hill Roberts sent a message to Cronje reminding him of the state of affairs and demanding surrender on the following day. Next morning the whole line was awake to watch developments. When enough light was had to commence firing sniping began along the British line and a gun or two was fired to remind the Boers that there were 60 or 70 British cannon outside ready to open fire. Then the white flag went up and a couple of men came out with their hands in the air. When it was seen that the white flag was respected, for the British had been fooled so many times that they no longer ceased fire when the peace signal was raised, the Boers came trooping out of the laager. "They seemed to rise out of the earth," says Lee, "like the fairies coming through the floor in a pantomime. The whole lot trooped out in front of the trenches and lined up there without arms. It was really one of the most remarkable spectacles of the war. When the troops started in to loot the laager they discovered that the Canadians had stolen a march. At break of day 60 or 70 of our men had crawled over into the Boer camp and pillaged the wagons. They were returning loaded with sacks of provisions when the balance of the outfit were just starting in."

After Paardeburg Lee marched to Bloemfontein, then to Johannesburg and Pretoria. Here he left the regiment with major Hodgins who has a snug berth on the railroad under construction to parallel the Netherlands road. Major Hodgins has charge of a 70-mile section and is not likely to return to Nelson for some time at least, as there will probably be considerable railroad building in the new territory.

Lee states that much of the sickness and discomfort of the campaign arose out of the provisions and drinking water. When the troops got ahead of the transports they were in bad shape for food, on one occasion the ration for three days being a handful of ground indian corn per day. All the men carried the emergency ration issued by the British commissariat, not the bunkum article sent out from Canada, and this came in handy. One half of the tin contained four ounces of meat extract and meal and the other part held a cake of choclate prepared with milk and sugar. It was a serious offence to touch this ration without special orders but Lee took chances on it three times. The first occasion was when the gun squad was left on a kopje for the best part of 24 hours without provisions and when the men were examined the chief officer expressed the opinion that they were justified. The other two occasions when Lee bolted his emergency rations were on the long march to Bloemfontein when the men were expected to do 40 miles a day on a handful of meal. He got three and seven days C. B. for these offences and "confined to barracks" on the march is not the joke it would appear to be, for a deal of dirty work while the balance of the regiment sleeps is involved. Often the food served out could not be cooked because of a total lack of fuel.

A Boer's farmhouse with wooden floors or doors was a gilt-edged snap for the soldiers, who carried off anything which could be burned and might be seen on the march all next day packing bundles of sticks with which to cook dinner at night. Lee further believes that the service camp kettle was responsible for a good share of the enteric fever. It was so constructed that each kettle had several seams which caught grease. When fuel was so scarce that the soldiers could not get enough to more than warm up a kettle for tea it was out of the question to boil water with which to cleanse the kettle properly, and many scores of them became foul and disseminated the corruption which bred fevers. There was comparatively little African or malarial fever in the army.

The water was unusually bad and Lee tells an amusing story in connection with one camping place. There was a tiny pond at this spot and the brigade which had preceded the Canadians had bathed in it, washed their clothes, and the transport mules had wallowed in the pond until it was a startling sight. The Canadians came along next day however, did their washing and took the water for cooking purposes. While they were in camp the City Imperial Volunteers, a swagger volunteer corps from London came along, and when Lee was at the pond one of the London swells walked down to the pond with a shirt in one hand and a piece of scented soap in the other. As he looked at the turbid water and saw the hoof marks, he observed in tones of deepest disgust, "good gracious, must we really wash our clothes in the water those beastly mules have been drinking." The average English volunteers were practically useless, some of the Imperial Yeomanry being unable to saddle their mounts.

The trip home was by no means uneventful. An order had been issued that the 350 or 400 men could have no liquor, but the stewards of the Idaho had laid in enough liquor ostensibly to supply the officers' mess to keep the whole outfit gloriously drunk all the way home. There was no difficulty about procuring booze, the only requisite being the price. The Idaho had 250 Boer prisoners to discharge at St. Helena, and guards were kept till the steamer touched there. After that the men did as they pleased and there was a genuine hot time aboard. The volunteers slept all day in the sun on deck and raised "Ned" all night 'tween decks. At Halifax the whole outfit was dined by the city, and then at the garrison barracks, a feature of the latter entertainment being forty hogsheads of beer ranged about the wall. The contingent was fairly overwhelmed by the citizens, buttons, straps and rifles being taken from them right and left.

Private Lee's discharge from active service dates from November 10th, when he will have been under arms for one year and 18 days.

Manuscripts of Mukden.

ST. PETERSBURG, November 8.—Learned men of this city or planning a scientific expedition to examine the immense number of manscripts at Mukden discovered by Russian troops, among them being ancient Greek and Roman documents, supposedly taken by the Mongolians on their retreat from the Occident. VAN HORNE SAILS FOR CUBA

TO SECURE TRANSPORTATION LINES ON THE ISLAND.

The Company He Represents Capitalized for Three Million Dollars.

PHILADELPHIA, Pennsylvania, November 8.—Following a meeting of New York, Philadelphia and Canadian capitalists in this city last night sir William van Horne, chairman of the board of directors of the Canadian Pacific Railway company, and his son, R. B. Van Horne, of Montreal, sailed from here today on the steamer Admiral Sampson for Santiago where they will make an effort to secure options on all horse and trolley lines in Cuba and also on all sugar plantations on the island.

The departure of the two men was the result of the permanent organization at last night's meeting of the Cuba company with a capital of $3,000,000. Sir William presided at the meeting, and others present besides his son were William Elkins and Thomas Dolan of this city. R. A. C. Smith, president of the Cuba Mail Steamship Company and Percival Farquharson of New York, and Dr. T. W. Sheppard and M. L. Evans of Montreal. The entire capital stock of the company it is said by those interested has been subscribed.

A Steamship Trust.

BALTIMORE, Maryland, November 8.—Rumors were current today concerning a combination of trans-Atlantic steamship companies which will involve several companies and many million of dollars. It was said the Atlantic Transportation Company, which operates lines of steamships between New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore and London, will be part of the combination. Bernard N. Baker, president of the company, said: "I have nothing to give out." Details of the deal are carefully guarded, but it is understood the stockholders of the Atlantic Transportation Company will receive more than $200 per share for their holdings in the event of a consummation of the deal.

German Cruelty.

BERLIN, November 8.—The papers continue to print letters from German soldiers in China showing the terrible atrocities committed by German troops. A letter printed today describes the capture of a certain village. Bayonets were fixed and a lieutenant was commanded to shoot down or bayonet everybody in sight. During the night many Chinese were killed, including a woman and child.

Will Come to Victoria.

MONTREAL, November 8.—Corporal Blythe of the first Canadian contingent, who was granted his diploma from the Congregational college while on active service, has been appointed pastor of the Congregational church, Victoria. He will enter upon his duties next year.

A Steamer Wrecked.

SAN FRANCISCO, November 8.—The Australian steamer Olga, captain Descovitxch, went ashore in a heavy fog tonight in front of the United States life station near the Cliff House, a short distance south of the entrance to San Francisco bay. The steamer went ashore at low tide, broadside on. She lies in a bad position. Tugs have gone to her assistance. The crew is safe. The Olga is from South Soura Bay, Java, with a cargo of sugar. She is a vessel of 2055 net tonnage, 340 feet long, 45 feet beam.

Dewet Gets It in the Leg.

PRETORIA, by rail to Charleston, Natal, November 7.—General Dewet has been wounded in the leg in a fight with the troops of general Knox at Rensburg drift. According to native reports the Boer commander narrowly escaped capture.

Made His Fortune in Theatricals.

Frank Gardner, the American living in London who paid $500 for a seat at the monster benefit for the Galveston sufferers, arranged by sir Henry Irving, and has engaged Tod Sloan to buy a racing stable for him and ride his horses after he has them, made his great fortune in Australia and South Africa. He was at one time a theatrical manager in control of a spectacular play, which was exhibited in the smaller cities, and afterward traveled with an actress known as Lizzie May Ulmer, who became his wife. She was acting in Australia when her husband made some fortunate mining investments. Later they went to London to live, and there Mr. Gardner became associated with Barney Barnato, then at the height of his prosperity. Through this connection Mr. Gardner much increased his already large fortune, and today he is worth many millions. He gave $5000 to the hospital ship Maine, and became associated with most of the Americans who thought that philanthropic vessel was going to carry them into English society. Mr. Gardner is the last to survive of the men closely associated with Barney Barnato in the days of his greatest success.

Germans Delighted.

BERLIN, November 8.—German government circles are all delighted at president McKinley's re-election. The United States embassy today received numerous expressions to that effect. Everybody is discussing the results. Dr. Von Hollenben, the German ambassador to the United States, who is now in this city, said to the correspondent of the Associated Press about the result: "We all rejoice over it."

Dr. Barth, the Freisinnige leader, said; "I consider McKinley's election, all things considered, the best result. Although I cannot endorse his imperialistic tendency, yet I regard his election as most conducive to the interests of general civilization when compared with the results which Mr. Bryan's election would have brought."

Parade and Smoking Concert.

The Nelson Rifle Company was to have had a torchlight parade last night in honor of the return of A. S. Lee, but at the last moment the band failed to materialize and the program was cancelled. It is the intention to hold the parade at 7:30 o'clock tonight and to give a smoking concert at the opera house at 8 o'clock. Private Lee is expected to relate some of his experiences in Africa and the affair promises to be most enjoyable. The company will meet at the armory sharp at 7:30 o'clock.

It will also provide 3,500,000 marks for building a harbor at Dantzig. At Kiel a large anchorage and harbor for warships will be built, together with a harbor for the torpedo boats, capable of holding sixty of the largest. At Wilhelmshaven two immense dry docks will be built.

ST. PETERSBURG, November 8.—The Russian government intends sending an agent to the United States to study the homestead legislation with a view to its partial application to the peasant communities.

HOW THEY HAVE IT SIZED UP

Political Leaders in Both Countries Issue Statements on the Result.

FOSTER OF ST. JOHN AND BRYAN OF NEBRASKA EXPLAIN

ST. JOHN, New Brunswick, November 8.—Hon. George E. Foster has issued a statement ascribing his defeat to too much Blairism and Tarteism. Continuing, he says: "Don't imagine we are discouraged. Not a bit of it. Laurier is a skin disease, and like the measles must have its run, but the body politic will return to sane conditions. Ontario's condemnation is the grim spectre which haunts the feast even now, a ghostly reminder of what is ultimately in store for the pledge breakers and the sham purists."

In conclusion, Mr. Foster urges members of his party to draw closer and at once begin a contest for correct principles, consistent action and prudent administration at Ottawa.

May Retire in Favor of Tupper.

OTTAWA, November 8.—It is said that George Kidd, Conservative, elected in Carlton county, a Conservative stronghold, will retire in order to make room for either Tupper or Foster. It is also stated that sir Charles may run in either Yale-Cariboo or Burrard.

How English Papers View It.

LONDON, November 8.—The morning papers irrespective of party express unbounded satisfaction at sir Wilfrid Laurier's victory. The Daily News utilizes it to read a lesson to the British anti-war Liberals and says: "It is a remarkable fact which Liberals nearer home would do well to ponder, that no more eloquent statements of the justice of the British cause have been made than by sir Wilfrid Laurier."

All the papers discuss the coincidence of three notable cases in which the swing of the political pendulum has been arrested, and the Daily News remarks: "Does it portend a new factor in democratic politics? The only safe conclusion is that what has happened is not because lord Salisbury, Mr. McKinley and sir Wilfrid Laurier have discovered a new way of governing without mistakes, but because in all three countries there has been a stirring of national life to new and great issues and because the opposition parties have been found out of touch with national feeling."

The Daily Chronicle believes that sir Wilfrid Laurier owes his success to the fact tnat no man has yet arisen to fill the place of the late sir John Macdonald.

The Daily Mail points out that England has thus far failed to make any returns for Canadian loyalty and urges that some compensation be made at once.

Bryan Makes a Statement.

LINCOLN, Nebraska, November 8. W. J. Bryan tonight gave out the following statement concerning the election: "The result was a surprise to our opponents as well as to those who voted our ticket. It is impossible to analyze the returns until they are more complete, but speaking generally we have gained in the large cities and have lost in the smaller cities and in the country. The Republicans were able to secure tickets or passes for their voters who were away from home and gave them considerable advantage. We have no way of knowing at this time how much money was spent in the purchase of votes and in colonization, but while these would account for some of the Republican gains they could not account for the widespread increase in the Republican vote.

"The prosperity argument was probably the most potent one used by the Republicans. They compared present conditions with the panic times of '93 to '96 and this argument had weight with those who did not stop to consider the reasons for the change. The appeal, 'stand by the president while the war is on,' had a great deal of influence among those who did not realize that war against a doctrine of self-government in the Philippines must re-act upon us in this country. We have made an honest fight upon an honest platform and having done our duty as we saw it, have nothing to regret."

Fifteen Million Dollar Mine.

DENVER, Colorado, November 8.—Although the reported sale of the Portland mine is denied at the office of the company in Colorado Springs, it is generally believed in mining circles that this great Cripple Creek property will pass into the hands of an English syndicate, consisting of the Venture corporation, the Exploration, Company and Warner, Beft & Company, the South African diamond mine owners and investors in Mexico mines and railways. It is said that the price to be paid is $15,000,000. It is believed locally that the Portland will be consolidated with Stratton's Independence Limited. Such a consolidation would create probably the greatest gold producing property in the world.

Northern Pacific Prosperity.

NEW YORK, November 8.—The directors of the Northern Pacific railway at a meeting today declared an extra dividend of one per cent on the common stock of the company. In February the board declared a regular semi-annual dividend of one per cent with one per cent extra. In August the regular semi-annual dividend was declared, but an extra declaration was omitted. Today's extra dividend of one per cent brings the total of the year up to four per cent.

For Free Cuba.

HAVANA, November 8.—The committee on rules of the Cuban constitutional convention is discussing the advisability of holding secret sessions after permanent organization has been effected, which will probably take place at the reopening of the convention next Monday. Senores Capote, Yamayo and Rivera are the most prominent candidates for the presidency of the convention. La Tucha says: "The difficulty will not be in drawing up a constitution, but reaching an agreement as to the relations which are to subsist between Cuba and the United States. We take it that the convention will agree on three fundamental points, namely, no relations with other governments except through the United States, no power to negotiate loans and no authority to upset peace and order."

The Truth of the Railroad Stealings.

OTTAWA, November 8.—The following statement was made today by one of the officials of the C.P.R. regarding the recent ticket thefts in British Columbia: "The facts are that two conductors were in collusion with a hotel runner to re-sell used tickets or tickets already traveled on at reduced rates and divide receipts. There is no truth in the reports that thousands of dollars were secured before the syndicate was discovered. Neither is it a fact that detectives from Pinkerton's agency were engaged on the case."

To Promote Commerce.

PARIS, November 8.—The customs committee of the chamber of deputies met today. The opinion prevails that the re-election of president McKinley will lead to a Franco-American commercial convention being shortly submitted to the Washington senate, whose vote is awaited before the measure will be brought before the French chamber.

Increases in Population.

WASHINGTON, November 8.—The population of the state of Maine as announced by the census bureau is 694,466, as against 661,086 in 1890. This is an increase of 33,380, or five per cent. The population of Massachusetts as officially announced is 2,805,346, as against 2,238,943 in 1890. This is an increase of 566,403, or about 25.2 per cent.

DAVID MARK CARLEY, who was selected as the head push of the Conservative party in Nelson at the opera house night before last, has declared that he will only follow the leadership of Honest John Haggart of South Lanark.

THE Rossland Miner, which professes to be a Liberal organ, is somewhat galled to find that only one man in Rossland agrees with it politically, and that man happens to be "Life-Long-Conservative" Alexander Dick.

IT was C. P. Rism and not Blairism or Tarteism that knocked out George E. Foster in the city of St. John. The people are awakening to the fact that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company wields altogether too much political power in Canada, and they will keep in office men like Andrew G. Blair of New Brunswick until railways like the Canadian Pacific either go out of politics or into the hands of the government.

NELSON claims to be the third town in British Columbia. Vancouver easily ranks first, and none can dispute Victoria's place as second. Rossland, New Westminster, Nanaimo, and Nelson are in a bunch, but Nelson must be given first place among the four. She not only is third in population, but third in everything that shows a growing, progressive town. She has more miles of passable roads, sidewalks, sewers, and more blocks of permanently improved streets; more water connections, more electric light connections, and more sewer connections than either of the others above mentioned. She has finer and larger retail and a greater number of wholesale houses than either Rossland, New Westminster, or Nanaimo. She contributes more revenue to both the Dominion and provincial governments than either of the others, and has more railway and steamboat tonnage. And, above all, she has the finest Salvation Army band on the Pacific Coast.

WHERE was the Rossland Miner when the miners of Kootenay were fighting for the eight-hour day? It was in the camp of the enemy. Where was the same Rossland Miner when the contest was on for member of the legislature? Did it support the candidate in the Rossland riding who was pledged against the repeal of the eight-hour law? No; it was again in the camp of the enemy. Its owners and editors have not been changed. If they were not the friends of the miners and laboring men of Kootenay six months and a year ago, it surely is not unfair to say that their professed friendship now should be taken with a grain of salt.

THE report from Ottawa that sir Charles Tupper may be a candidate in either Burrard or Yale-Cariboo may be true. If Burrard wants him, she can have him and welcome. Yale-Cariboo does not want him, and will not have him. This is not because of any personal feeling against the veteran. There are few men in this constituency but will admit that sir Charles Tupper has been a power in Canada's political life, probably not always for the best, but still a great power. None will say that he is lacking in either courage or ability; and he has made a magnificent fight for a man of his age. But Yale Cariboo has within her limits her own sons able and willing to battle for her interests at Ottawa.

SOME of the Liberals of Nelson are making threats of what they will do to the workingmen hereafter, because the workingmen have placed a candidate in the field for member of parliament. This is on a par with the threats made by some of the workingmen against men who have the courage to support the candidate of their choice. This is a free country, and intolerant Liberals and intolerant Labor party men will find that their threats will have little influence in future elections. The great majority of the people are not politicians, and they are not influenced to an appreciable extent by the vaporing individuals who imagine that party politics is the chief industry in this great but undeveloped country.

THE French-Canadians of Quebec seem to imagine that they have the same right as the people of other sections of Canada have, that is, to vote as they please. This is not at all satisfactory to the people who imagine that all people should think and vote as they do.

THERE will be just two Labor party men in the next parliament of Canada, provided, of course, that the candidate of that party in this constituency is not successful. It would be a fitting recognition of the party to offer a seat in the cabinet to the leader of the two, that is, Ralph Smith, coal miner, of Nanaimo, British Columbia.

VOTE FOR....

A. H. MacNEILL

of Rossland

Candidate of the Liberal-Conservative Party for Member of the House of Commons for Yale-Cariboo.

PLATFORM

Adopted by the Liberal-Conservative Party in Convention at Revelstoke, September 15th, 1900

We, the delegates of the Liberal-Conservative party of Yale-Cariboo constituency, in convention assembled, reaffirm the principles of the party, and more particularly that cardinal principle, protection to home industries, and that that principle be carried out so that all sections of the country shall equally share its benefits.

The one industry on which the prosperity of this constituency is almost wholly dependent is mining; and we believe that our mining industries are as fairly entitled to protection as the manufacturing industries of Eastern Canada; therefore, we advocate that the duties on lead and lead products be increased, so that they shall be as high as those now imposed by the United States on the same articles.

That the output of the precious metal mines is largely increasing, therefore we favor the establishment of a mint, so that the specie in circulation shall be that of our own instead of that of a foreign country.

We advocate the restriction of the immigration of Chinese and Japanese, and all classes who cannot become good citizens of the Dominion of Canada, and suggest the adoption of the principles of the Natal Act.

British Columbia has not now the representation in the federal parliament that she is entitled to: therefore we advocate that when the redistribution of seats is made that this constituency shall be given representation according to its population.

That it augurs well for the success of the party that Hugh John Macdonald has decided to leave the field of provincial politics to take part in the larger one that affects the people of the whole of Canada.

Everybody who remembers Mr. Whistler's feud with sir William Eden, apropos of lady Eden's portrait, will be interested in hearing that to the question, "Is there one living artist whose name will live forever?" sir William has just replied in an English magazine with the name of Whistler.

Alderman Green, the new lord mayor of London, is most proud of the fact that he helped largely to give London the Tower bridge. As chairman of the bridge house committee, he had charge of the report which led to the building of the finest bridge which has ever been thrown across the Thames. He took an active part, too, in passing the proposals for the electric lighting of the city.

The question whether William Waldorf Astor, Junior, is an Englishman or an American has been finally settled by the New York courts. Young Astor, whose father is now a British subject, was selected as executor and trustee of the will of John Jacob Astor, and the surrogate has sanctioned the selection. As only American citizens can have this privilege, young Astor's nationality is no longer in doubt.

Mr. Goschen's retirement from the British admiralty is attributed by the German newspapers to his having insisted that captain prince Louis of Battenberg should represent the admiralty at the funeral of captain the honorable Maurice Bourke. The prince refused on the ground that he was of royal rank, and was backed by the queen. Mr. Goschen insisted and had his way, on account of the approaching election, but the queen demanded that he should be retired.

The most independent literary and political journal in Germany is doubtless the Zukunft, edited by Maximilian Harden, who never hesitates to criticise the government. Recently he was again sentenced to six months' imprisonment for an article entitled "The Struggle with the Dragon," and the whole edition containing this article was confiscated. Harden, who is a brilliant litterateur, had only recently completed six months' imprisonment for an attack on the kaiser entitled "The Pudel Prince."

President Loubet has just been left a legacy of thirty thousand dollars by a grateful old friend, madame Perret. For more than forty-five years M. Loubet kept up friendly relations with madame Perret's husband, who was his neighbor at the president's native place, Marsanne, and in his capacity as lawyer had managed all M. Perret's legal affairs, drawn his business documents, and generally been his life-long counselor and friend. After the death of Perret's son, in 1893, Mme. Perret devoted herself to charitable work, and M. Loubet was charged with putting the donations into legal form. These amounted to about six hundred thousand dollars, one of them going to found an orphanage at Collonges, and another a hospital for convalescents at Lyons. About the same amount will remain after the legacies named in Mme. Perret's will are paid, and this also is to be applied to charity.

Lady William Beresford, formerly Lillian, duchess of Marlborough, has brought action against the young duke of Marlborough to recover the money which she spent in improving Blenheim palace during the life-time of the last duke. The matter came up originally when the present duke succeeded to the title, but owing to the friendly relations existing between the duke and his step-mother, it was temporarily arranged. Since the duke's marriage to Consuelo Vanderbilt, it is rumored an estrangement has grown up between lady Beresford and her step-son. On more than one occasion, it is said, the young American duchess snubbed her countrywoman (for lady Beresford was formerly Mrs. Louis Hammersley of New York), until the latter determined she could not submit to such treatment any longer, and she now asks the law to compel her step-son to return the amounts she spent on Blenheim.

Oscar Hammerstein, the indefatigable New York theatrical manager, holds the American record for building play-houses. Only a few weeks ago his seventh theatre, the Republic, was opened by James A. Herne, in his play, "Sag Harbor," and now he announces that he will crown his career by erecting a home for melodrama which will eclipse any theatre of its kind in the United States. Two years ago, it will be remembered, his costly building, Olympia, including a first-class theatre, a vaudeville theatre, a concert hall and a roof-garden, was taken away from him by his creditors, and he was left practically penniless. But he had plenty of friends who were willing to give him a helping hand, and since then he has erected the Victoria and the Republic, which have proved big financial successes. Among the other theatres which this intrepid manager has built in New York are the Harlem Grand Opera House, the Columbus, the Harlem Music Hall, and Koster & Bial's.

LONDON'S DOG CEMETERY.

Laddie, the Scotch collie that mourned himself to death for his master, lord Airlie, who was killed in a leading cavalry charge against the Boers in South Africa, now lies in London's dog cemetery, at Hyde Park.

Laddie, who had long grieved over his master's absence, seemed to know the full meaning of the bringing home of lord Airlie's remains in a casket. Then the faithful dog lay down beside the flag-wrapped coffin, his great brown eyes filled with the grief he could not speak. Laddie did not care to live in a world without his master, and in a way almost human seemed to understand that death meant a last good-bye.

Lord Airlie's coolie was buried amid a myriad of tiny tombstones which mark the graves of dogs in this unique cemetery. It is a tiny place, merely the yard to the keeper's lodge, at Victoria Gate, but there must be at least three hundred graves here. The first one was made nineteen years ago, and now there is scarce space left to bury a canary bird.

A good two hours' time may be spent in reading the epitaphs. The tiny slabs and monuments that are here erected to the memory of departed bow-wows represent not alone a foible of the rich, but throw light upon certain phases of human nature not met with every day. One bit of granite makes you smile, it betrays such frailty of mortal mind; another wins your respect through its very humanity.

Here are some of the most interesting epitaphs. They tell their own story:

"Witt,"
The best friend I ever had.
Died June, 1895.

"Betty."
And when at length my own life's work is o'er,
I hope to find her waiting as of yore,

In Memory of "Jim"
A little dog, with a big heart.

"Kitts."
Born June 11, '93.
Died February 25, '95.
"After life's fitful fever she sleeps well."

My
"Bijou."
Died 2nd September,
1893.
Aged 6 years and 3 months.
"Not one of them is forgotten before God.—Luke xii., 6.

In Memoriam.
My Dear Little Cat
"Chinchilla."
Lovely, loving, and most dearly loved.

"Rex."

For nine years the faithful friend of Lady Bancroft.
Erected by his sorrowing mistress
In loving memory of "Grip."
Died April 19, 1898.
Aged 15 years and 11 days.
Goodbye, but not forever.

Faithful "Winnie," beatiful "Pat."
Ever remembered friends to "Bob"
over the way.
They were lovely and pleasant in their lives, and in death they are not divided.

To my gentle,
loving "Daisy."
Died July 28th, 1899.
And in my dreams I see thee watching on that blissful shore,
To give me joyous greeting beyond the golden gate.

"Joe Follet."
"Surely he was not a dog only; he was human."

"Minnie."
14 years' constant friendship.
"But who with thee will hold the former place?
Thine image what new friendship can efface?"

"Our Robin."
Died July 30th, 1899.
Aged seven and a half years.
Good night, dear little one.

To my dear
"Moussoo."
There are men both good and wise, who say
That dumb creatures we have cherished here below Shall give us kindly greeting when we pass the golden gate.

"Pompey."
The favorite dog of ——
"In life the firmest friend,
The first to welcome,
Foremost to defend."
—Byron.
10th November, 1895.

Love's Tribute
To Love.
Dear Little "Tommy."
Sweet Little "Skye."
Septemper, 1882.

"Kulach."
8-3-'95.
Fram's Only Love.

In memory of our
dear old friend
"Smut."
"The first to welcome."

"Felis."
Oct., 1805.
"On Shannon's shore, where Donnas foams,
My spirit free now nightly roams."

Poisoned July 1, 1895.
God restore thee to me; so prayeth his ever loving mistress.

Dear Poodle

NEW FREE MILLING CAMP

On Whaleback Mountain.

Whaleback mountain, eleven miles east of Nelson on Five-mile creek, promises to become a free-milling camp within the next year or two. Charles Munroe and D. T. Mowat have returned to the city after spending several months on the Orcadian group and brought in samples which have been assayed here. One sample went $19.27, while two others claimed to be fairly representative of the property went over $90. The group includes the Orcadian, Viana, Denmark and Norsman claims, and there are but four other claims staked on the hill. The Newsboy property is two miles away. The Orcadian group has a number of veins, three of which are free-milling running east and west with a dip to the north. One of these shows 20 feet of quartz near discovery, while the others on the group average 18 inches to four feet. The free milling quartz is identical in appearance with that from Morning mountain. On intersecting veins the quartz is charged with galena, but no assays have been made to determine the merits of this deposit.

Messrs Munroe and Mowat went into the Whaleback country this summer and prospected much of the hill. The actual work accomplished was confined to stripping the large vein, but the prospectors are enthusiastic over their locations and will go back as soon as the snow is off and work all summer on the Orcadian.
