ASSOCIATED PRESS REPORTS

The Latest From the Yukon.

Seattle, March 2.—The steamer City of Seattle arrived from Alaska yesterday after a stormy trip. She had a number of passengers, who brought late news from the interior. G. T. Howard, who left Rampart City about December 15th, brings a story of a party of ten tenderfeet, who started out late in October to go from Rampart City to the Koydkak river. They employed John Folger, an old-time miner of the lower Yukon, to guide them. After they had been three days on the trail a snowstorm came up and three of them turned back, reaching Rampart City safely. Two days later another blizzard came up and the thermometer dropped to 42 degrees below zero. Late in November a party arrived from the Koydkak and reported that the men under Folger had not arrived. Mr. Howard does not know their names. W. P. McDonald, a United States mail carrier, who left Circle City on January 23rd, brought sixty pounds of mail. He says that the first mail from St. Michael, since navigation closed last fall, will reach Dawson within ten days.

"Jim" Hill May Build Steamships.

Seattle, March 2.—The Post-Intelligencer says there is understood to be one of the greatest deals on hand, as affecting the interests of the northwest Pacific coast, that has yet been accomplished. It is the building of several new steamships, which will be put on a line between Seattle and the Orient, by the Great Northern Railway Company. This is supposed to be the real significance of the present visit to the sound of president Hill and other prominent railway officials. It is the intention to run the service direct from Seattle to Yokohama and Hong Kong, with other vessels going to Vladivostock. For this it will be necessary to have at least six vessels to give a monthly service. There will be $10,000,000 spent in this enterprise, most of which will go to purchasing and building vessels. It is believed that it will be at least a year before the line will be in operation.

Experiments to Cure Pneumonia.

Berlin, March 2.—Professor Wasserman, one of professor Koch's ablest pupils, is believed to have discovered a new serum for the cure of pneumonia. He inoculated rabbits with the pneumocus baccillus, which is generally believed to cause pneumonia, and with the serum thus gained he inoculated mice suffering from pneumonia. A subsequent series of experiments showed that it was in the red marrow of the bones the anti-toxine is produced, and that red marrow taken from a human corpse after death from pneumonia and used as a serum will cure mice infected with that disease. Accordingly it is hoped that this serum will have the same satisfactory results on human beings.

Kipling Likely to Recover.

New York, March 2.—There were indications about the Grenoble hotel early today that the physicians and friends of Rudyard Kipling were feeling a degree of confidence, not heretofore experienced, that the sick man is progressing toward recovery. Dr. Janeway left the hotel about midnight, and had not returned up to 8 o'clock this morning. Drs. Dunham and Contand remained in the hotel, but did not visit the patient's apartments during the night. F. N. Doubleday, who had been a close watcher by the bedside, retired to his own room shortly after midnight, and has remained away from his self-appointed post up to the time of present writing. No bulletins been issued since midnight.

A Demand and a Capture.

Manila, March 2.—It is reported that Aguinaldo will only release the Spanish clerical prisoners upon condition that all landed and other properties they own shall be transferred to the rebels. Last night twelve rebels in two canoes were discovered paddling out from Paranque, when the cruiser Buffalo's searchlight was turned on the rebels, then they used a calicium light signal arranged with the picket boats. The searchlight was taken off and the rebels attempted to the cross bay, but a patrol overhauled them after a chase and took them prisoners to Manila.

An Independent Strawboard Trust.

Akron, Ohio, March 2.—There was practically closed in this city yesterday a deal for the combination of all independent strawboard factories in the country. P. H. Binnin of the Ohio mills is the chief promoter of the new scheme. Mr. Binnin states that the new company, which will be called the Western Strawboard Company, will have a capitalization of $5,000,000. It is thought here that the scheme is merely a plan to force the American Paper Company into buying out the independent factories.

One of the Family Not Ill.

New York, March 2.—Mr. Doubleday this morning announced the serious illness of two of Rudyard Kipling's children. They are the two girls, Josephine, six years old, and Elsie, three years. Josephine was taken sick the day after her father, and she has now been ill for nine days. She has pneumonia and has been in a somewhat serious condition. Almost immediately after she became sick she was taken from the hotel to the house of a friend. There Dr. Janeway has been treating her. Though she is not in great danger, her condition is serious. Elsie had a bronchial affection the day before yesterday, which was pronounced bronchitis, now it is pneumonia. She was isolated from her father's apartments and taken to a room in another part of the hotel. Her mother was allowed to visit her. The child's condition is not at all good, but Dr. Contand has been treating her since the beginning of the illness, and she is not dangerously ill. The boy, John, two years old, the youngest of the family, has not been allowed to visit either of his sisters or to enter his father's room. He is very well and shows no signs of any illness.

France Receives Warning.

Paris, March 2.—La Temps in its leader today points out that a stronger bond exists between England, the United States and Germany than most Frenchmen care to admit. The paper says that the American's forbearance towards Germany in the face of certain provocations and Germany's evident desire to make amends for her former appearance of hostility may be regarded as sufficient indication of such understanding. The article concludes with a warning that in view of the above it will be a dangerous undertaking for France to direct her policy toward an European coalition against England and America.

Secured a Week in Which to Plead.

New York, March 2—Roland Burnham Molineux, who stands indicted on a charge of murder in the first degree for the killing of Mrs. Katrine J. Adams, by sending poison to Harry Cornish, was brought from the Tombs into the general sessions court this morning for arraignment. He was a trifle pale, but imperturbable and as smiling as ever. The courtroom was packed with people anxious to get a glimpse of him. Mr. Works, counsel for Molineux, asked that one week's time be given the defence before pleading. Recorder Goff granted the request.

A Storm Causes Distress.

Leadville, Colorado, March 2.—Following a heavy snow fall for the last two days, a furious blizzard set in and has been in progress twenty-four hours. Trains from the east got in with difficulty, but the railroads are blocked west of this city. The South Park line and the Blue River roads are hopelessly snowed under and may not be opened for a month. A number of families in the interior are living on one meal a day, and that consists of bread, potatoes and water. No coal is to be had and people are digging timber out of the snow and cutting it up for fuel.

Tribute to Lord Herschel's Memory.

Washington, March 2.—The chaplain of the senate, in his invocation at the opening of today's session, paid a tribute to the memory of lord Farrer Herschel, of the joint high commission, who died in Washington yesterday. The prayer was ordered to be printed in the record. Beyond a decision to hold the funeral service in St. John's Episcopal church sometime Saturday afternoon, nothing has been determined regarding the funeral service.

Poisoners Sure of Their Victim.

Brooklyn, March 2.—The police here are endeavoring to unravel the mysterious poisoning case of which Miss Marie Ethel Limpany, a seventeen year old girl, was the selected victim. She received poisoned candy and cologne water containing vitrol, but became suspicious, and thereby saved her life. An examination of the stuff revealed the poison. A curious feature of the case is that crepe was hung on Miss Limpany's door, and notices of her death were pulblished in the daily papers.

Silver Advances Slightly.

New York, March 2.—There was a slight advance yesterday in silver quotations, the New York and San Francisco quotations being 59⅝c. Lead was quoted at $4.30 @ $4.35. There was no change in the selling price for smelters and smelters, $4 20 being quoted at the close.

Soldiers Killed in Railway Smash.

Jackson, Tennessee, March 2.—News has just been received of a disastrous wreck near Tupolo, on the Mobile & Ohio railroad. Six coaches with soldiers were overturned. Two were killed and six others seriously hurt.

Sweet Oil Will Cure Corns.

Did you ever suffer torment from a shoe tight in one spot? Here is a remedy for it. Apply sweet oil to the stocking where the rub comes. It is better than applying to the boot, because it softens the inside of the boot, where it is needed, instead of the outside. Sweet oil is an excellent household companion. It heals burns and bruises. Used in the form of baths it feeds the skin, prevents colds and gives flexibility to the muscles. Delicate people derive the greatest benefit from being rubbed with olive oil, and for fragile children it is invaluable, especially where there is any tendency to weakness of the chest. A soft corn may be cured by placing a tuft of cotton wool, saturated with olive oil, between the toes and renewing it every day. The corn will soon disappear. When the hair is dry and brittle and easily breaks off when brushed, a little olive oil well rubbed into the scalp every night will give nutriment to the hair glands and strengthen and increase the growth.

TWENTY THOUSAND DOLLARS

Is the Consideration Paid for a Group of Claims on Hall Creek.

Kaslo, March 1—The Bannockburn group of claims, on Hall creek, a tributary of Duncan river, has taken up no small amount of the mining recorder's attention during the past few days. In the first place, Philip McDonald, Neil McFadden and Daniel D. McPhail convey to Oliver T. Stone a three-quarters undivided interest in the Silver Bottom, Silver Reef, Buckeye, Evergreen, Iron Mask and Fossil, and a five-eighths interest in the Bannockburn claims. Of these McPhail contributes a one-eighth interest in the Bannockburn. The consideration named in the bill of sale is merely nominal. Then Henry Griffiths transfers to Alexander Smith another one-quarter interest in the same claims for the sum of $5000, of which $3000 is paid in cash, and the balance of $2000 in one year from February 21st, 1899. Then begins a series of transfers from O. T. Stone to various persons of the following interests: To E. H. Tomlinson, a one-quarter interest for $5000; to John M. Schwartz, a six-eightieth interest for $1500; to Dennis Miller, six-eightieths for $1500; to Jacob Bean, four-eightieths for $1000; to Robert J. Farrington, a three-eighttieths interest for $750; to Archibald Gutline, a ten-eigthieths interest for $2500; to Charles Ffolliott, six-eigthieths for $1500; and to Robert Irving of Kaslo, five-eigthieths for $1250. It will thus be seen that the sale is upon the basis of $20,000 for the entire group. The claims are said to be very promising and to have been the object of strict examination on the part of several of the purchasers.

There was a gala time at the Kaslo skating rink on Tuesday night. The occasion was the visit of the curlers and hockeyists from Sandon, who took the town by storm and were agreeably entertained by their hosts. The hockey match resulted finally in the victory of the Kaslo players, but the victory was not a walk-over. It was hotly contested from start to finish. The visitors were Hammond goal, Grierson point, McVickie cover point, with Gusty, D. Blackwood, Crawford and Cliffe as forwards. Kaslo's team in the same relative positions were Lovett, Moore, Dill, Young, Frost, Connelly and Hunter. Two goals in the first half went to Kaslo. In the latter half Sandon took two, and in playing off five minutes to each end, Kaslo won. The curling match was also won by the Kaslo rinks skipped by Waugh and Hall. The score at the conclusion was 17 to 15 in favor of the home curlers. The guests were entertained at a dance given at the Kaslo Auditorium and subsequently the Kaslo curlers and hockeyists sat down to a supper. About forty covers were laid and the feast of reason under the direction of W. E. Hodder was simply delightful. A more enjoyable entertainment has not been given in this city for many a month.

The curlers were in No. 1 rink: Kaslo—Waugh (skip), McKinnon, McLean and Moore. Sandon—Wilson (skip), Peters, Crawford and Brown. No. 2 rink: Kaslo—Hall (skip), Buchanan, Benzie and Boswell. Sandon — Grimmett (skip), Sewell, McLaughlin and Bucke.

Some fifteen or twenty ladies of Kaslo met in the council room of the city hall on Wednesday afternoon to consider the advisability of inviting Miss Livingstone to dellver her series of lectures upon cooking in Kaslo.

One of the demi-mondaine was arraigned before the police magistrate on Tuesday upon the charge of using noisy and abusive language on the public streets. A plea of guilty and the payment of a $5 fine prevented a washing of soiled linen that might have been sensational.

The member of the legislative assembly for the Slocan riding is expected to arrive in Kaslo from the capital city on Saturday evening.

It is reported that the small steamer Marion, which operated last season in the vicinity of Kuskanook in connectisn with the Crow's Nest Pass railway, has been purchased by the syndicate of purchasers, and will be put on Houser lake and the upper Duncan during the coming season.

Certificates of work have been issued for the mineral claims Hobson Jr., upon the affidavit of W. R. Winstead, and for the Silver Hill, upon the affidavit of Henry Roy.

Canada For Canadians.

[Toronto Star, February 23rd.]

Sir Charles Tupper struck a ringing note and one that will wake a responsive chord in the hearts of the people of Canada, who are thoroughly disgusted with the conduct of the United States, and especially with the cheek of the demands concerning the Alaskan boundary, which is the crowning insult of years of tariff hostility an unfriendliness. Self respect demands that Canada mark its resentment in such a manner as to bring the Republic to its senses, and at the same time promote Canada's trade, and keep our resources for the sole benefit of our own people. To keep our nickel for ourselves, our logs for our own mills, our fish for our own fishermen, and our silver, copper and gold for our own miners. We might even throw up the bonding privilege arrangement, and thus keep the trade for our own ports, and our own railways, even at some little temporary expense to ourselves. Canada can live within itself, and once we adopt that principle, the United States will begin to realize that some other white people live on this continent.

BRITISH STEAMER WRECKED

The Passengers and Crew Saved.

Tobermory, Scotland, March 2.—Investigation into the wreck of the British steamer Labrador, from St. John, New Brunswick, February 18th, for Liverpool, shows that she ran ashore about four miles from Skerryvore on Wednesday morning. Captain Erskine, her commander, has sent the following dispatch to the agents of the steamer at Liverpool: "Labrador ran on Mackenzie rock in a thick fog at 7 o'clock Wednesday morning, four miles from Skerryvore. Ship was caught amidships, the seas breaking over her. The passengers and crew were saved in the boats and by the German steamer Viking. No steamer is obtainable to return for the passengers. If the ship is not broken up we will endeavor to save the mails when a steamer obtained."

The Labrador had a good passage until Sunday, when she entered a fog bank and lost her bearings. Most of the passengers were still in bed when the steamer struck and there was much excitement. But the passengers were calmed by the assurance of the officers and captain, and the boats were lowered without a hitch and all on board left the steamer in safety. The passengers and crew lost everything they possessed. Captain Erskine endeavored to save the mails, but was obliged to abandon them owing to the vessel breaking to pieces. The women and children were put in the first boat in charge of the fourth officer, the other passengers were placed in the second boat under command of the second officer. The crew of the Labrador then took the other boats, and as they left the steamer the wheat was pouring into the sea from her hold. After three and a half hours the boats met the steamer Viking from Norway, which took them on board, though the condition was dangerous owing to the heavy swell, the seas breaking over the Viking's funnel. When the Labrador was last seen she was settling down by the stern.

The passengers of the wrecked steamer are full of praise for the Labrador's officers and crew and for the conduct of the captain of the Viking. The passengers on the Labrador have been accommodated at the hotels here and at private houses.

The owners of the Labrador have caused a tug and divers to be despatched to the scene of the wreck, in order to salvage the cargo of the steamer.

A RETORT TO KIPLING.

Henry Labouchere, in London Truth, has replied to Kipling's "The White Man's Burden" in a parody which we reprint following the poem by which it was suggested:

The White Man's Burden.

Take up the White Man's burden—
Send forth the best ye breed—
Go, bind your sons to exile
To serve your captives' need;
To wait, in heavy harness,
On fluttered folk and wild—
Your new-caught sullen peoples,
Half devil and half child.

Take up the White Man's burden—
In patience to abide,
To veil the threat of terror
And check the show of pride;
By open speech and simple,
An hundred times made plain,
To seek another's profit
And work another's gain.

Take up the White Man's burden—
The savage wars of peace—
Fill full the mouth of Famine,
And bid the sickness cease;
And when your goal is nearest
(The end for others sought)
Watch sloth and heathen folly
Bring all your hopes to naught.

Take up the White Man's burden—
No iron rule of kings,
But toil of serf and sweeper—
The tale of common things.
The ports ye shall not enter,
The roads ye shall not tread,
Go, make them with your living
And mark them with your dead.

Take up the White Man's burden,
And reap his old reward—
The blame of those ye better
The hate of those ye guard—
The cry of hosts ye humor
(Ah, slowly!) toward the light:—
"Why brought ye us from bondage,
Our loved Egyptian night?"

Take up the White Man's burden—
Ye dare not stoop to less—
Nor call too loud on Freedom
To cloke your weariness.
By all ye will or whisper,
By all ye leave or do,
The silent sullen peoples
Shall weigh your God and you.

Take up the White Man's burden!
Have done with childish days—
The lightly proffered laurel,
The easy ungrudged praise:
Comes now to search your manhood
Through all the thankless years,
Cold, edged with dear-bought wisdom,
The judgment of your peers.

The Brown Man's Burden.

Pile on the brown man's burden
To gratify your greed;
Go, clear away the "niggers"
Who progress would impede;
Be very stern, for truly
'Tis useless to be mild.
With new-caught, sullen peoples,
Half devil and half child.

Pile on the brown man's burden,
And if ye rouse his hate,
Meet his old-fashioned reasons
With Maxims up to date;
With shells and dum-dum bullets,
A hundred times make plain
The brown man's loss must ever
Imply the white man's gain.

Pile on the brown man's burden
Compel him to be free;
Let all your manifestoes
Reek with philantrophy,
And if with heathen folly
He dares your will dispute,
Then in the name of freedom
Don't hesitate to shoot.

Pile on the brown man's burden,
And if his cry be sore,
That surely need not irk you,
Ye've driven slaves before;
Seize on his ports and pastures,
The fields his people tread;
Go, make from them your living,
And mark them with his dead.

Pile on your brown man's burden,
Nor do not deem it hard
If you should earn the rancor
Of those ye yearn to guard;
The screaming of your Eagle
Will drown the victim's sob—
Go on through fire and slaughter,
There's dollars in the job.

Pile on the brown man's burden,
And through the world proclaim
That ye are freedom's agents—
There's no more paying game;
And should your own past history
Straight in your teeth be thrown,
Retort that independence
Is good for whites alone.

Pile on the brown man's burden,
With equity have done,
Weak, antiquated scruples
Their squeamish course have run;
And though 'tis freedom's banner
You're waving in the van,
Reserve for home consumption
The sacred "Rights of Man."

And if, by chance, ye falter
Or lag along the course;
If, as the blood flows freely,
Ye feel some slight remorse,
Hie ye to Rudyard Kipling,
Imperialism's prop,
And bid him for your comfort
Turn on his Jingo stop.

GOLD IN QUEER PLACES.

It Has Been Found in Placers in Elevated Places.

"Jack" Hanley, now at Juneau, Alaska, fourteen and a half days from Dawson, is much chagrined at not having beaten the record out. He is one of the lucky young men who have all the gold they can dig out of the ground in the next two or three years. It has been some time since a gold story has come out of Dawson. Hanley says some of the bench claims, almost literally on top of the mountains, are proving as rich as many in the bottom of the creeks, and this fact almost takes the breath out of the bodies of the old miners, it is so unprecedented. One of these top-mountain claim-owners, Martin Walstad, is now here and sick. Neither of these young men knows how much he is worth. Both knocked around Juneau several years, taking what work they could get in winter to buy grub to prospect on in summer, not knowing the store of gold ahead of them.

Hanley says the total output of the Klondike mines next clean-up in the spring will exceed that of last year by several millions. One reason for this is that a good deal of ground was not worked last year on account of the royalty. Hope of its being reduced soon has been abandoned and succeeded by the conclusion that life is too short and there is too much of a good time ahead to wait longer on the possibility of saving a few thousand dollars.

The situation at Dawson is about the same. The town is comparatively quiet. "They are not coming in bunches as they were last winter," is the way Hanley puts it. "Still Dawson is all right and will be a good camp for some years, but I do not think it ever again will be the town it was last winter and summer."

This supports the statement made to me by another Klondiker two weeks ago, that Dawson has seen her best days.

Klondiker Hanley said experienced miners would never prospect in Canadian territory again, which accounts for so many going to Eagle City and elsewhere down the Yukon. This is on account of the royalty, the licenses required, the size of claims (250 feet), with ten claims below discovery reserved by the crown, as well as every alternate ten claims.

Many men are still out of work at Dawson, but they have plenty of food. Hundreds are on the trail coming out. The trail is in good shape, and traveling comparatively easy.

Some new towns are springing up on the river. At the present rate of development there will be towns in a year or two not very far apart all the way to Dawson. Quite a settlement is springing up at the mouth of the Stewart river and another at Thistle creek. Substantial buildings are being erected. Hanley says he talked with several acquaintances on the way out who had claims on Thistle creek and all expected good pay in the spring.

Canadian mail has gone down the river quite regularly during the winter, but the American mail has been allowed to stack up and, figuratively, grow mouldy, chiefly at Tagish lake, since the middle of October last. It is welcome news to thousands in the States that the American mail is now beginning to move. Hanley met at Labarge dog teams carrying about a ton of it, and these teams will get through to Dawson all right, if they are not already at Dawson by the time this shall have been published. Information is meagre as to how regularly the mail will keeping moving. There is need for the postal department at Washington to get a "move on" in making conjunction with the Canadian postal authorities, or the American mail to the vast and growing interior will not move until after the ice does this winter or next. The system of letting contracts for the delivery of mail to Alaskan ports and towns affords an excellent opportunity for improvement.

The idea of Skagway being annexed to and made British territory has subsided from a temporary paroxysm to a serene impossibility.

The news of the exclusion act, which does not affect British Northwest Territory, had got down to lake Lebarge about six days ago and will reach Dawson in 10 or 15 days.

Recording of claims which stopped at Atlin during the last of January has not been resumed, and things are still at a standstill, although there is still considerable travel there and to Porcupine, in American territory.

Porto Rico Concentrates Go to Northport.

The Porto Rico mine sent out 20 tons of concentrates to the Northport smelter on Tuesday. They carried gold values of $30 to the ton, the entire shipment being valued at $600.

DO NOT WANT THE PUBLIC

To Know What is Done in Committee of the Whole.

There was a special session of the city council yesterday afternoon for the purpose of considering, in committee of the whole, the revised bylaws of the corporation. It was a meeting at which the windy members of the reform party were present, while the brainy members—aldermen Thomson and McKillop—were absent. Consequently the reform party got into difficulties, and the consideration of the revised bylaws was given second place to the consideration of the enterprise of THE TRIBUNE in publishing the proceedings of the previous session of the committee, when matters of considerable importance were dealt with in their initial stage.

Among the changes which the representatives of the reform party have introduced is the practice of shaping all their business in committee of the whole, coupled with an intimation to the press representatives that they must not publish any of the proceedings of the council while in committee of the whole. As there is no reason why greater secrecy should attach to the proceedings of the committee of the whole of the municipal council than attaches to the proceedings of the provincial legislature in committee of the whole, THE TRIBUNE on Wednesday last published a summary of what occurred in committee. At this meeting it will be remembered that it was decided to smother the scheme of the chancellor of the municipal exchequer, to impose an additional tax upon the wholesale merchants doing business in this city, and if THE TRIBUNE had not announced that the council had decided upon dropping the matter, it could never have been mentioned save by interrogation at the council meeting.

Another matter which was broached at the previous session of the committee of the whole was the desirability on the part of the reform party of increasing the number of the saloons and hotels in the city. This was a reform which received the special attention of the chairman of the public works committee, who maintained that an injustice had been done to the residents of the West ward, in that they had not been furnished with a sufficient number of saloons and hotels.

The publicity given by THE TRIBUNE to the rejection by the committee of alderman Beer's increased tax upon wholesale merchants and of alderman Fletcher's policy of saloon and hotel expansion annoyed the two chairmen. They did not state their grievance in open council on Monday, but reserved their indignation for the session of the committee yesterday afternoon. They are not willing that the ratepayers shall know what transpires in committee of the whole, and the city solicitor was requested to give a legal opinion as to the privilege of the press in publishing any report of such proceedings. This he was not prepared to do offhand, and something weighty in the way of an opinion upon this subject may be expected.

When THE TRIBUNE question was dropped the committee considered the revised plumbing bylaw and progress was reported.

The question of saloon and hotel expansion was not reached. This a rock which threatens to wreck the reform party, so that action will probably be deferred as long as possible.

Trout Lake District.

[Trout Lake Topic, February 25th.]

Every indication, at present, points to the placing of two new properties on the shipping list this season. They are the Nettie L and St. Elmo.

The snowfall so far at the Silver Cup has been 272 inches. Last year about this time the snowfall at Ferguson, some 3000 feet lower, was 47 feet, the snowfall at Trout Lake being about the same.

On Tuesday last a strike of ten inches of almost solid gray copper was made on the Silver Cup. The new strike is one of the richest ever made even in this rich property. For the past four or five months this property has been employing a developing force, and the property is rapidly blocking out ore against the time when a railroad will be running through the valley.

Mining a Profitable Business.

The metal production of Colorado in the calendar year 1898, as reported by H. A. Lee, the state commissioner of mines, was by far the largest in the history of the State. The figures are as follows:

Gold, 1,133,657 fine oz., at $20.67	$23,536,050
Silver, 24,473,345 fine oz., at 58⅛c	14,255,723
Lead, 118,368,261 lbs., at 3.63c	4,296,768
Copper, 12,537,616 lbs., at 12c	1,504,578
Total	$43,593,059

A production of $43,503,050, to which is still to be added the value of the coal, coke, iron and other minor minerals, is one of which Colorado may well be proud. Moreover, there is every indication that these values will be equaled, if not exceeded, during the current year.

Silver Shipments to Asia.

The exports of silver from London to the east in January show a considerable decrease this year, the total value having been £641,880, against £738,765. To China there was a large comparative increase, the total being £225,380, against £114,271 in 1898; but the shipments to India and the Straits were £416,500, against £624,494. The value of the silver shipments from San Francisco to China showed a decrease of 10 per cent, the total for January last having been $710,937.

THURSDAY ..... MARCH 1, 1899

POLITICS is an interesting game. The Conservatives in Nelson will not follow their leaders and are split into factions. The Liberals have no leaders, and will not elevate anyone who has not served in the ranks.

THE city council is considering the question of increasing the number of hotel and saloon licenses. Had the member of the council who is taking the leading part in advocating the increase made that a plank in his platform before the election, he would not now be serving as an alderman. Nelson has twenty licensed places at which liquor can be obtained by the drink, or one place to each 200 of the population. The ratio should not be increased.

"PATRONIZE HOME INDUSTRIES" may be called mere sentiment, but it is what builds up a town. In the office of THE TRIBUNE can be seen samples of what a local machine shop and foundry can do in the way of manufacturing pulleys and shafting.

THE town that controls its own water, light, and power is in a position to freely deal with those who can utilize either in operating industrial enterprises. Were Nelson in a position today to supply power at a reasonable figure she would surely become the industrial center of Southern British Columbia.

WHAT has become of the man who wanted a site on which to erect ore-sampling works at Nelson? The site he wanted is not improved, and is not likely to be—by sampling works.

MR. JUSTICE DRAKE has delivered an opinion that the true meaning of section 13, sub-section b, of the Municipal Clauses Act, defining the qualifications of an alderman, is that the candidate has to show a clear unincumbered value of $500 for the whole period of six months prior to the day of nomination.

Triumph of Boodle.

[Toronto Telegram, February 23rd.]

In 1892, the time of the Liberal party's greatest weakness, and the Conservative party's greatest strength, sir Wilfrid Laurier's opposition polled more votes in West Huron, outside the towns of Goderich and Clinton, than sir Wilfrid Laurier's government polled in the same townships on Tuesday. Goderich town was bribed wholesale by the harbor works and retail by spot cash payment to the "floaters." The result in Clinton justified the strategy of Daniel McGillicuddy, who insisted on the nomination of Mr. Holmes, and thus insured a majority from the town where he is deservedly popular. Liberal gains in Goderich were so much merchandise bought and paid for. Liberal gains in Clinton were tributes to the personal strength of the candidate, and the Conservatives may be able to get some comfort from a close analysis of the losses in the Liberal townships.

FOUR SHORT STORIES.

During a famous will case, a well-known New York character named Felix McClusky was being examined by Joseph Choate. "Now, Mr. McClusky," insinuatively asked Mr. Choate, "isn't it true that you are the modern Munchausen?" "You're the second blackguard that has asked me that in a week," roared McClusky; "an——" A roar of laughter drowned the remainder of Mr. McClusky's retort.

S. Teackle Wallis, for many years the leader of the Maryland bar, was noted for his wit and sharp tongue. On one occasion it was remarked to him that a certain law firm, suspected of not being altogether reputable, had a fine practice. "Yes," said Wallis, "their practice is better than their practices." Of a well-known judge, whose opinions were generally characterized by a great vacillation and indecision of mind, he once said: "Judge B——is certain of one thing in a case, and that is that there is a doubt in it."

Lord Palmerston never quite gave up his attentions to young married women. Remonstrating with him on this habit, one of his serious relatives, a lady, began by describing it as ungentlemanly; it was also, she said, contrary to religion; finally she urged "it can never answer." Then came the reply of the gay veteran: "As to the first point, that is a question of opinion. I think it most gentlemanly. As to religion, I admit the practice of the churches differs. As to its not answering, your ladyship misapprehends the facts, for it never fails!"

Many anecdotes were told of the late judge Cox, of the district bench of Washington, D. C. One of them will bear retelling. A young lawyer defending a criminal before him, and whose idea of eloquence seemed to consist in continually calling upon the Creator, concluded with this remarkable peroration: "I ask your honor for God's sake to have mercy on my client!" The judge adjusted his spectacles, asked for the papers, examined them with much deliberation, and then said: "The plea for mercy for God's sake cannot be entertained by the court. After a careful examination of the papers I do not find that God is a party to the record in this case."

Largest Dividend Ever Paid by a Mine.

The Calumet & Hecla Copper Company, operating mines in northern Michigan, declared a dividend last week of $10 a share accompanied by an extra dividend of $30 a share. This makes a total payment of $4,000,000; or adding the dividends previously paid it makes $7,000,000 paid during the company's current fiscal year. The rate is 280 per cent on the company's capital stock of $2,500,000, taken at par value; but it is only 8 per cent on the current selling price of the stock, which is $850 (ex-dividend) on the par value of $25 a share. The payment of $4,000,000 at one time is, we believe, the largest cash dividend ever paid by an American mining company. It is one of the largest—if not the largest—ever paid by a mining company anywhere. Certainly it is the largest ever paid by such a company out of current earnings.

MR. HOOLEY BANKRUPT.

The Official Receiver Accuses Him of Fraud and Misconduct.

When Ernest Terah Hooley, the famous promoter, became a bankrupt last June the world at large was astonished, although the said world ought to be prepared for any little eccentricity on the part of Napoleons of Finance, even if they do not assume the title. Mr. Hooley promptly announced that he had been forced into bankruptcy to protect himself from the harpies who had been living off him, and the world was inclined to believe him, especially when he began to unfold a long list of peers and other titled English persons who had received money from him. The official receiver in bankruptcy filed his report recently, and it is quite as interesting in its way as much of Mr. Hooley's testimony, and, being official, it is undoubtedly quite as true. Besides, it is colorless, and it is only by reading between the lines that one sees all that the official receiver saw.

To begin with, the liabilities are placed at about £454,445 8s. 8d., and the assets at an amount sufficient to afford a dividend of four shillings in the pound. The report sets forth Mr. Hooley's business life in some detail. He began business in 1880 with a capital of £20,000, given to him by his father. His first "promotion" seems to have been the change of his father's business into a public company in 1892, when the capital was watered pretty freely, and Hooley got half of it as purchase money. In September he began his "life work" of promoting. He had then a capital of about £150,000; but his bankers were his creditors for nearly £90,000. In September, 1895, he entered into a partnership with a Martin D. Rucker "for the purpose of introducing cycle business." He had begun the previous December, however, with the Humber Company (America), Limited, out of which he cleared £20,200. The new company paid him £30,000, and his expenses were only £9,800. A profit of more than 66 per cent is not bad. At all events it gave him a taste for bicycling, so with his partner, Mr. Rucker, he started on his mad career in September, 1895, by promoting the Simpson Lever-Chain Company, Limited. He cleared only £200 out of this. Then in the same month he promoted Humber & Co. (Russia), Limited, with a profit of only $13,472. In the same month he promoted the Simpson Chain-Lever Company (Foreign and Colonial), Limited, clearing £65,598. In October, 1892, he promoted Humber & Co. (Portugal), Limited, and made £33,101. In March, 1896, Hooley promoted the Raleigh Cycle Company, Limited, and made out of the job about £14,000; in the same month, and in connection with this promotion, he promoted the Fairbanks Rim Manufacturing Company, Limited, but got only £2,088 on this deal.

In May, 1896, Mr. Hooley promoted the Dunlop Tire Company, Limited. He paid £3,000,000 for the assets of the Pneumatic Tire Company and £300,000 more for certain patents, and sold them to the Dunlop company for £5,000,000, making a gross profit of £1,700,000. His expenses here were heavy. It was for this company that Mr. Hooley said he had to make his largest purchases of peers; he said he had to buy the earl of Albemarle and the earl De La Warr and others for the purpose of getting "the good names on the front page of the prospectus," and, as a result, the issue of bonds was over subscribed. He had given various papers the right to call shares on him, and as the dear public had unkindly bought up all the shares, when the free and independent press called them, Hooley had to pay heavily for them. So, in spite of the gross profit of nearly two millions, he had a clear profit of only about £172,000.

On the promotion of the Cycle Manufacturers' Tube Company, Limited, worked in the same month of May, 1896, he lost £5846, and on the Trent Cycle Company, Limited, promoted in the same month, he lost £23,000. He had a lot of titled persons in this deal, for whom he had to spend money. It seems as if the advice "put not thy trust in princes" or even in peers might have been given to Mr. Hooley with propriety. Out of the Singer Cycle Company promotion he cleared in June £68,400, and in August, 1896, he lost £40,454 on the Dunlop Pneumatic Tire Company (France), Limited. The same two earls, De La Warr and Albemarle, were said to have been paid well for "going on the front page." In October he lost about £122,000 on the Clement, Gladiator and Humber (France), Limited, and made £24,405 out of the Swift Cycle Company, Limited, of course. He lost £106,400 on the Pedersen Frame Company. These were all his cycle companies, fifteen in all, with capitals of £10,035,000; his profits were £424,436, but Mr. Bucker got a half, so that Mr. Hooley cleared only £212,218.

In August, 1896, he bought 1183 acres near Manchester and tried to sell the tract in small lots, but lost £160,214. In November he promoted Bovril (British, foreign and colonial), Limited, out of which he cleared about £34,135. In May, 1897, he promoted Schweppes, Limited, with a loss of £36,190. The British Embroidery Machine Company, Limited, cost him £26,079, but he made £1030 out of the Dee Estates, Limited, and £12,934 out of the Blaisdell Pencils, Limited.

His biggest loss came in the promotion of the United Ordnance and Engineering Company, Limited: the company went to allotment, but only £80,000 were subscribed, and poor Mr. Hooley lost £473,000. Then he lost various small sums (small for him), like £2000 in the Lee-Metford Small Arms Company, Limited. Altogether he went into promotions involving £18,610,000, wherein his consideration was £14,132,442, and the purchase price was £9,103,534, so that the gross profit was £5028,908, and the expenses were £945,912, and the losses through selling shares at a discount and buying at a premium to deliver on contracts, etc., were £4,097,781, so that the gross profit became a loss of £89,312.

The official receiver remarks that "all the companies were largely over-capitalized and the subscriptions thereto were obtained through extravagant gifts in money and shares to obtain directors, and large fees for the introduction of and payments to titled and other persons for the prospectus." From this it may be inferred that the denials of the various titled and other persons did not impress the official receiver.

Then Mr. Hooley made a little profit, about £4124, out of a flyer in Humber stock, and rigged the market in the matter of the Beeston Pneumatic Tire Company, so that he made £22,750. On the strength of a bogus bid of £8 per share, the stock advanced, he and his friends realized—and the public realized later, too. The official receiver reports that the transaction was fraudulent, and that the bankrupt was a party to the fraud. The receiver further reports that every trace of this rigging has been removed from the bankrupt's books, and that Hooley's No. 1 ledger has been destroyed, and Nos. 2 and 3 have been re-bound and re-numbered Nos. 1 and 2.

Several persons bought interests in the bankrupt's business. For instance, Lord Ashbury paid Hooley £50,000, for which he was to have a quarter interest in the profits from September 30, 1897, to December 31, 1898. Mr. Hooley could not bear that the confiding peer should have no profits, so, though he lost heavily on his business, he gave his lordship shares in the Hooley-Jameson syndicate, valued at £30,000. A Mr. E. J. Pape was another purchaser, and so were a Mr. Ballin Hinde, a Mr. F. Cuthbert and a Mr. Wootton.

The official receiver finds that Hooley has not assets enough to pay 10 shillings in the pound; that he has not kept proper books, and has contributed to his bankruptcy by extravagance and speculation, and has been guilty of fraud and of misconduct in paying large sums to directors and others, and has been privy to the destruction of ledgers and check books within four months of the commencement of the action, to cover his connection with the Boston deal. From the official report of the official receiver in bankruptcy, the probability of Mr. Hooley's continued freedom does not seem very great, when one remembers how very sensitive the British public and laws are to any commercial rascality.

A DEMOCRATIC LORD

Chats About the Open Door and the Discontented Irish.

[Chicago Tribune, February 24th.]

Seated Thursday morning in the drawing room of the Pullman car Crescent before a littered writing table lord Charles Beresford, the hearty mannered sailor, outlined to a correspondent his plan of commercial salvation for the nations of eastern trade. He said England, America, Germany and Japan should unite in maintaining the "open door" to China, peaceably if they could, otherwise if they must.

France and Russia, he said, had no place in trade calculations, their aim being territorial domination and the consequent tax levy upon conquered subjects. The coalition of France and Russia he named as the common foe, the Bear and the Fox, who must be met at once with force and craft. In China, rebellion swept, bankrupt, tottering China, lord Beresford asserted he saw ready to hand the weapon to check Russian insolence, French deception and the dissolution of the Celestial empire itself.

"Put backbone into the Chinese government," said lord Beresford, "have its army organized with English, American, German and Japanese officers, let them make it into a force capable of protecting China. Have China make the declaration that its ports are open to the trade of the world and place it in a position to say it can protect investors. China would welcome such aid today. It wants to be braced."

Lord Beresford smiled at the suggestion that Russia and France might oppose actively such a consummation of world trade doctrine.

"What of it?" he said with a laugh—a naval laugh it might be designated. It gave a yearning expression to his face and caused the muscles to grow tense with an expression not lamblike.

"Then, I think, would be the time for England and America to say, 'Stand back,' and they would stand back. Don't misunderstand me, though. I am an Irishman, and it has been said that when an Irishman can't find a fight he picks one. But in this case it is different. I believe the course I am championing will bring peace, universal peace. The sphere of influence idea has proved wrong, and in every instance it has brought friction between nations and between them and the races they have sought indirectly to rule.

In his desire to learn American feeling on subjects in which he was interested the admiral did not hesitate to become a questioner.

"Now, don't you really think," he said, "that the sentiment in America is more friendly to England than it ever was before?"

"It is undoubtedly," was the answer given, "because of England's friendly attitude to us during the Spanish-American war, and it would be more so at this moment were it not for your fellow countrymen."

"I know that, I know that," he responded musingly, "and, do you know, I can't blame them much. I am an Irish landlord and am against home rule, for it would destroy the empire, but if I had been a tenant before the act of 1870 I would either have been confined in an Irish jail or I would have left my native isle to become a citizen of the United States. But Irish-Americans do not understand that conditions have changed now, that rents are fixed by the courts, that the tenant is master of the land, and that the landlord has no absolute rights over him. Ireland is prosperous today. I travelled through it from end to end last summer and I found that the savings banks contain £10,000,000 more than they did nine years ago.

"I ask of my countrymen today to forget old scores. I don't blame them for their feelings in the past any more than I blame the Americans of '76 for breaking away when George III. played the tyrant over them.

"Irish generosity and chivalry have been headed the wrong way for the last century, but I think now that the wrongs are nearly right and that England sees with a clearer vision. Irishmen, Englishmen and Americans, why should they not live in unity? They are of one blood, one system of laws, nearly of one religion. Humanity and christianity would be the lasting gainers by a bond uniting the three.

In the detail of his account of his mission to China, lord Beresford said:

"I was asked to go to China by the associate chamber of commerce of England and report upon its political and trade conditions. I esteemed it a high political honor that I, a naval officer, should have been selected for the mission. Although I had no official status it is likely that my report, which will be lengthy, will be made a parliamentary document.

"I went to China to gain exact information, not for British gain but for the advantage of trade at large. At Shanghai immediately prior to my departure for America, I was given a banquet by the English, German, American, Japanese, Chinese and even French foreign residents. They informed me that the work I was doing was for the common good.

"I was in China and Japan from September to January. In that time I paid personal visits to six of the eight viceroys or received calls from them. I do not exaggerate when I say that the Chinese government would welcome today the interference of an alliance strong enough to say to prowlers 'Hands off.'

RIVALRY AMONG THE GRITS

But They Manage to Elect a Full Set of Officers.

The annual meeting of the Nelson Liberal Association was held last evening in the Hume Hotel hall for the purpose of electing officers for the ensuing year. The association is now practically two years old, and the circumstance that last evenings meeting drew an attendance of 28, was sufficient to gladden the hearts of the members of the old guard who have been acquainted with the days when the Liberals cut a much smaller figure in Nelson.

The election of officers was commenced by making Hewitt Bostock, M. P., honorary president. This is the second honorary presidency which has been thrust upon Mr. Bostock. On the eve of the last Dominion campaign he was made honorary president of the Nelson Boat Club, and it is now openly hinted that if he will secure for Nelson the necessary public buildings, an effort will be made to secure for him an honorary office in the Society of Kootenay Pioneers.

There was a lively contest for the office of president. The candidates were W. A. Galliher and Dr. Alexander Forin. The issues in the contest appeared to be the question of aid to the sister's hospital, and whether or not the changes made in the present city council were desirable or not. The former president of the association was Gilbert Malcolm Sproat, but as his name does not appear on the minutes furnished to THE TRIBUNE, it may be presumed that he was not in the race for re-election.

There were three ballots necessary to elect. On the first Dr. Forin secured 11 votes, W. A. Galliher 9, John Ayton Gibson 6, and John Anthony Turner 2. For the second ballot the two lowest men were dropped, when Dr. Forin secured three additional votes, while Galliher made a gain of five. This made both candidates tie with a vote of 14 each, and a third ballot became necessary. It resulted in one of the supporters of Forin abstaining from voting, and as Galliher secured his full fourteen votes, he was the winner by one vote.

For the offices of secretary and treasurer there was no contest. In George C. Tunstall, junior, the twenty-seven members present recognized that the association had an efficient secretary, and his election was made unanimous. Something of the same nature cropped up when the office of treasurer was considered. The zeal with which John Ayton Gibson espoused the candidature of George C. Tunstall, junior, for the office of secretary was but equaled by the zeal with which the secretary advocated the election of John Ayton as treasurer, and his election was also made unanimous.

The election of an executive for the association showed what a mixed-up affair the Liberal Association is, viewed from provincial and municipal standpoints. The election resulted in the return of Dr. Arthur, James Bannerman, G. Frank Beer, A. M. Johnson, Dr. G. A. B. Hall, John A. Turner, John LaPointe, A. H. Clements, William Waldie, Thomas Madden and John Hamilton.

It will be seen that Dr. Arthur adds to the luster of his position as chairman of the board of education; G. Frank Beer is enlarging his sphere of influence from municipal to Dominion politics; that A. M. Johnson is desirous of obtaining that position in the Liberal party which his law partner is losing in the Conservative organization; that those who are and who have been boosting for the Kootenay Lake General hospital secured the majority of the seats upon the executive; that the friends of John Hamilton have a sufficiently high regard for him to give him in his absence a seat in the executive; and that S. S. Taylor, the new convert, will require to undergo a period of probation before securing office.

The association adopted the bylaws of the Liberal association of Winnipeg. The membership fee was fixed at one dollar. Meetings of the association are to be held on the first Thursday of each month, and so soon as suitable rooms can be had they will be secured.

Attempt at Suicide.

Edward White, a middle-aged man, made a deliberate attempt at suicide this morning by jumping from the end of the city wharf. White was noticed walking along the wharf about 8:30 this morning by C. Archibald, an employee of the Sayward Mill Company, and Alexander Dow, captain of the tug Surprise. He removed his coat when he reached the end of the wharf and jumped into the water without further ceremony. When Dow and Archibald went to see what had become of the would-be suicide, they found him floating face downward in the water. Dow secured a pike-pole from the tug and secured a hold in White's clothing until Archibald put a rope araund the body. White was then fished out and taken on board the Surprise, where he was restored to consciousness. The first words he uttered when he became conscious were framed into a complaint against the interference which had saved his life. He was afterwards removed to the Kootenay Lake General hospital.

Queen Bess Ore Arriving at Nelson.

Five carloads of ore averaging about 20 tons each, from the Queen Bess mine, have been received this week at the Hall Mines smelter. The local smelter has an agreement with the management of the Queen Bess company for the delivery of the entire output of the mine for three months.

Miscellaneous Local News and Gossip.

There was no meeting of the council of the South Kootenay Board of Trade last evening, owing largely to a clash of dates with the annual meeting of the Liberal association.

An effort is being made to secure the services of Thomas Kinahan in teaching the raw material in the local company of Kootenay rifles the intricacies of the goose step. Thomas has seen twenty-eight years of active service, but as yet he hesitates at the prospect which the new enlistment has in store for him.

The play for tonight at the Nelson opera house is "Woman Against Woman."

To the wife of Edward Mills there was born a daughter yesterday. The youngster weighs just eleven pounds.

The price of tickets for the four remaining lessons on cooking by Miss Livingstone, have been fixed at $1.50 instead of 50 cents per lession.

"Jim" Edwards, who has been in the hotel business at Vancouver and Revelstoke, is in Nelson.

Latest of the Edmonton Route.

News has been received at Toronto of the experiences of a party of half a dozen Torontonians, including Alfred and Frank Davidson, J. Rae, E. Einboden, Edward Kenrick and Joseph Montgomery, who started last February for Dawson by the Edmonton route. They left the latter place on March 1st, comprising a party of ten men, with 30 horses and about a ton and a half of provisions for each man. As the journey progressed, the party found that their provisions were somewhat of a burden, especially when the horses were attacked by disease, which carried off twelve of them and made the others look like wrecks. At the Peace river there was a quarrel, and some of them returned home. The other members of the party made boats for themselves and floated on down the river slowly. When the last letter was written, on October 20th, the party had passed Fort McPherson, and were pushing on to the Lapeer's house. They expected to build shanties in which to pass the winter, and when spring comes to float on down to the Yukon and thence to Dawson.
