11th Annual Authors' Reception

Each year the Library brings together the latest productions by UBC scholars, reminding us of the invaluable contributions to knowledge made by colleagues from every part of the University. Their publications are celebrated in an annual exhibition that pays tribute to their creativity, imagination, and hard work. Our students are doubly fortunate, to have scholar-teachers who are at the forefront of their research fields, and to reap the benefit of centuries of scholarship in the form of one of the best libraries in the country.

The 150 or so works presented at the eleventh UBC Authors' Reception remind us of the great variety of research conducted at UBC, and of the many forms it takes. The modern university is at the forefront of the knowledge explosion, and we are proud to have so many scholars and researchers who are pre-eminent in their fields and who have helped to bring UBC international recognition.

Our Library has played an essential role in making our research successes possible. It has built up significant collections in a wide variety of disciplines, from music to microbiology, from children's books to early dictionaries. Through the hard work of dedicated scholars and librarians, often with the help of generous benefactors, the Library has amassed unique holdings that make it an invaluable resource for our faculty and students, as well as for the many researchers who are drawn to UBC from around the world.

I send my warmest congratulations to all colleagues whose work is represented here, and whose contributions will materially advance our reputation as a leading research university.

Martha C. Piper
President

I am very pleased to join President Martha Piper in sponsoring the 11th Annual Authors' Reception and congratulating this year's authors. With this event, we celebrate the accomplishments of more than 150 authors whose published works represent over forty disciplines, ten different languages and a wide variety of media: print and electronic books, videos, CD's and CD-ROM's. These works are not only a testimony to the scholarship, research and creative endeavours that take place at UBC, but also demonstrate how UBC scholars continue to make significant contributions to the world's treasury of knowledge and help make UBC one of the world's leading research universities.

The Library's extensive array of print, electronic, and audio-visual information resources provided the foundation for the research of many of the authors who are being honoured. Thus the Authors' Reception provides an occasion to celebrate the role that the University Library, its collection and staff, play in supporting learning, research and scholarship. These works of UBC's authors enrich the quality and depth of the Library's collection, provide a basis for further study and research, and demonstrate that a first-class research library truly is the heart of the academic enterprise.
