About

Welcome to Centre A's Online Library Resource.

Centre A has a small but growing library of books with a focus on Asian art. Special features of the library include the Finlayson Collection of rare books on classical Chinese and Japanese art, a collection of rare catalogues and monographs pertaining to contemporary Asian Canadian art, and books designed by artists. The library catalogue is available here online, making our collection available to the public for education and research purposes.

Search our online database for books in our collection and visit Centre A directly to access our library.

This site is a sample of how a church library “blog” can look and function like an online library site for a church. I haven’t filled out every feature, but you get the idea. It took me about 15 minutes to create what you see using wordpress’ templates and easy to use posting tools. Go to wordpress.com and register for a free blog and take the tour. It’s easy to set up.

This demonstration blog goes with the article “how to put your church library online” originally posted at <http://sundayresources.net/neil/2009/11/05/put-your-church-library-easily-online/>

Update: Because I just created this as a ‘freebie wordpress site’, SOMETIMES wordpress is putting some ‘ads’ in my posts. If this was a real church library site, I would pay a small annual fee to upgrade this site and exclude their ads.

WHAT KINDS OF LIBRARIES ARE CREATING BLOGS?

“Special libraries or research libraries accounted for a little less than one tenth (5 or 8.7 per cent) of the weblogs.”

(Clyde, 2004, pp. 92-93)

HOW CAN BLOGS BE USED IN SPECIAL LIBRARIES?

Since special libraries serve patrons with specific subject interest,

“[b]logs can be used to provide information about the library and news in the subject area, or to market new library resources.”

(Farkas, 2007, 249)

ARE BLOG-CATALOGS A NEW IDEA?

Common library uses for blogs:

- ✿ Library Web Sites
- ✿ Subject Resource
- ✿ Collaboration and Training
- ✿ Teens and Youth
- ✿ Book Reviews
- ✿ Library News
- ✿ Discussion Groups
- ✿ Library Leaders (speculating about the future of libraries, technology, and community)

WHY ARE BLOGS BETTER THAN OPACS ?

OPACS are expensive

- ✿ an inexpensive and modest online public access catalogue (OPAC) acquired in 2000 cost MOCA $3,200 + an annual licensing fee of about $500 (including technical support and upgrades) (Bunting, 2007, p. 67)

Possible Solutions

- ✿ writing grants, fund-raising, and acquiring donor contributions (Binkowski, 2007, p. 38)
- ✿ Joining “an existing consortium of libraries sharing a library system” (p. 39)

WHY ARE BLOGS BETTER THAN OPACS ?

OPACS are generally not very attractive and often don't contain 'useful' information

WHY ARE BLOGS BETTER THAN SOCIAL CATALOGING?

Social Cataloging tools like Library Thing, while popular, are not the best for special libraries:

- ✿ Too much information = too cluttered
- ✿ Not professional-looking
- ✿ Don't have the look and feel of the relevant institution and cannot be personalized

Some of the Social Cataloging tools such as Shelfari

- ✿ Don't let you add new cataloging records if you can't find an item by ISBN and don't allow tagging

WHY ARE BLOGS BETTER THAN SOCIAL CATALOGING?

Others, like Gurulib interface, don't look very good

The screenshot displays the Gurulib web interface for a user named 'coolabcbgirl'. The header features the Gurulib logo and the user's profile name. Below the header is a navigation bar with tabs for 'Entire Library', 'All', 'Books', 'Movies', 'Music', 'Games', 'Software', and 'Community'. A search bar is located in the center of the navigation bar. On the left side, there is a 'Shelf' section with a list of categories: 'Books I've read', 'curvy shelf', 'medium brown shelf', 'New Books', 'papers', 'personal', 'red shelf', 'short brown shelf', 'tall brown shelf', 'Thesis Resource', 'Wish List', 'Borrowed Items', and 'Recommendations'. The main content area shows a grid of book covers, including titles like 'Richard Pryor', '1602 A.D.', '98', 'A Collection of Medical Curiosities', 'Mandrill's Dream', 'Advanced MS-DOS Programming', 'Advanced Networking Concepts', 'AFRICAN SUNRISE', 'All the Best - Disc 1', 'The Latest Movie Songs', 'an inconvenient truth', 'Analysis of a Business Plan', 'Antibodies', 'Art & Design in Europe And A...', 'Assorted FoxTrot', 'Best Ever Hot & Spicy Cookbook', 'Best of FOREVER LOVE 18', 'GOOD EASY COOKBOOK', 'BEYOND UHURA', 'Big vision, Small Business', 'Biology for Living', 'Black Lace Omnibus', 'Beginning Visual Basic 6', 'CHER', 'STAR TREK BEST DESTINY', 'Best Ever Hot & Spicy Cookbook', 'Best of FOREVER LOVE 18', 'GOOD EASY COOKBOOK', 'BEYOND UHURA', 'Bottom Line Year Book 2000', 'Bottom Line Year Book 2002', 'Building English skills', 'Business Data Communications', 'C'est A Toi!', 'C++ Neural Networks and Fuzz...', 'Cascading Waterfalls and Maj...', 'China Through The Ages', and 'Chinoiserie: Chinese Influences'.

SCENE OVERVIEW OF A FEW GALLERIES

- ✿ Centre A - Booxter cataloguing software (only on Macs)
- ✿ CAG – Microsoft Access Database
- ✿ VAG - has online-accessible catalogue
- ✿ RAG - reduced/got rid of its reading room space

WHAT'S NEXT?

“Discovery of the catalogued collection will be increasingly disembedded, or lifted out, from the ILS system, and re-embedded in a variety of other contexts -- and potentially changed in the process”

(Dempsey, 2006)

Libraries are moving from “collection to connection”

(Rubin 116)

WHAT'S NEXT?

Dempsey's 4 Rs

- ✿ Ranking (popularity, liking)
- ✿ Relating (bringing together links relevant to an item)
- ✿ Recommending (making suggestions of other items that are similar)
- ✿ Reviewing

BLOGS ARE GREAT FOR CATALOGING BECAUSE:

- ✿ Most volunteers or interns know how-to Blog
- ✿ Potential for personalization and high visual impact
- ✿ Relative ease of use - each new entry is a new post
- ✿ Semi-ubiquitous search function
- ✿ RSS feed
- ✿ WordPress has excellent integration with other social media platforms such as Facebook and even LinkedIn to show off the most recent content to a wider audience

BLOGS ARE GREAT FOR CATALOGING BECAUSE THEY LET YOU:

- ✿ Create virtual bookshelves with curated resources including an image of each title which is linked to the more detailed catalog entry
- ✿ Make polls
- ✿ Catalog books in non-Roman script; an English record is normally created in OPACs, however with a Blog, we could use Chinese, Japanese, Korean or Cyrillic characters and could search those as well
- ✿ Catalog ephemera and artist files or at least provide listings of these files

BLOGS ARE GREAT FOR CATALOGING BECAUSE THEY LET YOU:

- ✿ Create a call for Reviews with a widget
- ✿ Develop a Resources Page with information about related art websites or books
- ✿ Make a Wishlist – providing information about books that would be desired for the collection; can serve as an additional resource
- ✿ Incorporate Tumblr for images and summaries or just image feed
- ✿ Build a network of similar libraries - Blogroll – connect to other library pages or blogs
- ✿ Promote relevant Events

BLOGS ARE GREAT FOR CATALOGING BECAUSE THEY LET YOU:

Under each book post you could include:

- ✿ Recommended readings - “You might also like...” (could link to resources at other libraries)
- ✿ Other places that have the item (World Cat)
- ✿ Hyperlinking to reliable information about the individuals featured in the publication (personal websites, interviews)

The Painted Veil by Somerset Maugham (June 2009)

Please visit our new blog at <http://wplbookclub.wordpress.com/>

Set in England and Hong Kong in the 1920s, The Painted Veil is the story of the beautiful but love-starved Kitty Fane. When her husband discovers her adulterous affair, he forces her to accompany him to the heart of a cholera epidemic. Stripped of the British society of her youth and the small but effective society she fought so hard to attain in Hong Kong, she is compelled by her awakening conscience to reassess her life and learn how to love. The Painted Veil is a beautifully written affirmation of the human capacity to grow, to change, and to forgive.

W. Somerset Maugham was one of the twentieth century's most popular novelists as well as a celebrated playwright, critic, and short story writer. He was born in Paris but grew up in England and served as a secret agent for the British during World War I. He wrote many novels, including the classics Of Human Bondage, The Razor's Edge, Cakes and Ale, Christmas Holiday, The Moon and Sixpence, Theatre, and Up at the Villa.

Find out a bit more about the book on Wikipedia.

Art Blog Cat

A blog that is meant to provide practical and innovative strategies for utilizing the blog medium as an online catalog (and more) for special non-profit art and other cultural libraries or reading rooms such as the ones located in art galleries and artist-run centres, among other possibilities, or that function as independent spaces

Art Blog Cat

Here you may find a demonstration of the following features:

- ✿ Favicon use
- ✿ Personalized Header Images (can have a single image or a number of images that rotate)
- ✿ Big photograph-images of the covers
- ✿ Call-for-reviews widget
- ✿ Poll widget
- ✿ Blogroll
- ✿ Customized hyperlink colour
- ✿ Sample cataloging entries
- ✿ Customized Menus
- ✿ Suggestions for virtual bookshelf implementation
- ✿ Links to other resources of interest

CHALLENGES:

- ✿ Many committed volunteers
- ✿ Development of a coherent structure for book cataloguing unless there is one already in place

Solution: Collaborate with local libraries to obtain cataloguing guidelines or ask for help from a professional listserv such as ARLIS/NA (Art Libraries of North America) or SLA (Special Library Association), then share these guidelines with others!

- ✿ Contacting similar institutions to see what they are using could be difficult as art organizations are usually competitive and might not want to share
- ✿ Limited to local book reviewers
- ✿ Various institutions' blog-catalogs will not be linked

CHALLENGES:

- ✿ Tags or ‘folksonomies’ (cooperatively developed system of classification) are problematic because unlike taxonomies (standardized classification system) they do not include:
 - a. “synonym control” (no connection will be made between ‘autumn’ and ‘fall’ for example)
 - b. disambiguation of polysemous terms such as “fall” – ‘season following summer (noun)’ or ‘to drop (verb)’
 - c. Coherent levels of specificity (animals - cats - kittens)
 - d. Synonym suggestions (but it does suggest previously used tags when tagging)
- ✿ WordPress default search sorts the results by date, newest first; it shows first paragraph of each post instead of finding and highlighting the search terms; has no spell check nor query suggestions

Solution: Search Everything WordPress Plugin

CHALLENGES:

The main challenge appears to be taking good quality photos of covers to display large images on the blog and copyright issues associated with that ***

 I will try to address these issues in detail on the Art Blog Cat in the nearest future

CONCLUSION:

BLOG-CATALOGS will help special art libraries with

Visibility

- ✿ Online presence
- ✿ Contemporary layout and presentation with large images
- ✿ Participatory features that make visitors return

Accessibility

- ✿ Create awareness of quick access
- ✿ Many relevant materials on a single topic are in one place
“condensed repositories”

Possibility

- ✿ Bringing more people into the space (both gallery and library)
- ✿ Great place to develop specialized online resources
- ✿ Collaborative and other creative possibilities

CONCLUSION:

Introducing library materials into broader gallery programming could mean a lot for re-educating how public views art

- ✿ If text is no longer read but scanned instead, neither are images
- works of art - as they require an extra layer of decoding.
- ✿ Thus, in order to expect visitors to make sense of art, we need to retextualize the visual experience.

CONCLUSION:

“Even small museums now strive to produce blockbuster exhibitions, entertainment, social events, fund-raising galas, and dazzling educational programs. Museum libraries need to be part of that excitement. There is a challenge there, especially for the small library [...]” (Siegel, 2007, 219)
