Freedom of Speech

by STACEY HEBDEN TAYLOR
M.A. (Cantab.) L.Th.
VICAR OF GREENGATES, BRADFORD, YORKS.

Under direct pressure from the Jewish community in this country (Daily Express, January 15th) the Home Secretary, Sir Frank Soskice, has now introduced his infamous Race Relations Bill which if passed into law will make incitement to racial and religious hatred a criminal offence.

No true lover of freedom will deny that incitement to racial and religious hatred should be deplored and resisted by all good men. But to make such incitement a criminal offence would be a denial of the very principle out of which the English belief and practice of toleration has grown. For the essence of that principle is that men should be free to speak and write what is in their minds without the interference or interdict of those politicians who happen to be in power. Once that principle is denied, in the name of whatever virtue, freedom of speech and thought must very quickly cease to exist in England as it has now ceased in Soviet Russia and Red China.

All public expression of opinion is an incitement to a state of mind, and that that state of mind may be hatred is, I am afraid, an inevitable concomitant of human nature. No less a person that the Lord Jesus Christ Himself states: "You must not think that I have come to bring peace to the earth; I have not come to bring peace, but a sword. I have come to set a man against his father, a daughter against her mother, a young wife against her mother-in-law" (St. Matthew 10:34, 35). Every Christian at his baptism promised to hate and "to renounce the world, the flesh and the devil." Does the Government intend to prosecute Christians for trying to carry out their baptismal and confirmation vows? Does the Home Secretary intend to ban the sale of the Bible because it requires hatred of human wickedness and sin by God's Church?

A speech or pamphlet by an ardent Socialist or Communist may cause people to hate all Tories. Does Sir Frank Soskice intend to apply his law if passed against every Socialist who preaches the doctrine of the class war and who incites people to envy the rich? Does Sir Frank Soskice intend to prosecute certain Protestant groups whose speeches and pamphlets may cause those hearing or reading them to hate the Pope or the Roman Catholic priesthood? Does he intend to gaol Roman Catholics who incite fellow belivers to hate Protestants? Where does he intend to draw the line? Today the Home Secretary might be imprisoning the propagators of racial hatred, but tomorrow it will be the Jehovah's Witnesses, then the Plymouth Brethren, then the members of the political party in opposition.

The British Government cannot by legislation prohibit hatred. Hatred is a state of mind, and the human mind cannot be forbidden what it wants to think or the human heart what it wants to feel. All the Government can prohibit, and has any constitutional right to prohibit, is any action which causes outward physical injury to others. If by his speaking a man incites a crowd to hurt some other person, then he is guilty of incitement to criminal violence, and he should be punished as though he were himself committing that violence. Such a law already exists on the statute books.

The current demand by Jews in this country for the suppression of our historic right to freedom of speech and of writing, has been caused by the propagation, by a small and unimportant minority of anti-Jewish and anti-coloured propaganda led by such neo-Nazis as Colin Jordan. As a result of certain remarks, various street brawls have taken place up and down the country. But it is surely something of a non sequitur to use these incidents as a reason for prohibiting ALL expression of opinion that could give rise to hatred against men of a different race or religion.

Does Sir Frank Soskice intend to make public criticism of the Government's policy over Viet Nam a crime? And if an inhabitant of, say, Bradford or Smethwick considers it wrong that the immigration officers should allow large numbers of coloured persons to be forced upon the native British community which is already suffering from a grave housing shortage, is he to be forbidden to put his views into speech or on paper merely because the expression of such a view -- one held by thousands of English victims of such overcrowding -- might incite racial hatred in all ill-educated or prejudiced minds?

However deplorable such ill-education or prejudice may be, to put a stop to PUBLIC discussion of controversial topics because of their effect on certain vulgar minds will most definitely lead to the establishment of the very Nazism and Communism most Britons deplore. As a better informed American Jew, Supreme Court Justice Brandeis, well says: "If there be time to expose through discussion the falsehood and fallacies, to avert the evil by the processes of education, the remedy to be applied is MORE free speech, NOT enforced silence." No doubt there are some dreadful people enjoying liberty of expression. But if we allow the Government to pass its Race Relations Bill, how can we be sure that one day when YOU or I express an unpopular opinion we shall not be committing a criminal act?

The only reason why the advocates of religious and racial persecution have failed in the past to win popular support for their vile creeds in England, as they so tragically have succeeded in doing in other lands is because the people of England under prodding from the Scottish Covenanters at the time of the Civil War insisted that the Queen's Government must allow freedom of speech instead of suppressing it as the Stuart King Charles and Archbishop Laud tried to do. Thanks to Oliver Cromwell, the Jews were allowed to return to England and they were granted full religious toleration. (J. R. Tanner, Constitutional Conflicts of the 17th Century, p. 181).

It is liberty, said William Gladstone, that alone can fit men for liberty -- freedom, that is, for every Englishman to express his own opinions freely, however unpopular, foolish or wrong headed they may be. The Jews in England demand the freedom to express their opinions; then let them allow the same liberty to others to express opinions that he detests and despises. If the Jews cannot accept this British and Protestant doctrine, let them return to Eastern Europe and stop tampering with our historic rights.

As free born Protestants, we pride ourselves that it was our Puritan ancestors who first achieved real toleration and full freedom of expression before any other society in human history. If the Government gives way to this Jewish pressure, we shall be in very great danger of losing our historic Protestant birthright. The measure of the validity of one's respect for toleration and freedom -- for neither can exist for long without the other -- is very simple. It is this: Does one wish to stop the expression or to penalize the exponent of views which one regards as detestable? For if one does, as apparently the Jews now do in this country, then though one's views may be 100% correct, such a person or group of persons does not really believe in freedom as that term has been understood for 300 years by English Protestants.

The true beliver in toleration is the person who defends from persecution and victimisation the very opponent whose opinions he most stremuously opposes. As Daniel Webster summed it up in his immortal words: "Though I may disagree with everything that you say, I will fight to the death for your right to say it." That is what free born English Protestants understand by respect and love for freedom of speech; and it will be a terrible day for England if we ever lose it. That day, it seems, is now almost here!

Sixth of a Series — By Leslie Peterson
B.C. MINISTER OF EDUCATION

Visual, Performing Arts Program

(This is the sixth in a series of articles by The Minister of Education describing the new senior secondary school curriculum.)

Probably the most controversial of the new programmes starting in September is that designed to provide basic education leading to either employment or further training in the visual and performing arts.

The Visual and Performing Arts Programme has been criticized on the grounds that there is no employment for persons trained at the secondary school level in these fields, and that such training opens no doors to further training. Both criticisms are ill-founded. Investigation has shown a wide variety of occupations in sales, technical and design fields applying to art. Existing vocational schools do give advanced art training and so will the new community colleges. In music and drama the existing sources of further training are less numerous but the future will see them develop.

Frankly, I do not expect many schools to offer the whole Arts Programme in the immediate future. Some will though, and others will have some courses available as electives for students who have a personal interest in the subjects.

Where the whole programme is given students will take the same general education constants as all other senior secondary students - two courses in English, one in social studies and one in health and physical education.

The programme constants consist of a general business course relating largely to commercial law and one course in the fine arts at the Grade XI level. This course must be taken from another specialty to the one the pupil is taking to create a better understanding of the interrelation of the arts.

The three specialties in the Visual and Performing Arts Programme are art, music and theatre. Each specialty requires six courses in addition to the general education and programme constants.

In the art specialty the six consist of courses covering the theory and history of art, drawing and painting, and applied commercial and graphic design. The musical specialties include two courses in musicianship, two in instrumental survey and two in either choral, orchestra or band work. The theatre specialty, for those who want a background which will lead to further training which will lead to further training aimed at a career in theatre or television, provides courses in acting, stagecraft, theatre background, writing and directing.

Values of the individual courses in all specialties of the Arts Programme go far beyond the narrowly vocational. Students who wish to develop their own aesthetic appreciation may well be advised to take one or more senior courses chosen from the field in which their chief interest lies, as electives. Skill developed may be of only personal or recreational value but will nevertheless contribute to the total education of the individual.

Some courses may be of distinct value in quite a different career. The potential teacher, for example, will find courses in any of the three specialties of great benefit.

It is the vocational aspect of the arts that has been stressed, however, at this level. This is done in the firm belief that the artistic world offers occupations at many levels of development and that opportunities in it are certain to increase as the workday becomes shorter and man more affluent.

"DEFENDERS UNLIMITED"

M. L. A. Ernie LeCours who caused quite a commotion in the last session of the legislature when he criticized the courts has suggested the formation of a citizen's organization to 'Keep an Eye' on the lower courts and provide assistance and guidance when required. He has offered to donate $500 to a fund for such an organization -- provided that at least one thousand people each contribute one dollar.

"I believe that the public must take a greater interest in the operation of our lower courts in order to ensure that accused persons who are unfamiliar with court procedure may be given adequate protection", LeCours stated, in making the appeal to form a citizen's committee. He referred specifically to a case where a couple of 13 or 14 year old boys had been apprehended at 3 A. M. for being in possession of stolen bicycles which they had taken from neighbourhood yards an hour or so earlier. He said the boys appeared in juvenile court at 10 A. M. the same day, and by noon, one of them was on his way to Brannan Lake School for boys. His previous offences were breaking into a school more than 2 and one-half years ago, and breaking a small window about one and one-half years ago. He had spent about five months in Brannan Lake for breaking the window, and had kept out of trouble for over a year.

"It is quite possible they had simply borrowed the bikes", claimed LeCours, "and would have returned them on their way home. But that is beside the point. What concerns me", the M. L. A. continued, "is that, although the father made a strong appeal for probation, the local probation officer was not called in and the boy did not have legal counsel of any kind. If his parents could have obtained the services of a lawyer, I don't think he would have gone back to school. The Juvenile Court Judge involved in this case is considered to be one of the most understanding and sympathetic in the entire province, which prompts me to wonder what happens in some other courtrooms", Le Cours added.

LeCours proposed that 'defenders unlimited' be an organization of public-spirited laymen, but pointed out that a worthwhile amount of public support must be assured to make it a success. His offer of a $500 contribution to an organization fund is hinged on the donation of $1 from at least 1000 residents.

The money will be held in 'trust' until the organization is formed and thenceforth be handled by the elected officials of the organization. The Richmond office of Eastern and Chartered Trust has agreed to receive contributions and hold them until an executive committee has been selected. Contributors are requested to enclose a self-addressed, stamped, envelope with their contribution. The fund will be kept open until September 21st, 1965. If at least one thousand people have contributed by that date receipts will be mailed out in the self-addressed envelopes. If less than a thousand have contributed, the idea will be dropped and the self-addressed envelopes will be used to return the money to those who have contributed.

Letters should be addressed to:

Defenders Unlimited,
c/o Eastern & Chartered Trust,
Richmond Square,
Richmond, B. C.

Once the organization gets going, local units will be formed in various areas of the province and volunteers will be sought to keep in touch with local courts and supply any required information to the central body.

The basic idea of the organization would be to make the public more aware of the operations of our courts and also make our courts more aware of the public to ensure a better quality of justice for all citizens.

LANGLEY SCHOOL DISTRICT - GREAT EXPANSION

BY JIM PHILLIP THUNDERBIRD

Mothers' Day in Langley comes around again on September 7th. That's the day district schools open for another term and all the action moves from parks and playgrounds back to the institutions of readin', 'ritin' and 'rithmetic.

One new school will be open for business and one- and two-room additions have been made, or are planned, for others. The new school is the Fort Langley Junior Secondary, for Grades 8, 9 and 10, and will be in operation even though it is not quite completed. School Trustee Vern Mercer said all furnishings and equipment have been moved in all that's required is minor completion that can be completed while school is in progress.

The moving of 320 students from Langley Secondary School to Fort Langely will mean the Senior Secondary School will no longer be on a split shift and will return to normal school hours.

Other construction activity over the summer months has included a two-room addition at West Langley Elementary School. Although the work is being hurried along, it won't be ready until near the end of September. Construction is also underway on one-room additions at Topham and Peterson Road Schools and while these won't be ready for school opening, they are not required as class rooms this year. Tillicum School for retarded children is also getting a third class room to be ready for expansion next year.

Mr. Mercer said construction will start within the next few weeks on rooms at Simons, Coglan, & Wix-Brown Elementary Schools.

This building boom in the district has caused problems for the Personell Department of the School Board. The Superintendents Department reports that 51 new teachers have received appointments for the upcoming year. While many of these are replacements for resignations, many are teachers for new classes and courses. Fort Langley Secondary alone, will require 15 teachers. Among the new appointees are many who are returning to Langley to continue their teaching careers or to take up their first assignments after graduation from teaching college.

The local appointments include Miss E.M. Hildebrandt, Miss E.R. Martins, Miss Cathy Monahan, Miss Linda Wilson, Mr. R. Sawatski, Mr. C. Brandow, Mrs. O. Jenson and Mr. D. Urqhart. Mrs. P. Schwab is returning to the district after extensive travels and Miss Sandra Frisby, the daughter of Mrs. Nancy Rowe a teacher at Langley Secondary School, will be returning from Africa in November to take up a position in the district.

Mr. Mercer, speaking about enrollment for the year, said the board does not anticipate any more than the normal five percent increase in students in the coming term. This will bring enrollment to just over five thousand.

Mr. Mercer said most school bus routes will be the same as at the end of the last term and that notices, including routes, schedules and changes will be published in this paper before opening day. He said major changes will be in the Northwest area to students to the new school. Delivery of the two new school buses ordered has been delayed until the end of October because of prior commitments at the factory, but the school board has been granted permission to continue using the two buses being replaced so the fleet will be up to its normal of p3 vehicles.

The new courses Mr. Mercer spoke of were in Science, Chemistry, Physics, Industrial Arts and Home Economics. Also included is a new Provincial Health Department course on venereal disease education. This will be included in the grade ten curriculum and is an optional course, for which parents will be sent letters indicating whether or not they want there child to take the instruction.

PLANNED LOCATION OF GOVERNMENT BUILDINGS IN CANADA'S CAPITAL

(Fifth in a series)

The master plan for the development of Ottawa now being carried out by the National Capital Commission also calls for the planned location of large Federal Government buildings.

Five important factors emphasize the advantage of grouping a certain large administration building away from the congested centre of the city. These are the progressive strangulation of traffic, the parking problem, the high cost of space in the heart of the city, the need to build office buildings elsewhere while waiting for wartime temporary buildings to be demolished, and the desire to surround them with lawns and landscaping which enhance their appearance.

The last factor — the landscaping of the buildings — is by no means the least of the five factors. Even if town planning is far from being simply a technique of beautification, the application of its principles inevitably results in some measure of beauty. In other words, that which is well conceived is more apt to be beautiful.

For a while after 1945 efforts were concentrated on construction of Government buildings outside centre town, for example the building groups at Confederation Heights and Tunney's Pasture, the buildings on Booth and Carling and the Printing Bureau in Hull. The Federal Government has no intention of vacating the central area of the Capital.

On Sussex Drive, near City Hall, it has expropriated one sector of 32 acres to provide approaches to the new Macdonald-Cartier bridge. There is also sufficient land there to erect Federal government buildings. On the east bank of Rideau Canal, opposite the Chateau Laurier and adjoining Confederation Square, the Commission owns about 22 acres occupied in part by the present Union Station and its satellite installations. To the west of Parliament Hill, a short distance from the Chaudière Falls, the Federal Government has assembled 154 acres of land to be used partly for office buildings including the new National Defence Headquarters. The redevelopment of this area known as LeBreton Flats will pave the way for the extension of the Ottawa River Parkway thus ensuring an admirable access route from the west to Parliament Hill. Other large buildings of national importance will be built in the centre of Ottawa, including the National Museum, the National Library, the National Gallery of Fine Arts and the Canadian Centre for the Performing Arts. Construction of the latter is underway.

PATRICIA NEWS

BY MRS. R.M. CLAMP
856-8747

Last February the members of the Patricia Women's Institute discussed the P.N.E. and local fairs and we decided to make a quilt. Our prize winning Quilt Block Book was brought out again and we picked the Flower Garden Design and obtained the necessary materials. From then on many afternoons were spent at the different homes cutting out the pieces, sewing them on the blocks, etc. Then came the quilting afternoons, lots of work to do but always a lovely cup of tea which gave us renewed energy. When we saw the finished product we forgot about the work it entailed and looked forward to entering it at the different fairs. It had just been entered at the Women's Institute Display at the P.N.E. and it won first prize. One of our members, Mrs. DeRoye, made a hooked rug and it won first prize. Another member Mrs. Van Diepen entered a remade girl's coat which won a first, and in the thrift class, two articles. We got a fourth prize, so we are all very pleased with out three firsts, and one fourth. It will soon be time for our W.I. meetings again, the first one will be held in the Patricia Hall on Wednesday, Sept. 15th at 2:00 p.m. sharp, hostesses are Mrs. R.M. Clamp and Mrs. F. C. Johnston.

We extend an invitation to any ladies in the Patricia District who would like to come to our first meeting and meet their neighbours and spend a pleasant afternoon, you will be very welcome.

SCOTTISH EVANGELIST COMING TO THE FRASER VALLEY

Scottish evangelist David Hogg will be the guest speaker at the annual public Gospel crusade commencing at 7:45 p.m. next Monday, August 30, in the Fraser Valley Bible Camp auditorium at Clayburn. The public meetings are scheduled for 7:45 p.m. daily, Monday through Sunday, August 30 to September 5, inclusive.

Mr. Hogg was from Glasgow, Scotland, and has travelled widely in many lands. His wife is expected to accompany him.

World-wide literature crusade speaker, Ken Ashton, formerly of the Morecambe Christian Guest House, Lancashire, England, will preach on Wednesday evening, September 1.

One hundred tons of Christian literature and Scripture portions are required for distribution in the six strategic centers of Bombay, India; Karachi, Pakistan; Manila, Philippines; Bogota, Colombia; Caracas, Venezuela; and Nairobi, Africa during 1965 to 1967. Barry Ashton, B. Ed. (U.B.C.), son of the speaker, arrived in Bombay, India, last week to assist in the Crusade.

Other speakers arriving in the Fraser Valley for the public meetings, will be Chas. F. Stout of Everett, Washington; and Evangelist Louis F. Borghardt, prophetic Bible teacher of Spokane, Washington, and director of the Inland Empire Tract Distributors.

In conjunction with the Six Annual Pacific Northwest Christian Camp and Conference, the day sessions will bring together camp counsellors from Alberta, Washington and British Columbia, including Eric L. McKinley, B.A., of the Newton and District Family Bible Hour; Dalven Krenzler, North Surrey architect; Dale G. Lock of St. Albert, Alberta; Geoffrey E. Woodford of Aberdeen and Tahsis; Mrs. William Letkeman, Aldergrove; Diane Elena Johnson, North Surrey; Donna M. Egan, Trail and North Surrey; and Mrs. John Edward Wall, Langley.

Other camp counsellors include Philip Hope, North Surrey; Sarah Stout, Everett, Wn., Pearl Hildebrand, North Surrey and Mel Hildebrand, North Surrey.

Public relations director is H. Hunt Surrey school teacher. Dieticians include Mrs. Gwen Joiner, Abbotsford; Mrs. Nettie Wall, Aldergrove; Mrs. Adeline Hope and Mrs. Mabel Endersby, N. Surrey; and Mrs. Ruth Stout, Everett, Washington.

On the Safety Committee is H. E. Woodford of Aberdeen. Ushering committee is under the direction of William Letkeman of Aldergrove. John E. Wall of Langley takes charge of the personnel arrangements.

Evangelist Mun Hope is general camp director.

Miss Donna Ega, R.N., Trail public health nurse, and Pacific Northwest camp registrar for several years, will leave during the Fall for missionary work in Peru.

Recent visitors to the Fraser Valley included Miss Lylla Van Steinburg, former Pacific Northwest Camp nurse and counsellor, on vacation from Sherbrooke, Quebec, where she teaches nursing. She was accompanied by Miss Margaret

MR. DAVID HOGG

Tourand, school teacher from Arvida, Quebec.

Commencing 7:45 p.m. Monday, August 30, the meetings are held nightly in the Fraser Valley Bible Camp auditorium. During the weekend, additional meetings will be held at 3 p.m. Saturday and Sundays, September 4 and 5. The Clayburn Camp meetings are non-denominational; and are located two miles north of Abbotsford and one and a half mile east along the old Clayburn road.

The public meetings are free and all are invited to attend.

CENTENNIAL MEMO - A Yale butcher named Jonathan Reece built the first trail connecting Yale and Chilliwack in 1862. He raised beef at Chilliwack. He hacked out the 50 mile trail with the aid of one relative and an Indian.

DEAR DORIS
advice from Doris Clark

Think Before You Marry

DEAR DORIS — I went with a boy for five years. My parents were set against him because of his drinking (which is normal for young boys).

During the sixth year I became pregnant. My parents were very hurt but would not take any help from this boy. He left and moved to another city. I gave the baby to an adoption agency. I truthfully thought I could forget this boy but he came back and we started going out again. I am not saying this is true love but I think after a year if you have not forgotten a person he must mean something to you.

This Christmas he gave me a ring. My parents are not pleased but they are leaving the future to my own choice. Wedding plans are now in order. I would like your opinion as to how big the wedding should be, what I should wear and if a reception is proper.

Second Chance

DEAR SECOND — How's that again? You're not saying it is true love, but "wedding plans are in order?" With parents unhappy about it, and even you doubtful, do you think your brave plans have any chance of bringing happiness?

If you have a wedding, it should be small, you should not wear a white gown and veil; and a small reception is in order. If you go by me, it is also in order to stall enough to give yourself a third chance.

Talk it over with someone who's been through the mill.

DEAR DORIS — I've taken a leaf out of your book and got Mom helping me put on a St. Patrick's Day party. The invitation I composed is in the form of a rhyme, and I've said everybody must wear or carry something green.

Now I need some ideas about Irish games to play. Any suggestions?

Patsy

DEAR PATSY — Sure and I have the very thing for you!

It's a leaflet of "Games for a St. Patrick's Party," and may be had by anyone writing in and enclosing ten cents and a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DEAR DORIS — My adopted son was taken from his real parents when he was five. The home was immoral and he was starving. He was three years in a foster home.

When he came to us, six months ago, he had a mental age of five. We simply can't get through to him. He is quiet, lazy-minded. Looks right through us when we try to reason with him. Easily forgets instructions. Disobeys.

To challenge him to eight-year-old behavior I've got him going to Scouts. But the worker says he is perfectly normal and that love and affection will do the trick.

This answer makes me see red. I think he needs help.

Adoptive Parent

DEAR PARENT — With his past history, what could he do but build a shell around himself? He has found that the best way is not to try, not to argue. "What's the use?"

Opening up that shell will take uncommon understanding and patience as well as love. Try meeting him where he is, at a five-year-old level. He needs to taste success. Educational toys for boys of five might intrigue him.

Then praise, love, a celebration for any step forward will bring about more of the same. You can do it.

DEAR DORIS — Have you a leaflet on headaches? I get terrible headaches.

Suffering

DEAR SUFFERING—A headache is a symptom — just a sign that something is wrong somewhere. Almost anywhere. Eyes, nose, teeth, ears, nerves, glands, digestion, fatigue, even feet!

Pay attention to this sign of trouble and get to your doctor, pronto.

Spotlight on education

Now B.C. Tel helps schools broaden the process of learning

What in the world can television be doing in the modern classroom! Here's the simple answer.

Closed Circuit ETV (Educational Television) is a marvel of the electronic age. It has brought a new dimension into education.

Affairs are truly current in Social Studies. Science demonstrations come alive on the television screen. Languages sound right and even look right! Mathematics takes the student step by step through its fascinating course of quantities and relationships.

Research has shown that students can retain as much as 80% of what they see and hear on ETV, and they find each subject more interesting too.

Already, closed circuit ETV is regarded as an aid to teaching at the Faculty of Education at the University of British Columbia, the Vancouver School Board's Continuing Education Centre and the Kamloops School District.

This is yet another example of how B.C. TEL is providing the highest possible standard of communications to get the right information to the right place at the right time.

Our ETV Consultants are always available to discuss any aspect of this service. In Vancouver call 662-8267, elsewhere in B.C. please call collect.

MEMO FROM THE PRINCIPAL OF THE CLEARBROOK SECONDARY SCHOOL

All students attending the Clearbrook Junior Secondary School (School District No. 34-Abbotsford), Grades VIII - X, must present themselves on Wednesday morning, September 8th, for registration, text book issue and school rental fees collection. Students new to School District No. 34 and attending the Clearbrook Junior Secondary School should register at the school a week in advance. Such students are urged to bring their June, 1965 report card.

Necessary, general school supplies should be procured prior to enrolling. Special supplies necessary for particular courses will be sold in school. Each student must provide his own gym T-shirt, gym shorts, running shoes, socks and towel. Each item should carry the student's name.

School rental fees are: Text book rental fee - $4.50 (Gr. X - $5.00); two locks - $1.00; school activity fee - $1.00. All fees are payable in full on the first day of school.

On Wednesday, September 8th, students will be dismissed at 12.00 noon. School buses will operate at noon. Students will be provided with free tickets to attend the Abbotsford Fair in the afternoon.

The school anticipates an enrolment of 375 students, will operate 13 divisions and has a teaching staff of 17 teachers.

The Langley District can be proud of these young people who have done so well in their studies and in their community and school service efforts. There were a number of others who had done well also but the limited funds available to the committee did not allow for any further awards.

The money in the Scholarship fund is raised locally from those generous people who believe that our investment in youth pays dividends. It is to Langley's credit that this fund exists and is another example of the good community spirit to be found here.

New night school classes coming

The 1,000 people who will attend adult classes of Langley Night School this winter will have 14 new courses to consider. These will be in addition to 40 courses which have had support indicating continuing interest.

The new vocational courses to be offered include retail selling, a complete office practice course and an auto mechanics trade qualification course.

Active participation is expected in the discussion group on The Old Testament in the Light of Modern Thought to be led by Archdeacon Very Rev. A. M. Trendall of Fort Langley; and in the sessions to be conducted by Dr. Fred Ceresney on Talking to Your Child About Sex.

The film-lecture series this year, "The Unknown Coast", will be on British Columbia and will feature such well-known speakers as provincial archivist, Willard Ireland.

For the first time in several years public speaking, woodworking and photography classes will be available in Langley.

New craft and interest courses include cake decorating, conversational German, how to invest your money, and the duplicate bridge class which will be offered in addition to basic bridge.

A course in home nursing has also been made possible by the co-operation of the Langley Nurses' Association.

Complete information on the courses will be given in the September 16th Advance, as well as through the schools. Most classes will begin the week of October 4th.

The International Peace Garden, at the geographical center of North America, honours the many years of peace between Canada and the United States. It lies on top of a large plateau in the Turtle Mountains, on the boundary line between North Dakota and Manitoba, reports World Book Encyclopedia.

ALL ABOARD! -- The B. C. Boom Train takes visitors on a simulated tour of the province at the Pacific National Exhibition, which opened Saturday (Aug. 21). Exhibit barker Art Charpentier, president of the sponsoring B C. Young Socreds, signals the start of each 15-minute ride.

The POWER of FAITH

The parents of William Wordsworth, one of England's greatest poets, planned for him to be a minister. But while in Cambridge University, his love of poetry won out over the clergy. Yet, through his poems Wordsworth has served God and man better and far longer than had he taken the other course. His love of people, and his understanding of their needs, is expressed throughout his works. With the simplest words he gives us the beautiful prayer poem, "Father! Take My Hand."

TRAVEL TOPICS

BY TED PEARSON

All the other columns (nearly eight years of them) which have gone before have been about the "nice" aspects of travel. Once I was asked "what about the other side of the picture?" - some of the things you ran into which you didn't like?

Huh! You can't escape human nature by going travelling.

Saddest of the lot is the degeneracy in standards of the Old Country serving folk. Not in all cases, but in most the dignity has gone, supplemented by indifference as well as inefficiency. It has given way to cadging as many shillings as possible for as little effort as possible. The French were always that way.

Another is the stubborn "oh, we cawn't do that sir" officiousness of clerks asked to do something ever so slightly different from the way in which they usually do a thing. Don't attempt to alter the ritual.

Now do I like the Caribbean custom of butting into your private life by taking unasked bags and parcels out of your hand (to carry for you, of course) opening doors for you, washing your car (all for a hand-out, naturally), and the tip-eager anticipation of everybody in the hotel, from the head waiter and porter down.

Hard to stomach, too, is the squalor, and the self-mutilated beggars of many of the large Asian cities - Bombay and Calcutta in particular.

Apart from all that, when you have seen one stone cathederal or castle you've about seen them all ... just as one Tori gate, Shinto shrine or Buddhist temple looks just like the rest of them. The traditional Kabuki theatre is not for me, now would I waste good money to see a bull fight (in which the eventually murdered Toro has all the cards stacked against him). Yes, I know in Portugal it's different.

Lastly, I shudder at the sight and sound of tourists (obviously from this continent) loud of clothes and loud of mouth, with their over-bearing demands. You run into a few of them no matter where you go.

MEAT INSPECTION AGREEMENT

OTTAWA, August 13, 1965 -- Small meat packing plants in Manitoba will be able to qualify for federal meat inspection service under an agreement reached between the Canada Department of Agriculture and the provincial Department of Health, Agriculture Minister Harry Hays announced today.

Manitoba becomes the first province to enter such an agreement, under which federal veterinarians will inspect domestic plants not engaged in inter-provincial or export trade.

This is an expansion of a service provided under the Canada Meat Inspection Act for larger plants across the nation which sell their products in other provinces and outside the country.

The extended inspection service is on a voluntary basis. There are about 35 eligible domestic plants in the province.

Federal inspection is authorized under the Public Health Act of Manitoba. The Act contains regulations for the licensing and inspection of domestic plants.

Cost of providing the service will be recovered from the province at the rate of $1.00 for each unit inspected.

This expanded program provides for a comprehensive meat inspection service, including ante-mortem and post-mortem animal inspection to ensure that meant products are free from disease, and to ensure standards of sanitation, adequate sanitary disposal of all condemned material and compliance with the Humane Slaughter of Food Animals Act.

Inspected meat products will be stamped Canada Approved, although they will not be eligible for sale outside the province.

A Standards Committee comprised of both federal and provincial representatives has been appointed to modify the present requirements and to ensure compliance by the slaughtering establishment covered by the agreement.

The Hanging Gardens of Babylon were as much a labour of love as the Taj Mahal. Nebuchandnezzar is said to have built the gardens for his wife about 600 B.C. because she missed her homeland of hills and trees, reports World Book Encyclopedia.

Nick Baily, new manager at Fraserway Bowlerdrome, is well-known to 5-pin bowlers throughout the west. He does not spot bowl but has four perfect games to his credit.

Bowling champion joins Fraserway as manager

Although only opening one year ago there have been many changes made for the upcoming season at Fraserway Bowlerdrome.

Probably the most important is in management. New manager is Nick Baily, one of the most well-known 5-pin bowlers in Western Canada, who has achieved every honor in the game besides managing other bowling alleys in his 12 years of bowling career.

Nick has bowled four perfect games of 450 so far. Two of them have been in league play. He also has 78 games of 400 or more to his credit.

Asked what he thought about coming to the Fraser Valley, Nick told The News "It's a wonderful challenge. I thing Fraserway has one of the best alleys I have ever seen. Never have I seen purer air or better bowling conditions".

Nick has certain strong views about bowling instruction. He thinks every beginner is entitled to get instruction and says he will always be available to give tips and hints to beginners.

He is also an expert on conditioning or dressing the lanes.

"Last year I understand you had trouble with the corner pins not falling," he volunteered.

"This year you will notice the difference. Not only will the lanes be dressed for high scoring but we will remove certain pins which should never have been there in the first place. They were 5-pins with 10-pin bases," he explained. He added "no wonder bowlers had difficulty in getting strikes."

League bowling will commence on September 7. A meeting was held last night to discuss league formations and rules.

All 5-pin lanes this year will be fully automatic. The four 10-pin lanes will be semi-automatic. All lanes have been completely resurfaced and the building redecorated.

New manager intends to run many special tournaments this season. Some of them will be new to the district and some will be for beginners.

"At tournaments, everyone should have a chance of winning, no matter what their handicaps are," says Nick.

"We want to encourage family bowling and are prepared to go out of our way to make bowling enjoyable for our customers".

Michael Hayes, proprietor of the alleys, says he will keep in the background.

"With Nick here I expect my average to improve considerably," he says.

Fisher's OUTDOOR TOPICS

by RED FISHER
FISHERMEN'S HALL OF FAME

CATCH 'EM "ACCIDENTLY"

Some fish are caught deliberately, others by accident.

How else do you explain the unexpected strikes that occur after unsnarling a first-class backlash that interrupted casting for several minutes? Or the pause to light a smoke that results in an explosion of water and bass?

FISHER

If these are accidents, then say the Mercury outboard people, we ought to have more of them.

Such catches are not happenstance. They could have been planned that way . . . provided the angler was a bit more patient, and more tolerant of a fish's fundamental right to carefully consider and inspect its vitties.

As a rule, fishermen using topwater and bottom running plugs are overly anxious to produce action. They not only retrieve too fast, but the retrieve is started too soon.

Granted, there are exceptions to this: those occasions when anything works as soon as it smacks the water. But during a long, dry spell a few intentional rest periods for the lure are in order.

After making a cast, wait! Wait for at least 60 seconds, perhaps longer. This period of inactivity is painful, but productive.

A carefully calculated delay, just like its accidental counterpart, calms down fish frightened by the lure's initial splash. The longer the plug lies motionless the more curious the fish gets.

A slight twitch gives life to the lure, resembling the feeble movements of a momentarily stunned insect or animal starting to revive. No self-respecting fish that's been paying close attention can resist taking a swipe.

And that, buddy, is no accident.

THUNDERBIRD

By rex neptune

A fast and sturdy family racing-cruising sloop which was designed by one of North America's top naval architects especially for the man who builds his own boat won new honors this year in the Pacific Northwest's toughest small boat race.

The 26-foot Thunderbird proved her speed and ability to outsail larger boats in rough weather when the May D 11 sailed by veteran Ned Ashe of Victoria won the 1965 Juan de Fuca race from Victoria to Clallam Bay, Washington and return. In winds that gusted to 35 miles per hour in the exposed waters of Juan de Fuca Strait May D 11 came home well ahead of ten other boats, among them larger craft.

Seattle naval architect, the late Ben Seaborn, designed the Thunderbird to be a tough, fast-sailing craft suitable both for family vacationing and racing. She has since proved herself a winner in all departments. Winning of the 1965 Swiftsure by May D 1 has proven once again the claims of Thunderbird skippers that their plywood beauty can beat the best of them.

She moves easily and fast in light winds and has the seakeeping ability needed in the toughest blow. When Seaborn created this able plywood sloop he planned her especially for the home builder making sure her plans and building processes were easy to follow without sacrificing the sailing qualities which have made her a favorite with hundreds of sailing families.

He developed a seaworthy, roomy boat of comfortable proportions that offered family cruising within the price range of the average working man and well within the building skills of the handyman.

Seaborn's standards were demanding but the 26-foot Thunderbird met all his qualifications and passed her tests with the highest marks. Contributing to her success, both in strength and building simplicity, was the use of full length marine grade fir plywood in her construction. Clear, well illustrated plans were printed that give step-by-step directions and full material lists for Thunderbird to make building even simpler.

The great majority of Thunderbirds have been built by their owners. Since the first one was launched in 1958, the Thunderbirds have become by far the most popular cruising sail boat in Pacific Northwest waters. They are particularly popular with the seasoned salt water sailors of Vancouver and Victoria.

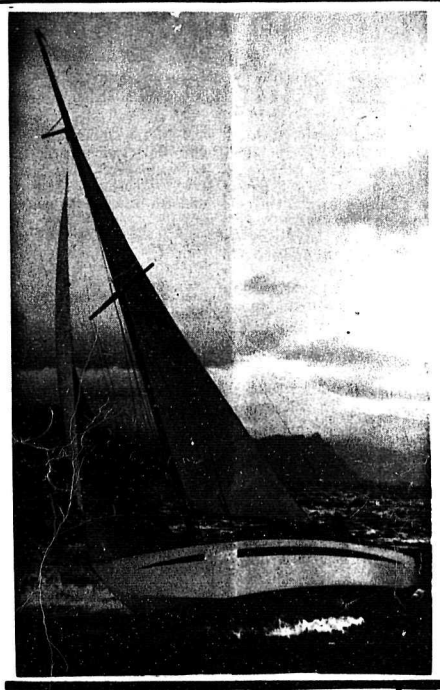
Some have been bought as unfinished hulls and completed by owners either pressed for time or without the space to build the hull. Some yards can turn out a well-built Thunderbird hull pretty reasonably preferring to build only the hull and leave the time-consuming finishing details to the owner.

These details, which push up the hourly cost in a yard, can be done by the owner in his own time.

Thunderbird has sleeping accommodation for four in cabin comfort with galley and marine toilet. A 9 1/2 horse power outboard in the well provided has proven to be the most popular auxiliary power.

A Thunderbird can be built ready to sail for around $3,000 by the home builder. Costs vary with sail and gear chosen but several have been built in B.C. for that price. Her vital statistics are: Overall length, 26 feet, beam seven feet six inches, sail area (main and jib) 364 swaure feet, draft keel, four feet nine inches, weight 3,600 pounds.

I will answer any written questions of general boating interest. Send written questions to Rex Neptune, P.O. Box 2123, Vancouver 3, B. C.



CENTENNIAL MEMO -- In May 1889 Japan established her first consulate in British Columbia at Vancouver. First consul was Fukashi Sugimura.

CENTENNIAL MEMO -- The first wagon ever built in Victoria was the work of Simeon Duck. It was later used on a scheduled run between Yale and Cariboo by its owner, Expressman F. J. Barnard. Mr. Duck later became an MPP.

WATCH YOUR TIRES SAYS B.C.A.A.

If you're about to begin that long-distance vacation trip, it will pay you to carry an additional four pounds of air pressure in each tire, says the B.C. Automobile Association.

the BCAA explains that while the recommended tire pressure in a new car makes for softer riding, a higher inflated tire allows for the safest high-speed travelling. Additionally, the tire wears better.

An under-inflated tire, on the other hand, can build up too much pressure at high speeds, because of its constant flexing, the BCAA says. It warns that the combination of pressure and heat buildup could, under some circumstances, result in blow-out.

The additional four pounds of pressure in each tire might make for a little rougher ride, the BCAA notes, but the tires will always be ready for high-speed, long-distance driving.

CONTAGEOUS DISEASES

If your child is exposed to any contagious disease, or if he shows what you suspect may be symptoms of such disease, call your doctor and describe the child's condition. Meanwhile, keep the youngster away from the rest of the family, preferably in bed, until the doctor has seen him. If you have no family doctor, call your local health department and explain the case to them.

CENTENNIAL MEMO -- In 1890 British Columbia had only four high schools. They were located at Victoria, Vancouver, New Westminster and Nanaimo.
