It's Worth Considering

An official of the TB-Christmas Seal Society says national medicare could ruin B.C. TB Control Program.

Executive Secretary D. A. Geekie says if the responsibility for detection and treatment of the disease is left with private physicians the public health programs could be destroyed.

No medical schemes help the program at the present time, and the federal government has never helped with it either.

Geekie says months of costly treatment are needed even for those slightly affected by TB germs and he fears the program may come crashing down if people come to depend entirely on a government scheme.

Illegal To Cage Wild Animals

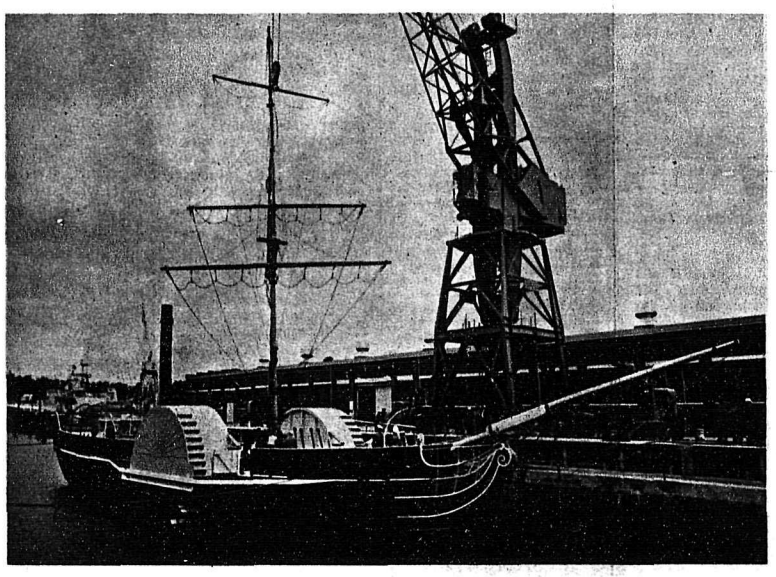
Don't take home a cub bear, fawn deer or other animal or bird which you may encounter when in the outdoors, is the advice given by Dr. J. Hatter, Director of the Provincial Fish and Wildlife Branch in Victoria.

In addition to being cruel -- and often fatal -- to the wild creature concerned, the practice of adopting any wild creature is against the law. No animals or bird may be kept in captivity without a permit, and such permits are rarely issued.

Dr. Hatter said that seldom do female animals desert their young. When young animals are found in the wild, it is more than likely that the mother is nearby waiting to reclaim her offspring.

When it is known that a young wild creature really is deserted or the parent has been killed, the Wildlife Director said that the proper course of action is to notify the nearest Conservation Officer or police constable.

To be in possession of any wild creature without a permit is both illegal and is usually unfair to the animal itself.



ALMOST READY for starring role in British Columbia Centennial celebrations is authentic replica of historic S. S. Beaver, a project of the British Columbia Centennial Committee in collaboration with the Royal Canadian Navy. First of two 80 foot masts was stepped recently at navy Dockyard, Esquimalt, and fitting out of interior as floating museum is now under way. The 101 foot reproduction of the first steam vessel to operate in the Northwest Pacific will visit British Columbia coast communities and take part in Centennial celebrations in 1966 and 1967. The reconstruction was built around a naval auxiliary vessel.

Boy Scout Jamboree To Be Held In Penticton

More than 2,450 Scouts are camping together this summer in British Columbia's first real Jamboree. Being held in Penticton from July 9th to July 16th, 1966, the event will draw Scouts from all corners of B.C., most provinces in Canada, from the U.S.A. and Hawaii; and a Scout from Trinidad.

The Jamboree is offering a tremendous program. All activities are geared toward an "Adventure Award" that encourages Scouts to participate in everything.

Go-karting, scuba diving, rifle shooting, golfing, swimming, sailing and many other attractive interests and sports await the boys.

In addition, there will be displays and hobbies that can be investigated, plus an enormous fireworks show at the closing ceremony. The Scouts will consume more than 3,000 quarts of milk daily and use over three tons of charcoal during the week for cooking their own food.

The Fraser Valley area is well represented with 339 Scouts and 33 Leaders. There are, in addition to the leaders, over 60 adults from the Valley attending who will assist in keeping the canteen, waterfront, Scout skills, sports and security operating properly.

In the Aldergrove area there are 13 Scouts in one Troop. The Jamboree Scoutmaster is A. Hatchwell, 856-2073.

Ten buses have been chartered to move the Fraser Valley scouts on July 9th. They will return during the day on Jul : 16th.

A special 32 foot truck will be used to move the tents and camping gear for this army of Scouts.

New Entry List For Fall Fair

Entry classes have been revised and Langley Centennial Committee has offered a trophy for annual competition in some class in the Fair.

Aldergrove

Chamber shown Army home plan

Guest speaker at the Aldergrove Chamber of Commerce annual Ladies' Night dinner, June 13th, was Salvation Army Captain B. Meekings.

Capt. Meekings described the operation of the Army's House of Concord for delinquent youths and stated that the local hostel on Carvolth Rd. would be run along the same lines. He also showed plans for some new buildings at the 110-acre farm the Army purchased in February.

The meeting was told by its utilities committee chairman, Cliff Watt, that Langley township council had given him a good reception when approached regarding the installation of a sewer system in Aldergrove. Feasibility studies are presently being considered.

Aldergrove will be on TV July 27th, civic affairs chairman Geof Rowley told his fellow members. On that day channels 6 and 8 will screen a 15-minute programme all about Aldergrove. Already one 16mm film has been shot featuring the champion race horse, George Royal, and some of the larger dairy and mink farms in the area. Another reel will be developed before the show is taped July 5th.

The Ladies' Night dinner served in St. Anne's Church by the ladies of the CWL winds up the chamber's meetings until the fall.

Conciliation Board Recommends 14 Per Cent Increase For Municipal Employees

A three-man conciliation board recommends a 14 per cent wage increase for Langley Municipal employees.

They would get a 7 per cent increase over two years.

Cost to the taxpayers would be $22,000 a year.

The union has asked for a 25 per cent increase.

The union and the municipality will consider the recommendation and then union members will vote on the proposal.

The three-man conciliation board is composed of J. W. Stinson of Cloverdale (appointed by the Labor Relations Board), William Stevens (nominated by the union), and Lloyd Steele for Langley Municipal Council.

Hunter Vogel Speaker At Langley C. of C.

Mr. Hunter Vogel was the guest speaker at the Langley Chamber of Commerce meeting when the chamber held its annual election of officers last week.

Mr. Vogel, who is a member of the Langley Chamber took advantage of the opportunity to discuss some of the experiences he has had in the provincial government, and reported on some of the committee work he has done, as the member for Delta.

Mr. Vogel served on committees dealing with the problem of drinking drivers, on West Coast fishing privileges, and on the regional park authority.

The chamber meeting was held in the Chestnuts Dining Room in Langley.

Mr. Vogel, explained the suggestion he made in the Legislature last session for a deep harbour development at Sturgeon Banks.

He recalled that his suggestion was hailed as a back-bencher's dream. He told the chamber that his suggestion was made to draw attention to the need for greatly increased harbor facilities on the B.C. Lower Mainland.

He said that congestion and overcrowding in the salt-water port of Vancouver would make further development of other port facilities greatly desirable over the next 25 to 50 years.

He described the Fraser River as a shallow-draft port, that would not handle deep-sea cargo boats of the future. Mr. Vogel stated that there were 4,000 acres of reclaimable terminal space at Sturgeon Banks at the mouth of the Fraser River, with 100 feet water depth, which would be adequate for any large freighters now in the planning stage.

Mr. Vogel said the provincial government should re-establish the Department of Fisheries.

He said the federal Department of Fisheries is doing a good job, but the administration point in Ottawa is so far away from the coast, that misunderstandings arise in communication.

He felt a provincial fisheries department could supplement the work of the federal government with greater efficiency in regulation and administration and with more satisfaction for West Coast commercial fishermen.

Water Shortage Criticized

Residents of the Brookswood-Ferndale area of Langley District are critical of the alleged failure of Langley Municipal Council to take action in a water shortage.

The vice president of the South Langley Ratepayers' Association, D. J. Bartlett, says two 137 foot wells dug by the municipality are draining water from local wells and lowering the water level to the critical point.

Post Office Issues Stamp

The Canada Post Office will issue a 5¢ commemmorative stamp on the 27th July, 1966 recognizing work of Canadian scientists in developing peaceful uses of atomic energy, Postmaster General Jean-Pierre Cote announced today.

Marking the year in which the country's first commercial large-scale production of nuclear-electric power becomes a reality, the stamp is intended to emphasize concentration on peaceful uses of atomic power, Mr. Cote stated.

Produced from a design by Toronto artist A. L. Pollock, the issue is blue in color, horizontal in format and prominently features a stylized illustration of structures comprising the new Douglas Point Nuclear Power Station located in Ontario on the shores of Lake Huron.

A misroscope at the lower left above which is a dove of peace respectively symbolize research and peaceful uses of great power; superimposed on the whole is the symbol for a heavy water atom.

Douglas Point's distcintive features include its nuclear reactor referred to as the CANDU type, an abbreviation of Canadian Deuterium Uranium. Uniquely differing from many major programmes throughout the world, the Canadian development has been based on the use of heavy water as a moderator and coolant with natural uranium as the fuel. Construction of the establishment was undertaken by Atomic Energy of Canada Ltd., in co-operation with the Ontario Hydro Electric Power Commission.

In making his announcement regarding the stamp, the Postmaster General indicated a total of 24 million will be printed by the Canadian Bank Note Company, Ottawa.

FOUNDERS OF BRITISH COLUMBIA

RODERICK FINLAYSON

Cattle were precious to the first settlers at Fort Victoria and when Indians feasted on some of the fort's livestock Roderick Finlayson put a stop to it with a cannon.

Finlayson, who came with James Douglas to found the Hudson's Bay Company fort in 1843, was in charge of the fort the following year. When Indians killed some grazing oxen, he sent for the chief. Questioned, the chief got mad. He stalked off in a rage and assembling his Songhees and some Cowichans, peppered the fort with musketry.

Finlayson sent an Indian from the Fort to the chief's lodge with instruction to clear everyone out of it. Then Finlayson blew it apart with a nine-pounder loaded with grape shot. The next day the cattle were paid for in furs.

Roderick Finlayson, born in Scotland in 1818, was sent to America in 1837 as a fur company clerk. He served in posts on the Ottawa River until 1839 when he crossed by canoe and horse-back to the Pacific coast. He traded on the Columbia, on Puget Sound, at Fort Langley, Fort Stikine and Fort Simpson. In 1843 he assisted in the removal of properties from Fort McLoughlin on Milbanke Sound, to the south end of Vancouver Island where Fort Victoria was being built on an area roughly 100 yards square and behind an 18-feet-high wall of cedar pickets.

In charge of the post for many years, Finlayson was made chief trader in 1850 and chief factor in 1859. He served on the Legislative Council of the island colony from 1851 to 1863. Retired in 1872, he died in Victoria 20 years later.

Bumper Crop

BUMP-UP YOUR CORN PROFITS

A recent comparison of fertilizer programs on 17 Iowa farms again indicates that fertilizing corn is highly profitable – and at rates of application that are far above average.

The average amount of plant food applied per acre on these 17 farms was 56 pounds of nitrogen, 38 pounds phosphorus, and 21 pounds potassium. On part of their acreage, however, each of the test-farmers applied a higher rate of application which included 100 pounds of nitrogen.

Average yield for the 17 growers was 102 bushels per acre, about 34 per cent more than the average for the entire state. However, the average yield under the higher rate of nitrogen was 121 bushels per acre – 63 per cent greater than the state average.

Similar accounts of higher corn yields across the country, due to increased fertility, are as common as 10d nails. One Nebraska farmer, for instance, Darell Keim, single-handedly grew more than 30,000 bushels of corn this past season on less than 100 acres of land. The secret of his success? Keim applied about 180 pounds of high analysis nitrogen fertilizer per acre, plus the phosphorus and potash needed, in the spring after shedding stalks.

Leading agronomists, in fact, point to the many advantages of using a dependable high analysis fertilizer, like Ammo-Phos by Olin. For one, it's easier to apply. While ordinary fertilizers are produced by simply mixing solid forms of nitrogen, phosphorus and potash in a simple machine, Ammo-Phos by Olin is actually a chemical compound of these vital nutrients – in pellet form – assuring an easy and uniform distribution.

According to agronomists, Ammo-Phos by Olin has created a revolution in the fertilizer industry. When properly used, the plant food is a superior starter fertilizer. For bumper crop profits on corn production ample amounts of the fertilizer are needed to supply phosphorus and potash and some nitrogen for a starter. Additional nitrogen should be used as a plowdown or side dressing.

Centennial Report

1867 1967 by JOHN W. FISHER CENTENNIAL COMMISSIONER

I have been "ticked off" by some friends for "allowing the subject of crass commercialism" to creep into a few of my public addresses on the Centennial of 1967. I refer to the subject of businesses making more money as a result of the expected boost in tourism and commerce in general.

It is, of course, quite right that the spirit of our birthday celebrations should maintain a tone in keeping with Canada's national and historical significance as our Parliament expressed it in an Act. Nevertheless I continue to declare, in spite of the concern of a few of my friends, that it is no sin for the keepers of hotels, motels, restaurants, roadside lunch stands, shops and the hundreds of thousands of other Canadian businessmen, large and small, who will be selling increased amounts of paint, flags, musical instruments, gasoline and transportation, to look forward to an increase in revenues in the year 1967.

It is to be hoped, of course, that all will realize the importance of fair business conduct. Let it not be said by any tourist in our country that he was unfairly exploited during his visit.

Just to show that there need be no fear of character damage to a Canadian who tries to do better, financially, during the Centennial I point to no less a dignified body than the Canadian Travel Bureau.

The Government Travel Bureau hopes to attract a gross income from tourists from other countries of one billion dollars in 1967. The Bureau also has greatly increased its budget for advertising outside Canada to help produce that hoped-for income.

Knowing that there is a solid national effort to produce greater tourism many will be encouraged to accelerate their business activity in the community, particularly with respect to promotion, in a way that produces local business revenue, and at the same time boosts the Centennial, as a national celebration, along with the national economy.

Local merchants can do things with their shop windows, counters and advertising which will in-crease sales and at the same time add to the festive atmosphere for the Centennial. Local industries can build their corporate prestige by going along with our national beautification program: making their properties more attractive, landscaping, cleaning up and painting up and perhaps putting up a new flag pole for the celebrations.

Local printers and publishers can get on the bandwagon too. Mr. Bill Forbes, editor and manager of Canadian Printer and Publisher magazine, brimful of ideas for small town newspapers and printers, told us recently he is running Centennial suggestions in his own column. He has tips for Centennial promotion issues of newspapers and commercial printing project plans. (One novel idea of his for community printers and publishers is to produce wrapping paper covered with montages of old front-page news stories published in 19th century issues.)

Style magazine, newspaper for the retail garment trade, is running a column every issue to pass along "how-to" information on Centennial sales promotion. Other business editors are publishing similar material.

Man can be the most constructive or destructive of all animals when he is motivated by the lure of profits. Let's take the view that we can increase revenue in 1967 in a constructive way that will benefit the Centennial and all of us.

THURSDAYS

Lovely Barbara Eden, one of Hollywood's busiest actresses, stars as a mischievous genie in the situation-comedy series, I Dream of Jeannie, seen Thursdays on CBC television. Co-starring in the series is Larry Hagman as a serious young astronaut Tony Nelson who is continually embarrassed by Jeannie's antics and magic tricks.

EVERY LITTLE BIT HELPS

No animal species is wholly good or wholly bad from the point of view of its effect on man. Even the lowly insect contributes much to the making and enrichment of the soil. Many earth-dwelling forms do this directly, building, aerating and mixing soil much as earthworms do, while other assist by reducing both animal matter and vegetation to mulch and manure. The work of borers, ants, wood-beatles and similar small creatures reduces dead wood to humas far more rapidly tna is done by simple decay. And all the insects, of course, sooner or later return to the soil the nutrients of their own dead bodies. The contribution of each individual animals is tiny; the combined effect of all animal activitiy is great.

SAFETY TIP

Each year about 30 children, most of them under 6, get trapped in refrigerators and suffocate, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. A refrigerator that is temporarily out of use should be encircled with strong filament tape or a chain with a padlock. The doors of a refrigerator that is to be junked, discarded or abandoned should be removed.

BEDTIME FOR BASS

Spawnin' time is fishin' time. And it's right around the corner, already underway in the south, about to begin up north.

For many bass fishermen this event signals the start of the wildest action they can expect to find during the season.

It's time to get out the lures and start up your Mercury outboard when early spring water temperatures approach 60 degrees. Fish move into shallow water. Papa Bass works hard to fan out a nest in the bottom and induces Mama Bass to lay her eggs in this specially created haven; the number may range from 4,000 to 1,000.

FISHER

This done, Mama flips her tail and disappears, leaving the old man to protect the nest against all intruders for a period of incubation that may last from two days to more than a week.

And protect the nest he does.

Any creature or object that trespasses is violently attacked. Hence, the effectiveness of almost any fishing lure plopped in the vicinity.

When the eggs hatch, Papa Bass reverts to his usual bad disposition and glutton's habits. Obviously famished after several days of playing watchdog, he may, and often does, proceed to devour a sizeable quantity of his own progeny.

While this may seem like a sorrowful turn of affairs, it only emphasizes the pugnacious and brute-like attributes that have made bass one of the most eagerly sought-after game fish in North America.

Report from Ottawa

BARRY MATHER, M.P.
New Westminster Constituency

OTTAWA -- Pensions, those of senior citizens, retired civil servants and war veterans, are again to the fore.

There are rumors that the government may move to provide a special fund from which to supplement the present basic $75-a-month Old Age Security rate. This would be in line with the fact that today's old people do not benefit at all from the contributory Canada Pension Plan, although suffering from today's inflationary costs.

It is believed that the Contributory Plan will build up and pay off benefits of more than $100 a month, plus the $75, during the next 10 years and, to that extent, today's old-age pension problems will lessen. If so, this is in the future and of no help, to the present.

It has been said that today's senior citizens will perhaps be the last to remain in the "valley of scarcity." The rest of us are emerging into a world of abundance, that is if, we have the sense to distribute our production in line with the realities of today in place of the outworn concepts of last century.

With Ottawa talking of $6 million paintings and $100 million defence buildings, it seems that our senior citizens are due for some early consideration.

Meanwhile, war veterans and their organizations, are anxious to see improvement made in service pension payments. They want an increase in basic rates and also for an end to the provision which sees old-age pension increases deducted from War Veterans Allowances. It is argued, surely logically, that had war veterans not risked their lives serving Canada, they *would not now have their old-*age pensions cut.

In this country old-age pensions are supposed to be everybody's right, regardless of income. At the moment, the Veterans Affairs Committee is waiting for the Report of the Wood Commission on war pensions, but has reserved the right to press for their increase.

As for retired civil servants, their plight is simply this -- while thousands of them retired after years of work and on small pensions, they now see their meagre incomes eaten up by the inflationary rise in living costs. Their counterparts in Great Britain have received relief from this situation. But their former employer, the Canadian public, has made no upward adjustment of their pensions in line with the upward trend of prices. Unlike many in today's market place, they have been unable to secure redress.

The government has accepted, for the future, the principle of raising old-age contributory pensions in line with the Cost of Living Index.

But it remains adamant to a similar reform for those existing on civil service pensions. (Thousands of these are for $30 or less a month). An increase in line with the Cost of Living Index retroactive say, to 1961, would appear to be the most practical and just immediate goal.

In all this we should keep in mind that, through federal mediation, the wage rates of several important groups of workers in different parts of Canada have recently been raised by as much as 30%. The equity of this in relation to the fixed income of old people, demands attention.

Store complex for Clearbrook

Describing the venture as "private urban redevelopment", a group of businessmen, known as "Clearbrook Enterprises", is building a retail complex at the east end of the present Clearbrook retail section at a cost of some $150,000.

Lawrence Friesen, spokesman for the group, announces the first phase in a number of stores amounting to some 20,000 square feet in a dozen units, with off-street parking for 300 cars.

Construction is in the first phase of site preparation and the architect's plans are expected shortly. Occupancy is planned for September.

New facilities which have already been spoken for, will be taken up by existing businesses with some additions to the retail section.

"This co-operative undertaking" says Mr. Friesen, "has sparked a great deal of interest, and there is no doubt that the project will expand as the need arises. We feel everybody benefits when shopping areas are concentrated. Furthermore parking space is as vital to successful retailing as is first class stock in attractive surroundings, and will be a feature of any further development."

New X-Ray Machine For Langley Health Centre

Doctor Duncan Black of the Langley Health Office announced today the acquisition of an x-ray machine for the Kin Health Centre in Langley City.

The x-ray machine is a unit from the old Langley Memorial Hospital, and is being donated by the board of hospital trustees.

Doctor Black and his staff at the health centre will now work in connection with the T.B. Christmas Seal Fund in offering chest x-rays at the Langley Health Centre.

Doctor Black says there are only three other health centres in the province equipped with similar machines and that his staff will be trained to operate the machine and the service should be available near the end of this month.

Renovations are underway in the health centre now.

Doctor Black says anyone will be able to have a chest x-ray at any time, and need not be referred by his or her doctor.
