REGISTER FOR ELECTION!

Twenty years ago the people of British Columbia were searching for relief. They had seen a depression and a World War and they were looking for someone or something to lead them away from the turmoil into the land of milk and honey. They elected a Social Credit Government to do that job, and it has been here ever since.

In the eyes of the public, under the careful direction of the Premier and his cabinet, the Socreds have shown us the truth. They have shown us that the NDP are a Red menace that is waiting around the corner to take away our every freedom and our right to a good life in B.C. They have shown us that a government need not be small to be humble. Even a huge power structure such as the Socreds can please all of the people all of the time. In short, they have shown us salvation in that they snapped us from the clutches of terror and gave us a father figure in Victoria. Someone we could look up to.

Now the Great White Father in Victoria has asked us once again to go to the polls and display our devotion to the party, and to him. A provincial election will be held on Wednesday, August 30th and we are all asked to go to the polls on that date and return the party to power that we feel will provide a good life for us in the province's depressed areas.

Voting registration is now possible at The Star for residents of Aldergrove, and at Clearbrook Water Works for those in Matsqui. Make sure you are on the Voters' List or you will not be able to take part in the voting. The requirements are that you be nineteen years old before August 30th, that you have been a resident of Canada for 12 months and of B.C. for six. You must also be a Canadian citizen or British subject.

is now only days away. August 9, 10 and 11 are the days on which the show will be held this year, and the clockwork of plans and preparations for the big airborne extravaganza are already warming up their engines. This year the show should take off with a big roar.

The R.A.F. Falcons sky divers will be on hand to display some daring and unbelievable feats. Nellis Walker, who is a pilot paralyzed from the waist down, will also be on hand to perform acrobatic endeavours in his aircraft. He is the only paraplegic acrobatic pilot in the world.

There will also be a wing walker billed. Terry Holme, an American mother of three teenage boys, will walk on the wing of an airborne plane. Wing walkers were a big attraction in the early days of aviation and today they are even bigger because they are in less of an abundance.

Hovercrafts will rally at the show too in the first North American Hovercraft Rally ever held. This is said to be one of the big modes of transportation in the future. It is already in extensive use here on the west coast and in the north and in Europe. They are amazing machines to watch and they will be on show at this year's Air Show.

A Second World War ace is also to perform. Bob Hoover will put his P-51 Mustang through it's paces in the style of an air ace extraordinaire. He has demonstrated his techniques for millions of civilians and military people around the world and will be one of the main personalities at the Spitfire pilot's reunion.

The Star will be on the scene at the Air Show and will provide extensive coverage of the aerial goings on. We hope to see you there.

The RAF exhibition sky divers, The Falcons will appear at the Abbotsford International Air Show.

LIQUOR OUTLET NOW OPERATIONAL

The Aldergrove community now has a government liquor store open in town. The store will carry a complete listing of domestic and imported liquor. It already has a fine stock available of imported wines and beers.

The store is somewhat unique in design. There are North American Indian art works inserted in the walls above the shelves and the beer is not piled on the floor, but rather stands on a shelf allowing the shopper to see the many imported brands on display.

The store employs four people and it is managed by Joly Ryder. The establishment of the store is a long time coming as the Aldergrove Chamber of Commerce has been pressing to have a liquor store located here for over ten years. Until now the closest outlet of this sort has been in Langley city, eight miles away.

The official opening of the store was on Friday. The store will be open from 10:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 10:00 a.m. to 9:00 p.m. on Friday. It is located between the Super Valu and the Marshall-Wells Hardware stores.

SPCA is under investigation

Alderman Gary Smith who is a Veterinarian by trade is questioning the quality of the services that are performed by the SPCA for the municipality. The Society for The Prevention of Cruelty to Animals runs the local dog pound and looks after some other minor animal problems, but, according to the alderman, the service they provide is sub-standard.

The remarks stemmed from a request to council by the SPCA for more funds and for a dog burner. Smith pointed out that it would be desirable for the municipality to get a report made on the service as is, and to investigate the prospects of a municipally run pound. A motion to have a report made was given council approval.

Border getting a face lift

They have been at work on the new building for some weeks now. The carpenters, the cement layers, the drainage people have been putting the starting touches on the new Aldergrove Customs Building and in the meantime border crossers are diverted around through a makeshift customs out-post.

The new building, when completed, will provide more space for the customs and immigration people to carry on their daily routine and it will also provide good shelter for cars stopped at the border for inspection by customs officials.

At present, the workers are putting the drainage around the building before they begin work on the framework of the structure. There are also a large number of pillars installed that look rather ominous as one approaches the border from either north or south. These pillars will provide part of the framework of the building.

The road leading up to the border is also under renovation. About two or three miles of the road is being widened and is presently torn up and under excavation. There was quite a controversy just before the road went under construction, and incidentally, just before provincial election, over the condition of the road. The upgrading of the road comes at an understandably opportune moment. Right at the start of the tourist season.

TAYLOR PROPOSES NEW BOARD

Mayor Douglas Taylor of Matsqui has proposed a plan to council, earlier suggested to the Central Fraser Valley regional district. His proposal is for a separate organization apart from the Regional district to handle affairs of common interest affecting Matsqui, Sumas and Abbotsford.

Mayor Taylor says this could embrace the present MSA sewer board and the MSACivic Properties and recreation commission, which now are under the jurisdiction of the Regional District but do not involve some other members of the regional district, Langley city and district.

Alderman Henry De Jong supports the proposal and suggested the overall planning of the MSA area could be included in the new organization.

More discussion is planned later on the proposal.

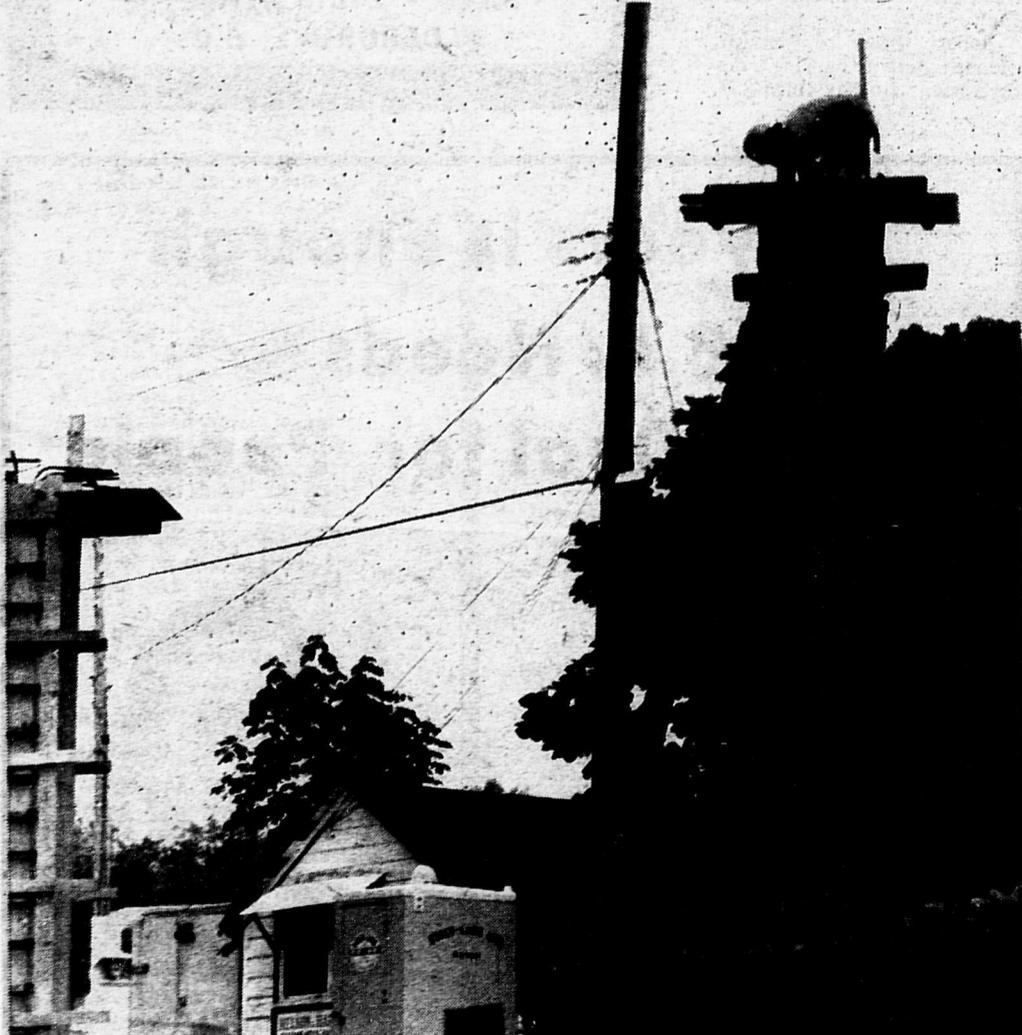

Ooey-Goey IV favored

Worm race to be held at Mission

A challenge has been issued to Mission Mayor Neville Cox and his council to race for the North Shore Dew Worm championships this Saturday, July 29th, during the Citizens' Day celebrations in Mission.

The challenge which came from the staff and management of radio CFVR in Abbotsford has been answered, and the mayor has reported that he has a stable of champions ready to go into competition against the CFVR champion Ooey-Goey IV. CFVR is presently investigating reports that the mayor is enlisting the aid of a disreputable seagull to eliminate the champion radio worm. Plans to hold the races at Mission Raceways are said to have been given the thumbs down because of the extreme noise factor involved. Races are slated for 3 p.m. Saturday at the CFVR broadcast location on Mission's main street. The race should be interesting as both parties believe that the other's worm is just a hoax. We have news for them. A daring Star reporter had a sneak preview of both worms and reports that they both appear to be in top shape and ready for racing. "Never have I seen worms like Ooey-Goey and Cox's Mr.X," our reporter said. They even have their numbers and air tanks strapped on their backs.

Workman puts some finishing touches on one of the pillars at the Aldergrove Customs Station now under construction.

It'll be complicated ... but it can be done

The ROSS (Run Out Skagit Spoilers) committee, headed by John Massey and Ken Farquharson, recently announced establishment of the Skagit Defense Fund, and an upcoming legal argument in the U.S. which will set international precedents.

Farquharson said the defense fund, the latest move in the battle to stop the flooding of the valley by Seattle City Light, will be administered by the B.C. Wildlife Federation, 3020 Sumner Avenue, Burnaby. Receipts for any donation of $5 or more will be issued and will qualify as income tax deductions.

Target of the fund is $25,000, the amount estimated by the committee which will be required to hire technical and legal counsel in the U.S. for a period of two years or more, beginning late this year.

Liberal MLA David Brousson, who has been closely associated with the committee, recently returned from Washington, D.C. where he met with the senior counsel for the Federal Power Commission and established the ROSS committee as an official intervenor before this body. Seattle City Light recently applied to the FPC for a license to raise the Ross Dam, which would result in flooding of a further nine miles of the Skagit Valley in British Columbia.

Brousson outlined recent developments in the international dispute. "This is the first time a Canadian body has been given equal consideration at a U.S. hearing," he said. He also stressed that participation of Canadians at the hearings will be an important step, and it is crucial that a good presentation be made.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Missing journals

Editor, The Star, Dear Sir,

The Historical Branch of the City of Edmonton Parks and Recreation Department has been researching information about the Hudson's Bay Company Fort Edmonton as it was during the 1840's, in preparation for an authentic reconstruction of the post. Much of our knowledge of this fort in the 19th century is derived from Fort Edmonton Journals of Daily Occurrences which are now in the Hudson's Bay Company Archives. Unfortunately, all of the Journals between the years 1834 and 1854 are missing, but it is possible that they still exist somewhere, perhaps in a private collection.

If any readers have information concerning the whereabouts of these missing journals, we would sincerely appreciate hearing from them at:

"It will be very complicated. We are going to hire U.S. counsel and try to present a good case. Over a two year period this will cost a lot of money," he added.

Committee chairman John Massey said the ROSS committee has already stalled the raising of the dam for three years, and will continue to use delaying tactics in the hope that Seattle City Light will finally abandon the project.

Farquharson said special appeals for assistance will be made to all directly affected groups - such as outdoor clubs - to corporations, and to individuals. Queries on this aspect of the fund raising should be directed to the Skagit Defense Fund, 207 - 14th St., West Vancouver (Tel.: 922-4041).

Judge Roderick Haig Brown; Ray Haynes of the B.C. Federation of Labor; Bill Hughes of CKNW; Mrs. Betsy Lane; and Dr. Ian MacTaggart-Cowan, will oversee allocation of any surplus donations to the fund.

Why work?

As unemployment continues to be one of our national problems, periodically a head of the government will say philosophically - in reference to those who refuse a job paying only $1.65 an hour, "well, if they don't want to work, why should they?" Other intelligent types will echo some dream for the future when, according to them we'll all be on a 3- or 4-day work week and ours will be a great society of leisure.

Is this what we really want? Any society, all the way from primitive cultures up to the sophisticated and complex North American variety, consists of individuals who are mutually dependent upon each other. We found this out in recent garbage strikes and remember it well from some postal strikes of the past. It is a fact of life that we are interdependent.

The work ethic is not a hangover from the Puritans. It is fundamentally good for a man to work, to have challenges and to meet them, to pit his skills against problems. To provide a service to society through work, even if it isn't always the kind of job we would choose if we had a large choice, does give one self-respect and a sense of value. Man needs to contribute something to the general pot, as it were. The insidious effect of continued unemployment is to create first anxiety, then hopelessness, and finally apathy which in turn leads to degeneration of the human being.

Instead of treating unemployment facetiously, heads of state and governments could be seriously involved in developing more beautiful cities with greater public services, thus creating employment. Preventive medicine in the form of gymnasiums, more tennis courts, golf clubs, bicycle road ways, gardens, you name it - where some people can be employed and others find recreation - is another area governments might consider.

As a recent survey from coast to coast reveals, Canadians from laborers to executives, believe the right to a job should be a fundamental right for all.

Parents should quit smoking

Since evidence of the harmful effects of cigarette smoking is overwhelming, should it be legal to manufacture and sell them? Lots of people think not. But pause a moment. When liquor was banned in the early 1920's bootleggers grew rich on the increased consumption.

The same thing would happen today if cigarettes were prohibited. Illegal manufacturers would simply go underground and get wealthy while the death rate from smoking would rise like a sales graph.

Society cannot prohibit a person from taking his own life - suicide was recently taken out of the Criminal Code - and we have seen what prohibition does. So, in the case of cigarettes, it seems that people will continue to follow the path of disaster.

However, we can protect our children from this evil. Not so much by policing of the laws regarding the sale of tobacco to minors, as maybe in setting the children a good example. If the youngsters see his parent - in spite of all we know about the dangers of smoking - continue to use the cigarettes, why shouldn't they?

Anyone with a lung problem as a result of being hooked on tobacco can fill you in on its merits as a pacifier.

More young now eligible

More young people are now eligible for living allowances while in occupational training under Canada Manpower training programs.

That's the main result of July 1st changes to the federal Adult Occupational Training Act — the law that governs Manpower training — according to Art Neill, manager of the Abbotsford Canada Manpower Centre.

"The changes to the act simply reflect the changes in the times," he said.

Five years ago, when Manpower training programs began, there were two rules based on time out of school or time in the labor force.

One said no one was entitled to Manpower sponsorship to a course unless they were one year past school leaving age and out of school for at least one year.

A second regulation said Manpower would pay trainees a living allowance only after three years in the labor force.

"At that time," said Art Neill, "this was important because the aim was to help older unskilled workers to receive training."

"Today, things are different. About 80,000 unskilled workers have been trained through Manpower programs in the Pacific region, but the unemployment rate among young people is still often double other age groups."

The result, he said, is that the federal government, to meet current conditions, has dropped the "three year" rule. Anyone eligible for Manpower support in training programs is automatically eligible for living allowances too. This still requires a one-year attachment to the labor force.

The legislative changes have also established two levels of living allowances. "A person on their own or supporting others is paid at a higher rate than someone living at home and mainly supported by parents or a working spouse," said Art Neill.

He explained there were a number of additional changes to the adult training act which will increase the department's flexibility in dealing with people in need of occupational training.

"Many of these are changes in our internal rules and the regulations governing our relations with the provincial government. The main difference now is that we now can provide a better service to more people, especially the young."

Council gets post

Matsqui municipal council has received letters from the Postmaster General's office, and from officials of the B.C. and Yukon postal district, to the effect that the plan for a complete post office for Clearbrook is going ahead.

The letter from the B.C. and Yukon postal district, indicated the Post Office would have Clearbrook identification, and all other services required for adequate postal needs.

No date was indicated for establishment of a Clearbrook Post Office.

Old business closes

As the new businesses open at an alarming rate in Aldergrove, there is one that is just now closing.

The old Aldergrove Surplus Store, owned and managed by Bob Davidson of Aldergrove is now closed. Bob decided some time ago that he wanted to retire and as a result he began to move all of his stock out and held a large sale to get rid of some of the items. Now the store is empty and Bob has settled into a peaceful life of bliss in the countryside of Langley municipality.

Bob has been a familiar figure on the Aldergrove scene for some years now. The residents of the town all recall the staunch manly figure of Bob Davidson sauntering down the mainstreet in his merchants cover-alls and his peaked cap. The loss of this business is a sad turn on the Aldergrove scene.

Around Town

by Irene Orwick

Leo Gunderson and family, of Seattle were weekend guests of Mrs. Gunderson of Aldergrove.

Eddie and Elizabeth Elliott of Holden, Alberta called on me last Friday, as a surprise... but they were surprised... I was out, and it took several folks around town to track me down! So, the place is really growing!! The Elliott family lived on Bradner Road for many years, and many will remember them.

Tuesday's crib games in the O.A.P. Hall were won by: Ladies - 1st prize Mrs. Gunderson, 2nd Mrs. J. Scharf. Gents - 1st Mr. E. Corbett, 2nd Mrs. Sue Jackson (playing as man).

The M. Wood's home was busy last weekend, when grandchildren from North Surrey and friends from Whalley came to visit.

Mrs. Moen's sister and husband of Trail, who have been visiting here for a while, have purchased a home at Clearbrook and are now settling in. We hope to see them here sometime.

George Collison returned from Calgary Friday evening, after spending ten days in that prairie city.

Several ladies dropped in to wish Mrs. P. Penner Many Happy Returns on her birthday last week.

Mrs. Alma Verrault is convalescing at her home after having spent a week in hospital. We hope to see her out again soon!!

Happy to see Mrs. Alf. Moen out on Saturday evening, and looking so well!! All we were needing was some nice sunshine, there's no better tonic after an illness, and for healthy people too!

Mrs. Julia Nelson of North Vancouver accompanied by her mother, Mrs. Prasloski called to see me last week. Over a 'cuppa' we exchanged news of our respective families. Time passes all too quickly when old friends get together!!

Mrs. Vi Lambert of North Battleford, Saskatchewan, arrived this week to spend a little time with her brother, Mr. R. Caplette.

Miss Lynn Ferguson of Vancouver was out on the weekend to visit with her grandparents, Mr. & Mrs. Alf. Moen. Lynn is enjoying her training for nursing at Vancouver General Hospital.

On Saturday evening many relatives and friends gathered in the O.A.P. Hall, to congratulate Mr. & Mrs. C. Jeffrey on their 50th wedding anniversary. The family dinner was held early in the evening, and from 7:30 on was open house. The bride and groom led the grand march, followed by all the children and grandchildren. How very nice it is to have all the family help to celebrate such a special occasion. The honored couple led off the dancing with a waltz and soon everybody was up on the floor regardless of age. My own special good wishes to a grand couple and may you both enjoy a good many more years together, good health and happiness always.

Winners of the last whist party in the O.A.P. hall were: Gents - 1st prize Mr. Misczy, 2nd G. Agar; Ladies - 1st Mrs. Ness, 2nd Mrs. Duncan. Four tables were playing.

The Lifton family returned home on the weekend. They had gone to Bridge Lake. The weather was not nice, so they went down to Kelowna to finish their holiday, visiting relatives. It will soon be peach picking time again, they said.

Mr. & Mrs. Alex Stadyk of Cache Creek, B.C. were Thursday visitors at the home of Mrs. Mary-Liz Stadyk.

On Sunday, Mr. & Mrs. Douglas Taylor entertained relatives and friends on the occasion of their 25th wedding anniversary.

Mr. & Mrs. Jim McNeil and Leanna have returned to Lone Butte, B.C. after spending two weeks with Mr. & Mrs. Chester McNeil. Mrs. Ken Boyle has returned home after being a patient in the M.S.A. Hospital.

Mr. Charles Israel has also returned home, after being a patient in the M.S.A. Hospital for several weeks.

A very successful dance was held in the Army & Navy Clubroom on Saturday evening.

NELLIE WILLMER WEDS JOE FUSON

The Emanuel Lutheran Church in Aldergrove was the setting for an early afternoon wedding uniting Nellie Willmer of Aldergrove to Joseph Fuson also of Aldergrove in holy matrimony. Rev. Fruson officiated.

The bride's dress was in light and dark shades of pink, with a matching hat.

Long-time friends of the couple, Mr. & Mrs. Jack Webb of Chilliwack was Matron of Honor and Best Man at the wedding.

A reception, at the happy couple's home on 444-272 St.

in Aldergrove, took place after the ceremony, attended by many well wishing friends and neighbours. Out of town guests were friends of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. W. Holland of Port Alberni.

1,300 residents petition council

A petition bearing the names of 1300 Clearbrook area residents has been received by Matsqui municipal council seeking a better traffic control system at the intersection of Clearbrook and Peardonville Roads.

The petition draws attention to the fact that two people have been killed in recent years at the intersection. Many others have been injured. A special problem is Sunday pedestrian traffic generated by churches in the area adjacent to the intersection.

Council has turned the matter over to the traffic safety committee for further study and report. Alderman Wiebe suggested better street lighting and a flashing amber light would ease the problem for a start, another suggestion was for a four-way stop at the intersection, or traffic lights.

In Memoriam

STADNYK

In loving memory of my darling daughter, Nancy, who passed away so suddenly on July 26, 1967 at the age of seventeen years.

There is a mother who misses you sadly,
And finds time long since you went.

And I think of you daily and hourly,
But try to be brave and content.

But the tears that I shed, are in silence

And I breathe a sigh of regret,
For You were mine, and I remember

Though all the world forget.
So deeply loved and sadly missed by Mom.

Hemingway's Old Man of the Sea

The late American author, Ernest Hemingway, wrote several books connected with the sea.

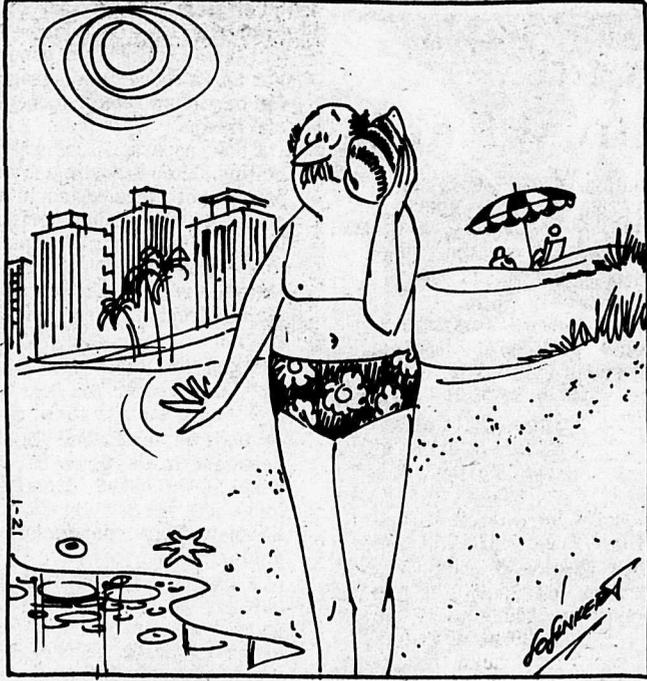

One of his most famous is "The Old Man and the Sea."

For many years, Hemingway made a seasonal escape to the island of Bimini in the Bahamas known as the fishing capital of the world. It was here he met Joe Robins, island philosopher-historian, born in North Bimini almost 90 years ago. Many historians feel Joe Robins is the prototype of Santiago, Hemingway's salty hero of "The Old Man and the Sea."

Hemingway used to live as the house guest of Michael Lerner, founder of the Lerner Marine Laboratory of the American Museum of Natural

CUPE working toward smoother contract procedure

The Langley CUPE contract for municipal workers is still not settled. Another meeting is planned for August 2nd, when CUPE workers will meet with council members to discuss the demands and proposals further.

A union spokesman says that all the municipalities have different wording on their contracts at this time. Ian Falkner of CUPE says that the main job before the Union at the time being is to standardize the contract demands into one master agreement covering all districts. He says there will still be room to look after demands in individual municipalities in the agreement but he indicated that for the most part Langley contract demands will be similar to those in other municipalities.

The union reports that they are now to the point where they can sit down and discuss wages with council. It is rather late in the year to be reaching this point, as one union spokesman pointed out, but it is hoped that the master agreement will speed the process up.

The contract ran out officially at midnight on December 12. The union has not yet engaged in any strike activity other than the fact that they honoured a Teck Construction picket line at Langley Municipal Hall this week.

OFY seminars in Abbotsford

The "Contact" group of the Abbotsford Opportunities for Youth organization will sponsor two separate series of discussion seminars for the MSA area.

The first, starting July 27th, is called Civil Liberties. It will deal with the rights of citizens under local, provincial and Federal levels of Canadian law. Discussions will range over a wide area from rights under the breathalyzer law, to tenant-landlord difficulties.

The other seminar starts Monday July 31, on the subject of sexuality. Sexuality has been defined as the difference between a female and a woman, and a male and a man. The topic centres on what our sexuality means for our lives. Both seminars will run weekly, at 7:30 p.m. at St. Matthews Anglican church hall on Montvue Avenue.

History. Joe Robins was the gardener on the estate, and it was people like Joe to whom Hemingway spoke most often.

"I never saw him write down anything," Joe will tell you, "because he kept it all in his head, and later you saw it in his books." Joe speaks of Hemingway with something close to nostalgia, the gleam in his old eyes a sort of tribute to the memory of someone who immortalized a poor, relatively inconsequential, old man.

Hemingway is gone now, but Joe Robins remains. He has weathered two wives, 17 children and countless grandchildren. As big game fishermen and other tourists come to Bimini these days, Joe has become a familiar figure on the street, as his association with the character in Hemingway's book becomes more widespread. To many people, Joe may not be the character Hemingway portrayed in his story, for there are perhaps some variations in the motivations and general physical characteristics of the two figures, but no one in Bimini doubts that the soul of Joe Robins pervades the book as well as other Hemingway sea stories.

Joe is an old man with, as Hemingway noted, "a growing ecstasy or ordered, formal, passionate, increasing disregard for death ...". He is a living monument to the story of the old man and the sea.

In Canada, one would have to consume nearly a half-pound of white potatoes a day to keep up with the average annual consumption rate as noted by the federal department of agriculture.

For a truly marvelous time . . .

The zodiac symbol for those born in August is Leo, the Lion. Leo women stand tall and proud; they appreciate complimentary remarks from their men and gifts, the more luxurious, the better. If you are lucky enough to be invited to spend your holidays at the home of a Leo you are assured of a marvellous time, for they are superb hosts. Meals will be notable not only for the camaraderie at table but also for the quality of food. But not to worry about putting on weight. Leo has tremendous energy and will involve you in both work and play to burn up the calories. You will be grateful that their many good qualities include the need for lots of sleep and the insistence that they get it. Canadian Mushroom Growers' Association gives you the secret of their Leo's Fish Fillets. They are served with tiny new potatoes and fresh buttered garden beans.

Leo's Fish Fillets

THE STUFFING

1 pt. (½ lb.) mushrooms, chopped fine
1 small green onion, chopped fine
1 tbsp. chopped fresh parsley

¼ cup dry white wine

Fillets will be opaque and flake easily when done. Remove to heated platter. Hot wine liquid may be thickened with cornstarch and poured over fillets. Garnish with lemon slices. Serves 8.

A perfect complement to asparagus is a smooth cheese sauce made zesty with the addition of Gouda cheese. Cheese melts smoothly into any sauce and imparts its own distinct flavor for a truly 'rare bit!'

To cook asparagus properly . . . that is the question

Once described as the "king of all vegetables," a great platter of freshly picked, perfectly cooked asparagus is a dish to set before a king ... or anyone else for that matter.

To enjoy asparagus at its best, buy it carefully, store it properly and cook it so that it's just tender with a trace of crispness, but with all its fresh green color, flavor and texture intact.

Buy asparagus that is firm, wrinkle-free and bright green in color fading to white, with slight tinges of purple at the butt end. The scales of the tip should be closed tightly. The moister the cut end, the fresher the asparagus. Properly stored, you will find the spears standing upright in a half-inch of water or on dampened absorbent paper.

Fat spears are just as tender as their thinner cousins - some times even more so. When spears are a half-inch in diameter, buy at least 6 stalks per person or 8 to 10 if the asparagus is to be a separate course.

Store asparagus in your refrigerator, standing upright in water or wrapped in damp paper towelling in a plastic bag. First, cut a half-inch off the end. This will expose the fresh surface of the stem to the water so that the asparagus can drink up water and remain fresh and plump.

Prepare by snapping the ends off at their "break point," or cut off the ends to make all the spears the same length.

The French way with asparagus is to peel them. Starting at the butt end, use a sharp paring knife to peel off the tough outer stem. The peelings should gradually become thinner towards the tip. Peeled asparagus cooks more rapidly making for maximum retention of color and flavor.

Cook asparagus quickly in boiling salted water in a frying pan or pot large enough to accommodate the stalks horizontally. This prevents damage to the tips and makes it much easier to remove the asparagus stalks from the pan with a lifter.

Bring the water back up to the boil, reduce the heat and boil gently for 8 to 10 minutes or until for tender and slightly resistant to the touch but not limp. Overcooked asparagus loses its wonderfully distinct flavor and develops an unpleasant sourness.

A perfect complement to asparagus is a smooth cheese sauce made zesty with the addition of Gouda cheese. This melts smoothly into any sauce and imparts its own distinct flavor for a truly 'rare bit!'

Cooked as described and served with this savory cheese sauce, asparagus will elevate an everyday supper to gastronomic heights.

ASPARAGUS RAREBIT

An excellent dish for light suppers and luncheons, this variation on a cheese sauce uses Gouda cheese for a delightfully smooth and savory sauce. Try the sauce as suggested or over toast, other vegetables, eggs, or over a combination of these for a more sumptuous meal.

GOUDA SAUCE

1 tablespoon butter
1 tablespoon all purpose flour
¼ teaspoon dry mustard
¼ teaspoon salt
pepper lightly to taste
1 cup beer, OR tomato juice, OR milk
6 - 10 oz. shredded Gouda
Melt butter in top of double boiler over direct heat and blend in flour and seasonings. Add liquid (beer OR tomato juice OR milk). Stir constantly until sauce thickens. Place sauce over hot water in bottom of double boiler and blend in shredded Gouda cheese. Stir until cheese is melted and mixture is smooth. Serve immediately over freshly cooked asparagus. Include wedges of hard cooked eggs and tomato slices for a more substantial dish. Serves 3 to 4.

This new symbol stands for something special

We believe there's something special about the quality of foods grown right here in British Columbia. To back up that belief - and to help you recognize B.C. food products - we're introducing a new "home-grown" B.C. symbol. You'll be seeing it on signs, labels and cartons - and wherever it appears, you can be sure you're getting a genuine B.C. product. You'll also see the symbol in a province-wide advertising campaign for B.C.-grown products. Look for the new "home-grown" B.C. symbol and give your support to our agricultural industry.

Local artist starts restoration of time-worn Senate paintings

Mrs. Awana Paul of Aldergrove stands beside one of the huge 11 feet by 17 feet paintings she has been commissioned to restore. This is the first time since they were hung 50 years ago in the Senate they have

Dusty, time-worn paintings that have been hanging in the Canadian senate for about fifty years are being taken down. The paintings were commissioned by the late Lord Beaverbrook and depict scenes of world War I. They are being taken down now so that Aldergrove artist, Mrs. Awana

Paul, can do some restoration work on them.

Mrs. Paul faces quite a task. To begin with, some of the paintings were never even finished by the artists who created them, although this is not noticeable to an eye other than that of a professional such as Awana Paul. Also there is work to be done repairing damage reported to have been caused by the CBC. The state owned TV network seems to have scraped and torn parts of the paintings when setting up their cameras for recent parliamentary openings.

The contract for restoration is of a 16-week duration period and Awana Paul is getting through the canvases at a rate of about one every two weeks. This time period seems odd as the senate was due to resume session in September. If the September date is upheld as the date of reopening, some of the senators will be faced with some very messy working conditions. This fact has prompted the Ottawa Journal to speculate that someone in the senate is counting on a fall election to get the job done.

ALDERGROVE ARTISTS MOVE OUTSIDE

The Aldergrove Art Club has begun to wind down its meeting time for the summer season. Throughout the cold months the group meets in the Senior Citizen's Hall in Aldergrove to paint in the company of fellow artists. In the summer they keep painting, but the members naturally prefer to move outside into the warmer weather.

The group holds one showing a year in which the members put their paintings on show and some members place their paintings on the market for sale. This showing is held in the winter and there will not be another until next year. There will, however, be another chance for the residents of Aldergrove to catch a peek at the works of art. The members of the group generally place their paintings on display at the Aldergrove Fair, usually held in the middle of September.

Artists in the group include such names as Swensson, Wright, Klein, and Fatkin. If you are interested in either joining the club as an artist, or if you are in the market for an oil painting, you may get in touch with the group through The Star.

BOOKS ON WHEELS

by Howard Overend

Books on wheels! That's how the Fraser Valley regional library extends its services from headquarters in Abbotsford.

Two bookmobiles, manned by drivers Herman Keys and Geo Brown, leave headquarters daily for some 200 stops at designated points in the Valley.

Each vehicle, a veritable travelling library, carries about 2,000 books on its shelves. There are books for mystery fans, science-fiction and romance readers, books about people and places and practical subjects such as carpentry, dressmaking, cookery and proposing toasts.

Each bookmobile stocks books for children of all ages. The big mobile units rendezvous with readers every two weeks.

Shown here are pictures taken on route 14 in the Langley-Surrey area.

Driver Herman Keys, a bookmobile veteran, has been meeting his borrowers for 26 years. George Brown has been guiding his bookmobile around Valley points since 1955. Both men enjoy their work and particularly like serving the public in some cases through succeeding generations in the same family.

The men are accompanied by headquarters staff members of the library, a different girl each day.

Last year the two vehicles circulated more than 165,000 books to grateful Valley readers.

Preparing for shows

It's fair time in the Valley

Fitting a calf for show includes grooming his hair, trimming his feet, training and polishing his horns and clipping his head, if he is dehorned, and tail, in addition to halter breaking, training and feeding.

should be used but don't be afraid to wash your calf regularly during the winter except in extremely cold weather. Apply soap while the hair is full of water. Liquid soap, flake soap or bar soap may be used. Use blueing or a soap or decan. An aluminum water scraper is good for this or the back of a Scotch comb. Most of the water will run down underneath the calf and you can get it off by running your brush or scraper back and forth along his underline.

The show animal should be washed at least once a month until two months before the show. A schedule of washing every two weeks is better. Two months before the show, the washing should be stepped up to once each week.

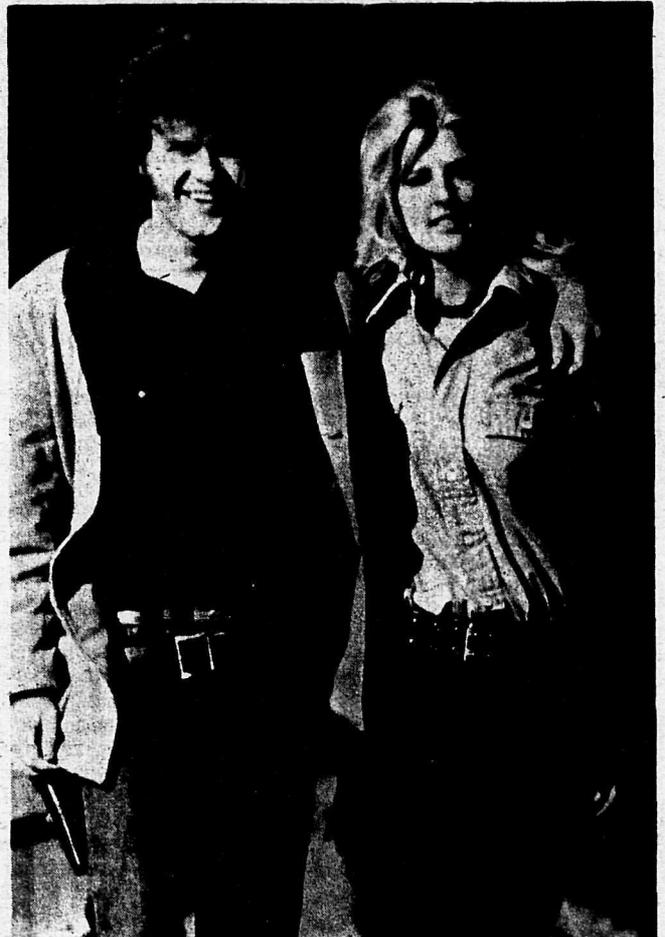

Brush out dirt, loose hair and dandruff with a stiff rice root brush before washing. Wet the entire body, including the head. In winter, warm water tergent with blueing in it to bring out the white. A hard water castile bar soap lathers well in cold, hard water. It should be cut into thick shavings in a bucket, then mixed with a gallon or two of water and poured over the animal.

Scrub with an old rice root brush, lathering the calf all over. Rinse with clean water holding the ears and face downward. Soap a second time and even a third on the white areas.

A weak solution of stock dip in the final rinse water kills any skin parasites and makes the hair stay curled longer. A vinegar rinse tends to soften the hair. A quart of vinegar to three gallons of water is about the right mixture. Do not rinse off either the dip or the vinegar.

Brush the hair down slick, getting out all the water you

Turner dies

The Honourable Cyril M. Shelford, Minister of Agriculture, announces with regret the death of Mr. Alex Turner, deputy minister of agriculture. Mr. Turner, who passed away July 13 at St. Paul's Hospital in Vancouver in his 62nd year, joined the British Columbia department of agriculture as deputy minister in July, 1963.

Fleckvieh arrive in Canada

The first Fleckvieh progeny has arrived on Canadian soil this spring. Fleckvieh have been developed in Germany and Austria and closely related to the Simmental breed which is found throughout Europe, and well known as a good beef breed which has excellent milking ability.

The Fleckvieh calves are now in Calgary after having been shipped from Inverness, Scotland and quarantined three months. They are bred in the world famous Beaufort herd in Scotland and out of females that Beaufort imported from Germany, Austria and Switzerland three years ago.

Nine bulls and thirteen females were sold July 22nd in Calgary. Twenty-five full blood Fleckvieh and Simmental bulls and females were sold making it the biggest fullblood sale of it's kind ever held in North America. At this time the Fleckvieh imported into Canada through the British Isles and Europe are not eligible for export to the United States.

Ed McNally, owner of Rio Frio Ranch on the Sheep River at Okotoks, Alberta is heading the Canadian division of the Beaufort operation and the calves were located at Rio Frio.

Rudy Enzmann, sale manager of the Beaufort sale, said he is extremely pleased with the calves sold Saturday. He said they were gaining exceptionally well since being weaned at an early age, they were 10 to 12 months of age by sale time. Enzmann visited the Beaufort herd in Scotland last October and said the brood cows are some of the finest females he has ever seen anywhere in the world.

Provincial 4-H week

by Roberta Jameson

"I am," the theme of this year's 4-H club week describes the participant's reaction to the very successful program. Sixty-nine delegates from British Columbia had an opportunity to look at themselves, both as individuals and as part of a group, and through this to gain better understanding of their values and their relations with other people.

The United Church Centre for Continuing Education was the location of the program, and two staff members from the centre were instrumental in establishing a close group feeling among the delegates and the staff. The balanced program of group exercises, discussion, sports, creating and dancing made the program an enjoyable and unique experience for all.

The program was planned by the 4-H club division in conjunction with the Naramata staff. Assisting the 4-H staff as group counsellors were: Don Scheer, district agriculturist from Vanderhoof; Terry Dever, dairy specialist from Prince George; Wayne Gates, horticulturist from Victoria, and Ross Walton, an Abbotsford veterinarian.

Delegates to the 4-H club week were selected from all the 4-H areas in British Columbia on the basis of an application form and an oral interview. While at Naramata the delegates were competing for trips to Hawaii, interprovincial exchange, national and international awards. The awards serve to broaden the 4-H horizon to a national scope as members see how other North Americans live and think.

This type of a conference was a tremendous success to help all involved to expand their minds to new ideas that will help them cope with today's changing world. It was a real opportunity for the young people attending to learn something new about themselves and their relationships with others.

To maintain 'green belts'

Support of farm industry necessary

Charles Bernhardt, of Summerland, president of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture told the consumers of British Columbia that they hold the key to open space preservation. "As long as it remains more profitable for farmers to sell their land to real estate developers than it is to sell the produce from that land, the system will encourage an end to open spaces," the farm leader said. His organization, he said, supports the concept of open space preservation, but are not willing to finance this venture on their own, since the benefits accrue to society as a whole.

If the people of the province want to maintain open space farmland, and we believe they do in the interests of a healthy environment, they must accept their complimentary obligation of supporting our farmers in the market place, explained Bernhardt.

He paid tribute to the current B.C. food promotion campaign of the provincial government, saying that this is the type of program, accompanied by strong consumer support, that will save our farmland.

Bernhardt said that a parallel between local support for B.C. produce, and some laws protecting the professions of others in our society was obvious. For example, he said, the licensing of some professions and labor union laws which obligate B.C. people to employ local workers. When agriculture is considered, however, no such government regulations are in force and, said Bernhardt, "that is why we need the voluntary support of B.C. consumers, if they want this industry and the open spaces it represents, to be maintained in this province."

Zero growth
only answer,
says SPEC

Every second the world over, births exceed deaths by more than two. The first doubling of the world's population, starting from the time of Christ, took 1,650 years; the next came in 200 years; the third took only about 80 years, and the fourth is expected to occur in less than 40 years. Because of the ever-shortening period, the most pessimistic demographers predict that the "saturation point" will come in little more than 60 years unless the food supply, natural or artificial or both, runs out first. Thus they forecast doomsday: the year 2026.

Meanwhile, the net increase in the earth's population is 7,500 per hour, 180,000 per day, 66,000,000 per year.

Thus begins the prologue to a recent book by G.L. Carefoot and E.R. Sporti, Famine on the Wind, Man's Battle Against Plant Disease.

Of the 3,500,000,000 people on earth, over two billion live in Asia; only 229 million live in North America. And yet North Americans utilize 40 per cent of the world's resources. Although we comprise only 7 per cent of the world's total population we produce 80 times the amount of pollution of the Asian countries. What can we do about it?

SPEC has recently committed itself to a policy of zero growth, including zero economic, industrial and population growth. This means planning to limit your family to no more than two children — or better still one or no children to offset those families that already have more than two children.

There's strength in unity, Cariboo farmers decide

Several lively discussions which expressed real concern over the plight of the farmer and rancher took place during the annual convention of the Cariboo District Farmers' Institute held at Horsefly recently.

Over 20 delegates and guests attended from various farmers' institutes in the Cariboo.

Among the nine resolutions causing concern were indiscriminate shooting during hunting season along and across public roads, loss of livestock from hunting action, fencing along highways, lease lands, use of colored gas in farm vehicles, street signs and signals standardized, auto insurance along tax lines — a pay-as-you-drive plan, responsibilities of elected representatives to the electors.

There are now 11 institutes in district H with the Ahbau Farmers' Institute being the most recently formed.

The consensus of the farmers and ranchers attending the convention was that only through strength could they better their lot.

"We have the machinery, let's use it!" was the theme.

The executive elected for the 1972 - 73 term were: E.K. Edwards from the Kersley Farmers' Institute (president), and J. Deane-Freeman from the Roe-Bridge Lake Farmers' Institute (secretary-treasurer).

Directors elected were Les Buller and J. Wynstra, both from the Horsefly Farmers' Institute, Mrs. Clarke from the West Fraser Farmers' Institute, M. Richards from the Cariboo Farmers' Institute and L. Harriman from the Canim Lake Farmers' Institute.

T.E. Windt, from the Kersley Institute was elected as advisory board member and E.K. Edwards was elected as alternate advisory board member.

At Food Show

'Buy B.C.' emphasis

The "Acres of Food" show to be staged at this year's Pacific National Exhibition in conjunction with the Horticulture Show, will have a great appeal for all consumers and homemakers.

Acres of Food will be situated in the South End of the Forum Building adjacent to the Horticulture Show, and will be open daily throughout the 1972 Fair, which runs Aug. 19 to Sept. 4.

With the emphasis this year to "Buy B.C.", the provincial government, through the Department of Agriculture, is increasing its grant for the annual show.

The increase will assist show sponsors in construction of new display booths.

Acres of Food is co-ordinated by the B.C. Federation of Agriculture and financed partly by the B.C. growers groups themselves. It provides a rare opportunity for B.C.'s primary food producers to meet consumers.

There will be displays of top quality B.C. products like chickens, turkeys, milk, mushrooms, flowers and other commodities.

Demonstrations on new ways of using such products have proven to be very popular, and will once again be a feature of Acres of Food.

Some of the exhibitors will also be offering prepared sample snacks.

Acres of Food was inaugurated in 1968, and has grown in both scope and importance every year since.

The producers' goal in sponsoring this display is to show the B.C. buying public the high quality of home grown foods.

NEW HAY DRYING TOWER

An experimental hay-drying tower has proved so successful in tests at Canada Agriculture's Melfort, Sask. research station that it's now ready for farm use.

Dr. Stan Beacom, station director, estimates the construction cost at about $6,000. This includes a labor charge which the farmer can save by building the tower himself.

The estimate doesn't include the cost of the dryer.

Forage and Bloat

by D. Jan Petch, Research Director, Sardis

An animal in bloat can be a terrifying and costly experience. The severity depends on the level of protein in the feed, and how fast the animal eats of this forage. The protein in alfalfa and clover causes bloat in cattle when the protein level is high.

The ailment is a digestive disorder. An animal with bloat is unable to get rid of fermentation gasses, caused by the animal eating a bloating forage, and the concentration of protein in the rumen (the first stomach) increases and reaches a peak in about two hours. The gasses cause the animal to become swollen and in severe cases, it may die within an hour if the pressure is not relieved.

The veterinarian when he arrives will drench the animal. A dairy farmer, Mr. Eric Lieb of Sardis, B.C., who milks 60 Holsteins related his experience to an old-time rancher about an anxious wait for the vet, and was given an old folk remedy of a mixture of mineral oil and ground ginger (one tablespoon) in a pop bottle quantity. This he had to use on two occasions and each time, the animal opened its mouth and burped until rid of the gas, just as when the vet had drenched it.

It is estimated that Canadian cattlemen lose $11-million a year from either death or sickness because of the direct effects of bloat. If a variety of alfalfa or varieties of clover low in protein can be found and grown successfully, in the different cattle regions of Canada, it is thought there would be a great saving to the cattle industry. Two scientists at the Summerland experimental station in the Okanagan have been growing different varieties of alfalfa from around the world in an attempt to find a low protein alfalfa strain.

The ruminant stomach is a fantastic organ. Think of it as one stomach with four compartments. A ruminant is a cloven-hoofed animal that chews its cud.

The first compartment of the cow's stomach is the rumen or paunch. It lies on the left side of the body cavity and pushes out into the left flank. In a mature cow its capacity is from 25 to 60 gallons. This is the place where the gas accumulates in bloat. If you put your ear or a stethoscope over the left flank, you hear a sound like a thunderstorm a few miles away from the movements of the rumen wall muscle contracting in such a way that the contents are stirred continuously.

The second compartment or reticulum is just in front of the rumen and connected with it. Commonly it is called the honeycomb because of the squared appearance of the inside lining. Bad-shaped with the opening to the rumen at the top, the food matter moves freely back and forth between the two compartments with each contraction, that is unless the animal has developed 'hardware disease' from eating heavy metal objects. When magnets are given to cows it is hoped they will end up here in the danger area to attract nails or wire or other consumed metal objects, safe from possibly puncturing the reticulum wall, the diaphragm, and even the animal's heart.

The third compartment, with which both the rumen and reticulum connect, is called the omasum. It looks like a big soggy basketball, and the contents are dry and hard. The last compartment lies just behind the omasum and to the right of the rumen, and is called the abomasum. From the abomasum the food matter passes into the duodenum and small intestine.

The development of the ruminant stomach is often not completed until the animal is a yearling. These four compartments are in series so that if anything happens to one of them the others immediately cease to function. A cow contentedly chewing its cud means that the food is doing exactly what it should in the amazing anatomy of the ruminant.

Federal Government will compensate horse owners

The federal government will pay compensation to horse owners who have their animals destroyed under the program to rid the Canadian horse population of equine infectious anemia (swamp fever), Agriculture Minister H.A. (Bud) Olson announced in Ottawa May 18.

As a service to horse owners, in February 1971, federal veterinarians started using the Coggins test and since then more than 50,000 Canadian horses have been tested through the health of animals branch laboratories at Hull, Que.

When the testing began, about seven per cent of the horses reacted positively. That was considered to be a significant rate of infection.

Since then, the rate of positive reactors has dropped to about one per cent and continues to decline.

Last year the federal government also introduced requirements whereby imported horses had to react negatively to the Coggins test before they would be allowed entry into Canada.

"With this lower level of infection, we have decided to move to the second stage of the program to eradicate the disease," Olson said.

"We will pay compensation for horses that react positively to the Coggins test and are slaughtered."

6 day wilderness survival course

Survival in the wilderness is the focus of a special 6-day short course being offered by the UBC Centre for Continuing Education, Monday, Aug. 21 to Sat., Aug. 26 at Strathcona Park outdoor education centre on Vancouver Island.

Although increasing numbers of people are venturing into B.C.'s wilderness areas, most know little of wilderness ecology or survival in the woods if they run into trouble. This program is planned for all persons who hike, camp or for other reasons enter B.C. wilderness areas and want to find out more about the ecology of these areas and want to be prepared mentally and physically for survival should the need arise.

Course content will range from identifying, searching for and selecting edible plant life and aquatic life to outdoor first aid. A two-day survival experience in which small groups will be left in the wilderness with minimal gear will be included.

A brochure with complete information and registration form is available from the Centre for Continuing Education, University of B.C., Vancouver 8.

Control of Newcastle Disease

Outbreaks of severe Newcastle disease have occurred in South Western Ontario and Central Quebec, within the last year. Procedures involving quarantine, slaughter and vaccination have resulted in the eradication of these outbreaks, with the last known infection occurring in mid-February, 1972. Poultrymen around the world have also suffered the ravages of this virus disease that can be spread in many ways.

Commercial chicken and turkey flocks are not the only birds affected by this disease. Pet birds, game birds, ducks, geese and pheasants may harbor the disease.

DISEASE MUST BE REPORTED

Because of its contagious nature, Newcastle is a "named" disease. This means that any known or suspected outbreaks must be reported to Canada Agriculture's Health of Animals Branch. This Branch, with district offices located across Canada (see appended list), is responsible for administering regulations of the Animal Contagious Diseases Act that provides authority for the inspection of diseased flocks, quarantine, and compensation for losses, as well as other control measures.

COMBINED CONTROL MEASURES

Control is based on a combination of two measures: (a) maintenance of high and uniform levels of immunity in all poultry flocks of all sizes; and (b) the reduction of Newcastle disease field virus in areas where poultry is raised.

Vaccination is the first line of defence against this disease. A number of different types of vaccine are available, depending on the specific needs of the producer.

Because they are live vaccines, special care and precautions must be taken in their use. Vaccination must be repeated to achieve long lasting

Findings passed on

People such as the members of the Canadian Wheat Board and the Canada Grains Council are taking a good look at world markets and passing on their findings to the researchers.

Their information tells plant breeders what goals to strive for in their breeding programs.

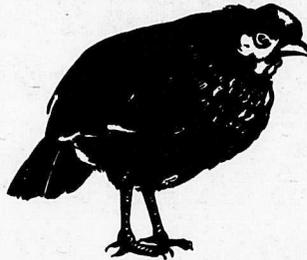

Confessions may be good for the soul, but they're bad for the reputation.

immunity or protection. Poultrymen together with a veterinarian are advised to work out a program best suited to their particular conditions and environment.

No prescription required

Newcastle vaccines are readily available without prescription and the cost is very low. Anyone having difficulty securing the vaccine, or in getting information on the costs and methods of application should get in touch with an agriculture representative or local veterinarian.

Each bird must receive an adequate dose of vaccine for proper development of immunity. And it is important that all flocks on the premises are treated adequately, otherwise non-immunized birds will be susceptible to Newcastle disease field virus and become a threat to other poultry.

READ THE INSTRUCTIONS

Instructions for vaccinating birds are given in the insert leaflet accompanying the vaccine. Treatment is very specific and instructions must be followed very closely and carefully to be effective. If there is any question about the administration of Newcastle vaccines, operators are advised to consult a veterinarian or the vaccine distributor.

Newcastle vaccines are administered in several different ways depending on the type and circumstances. Vaccine may be administered on a flock basis, by spraying it over the birds, or by adding it to the drinking water.

Vaccines may be administered to the eye, into the nasal passages, or injected under the skin.

Whatever type of vaccine is used, make sure it is used correctly, as stated on the label and in accordance with the age of the flock.

The best time to vaccinate is generally in the first two weeks after hatching. Birds with little or no residual immunity show slight respiratory symptoms 4 to 10 days following vaccination. This respiratory reaction indicates that the vaccine has taken effect. Operators should watch for signs of vaccination reaction.

BUILD UP IMMUNITY

Revaccination is necessary to maintain a high level of immunity or protection in the flock. If revaccination is inadequate or neglected, immunity will decline.

Control of Newcastle disease does not stop with vaccination. A high standard of sanitation, disease control and isolation must be maintained at all times. A well vaccinated flock will excrete considerably less field virus than a non-vaccinated flock. Reducing the exposure of your poultry to this disease will assist greatly in lessening the amount of field virus in your area.

All poultry owners, big or small, have a stake in this serious disease. It is in their interest to immunize their stock through vaccination, and to prevent spread of the virus to other flocks. It's the only way to reduce losses. Keep yourself informed. This disease is serious, but it can be controlled.

Hiking on the Skyline section of the B.C. Trail. -Beautiful B.C.

Work continues on B.C. Centennial hiking trail

Work is continuing on the B.C. Centennial hiking trail which at present extends from Simon Fraser University to the Cathedral provincial park.

Two students have been employed by the Canadian Youth Hostels association to carry out maintenance work on the trail and if possible to continue it eastwards from the Cathedral park.

During the past eight years work has been continuing on the trail through the efforts of the Canadian Youth Hostels association and the assistance of the provincial parks branch, kindred organizations and many other groups of volunteers, and it is now more or less possible to walk from the commencement of the Sumas dikes to the Cathedral Lakes, a distance of about 150 miles. After leaving Burnaby Mountain, the trail skirts Hume Park in New Westminster and follows secondary roads to Fort Langley and Mount Lehman. East of Mount Lehman the trail continues along the dikes, climbs to Chadsey Lake (Lost Lake) in Sumas Mountain park and continues along the Vedder to Cultus Lake and on to Chilliwack Lake. The route continues from here via Ross Lake to the Skyline Trail in Manning Park and onto Cathedral provincial park, and is presently being surveyed toward Conkle Lake park, near Osoyoos. Thus, a trail system can be seen emerging across the province of British Columbia connecting up the various parks and recreational areas en route, and it would undoubtedly be of considerable benefit to present and future generations.

As it stands now, these walking trails connecting the parks are very tenuous links and the youth hostels people are looking into means of protecting the trails from encroachment from private property and future developments.

Charolais featured

The growing importance of Charolais for pure- and cross-breeding of cattle in Canada will be underscored at the 1972 Pacific National Exhibition livestock show.

Charolais has been named the feature breed of beef for '72, and the showing of purebreds will be climaxed by the third annual auction sale of Charolais August 24 in the Agrodome.

The various livestock exhibits are extremely popular features of the fair, which runs from Aug. 19 through Sept. 4.

In all, four major shows and sales comprise the big livestock show.

The beef cattle, including Charolais, goes from Aug. 19 to Aug. 25. Prize money for beef alone totals $31,000. For all the shows, more than $86,000 in prize money is offered.

For those who have never experienced the color and excitement of a public auction, mark down August 24 as the big day. At 12:30 p.m. in the Agrodome, steers and market lambs raised by 4-H members throughout B.C. go under the hammer of auctioneers Paton & Smith of Milner.

Open market lambs will also be sold at auction.

Berry picker service at Canada Manpower

B.C. Telephone automatic answering units are helping the federal government department of Manpower and Immigration to provide a new berry harvesting information service for Lower Fraser Valley farmers and pickers.

Located in the Canada Manpower Centre on Sixth Street in New Westminster, the five electronic answering units are part of a joint federal and provincial agricultural manpower program designed to provide berry pickers where and when they are needed.

"The answering units are multi-purpose," senior manpower counsellor Art Holmes said when he explained the various functions of four taped messages.

First and foremost is the recording of messages from the berry farmers.

"We encourage them to report by telephone as late as possible on the preceding day so that Canada Manpower personnel can prepare the recorded messages from an answering unit on which the farmer has given the latest information regarding his crop, the number of berry pickers required, availability of transportation, etc."

"Two answering units, on a business overline, provide daily information for the pickers," Holmes said. "This includes details of where workers are needed, the location of Canada Manpower depots used as transportation pick-up points, hours of operation and the average rate of pay per 14-pound flat."

During the last week of June, the recorded message aimed at enlisting help for the berry farmers stated that there was an extreme shortage of strawberry pickers and went on to explain where, and how to go about joining the labor force.

"Another one of the units is set up to provide information in Punjabi for berry pickers from among the 10,000 Punjabi East Indian people now living in the Lower Mainland area," Holmes said.

A Punjabi student employed at the centre translates the information received daily from the berry farmers, updates the taped message and then goes out to the transportation depots to co-ordinate arrangements and assist his countrymen.

The fifth automatic answering unit relays a message for berry pickers who have their own transportation.

Some 6,000 calls in English and over 700 in Punjabi had been received since the recorded answering service was offered in early June. The service will continue until September when the berry harvesting season usually ends.

To assist in every possible way, all forms of advertising have been employed to advise interested berry pickers of telephone numbers to call for the information required.

The numbers are 525-1004 (05 and 06), 526-0416 for Punjabi enquiries and 526-0412 for farmers' reports.

"The Pesticide Residue Compensation Act was proclaimed and put into force in mid-January 1972. The act provides that compensation in respect of any loss caused by the use of a pesticide may be paid to a farmer, provided that the pesticide causing the problem was registered or was deemed to be registered under the Pest Control Products Act, was used in accordance with the accepted directions for use, and the sale of the product on which the pesticide occurred would be contrary to the requirement of the Food and Drug Act. Further details and the specific regulations can be obtained from the provincial entomologist, Chet Neilson, B.C. Department of Agriculture, Victoria."

PORK PUBLICITY

The Canadian Pork Council plans an exhibit in the Canadian Solo Fair to be held in China, August 21 to September 2 this year. The exhibit will be aimed at acquainting the Chinese with the quality of Canadian breeding hogs and will open up liaison with the Chinese looking to the development of an export market in that area.

The Fraser Valley officers of the B.C. Swine Producers' Association are also planning a real worthwhile exhibit in the Acres of Food displays at the PNE. They have already obtained a booth for the display. Credit must go to President Jack Reams of R. & H. Farm, Aldergrove for masterminding this publicity development, but the whole executive and board of directors are working on the planning also.

Drink B.C. milk

The words Holstein-Friesian, Ayrshire, Jersey or Guernsey might not mean much to you over your morning breakfast. But these are the names of the four most common types of dairy cows which produce British Columbia's milk supply.

The Holstein-Friesian gives the greatest amount of milk of the four breeds. Easily identified by large black and white markings, the cows originally came to Canada from parts of Holland.

The Ayrshire cow hails from Scotland, and is recognized by its horns which grow almost straight upwards. Some of the Ayrshires are white, some are spotted with red markings while others are almost solid red.

The Jersey cow gives the richest milk of the four breeds. A fairly small cow with a fawn or cream coloured coat, it is a favourite of young children because of its beautiful large eyes.

The Jersey cow comes from the island of Jersey, one of the English Channel Islands just off the northern coast of France.

It's a neighbour of the Guernsey cow which originates from the nearby island of Guernsey. This cow is larger than the Jersey with a golden fawn color with some white spots.

These cows - over 80,000 of them - produce almost 950 million pounds of milk a year in British Columbia.

Milk which is not used in other dairy products has to go through several processing stages before it reaches the breakfast table in a carton or bottle.

First it is "clarified" by being spun rapidly in special separating machines. During this operation, some of the cream is removed to bring the butterfat content to the required level.

Most B.C. milk contains about 3.5 per cent butterfat. Then Vitamin D is added to the milk before it is homogenized and pasteurized.

Homogenized milk is simply whole milk which has the fat particles so finely broken up that they remain evenly distributed throughout the milk, instead of rising to the top as cream.

This is brought about by forcing the milk under heavy pressure through a tiny network of strainers.

Pasteurization, a process named after its discoverer, Louis Pasteur, is a heating process to destroy any harmful bacteria which might be present.

The milk is taken into a High Temperature Short Time heating chamber where it is heated to between 161 and 170 degrees Fahrenheit for exactly 16 seconds.

Once this process is finished, the milk is cooled to 38 degrees Fahrenheit and then packaged into bottles or cartons.

'New Look' Show at PNE '72

The "new look" Horticulture Show will transform the Forum Building into a green oasis during the 1972 Pacific National Exhibition, which runs Aug. 19 through Sept. 4.

This year's Horticulture Show, which also includes floriculture and agriculture, will feature constantly changing displays by various specialty clubs against a park-like backdrop of walkways, waterfalls, aviary, and colourful gazebos.

The floral arts competitions will be run in conjunction with the following special shows: Gladiolus Show, Aug. 19 - 20; Dahlia Show, Aug. 21 - 22; Fuchsia and Begonia Show, Aug. 23 - 24, 25; Chrysanthemum and Orchid Show, Aug. 27 - Sept. 4; Oriental and Bonsai Show, Aug. 19 - 26.

Interspersed with these specialty shows are displays by growers of Alpine, African Violet, Roses, and Cactus.

A total of $10,000 prize money as well as various trophies await entrants in both amateur and open classes.

Trophies up for competition include the Dewar Shield, Walker House Trophy, the PNE Challenge Trophy, the W.J. Heads Challenge Trophy, Vancouver Dahlias Society Challenge Trophy and the Mrs. G. H. Gray Memorial Trophy.

(All those entering any of the competitions should contact the Entry Department, Pacific National Exhibition, to check the prize list, the various categories and rules, and entry deadlines.)

The park setting, which takes up the entire centre area of the building, was conceived and sponsored jointly by the PNE, the park boards of Vancouver, Burnaby and New Westminster, and Flowers Canada (B.C. Region).

Other highlights of the free Horticulture Show are:

- Hanging baskets and turntables of flower arrangement by Flowers Canada (B.C. Region);
- Special display from the University of British Columbia;
- Demonstration of the ancient Japanese art of flower arranging, as well as exhibits of Bonsai;
- Special exhibition of Chrysanthemums and Orchids;
- District displays of vegetables, fruits and honey;
- New exhibit of exotic fruits and vegetables.

Poultry and Pet Show

The Poultry and Pet Stock Show at the 1972 Pacific National Exhibition will offer much more than the various competitions for game birds, waterfowl, pigeons, poultry, cage birds, rabbits and cavies.

The unique show, which runs daily through the Fair - Aug. 19 to Sept. 4 - will also feature two fascinating exhibits.

The first, sponsored by the poultry industries Council of B.C., will tell the story of the chicken and the egg. The other will be a display of "antique, exotic and unusual breeds and varieties" of poultry and pets.

The story of the chicken will be told through pictures and words, and pens of live chickens and turkeys in various stages of development.

The display will take up the Paid Vacations - for farmers?

East wall of the Poultry Building.

One pen will have broiler chicken from a day old to eight weeks old, when they are ready for marketing. Another pen will contain commercial heavy turkeys, and still another laying hens.

Children will be delighted by the working chicken incubator, which will actually be hatching cuddly little chicks.

The egg display has a working automatic feeder and collector, and will also show how eggs are candled and graded.

A pictorial exhibit dramatically tells of the evolution of chicken over the past years, showing that at one time, it took 12 weeks or more to produce a four-pound broiler, compared to the norm today of about eight weeks.

The entire area will be "landscaped" with greenery and a duck pond containing live ducklings and goslings.

Cages in the exotic breed section of the Poultry and Pet Show will be tagged with an educational description of the breed.

On the competition side of the show, the Standard Poultry division features American, Asiatic, Canadian, Continental, English, French, Game, Hamburg, Mediterranean, Polish, and other miscellaneous breeds.

Judging will be Aug. 20 at 10 a.m.

As with all other classes, there will be prize money as well as trophies, rosettes, banners and gold medal certificates put up by the PNE, various clubs and organizations, and private donors.

Ornamental Bantams include feather legged, rose comb clean legged, single comb clean legged, game, and any other combed clean legged. Judging is Aug. 20 at 10 a.m.

Also slated for judging Aug. 20 at 10 a.m. are the Waterfowl (ducks and geese) and the pheasants and game birds.

The first show of pigeons will be judged at the same time, while the second show, necessary because of the huge number of entries, is judged Aug. 28 at 10 a.m.

Moving to the Cage Bird category, Budgerigars are judged Aug. 19 at 10 a.m. while Canaries and foreign birds are scrutinized by the judges Aug. 28 at 10:30 a.m.

Rabbits and cavies, a breed of guinea pig, are also split into two shows because of the heavy entry. The first show is judged Aug. 19 at 10 a.m.; the second Aug. 27 at 11 a.m.

About $2,500 prize money is offered. Deadline for entries in all categories is Aug. 7.

They say horse dealers are hard men

Take a look at this pony's feet - horrifying isn't it? And but for a Kilburn, England, man's devotion to horses it might still be suffering agony from a disease of the hooves.

Robert Braddock, a horse dealer of Kilburn was on his way to Wrexham horse fair with a horse box of animals to sell when he saw her in a field by a Welsh farm.

"I couldn't get it out of my mind, and eventually turned around and went back to the farm.

"The woman there said she would sell, I offered her 10 pounds - I'm not a rich man, but I would have given her fifty just to be able to alleviate its misery. We settled for £10.50.

SHEER NEGLIGENCE

"Most people wouldn't have offered anything except to de-

Soil chemistry link to Spartan breakdown

Agriculture Canada research scientists have a remedy for the post-harvest breakdown problem in Spartan apples.

The scientists at Summerland, B.C., recommends a spray program of 15 pounds of calcium chloride (untreated) per acre in each of seven sprays beginning June 15, and applied every two weeks until harvest.

The scientists believe spraying is not the final answer and research is continuing.

stroy her, but it's my intention to cure the disease, which is caused by sheer neglect."

On his way back from the fair, Braddock and two other men almost had to carry the pony to the horse box. "Horse dealers are notoriously hard men - but there were tears in our eyes when we saw the state of her."

Now Julie, as Braddock has named her, is having daily treatments.

FIELD OPERATION

"I won't leave her until her hooves are cured which I think will take about nine days." The treatment involves hacking the hooves back into shape. One hoof, he said, had grown right back into its skin, and before transporting the pony from Wrexham, he had to do an on-the-spot operation by sawing the piece out of its skin.

Braddock reported the matter to the RSPCA.

LOST MONEY

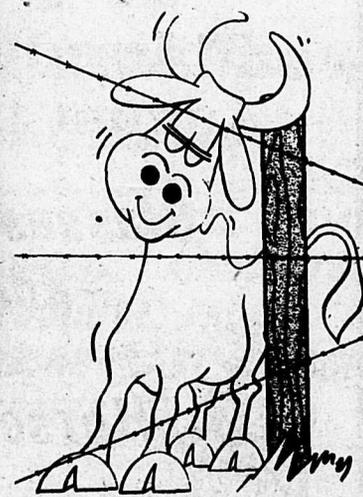

He added, "I lost money at that horse fair; I sold my horses cheaply so that I could have an empty box to bring Julie back to Kilburn."

The story doesn't end there. When Julie is completely cured and rideable, which should be within a fortnight, Braddock intends to offer her to the East Midlands Riding School for Handicapped Children.

"She's a perfectly docile animal with a lovely temperament," he said.

A Community Affair

People representing every section of Maple Ridge and Pitt Meadows have been working together to make the annual fall fair better than ever.

Under the direction of Jim Turnbull, fall fair president, a favourable start has been made in creating greater appeal for the show.

Preparations which began in April are moving faster, and from now until opening day, August 3, will clip along in high gear.

The local fair is put on by the Maple Ridge Agricultural Association which draws its work force from all over the district.

The work load is eased where possible by helpers but there are many details only the chairmen can handle.

Primarily, the fair is a rural Class C agricultural

Chilliwack fair a four day event

Plans for the annual exhibition in Chilliwack are progressing favourably. This year it will be a four day event with 4-H and Beef cattle on Tuesday and Wednesday, Dairy cattle on Thursday and Friday. Sheep will be shown Tuesday and Wednesday, Swine Thursday and Friday.

Holsteins are being promoted as the breed of the year and it is thought there will be a big display of this breed. By splitting the show as stated, this will give ample room for a large turn out of dairy cattle.

Invitations have been sent out to many 4-H clubs in the Fraser Valley to participate here this year and extra prize money has been set aside for this purpose. There will be no free passes for exhibitions this year but any exhibitor with an entry fee of 5.00 dollars or more can deduct 10 percent off in lieu of passes.

show; prize money is received from the provincial government.

The entire program is built around an agricultural base, but other features are added to provide variety.

It has been a problem for some fairs in British Columbia to keep going in recent years.

The fair in Maple Ridge requires hard work to produce a good show each year.

Those putting on the fair do not mind the work for they feel they are giving a social and cultural feature to the community which have many proven assets.

The fall fair is in quite good condition and can continue to expand for years with public support, organizers believe.

Contributing to the preparation of this summer's fair—the 67th—are an active group of executive members, directors and division chairmen.

Officers of the association are Jim Turnbull, president; Henry Savege, first vice-president; Gerald Peverelle, second vice-president; Mrs. John King, secretary; Mrs. Dorothy Cornish, treasurer and Dick Kootstra, past president.

Board of directors includes: Henry Barten, Laurie Chatwin, Harold Shackelford, Mike Burke, Bill Archibald, Norm Martin, Gordon Robson, Mrs. Jim Turnbull, Mrs. R. Kootstra, Mrs. Belle Morse, Mrs. Skip Payton, Tom Dinsley.

Chairmen of the twenty-three divisions the fair is divided into are:

Horse show: Henry Savege; livestock, Gerald Peverelle; sheep, R. Holmes; swine, K. Robinson; goats, Frank Sleigh; poultry, Henry Barten; cage birds, N. Cruickshank; rabbits, Mrs. Lorna Anderson; agriculture (field crops), garden vegetables, giant produce, fruit, Laurie Chatwin; flowers, Mrs. W. Guard; honey, Henry Barten; home cooking, Diane Watson; needlework and crafts, Mrs. D. Dyck; art, craft and hobbies, Mrs. J. Freeburn; organization displays, Mrs. Leona Kresting; junior division, Mrs. Jim Turnbull; 4-H clubs, Dick Kootstra; commercial rentals, Mike Burke; entertainment (stage show), Belle Morse; parade marshal, Bob Hind.

Canada's newest singing star Shirley Elkhart, an accomplished singer-composer at only 16, appears in person August 25 at Pacific Coliseum. Miss Elkhart sings two hits she composed herself: Something in Your Face, and It Takes Time. The Oshawa, Ont. native is part of this year's Star Spectacular package which offers name entertainment at family budget prices at the 1972 Pacific National Exhibition, Aug. 19 to Sept. 4 in Vancouver. Star Spectacular advance tickets are available at Vancouver Ticket Centre, 630 Hamilton Street, and all its outlets.

4-H club active this summer

Lorne Webster, president of Abbotsford 4-H Beef Club was awarded a trip to Naramata for "club week" recently and while there, won another trip to the national 4-H club conference in Washington, D.C. This conference will take place next April, and he will visit New York and other cities.

Member Shelagh Thompson is on an exchange trip to Wheatland County in Alberta visiting 4-H members whom the Abbotsford club hosted last year. While in Alberta, she will be going to the Calgary Stampede.

Local club is also purchasing jackets, green with a 4-H crest, which will be worn on all club occasions, and should be here in time for the Central Fraser Valley Fair, August 8, 9, and 10.

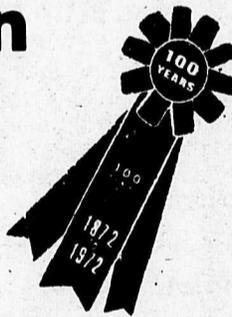

On Saturday, July 29, club is holding a work bee to build a new tack box and name signs.

Next 4-H meeting will be held on August 2 at the Ray Kirkwood home when fair business will be finalized. Evening will end with a wiener roast.

Abbotsford fair is on again

by J.F. Carmichael, District Agriculturist

After months of uncertainty and considerable debate the members of the Central Fraser Valley Agricultural Association decided at their meeting on May 30 to go ahead with a livestock show, midway, horse show and entertainment by local talent on August 8, 9 and 10. This will take place at the same site as in previous years, the Fair Grounds at Clearbrook.

August 8 is 4-H day. The most excellent show of last year is expected to be even better this year. This show is open to 4-H livestock clubs from anywhere. Entries are to be made by club as a whole, not by individual members. These are to be sent to J.F. Carmichael, Room 205, 33780 Laurel Street, Abbotsford by July 31. The MSA 4-H Sr.

Council is in charge of operating the 4-H show at this year's fair.

August 9 is to be Beef Day at the fair. It is expected that the goat show also will be judged on the same day.

August 10 is to be Dairy Day. Along with it the main horse show will be staged. There will be no open hog show. The sheep show will be along the same lines as last year, being judged on Beef Day, August 9.

Those interested in organizing and staging the talent show and the horse show are asked to step forward quickly and make themselves known to the officers of the fair, Daryl Cherry of Mt. Lehman is president and Mrs. Betty Till of Abbotsford is secretary. Her phone number is 859-4079.

Many horse and 4-H entries coming in for PNE '72

Horses ranging from Appaloosas and Arabians to Quarter horses and Welsh Mountain ponies will be represented at the '72 Pacific National Exhibition horse show at the Agrodome at the PNE.

The big horse show begins August 18 and goes through daily to Labor Day, Sept. 4, the final day of the PNE.

There will be a 50 cent charge for adults and 25 cents for children, for the 8 p.m. shows in the Agrodome. This charge will also apply for the 2 p.m. shows on all Sundays plus Labor Day during the fair.

One of the highlights of each evening show is the spectacular demonstration by six-horse teams owned by Potter's Distilleries of Langley, Fred Polinder Jr. of Lynden, Wash., the Alberta Game Farm of Edmonton, and Willard Wilder of Lynden, Wash.

On September 1, the night of the Heavy Horse competition, there will be a performance by two eight-horse teams.

The always-popular jumping competition will be climaxed by the Potter Cup jump-off on September 4 at 8 p.m. At stake will be $500 plus the handsome and coveted trophy with replica.

In addition to the 1969-70 champion, Astronaut, and the 1971 champion, The Flying Nun the winner-take-all final will have the first-place finishers of six divisions: the Green Jumper aggregate, the Open Jumper, the T.N. (Nick) Henderson Memorial trophy, the Fault and Out, the Gambler's Choice, and the Open Jumper stake.

The PNE horse show is a recognized class A2 member and is governed by the rules of the National Equestrian Federation of Canada and the Canadian Horse Shows Association.

A total of $14,000 prize money is offered and the deadline for entries is August 1.

The show will be presented to the public in six different sections:

Entries from all over B.C. are coming in steadily for the annual 4-H show at the 1972 Pacific National Exhibition.

The big show, which recognizes the accomplishments of 4-H club members aged nine to 19, will be held during the fair - August 19 to September 4.

The youngsters travel to the PNE at minimum expense to themselves, largely because of the Norgan Foundation, established through the generosity of the late George Norgan.

All transportation expenses exceeding $15 are paid for by the Norgan Foundation. So are all the travel expenses of two official chaperons from each 4-H district in the province.

The PNE provides meals and billeting for the 4-Hers.

The Norgan Foundation also provides an educational tour of Vancouver Island and Victoria; an exchange trip for two 4-H members to visit different areas each year (Hawaii in 1972); and five bursaries for deserving 4-H members to further their education.

The 4-Hers will be competing in a greatly diversified program divided into three major sections. Competitions include:

Dairy and beef cattle, sheep, swine, dairy goats, herdsmanship, poultry, interclub competition, horticulture, home arts, leathercraft, food, outdoor living, fashion, rope halter making, square dancing and tug of war.

A proud moment for participants in the beef competition comes August 24 in the Agrodome when the steers they have raised are led into the ring to be auctioned.

Included in the sale will be the 4-H grand champion and reserve grand champion. Some more moments of mixed emotions come when the 4-H market lambs, including the champions, are sold at auction.

The '72 4-H show gets under way Sunday, August 20 with the beef grooming competition, the cutest animal in the show judging, and the tug of war first week.

All animal events are held in the livestock buildings. The 4-H auction sales will be in the Agrodome, while competitions such as cooking, clothes making and square dancing are held in the Garden Auditorium, site of the home arts and hobby show.

Entry deadline is August 1. The complete 4-H schedule: Friday, August 18: judging of clothing and crafts, 10 a.m.; leathercraft, 7 p.m.; beef and lambs to be weighed off truck on arrival.

Ducks Unlimited (Canada) open

Williams Lake office

Bernie Forbes, B.C. provincial manager for Ducks Unlimited (Canada), has announced the opening of a new field office at Williams Lake, B.C. The office will serve the central interior region of the province.

Mike Yates, formerly with B.C. Hydro in Prince George has been hired as area manager for the Williams Lake office.

In making the announcement, Forbes noted that Ducks Unlimited's B.C. operations, although established only three years ago, have grown extensively. In that time, work has been undertaken on nine project areas and another nine are being worked on during 1972.

"More and more of our field staff's time was being spent in travelling to the interior regions," said Forbes, "and it was felt that a regional field office would make our operations much more efficient. By having a man in the area we will be able to keep in closer contact with the local situation."

"We are presently doing survey work in several areas in the Chilco Region," said Forbes, "and we expect to begin construction on some of them this year. Others will be set aside for future development," he added.

Ducks Unlimited is a private non-profit conservation organization which specializes in creating and restoring waterfowl marshes. In 35-years of Canadian operations, over 20 million dollars have been spent, almost 1 million dollars of that in British Columbia.

Parade plans in Haney

Belle Morse, Merrymakers director and fair parade manager, reported two bands are now certain to play and there could be four marching on Saturday, August 5 in the annual event.

A Mission band and Canadian Legion pipers are the two already promised, she told the June fair meeting.

Bob Hinds will be parade marshal, Mrs. Morse said. -Haney Gazette

Teck workers picket municipality

A picket line was thrown up outside the municipal hall in Langley on Monday morning by workers from Teck Construction in Langley. The workers were protesting because there were two non-union sub-contractors working on the renovations to the hall, the contract which Teck has been awarded with is for expansion of facilities.

The picket was in a general state of confusion on Monday. Workers on the line at the hall refused to make any statements to the press. They were not even going so far as to say who their shop stewards were. Contact with management later proved that the problem was over and the workers should have been back on the job. The picket line remained, however, and as one official at the hall put it, "The left leg doesn't seem to know what the right is doing."

A visit to the hall in the morning showed that although there were picket lines outside the hall, there was one man working inside. Council was in session at the time although they did not discuss the matter. The only passing remark that was made on the situation in council was by a member, who said that he would be 'pretty damned mad' if some fellow came up and told him that he could not work.

Proposal turned down

A proposal for a shopping centre on 18 acres of property near the Clearbrook interchange on Highway 401 recently was turned down by Matsqui municipal council on the grounds that it did not conform to the overall plans for the district.

In any case, the shopping centre plan would have been doomed. The provincial highways department has informed council that the type of development is not compatible in the interchange area.

ceived for her 92nd birthday. She is a woman of rare humor.

Augusta a woman of rare humor

Augusta Marie De Roy celebrated her 92nd birthday on the 16th of July. She is now preparing to move into a home with Charles and Margaret Pritchard of Aldergrove who have taken her under their wing. In addition to this new found family, she also has two daughters and six great grandchildren.

Among Augusta's many escapades was the time she was bitten by a rattle snake. At the time she was farming with her late husband on a 500-acre farm in the Medicine Hat region of Alberta. She had left the house to go out to the fields and see her husband who was working a thresher. Before she reached him, however, she came across a snake that she describes as having been as big around as her arm. The reptile sank its teeth into her ankle and caused her some misery. As a result of the snake's inconsiderate attack, it was skinned the following day. "There was a snake around my leg", says Augusta today, and she giggles about it as though it were the biggest joke in the world.

Originally, the senior citizen was from the European Baltic state of Latvia. Latvia is now part of the Soviet Union. She came to Canada on a ticket that was sent to her by her uncle, Fred Vogel, (no relation to MLA Hunter Vogel) and she put that ticket to good use. She has obviously brought to this country not only her aptitude for hard work and devoted citizenship, but also she has brought her own brand of humor that gushes forth from her even today. It is a rare thing to find such humor in a person. A rare thing indeed, and it makes for some very interesting conversation.

Augusta Marie De Roy is a member of the Patricia Women's Institute and her friends and acquaintances wish her all the best in this, her 92nd year, and we at The Star wish her many happy returns.

Financial aid for flood victims

Mayor Doug Taylor of Matsqui has been in touch with MLA Hunter Vogel in hopes of getting financial aid for flood victims in Matsqui. The provincial government has already sent out cheques to flood victims in the Kamloops area, but there has been no indication of similar help for some who have had serious difficulty in Matsqui, Langley and Surrey. Mayor Taylor says at least one resident of Bateman Road has a serious problem with no land left under cultivation because of the high water this spring. Mr. Vogel said he would attempt to impress on Government officials the seriousness of the situation in his riding.

Soccer gossip

Langley Sports Club's gears continued to grind ponderously into action last week, preparatory to the next winter's action. Soccer registration dates were chosen as follows: For players trying to cut spots on representative sides, it will be August 12 at City Park. For those intending to play in the community league, August 26 and September 9 are the days, and the place is City Park. Times of signing will be between 10:00 A.M. and 4:00 P.M. Each prospective player needs to bring one parent for the purpose of a family signature on the registration form. Cost this time will be seven dollars for the first boy - which incidentally gives one parent a Sports Club membership, and five dollars for each additional player. Birth certificates are mandatory.

It takes 23.4 pounds of milk to make one pound of butter, 11 pounds of milk to make one gallon of ice cream, 2.3 pounds of milk to produce a can of evaporated milk and 8 pounds of milk to produce one pound of whole milk butter.

For any boys new to the area who feel that they are capable of playing on district rep sides we are publishing the names of Langley's coaches who shall handle teams in the New Westminster League. They are: Div. 7 Ed Chieduch Jr. and Patrick Mulhern - 534-4068, Div. 6 Richard Mowles - 534-2194, Div. 5 James Kitsul - 534-4867, Div. 4 (Fort area) Frits Jacobsen - 534-6888, (and Langley) Roy Moore - 534-5863, Div. 3 LSC Dick Prediger and Ed. Chieduch Sr. - 534-2194, also IOOF Don Frinskie 534-5164, Div. 2 R. Ken Robinson 534-3861, Div. 1 Langley Kin D, Ross 534-4068.

Notice to coaches is also out. Please stay off these school pitches as they have been freshly seeded: Peterson Road, Belmont, Fort, HD Stafford and Lochiel.

Because field scheduling has become a more and more dicey situation with our facilities not growing nearly as rapidly as our enrolment of players, all coaches planning practises or games must check through with Mrs. Marge Chieduch (534-2194) in order to reserve playing space.

Local boys fare well south of the border

Totem Club members Steve Henningson and Don Parker of Surrey and Bob and Henry Levy of Aldergrove travelled 200 miles south last weekend to Straddle Line Park, to find competition for their motorcycles, and did they find it.

Racing started on Saturday at 10:00 a.m. with 250 riders in attendance and went until 6:00 p.m. And again got underway at 8:00 p.m. with night Scrambles under the lights, and saw Henry Levy on a Radoo Suzuki finish first in the 400 cc "A"

Main and a second place finish in the "A" Main 250 cc class, and Trophy presentation was well after midnight.

Racing again got underway on Sunday at 10:00 a.m. with over 300 riders in attendance. Don Parker got himself a sixth place in the Open class and Henry Levy a fourth place in the Open class and a third place in the 250 cc class, Steve Henningson, due to a broken chain, got away with an eight place in the 250 cc class, Bob Levy came home with a sixth place in the 125 cc class and a fourth place in the 250 cc class.

At the end of the day the sponsoring club put on a Canada v.s. East v.s. West Challenge-Match and when the 30 minute Moto was over, the Canadians were the winners with 92 points against the West with 95 points, and the East with 123 points.

The next Moto Cross event by Totem M.C. will be held in Agassiz on Sunday August 6th at 12:30 p.m. and should see all of B.C.'s riders once again try for the top positions.

Won't buy dogs

A persistent rumor which crops up at least once a year, is again starting kind citizens collecting silver paper to purchase a guide dog for a blind person. This is not possible!

Nowhere in Canada, the U.S. or Britain can guide dogs be purchased in this way. Blind Canadians may obtain a guide dog through the Canadian Nat. Institute for the Blind which makes arrangements with either of two outstanding schools for guide dogs in the U.S.

NASCAR Grand National

Top class entertainment returned to the Speedway Saturday night and in droves so did the public. Some seven thousand came and remained riveted to their plank benches until the final, bitterly contested lap. The A Main alone was worth the price of admission featuring all of the top U.S. Pacific Northwest and Western Canadian drivers. But before the run was a dozen laps old all concerned were aware that three cars stood well above their rivals. They were Herschel McGriff, No.4, (Wash), Harold Hardesty No. 52 (Ore.) and No.7 Ron Eaton, currently points leader of the International Drivers Challenge series.

In the thirty-fifth lap, however, Eaton blew his engine. Hardesty was leading from early on but for the final quarter of the contest he only stayed alive by dint of an insane game of hide-and-go-seek among the other speeding machines. Finally, in the sixth to last lap, in the hundredth event, just as McGriff was oozing into the money spot, someone did him dirt and number four proceeded across the infield at a mile per minute, sideways. Hardesty won it, followed by Walt Ashley (Wash) Harvey Brown (Wash.) and Robbie Walker (Richmond).

The fifty lap B main had its own share of thrills, but it had a bitter bit as well. Even popular John Rothwell who had insinuated his No.28 into threatening position and who was driving like a real winner, blew his engine and vacated the race in a cloud of smoke.

Surrey's Rick Adsit won it by a radiator cap by dint of a frantic last lap rally Kent Brock (Wash.) placed second, Ruby Blumenhagen (Burnaby) next, and after him was Brad Baerg (Surrey).

The trophy dashes were won by: C Don Nickel (Surrey); B Harold Hardesty (Wash.) and Herschel McGriff. McGriff's masterfully driven final lap gave him the victory by the merest fraction.

Next Saturday features Super Stocks, Stocks, Modified Stocks and Claimers.

In a tight match

Aldergrove's Tykes lose to White Rock

White Rock lacrosse Tykes topped the Aldergrove Centennials in a lacrosse game at the MSA arena on Sunday.

The Tykes have played the first game in a round robin tournament leading into the provincial playoffs. The White Rock team has been playing for two or three years and this is the first year that the Al-dergrove kids have played as a team. For this reason the Coach, Glen Clark, does not seem surprised that they are now experiencing difficulties. Indeed, the team is lucky to have reached the playoffs at all.

The Tykes could have ended up in much worse shape as they were fighting tough odds all along the line. But they did manage to bring the 'League Presidents Trophy' to Aldergrove, a trophy which is awarded to the team that reaches the playoffs against the worst odds.

Coach Glen Clark reports that the team will now play another game, if they win that they will be able to continue in the playoffs, but he says that his team may be out of their class now. In any case one can never tell, especially with the young Tykes, if they did get into the playoffs it would be a very bright feather indeed to display in their caps.

'Grove man elected director of B.C. Sports Fed.

Four directors were elected to the B.C. Sports Federation Board of Directors in Vancouver recently. Ed Carlin of the White Rock area and a past president of the B.C. Federation of School Athletic Associations was one of the elected officers. Another was Peter Fassbender of Aldergrove. Fassbender is president of the B.C. Sport Parachuting Association. Other directors voted into office were Wally Henderson of Burnaby, and Bob Randall of Vancouver.

The four were elected at the general meeting of the Sports Federation in Vancouver.

Information was released to the meeting, regarding the new offices that the association moved into on June 15. The move was made necessary because of the expanded services that the association now offers to sportsmen and sports fans around the province. Federation president Dick Jack said that the new offices will accommodate up to ten sports in different offices. Nine sports he said have already applied for accommodation.

There were three winners announced at the meeting in the federation sponsored 'Sports Holiday Draw'. The major prize winner was Clem Cameron of Rossland who won a trip to Mexico plus $1000.

NEW OVAL FOR VALLEY?

Things seem to be happening at Agassiz. A group of interested young bloods have put together a dirt track on municipal property and have been operating out of a collection plate.

Anyway, a meeting is scheduled for next week up Chilliwack way whereat they plan to appoint an executive, get cracking at setting up a constitution, begin to drum up sponsorship and get rolling at all of the details concerned with creating an association.

CHAMPIONSHIP RACESAT WESTWOOD SATURDAY AND SUNDAY

This year Westwood racing circuit and the Westwood Motorcycle Racing Club host the Canadian National championship road races. For the first time a major event is being sponsored by the distributors of four leading makes of Japanese motorcycles.

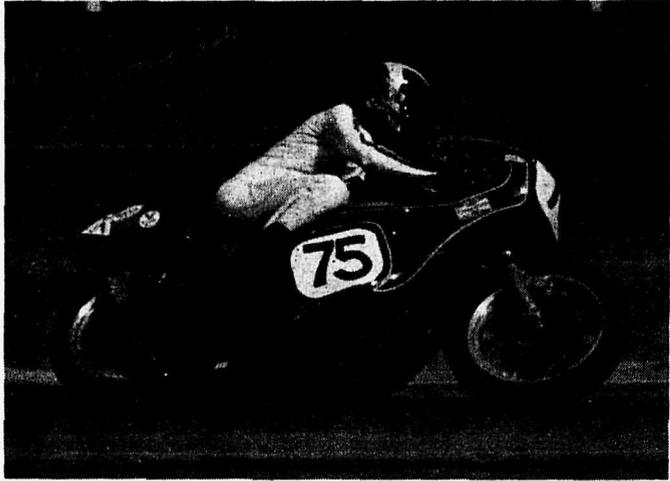

The cooperation of the four sponsors promises to make this the finest competition motorcycle event in western Canada.

The tight Westwood circuit is considered one of the most challenging in North America. The current lap record is held by Jim Dunn of Everett, Wash. Dunn also holds the 250 cc lap record and recently won the Canadian Grand Prix at Mosport, Ont. Among the riders who will be challenging Dunn's dominance of the Coquitlam circuit are Steve McLaughlin and Jim Chen of southern California. McLaughlin is a former AFM champion and lap record holder at the tough Willow Springs circuit. Chen is currently the leading junior road racer on the American Motorcycle Association tour. It is expected that both of these fine riders will be on powerful Honda 750-4 cylinders. Other Californians expected include Bob Bender, Bob Devlin and Jim Evans.

In addition to the regular racing and production classes, there will be a sidecar event. Whenever the sidecars appear all other activities come to a halt as everyone crowds the fence to catch the action. It is hoped that several of the very fast California outfits will appear to challenge the Westwood regulars. Practice for all classes will be on Saturday. There will be a short practice session on Sunday morning with racing beginning at twelve noon, rain or shine.

A number of leading California riders will be competing. Among them is Steve McLaughlin with his powerful Honda 750.

Steve'll be there, on a Honda

24 year old Steve McLaughlin, two time A.M.F. champion, and the motorcycle lap record holder at Willow Springs raceway, and hailing from South California is now preparing his 90 plus horsepower Honda "750" for the Canadian National championships on July 29 and 30 at Westwood.

Steve is the son of one of the all time great American motorcycle personalities, John McLaughlin. John had "bucked" the American Motorcycle Association which did not favor road racing, in favor of the American Motorcycle Federation. To him goes much of the credit for forcing the A.M.A.'s hand in accepting and promoting road racing in the U.S.A., the last couple of years.

Road Racing is one of the most challenging and demanding sports that a man can commit himself to, and the color and sounds make it one of the "most followed" sports. John won one of the early Catalina Grand Prix's held on Catalina Island, and was largely responsible for the success of motorcycles in the annual Baja California cross country races. John is a Honda dealer in Southern California.

Steve and Melissa, his very beautiful wife (who is also from a motorcycle dealer's family) will have the most powerful bike at Westwood, and with their experience should be a top contender for this championship weekend.

SEND YOUR DOLLARS TO KEEP THE GOOD YEARS COMING!

Twenty years ago a vigorous grass-roots political movement began in this province...a movement born of disenchantment with old-line political machines...a movement that quickly gained support from ordinary, everyday people throughout British Columbia.

Today, Social Credit is still a grass-roots people's movement... representing no special interest groups and dedicated to the welfare of the individual. With your support, we've made great strides in human and economic affairs. Now, we're faced with another challenge...another choice between the progressive policies of a true free enterprise party and the stifling policies of state socialism. Keep the good years coming by helping us wage a strong, successful election campaign.
