River high but water held back

GLEN VALLEY - All along the banks of the Fraser River in this lowland farming community, people are watching anxiously as the river's water level hovers a few feet below the tops of the dikes.

Most dikes in Glen Valley were built in the 1940's or 50's and are about 24 feet high. The water level on the river at press time was about 21 feet at Chilliwack. In Glen Valley, diking commissioner Mel Pool reports that the water is about five feet below the danger level.

Pool said it appears the water has peaked and may even be dropping a little bit. He suggested that the only thing that could cause a major flood now, would be a week or so of heavy rain.

Langley district fire department spokesman, Doug Wade, also feels the water will remain under control.

"Perhaps it's had its peak and started to drop off," he remarked.

Wade added that he has not seen a snow-pack-report from the high country for a week or two, but he suspects that the snow is melting at a manageable rate.

Marshal Mitchell, co-ordinator of emergency programs for this area, said he is satisfied that the river is under control and all contingency plans for a flash flood are in place.

"We're not out of the woods yet, but no one seems to be alarmed," Mitchell stated.

The provincial emergency expert said most equipment and cattle in the area are now located on high ground, and people are calm and prepared.

"The real danger at this point is from a flash flood if the dike breaks," he remarked, adding that there is no indication that will happen.

Some water has seeped through the dikes flooding sections of road at the foot of 256 Street. There is also some parkland under water in the west Langley area, but both of these situations are normal for the season.

In the meantime, residents of low lying areas may wish to check their flood security systems. The following is a checklist supplied by the provincial government to flood plain residents:

- Keep a battery operated radio available, with spare batteries.
- Have emergency food and medical supplies handy.
- Stash a few days drinking water safely away.
- Move valuables to upper floors.
- Remove insecticides and herbicides and any other poisons to high ground.
- Keep tight plugs handy by all drains, including your toilet bowl.
- Disconnect eavestroughs that are hooked to sewers.
- Contact emergency officials for advice on shoring up the foundation of your home with sandbags or vapor barriers.
- Have warm waterproof clothing ready.
- Drive with extreme care in flood plane areas.
- Keep as many emergency supplies as possible in safe places.
- For further advice contact 534-3211.

ABBOTSFORD - Parents of air cadets of the Royal Canadian squadron 861 are concerned about "double standards" which allow several businesses and organizations to remain in the number two hanger at Abbotsford airport while the cadets have been evicted.

Termination of the squadron's lease followed discussions between the local fire marshal and the airport manager at the end of last month.

Fire marshal has declared the building "unsafe for the kids".

Vern Harbourne, chairman of the cadet corps parents committee, says he does not look at the youngsters as "kids", but rather as responsible "young adults".

Last Wednesday night he told other parents that he would like to "take a stab at bureauracy" in initiating a fight to have the lease reinstated.

He said the building has been condemned since 1972, but the Abbotsford airshow committee and several aviation businesses have not had their leases terminated.

Sixty-four teenaged girls and boys, members of squadron 861, have been using a room in the upper mezzanine of the main departure and arrival building for their Wednesday night meetings and drills for the past four years. They learn about a number of subjects including air traffic control and aircraft maintenance.

About 25 of the youngsters come from the Aldergrove area.

Beth Mays, a member of the parents committee, told The Star that the group has the full support of Langley district mayor Bill Blair, elected representatives Bob McClelland and Bob Wenman, Langley RCMP inspector Cam Monroe, and local probation officer Dave Gilding.

The parents are looking for a new one-year lease on the facility.

But Harbourne said the fire marshall's office has listed $180,000 worth of improvements to the building in order to make it safe. These include a fire resistant wall, sprinklers and fire escapes. There are no funds available for these improvements, he said.

No more raspberries

MURRAYVILLE - Will Langley district some day be known as the "mushroom capital" of British Columbia?

Or perhaps the "strawberry capital"?

This is a distinct possibility, as Mayor Bill Blair is pushing to have signs put up depicting either or both of the two cash crops.

Blair told council here Monday morning that Abbotsford has become known high and wide as the "raspberry capital" of B.C.

So raspberries are out, but mushrooms and strawberries are in.

But Ald. Ian Strachan warns that council must not forget that mushrooms grow and thrive best in a bed made from horse manure.

Municipal leaders on collision course with feds

ALDERGROVE - Bill Blair of Langley stayed home to comment from afar, but Matsqui sent its mayor, Harry DeJong, and two aldermen to the Federation of Canadian Municipalities conference, and both report that frustration is high among members of the organization.

The FCM is a national association of communities like Langley, Matsqui, Maple Ridge or Surrey. It also includes members who represent Canada's larger towns and cities.

At the federation's conference in Ottawa last week, some mayors wanted to lead a march from the meeting hall to Parliament Hill, for an inter-governmental confrontation with federal politicians.

"That was just a small segment of the convention that was there," said DeJong.

"Cool heads prevailed...you catch more bees with honey than vinegar," remarked Ray Kirkwood, one of the Matsqui aldermen at the converence.

Kirkwood was asked to comment on a report from the convention that the federation was after a more direct source of tax revenue, namely income tax. At present the federal and provincial governments have the power to levy income tax, but some people believe that municipalities should also be supported through income tax rather than land taxation.

Kirkwood said he wasn't sure whether it would be advisable for municipalities to go after income tax revenue, but he did say that senior governments have been cutting back their aid to municipalities, which in turn has caused land taxes to sky-rocket.

"We lost quite a bit this year," he stated.

The alderman went on to give his feelings of the economy in general, suggesting that if the federal government doesn't act soon to improve the nation's economic health, there could be big trouble ahead for municipal governments.

"The unemployment (benefits) will run out," he bemoaned. "People will come to us...We will have no answer."

DeJong, meanwhile, said there are certain services that municipalities provide, that really should not be financed through land taxes. He mentioned education and policing as examples.

"It's really dealing with people," remarked the mayor, explaining that services provided directly to people should be financed directly from people, and not from their real estate.

"It would decrease the taxing level on property," he said.

DeJong said the mayors who wanted to march to Ottawa "created quite a stink" on the first day of the FCM conference. He added, however, that the majority of the group could not support the protestors because they were too dogmatic on specific social issues. A loss of credibility in future dealings with the feds were feared.

While the Matsqui politicians were in the nation's capital, swapping common problems with other civic leaders, Langley's mayor Blair remained at home milking his cows. Langley district does not belong to the FCM and does not send representatives to its functions.

"We can't really see where it is going to do Langley any good," said Blair, explaining that the cost of membership would be more than the municipality could expect to make out of attending the meetings. Blair added that most FCM meetings are held in eastern Canada, further inflating the cost of membership for western townships.

Blair admitted, however, that a greater share of income tax revenue would be a boost for all Canadian municipalities, including Langley.

"If we could get a share of income tax, certainly it would help us," he said.

Blair has previously been on record as being in favor of more income tax sharing for municipalities. He sees it as one way that municipal governments could become stronger and more effective on behalf of their electors. Inspite of that, he tends to take a realistic if somewhat cynical view of the income tax idea:

"They (the federal government) are very arrogant, and they need the money so badly themselves. There is no way to get them to yield their income taxing power. They already have the money spent in interest payments they've got to hand out."

Blair says he hopes the FCM does get more money released from Ottawa, to help counter reductions in provincial grants. Langley district received $800,000 less from the provincial government in 1982 than it did in 1981. Blair complains that this has curtailed road and park building in the area.

Nevertheless, he still doubts that any senior government is going to rescue the roads and parks of Langley, or any other district for that matter.

"It's alright to dream about pie in the sky, but that pie in the sky, you never get to eat it," he quipped. "The federal people are clamping down everywhere they can."

The Langley mayor did find one bright hope, however. He suggested that since the FCM members were so vocal in Ottawa, perhaps now the provincial government in Victoria will increase the municipal grant structure.

He said he knows of no other way to increase revenue, even though his council has considered many alternatives. Blair revealed that a municipal lottery has been mooted, as well as a share system similar to BCRIC, but both ideas were dropped as not feasible. He said the pay as you go no more credit system is also unworkable for municipalities, because they would need "a pot of money" to get started with.

Asked if he agreed that municipal government could gain power through direct income taxation, DeJong replied that power is not the aim of his council.

He said it isn't that municipal councils want to be a "more powerful" level of government, but rather that they would simply like to be a "more recognized" level.

"Through the debate on the constitution, we had much discussion in previous years, for municipalities to be recognized as a level of government in the constitution. That has not happened," DeJong stated.

He said the new Canadian constitution is based solidly on the principle of centralized government, something his council is not in favor of.

Big Brothers and Sisters wanted

ALDERGROVE - Thirty-five children from Langley district are in need of big brothers or big sisters.

Local land developer Ainslie Loretto, a staunch supporter of the Big Brothers organization, has tentatively scheduled July 17 as the day she will play hostess to the 35 youngsters and their big friends.

Loretto plans to have the kids over to her home for a day of snacking, swimming, games and entertainment - but there is a problem. The kids are eager enough, all they need is some adults who are willing to be big brothers or big sisters once a week.

Big Brothers of Canada is an association which places children aged seven to sixteen together with an adult. The girls come from homes with no mother, and the boys hail from households without a father. The big companions are a steadying influence on these youths, who often need the companionship of an older member of their own sex.

"It takes just a couple of hours of one's time once a week," said Loretto, adding that there is little or no cost involved; perhaps a hot dog at the ball park or a snow-cone from the Mac's store, but nothing terribly expensive.

Right now the local Big Brothers chapter is seeking 25 big brothers and ten big sisters.

If you would like to be a big sister you can start by phoning Barb Loveday at 530-7101 or 584-5066. Big brothers should call Judy Macbeth at 530-5055.

Loretto said there are thousands of kids waiting for big brothers or sisters all over B.C.; the 35 mentioned here are all from Langley.

Council split on gift pool's costs

MURRAYVILLE - Some council members are concerned that maintenance costs will be too high and are therefore reluctant to accept an offer from the Brookswood Lions to build a public swimming pool in that community.

Council's recreation committee, comprised of aldermen Muriel Arnason, Elford Nundal and Dan Williamson, feel that the $25,000 a year bill for upkeep of such a facility would be too much.

Not all councilors agree with this, however.

Mayor Bill Blair and aldermen Ian Strachan and Carol Gran think that council should accept the service club's offer in a grateful manner.

"They are offering to build a pool, at no cost to us, that would be a big benefit to our Brookswood citizens," Strachan said this week. And if his fellow councilors are concerned about cost of upkeep, Strachan said, then they should realize that if council at some future time felt itself "really (economically) strapped" then they could always close the facility down.

If the taxpayers of Langley were to build such a pool, Strachan said, they would be looking at a capital cost of $200,000, or yearly interest payments of $40,000.

Strachan said the Lions club's offer brought back nostalgic thoughts of his own adolescent days when Langley youngsters went swimming in water holes in the district's gravel pits or rivers.

Young people of today are not so different, he said. They want to be able to go swimming on a hot summer's day, and not necessarily in a multi-million dollar pool where they will be charged admittance.

Gran said the Brookswood area voted heavily in favor of a pool at last fall's referendum, and she would like to see the Lions project become a reality.

Outdoor pool, similar to existing facilities in Aldergrove, Fort Langley and Langley city, would be built in the Noel Booth park or somewhere in the Brookswood area.

Watkins will work for 13¼% mortgage

LANGLEY - Local NDP candidate Garry Watkins says he has been getting a message from the voters of Langley during his party's pre - election canvass. That message is a cry for help from homeowners being ruined by spiralling mortgage interest rates. On Saturday, Watkins announced that he is going to fight to have the NDP's promise of 13¼ percent mortgages on new homes extended to include the same terms for people renewing their mortgages.

"Two years ago our party responded to the difficulty faced by new home buyers by pledging to subsidize a mortgage interest rate of 13¼ percent" Watkins said. "Now the situation has worsened and those of us already in homes face one to three year mortgages at outrageous rates." Watkins called on the NDP to move immediately after an election to guarantee a 13¼ percent mortgage on the first $60,000 owed on a mortgage.

Watkins admits the program will cost money, but insists that the money can be found. "With a proper set of priorities and cutting of government frills and giveaways, we can find the money. We have to!" Watkins said.

Aldergrove driver is N.W.T. champ

HAY RIVER - Paul Szasz, a native of Aldergrove, born and raised on LeFeuvre Road, has been named grand champion trucker at the Northwest Territorial Truck Roadeo here.

Szasz, who drives for Merv Townsend Trucking Ltd., received his original driver training in the lower mainland, and attended Clearbrook secondary school.

Szasz completed the roadeo with 316 points, giving him an 18 point margin over second place finisher Robert Sibbeston.

In the written field tests and in defect appearance tests, Szasz shared the winning position with another Townsend trucker, Ralph French.

The 23-year-old operates out of Hay River and Yellowknife, and received a number of prizes for his performance at the roadeo.

The sixth annual roadeo was sponsored by the NWT Motor Transport Association.

Kinghaven - a much needed facility begins its expansion. The only facility of its kind in the Valley, Kinghaven can only take on one tenth of the Valleys needs. r.McIlwain photo

Kinghaven; bright spot on bleak horizon

PEARDONVILLE - If you are an alcoholic in need of treatment, and especially if you are a woman, your prospects are not very good.

There is real help available through such organizations as Alcoholics Anonymous, but for the alcoholic who needs a place to go and take daily treatment there are very few facilities available.

This community happens to be the home of the finest and largest alcohol treatment centre in the province. Kinghaven is a non-profit, government subsidized centre located just north of Abbotsford airport.

Last October the 43 bed facility experienced a major fire, destroying one of the dormitories. Now construction is underway to expand the centre, replacing the burned out building and increasing the capacity to 52 beds. Two of the new beds will be located in rooms designed for handicapped patients.

Although the staff of Kinghaven are pleased and thankful that they are able to increase their caseload, director Larry Gorman admits it will still be incapable of meeting the needs of B.C.'s alcoholics.

Last year with 43 beds, Kinghaven was able to process 286 patients through the centre and back into society. When the renovations are completed it is possible the facility will be able to process about 350 patients in a year. The only trouble is, that last year there were 622 applicants for beds at the centre.

"It is still male oriented," said Gorman, when asked if any beds will be available for women. The director added that Kinghaven does have some committee members working to establish a separate centre for female patients. He said the project has top priority and the staff is hoping financial support can be found.

Right now there are no reliable figures available to show how many beds are available for female alcoholics in B.C., but the most recent figures now a few years old, say that only 44 beds are in operation. This is in spite of the fact that alcohol treatment professionals say there is at least one female alcoholic for every male alcoholic in the province.

Gorman said the problem with setting up a Kinghaven for women is the added need of a place for children. To be effective, the centre must be able to take mothers with their youngsters; this makes the cost of rehabilitation for women higher.

"We need something where the kids can be involved," said Gorman.

The government of B.C. had total gross liquor sales in the year ending March, 1981, of $798.8 million. The net profit from those sales was $280.4 million. All of these funds were turned over to general revenue, and after numerous calls to government agencies as far away as Victoria, there is still no composite figure available at press time to show how much was spent on alco hol treatment and education.

Burglaries on the increase

MURRAYVILLE - Police here received a total of 568 complaints last week.

RCMP were kept busy with the usual pool parties, loud stereos, house parties that got out of hand and liquor seizures.

Sometime between Friday and Sunday burglars broke into four businesses at the 20300 block of 56 Avenue in Langley city. After they rifled through all the filing cabinets and petty cash boxes, the suspects netted approximately $140. Minimal damage was done in the entry.

King Koin laundry was the victim of a burglary during the night between Monday and Tuesday. The business, located in Langley city was originally thought to be just vandalized as the front window was broken by a rock. Further investigation found that the premises had been entered. The burglars, obviously not aware that cash is not kept overnight, netted $10 in change.

A 15-year-old boy was charged with shiplifting and theft under $200 from Payless Drugs in the Aldergrove mall last Tuesday. The boy had attempted to steal three packages of gum.

One of two cars driving eratically in the H.D. Stafford school yard, ran into a portable classroom last Wednesday. The driver left the yard without stopping to assess the damage or contact anyone regarding the incident. However, two witnesses observed the incident and contacted the RCMP with descriptions. Police investigation continues.

A student at D.W. Poppy school lit a total of four fires in four separate washrooms and one in a locker. The fire alarm went off and the amount of damage was only about $500. Charges are pending, according to an RCMP spokesman.

Police seek sexual assailant

CLEARBROOK - Matsqui municipal police have issued a call for public assistance in locating a suspect, wanted for questioning in connection with two sexual assaults.

A police spokesman said Tuesday that his office has received numerous sexual assault complaints recently, but two in particular concern him more than the others, because they involved a lot of violence.

On April 21, a young woman was brutally beaten during a sexual assault in the parking lot of MSA hospital. Police believe the same suspect was also responsible for an attack on McCallum Road on May 6.

The sexual bandit is described as being a white male, six feet tall, over 200 pounds, a muscular build and slight paunch. He has dark neck length wavy hair, dark (possibly sunken) eyes, a protruding forehead, acne scars, a broad nose and bushy eyebrows. He is also described as being very hairy on the arms and chest, with facial hair that grows high on his cheeks. He had strong body odor and a slight accent in his speech.

Anyone with information about the possible whereabouts of this person is asked to contact Matsqui police at 859-5225.

Vandalism worries officials

MURRAYVILLE - Local officials here have found it a serious problem to cope with vandalism in parks and other public facilities throughout the district.

Vandalism mainly occurs at more remote locations, and recently a wave of this strange behavior has plagued Ponder park, one of Langley's nature parks in the northeastern part of the municipality, according to Mayor Bill Blair.

Councilors here have responded by engaging caretakers at a number of Langley parks, but they have had trouble filling all the positions.

"We should find a caretaker and then build a park around him," Ald. Ian Strachan suggested tongue-in-cheek Monday morning.

Local man drowns

ALDERGROVE - Late Saturday afternoon a 28-year-old man was noted missing while swimming at Venture Pit.

An immediate search failed to locate Blair Archibald Collins of Langley.

Search was called off until daybreak because of poor visibility, but at 9:30, some four hours after Collins had been reported missing, two swimmers felt something on the bottom of the lake. It was found to be the body of Collins.

Cyclist killed by car

LANGLEY - A twelve-year-old boy was struck down and fatally injured outside his home at 7:40 p.m. last Thursday, June 17.

Jason Hayton, of 3690 - 208 Street, was riding his bicycle when he was hit by a car driven by Shannon Marie Aldridge of Surrey.

Investigation continues, with charges pending, according to Langley RCMP.

Expense war is a total bore

Her gracious majesty's loyal opposition in Victoria thinks it has discovered where all of Canada's money has gone. The NDP caucus would have us believe that Socred cabinet ministers spent it all on imported wine, broadway shows and limousine services.

We have bad news for them; people are not that shallow minded.

Recent revelations over the expense claims of such people as Bob McClelland, Jim Neilsen and Peter Hyndman (to mention just a few) are only of passing interest to voters. Most people have suspected for a long time that business among corporate directors and government ministers is carried out in a rather lavish manner. The expense vouchers confirm that suspicion, but they do nothing to identify the immediate problems with B.C.'s economy.

People doubtless resent the fact that leaders in government and industry can afford to engage in conspicuous consumption at their expense, while touting restraint measures and roll-back for the unwashed mob. We doubt, however, that very many people view the matter as seriously as the opposition members seem to do. In fact, the whole thing is becoming rather boring.

Attempting to cast government members in the role of pigs, gorging themselves at the public trough, reflects a lack of understanding among NDP members of the real mood of the electorate. Personal attacks and stinging barbs exchanged between political opponents are amusing and entertaining under normal circumstances, but in today's economy they are more like rubbing salt in people's wounds.

The electorate is truly angry over the state of the nation. They do not accept that the whole recession-depression was caused by wicked American bankers and greedy Japanese automobile manufacturers. People place at least half the blame at the feet of government, corporate and union leaders. They have no patience with cheap political rhetoric. They want answers and alternatives and they want them right now - not next week, but right now!

That means that the research staff that digs up issues for opposition members to beat on the hustings must work a little harder. They must pay a little less attention to the amateur theatrics of B.C. politics, and a lot more attention to the professional management of the province.

Our Socred government, with its floundering megaprojects, unpopular cut-back schemes, timidity in federal-provincial relations and its almost two-faced attitude towards business people here in B.C., surely provides the opposition with plenty of sophisticated weaponry for a real war of words across the legislative floor. To dwell on these damned expense vouchers forever is an insult to voters.

With the undertow of hostility in the mainstream of B.C.'s populace, the NDP could find itself in a comfortable position come next election day. If they can start acting like competent administrators, the NDP caucus members just might convince the people to give them another chance at governing. To do that, however, they must put an end to the slapstick antics that have dominated B.C. politics for much too long.

We all know and understand that our present leaders in almost every sector of economic life are proving unequal to the task at hand. Now would Dave Barrett and his social democrats mind showing us exactly what they can do that is any better?

Surviving the recession

By STEPHEN KAWAMOTO

Clearly, the age of scarcity is upon us. With unemployment and inflation up and production down, the economy seems worse of than ever before. And now with the recent plunge of our dollar to well below 80 cents American, the scene has gone from worse to worser.

In B.C. bankruptcies were up 140.8 percent over the period from May 1981 to May 1982. Record low levels of operation and record highs in unemployment have also been reported.

Manufacturers feeling the crunch were operating at nearly 70 percent capacity for the first quarter of this year. As well, in March, $786 million in paid unemployment benefits was an all-time high, making it the largest monthly sum in the history of UIC.

Of course, more people unemployed means more of them laid off from work. As more people are laid off in this present recession, the employers involved are beginning to realize that job productivity is a matter not of more employees but of more efficient employees. In short, better job efficiency means better productivity - even with a smaller workforce.

Unfortunately, employers are slow to demand more efficiency of their smaller staffs. They fear that the union might get on their backs, that they might have to close down their plants. Some have even gone as far as to shut down and close up shop for good.

One thing is certain, though. This production depression is not good for business, and with the inflation we're all hurting. The way things are now, it won't be long before everyone's feeling the crunch. Surely, the age of scarcity is here.

Time has come to pay the piper

By BOB WENMAN, MP

I believe Canadians have a deep sense of conviction of what they want for themselves, their children and grandchildren. That is a united healthy Canada that is part of a peaceful world community.

Today most of us are troubled, frustrated and angry over the way we are being ruled by the current government in Ottawa. I say ruled rather than governed because you and your members of parliament - the people you elect to represent your interests and concerns - are too often being bypassed by a government which prefers limited debate, closure and orders-in-council instead of consultation.

In recent history there has been a fascination with "big government" in Canada. Many have believed that big government was the wave of the future, the miraculous device needed to solve human misfortune. The welfare state, another name for big government, was seen as helping the underdog, ensuring economic growth and justice, and, of course, enhancing our democratic way of life. These are noble sentiments but big government has failed in offering economic, social and political salvations to Canadians.

The heavy hand of big government in the economy and its abysmal performance record is immediately apparent to the approximately 1.2-million now unemployed. It is these people who have to pay for the big government policies that have damaged economic growth and investment.

No economic system has unleashed the productive and creative energies more successfully nor afforded more opportunities based on merit and hard work than the free enterprise system.

Big government with its gray bureaucracy simply cannot replace much less compete with the free enterprise system.

Big government has meddled cavalierly with our economy. In the process it has cut into our political freedoms. More and more, big government has become big brother.

We can no longer accept a political system that has regulary and imperiously condemned the Western and Atlantic provinces to minority status and to a growing sense of futility and powerlessness. Such an insensitive political system has made Western Canadians feel disenfranchised and alienated from our political life.

Parliament must be reformed so that your elected members will have the tools necessary to make government responsible and accountable.

When the Progressive Conservative party formed the government it introduced legislation to bring about needed reforms including the restoration of parliament's control of spending.

As soon as the Liberals returned to power they abandoned these reforms. When next elected, our party will bring the proposals back again.

Today in Ottawa we have a very bad government. We have a bad federal political system. We have bad economic and energy policies. We have a bad system of forced metric and forced bilingualism. We have a right to be mad about all of that, but each and every one of these things can be changed by simply changing the federal government at the time of the next election.

We have a good future together if we simply have the will to fight for what we know is best; a Canada with a political system that treats each and every one of us equitably and encourages all of us to use our talent and energies to create a nation that is second to none.

The federal government's projected spending deficit for 1982 has soared to more than $16-billion, a staggering 60 percent increase over the $10.5-billion estimated deficit in the disastrous November 12 budget.

The consequences of this government's economically and politically bankrupt policies will be to drag many Canadians down the drain of despair and hopelessness. The only solution is to remove the Liberals from power before they have a chance to further weaken this great country.

Canadian Business

BY GARTH TURNER

I watched the prime minister gondola down a canal in Venice two years ago. He told U.S. president Jimmy Carter American interest rates were too high.

Carter said he knew that.

And both men came back from Italy, and rates went higher.

Last year I saw Trudeau and Ronald Reagan, and the leaders of five other industrial nations drop from the sky on the lawn of Parliament Hill last summer.

Finance Minister Allan MacEachen said clearly U.S. rates were too high. They were hurting Canada.

And everybody went home from the fabulous Chateau Montebello and rates went higher.

Earlier this month I watched as Pierre Trudeau went to Versailles and told Reagan rates are too high.

Reagan said he knew, and went home.

But don't let any of this fool you.

After Venice and after Ottawa, Canada survived. The economy was weak, but it held together.

Today, we are fraying at the seams.

North America is in recession. Canada is in depression.

If the U.S. does not chop the interest rates which have robbed Canadian jobs and crushed Canadian companies, Trudeau says he'll take "other measures." Trudeau may do the ultimate: He may, at a stroke, reduce interest.

What will happen then?

☐ The Canadian dollar will collapse, as world money market turn thumbs-down on the massive government intervention and as gobs of investment capital flees the country for places (like the U.S.) where it can earn a higher return.

☐ The likely result is a devaluation of the dollar—something a number of international investers already see as inevitable. Why else would our buck collapse to 80¢ U.S. — the worst level in 51 years?

☐ Controls would have to be placed on the flow of money out of the country in a bid to maintain some of the dollar's strength. This would have a shattering effect on business confidence, but that's the price to pay for lower rates in a no-win situation.

☐ And, to counteract the strong inflationary influence of lower rates, wage and price controls would be introduced.

The effect, of course, would be a virtually state-run economy.

It would get people back to work, make houses affordable, and create a mini-boom.

But the long-term effects might well be disastrous as we drifted further and further from the free enterprise, open market system of the country we do 70% of our business with.

Recently a major investment letter told its subscribers that if Versailles fails, the feds will likely devalue the buck — perhaps to 75¢ U.S.

"The federal government feels it can't wait much longer for the U.S. to lower its interest rates," The Investment Reporter said. "But it doesn't want to abandon its fight against inflation. Nor does it want to devalue our dollar.

"Sooner or later Ottawa will have to make a choice. Since several provincial premiers have already said they wouldn't mind if the federal government let the dollar slip, we think it may decide to do this.

"If Ottawa does let the dollar slip, interest rates could come down. Exports would increase — but so would import costs. Even if domestic production replaces imports as a result, companies here would probably raise their prices to world levels.

"We'd still have rising inflation to contend with, in other words."

It's not an easy time.

The choices are really no choices. To do nothing is criminal. To take over the economy is reckless.

Paul Hellyer

I thought of Donald Fleming the other day when the Canadian dollar fell below 80¢ and guessed he must be smiling — not at the mess the country is in but at the irony of the Liberal party getting it on the chin as he did way back in '62 when the dollar dropped to 92.5 cents in the midst of an election campaign (For readers too young to remember, Fleming was Minister of Finance in John Diefenbaker's cabinet.).

The Grits printed "Guaranteed, Pre-Shrunk, Genuine, Devalued Diefendollars" with Fleming's picture on them and handed them out by the thousand. The gimmick pricked Canadians' wounded pride and was a factor in the election results. We looked on the dollar's value as a matter of honor rather than economics.

Why did the Canadian dollar fall below 80¢ U.S.?

For many years we kidded ourselves when our dollar was at par or a premium. The Yanks wanted to invest in Canada, to buy our mines and forests and build manufacturing plants here. So we lived off the capital like putting a mortgage on the family homestead and using the proceeds for a big toot.

Finally we decided this couldn't go on forever or we wouldn't own anything. So we began to discourage foreign investment and bought back some oil companies etc. The previous owners sold the Canadian dollars they got in payment so they could take their money home. Our dollar began to plummet toward its real worth.

For some reason Bank of Canada Governor Gerald Bouey decided to arrest the fall at about 92-3 cents U.S. by keeping interest rates high enough to entice some foreign investors. He said to let the dollar fall further would be inflationary. We would have to pay more for our lettuce, tomatoes and Toyotas.

What Bouey didn't say is that high interest rates, too, are inflationary. They increase the cost of hydro, food and housing. Not only that, quite a few people have lost their houses due to high interest rates.

In the end the pressure on the dollar was too great and Bouey had to capitulate anyway. So now we are getting the worst of both worlds — losing our houses and paying more for tomatoes too.

What of the future? Our wage settlements are running 4%-6% ahead of those in the U.S. So according to Hoyle, the Canadian dollar should be worth 4¢-6¢ less than it is now by the year's end. I'll bet that Donald Fleming is glad that he isn't finance minister now.

Friendship After Love

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

After the fierce midsummer all ablaze
Has burned itself to ashes, and expires
In the intensity of its own fires,
There come the mellow, mild, St. Martin days
Crowned with the calm of peace, but sad with haze
So after Love has led us, till he tires
Of his own throes, and torments, and desires,
Comes large-eyed Friendship: with a restful gaze,
He beckons us to follow, and across
Cool verdant vales we wander free from care,
Is it a touch of frost lies in the air?
Why are we haunted with a sense of loss?
We do not wish the pain back, or the heat;
And yet, and yet, these days are incomplete.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Something is still free

Editor, The Star, Sir,

We would like to express our thanks to all the people who assisted with the Red Cross blood donor clinic on June 10. In particular, a thank-you to the 209 people who gave blood and who we hope will also do so next time.

We extend an invitation to those who didn't give blood to do so at our next clinic in December.

This is one of the few community efforts that doesn't cost money. The Red Cross still takes and gives the blood for free.

Sincerely yours,
LARRY AND WENDY KYDD

Catching the potentials

Editor, The Star, Sir,

Help! We need help. We have people roaming the streets committing crimes that the police cannot seem to control. Or can they? Tell me, how many children were killed before they caught Clifford Olson; how many persons will be killed when the next guy comes around?

I'm sure people have suffered enough, now let's get our act together and take action to rid the streets of people who will, when the chance comes, kill! Now, what are you going to do with Olson? Let him sit in jail for a few years, then let him out on the Q.T. and kill more innocent people. Everyone knows he will not change. As the saying goes "You cannto teach an old dog new tricks". We can correct this situation, but we have to do it now!

How to get rid of trash

Editor, The Star, Sir,

To anyone having the problem of dogs in their garbage.

Here is a fool proof method to keep the yard tidy and stray dogs out.

1. Burn bones and paper, plastic, etc.
2. Give meat fats to cat or dog.
3. Compost all kitchen waste in a wooden box, cover with earth or grass, etc., to keep flys and smells and dogs, cats away.

This will give you A-1 soil in a few months.

4. Squash all tins flat and smash glass in garbage can.

This will decrease your visit to the dump by two-thirds, saving you time, energy and a clean yard.

Yours sincerely,
EYE-SORE

Flippers raise money through swimathon

Saturday saw the Flippers busy raising money for their club with their annual Swimathon. Those who failed to raise the required amount will be selling discount coupon booklets.

On Sunday another annual event took place. It was Langley's turn to host the Hands Across the Fraser swim meet between the Haney Neptunes and the Langley Flippers. Langley recaptured the coveted trophy with 1049 points, beating Haney by 200 points. The 8 & under age group was very strong for Langley, taking the first six ribbons in nearly all the races. GARDENING IN THE VALLEY

By DON ANSON

Question: Could you do a column on pond gardening sometime? We have quite a large duck pond with an island in the centre. How could this area be made more attractive? I would like to know if it is possible to plant bulrushes along the bank of the water? Where would I get them? What time of the year is best? How could I plant water lilies? Would the ducks eat any water plant I might put in (therefore making it a waste of time)? Which flowering shrubs would do well on the island? It is sometimes a very wet area. Could Pampas grass do well there?

Rosemary Smith, 23652 14 A Ave., Langley.

Answer. First of all I recall that ducks have webbed feet and an insatiable curiosity. This means that until they have made proper tracks, they will trample down any small plant. I don't know how large the island is or whether it is in full sunshine most of the day. If not too large, it would be possible to make a complete surround of low wire netting until any planting becomes established.

There are many attractive plants that are suitable for boggy ground.

Bulrushes or cattails can be miniature or tall. The tall ones (typha latifolia) grow up to 10 feet tall while the miniatures (typha minima) only grow to about 2 feet. They can either be grown by division or by seed. There are many places around here where bulrushes grow wild. I suggest you find some and dig them up after they have flowered in mid-summer. Divisions should be planted in shallow water about four to six inches deep or they may be planted out in containers under shallow water. Or you could collect some seed and try seeding in pots. They spread quite rapidly but this is probably what you want.

I think your ducks could create havoc with water lilies but I may be wrong. You will have to experiment in this case. A handsome giant-leaved plant for the waterside is gunnera manicata, also known as prickly rhubarb. They are not fully hardy and should be protected in bad winters by covering the crowns with straw or litter. Soil for these should be well dug and plenty of compost or rotted manure should be incorporated.

Marsh marigolds grow in small, rounded clumps with attractive foliage and make very hardy bog plants. There are several varieties but all have attractive flowers that are long lasting. Astilbes should do well and come in three colors, white, pink and red. They are perennials and have beautiful plumes of flowers very similar to spirea. Several - members of the iris family do well in bogland, particularly the Siberian iris which will grow in water two inches deep. You might try mimulys (monkey flower) which is a bushy, perennial bog plant that grows in shade or partial shade but likes humus-laden soil. All members of the primula family will do well if not exposed to too much sun. Try primula beesiana, p. florindae or p. japonica.

Trollius or globeflower is a hardy bog plant with many varieties. Its flowers look like giant buttercups of orange and yellow from late spring to mid-summer.

Pampas grass will succeed but drainage must be good. Same applies to bamboos.

As for flowering shrubs you certainly should have a weeping willow which thrives on plenty of water. Other shrubs that may do well include the flowering currant (ribes), kerria japonica (orange blossoms early), aucuba, chaenomeles (flowering quince), and possibly sumac and philadelphus.

You have the sort of conditions in which you must experiment because you are bound to have some failures from drainage problems or duck intrusions.

You might try some ground covers with plants such as the evening primrose (oenothera), ajuga (bugle flower) or St. John's wort.

Ducks could be kept away from original plantings with circles of wire netting or, if you are very ambitious, you could try some container plantings.

I am not supposed to advertise but suggest you try Gibb's Nurseries on 200th in Langley for further suggestions and find time to visit Park and Tilford's gardens in West Vancouver where they have a fine Japanese garden as well as a bog garden.

As I said before, I may be wrong about water lilies but you should try the arums and possibly the calla lilies. The latter may be killed off in severe winters.

I take it that you will have to get to your island by boat. What fun. I remember that when we were farming in England near Bexhill, we had a small island on a lake. It grew incredibly fine blackberries and currants and every year put up a fine showing of Siberian irises. In return for allowing the Boy Scouts to camp on our farm, they built me a ten foot bridge across to the island. I wonder whether if it is still there.

I thank you for giving me something new to write about and wish more readers would do the same.

Fraud suspect to apppear

VANCOUVER - Franz Visnei, 52, will appear in provincial court on Monday to answer charges of attempted fraud involving oil paintings.

Visnei's Langley home was raided last month by officers of the commercial crime unit of the RCMP. A number of paintings by old masters were seized. Police were said to have been investigating the attempted sale of 100-year-old copy of The Shipwreck, a painting by John Turner. The sale price was reported at $2-million.

Visnei was charged on May 4, and his hearing date was set for June 28.

Gas reserves determined

VICTORIA - Results of an inquiry to determine British Columbia's natural gas reserves and how much may be surplus to the province's future domestic needs were released last week by energy minister Bob McClelland.

The inquiry was conducted under the energy, mines and petroleum resources act by Dr. George W. Govier, who acted as a single commissioner.

Potter profits are up

LANGLEY CITY - Spirit sales are up if the quarterly financial report of Potter's Distilleries Ltd. is any indication.

Last year Potter's reported a loss of $200,082 for the quarter ending March 31, but this year the local distillery reports an income before taxes of $60,108.

Net income for the quarter was $44,833, compared with last year's net loss of $122,586.

Local couple excell in motor sport

MISSION - Derek and Mary Wood of Langley are an unusual couple. Unusual because they spend their leisure hours together, racing automobiles on a quarter mile sand strip.

The Woods are indicative of motor sportsmen in B.C. and Washington state. They are not professional racing drivers who spend their entire lives travelling from one track to another. They are ordinary everyday neighbors who carry on normal lives, but who choose to spend their weekends behind the wheel of a sand dragster.

Over the weekend, Derek Wood took first place in the competition modified class, with Craig Leland of Abbotsford taking second place.

Mary, who is a consistent winner at the Mission Raceway, this week came up with a third in the X class (unlimited modifications). Roger Manson of Burnaby was first and Jim Sparks of Coquitlam nailed second.

In the pro competition class, Gerry Lajoie of Maple Ridge came in at the top of the heap, while in competition modified G class the winner was Ron Palmer of Everett, Washington followed by Fred Vitali of Abbotsford in the second place berth.

Mission Raceway also held dune buggy races over the weekend.

Bob Johnston of Tacoma, Washington, took first in the class nine event, with fellow American Paul Bridges grabbing top honors in the claimer class.

Dave Kalbert of Surrey won the 1600cc class, Mike Strong of Puyallup, Washington was first in the class one series with Langley's Gerry Charlton winning class two, and Dave Levy of Kamloops at the top of class four.

Soccer camp with Whitecaps

ALDERGROVE - The Vancouver Whitecaps in conjunction with the Aldergrove Soccer Club will be holding a soccer camp at Parkside on the fifth, sixth and seventh of August from 10:00 a.m. until 1:00 p.m. each day.

The cost of the camp is $30.00 per child. $25 for the Whitecaps expenses and $5 for our club to cover hall rental, paper, notices and advertising. Included is a complimentary ticket for each participant to a Whitecaps game.

Bobby Stiles, Les Wilson and Alan Goad are some of the well known names on the coaching staff. Nine hours of instruction from professionals like these are certain to improve the skills of even the most indifferent players.

We need a minimum of fifty players to attend. If you are between the ages of nine and sixteen, male or female, and interested in learning the skills of soccer in a fun way as taught by experts at the game - join the wave. Surrey and Langley have both participated in camps and have invited the Whitecaps back a second time!!!

Gymnastics: striving for perfection

By DENNY ROSS

My good friend, Rick McIlwain while wielding his camera at our gym show Friday evening, put the arm on me for some comments on our activity; what it is, and why we do it.

One wonders.

Our soldiers have been dragging themselves out to 7:30 a.m. workouts for nine or so months; rolling, flipping and tumbling through countless noon-hours.

Why?

When asked, one of our number replied, "Why not?"

Gymnastics are simultaneously exciting and dull. The sport involves infinite hours of repetition and effort; refining, striving, often stranded on boring plateaux; for long periods making no discernable progress.

Then, in blossoms and revelations come new masteries and insights.

Some find it difficult to understand why our young folk work so hard at a sport where there is no intent to defeat a rival.

Gymnastis, like most other artists, seem to begin with a complusion to overcome difficulty in a specific medium. They progress, through patience, suffering, sweat and concentration into the creation of beauty for beauty's sake.

Maybe they are achieving the Greek ideal of physical and mental unity. That may be why struggle and achievement seem to be as beneficial to the untalented as they are to the 'naturals'.

Certainly part of the thrill lies in facing raw danger and coping with it. There is no performance of difficult, rapid feats of strength, flexibility, agility and doing which do not carry concomitant risks of fracture, dislocation, muscle and ligament damage. One of the major lessons the pastime carries is that there is a fine line between courage and foolhardiness.

What's it all about, Rick? Well, we have to do something with our time, because our time will pass regardless. The hinge factor, I guess, is that the time be used in a manner worthwhile to the individual.

For some of us, then, recreational gymnastics meets the criterion.

EXCITING SLO-PITCH ACTION AT PARKSIDE

Slo-pitch fans were treated to an exciting display of softball at Parkside on Monday night. The Firehall squad was pitted against the Pig Pen Farm team in what turned out to be an extra inning battle royal that ended in a 7-6 win for the Pig Pens.

After 7 innings of top-notch play by both teams the score was tied at 6-6. Each team played well with few errors and good place hitting. Player-coach "Sac" Mutter earned MVP for the Firehall squad by combining his talents at shortstop with solid hitting and aggressive base running. Fielder "Dutch" Luypen came up with some shoe-string catches in the field while 2nd baseman "Gentleman" Jim Patterson stopped several line drives through the infield centre.

Two extra innings were played until the Pig Pens managed to score with a well-placed drive through center field to score a home run in the bottom of the ninth.

Coach "Sac" Mutter, though disappointed by the loss, is still optimistic for his team's playoff chances. All losses suffered by the team have been very close and in every game could have been tipped in their favor by an extra hit at the right time.

Fans can look forward to watching the team next Tuesday at Parkside against Frontier Helicopters. This game promises to be exciting and should yield a win for the firemen.

Spectators at Little Rock Raceway's B.C. Championship Motocross saw their share of excitement and spills as the riders fought it out for the number one slot Sunday. Rick Meilwain photo

Motocross season ends

Last weekend saw two days of motocross action at Jackman Park. It was the final event of four for the B.C. Championship and in some of the classes it came down to the last moto of the day to decide the winner.

Results for the B.C. Championship series were not available at press time, but we will endeavor to bring them to you as soon as they become available.

With the beautiful dry and sunny weather we have been having for the last three weeks the weekend racing could have turned into a disaster of a dust bowl, but the watering crew started on Friday afternoon to put layer up on layer of water on the track surface. It was estimated that 130,000 gallons, excuse me, that's supposed to read 585,000 litres of water was used by Sunday afternoon.

The top finishers on Saturday were:

Schoolboy "A" class

1. TonyScott, Coquitlam, Yamaha; 2. John Snow, Langley, Yamaha; 3. Charly Charlton, Aldergrove, Kawaski.

The next event at Little Rock Raceway will be on July 11. Starting time is 10 a.m. with the finals at 2 p.m. All classes will be run. The major event of the year is coming up on August 8th, which will be the first leg of the Canadian National Championship. See you all there.

Motocross at Mission

On Sunday, June 27 those wild Motocrossers will return to Mission Raceway. There should be some exciting racing as bikes of all sizes take to the undulating, serpenting dirt course.

There should be a real battle for points in the Expert classes as some of the top riders have been racing in the east and the point spread is still quite close between the lead riders.

The field of riders should be close to 200, with riders in all classes from Juniors, Seniors, Experts to Schoolboys and Old Timers.

The action gets underway at 10:00 a.m. with the exciting finals at 1:00 p.m. rain or shine.

Otter 4-H rally at Creasy farm

By BRUCE WELLENBRINK

OTTER - On June 20 the Otter 4-H beef club held its first rally day for the year at the Creasy farm.

Members spent the morning learning how to make rope halters, and how to get their steers ready for the show ring. After a barbecue lunch a senior and a junior showmanship class was held.

Express winner

ABBOTSFORD - When William Toews celebrated his 77th birthday on May 27, four of his nine sons gave him 77 Western Express tickets for the June 2 draw, one for each year of his life.

"Checking 77 tickets was quite a chore," said the septuegenarian, "but it was worth it when one of them turned out to be worth $10,000."

Toews, who said he was pretty excited over winning the money, stated he had no plans regarding what he would do with it.

Button winner

ALDERGROVE - The lucky winner of the Aldergrove Festival Days button draw was Shane Wilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Dick Wilson of Sunshine Texaco. Shane chose to take the $200 cash instead of the trip to Reno. The winning number was 0871.

Alderhaven hosts smorgasbord

By IRENE ORWICK

ALDERGROVE - About 45 tenants and friends attended the smorgasbord at 5 o'clock, held in the lounge to honor Jake Giesbrecht, who has been assistant caretaker for several years. He was always on hand to help us with tables, etc., whenever we had some entertainment going on. Sitting at head table with Jake was his wife Mary (she too, always pitched in to help), Mr. and Mrs. Harry Wood and president of association, Mr. Misfeldt and wife.

Everyone was busy enjoying the spread of good food when all the lights went out...Old Sol was still high in the sky, so we could still see one another.

The president presented Jake with a fishing rod, etc. and Helen Segeden supplied a pretty birthday cake. We all extend to Jake "Happy retirement days" and don't let all the big ones (fish) get away. Mr. Smith rendered on his guitar some of the old songs accompanied by Jake on the mouth-harp. "Jolly good fellow" was sang by all. It was an enjoyable evening! "Thanks" to our Harry Wood planning it all, assisted by Val Lightbody and all others who helped us.

Seniors' Week

The province has proclaimed the week of June 27 through July 3, 1982 as Senior Citizens' Week in B.C.

There will be an interdenominational church service at 3 p.m. Sunday, June 27 in the Langley arena, 20699 - 42 Avenue, Langley commemorating Canada's birthday.

Theatre casting this week

Pensioners convene in Haney

By ERNIE CLUETT

The convention in Haney this past week is now history. 169 delegates and 96 visitors gathered each day to further the pensioners' business. Our delegates were Opal Thomas, Muriel Cluett and Tom and Doreen Folkard. Due to the illness of the chairman of the Resolutions Committee Wilf Sparrow, Jack Baker our provincial board member took over and did his usual masterful job. Looking after the smooth running of the convention was his wife Bunty Baker, and she also did a first class job. Your Choral group under leader Pat Prozesky entertained on the opening day and was followed by the OAP band under Lloyd Curson. Thursday evening following the banquet the Choral Group sang again. Mrs. Lillian Browne, past president and delegate to the national conference stated that the first order of concern to seniors was Medicare. The deteriorating standard of service throughout the nation was of the greatest priority. There are 15 OAP organizations in the North Fraser and Langley region, who hosted the convention.

We now have a permit to operate a restaurant in the OAP hall. I am listed as, proprietor and the permit is for one year. If all the gals who so far have volunteered their service, now want to join the union and demand union wages, I am selling out very cheap to the first sucker that comes along.

Once again, a reminder of the bus trip to Portland and way places, June 28, 29 and 30. Phone 856-4639 or 859-8408 for particulars.

The hall will be closed for repairs June 28 to July 3. The floor is to be refinished and several jobs to be caught up.

The Choral Group will shut down for July and August to enable the members to renew their tonsils which by now have worn down to the roots. They will sing at the Abbotsford Hospital's Cottage Monday at 6:30 p.m. and also at the Langley Days senior citizens banquet on the 23.

I have written to the Engineering department of the municipality thanking them on your behalf for the improved crossing light at the hotel corner in Aldergrove. If you think any more crossings are advisable please let me know.

The attendance at the weekly dance was down. The door prize went to Walley Cinnamon and the spot to Mary Popiawa and Al Shwaluk. Nick Slater is in hospital. We all wish him a speedy recovery.

Doris says "most men are weight watchers, especially when it is distributed as well as mine".

Shooting causes Tex-Mex crisis

Edward James Olmos (shown) stars in "The Ballad of Gregorio Cortez," to air Tuesday, June 29 over PBS.

Olmos portrays Cortez in the two-hour docu-drama which will be the final production in the premiere season of the weekly "American Playhouse" series. The show recalls an actual incident which took place on June 12, 1901 when Cortez, a young Mexican cowhand, was shot and killed by a sheriff in Gonzalez, Texas, over a misunderstanding in semantics.

Dramatizing the early conflicts between the Tejano-Mejicanos (Mexican-Texans) and the Americanos (Anglo-Texans), the story focuses on the values and attitudes of "frontier justice" as it was understood along the Texas borderlands and as one culture clashed with another.

Following the shooting between Cortez and Sheriff Morris, Cortez fled toward Mexico because he had little faith in Texas justice. The duel also claimed the life of an innocent bystander, Cortez's brother.

Cortez claimed he acted in self-defense and for the next 11 days he eluded one of the biggest manhunts in Texas history. He continued to proclaim his innocence even after years in jail and died of natural causes in 1916 at the age of 41.

"The Ballad of Gregorio Cortez" was filmed on location in and around Gonzalez, Texas, as well as in New Mexico. The film was co-produced by Moctesuma Esparza and Michael Hausman and directed by Robert Young. Victor Villaseror wrote the script.

Screen great Bette Davis stars as a widow who takes a street-wise black youth as a foster child in WHITE MAMA, to be rebroadcast on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movie," June 29.

Eileen Heckart plays a woman who lives out of shopping bags in WHITE MAMA, on "The CBS Tuesday Night Movie," June 29.

This Week in Canada

On June 21, in 1919, this was "bloody Saturday" during the Winnipeg general strike, and in 1957, John Diefenbaker was elected the first Conservative prime minister in 21 years.

On June 22, in 1706, the people of Montreal were ordered not to keep pigs in their homes, and in 1774, the Quebec Act was passed.

On June 23, in 1713, Acadians were given one year to leave Nova Scotia or swear allegiance to Britain, and in 1896, Wilfrid Laurier became prime minister.

PTG work funds many Parkside school programs

By DONNA PION

ALDERGROVE - Last Thursday Parkside schools' parent teacher group held their annual tea, thus ending the school year showing their appreciation to all who contributed to the well being of the school's activities and development.

The PTG of Parkside is quite active and through their hard work the school has benefitted with an adventure playground, swim and skate programs, a curtain for their gymnasium, and this year they are in the process of purchasing an Apple 2 computor. They raise money through various events; the most popular and successful being the fall bazaar held every two years.

President Eloise Wakelyn thanked the seventy-odd parents present for their support and also presented principal Irvin Redekopp, and head teacher Blackett, with engraved digital pens for their active concern in the PTG. A corsage was presented to Mrs. Jordon-Knox who is leaving Parkside after being with them since the school first opened. She made a parting speech stressing how much she'll miss the friendly atmosphere Parkside is known so well for.

There was also entertainment. The primary choir, headed by Mrs. Manning, sang five action songs; grades six and seven headed by Mrs. Parisotto, did some lovely tunes on the recorder; and Miss Janssen's group of ukulele students ended the show and even had eight brave students do a delightful "can can" dance.

Eloise Wakelyn stressed what a fantastic staff Parkside had and how well everyone, parents and teachers, co-operated. From what I saw of the afternoon and having had my daughter attend Parkside this past year, I know she is right. Because of the school boundary changes my daughter, as well as fifty other children, will be transferred to Shortreed, and I'm optimistic that Shortreed will be as acceptable as Parkside. As an parent of elementary school children I'm thankful that Aldergrove has some of the best schools around.

Margaret Barnes points to painting by Sandor Meszaros currently on display in Cedar Park gallery. Meszaros is a painter in the traditional style.

SANDOR AT CEDAR PARK GALLERY

CLEARBROOK - Sandor Meszaros of Abbotsford is a full-time painter in the traditional manner, with university degrees in the humanities from the universities of Budapest and Utrecht.

He studied drawing, painting and art history in Hungary and Holland, and etching at Fraser Valley College.

His works stem in part from concrete visual experience and in part they are invented, but quite often these two elements merge into one picture.

While the paintings have a definite theme, the over-all impression is a reflective mood.

So, whatever the picture is about - a landscape, people, etc. - is all seen and transformed by the emotions of the artist.

For him the primary question is not so much how a picture is painted or what it is about - but what sort of feelings it has and creates.

"It does not mean abstract," he says. "A landscape remains a landscape, and people will be people, but realism and the feel about them make the picture a whole."

His present showing includes works in oils, pastels, watercolor, etchings and pen and ink.

As an artist, Meszaros works full-time.

At the age of 18, he was among finalists of a country-wide competition for young artists.

He taught art for five years privately for part-time and full-time students.

He has held Abbotsford exhibitions in the library, Galley 'n Gallery and Gallery 6; also in Vancouver and in Bellingham, Wash.

Arts council choose officers

During their recent annual meeting on June 16 in the Arts Centre, a new slate of officers for 1982-83 term were elected by the members present, under the direction of Janice Major, nominations chairman. The new officers are: past president, Joanne Boyle; president, Lesley Stephenson; secretary, Toots Tucker; treasurer, Patricia Ziola; and directors chosen were Maurice Wettstein, Donna Sinclair, Marilyn Bouwman, and Joan Reynard.

Many various committees were also filled by acclamation and will assist in the many cultural functions and endeavors which the council anticipates throughout the year.

A deserving applause was given to the past president, Joanne Boyle, who has committed herself in countless volunteer hours. An organizer of the Theatre for Children series which were held in the Murrayville Hall presented live entertainment for the youngsters; home bus tours, featured every spring honoring some of Langley's lovely residences; fun-filled and interesting tours to galleries, museums and buildings of interest by bus; besides delving into business capacities which proved challenging.

Lesley Stephenson will resume her position as president in September. She also has many cultural plans and ideas which will prove to be rewarding and very beneficial to members of the council and our community. With the assistance of her executive, directors and committee chairmen, she will endeavor to fulfill the needs of many.

Janice and Mircho Jakabow, instructors of fine arts at the Fraser Valley College, Abbotsford campus, were also guest speakers at the arts council's recent meeting and presented a very interesting and colorful slide show depicting the finished art works of their students. A delightful couple, the Jakabows are wished continued success in their many excellent achievements in education.

The Langley Arts Council, whose year completes in June, will resume its full activities again on September 15, with a meeting at the arts centre. Any inquires made during the summer recess period may be made by phoning their office at 534-0781.

New mortgage plan saves cash

Several credit unions in the Fraser Valley are now offering their members the opportunity to make payments on residential mortgages more frequently than the traditional once a month.

According to Surrey Credit Union, the impact of making weekly payments of one-quarter the regular monthly payment will reduce a mortgage payment period by as much as 12 years on a standard 25 year term mortgage. The more frequent the payments, the lower the interest expense.

The service is also offered for pay periods of semi-monthly or every 15 days.

Members who feel they can budget to meet the more frequent repayment period are urged to contact Surrey Credit Union. Al Jackson, credit manager says this added service will prove a great benefit to members by reducing the potential interest cost of their mortgage.

Surrey Credit Union is only one of the many credit unions offering this mortgage repayment service.

ALBUM REVIEW

An invigorating rocker

By KURT LANGMANN

You Drive Me Crazy
Shakin' Stevens
(Epic)

This is one of the liveliest records I've heard this year - perfect summertime music. It's classic '50s-style rock and roll; sometimes sweet but most of the time it just plain kicks.

Stevens is the British counterpart of American rockabilly singers like Robert Gordon or Joe Ely, all of whom base their derivative sound on early Gene Vincent, Elvis Presley recordings. Stevens is not as prolific a writer as Ely (although considerably better looking than Gordon) and his cover versions outnumber original songs, by a factor of 10 to 2. However, as an interpretative artist, Stevens is gifted - and at times, positively brilliant.

His version of the Naomi Neville oldie, "It's Raining" is the best I've heard (and there have been many others). Stevens injects "Hey Mae", one of the best numbers, with huffy, taunting vocals; eerily evocative of early Presley songs. His cover of the Blasters "Marie Marie" has already been a big U.K. hit (rockabilly is still a popular form there - Gene Vincent's career flourished in Britain till his death in 1971, long after his north American career waned.)

Shakin' Stevens

The title track, "You Drive Me Crazy" is the squeaky-clean first single from this compilation (1979 to 1981), but it only hints of the tough performances in the other eleven tracks.

Recording quality and sound mix is exemplary. The sound is "big" but ever so natural. The drums and barrel-housing acoustic piano sound almost alive and the bass is a saucy, fat sound. Electric and steel guitars cut clean, fast solos (musicians were not credited on the album) and Stevens' exciting vocals invigorate the twelve high-charged songs.

Bruce Allen, the Vancouver-based manager of Loverboy, Prism and Susan Jacks, is also involved with Stevens' management, so there is a possibility of a Vancouver concert. In the meantime, this album is a wonderful frolic. (10)

Lead Me To The Water
Gary Brooker
(Vertigo)

Brooker, a respected keyboardist and vocalist, was a founding member of Procul Harum ("A Whiter Shade Of Pale") and recently has recorded and toured with Eric Clapton's band.

His new solo album features new songs with Clapton, Phil Collins, George Harrison, Chris Stainton and many other old friends helping in the recording studio. Brooker's voice and keyboards are well in the forefront though, and the style is very similar to his work with Procul Harum. Brooker also wrote all the new lyrics, many of which are exceptional.

The title track, "Lead Me To The Water" is pleasantly ambiguous, and "The Angler" is in reference to Izaak Walton's "Compleat Angler" (Brooker is also pictured snoozing with his cap and rod on the cover - the man obviously loves the sport). However, there's nothing fishy about the music. There are no bad songs here, but the standouts are "Sympathy For The Hard Of Hearing," "Mineral Man", "Hang On Rose" and "Home Loving". (8)

All Of A Sudden
John Hiatt
(Geffen)

Hiatt has written some great songs, and there are some great songs among the twelve new ones on his fifth album, but Hiatt's energy is overwhelmed by cluttered, noisy production.

His previous albums were much simpler and more direct, which suits his style of writing. The overblown "All Of A Sudden" is too predictable and monotonous, in comparison. (5)

Special Forces
38 Special
(A&M)

38 Special play typically hard drivin' and drinkin' Southern rock, but do rise above the banality of the style with some good song hooks ("Caught Up In You"), singer Donnie Van Zant; and rather than use half a dozen or so guitarists (like Molly Hatchet) they've got two guitarists and two drummers, plus a bassist. It's simple, and 38 Special know how to use it to best effect. (8)

Sweet From A Stanger
Squeeze
(A&M)

Squeeze has two of the best songwriters, (Chris Difford and Glenn Tillbrook) and some of the best players working out of England today. One reviewer has called them the new Beatles, and while this may be a little premature and silly, it does speak well of the respect the band has won, around the globe.

Their fifth album offers nothing in the way of a follow-up to their big hit, "Tempted" (the writer and singer of that song, Paul Carrack has been replaced by Don Snow) but Squeeze's greatest strength has always been the Difford-Tillbrook team. Co-produced by Squeeze and Phil McDonald, the album offers twelve highly polished numbers, including the six-minute, "Black Coffee in Bed" (with Elvis Costello) and the current hit, "Points Of View."

They're all simply boy-girl romance songs, but like their own favorite songwriters, (Rogers & Hart, Lennon & McCartney, Cole Porter, Ray Davies) they get to the point quickly with a careful economy and directness of language.

A very good effort from talents which are still only maturing. (9)

E.T. is a moving film

By DONNA PION

"E.T. The Extra Terrestial" moved me beyond words, and I can only say that producer Steven Spielberg is a master in his field.

The story is about E.T., who is accidently left on earth, unable to get to his spaceship in time for its departure. A young boy (beautifully played by Henry Thomas), finds him, takes him home, and from there the story unfolds. There was a lot of laughter and towards the end, a lot of tears. The emotion the movie was able to emit was over-powering. There were bursts of applause, and cheers of joy as the movie audience shared in a common concern for the welfare of E.T.

The innocence of children, the awareness of the unknown, and the human bond of love were so beautifully depicted in this superlative production. It's definitely a must to see - even if you only see one movie a year.
