HIGH WATER INEVITABLE

Civic leaders make flood plans

ALDERGROVE - There is no cause for alarm but there is justification for taking certain safety precautions. That is the outlook of most civil authorities in the Fraser Valley right now where flooding is concerned.

There are indications that parts of the valley may experience high water levels similar to those encountered in 1948. In that year, low ground throughout the valley was submerged by a flooding Fraser River, leaving thousands homeless and causing millions of dollars worth of damage.

Since 1948 there have been vast improvements in the diking system. Emergency services have also been expanded to deal more effectively with a major flood.

Mel Pool, chairman of the Glen Valley diking commission, said Tuesday that most residents are carrying on with life as usual. People on the flood plane are not living in mortal fear, but they are aware of the flood threat, and many are making preparations for evacuation of their families and livestock.

The problem has been created by weather conditions in B.C. interior regions. Usually there are two peak times for snow melting in those areas. At the end of May the snow on the rangelands usually melts and runs into the Fraser, causing minor floods in very low areas here in the Fraser Valley. By the end of June the very high level snowpacks in the mountains also melt causing another brief period of minor flooding.

This year, as in 1948, the rangeland snowdrifts are not melting as they should. Cool temperatures, especially at night, are keeping the snowdrifts on the ground. Now, authorities fear that there will be only one peak flood period in 1982, bringing all the melted snow into the valley in one fell swoop.

"On Thursday the river level was exactly what it was in 1948 on the same date," stated emergency program co-ordinator, Marshall Mitchell. Like Pool, Mitchell says he would like to see the river much higher than it is right now. The longer the flood peak delays, the worse it will be when it does come.

"There is a very good possibility of some flooding this year," Mitchell said. "We definitely are going to have high water."

The chief cause for concern among officials is the condition of many dikes in the valley. It is not that the dikes are run down or poorly maintained, it is simply that the older ones, built in the late 40's and early 50's may not be high and wide enough to withstand major flood waters. They could become saturated, undermined and slip away into the river.

Provincial diking inspector Ken Chisholm was quoted in Tuesday's Vancouver Province newspaper as saying: "It is the older ones I will lose sleep over if we have extremely high water. They are narrower than the new dikes and have steeper sides."

Mitchell and Pool agree, adding that the older dikes are usually two or three feet lower in elevation as well.

Most of the dikes in the Matsqui and Langley flood planes are of the older type and are about 24 feet high. Pool said he expects them to hold providing the water table does not rise above the 24 foot mark.

"We are diking in and we do not expect any flooding," stated Pool, but he added that there are some farms and residences, plus a few river oriented industries, that are located outside the dikes. These, he feels, are bound to experience some flood damage this year.

There are a number of cedar sawmills along the river bank in Glen Valley, as there is al along the Fraser's banks. One of these is the Lakewood Lumber Company at the foot of 264 Street. Lakewood shift foreman Dale Taylor, said the company is making preparations for a deluge.

"We're expecting to see a kind of a mess here in about a month," he remarked, adding that poor market conditions have forced a closure at the mill, which will save the company some money on flood fighting. "If we were running we'd have to do some work on the pilings." He estimated that it would have cost Lakewood 20 or 30 thousand dollars to secure the mill in an operational mode. As things are, Lakewood is securing all equipment on the water and moving electrical equipment to higher ground.

Taylor said things will be a lot tougher for those mills along the river that are still operating through the housing slump.

On the bright side, authorities insist that even the highest water levels would not be as catastrophic as they were in 1948.

The Fraser River has been dredged at key points throughout the valley to deepen the water channel. Depth soundings are being taken to determine silt levels and additional emergency dredging could take place where necessary.

In addition, the various levels of government are co-operating in establishing emergency relief programs for flood victims. The ministry of agriculture is compiling a list of places where cattle could be taken and cared for through the flood. THey are also making shipping arrangements.

The regional and local governments are developing contingency plans for such things as emergency housing search and rescue, food preparation and continued supply of drinking water. Although some doubt that the diking system could constrain a major flood, all officials seem to agree that preparations are adequate enough to ensure public safety and keep financial loss to a minimum.

"My main concern is that municipalities have a flood plan, and if they don't, that they start working on one," stated Mitchell.

In the meantime, he feels it is important that residents of low elevation lands do what they can to prepare. Now is a good time to move electrical equipment and other machinery to high ground. He also says it might be useful to make alternate arrangements for comfortable accomodation of people and livestock. He suggested that friends on higher lands might be willing to offer lodging in the event of a major flood.

It should be noted, that the whole flood problem is still contingent on the weather. Although indications point to the possibility of a major flood, the weather remains as unpredictable as always. It could easily melt up country snow gradually, making all the fears and precautions redundant.

Life as normal is still the order of the day on the flood plane, with safety first, of course.

Flood planning for low-land residents

- Keep a battery operated radio available, with spare batteries.
- Have emergency food and medical supplies handy.
- Stash a few days drinking water safely away.
- Move valuables to upper floors.
- Remove insecticides and herbicides and any other poisons to high ground.
- Keep tight plugs handy by all drains, including your toilet bowl.
- Disconnect eavestroughs that are hooked to sewers.
- Contact emergency officials for advice on shoring up the foundation of your home with sandbags or vapor barriers.
- Have warm waterproof clothing ready.
- Drive with extreme care in flood plane areas.
- Keep as many emergency supplies as possible in safe places.
- For further advice contact 534-3211.

Pam and Paula Oshiro, twin sisters from Bradner, met two of the Vancouver Game Farm's quintuplet timber wolves over the Victoria weekend. The Game farm has been blessed with many new born animals this spring. Cougars, wolves, coyotes, llamas, yak, soudads, donkeys have all been born this spring and offer the visitor many opportunities to see the young animals in their natural habitat.

Blood clinic coming

ALDERGROVE - The volunteer firemen and the old age pensioners are sponsoring a blood donor clinic at the OAP hall on June 10. Clinic will be open from 2 to 8 p.m.

Volunteers are needed. Anyone interested should call Larry or Wendy Kydd at 856-6591.

FARM BANKRUPTCIES ALSO UP

April food prices rose 1.7%

OTTAWA - There was bad news for consumers and farmers last week, as government figures showed food prices and farm bankruptcies were up in April.

The agriculture department reported food prices rose by 1.7 percent last month after a small decline in March. Higher prices for beef, pork, fresh fruit and vegetables fed the increase, which is likely to continue through May.

The latest price figures are 8.13 percent higher than the same time last year and the rise in food prices is starting to close in on the overall inflation rate of 11.6 percent.

The cost of a nutritious weekly diet for a family of four was $86.96, up $1.18 from March.

Meanwhile, the consumer affairs department reported 45 more farmers were forced into bankruptcy in April, bringing the total for the year to 158.

That is 70 percent higher than the same time in 1981, a year in which a record 261 farmers were forced into bankruptcy.

Ontario has recorded 63 bankruptcies so far this year while Quebec has had 61. Beef and hog producers are the main casualties in those two provinces because the prices they get for their animals don't cover all of their costs.

Manitoba has had 14 farm bankruptcies this year, Alberta 12, and Saskatchewan, four.

Beef and pork prices are expected to continue rising until June because fewer animals are coming to market and demand will increase with the start of the summer barbecue season.

Live cattle and hog prices rose in April by 6.2 percent and 3.8 percent respectively, in response to lower supplies and rising prices across North America.

Pork prices are going up because of a drop in pigs on farms in Canada and the U.S. and increased demand exacerbated by a quarantine in Denmark to contain an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease.

Chicken farmers are increasing production even though supplies of frozen chicken in storage are almost 50 percent higher than last year and prices to shoppers should be steady or even decline.

Prices for eggs and dairy products were steady in April.

Higher production costs led to increases in bakery goods and cereal products, even though the price of wheat dropped.

Fresh fruit prices rose by six percent because of dwindling supplies of U.S. citrus fruits and apples in storage.

Fresh vegetable prices rose by 1.9 percent, mainly because of higher lettuce prices while other green vegetables declined. Prices should remain stable for the next few months.

Fest buttons on sale

ALDERGROVE - Last minute plans are now being finalized for the June festival days. Buttons are now being sold at $1; buy one and you could win a trip to Reno for two plus get discounts when shopping from participating merchants on festival weekend. A program of events will be distributed next week. Keep the weekend of June 4-6 free to come out and enjoy your local town.

A new category has just been added to the festival parade. Children 10-14 years old are urged to dress up as clowns and make placards advertising festival day events.

A cash prize of $25 is being awarded to the winning young clown with a second prize of $10. Deadline for entries is June 2. Check with Ken MacDonell at Century 21 Paris Realty (856-4106) for details.

Lynden supports arms freeze

LYNDEN, Wash., - By a unanimous vote, the Whatcom county council recently went on record in support of an international nuclear arms freeze.

The council approved a resolution introduced by councilman Craig Cole asking president Reagan and congress to propose to the Soviet Union a mutual suspension of production, testing and distribution of nuclear weapons and the systems to deliver them.

The resolution also called for a "permanent, international and multilateral nuclear weapons ban subject to rigid inspections."

"Empty nesters" are not the biggest buyers

OTTAWA - Researchers who have studied Canada's "empty Nesters" - parents whose children have grown up and left them with room to spare in the family house - say these couples are not the big spenders that many market analysts think.

John Miron of the University of Toronto's centre for urban and community studies and Myra Schiff, a Toronto private consultant, have just completed "A profile of the emerging empty nester household" for the technical research division of Canada Mortgage and Housing Corporation.

Miron and Schiff, who base their analysis on 1971 census data and CMHC's 1974 survey of housing units, discount the picture presented in recent business articles of empty nesters as being "rich in equity", looking to unload the big family home for a luxury condominium and a new and gracious child-free lifestyle.

"While the popular image plays up the affluence of empty nesters, our data suggest that, in fact, empty nesters are generally less well off (10 to 20 percent less well off) than other husband-wife familes at the same age," the report states.

For the purpose of the study, empty nesters are taken to be a husband and wife, the husband between 45 and 64 years of age, who have had children but are now living alone.

The study shows that less than 25 percent of Canadian couples in that age group are actually empty nesters. Children don't all leave home at the same age and it can take 10 years or more, after the children are grown, to empty the nest. They may start moving back in for extended periods.

The typical couple don't become empty nesters until after their thirty-fourth wedding anniversary.

About 75 percent of empty nesters own their own homes and the rest occupy a variety of apartments and flats.

Contrary to popular belief, they don't live in big houses. About 60 percent of empty nesters live in dwellings of no more than five rooms.

Empty nesters, like other families of the same age, are less likely to move than younger Canadians. About half of all households can be expected to move in a five-year period but, among empty nesters, the proportion is only about one third.

The analysis produced by Miron and Schiff shows that, contrary to popular belief, most empty nesters who move do so because they want more space, not less.

The desire for more space was the reason given most frequently by those who had moved. The desire for less space was fourth on the list, after "more space", "better quality" and "better neighborhood".

The anlaysis, however, indicates that most empty nesters who move are moving out of small units. The single largest group of empty nesters moving were moving out of homes with three rooms or less.

Couples moving out of units of four or five rooms generally tended to seek other units of a similar size. Couples seeking smaller homes were those moving out of units with six or more rooms.

Empty nesters generally tend to live in older homes - about half of them in units at least 23 years old. When they move, they don't generally look for new homes but for units that are the same age as or only slightly newer than the ones they are leaving.

Ontario traditionally accounts for the largest number of empty nester families - 40 percent of the national total. Quebec, with a comparable population, has only half as many empty nesters as Ontario.

The researchers attribute this difference, in part, to the fact that Quebec couples now in the 45 to 64 age group had more children, who take a greater number of years to leave the parental house.

As to the future, Miron and Schiff project that the number of empty nesters in Canada will more than double over the next two decades, from about 426,500 families in 1981 to nearly 900,000 in the year 2001.

The Bradner community frolicked and rollicked with a variety of entertainment last May Day Monday. In addition to the Maypole dancers and marching band, there were some rather peculiar parade entries (right). R. McIlwain photo

NDP seek unemployment debate

VICTORIA - For the second month in a row, the NDP has called for an emergency debate on the unemployment crisis in B.C.

Labour critic Karen Sanford (NDP Comox) said the B.C. unemployment figures released early this month are the highest since 1961 and indicate that the economic situation in British Columbia has reached a critical level.

Unemployment figures released by Statistics Canada show the official number of unemployed in B.C. has risen to 148,000 or a rate of 11.2 percent.

"If the 74,000 "hidden" unemployed (discouraged workers or those not actively seeking work) are included, the total unemployed in British Columbia rises to 222,000 or a real unemployment rate of 15.9 percent", Sanford pointed out.

Seniors to be honored at Langley Days

LANGLEY - President Joan Reynard, of the Langley Days Society says all of the city and districts senior citizens will be feted on their own day this year.

Plans are underway to seek out and honor, one or more Langley citizens of 65 years or older, for the contributions they have made to their fellow citizens. Mun Hope and Toots Tucker, both society members, have agreed to co-ordinate the task of having all seniors select a most valuable citizen, and to honor him or her during Langley Days, in June.

On Wednesday, June 23, a unique afternoon and evening celebration will be hosted by the society, offering dinner, entertainment and an evening of dancing. Highlight of the day will be an informal meeting with the lieutenant governor, followed by a public ball with music supplied by Dal Richards orchestra playing music of 40 and 50 years ago.

Society sponsored event will be funded by the advance sale of tickets. Members of all seniors groups and old age pension organizations as well as Langley citizens of 65 years and over can get more details by telephoning Hope at 856-5629.

This Week in Canada

On May 24, in 1833, W. Logie of Montreal became the first Canadian to receive a degree in medicine, and in 1912, Clay Saunders made the first parachute jump in Canada at Vancouver.

On May 25, in 1849, postage stamps were engraved to prevent forgery, and in 1927, Canada ended trade relations with Russia.

On May 26, in 1828, an Imperial act allowed former U.S. citizens to vote and become Members of Parliament in Canada, and in 1887, Britain gave Canada the power to negotiate trade treaties with other nations.

On May 28, 1754, Canadiens defeated a British force led by George Washington at Great Meadows, and in 1934, the Dionne quintuplets were born at Callander, Ontario.

On May 29, 1733, Judge Hocquart upheld the right of citizens to hold Indians as slaves, and in 1775, the U.S. Congress urged Canadians and Nova Scotians to join the rebellion against Britain.

Aldergrove local lovelies competing in the upcoming Rose Queen pageant made their first public appearance last weekend. Circulating througout town, the girls were assisting the Aldergrove Festival Days committee in their fund raising. Victoria Day saw the girls riding the Chamber of Commerce float in the Bradner parade.

Rose Queen pageant this weekend

ALDERGROVE - Fifteen local lasses will be judged this Sunday at the annual Rose Queen pageant. Judges Carol Gran, Terry Herritt and Vreneli Kahn will have their work picked out for them, as they determine who among these talented young ladies will wear the robes of royalty.

Preliminary judging will begin at one o'clock during a private luncheon and final judging will continue at the Rose Queen Pageant. The pageant will begin at 3 p.m. in the Aldergrove Elks Hall and the public is urged to turn out to support these ladies in their endeavors.

The event will be MC'd by our local MLA Bob McClelland and music will be provided by Bob Waugh of Aldergrove Elementary fame.

The day promises to be a high spot for the town and the event is well worth taking in.

FOR BODIES

Mastering the rod

KAMLOOPS - Seventy-two-year-old Lez Philpott says his custom-made divining rods locate more than water - they locate bodies.

Philpott, agricultural director at a radio station in Brooks, Alta., says the rods don't lie and says that since someone showed him how they worked about 12 years ago, he's found several hundred unmarked graves.

He admits he's not the only person in the world who's mastered the rod, but claims he's only heard of one other person, in Ontario, who's been able to locate unmarked graves.

His rods, also known as forksticks and krotches, were made from the chrome steel wiring from a potato chip rack.

But it doesn't matter whether sticks, telephone wire, welding rods or customized divining rods are used, he says. "It's not the rods, it's the person."

The chrome krotches aren't limited to finding bodies on land. Philpott says RCMP in Brooks have used him to locate drowned bodies, and he has the same success as with buried bodies.

There is no diving inspiration when he locates a body. "The rods cross and become parallel to themselves when they find something."

Philpott's credibility was tested when he was taken to a cemetery here where grave markers had all been removed from the individual graves and mounted in cement in a corner of the cemetery.

He took two stainless steel rods out of a cloth case and walked over the grass with the rods held straight out. Suddenly they crossed and then uncrossed as he walked.

"There's one," he said noting the distance between the crossing and uncrossing. "It's an adult grave."

He says he also can identify objects and trace them to their owners by detecting their auras. Personal auras act like invisible fingerprints but such evidence is not admissible in courts of law, he says.

Philpott doesn't advertise but says word of mouth keeps him busy finding water, buried power cables and the occasional body.

Gervan elected director of Lung Association

ALDERGROVE - Margaret Gervan of 2872 Station Road was elected as director of the British Columbia Lung Association at the annual meeting held May 20 in Vancouver. Gervan, representing the ladies auxiliary of the Royal Canadian Legion's branch 265, will serve as the Christmas seal committee chairman for the area during the 1982 Christmas seal campaign.

Canadians note record vacation spending

OTTAWA - Canadians spent a record $5.6 billion last year on their vacations despite the economic recession.

But statistics released by the federal tourism department reveal that many of the nine million families or individuals who vacationed last year cut costs.

For example, the average domestic trip became shorter, the number of foreign trips declined and some traditional winter Meccas, such as Hawaii and the Caribbean, were abandoned for closer destinations such as California and Florida.

The $5.6 billion spent on vacations last year was an 11-percent increase over 1980, a fairly constant expenditure when inflation is taken into account.

"Vacation travel is clearly regarded as a necessity to Canadians," said a department statement.

Although the economy was "in a full recession", 55 percent of adult Canadians took a major vacation trip away from home, generating nine million trips - the same number as 1980.

The department's statistics do not include weekend trips, working holidays or vacations by unaccompanied children.

DOMESTIC TRIPS UP

Domestic vacations accounted for about 68 percent of the nine million trips. This represented a continuation of a one-percent increase for each of the past five years.

But domestic travel accounted for only about half the total money spent on vacations.

The number of vacations to the continental United States - 2.4 million - represented a six-percent decline. The number of trips to other foreign destinations - one million - was a 10-percent decline.

Families or individuals vacationing in Canada spent an average $657 each trip, compared with $1,362 for each trip to the U.S. and $2,737 for trips to other countries.

Only 49 percent of domestic vacations in 1981 were taken during July and August, compared with 55 percent in 1980. The number of spring and fall vacations is expected to continue increasing.

The number of package tours sold last year involving only Canadian destinations increased by 55.2 percent to 222,000.

The biggest increases occurred in tours to the Yukon and Northwest Territories. The territories accounted for 19 percent of all domestic package tours last year, compared with four percent in 1980.

The plight of students looking for summer jobs

If the youngster who takes your order for a burger and chips looks older than the one who served you last year, it reflects the plight of Canadian students looking for summer jobs in a troubled economy.

There are still jobs available, but they are fewer and less attractive than they used to be and the pay is likely to be lower.

A recent cross-Canada survey offered scant encouragement to students hoping to build up their bank accounts in anticipation of increases in university tuition fees next fall.

And the picture was even bleaker for vacationing high-schoolers with the more modest objective - fervently encouraged by their parents - of getting out of the house and earning some pocket money.

Ross Perry, a researcher for the Ontario Federation of Students, said many of the younger job-seekers will be squeezed out by their elders.

"University students with the fear of God in them are going to be taking a lot more jobs meant for high-school students," he said. They will jump at part-time service jobs such as counter work in fast-food restaurants because they can find nothing else.

In Ontario, the ministry of colleges and universities requires students to save a minimum of $70 a week this summer - $10 more than last year - in order to qualify for loans under the Ontario student assistance program, which helped almost one-third of the province's post-secondary students in 1981-82.

WON'T BE EASY

"It will not be easy for students this year," said Jocelyn Perreault, coordinator of federal employment services.

"They will have to look at all possible avenues and be a lot more aggressive."

Across the country, summer-job prospects have dwindled in such traditional areas as construction, mining, oil drilling, the lumber industry and manufacturing.

"We're seeing a downturn in factory positions because when companies are laying off people they aren't hiring summer help," said Chris McKillop, supervisor of the Canada Employment centre at York University in Toronto. "Office jobs appear to be stable."

Denise Boisvert, a counsellor with Canada Manpower's youth employment centre in Edmonton, said more than 1,000 students lined up one day for 200 jobs.

The job crisis itself is proving to be a source of jobs. The federal program Summer Canada is hiring students - 100 in Quebec alone - to visit employers in search of jobs for other students.

REDUCE SUBSIDIES

But government economies are contributing to the shortage, not only by cutting down the number of public-service positions available but by reduction or cancellation of subsidies encouraging the private sector to take on summer help.

Even skilled applicants are running into difficulties.

Susan Ibbott, a cousellor at a Vancouver student placement office, said a third-year law student with experience in office work, welding and construction has been coming in every other day since early April looking for work and now is willing to do anything.

Rom Jackson, manager of the Canada Employment Centre at the University of New Brunswick said computer science and engineering students were among the unsuccessful job applicants.

"Good quality engineering students are still looking for work, and that's the first time I've seen that in my six-year experience," he said.

Carl Sullivan, supervisor of the Canada Manpower Centre at St. John's, Nfld., said engineering and commerce students at Memorial University should have little difficulty finding jobs because of the university's work term system. And the College of Fisheries, Navigation, Marine Engineering and Electronics finds jobs for its students at fish plants in St. John's or elsewhere.

In Nova Scotia the picture was brightened by Old Home Summer, a major project to attract tourists. Sheene Smith of the Canada Employment centre for students in Halifax said the project is likely to increase summer job opportunities in the hospitality and retail sectors.

Tourism was also a factor in Kingston, Ont., where Carol Sinclair, supervisor of the employment program at Queen's University, said there are three times as many jobs as last year.

In addition to the usual tourist attractions, the area is celebrating the 150th anniversary of the Rideau Canal and the Kingston international folk art festival.

In Prince Edward Island, 125 students were rehired in jobs they held last summer in the province's national parks. Suzanne DeJong, supervisor of the Canada Employment centre at the University of P.E.I. said she hopes to place between 60 and 65 percent of 700 university and high-school applicants.

Andy Gaskin, manager of the employment centre at the University of Manitoba, said there is a marked increase in hiring by major employers but some students apparently are still being particular about the jobs they accept.

He said that when a firm asked for 20 assembly-line workers one day, there were no applicants even though 300 students were lined up at 6:30 a.m. waiting for the centre to open.

REPORT INCREASE

Some employment officers reported a dramatic increase in offers of commission sales jobs.

"We have companies seeking salesmen for everything from soap to artificial milk," said Catherine Dawson of Simon Fraser University in Burnaby. But she said students generally shun such offers in favor of lower but guaranteed pay.

In Regina, where the student employment centre had a job surplus last year, supervisor Rick Moats said his office had 100 jobs listed and 1,000 applicants.

Restaurants and hotels are looking for help, he said, but students would have to be prepared to accept less money than they might expect. One student who was looking for odd jobs was flooded with requests.

Cheryle Olenick, an officer with the student employment centre at Saskatoon, said some students seemed "rather shocked" with wage offers averaging $5 to $5.25 an hour but a lot of casual and odd jobs were available.

Sheila Krizsan of the Hire-a-Student office in Lethbridge, said her office has received more job offers and placed more students than last year but wages are lower and the market is likely to dry up as the summer progresses.

Tax definitely limited to 7%

Langley district council has managed to come in with a 1982 budget that will be well within premier Bill Bennett's 12 percent guidelines.

After considerable deliberation and judicious slashing, a workable budget has been produced that will even stay within Ald. Ian Strachan's "seven percent solution", meaning that taxes for the average homeowner is Aldergrove and Langley will increase by no more than seven percent this year.

we applaud the efforts of Bennet in trying to restrain inflation in government, but we laud a council that could do even better, - almost 100 percent better.

Traditionally, municipal governments have been farm more responsible and frugal when it comes to handling money.

Senior governments, on the other hand, seem to believe that every citizen has a money tree in his or her backyard, and the way for the politicians to remain in power is to continually increase services.

After all, no one, they think, will miss the one or two more leaves dropping from the tree.

This year, however, Bennett finds himself in the inenviable position of preparing for election at a time when people across the country seem to be expressing their dissatisfaction with the economy by turfing out those in power.

Bennett has attempted to counter this reaction by taking a hard line approach to increased spending.

when people begin to grumble about the inevitable reduction in service and local improvements that have been shelved for another year, they should keep in mind who - or what - the real culprit is.

Bad news is yours

Newspapers have traditionally come under fire for printing what many consider to be bad news.

While criticism of this sort may be constructive it can also be the easy way out.

What is a newspaper afterall?

Simply a reflection of society.

Some papers seem to take great delight in running stories about death, destruction, and violence, while still others seem content with the idea they have fulfilled their role by jamming as many pretty girls between the ads as is possible.

An objective newspaper, and the majority in this country are, tries to print all the news, good and bad, that space permits.

At this time in our history we have the threat of war in the Falkland islands, a build up of nuclear arms, and recently a mass murderer in B.C., to list just a few of the concerns that have attained national and international attention.

Even though many of us would like to consider our neighborhood removed from the violence and destruction of the outside world the facts indicate differently.

Currently we face what is rapidly becoming record unemployment, and reports of disgusting and senseless crimes such as child abuse are on the increase.

If you are content to join your brother the ostrich, with its head in the sand, continue to harp about newspaper reports of gloom and doom and lay the blame squarely where you perceive it belongs.

If, however, you have come to join the real world it is time to put up or shut up.

Get involved.

Support organizations like Block Parents and Neighborhood Watch, monitor the courts to see that justice is done and contact the local police when you see anything suspicious.

Only when society gets off its collective fanny will the world's problems begin to receed.

The buck starts and stops with you.

-Campbell River Mirror

Paul Hellyer

Brian Mulroney is a bright and fluently bilingual Quebecer who will be a leading candidate for the leadership of the Progressive Conservative Party should a convention be called following the biennial meeting next January.

He is currently on a cross-Canada speaking tour ostensibly to raise money for the PC Party, but which offers the added attraction of raising his profile at a time when potential delegates are thinking in terms of who they might choose to succeed Joe Clark. For that reason anyone interested in the political future of the country should pay close attention to what he has to say.

Mulroney's kick-off speech to Ottawa Tories was tailor-made for a conservative business audience. He already has his bona fides with the business esfablishment as president of the Iron Ore Company. So it was natural to reinforce this strength by addressing the economy and its ills and in particular to stress the prime importance of productivity in solving the problems of inflation and unemployment.

His formula was a mixed bag of good and bad advice. The inference that productivity is the key in solving our economic problems is a red herring. While it is literally true that an increase in productivity of the order of 10%-12% would end inflation, the prospect is too unrealistic to be taken seriously. Mulroney has the cart before the horse.

Low productivity is a function of high unemployment — too many people doing nothing and others working at less than capacity. Also there is no incentive to invest in more productive machinery when there is no market for the existing surplus of goods. So the first step toward greater productivity is an expansion of the economy and that isn't going to happen as long as we fight inflation by means of monetary restraint.

Mulroney is also treading on quicksand when he suggests productivity bargaining by the industrial sector. That's the root problem of our present malaise. Workers in high technology industries get increases based on their (machines) high productivity. Then the people who teach their kids and deliver the mail want similar increases and there is no way to grant them except to print the money.

The PC contender was on sounder ground when he pointed to the Japanese experience. While there is no way we could adopt the Japanese system holus bolus, we could benefit from their thought processes.

If some Brian Mulroney could persuade our Boueys, MacEachens and McDermotts to think as progressively as the Japanese, it wouldn't take long to resolve those seemingly intractable economic problems.

Separation: self-centeredness

By DAVID STUBBS

In certain respects it's scary - a political party proposing possible separation of Western Canada from the rest of the country. That is, unless Ottawa and Central Canada are prepared to give this end of the Canadian nation a better deal.

Could we make it alone? WCC's general secretary, Eric Reilly thinks so. He says that Western Canada would have a gross domestic product far exceeding many of the countries of the world. And as a new nation, it would set its own priorities.

The WCC likes the British way and is not thrilled about continued special concessions to Quebec. It advocates keeping resource dollars at home.

The Western Canada Concept is liable to become a plausible alternative for the B.C. voter in the next provincial election. Votes it receives will be as much pro-WCC as anti-Socred.

A new deal for Western Canada is a fair concept. After all, this region represents the largest chunk of the country's raw material wealth. But the idea of separation from the Canadian nation is blatant self-centeredness, and extreme in an age of strain.

Sap has begun to run again

By BRUCE LEVETT

It's spring again in Vancouver. Trees are bursting into bloom. The joggers are rising from hibernation.

Sun-worshippers frolic.

And, once again, the sap has begun to run.

We take you now the Parks Commission, where they are locked in controversy with Greenpeace over one of the burning questions of the day:

"Should we be playing music for the inmates down at the zoo?"

Greenpeace says "Good idea."

The commissioners say "Nonsense."

But first, a little background.

Greenpeace has promulgated a proposal to have a saxophone quartet from the University of British Columbia music school serenade the beasts. Should the beasts object, they'll stop, Greenpeace promises.

The whole idea is to "learn the responses of various animals to different kinds of music and sounds," the sponsors state.

Replied the commission: "We have had problems with the animals in the zoo and the aquarium who have been adversely affected...The sea otter, for instance, was so upset that it could not eat for some weeks...."

GET EQUAL TIME

OK, we've heard from Greenpeace and from the Parks Commission, but so far there has been no input from either the musicians or the animals. Let's change that.

"I'm against it," says Noodles Romanoff, noted practitioner on the soprano sax.

"I mean, how would it look on the old resume? 'Just returned fro a triumphant six-week stand at the otter pool down at the Vancouver Zoo?"

"Or:

"Where did I appear last? Well, I spent some time practising scales down at the aquarium.

"I'll admit there is no disgrace to playing in a pit orchestra, but a bear pit? With real bears? No, the union would never understand."

MATTER OF TASTE

One Greenpeace leader attempted to speak for the animals: "I don't see anything anywhere that would indicate that it would be bad to play classical music from a saxophone quartet to a polar bear.

"Animals can't understand English or Swahili, but they can hear sounds."

"All very well," chimed in a rather emaciated otter. "But why pick on us? They call it classics; to me it sounded like selections from the songbook of Shep Fields and His Rippling Rhythm.

Greenpeace says the ultimate aim is to supply music to animals in the wild. It also states that musicians involved are coached to maintain visual contact with the animals under serenade.

Possibly. But any bushman worth his salt will tell you that should you make eye contact with a grizzly or one of his woodland chums, you had best be armed with something a tad more lethal than a Jimmy Dorsey special.

Oh, well, we don't have to worry about the problem just yet. As is usual with matters this weighty, the commission has deferred its decision.

Handgun laws opposition urged

VICTORIA - British Columbia outdoorsmen should oppose a private member's bill before Canadian parliament that would ban private ownership of handguns, provincial environment minister Stephen Rogers said recently.

Rogers told delegates to the annual convention of the B.C. Wildlife Federation that private member's bills usually fail. But he also indicated Liberal MP Warren Allmand had been asked by prime minister Trudeau to put the bill forward to test public opinion.

"It's vitally important that we stand up and oppose Allmand's bill now," Rogers said.

Calling a ban "highly unnecessary," Rogers said: "Let's keep the attention where the problem is...the problem is with impaired drivers, not impaired hunters or handguns or long guns."

Rogers, who said he has a collection of handguns, cautioned the federation against using the US National Rifle Association in a lobbying action because the NRA is not liked by politicians.

On the question of trapping, Rogers said he is not prepared to take away the only source of income for about 6,000 trappers in B.C. by banning certain traps.

He said 97 percent of the traps used in the province kill humanely, and he urged federation members to support the trappers.

Rogers said a wolf problem still exists in the province, but poisoning or indiscriminate shooting of the animals is an unacceptable solution.

Touching on the controversial issue of raising game animals, Rogers said the intention of game farming is to produce meat, not to produce animals for hunting.

He said there doesn't appear to be a commercial market for game farm-raised meat, but, if there is, it would be administered by the agriculture ministry.

Members of the 1st Aldergrove Cub pack welcome new pals as the Aldergrove Beaver Colony held their annual swim-up. The swim up marks the 'coming of age' of young Beavers and is one of the high points in a young scouts life. Aldergrove's cub pack will be forming a second pack this fall as the demand has filled the existing pack to capacity and created the need for another group. Leaders are needed for the new pack and any interested parties are invited to attend a pack meeting on Monday evenings between 6:30 and 8 p.m. at the Aldergrove United Church.

VANCOUVER - Gary Begin, chairman of the Burnaby school board, has been re-elected president of the B.C. School Trustees Association at the annual general meeting held here May 13-16.
The first trustee ever to serve three consecutive years as BCSTA president (the association was founded in 1905), Begin won the 1982-83 post over Helen Casher, chairman of the Maple Ridge-Pitt Meadows board.

Scouting's birthday noted

ALDERGROVE - 1982 is the 75th anniversary of scouting. Scouting began in England in 1907 and its founder was Robert Baden-Powell. Baden-Powell was born in London on Feb. 22, 1857. An enthusiastic outdoorsman, and always on the outlook for adventure, he joined the British army in 1876. During an exciting career in the army he soon rose to lieutenant-general. Interest of his troops enabled him to improve the quality of the soldiers and help them develop skills such as self-survival, observation, tracking, cooking and map reading. While in the army he wrote "Aids to scouting" and this is the book which laid the foundation for scouting as it exists today.

Today there are scouting programs for youngsters between the ages of five and 21. Beavers cater to the 5 to 7 year old age group, wolf cubs to boys aged 8 to 11, boy scouts for the 12 to 14 year olds, venturers for the 15 to 17 group, and rovers for the 18 to 21 year olds.

All is made possible by volunteer work of parents wanting to help and teach children values, aims and principles to develop their character as resourceful and responsible members of the community.

Cadets hold annual inspection

CFS ALDERGROVE - Parents and friends are invited to the annual inspection of cadets of RCSCC Columbia and MLCC Aldergrove on Sunday afternoon, May 30.

Inspecting officer, HMCS Terra Nova commanding officer, Cmdr. Eldridge, will check the cadet corps starting at 1 p.m.

Engagement party

LANGLEY - A surprise engagement party for Karen Gregory of Langley and Henry Stoker of Surrey was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Booy of Delta, on Friday evening, May 14. Seventeen people were in attendance.

The gifts for the happy couple were presented by young Joshua Booy, son of the host and hostess.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Booy and Marion Stoker, sister of the groom to be. A specially decorated engagement cake was cut by Karen and Henry and served to the guests.

Otter 4-H Horse Club news

By ALISON McPHEE

OTTER - The 4-H horse club is proud of Kim Sauder who has been chosen to participate in an exchange trip to New Brunswick this summer. Tammy Suzuki and Cindy Mortimer are going on to represent the club at district senior level. In the junior category the club has chosen Carmen Clingan and Heather McPhee to go on.

The club has been busy preparing for the May Day Parade in Fort Langley, and going to livestock judging events held weekly. While also organizing an invitational horse show to be held on June 6 at the Langley Riders arena. The club was entertained by an informative speech by Dr. Paton.

Otter 4-H Lamb Club activities

OTTER - It was a very busy time at the sheep and wool fair on May 15 and 16. Club members placed second and third in the trimming contest. Two Otter 4-H teams placed in the top three of the fleece to yarn.

Meeting and junior demonstrations were held on May 17. Wendy and Tina Stephenson will go on to the district finals. The judges for the evening were Mrs. Sondergaard and Mrs. Scott. Senior club demonstrations will take place on June 7 and next meeting on June 21.

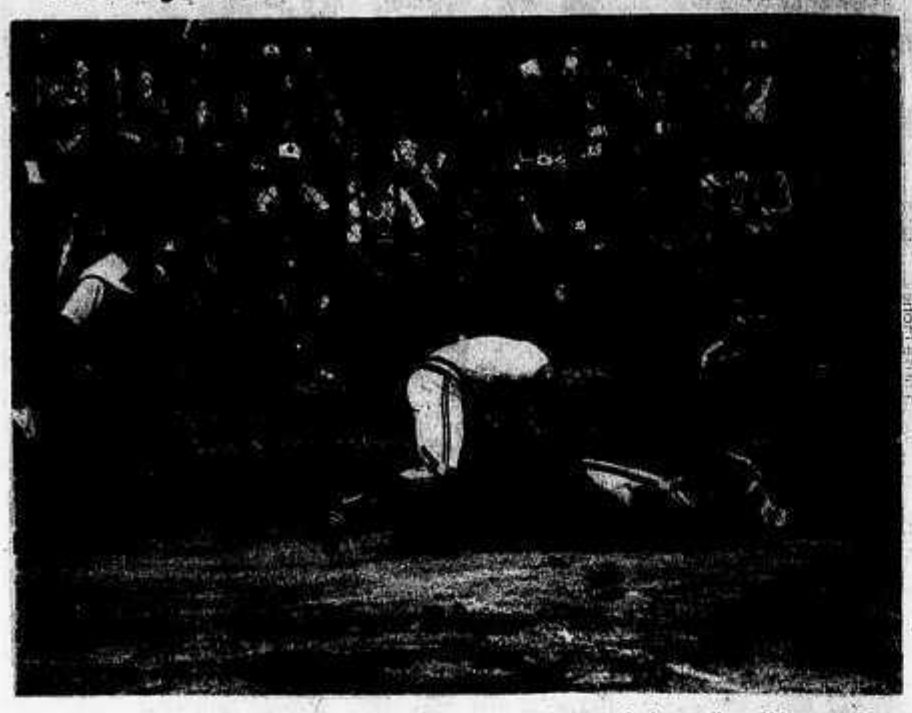
Super tourney draws capacity crowd



A close call as Aldergrove Sports pushes for domination in Monday finals of the fastball tournament.

ALDERGROVE - Sixteen teams from the Fraser Valley and the Lower Mainland converged on Aldergrove Friday evening to take part in the Aldergrove mens fastball tournament. The largest tourney of the year drew capacity crowds throughout the weekend. Parking was at a premium and bleacher seats were filled to overflowing.

Fastball league officials estimate attendance to exceed 2,000 persons. Thirty two games were placed to finally determine the winner.

Dueck Construction managed first place followed by Black & Decker of Vancouver. Cariboo Hotel took third place and Aldergrove Sports pulled off a fourth place finish.

In other fastball play last week West Country Hotel defeated Lund Sprts 7-2, Walters Carpets dumped D-Line Trucking 9-6 with the help of pitcher Maurice Chenier, West Country Hotel squeeked a 3-2 win over Hutco Parts in eight innings and the Nite Movers took Carmans Pizza 11-12.

Slow pitch action sees Firehall fall to Pig Pen

Tuesday, May 18 at King Rd. School was the scene of another bitter defeat for the Aldergrove Firehall team. Their opponents, the 49 Ave. Pig Pen Farm team, having won all their games so far this year added another game to their winning streak. After six innings and a 6-6 tie the Pig Pen team managed to score in the top of the 7th and held the Firefighters for a 9-6 win.

The firehall team was spurred on by superb fielding in the person of "Curly" Blair Currell and his sidekick "Baldee" George Koning. But, the majority of the credit must go to the pitcher "Spitball" Don Waines. "Spit" pitched in such a manner as to almost completely control the Pig Pen teams hitting therefore cutting back on the huge lead this team has enjoyed in their previous games this year.

This reporter had the pleasure of interviewing Firehall player-coach "Sac" Mutter after the game. Mutter stated that the Pig Pen Farm team was definitely the toughest competition the Firehall team has experienced so far this year. He feels that this game signals a turn-around for the team which should result in a win next Tuesday night against the Frontier Helicopter team.

Aberdeen softball

May 19, on the Mite division (girls) Kohlman Komets defeated T .A. Swift 18-8. Home runs were recorded by Rhonda Woodcock and Melissa Ami. On May 20 the Komets scored a 20-9 victory against Woodline Trophies. Rhonda Woodcock scored another home run. Melissa Ami pitched a good game as did Andrea Little in the bat catcher's position. Komets are tied for second place in the Mite division.

WILD DUNE BUGGIES AT MISSION SUNDAY

The days events will be the second off-road race of the season at Mission Raceway and the action will be underway with the crowd pleasing wheel to wheel racing starting at 9:00 a.m. The wheel to wheel racing includes the wild dune buggies and 4x4's in competition on the motocross course. A number of U.S. cars are expected for this event.

A good turnout of vehicles is also expected for the Sand Drags starting at 1:00 p.m. There should be some tough competition, especially in the comp-modified class with last years point leader Bert Bath, Doug Wells from Kent, Washington and his National Record holding "Red Light Fever" Jeep and local driver Craig Lelland with his newly acquired National Record holding 4.5 second Jeep. Also on hand will be Roger Manson and his wild supercharged Jeep, along with Jerry Lajori and his crowd favorite VW powered sand dragster.

Royals win and come back twice

The Aldergrove Royals slo-pitch team won the Olson's Invitational 24 team tournament in Ferndale, Washington last weekend. And they did it in style.

The Royals won 3 games on Saturday and the first game on Sunday before losing to Pottle's Construction of Ferndale 7-2 in one semi-final. They then beat Moon & Pauls Insurance of Abbotsford 10-6 after trailing 5-1 for 3 innings. The Royals had originally beaten Moon & Pauls in the Saturday 9:00 a.m. eye opener in a slow drizzle. The win moved Aldergrove into the finals against Pottle Construction (again) and earned "the Mooners" third place.

The 2 final games (it was double knockout) were thrilling for what they were and what they were not. The Royals vaunted defense appeared transparent at times and Pottle's offence, which had been impressive, sputtered. In both games, it came down to the seventh inning and, both times, Aldergrove was behind the eight ball.

In the initial championship game, Aldergrove trailed 3-2 in the sixth inning and scored one run to tie 3-3 after 6 innings. In the bottom of the seventh inning with two out and a man on first, Dan Froese hit a hard shot that eluded one of the fielders allowing the winning run to score. On to the final, and, unbelievably, even more histronics.

Aldergrove was visiting team and scored 2 runs in the third inning to take an early lead. Pottle's battled back to score 3 runs in their half of the inning and a 3-2 lead. From there until the seventh inning, both teams played "air-tight" defense and could not place more than two hits together.

In the top of the seventh inning, Aldergrove's fate seemed sealed when the first two batters were out. However, as Yogi Berra said "The game's not over till it's over". Mike Ishirwood singled to left and advanced to third on a single to right by Dan Froese. With two out and two on, Wilf Frank lined a shot inches foul down the left field line. Taking a second called strike, Wilf proved himself equal to the task and rifled the next pitch to right field, scoring the tieing run and advancing Dan Froese to third. Tournaments Most Valuable Player Howard Williams took the first pitch and "roped" it for a double between two outfielders, scoring both runners. The score remained 5-3 on a spectacular double play for the final outs in the bottom of the seventh when Rick Bretet caught a fly ball and threw a strike from 250 feet to second base to nail the Pottle's runner attempting to advance. A fitting finish to a splendid tournament.

Besides Most Valuable Player, Howard Williams, the Royals placed Mike Isherwood and Terry Brett on the All-star team. All four Canadian teams placed 6th or better, a very promising development in an area dominated by American Slo-pitch teams.

The Royals travel to Marysville this weekend, for the "Beer Belly" classic. Come and join them (for fun) on the Memorial day weekend.

Victoria Day races bring bikers and fans out

ALDERGROVE - Victoria day special event at Little Rock Raceway in Jackman Park saw a fair turnout of riders and spectators out to enjoy the days racing and to get a taste of sunburn. Dust was kept to a minimum as two pumps on Sunday afternoon pumped 20,000 gallons of water on the track.

A new jump was built in the last few weeks with an underpass which will be opened up later on in the season. The jump itself is higher than any other jump on the track and became a quick favorite with the riders and spectators alike.

The first moto saw the schoolboys for the first of two 20 minute events. Rob Evans from North Vancouver on a Yamaha took an early lead never to be challenged to win the moto. In the second schoolboy moto, Charly Charlton on a Kawasaki from Aldergrove took the lead right off the start and with a second place finish in the first moto should have won the first overall for the day, and except for an infraction of the rules for which he was penalized three positions, ended up third for the day.

In the Junior race Steven Crevier from Port Coquitlam on a Yamaha took the lead right off the start to finish ahead of second place by a good ten seconds. In the second moto he was once again out front but faded back to fifth on the end which gave him a third over all for the day. Orlando Penner from Abbotsford riding a Honda with a second and third moto finish was second for the day.

The main event, the Senior Expert race, ran two thirty minute motos, the competition had to work their way through traffic to improve their positions, Brent Worrall from Chilliwack on a Kawasaki was out front for most of the moto only to see Rick van Diemen on a Yamaha from Keremeos and Rick Yargeau from Princeton on a Suzuki slip by him in the last few laps. Ron Howell on a Suzuki from Vancouver put in a surprise second place finish and with a fifth in the first moto got third overall for the day, with Yargeau first and van Diemen second. Bob Levy from Aldergrove put in a seventh and fifth for a fifth overall. Local favorite Wally Levy has to lay off for a short time as he was admitted to the hospital last week with a kidney infection.

Tuesday night races are run every week throughout the summer and start at 6 p.m. We will bring you a more complete report on the same in next weeks paper. The next major event at Little Rock Raceway will be the final for the B.C. Championship on June 19th and 20th.

Application for a Water License
Water Act
(Section 8)
I, Mohinder Singh Parmar & Balinder Kaur Parmar of 2110-272nd Street, Aldergrove, B.C. hereby apply to the Comptroller of Water Rights for a license to divert and use water out of Bertrand Creek which flows north and give notice of my application to all persons affected.
The point of diversion will be located at about 900 ft. east of 272nd St. The quantity of water to be diverted or stored is 18 acre-feet per annum. The purpose for which the water will be used is irrigation. The land or mine on which the water will be used is lot 4 of NW ¼, Section 17, twnsp. 13, plan 27681, New Westminster district.
A copy of this application was posted on March 1st, 1982 at the proposed point of diversion or site of the dam and on the land or mine where the water is to be used and two copies were filed in the office of the Water Recorder at New Westminster, B.C.
Objections to this application may be filed with the said Water Recorder or with the Comptroller of Water Rights, Parliament Buildings, Victoria, B.C. within thirty days of the date of the first publication of the application. The date of the first publication is May 19, 1982. 20-96047-2

This money is handled through Gizeh Shrine Temple in Vancouver for hospital units throughout North America.

Money$mart

BY MARIE VAN HAVERE

This week, more on budgeting. A budget is a plan for distributing your income. As with any plan, you must define your objectives or goals. What are your long term money goals? To buy a house? To finance your childrens' education? To plan for retirement? What are your short term goals? To save for a trip? To pay down a mortgage? Only you can decide.

Once you've determined your goals, take a look at where you stand right now financially and compare that with where you would like to be right now or in the future. This is called assessing net worth.

On a sheet of paper, list the value of all the things you own: equity in house, car, jewellry, stocks, bonds, real estate and so on. On another sheet, list the value of what you owe others: mortgage due, car loan, outstanding debts and so on. Compare the two. Hopefully, you have more assets (things you own) than liabilities (what you owe).

Next, take a look at your cash flow. Determine when and how much money is coming in each month. Then, make lists of regular monthly expenses; yearly expenses (home insurance); irregular expenses (dental bills or household repair bills). You'll see that there's a pattern of regular, essential expenses such as rent or mortgage payments, food, transportation and utilities, and insurance premiums.

It's vital to distinguish between essential and non-essential items. Many a budget has foundered because records became more essential than food in someone's mind.

In order to get ahead, you must put money aside for growth. It is not enough just to pay your bills. Your objective is to put money into investments which will pay you as interest, dividends or capital gains. This means that you should pay yourself by investing your growth money right off the top of your budget.

When you've determined how much you must save and spend each month to meet your goals and match them with your income — then you've created a workable budget. Just make sure you've allowed a little "stretch" in your budget for unexpected expenses.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING
"LANGLEY ZONING BY-LAW 1302 AMENDMENT BY-LAW, 1982"
No. 2095

A public hearing will be held in the Municipal Hall Council Chambers at 4914 - 221st Street, Langley, B.C. on May 31st, 1982 at 6:00 p.m.

The purpose of the public hearing is to recieve representations concerning a by-law to amend, By-Law No. 1302 by the incorporation of provisions for Intensive Swine Operations into the Zoning By-law No. 1302. The proposed amendment to By-law No. 1302 is the deletion of the original Section 2 and Schedule "A" - Interpretation, and substituting a new Section 2 which will include the following in addition to those clauses which were in the original Schedule "A":

"Agricultural use
Feeder
Hard Surface
Intensive Swine Operation
Intensive Swine Operation Site
Intensive Swine Structure
Nearest Neighbour
Open Range
Sepcified Non-Agricultural Use
Swine
Weaner
Zone Boundary

The By-law will also be amended as follows:

Subsection (c) of Section 9 - addition of:

Uses - Intensive Swine Operations in RR 1, RR 2, RR 3 and RR 3A zones.

Subsection (h) of Section 12 - deletion of and substitution of the following:

Location of Farm Buildings - a maximum of 50 feet from all property lines, except for Intensive Swine Operations which shall conform to the provisions of Schedule 2.

Subsection (i), (j), (k) and (l) to Section 12 - Addition of:

(i) Nearest neighbour and specified non-agricultural uses shall comply with setbacks specified in Table 1 of Schedule 2 from an existing intensive swine operation site.

(j) Notwithstanding subsection 12 (i), where the nearest neighbour is an existing dwelling unit, it may be altered or extended provided the alteration or extension does not reduce the required distance to an existing intensive swine operation site.

(k) Notwithstanding subsection 12 (i), where there is an Intensive Swine Operation Site which is non-conforming as to setbacks, it shall not preclude the construction of a dwelling unit on a building site as defined under 'nearest neighbour'.

(l) Municipal Boundaries - The provisions of Schedule 2 shall apply irrespective of the Municipal boundaries.

The By-law will, also, be amended by the inclusion of Schedule No. 2 which contains detailed regulations for the location, density, operations, construction, and establishment of intensive swine operations.

Copies of the amendment By-law may be viewed at the Municipal Hall (Clerk's Office) between the hours of 8:30 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday through Friday.

Any persons who deem their interest in property to be affected by this Amendment By-law may attend and be heard.

French art at Fort museum

FORT LANGLEY - The poster 'Chinese Lanterns' by Jules Cheret is one of the pieces on exhibit in the Langley Centennial Museum and National Exhibition Centre's current show Nineteenth Century Vision.

Illustrations for books, the popular press, as well as advertisements created a wide audience for the 19th century artist. As a result, print making was practised as never before in the history of art. Both Cheret and Toulouse-Lautrec became renowned for their decorative posters. Cheret, in fact, was the artist primarily responsible for introducing the color poster to Paris.

He was born in Paris and was apprenticed at the age of thirteen to a lithographer. But the real training for his career in color lithography came during the ten-year period when he worked in a printing shop in London. When he returned to Paris in 1866, he opened a print shop of his own where he designed and issued large, splashy, and tremendously effective posters. They were immediately popular for Cheret was an exceptional colorist as well as a fine draftsman. Moreover, they established a new genre of art which became the vehicle for some of the best color prints of the 19th century, such as the masterpieces of Toulouse-Lautrec.

Additional works by Cheret, Toulouse-Lautrec and other celebrated French artists will be on view at the museum until June 12.

Museum is located at corner of Mavis and King Streets. It is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday to Saturday, and from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday.

"Cabaret de Monte Carlo" planned by Laurel Street

The next event at the Laurel Street Arts Center is "Cabaret De Monte Carlo" our major fundraising event of the year. This gala evening is slated for June 12 with many interesting ways you can attend. One is a wonderful Continental Dinner or take the entertainment, auction, casino package. If you decide on the Continental Dinner here is what you get; Pate Maison (delicious) followed by Shrried Oxtail (You'll want the chef's recipe); then a salad fit for Royalty, fresh spinich topped with zuccinni, mushrooms, bacon bits and topped with a supreme dressing; the fish course, a delicious Salmon Wellington, served with an excellent chilled white wine; then the main course, Prime Rib, Potatoes Paressienne, a delicious selection of melded vegetables that will make your mouth water, served with a mellow french red wine; next dessert, flaming Rhum Babas and to finish your repast, chilled fresh fruit with cheese and of course your favorite liqueur. Now you're ready for the rest of the evening, but if you want to start the evening here you can, arrive at 8 p.m. and you are in for an exciting fun filled adventure. You will have a chance to bid on many wonderful items we have at our Paris Auction, paintings, trips, theatre adventures and many other wonderful products and services. Then you can wander down to the Tiffany Lounge and play Blackjack, Roulette, Crown and Anchor or try your hand at Dave's Dart Game. We have Madame Arcatie to tell you what the "World of Spirits" has in store for you. That's not all... next...the entertainment "Broadway Spectacular", America's finest musical theatre! with Chorus Line, Mame, Annie, Fidler on the Roof, Cabaret and many more with special guest appearances of many famous celebrities. This plans to be an evening filled with fun and excitement and also a way to help the Laurel Street Arts Center raise its operating funds. Call the Center and find out more about "Cabaret De Monte Carlo", or contact members of Abbotsford Little Theatre, Unicorn Theatre or McCallum Players for tickets. Telephone reservations call 852-ARTS (2787) or go to Anderson's Pharmasave, Fraser Valley Inn, The Bookworks, or The Aldergrove Star in Aldergrove.

The Laurel Street Arts Center launches its first "Summer Festival" with the McCallum Player's production of Agatha Christie's " Murder At The Vicarage" opening July 9 playing through July 28 (no performance on Mondays). The second production is presented by Abbotsford Little Theatre. The world famous W.H.S. Smith mellodrama "The Drunkard" adapted by Bro Herod and music by Barry Manilow. This production opens August 13 and plays through August 28 (no performance on Mondays). Both productions will be directed by Bill Green with Evelyn Kingston designing the sets and costumes by Inge Langmann. Fiona Lewis will head the production crew as stage manager.

Rehearsals are well under way for "Murder At The Vicarage", and casting for "The Drunkard" will be announced shortly. Anyone interested in auditioning please call the Arts Center to have your name put on the audition file.

The Summer Festival '82 will give everyone in the area a chance to have something exciting to take relatives and out of town guests to. Tickets will be available soon, but you can make advance reservations now by telephoning the Laurel Street Arts Center now at 852-ARTS (2787). The Arts Center now has VISA so you can charge your tickets to your VISA account.

Information will soon be available for Abbotsford Little Theatre's Main Stage series for 1982-1983. The season will open with Neil Simon's newest comedy hit, I Ought To Be In Pictures", starring Bert Turner, Jean Strueby and Beda Martin. This production will be directed by Bill Green, stage manager Adam Gray, sets by Evelyn Kingston and costumes by Inge Langmann. Make sure you are on our mailing list by telephoning the Laurel Street Arts Center. If you are interested in becoming active in a community theatre group call the Arts Centre, three theatre groups work out of the Center and all have very active programs. Remember June 12 "Cabaret De Monte Carlo" fund raising event," call the Laurel Street Arts Center 852-ARTS (2787) for further information.

VSO presents Beethoven festival

The du Maurier Beethoven Festival with the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra opens May 31 and June 1 at 8 p.m. in the Orpheum with an appearance by pianist David Golub.

The series, which is presented with the assistance of the du Maurier Council for the Performing Arts, has been expanded this year to four concerts with two performances of each in an effort to meet the demand for tickets. Last year's Beethoven Festival was completely sold out.

Golub, who is making his third appearance with the VSO in as many years, will join the orchestra and Maestro Akiyama for a performance of Beethoven's Piano Concerto NO. 4 in G Major, Opus 58. The VSO will play the Namensfeier Overture, Opus 115 and the Symphony No. 4 in B Flat Major, Opus 60.

Golub has established himself as one of today's most exciting young artists through many recital and orchestral appearances.

The American-born pianist began his music studies at the age of 8. In 1968 he entered Juilliard as a student of Beveridge Webster where he earned his bachelor's and master's degrees and won the prestigious Edward Steuermann Piano Prize as well as the Morris M. Loeb Prize.

The programs for the other three du Maurier Beethoven Festival concerts are as follows:

Concert No. 2 featuring violinist Mark Kaplan will take place June 7 and 8 at 8 p.m. Kaplan will perform the Violin Concerto in D Major, Opus 61. The VSO under the direction of Kazuyoshi Akiyama will play the Corolian Overture, Opus 62 and the Symphony No. 8 in F Major, Opus 93.

The third concert of the series, June 14 and 15 at 8 p.m. will feature a performance of Beethoven's Symphony No. 9 in D Minor, Opus 125 (Choral).
Guest artists for this special performance include Heather Thomson, soprano, Janet Stubbs, Mezzo, Mark DuBois, tenor, Pierre Charbonneau, bass, and The Vancouver Bach Choir. The VSO and guest artists will perform under the direction of maestro Akiyama.

Victor Yampolsky will be the guest conductor for the final concert, June 21 and 22 at 8 p.m. Guest artists David Golub, piano, MarkKaplan, violin, and Colin Carr, cello will perform Beethoven's Concerto in C Major for Violin, Cello and Piano, Opus 56 (Triple). The VSO under Yampolsky's direction will play the Prometheus Overture and Symphony No. 6 in F Major, Opus 68 (Pastoral).

Series tickets for the Beethoven Festival are now available at all Vancouver Ticket Centre outlets including Eaton's and Woodward's Single tickets for the first concert only are also now available.

Annie

"Tomorrow, tomorrow..."

It's easy to look back with pleasure on an era that looked forward with hope. "Annie", the Rastar Film version of the hit Broadway musical for Columbia Pictures, is a return to the optimism that characterized America in the 1930s.

People didn't have new clothes. Sometimes they didn't have the rent. They also didn't have nuclear proliferation, an angry Third World, hazardous wastes, or computers. Everything didn't cause cancer.

What they did have was tomorrow.

"Basically, it is a love story," says producer Stark, "between a little girl with nothing but the courage to dream and an adult with everything except someone to share it with. She opens him up to human emotions, and he becomes the father she has been looking for all her young life.

Parasite

It is 1992. A scientist, Dr. Paul Dean (Robert Glaudini), has created a deadly strain of Parasite, meant to be a biological warfare deterrent. In a nightmarish scene in Dean's laboratory, agents of the Merchants, now the country's governing force, demand possession of the scientist's lethal creation for the purpose of 'depopulating" the overcrowding work camps called Suburbs. Horrified, Dean defies their demands and fights them off, but not before an accident causes one of the Parasites to penetrate his stomach. In agony, Dean manages to destroy all but one of the remaining Parasite specimens.

ALBUM REVIEW

Try a Haircut 100

By KURT LANGMANN

This week's album review looks at a wide variety of contemporary music, most of it having little in common among themselves.

Haircut One Hundred, currently all the rage of Britain, have been described as a fully-fledged dance brigade with an abundance of ideas and finesse, and their first Arista album, Pelican West carries their breezy, summery tunes to north America. Their pop tunes are very sophisticated yet very funky; they're a hop, skip and jump into a bright and rosy future. As catchy and lighthearted as music can be, their single, "Love Plus One" b-w "Favorite Shirt", deserves all the success it has won (8).

Dennis Brown's second A&M record, Love Has Found Its Way is a more conservative or tame effort, but there are some fine songs from this young, hard-working reggae singer. The title track is a nice rhythm & blues tinged number which could expose Brown to a new, wider audience. Brown sure does sing with his whole heart (7).

The first album from Arkon, Ohio's The Waitresses on the ZE label is quite a howl, particularly the satiric, "I Know What Boys Like". Their offbeat sense of humor is balanced with some intelligent music, on the album. "Wasn't Tomorrow Wonderful". The band began as an imaginary concept of writer and guitarist, Chris Butler, but public demand soared after an impromptu band participated in a new music compilation album, and Butler put together a six-piece band including the amazing Mars Williams on sax and vocalist Patty Donahue (8).

Mountain Music, from Alabama on the RCA label, is passable. The boys sure harmonize nice and their hearts are in the right place; now if only they could get the lead out of their drawers they could stop putting people to sleep (6).

For the heavy metal fan, there are new albums from Krokus (One Vice At A Time on Arista), Motorhead (Iron Fist on Polydor), Rainbow (Straight Between The Eyes on Polydor), Scorpions (Blackout on Polydor). Killing Joke (Revelations on EG) and the Canadian semi-metal of the Lydia Taylor Band (on Passport) and Trooper (Money Talks on Flicker-RCA).

Krokus appear to revive the spirit of the late Bon Scott with their AC-DC style effort; Motorhead thump and bang through another album - they may be fine live but their albums are a consistent bore. Rainbow are a more radio playlist-oriented affair, and the Scorpions take first place in the grossest album cover art category. Killing Joke are another kettle of fish altogether; their music is awesome and genuinely frightening compared to the former named headbangers, and their arrangements are filled with clever and interesting ideas.

Lydia Taylor possesses a passable, but unremarkable voice, and the same can be said for the band's material. Trooper's album is an ambitious mix of pop, ballads, rock and a fair bit of hard metal, and will go far in reviving their flagging career. With a little of something for anyone, it's a surprisingly enjoyable album that recalls their earlier '70s albums. Ra McGuire's voice has never sounded better or been as capable of so much, and the band is on the same par.

Between The Lines

The dynamic Tina Turner will star in a syndicated situation comedy scheduled for airing next fall. The series will be called Woofer's Supersonic City and revolves around antics in a record shop. The show is geared to a young adult audience.

The latest rumour in the who-will-play-Jim Morrison -in -the -movie-about-the-Doors-saga is that Gregory "Gonzo" Harrison of Trapper John, M.D. fame wants to play the part. Of course no decision has been made as yet and there will no doubt be others vying for the role, but my money is still on John Travolta. Stay tuned!

Simon and Garfunkel will definitely be touring this summer, hooray!, but so far only dates in Europe and Japan have been scheduled.

David Crosby was involved in an automobile accident last month while on his way to join Graham Nash and Stephen Stills to entertain protesters at the San Onofre nuclear power plant in California. Crosby suffered only some cuts and bruises but he was taken to the Orange County Jail where he was booked for driving under the influence of drugs and alcohol as well as carrying a concealed weapon. He was released on $2500.00 bail saying he carried the weapon for protection. Three weeks later he was arrested in Dallas, again on a weapons charge. Crosby maintains that he has carried the gun since the death of John Lennon but some of his associates apparently are claiming he has kept guns around for years. Whichever the case it's pretty foolish.

Emerald
The May Birthstone
by Brian Lee

Since Man first appreciated the beauty of coloured stones, no gem has enraptured the eye with more beauty and an aura of desirability the the emerald. Its rich velvety green colour exerts a magic that is unrivalled by any other gem.

Emerald is a variety of the mineral species Beryl. Other family members of Beryl are aquamarine (blue), golden beryl (yellow), and morganite (pink).

Finest quality emeralds traditionally have come from Columbia, South America, but equally fine qualities now originate from new discoveries in Zambia and Zimbabwe, Africa. The single most important criterion for emerald is the colour. Clarity and cut are also important, but are secondary to colour. From our extensive selection of emeralds, we would be delighted to demonstrate the various qualities available, and explain any questions you might have. Some examples of our emeralds in stock are: A superb 1.28 gem (African) for $4,200; an emerald and 6 diamond cluster for $295; a solitaire emerald in hand-forged 18 k gold for $595 and one of our finest custom pieces, a 1 ct. Columbian emerald with 6 diamonds in hand forged 18K gold for $3,500.

GARDENING IN THE VALLEY

By DON ANSON

If you plant a shrub with very limited amounts of topsoil, there is nothing that will induce that shrub to send down its roots into the subsoil where there is no nourishment. Its roots will remain near the surface.

Conversely, supposing you have poor topsoil but plenty of good stuff buried deep down. The roots will automatically go down deep in order to get this nourishment.

About two years ago, I had a large load of spent mushroom manure delivered and placed fairly close to a vine maple. Two years later, I found that some of the unused pile of manure was chock full of roots from the maple. These roots had come up from below to reach this fine plant food.

This teaches a rather valuable lesson. Mulching alone will draw roots to the surface so it must be accompanied by digging humus forming material deeply into the soil.

Actually there is considerable food in subsoil in the form of chemicals. Without humus, there will be no bacterial action resulting in breakdown of chemicals in a form that can be assimilated by plant life.

In the impoverished have-not countries, people struggle for scraps of food and there is not enough to go around. Millions die every year from malnutrition and it is exactly the same way with plants. If you put all the contents of a seed packet in one spot, the seeds will all germinate and they will all struggle for a very limited supply of nearby food. Not one plant will amount to anything as the whole lot of seedlings will be undernourished.

Lesson to be learned is that all plants must be spaced apart and not crowded. Another lesson is that plants living under poor conditions will naturally become sickly and that there are thousands of pests that go searching for sickly plants. Just as the lion will seek out the weakest prey, so will garden pests seek out the sickly plants or those that have become soft and sappy through too generous overfeeding with nitrogen.

I probably over-emphasize the importance of humus in the soil but I really think that far too many people make too much use of chemical fertilizers.

To improve the structure of sandy, porous soil, you must incorporate plenty of the most easily obtainable organic matter you can obtain. If you have a large area and find it difficult to get enough rotted manure or compost, then the most economical stuff is fir sawdust.

Contrary to common belief, sawdust is an excellent source of humus for the soil, although it is most valuable after it has been used as bedding for animals, because of its power to absorb ammonia. Whenever sawdust is used that is not thoroughly decayed, an application of sulphate of ammonia should be made at the same time. This will provide the nitrogen that the micro-organisms require to reproduce themselves and grow.

If some form of nitrogen is not applied to the sawdust, these bacteria will take nitrogen from the soil to the detriment of plants.

In addition, use of sawdust will tend to make the soil over-acid so lime must be applied to sweeten the soil and release plant foods.

When plants have attained adulthood, they do not suffer so much from being transplanted. When they are seedlings, great care must be taken. All plants suffer a certain amount of shock when they are moved. Even when they are in containers they suffer for a short while from change of location and different climatic conditions. Some plants adapt very quickly to change. Others can take weeks.

Try to do all your transplanting on a dull day but not if the ground is too wet or too dry. Whatever you are transplanting, it must have moisture at its roots and these roots should be spread out and not bunched together.

All plants benefit by the application of some damp peat moss in the planting hole and the addition of an anit-shock solution. This can be any one of dozens on the market but it must be properly diluted according to instructions on the label.

Young transplants can suffer considerably from exposure to sun or wind. For the first two or three days, try to give them some shelter. Old shingles are ideal for this job. Stick them in the ground to the north-east of the plant involved.

Even better is to use bottomless plastic cups or tin cans to provide this protection and to prevent damage by slugs, cutworms and other crawlers.

For those who are trying container gardening for the first time, do remember that all containers tend to dry out very rapidly. You can still provide mulches but daily watering is frequently required in hot weather.

One great advantage of container planting is that they are movable and can be placed exactly where you want them. There is not so much stooping, weeding is far easier and pests are not usually so troublesome.

However crowded your garden is, there is always room for individual plants in pots. Herbs seem to grow best in containers while quite small boxes can provide many crops of vegetables for you. Radishes, lettuce and onions can easily be grown and potatoes do exceptionally well in tubs.

The author will endeavor to answer any questions on the subject of outdoor gardening. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: "Gardens", care of The Star, Box 220, Aldergrove, B0X 1A0. All letters will be answered personally, but some may be answered in this column.

Paperbacks

Night Probe, by Clive Cussler, is a fast-paced, off-beat thriller, a little implausible at times but a good yarn nevertheless. It's 1989 and a young historian (female, sexy and intelligent) discovers evidence of a long-lost treaty between America and Britain. Finding no official records in U.S. archives, Heidi Milligan gives her information to Dirk Pitt, an underwater explorer, who tracks down the 1914 North America Treaty — an agreement which sold Canada to the U.S. In the Canada of 1989, Quebec is at the point of separating, taking with it the James Bay hydro-electric plant and assorted off-shore oil deposits vital to the well-being of America in an energy-starved world. Copies of the treaties, it seems, perished when two diplomats, one British, the other American, died in simultaneous yet apparently unrelated accidents. It's good fun — but why does Cussler place Moose Jaw in Alberta? (Bantam; $3.95)

Pavarotti, My Own Story, by Luciano Pavarotti with William Wright is the life story of the world-renowned tenor. The book describes his childhood in the north-central Italian town of Modena, where he was the centre of attention and adoration of his parents, grandparents and countless other relatives. (Warner; $3.95)

Kurt Andersen's The Real Thing claims to be "the book that separates the men from the boys, the wheat from the chaff, and the bogus from the bona fide." In scotch whisky, for example, Glenlivet is the real thing, while in bourbon, it's Jack Daniel's. As far as Boring American Cities are concerned, Salt Lake City is the real thing. Rebecca's in Acapulco is the real thing in brothels, and Belgium is it when it comes to Boring Countries. (Holt, Rinehart & Winston; $8.75)

Agent Out Of Place by Irving A. Greenfield is the usual, run-of-the-mill, sex-and-violence spy thriller. Groggins had intended to retire and write about his CIA exploits. Then he hears the Agency is hiring and he may be able to get back in. He ends up in the Libyan desert, training with the PLO under the command of a Russian colonel. (Ace; $2.25)

Popular Sunday trail hikes begin

MAPLE RIDGE - If you're looking for a different and interesting way to spend a Sunday afternoon with your friends or family, why not visit the UBC research forest? For fresh air and exercise, there is nothing quite like a walk in the scenic coastal forest. Once again this summer, you can take a two-hour guided tour through the demonstration forest area with a professional forester as your guide. These educational hikes were a great success last year and were enjoyed by all who participated in them.

There is no charge. Bring along your camera and a picnic lunch and make a day of it. The trails are well-constructed and gentle enough for both young and old, but wear good walking shoes. One request: please leave pets at home. Dogs, in particular, disturb deer and other wildlife in the area.

Guides are foresters who have volunteered their services and are pleased to answer questions on such topics as forest ecology, management and plant and animal species. You will find that as the trails wind through a diversity of forest types, your guide will introduce and elaborate on many fascinating topics.

Guided tours start at 2 p.m. - rain or shine - from the research forest gates each Sunday throughout the summer to the Labor Day weekend.

Pop stars join VSO series

American conductor Erich Kunzel, renowned as a pops specialist, will join the Vancouver Symphony Orchestra for the first concert in its Summer Pops Series, Friday, May 28 at 8 p.m.

The Summer Pops is a three concert series featuring some of the best known names in popular music. Conductors Richard Hayman and Mitch Miller have been engaged to conduct the orchestra for the other two concerts.

Kunzel's program, titled a "Pops Spectacular", will feature Big Band sounds of the '20s, '30s and '40s, selections from Annie, Gershwin's Overture To Girl Crazy, Tchaikovsky's 1812 Overture, Elgar's Pomp and Circumstance, Offenbach's Gaite Parisienne and a tribute to the Beatles with such hits as Sgt. Pepper's Lonely Hearts Club Band, I Get By With A Little Help From My Friends, She's Leaving Home and When I'm Sixty Four.

Perhaps more than any other conductor, Erich Kunzel stands at the vanguard of the pops movement today.

Among the soloists with whom he has worked are Ella Fitzgerald, Sarah Vaughan, Roberta Flack, Buddy Rich, Johnny Mathis and the late Duke Ellington.

Kunzel says the key to success has been in avoiding the "elitist image" that many conductors cannot shake. As the resident conductor of the Cincinnati Pops, and active guest conductor, Kunzel says he always aims at involving the audience in his concerts.

"I see my role as a conductor to bring joy to the audience."

The second concert in the series features Richard Hayman conducting the VSO in a program which includes Strauss, Mancini and Simon & Garfunkel music, June 4, 8 p.m.

Mitch Miller will conduct the last concert, June 25, 8 p.m. in a program including Sibelius, Strauss and modern popular songs, including a sing-along.

Series tickets for Summer Pops are available now at all Vancouver Ticket Centre outlets including Eaton's and Woodward's. Single tickets for the first concert with Erich Kunzel are also available.

Stanlszkis guest at L.A.C. meeting

LANGLEY - Joanne Staniszkis was featured as the guest speaker during the recent meeting of the Langley arts council. Besides being a mother and a wife, she also maintains her gallery in Vancouver from which her many unique, colorful and lovely tapestry weavings are born, and is currently an associate professor in charge of design courses with the school of home economics at UBC. It is not a rare request for a client to order a wall hanging which measures up to 70 feet in length of excellent workmanship and design, and indeed, Joanna has expertly created several designs which are displayed in noted buildings across Canada, the United States and Europe.

Earlier this year Staniszkis, who was born in Poland, was chosen by the Canadian Crafts Council and awarded the fifth annual Saidye Bronfman award for excellence in the crafts. In announcing their decision, the jury related that they recognized the strength, the visual impact an the excellent execution of Staniszkis' tapestries. In being identified as an outstanding Canadian craftsman, the council and the Bronfman foundation expect that every effort will be made to show a representative selection of Joanna's works across Canada in the following two to three years.

Many interesting programs are featured following the general meetings of the Langley arts council, which are held on the third Wednesday evening (8:00 p.m.) of each month excepting July and August, in the arts centre at 4899 - 207 Street.

McIlwain sketches on show

By DONNA PION

ALDERGROVE - With all the preparations underway for making Aldergrove Festival Days a success, merchants and townspeople are busy with necessary arrangements for interesting displays and great entertainment. One such impressive display will be held in the library at the Aldergrove Centre mall. Rick McIlwain, freelance photographer and sports editor for the Aldergrove Star, will be having his first showing of pencil sketches done from photographs of local townspeople. Rick, who is a self-taught photographer, readily admits to his love of candid shots of people and wildlife, thus he can capture a reflective mood, an honest feeling, or a remote personality and present it beautifully on paper. As a result of doodling, Rick's pencil portraits began to emerge and be acclaimed by random viewers.

Faces of Aldergrove, which is his collection of works on display, will be of local people he has taken photographs of and pencil sketched into an exquisite 16x20 portrait, full of personal character and appeal.

The showing will be held from June 1-12 during regular library hours. Be sure to take in this fine collection of artistic talent; you may be surprised at whose portrait you will see - one may well be your own!

Roundhouse fashion show enjoyed by many

ALDERGROVE - Family fashions was the theme for the presentation at the Roundhouse Restaurant here last Thursday evening.

A large audience enjoyed viewing the latest in spring fashion from Children's Fashions; Gerry's Menswear, Amber Force Boutique, Tak 'N Tales, The Bonnettry, and a special showing by Inge's Design Studio and a wedding party designed and made by Lucy Newmann.

Clothing shown ranged from the very formal to sporty and casual. The models airstyles were created by Expressions in the Countryside mall. An array of beautiful corsages and the flowers for the wedding party were supplied by Helen Williams Flowers.

Due to circumstances the show organization was turned over to Ainslie Loretto at the last moment and she must be congratulated for the super job she did to make it all happen. The same must be said to the numerous other people who all pulled together to make the evening the total success that it was.

And of course no fashion show would be complete without the models who all did a superb job in showing the fashions at their finest. Thanks to Sidney and Alvin Pickard, Donna Pion, Fiona Pullen, Toni Miller, Amanda Boutier, Anita Vander Spoel, Lummy Bouwknecht, Cheryl Dimen, Sonja Steffen, Jenny Meyer, and the charming children, Kimberly, David, Amanda, Shannon, Adrian and Nicole.

And thanks to Darwin for commenting and entertaining throughout the evening.

Vacation driving tips save energy costs

Saving money on energy costs is usually association with thermostats and furnaces. But with increased road travel in the warm weather, there are substantial savings that can be made by following a few simple steps in operating our cars.

- Observe the speed limit. It can take 22 percent more gas to travel the same distance at 112 kilometres an hour than at 80.
- Keep your tires fully inflated. The drag from soft tires can cost you an extra five percent in gasoline consumption.
- Keep the filters clean. A dirty carburetor air filter can cost you extra gallons in wasted energy.
- Let the engine warm gradually. Don't gun it.
- Don't let the car idle. A minute of idling uses more gas than restarting the motor.
- Leave jack rabbit starts to jack rabbits. They can increase your cas consumption by six percent.
- Use your accelerator gently at all times; allow your car to slow down on hills.

These and other cost saving hints can be found in "Leaving something over," a free booklet available from regional offices of Imperial Oil Limited.

Rock and gem club meets

By ELLEN SPEERS

ALDERGROVE - Fraser Valley Rock and Gem Club held their regular meeting on Friday, May 18 with 34 members and three guests present. The Merrifield Table was a focal point as usual, with an excellent variety of opal, petrified wood, copper, manmade amethyst crystal from Germany and a genuine emerald. the stone for May. The chain making class brought samples of their work as well. They call themselves the chain gang. The stone for June is pearl or moonstone.

Rock talk was given by Dolly Harding who chose to speak on emeralds, a precious stone dating back many thousands of years, when it was thought to have healing powers especially for the eyes. Chemically emerald is beryllium, the coloring agent being chromium. It is found mostly in Brazil, Colombia and the Orient.

Guest speaker for the evening was Isabella Newberry assisted by her husband, Dalton. Her subject was steam casting and she gave a very interesting talk on this very old art, having with her some beautiful silver rings done in this way.

Next meeting on June 11 at 8 p.m. in the OAP hall.
