COURT RULES GLOUCESTER AN OPEN TRIAL

Government goes down for the second round

By RUDY LANGMANN

VANCOUVER - Less than two weeks after Gloucester Properties Ltd. won the first round in B.C. supreme court, when Mr. Justice Alan Macfarlane ruled that the provincial land commission did not have the power to return the controversial Fraser Industrial site to the land freeze pending a final court decision in the matter, the B.C. government again went down for the count.

This time it was Mr. Justice William Trainor who ruled that not only did he concur with his colleague, but also that the government could not avoid a full and open trial.

Gloucester officials have petitioned the supreme court for a declaratory order against the environment and land use committee (ELUC) and against her majesty the queen in right of the province of British Columbia that an order-in-council made October 25 last year is ultra vires.

The order-in-council proclaimed last fall by premier Bill Bennett effectually, although arbitrarily, freezes the famous 641.5 acres of land in the north County Line area although it has been removed from the agricultural land freeze.

In a writ issued by lawyers for Gloucester, the petitioners claim that the land commission's application to return the land to the agricultural freeze is a "sham and abuse of process and part of a conspiracy between certain members of the (provincial) executive council, members of ELUC, and members of the land commission to prevent the petitioners from availing themselves of the rights accorded to them at law by ELUC in allowing Gloucester's appeal." In addition, and concerning the order-in-council, the petitioners claim bad faith by ELUC and the lieutenant- governor- in-council.

Lawyers acting for the company have asked for, and now won, the right to an open trial including pleadings and the usual discovery process.

"In my view (it) is a matter which may not be determined properly unless the petitioners are able to use the full range of procedures available,' Mr. Justice Trainor writes in his reasons for judgment. "I do not believe that the various issues raised can be resolved properly and adequately unless there is a trial in the ordinary way."

This means that the provincial cabinet and its agency, the provincial agricultural land commission, both will have to appear before a supreme court judge to answer to the civilian suit, an action they had been trying to avoid.

Case is expected to come before the court sometime in the fall, presumably in late November.

Good farmland? Yes, if greenhouses on stilts

By IAN CAMERON

ALDERGROVE - Some people say the County Line area north of here is good farmland, or at least good potential farmland. Others say it isn't.

There is the now famous case of the 641½ acres belonging to Gloucester Properties. Everybody in British Columbia knows how this potential industrial site has been used for a football by politicians of every stripe from the lowly local hack right up to the premier of the province. It is now before the supreme court and we can only talk about this subject as the honorable B.C. justices make their rulings.

And then we have the cases of the much smaller developers in the area, such as Bud and Betty Howe.

They run a small nursery operation.

It is small mainly because the Howes can't expand.

Bud and Betty want to build five new greenhouses - they already have three on their property - but they can't. The reason? About 80 percent of their small farm is under water for about 11 months out of the year.

"You can't build greenhouses on stilts," complains Bud.

The Howes have been trying to get somebody, anybody, to do something about their problem. Possibly the developer from whom they bought their land, or else the local government.

Problem is of course that the area, since time immemorial, has been one of highland swamps. Alders, cottonwood, wild berries and skunk cabbage thrive on hundreds of acres north of the freeway and most of this land has never been farmed and likely never will. Terrain is rolling, consisting of large natural pockets, and the thin layer of alluvial soil covering blue clay and hardpan has always been wet. Water is everywhere. Streams take some of this away, but large acreages have never been drained and it will probably be years before a proper drainage system is constructed which will adequately serve the entire area. It will be a costly project, experts say.

Nevertheless, the area is being developed to an extent, and as the bulldozers pull down more trees and disturb more of the shallow top soil, the problem intensifies. The run-off from new roads, the vanished trees and brush, and the inability of the subsoil to soak up the water, combine to worsen the situation as the months and years go by.

But perhaps worst of all, there's no relief in sight. Not, it appears, unless the affected resident owners get together to do something about it.

Pastoral but wet

We walk to the back of the Howe property with Bud and his neighbor, Don Douglas. They have not been exaggerating, the place is a mess. You dare not walk beside the gravel driveway for fear of sinking out of sight. Way in the back there is a small culvert crossing a private lane and the water runs, slowly, oh so slowly, through a newly dug ditch across a field down towards the freeway. A culvert under the four lane highway is two-thirds filled. On the south side a natural watercourse meanders for about half a mile across three or four wilderness lots before another culvert under the freeway takes some of the water back north where the slow moving stream eventually converges with the north arm of the Salmon River.

Town Talk

By RICK McILWAIN and FRANZ LANGMANN

This week's question:

After much squawking by Quebec over the economic advantages and the separatist disadvantages in selecting the F.16 fighter aircraft for the Canadian Armed Forces, the federal government appears to have listened to the experts who will be flying the aircraft, and have selected the F.18 along with the economic advantages to the rest of Canada.

How do you feel about this decision?

How do you think Quebec feels about it?

Don Blount: Since Quebec always seem to get action from the federal government, I thought for sure the F.16 would get picked and I'm surprised. Quebec must learn that they can't have everything handed their way. I think the decision was good although Quebeckers are probably going to be upset.

It's pretty sad when the separatist movement have to fight over a matter of national defense. I'm glad to hear the company shall be spread all over the country, maybe the politicians have made a good decision for once, instead of listening to some other politician from some province talking through his ear with all benefits for that one province only.

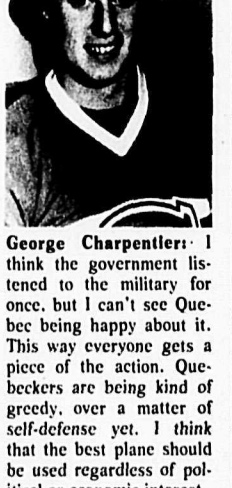
It will have a good effect on the rest of Canada.

Sue Jones: It's about time they got a new aircraft, since the F.100 is now obsolete. If it's to be Canadian constructed and the construction to be spread over the country and yet be done properly, it will be very good. I think that if Quebec got the F.16 it would only fuel the separatist movement. They shouldn't be controlling the whole thing, it should be nation wide.

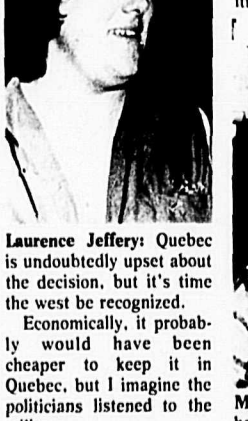
It's time the provinces stopped looking after their own interests so much and took more interest in the good of the whole nation.

You know, if a province separated and a war broke out, they wouldn't fight wholeheartedly as Quebec showed during W.W. II. Quebec and Alberta are showing that Canada needs to band closer together.

Canadians need to be more proud of their country. There's too much bickering amongst the government, and what kind of example is this for the people to follow; how can the people unify with such leadership? We need a strong government and we need it now.

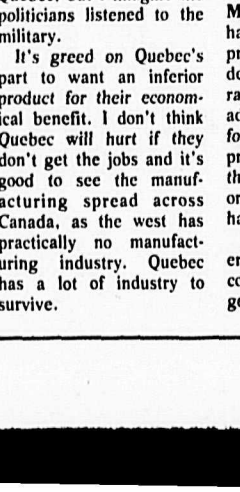


George Charpentier: I think the government listened to the military for once, but I can't see Quebec being happy about it. This way everyone gets a piece of the action. Quebeckers are being kind of greedy, over a matter of self-defense yet. I think that the best plane should be used regardless of political or economic interest.



Manny Traverzo: Whoever has the tool for the right price, for the right job, deserves to get the contract, whether it be Canada, U.S.A. or Germany for that matter. This is the primary concern, and nothing political, emotional or what have you should have any impact.

Whoever has the superior product for the most competitive price should get the job.



Laurence Jeffery: Quebec is undoubtedly upset about the decision, but it's time the west be recognized.

Economically, it probably would have been cheaper to keep it in Quebec, but I imagine the politicians listened to the military.

It's greed on Quebec's part to want an inferior product for their economical benefit. I don't think Quebec will hurt if they don't get the jobs and it's good to see the manufacturing spread across Canada, as the west has practically no manufacturing industry. Quebec has a lot of industry to survive.

Councilors reverse auditor appointment

MURRAYVILLE - Municipality of Langley has its old auditors back.

Councilors here voted Monday afternoon by a close show of hands to rehire the Vancouver firm of Campbell Sharp to look after their books for the 1980-81 financial year.

But it was not without strongly voiced objections from Mayor George Preston.

Three months ago a furore was created in council when aldermen decided that Preston had quietly slipped in an appointment for new auditors. When committees and individual appointments were made shortly after the new council took over last November, Preston had the Langley firm of Piskorik, Baker & Zacher ready to take over from Campell Sharp.

The latter, who have been preparing the financial year end statements for the municipality for 30 years, were not overly happy. They complained to the provincial department of municipal affairs that they had been dismissed without cause, since they had only last year begun a three-year reappointment with the township.

Preston indicated at the time that he did not feel bound by a contract made by an earlier council.

At stake for the accountants was a $25,000 yearly account, and according to Ald. Elford Nundal the switch would cost the municiplaity an additional $50,000 by the Chamber about to fold?

ALDERGROVE - Officials of the local chamber of commerce have for some time been complaining about the seemingly small interest in the merchants' association being shown by local retailers.

President Don MacTavish this week voiced this gripe to the monthly meeting of the chamber, a small gathering of business people mainly representing local service industries.

"Where are the ..... and where are the .....?" MacTavish asked, naming a couple of Aldergrove retail merchants.

MacTavish said he personally would visit local businesses in an effort to convince the owners to play an active role in the chamber.

"If at the next meeting you don't have a better representation then you can take your chamber and forget it," MacTavish said.

Less than 20 people were present at the dinner meeting held in a local restaurant Monday night.

Pilot in hospital

GLEN VALLEY - Friday afternoon a light plane crashed into a field east of 264 Street and off River Road here.

At 5:03 Langley RCMP detachment received a call informing of the crash.

A Cessna 172 piloted by James Gordon Young of Mission hit the power lines and went down within 100 feet of the road.

Young, the sole occupant of the plane, was taken to Royal Columbian hospital in New Westminster with lacerations and a broken leg. He was reported in stable condition.

Ministry of transport investigators were later on the scene conducting an investigation. B.C. Hydro crews were also busy restoring power to the homes in the area.

PRESTON'LL TELL 'EM

It's expensive to operate arena

MURRAYVILLE - Councilmen here struck a compromise Monday afternoon when they decided that people and groups who use the two Langley arenas would get the opportunity for voicing their opinions at a public information meeting immediately prior to a joint city-municipal council meeting at which it is expected the city fathers will drastically increase the arena user fees.

It is expected that quite a few Aldergrove and Langley citizens will have plenty to say about the rate increase.

Mayor George Preston said they should have this opportunity to tell council "what they think of us."

Preston seemed confident, however, that he would be able to keep on top of the situation.

"We will let them know how expensive it is to run a thing (arena) like that," he said. "We will give them a little lesson on economy and management. There are very few things that go down in price today."

Ald. Bill Blair said that while it was recognized that an arena would never totally pay its own way, it was important that the subsidies be kept to a minimum. "The more the young people get for free today, the less they appreciate it," he said.

Blair said he was against having the public present at the scheduled joint meeting because it would prevent "both sided from letting their hair down and speak in a constructive manner.

"It would completely undermine the discussions," he added.

Preston said presidents of local hockey, ringette and figure skating organizations were very unhappy with the recent rumors of a fee increase and that they had attempted to arrange a meeting with the two Langley mayors and with the local member of parliament and member of the legislative assembly present, in order to voice their concern.

Council will invite the public to a meeting just prior to their joint meeting on Tuesday, April 29.

The public meeting will get under way at 7 o'clock with the councils meeting between themselves two hours later. It will likely be in the Brookswood civic arena. Previous written submissions will be asked from the delegates.

We get nothing, says resident

water, and as a consequence Bud and Betty's property doesn't dry up until mid-July - and that only if we have a dry summer.

But the Howes only share this problem with numerous other County Line residents.

A number of five and 10 acre lots were subdivided in the years of 1910 to 1912 and the Howe property is one of these.

Drainage ditches do exist, but a great number of these lead nowhere. Water is stagnant on cleared lands and in ineffectual municipal ditches.

Bud says he has been after Langley township to do something to alleviate the situation ever since he bought the land seven years ago. Recently he met with municipal engineer Doug Kenyon who told him that a possible solution would be to shorten the drainage system by cutting through a knoll on the north side of the freeway, bypassing the highway crossings. He suggested the residents make a presentation to council asking support for an application to the B.C. highways department since it would involve rerouting of a stream on provincial right-of-way.

It would, however, be a costly project, Kenyon last week told The Star, since it would involve ditch excavation to a depth of about 25 feet and subsequent tiling. But it might work, he said.

Kenyon agreed that the entire area is a trouble spot in the municipality, but he added that the district hasn't got the funds to carry out a proper drainage scheme at north County Line.

Such a scheme, with owner participation, was proposed a few years ago, but turned down when the residents found their cost sharing in the project to be too much of a financial burden. At the time it would have cost the Howes an estimated $1,295 annually to reclaim their land.

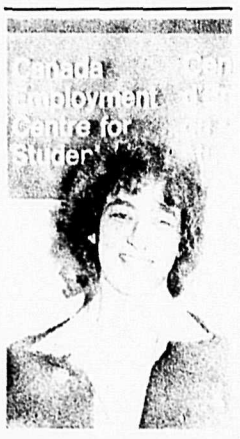
Bud thinks the municipality should bear the entire cost of the project, since, as he says, "only five percent of our tax monies are spent here. We have no (domestic) water, no sewers, no sidewalks, no street lighting. We get absolutely nothing."

That's tough, respond municipal officials. Tax money is spent wholly on the upkeep of existing services, and since they have no existing services in the north eastern portion of the municipality there is nothing to keep up, hence no money to spend.

Kenyon agrees that the entire area is poorly drained, but adds that there is nothing his department can do.

Asked if the possible development of the Fraser Industrial Park lands to the east of the Howes would solve drainage problems in the area, Kenyon says that it would, since this development would require an extensive drainage system leading surface waters into the streams of the County Line community, mainly the West Creek.

But until something is done, the Howes and their neighbors won't be able to develop their small agricultural industries.



LANGLEY - Barbara Krell is the new officer in charge of the Student Employment Centre here. Office, which serves Aldergrove as well as Langley, reopened for business last week. It is located in Sundel Square within the Canada Employment Centre.

Purpose of the federal funded program is to find summer jobs for high school and university students.

The office is now busy preparing for summer, says Krell. Some students have already registered and are actively job hunting for summer employment.

Students can "keep your books, answer your phones, paint your fence, wait on your tables, type your correspondence, move your office, count your inventory, mow your lawn, or do just about anything," Krell says with enthusiasm. "For any job, big or small, for three hours or three months, students will be available.

Office is open for registration Monday through Friday from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. It can be contacted by phoning 533-1201.

extra involvement by municipal staff until such time as the new auditors had become familiar with all of the ropes. "Piskorik will be learning at our expense," he said.

Preston criticized statements made in a letter to council from deputy inspector of municiplities J. P. Taylor, who had suggested council reappoint Campbell Sharp. "I am very disappointed," Preston said.

Ald. Bill Blair said he agreed with Nundal that it would cost the municipality plenty to switch auditors. "Our senior personnel would be going to give up quite a bit of their time," he stated.

Ald. Ian Strachan said he had asked John Piskorik if the company had any municipal experience and had been told, no. This was in conflict with an earlier statement by the mayor, he said.

Preston responded to this by saying that from simple lack of municipal experience it would be irresponsible for councilmen to say that this meant the Langley company wasn't qualified for the job. He said his reason for the change was to get local people employed in the district.

A first motion to uphold the appopointment of Piskorik was defeated 3 to 3, and when a second motion was proposed to reinstate Campbell Sharp, Preston charged the mover was out of order. It was nevertheless seconded and approved by a 4 to 3 vote of council.

"LVA was very prepared when they came to the meeting today," Preston later complained.

"The appointment (of Piskorick, Baker & Zacher) was done in a shoddy way," shot back Nundal.

"I am very unhappy, and I think the municipality is going to react to this as well," Preston said.

Ald. Don MacTavish, who had voted with Strachan, Nundal and Blair to reappoint the former auditors, later said he couldn't understand why the mayor had lumped him in with the Langley Voters Association.

Grocer held at gun point

ALDERGROVE - A local grocery store operator was held at gun point last Thursday night and robbed of an amount of cash.

Five minutes after ten a lone male entered the OK Corrall on Fraser Highway, displaying a hand gun.

Robber was wearing a motorcycle helmet, a leather jacket, and grey slacks. He was described as being in his early twenties, approximately 5'8" tall.

RCMP are investigating.

Trustees consider pool participation

ALDERGROVE - Chairman of the Langley pool promotion committee Alan Major last week appealed to the local school trustees for input and was promised by board chairman Dave Bahr that the trustees would "consider and come back to the committee in a very short time."

Major said his committee needed answers to three important items: whether it was necessary to locate the proposed indoor pool next to a school, what was available in the way of provincial financing through the department of education, and what percentage of use the school board planned to make of the facility.

He said the committee would "appreciate a more active role" on the part of the school district.

Major also asked if there was any point in considering a site for the project next to a Langley school.

In connection with the 1978 pool referendum, Major said, "the board saw fit to support (it), although they came in at a late date."

Langley citizens turned down the 1978 pool proposal with an overwhelming majority.

Council get second petition

MURRAYVILLE - Recently councilors here received a petition from residents in the North Otter Salmon River uplands demanding that there be no further subdivisions allowed in the area.

This week a petition reached council speaking for the opposite point of view.

Two weeks ago councilmen felt themselves pressured into a position of reversing an earlier decision, reverting the Salmon River uplands area zoning regulations from one acre minimum to two acre plus designation.

Zoning regulations were loosened by council last August.

Ten petitioners wrote that "a number of residents in this area who cannot or prefer not to put their properties to agricultural use were finally removed from the two acre plus restriction. Some of us have waited for more than 10 years for the opportunity to subdivide. Furthermore, we do not understand why the residents who petitioned the council in March wish to obstruct those of us who may someday wish to subdivide to one acre properties. One acre subdivision potential will not threaten their life style by leading to high density housing. Much of this area may soon be released from the agricultural land reserve and we now petition you to uphold the earlier revision to one acre zoning and permit those who wish to subdivide to do so."

Another resident of the area has written council suggesting a further reduction of the minimum lot size to quarter acre, at the same time expressing concern about services in the neighborhood.

Letters were referred by council to the planning department for consideration.

Ladies of the Canadian Cancer Society held an information drive at Aldergrove mall Saturday. Milly Chorney, volunteer, Better Cox, president of Langley Cancer Society and Rita Ford manned the tables Saturday. Rita will be starting a door to door campaign Apr. 14 to 24 for donations and is also looking for volunteers for the Society. If you can give of your time call Rita at 856-2906.

Maybe not this year, says MacTavish

ALDERGROVE - Chamber of commerce president Don MacTavish told a small group of businessmen and women here this week that he had met with provincial highways department officials twice recently to discuss a possible restoration project for the Fraser Highway from Bellingham Highway to Station Road.

"Maybe not this year," MacTavish said, "but maybe next year."

MacTavish also said municipal department heads from Murrayville had met with their colleagues from Matsqui in order to discuss the development of urban Aldergrove east of 276 Street.

These meetings were still being carried on, he said.

Lack of sewage facilities just east of the Langley-Matsqui border has been a stumbling block in the development of this area. A few years ago an attempt was made to have the two neighboring municipalities cooperate on a sewage disposal program, but it failed when the two councils couldn't reach an agreement.

Preston fighting for the little man

MURRAYVILLE - Provincial health department was taken to task Monday afternoon when Mayor George Preston came out fighting for the little man in confrontation with big government.

"If there is any humanity left in government, let's do something," Preston told a local health department official.

The mayor sharply criticized the department, taking his stand on the side of five Fraser Highway property owners who have run afoul with the department after their small sewage treatment plant started malfunctioning.

Health officials have suggested that a 3,000 gallon sewage holding tank be installed on one of the properties to stop untreated effluent from entering a roadside ditch. This tank would have to be emptied every second day, at a cost of somewhere between $60 and $100.

"Can you afford that in your own lifestyle?" Preston asked of the health inspector. "It is so easy to spend other people's money."

The health official responded by saying that the tank would only be a temporary thing, since the system itself could be repaired for about $10,000 and an expected lifetime of about five years.

"You, the (government) people of B.C. have the responsibility," Preston charged. "You will have to bail five people out of this terrible, archaic situation they're in. We cannot destroy five families."

In no way could the five property owners afford to pay the costs indicated, on top of current interest rates, Preston claimed.

Ald. Ian Strachan expalined that what initially went wrong with the Griffiths private septic disposal system west of 240 Street on Fraser Highway was that "someone wanted to subdivide" and was allowed to do so. As soon as the houses were built on the rather small lots, they were sold, and the developer no longer cared about the upkeep of the sewage treatment system.

The only alderman clearly not sharing the mayor's point of view was Ald. Stan Fraser. "Why not tell the guy (Griffiths) to fix the system?" he asked.

Although he felt sympathy for the lot owners, Fraser said, he could not see that the responsibility for maintaining a proper working system could rest with anyone other than the owners themselves.

When it was implied by Ald. Elford Nundal that the health department had been remiss in approving a system that didn't work, the official answered that with two-and-a-half inspectors on staff in Langley "sooner or later something is going to happen."

Preston said the municipality would appeal to the provincial government for financial assistance to help the five property owners get their disposal system back into working condition.

Fire destroys business

LANGLEY - One hundred fifty thousand dollar loss was reported after a fire at J. & J. Woodworking, 23875 Fraser Highway, early Monday morning.

Fire broke out at 1:23 a.m. and firefighters from zones 6 and 7 answered the call. Later they were backed up by tankers from zone 3. An estimated 300,000 lbs. of water were trucked to the site to fight the blaze.

Main building and equipment contained were destroyed but most of the lumber stock was saved.

Cause of the fire is still under police investigation, and arson has not been ruled out by press time.

Council give first readings

MURRAYVILLE - Council here gave first three readings to their annual budget bylaw this week.

A meeting will be held on May 5 at which time the 1980 budget will be ratified by council.

Bell applauded for statement

PETERSON ROAD - They won some and they lost some.

School board's more right wing faction brought down to defeat a series of motions promoted by new trustees Dave Bahr, Donna Rantamaa and Rev. John Rhoad Tuesday night, but when Bahr sided with trustee Dave Bell on a motion dealing with zero base budgeting the other four trustees insured its passing.

Motion was that the board maintain existing scope of zero base budgeting process in the district and not extend process to the schools for 1981.

Another motion to limit cross boundary permits for students to "special circumstances only" was defeated by a 3-3 vote, much to the obvious delight of a small group of parents present at the board meeting.

Trustee Bell was applauded after he argued that parents right to a choice in selecting school for their children was a fundamental right.

"If people don't like thier lawyer or they don't like their doctor, they switch," the lawyer-trustee said.

A parent agreed, saying that a move to pull a majority of students out of a particular school would ensure that administrators took notice that there was something wrong, that parents weren't happy.

RCMP continue to deal with rash of thefts

ALDERGROVE - RCMP officers are continuing to deal with a rash of thefts reported in this area.

Last Monday a stereo cassette, an antique heater and a set of chains were stolen from a camper parked in a back yard at 249 Street and 54 Avenue.

A breaking and possible entering was reported the same day from a resident at 246 Street and 21B Avenue. A window was broken but nothing was taken from the residence.

An antique steamer trunk was removed from a home at 244 Street and 41 Avenue. It had been placed by the owner on the porch and was of limited value.

Tuesday a vehicle license plate was reported stolen from a car parked at 271 Street and Fraser Highway.

A bike worth $60 was stolen at 264 Street and 39 Avenue. It was a red Spider boy's bike.

An attempted breaking and entering was discovered at about 8 p.m. the same day at 252 Street and 68 Avenue. Two young males fled in a car when they heard someone inside the house.

Another attempted breaking and entering occurred Wednesday at 275 Street and 32 Avenue. The burglars removed screws from the windows, then tried opening the doors with a wrench, and finally attempted to gain entry by cutting the windows with a glass cutter.

Vandalism and theft were reported to the Langley RCMP Thrusday by a resident at 264 Street and 72 Avenue. The homeowner reported that he had suffered damage to property as well as items going missing.

Breaking, entering and theft took place at a residence on Springfield Crescent the same night. Entry was gained by the breaking of a window. About $60 in cash was taken.

Saturday night thieves gained entry to Quiring's on Fraser Highway through a broken window. Stolen were a brown 1977 Honda, cassettes, and a watch.

A brown Raleigh boy's bike valued at $100 was stolen the same night from 268 Street and 33 Avenue.

A total of 87 complaints were attended to during the past week by Aldergrove members of the RCMP detachment. These included motor vehicle accidents, infractions, and family disputes.

Preferential hiring suggested

PETERSON ROAD - Preferential hiring should be extended to 23 unemployed school teachers from the dying city of Ocean Falls, Langley teachers association president Terry Eastman suggested at a school board meeting held at the elementary school here last Tuesday night.

Trustee Peter Fassbender responded to the request by saying that hiring of new teaching staff was dealt with at the administrative level and suggested Eastman direct his plea to superintendent Dr. Len Sampson. Hiring of teachers was being done now in Langley, he added.

Another trustee, Dave Bell, did not agree with Eastman's proposal. Human rights would be violated by giving preferential treatment to any specific group, he said.

Eastman told the board that it was unique that an entire town was closed down.

Ocean Falls, which was dying already in the early 1970s but received a reprieve when the company mill town was bought by the NDP government in 1973, received the death blow when the present Social Credit government recently decided to end subsidization of the mill by closing it down.

The town became a ghost town overnight as mill workers, trades people and professionals lost their jobs.

Parachute claims life

MATSQUI - A 24-year-old Vancouver woman died last week as a result of a malfunctioning parachute at the parachute club on Gladwin Road.

Police on the lookout for bottle breakers

ALDERGROVE - Speeding motorcycles were reported to police last Monday night, but patrols failed to locate the law breakers.

An Aldergrove resident had his vehicle damaged in the amount of $200 at Coghlan Road and Zero Avenue. Richard Peters ditched his car in order to avoid a collision with another vehicle, police report.

RCMP are also on the lookout for drag racing youngsters who squeal their tires and break bottles in the vicinity of 260 Street and 28 Avenue. Occurrence is said to repeat itself every day at noon.

A two car accident on Friday at 264 Street and 56 Avenue resulted in $1,000 worth of damage, distributed evenly between the two vehicles involved. Police report a car driven by K. Goerzen of Aldergrove struck the rear of one driven by Muriel Moffat of Vancouver. No charges have been laid.

In a side swipe accident Saturday at 256 Street and Fraser Highway two cars suffered damage estimated at $1,600. The incident involved Eleanor Thompson of Aldergrove who was going east on Fraser Highway, and Richard Laklan of Langley who was travelling in the opposite direction.

Erratic driving was reported later at 272 Street and 29 Avenue. Vehicle was not located by police.

A single car accident on 264 Street at the hill leading to Glen Valley resulted in $3,000 worth of damage to a car driven by Daryl Dawson of Aldergrove. The car was southbound at the time.

Three youths arrested and charged with theft

CLEARBROOK - During the week of April 8, to 14, the uniformed patrol members of Matsqui police were busy investigating the following occurrences.

Six persons had their driving privileges suspended for a 24 hour period, pursuant to section 203 of the motor vehicle act.

One man was charged with driving while he was suspended.

Three adults were arrested for being in a state of intoxication in a public place. The adults were released when they were sober.

Four persons were charged with impaired driving and driving with a blood alcohol content over .08 percent.

Several charges and numerous seizures of liquor were made under the liquor control and licensing act.

Three stolen autos were recovered at various points in the municipality.

Two men and one woman were charged with breaking and entering, possession of stolen property, fraud, and possession of house breaking tools.

Three youths were arrested and charged with theft as a result of separate incidents.

Two youths were arrested and charged with trespassing and mischief.

A Matsqui man was seriously injured as a result of a two car motor vehicle accident at Clearbrook and Huntington roads.

In all the uniformed patrol division answered 239 individual complaints, concerning the investigation of criminal code offences as well as B.C. statutes and local bylaw offences, in addition to civil and family disputes and the enforcement of traffic laws.

Vandalism reported

PATRICIA - Vandalism has been reported at the elementary school here.

Police say a picnic table on the school grounds was destroyed by unknown persons last weekend.

You wouldn't do that, now would you, Dave?

We hear that our old friend, B.C. opposition leader Dave Barrett, is at it again.

Last week he was telling his arch foe, premier Bill Bennett, through the media of the radio waves, to use his powers to return the 642½ Gloucester Properties acres to the agricultural land reserve. He says Bennett could do this by another order-in-council.

Is Barrett really sincere? Or doesn't he perhaps know what goes on in the world outside of the B.C. legislature? Doesn't he know that Gloucester Properties Ltd. is presently suing her majesty the queen in right of the province of British Columbia?

Ah, yes, he must know, because he says an order-in-council by Bennett would save the petitioners (Gloucester) from any further court costs.

How considerate!

But Dave apparently hasn't read the two reasons for judgment made so far in the celebrated case, one by Mr. Justice Alan Macfarlane and the other by his colleague Mr. Justice William Trainor. They both happen to rule in favor of the company.

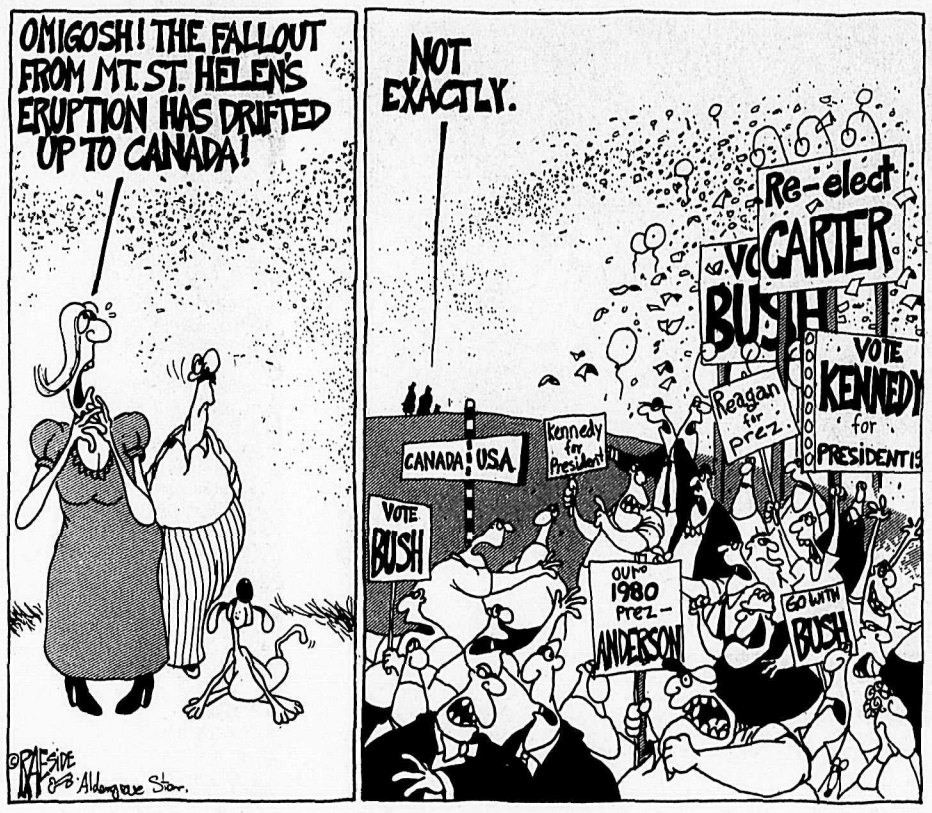
Or is that perhaps the reason he is urging Bennett on? Because her majesty and the provincial land commission appear to have lost their case, and the land indeed might remain outside the freeze, the way the government's own environmental land use committee originally ruled last July?

So Dave, and his motley band of "city farmers", instant environmentalists and political opportunists have lost their crusade and an industrial centre will shoot up on the "excellent" farm land in Aldergrove.

It could, of course, also be for a different purpose. To make Bennett commit yet another faux pas by arbitrarily making a second dictatorial ruling. Even during a period when a group of citizens' complaint is being heard and considered by the highest court in the province.

There are numerous possibilities. Perhaps an NDP government itself would act in such a high handed and dictatorial manner. Who knows?

Really, Dave Barrett, can't you do any better than that? Disappointing.



Taxpayers burden

Let it not be said that political pressure does no good, for this week, the provincial government, after letting school boards and municipal authorities worry for weeks about the shifting of even more fiscal responsibilities for schools onto taxpayers, has let it be known things won't be as tough as expected.

It is an old ploy, but probably still effective. A government throws out a red herring, telling the people they are to be hit with heavier taxes. Then, with all the aplomb of wise men bearing gifts, the government says, "Rest easy folks, we won't be quite as tough as you thought, and aren't we great?"

W.A.C. Bennett was the modern day innovator of that idea when he introduced homeowners grants. Each year, the government postures as a great Samaritan by announcing increased "payments" in the form of homeowner "grants".

There is no grant, and never has been. Taxes have continually gone up, as have the taxpayers' share of the school burden. -Fernie Free Press

Better hometown than none at all

By STEPHEN KAWAMOTO

You mention Aldergrove to an out-of-towner and he might just reply, "Where?" And when you bother to point out to him where Aldergrove is - in the country - he'll just walk away, stifling a yawn. About the only time this town is noticed, though that's not too often, is when the Bradner flower show and the annual fall fair come and go.

All the truckers know the Lugano Inn. The vegetarians have already found their Mecca at the health food store a few doors up. Across the street, you can see the burnt-out shell of the old Buckerfield's. Don't worry, because the management has moved into the old Super-Valu building. The new Super-Valu is in the Aldergrove mall right across the street.

Besides the supermarket in the mall, inside there's a funiture store, a dress shop, a fabric store, a T-shirt shop, three eatery places, a record store, shoe store, book store, Stedmans, a hobby and crafts boutique, an optician, drugstore, and the library. Upstairs, we have the various assortment of legal, medical and personal services like dentists and lawyers and the ministry of human resources.

All along the main street of Aldergrove, there are buildings housing various kinds of businesses. Starting from the west end of town, we have Speedie's, Fox & Hounds, lots of houses and townhouses, a tire store, the Legion building, a flower shop, an antique store, a trailer park, a gas station, a restaurant, Aldergrove elementary, and way out into the distance: Parkside Centennial elementary school. Then, as you get closer and closer to the centre of town, you'll notice how close each business is to each other. On the other side of the lights, it's the same thing but with other different stores.

This is Aldergrove, an active, growing business community. On the other side of the coin is something just as vital as commerce itself. It's the people, the very heart of this ever-expanding community known as Aldergrove. Without them this town might have gone the way of Port Essington and the few ghost towns of yesteryear. Instead, Aldergrove has been slowly growing in population over the last 15 years. There is no chance of it dying, yet.

Even so, even with the gradual influx of people, there comes the usual problems of a town changing from rural to suburban. Crime, surprisingly, has been more a nuisance than a real threat but it is enough to warrant the assignment of at least three patrol units. Poverty appears pretty well hidden. At least, there are no beggars on the streets. Still, the local young people complain about there being more old people than young. Ask one teenage girl about Aldergrove and she'll probably remark, "Oh, it's dead!"

It's interesting to note the various community activities for pensioners in town. And yet, it's equally surprising to note that there are no adequate facilities for youngsters. Or rather, that there is no adequate youth leadership. Or, is is that there is no adequate community response from the kids? If Aldergrove is dead as far as a handful of kids are concerned, then some community spirit must be revived to show those kids how vitally aware we are of youth.

But often, the painful reminders come. Of broken glass and lawns bare of grass, of stereos on too loud, of tires screeching. This is youth? These are tomorrow's work force? Ask the village elders, all the while shaking their heads sadly. This is where adult guidance must come in. And if it is rudely shoved aside to make way for something else to fill the void, it must appear more palatable than drug or booze or sex. Material things are more on the mind of youth, much like the dog-eared teddybear of toddler days. Spritual things are invisible. Hence, to youth they hardly seem to be of value.

What is of value, then? Cars, clothes, combs, and a colored world. Something new to show off, something old to shock. Like a mighty peacock come a-strutting our youth. And when their parents pluck out a few tail-feathers, they learn to show off in the dark.

Though, in time, attitudes will change the village elders still shake their heads. Youth may slowly come to change its mind, to become young adults, and then adults. But, the attitude of their elders remains the standard. It is slow to change, yet quick to compain and condescend. In spite of that, they mean well.

So, Aldergrove is not dead: It just looks that way. And looks, like the covers of books, are sometimes deceiving. Maybe to the city slicker, Aldergrove might be dead; but not to those persons who care. To them, this is home. And when they come back from their weekly visit to the city, they realize it's better to have a hometown than none at all.

Impossible dream comes true

B W. ROGER WORTH

"Either we mobilize the people's savings in our regions and for ourselves or those regions will forever remain underdeveloped and economically weak."

Those words written by Jacques Gagnon in the early 1970s were the underlying basis of what many considered one man's impossible dream, a simple method to involve people directly in the health and vitality of their local economy.

Bankers, financial institutions and the big business leaders laughed when Gagnon set up an organization called the Caisses d'Entraide Economique in the small Quebec town of Alma in 1960.

The aim of the organization: to foster job creation by funneling community savings into local and regional small and medium-sized businesses rather than having the funds invested through the major financial institutions in projects and developments far from home.

Gagnon died recently, but he left an organization that boasts more than $1.3 billion in assets, most of it invested in 68 local Quebec communities.

The bankers and financiers no longer laugh at Gagnon's "impossible dream".The dream has come true.

The 328,000 Quebecers investing their hard-earned money in Gagnon's brain-child know the people borrowing the funds. It's the local hardware merchant who wants to expand, the owner of a machine shop borrowing money to buy new equipment, and the person with a new business idea that requires financing.

A key element in Gagnon's success: the borrowers are generally neighbors and employers.

The Canadian Federation of Independent Business, for example, estimates a majority of its 7,200 Quebec members have received support from the Caisses d'Entraide.

The remarkable experience of the Caisses d'Entraide is not well known in Canada, which is too bad.

Jacques Gagnon has almost single handedly and irrevocably dispelled the age-old argument that Canadians are too conservative, prepared to invest only in bonds and blue chip stocks. Gagnon has proved that, given the right investment vehicle and conditions, it is still possible to involve people in what amounts to a self-help project.

Following Gagnon's death, a foundation was established to research and find ways to help the small and medium-sized business sector, which is good news indeed. Gagnon will not be forgotten.

Tracking the Susquatch

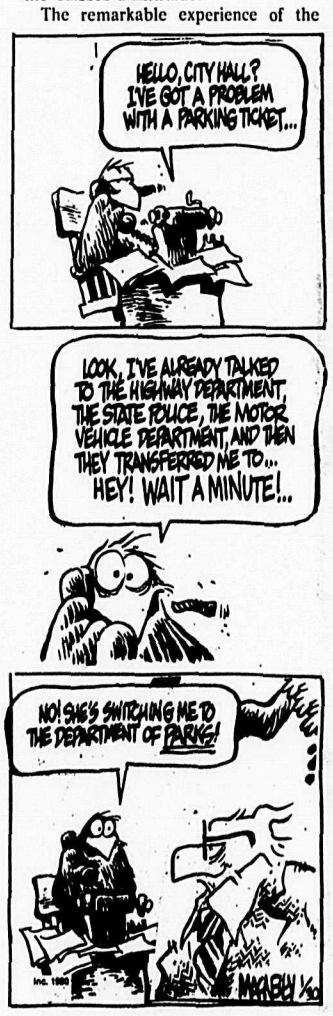
Persons interested in the Sasquatch may also be interested in a story that appears in a Grade 7 reader titled Accent on Reading. The story is called Canadian Ghosts from Coast to Coast and was written by Paul Brock. The following is an excerpt from that story.

"Not too far away from Nahanni, in the Rocky Mountain range of British Columbia (Ed. note: The Nahanni Valley is in the Northwest Territories), the ghost of the Susquatch (sic) walk. These are naked hairy giants about eight feet tall who seem to be able to walk through solid rock and dense forest with no trouble at all. They have developed an unsociable habit of heaving large rocks at hunters and fishermen. Anyone living within 50 miles of the Harrison Hot Springs Mission (sic) area in the Rockies is familiar with the dozens of spine-chilling legends involving the ghostly Susquatch.

In 1935 several were seen by Indians within a hundred miles of Vancouver. A 12-year-old girl was kidnapped by the king-size spooks and forced to live with them for a year inside a mountain cave.

She described them afterwards as "gentle ghosts" and said they fed her well, clothed her with skins, and nursed her when she was sick. Finally, they decided she would be happier with her own kind. After blindfolding her, they carried her down the mountainside and left her at the side of a highway leading to Vancouver."

Lest anyone think the book was published in the U.S. or put together Back East, the Editor was G.M. Chronister, B.C., M.Ed., D.Ed., Director of Graduate Studies, Faculty of Education, University of British Columbia. -Agassiz Advance



LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

If only the owners would control dogs

Editor, The Star, Sir,

It was definitely dogs that attacked three young calves at our place on April 1.

The neighbors heard a lot of barking and came over to investigate. They found three large dogs, a doberman pincher, and two cross type lab-shepherds had chased the three month old calves, biting their hind quarters and tails and chased them into a small pond, with only their heads sticking out of the water.

It was four hours after rescuing them that one was able to stand up, the other was unable to stand up.

A veterinarian's services were needed to fight infection and internal injuries.

But after ten days caring for him and constantly turning him, he died.

We were told that a cow was attacked the same day, only a quarter of a mile away.

Many times during the night or day, roaming dogs are seen or heard, chasing the deer in this area. The deer herd has dwindled from seven or eight to two. And during the next month or two, many of the does will have their young. What chance do these little ones have for survival?

I am not against dogs, because we have a spayed female. I just wish the owners had more control over their pets, night and day.

Our thanks to the Mueller family for their efforts to help save the calves.

Yours truly,
MARY PASTRICK

When I leave

Do not stand at my grave and weep;
I am not there. I do not sleep.
I am a thousand winds that blow.
I am the diamond glints on snow.
I am the sunlight on ripened grain.
I am the gentle autumn's rain.
When you awaken in the mornings hush,
I am the swift uplifting rush
Of quiet birds in circled flight
I am the soft stars that shine at night.
Do not stand at my grave and cry;
I am not there. I did not die.

ANON.

As the screw turns

I find it most difficult to not connect the incredible $50 million debacle surrounding the Queen of Prince Rupert, the Princess Marguerite, the Queen of Surrey (to be renamed the Queen of the North) and the introduction of a hydrofoil ship to the Victoria-Seattle run, a venture which has the blessing of the Victoria C of C and is being backed by the B.C. Development Corporation. On the surface, in naughty-cal terms, it looks like screws within screws are at work.

Roses to Bill McGregor

Editor, The Star, Sir,

I must take this opportunity, on behalf of all the tenants of Alderhaven to thank our caretaker, Mr. McGregor, who will be leaving us shortly, for the many thoughtful things he did for us. Apart from his regular work, such as making soups for someone ill and delivering same piping hot, and see to it they ate it, he vacuumed rugs for those incapacitated. So many kind things he did, not at all called for in any contract. We all wish him the very best, trusting he will enjoy good health, in sunny Alberta.And listen to the meadow lark, my favorite song bird, singing.

Few people aware of safety measures

By BOB WENMAN, MP

Civil defence is a topic that few people like to talk about. There are a variety of reasons for this: some believe nuclear war to be so unlikely that civil defence measures are senseless, while on the other extreme, some people fear to discuss anything so horrible as a nuclear catastrophe. Neither of these are legitimate reasons for failing to discuss a subject as important as civil defence.

Let me clarify my position. I do not expect the missiles to start flying any day now. Nor am I advocating massive expenditures on civil defence. What I am suggesting, however, is that basic information in any disaster situation can save lives, and this basic information in regard to nuclear attack is simply not widespread enough. The reason for this, I think, is that too many fallacies exist about nuclear war. The biggest one, the one that you hear repeated over and over again, is that nothing will survive a nuclear war between the superpowers. I think that as long as this belief persists, it will serve to prevent people from taking measures which could serve to protect them in the event of war. While millions would be killed and the world would be a considerably different world than it is today, it is still possible for many millions more to survive a nuclear attack as long as fairly straightforward protective measures are undertaken. These measures are not expensive, but simply require an awareness of the effects of a nuclear attack. To deny that knowledge to the public is to risk far greater casualties than would otherwise be expected. I, as an elected official, have a responsibility to provide you with that knowledge, but you, as a family member, are responsible to see that you implement that knowledge.

Before we can discuss what sorts of measures must be taken in the event of a nuclear attack, we must know something of the nature of such an attack. In the first place, it is important to realize that the Puget Sound Basin, which includes the cities of Seattle and inland to Spokane, would have to be considered an important target area in the event of nuclear war. At the present time, that area includes the Whitby naval base and, more importantly, the Strategic Air Command base at Spokane. In addition, the presence of the soon-to-be-completed Trident submarine base just outside Seattle would make the entire region a prime target. We must never forget that these target areas are only a few short miles across the border from Fraser Valley West. Moreover, Vancouver's port facilities would also make that city a possible target.

It is clear, then, that in the event of war, the Seattle region would almost certainly suffer a nuclear attack, while Vancouver could experience the same. Therefore we could expect a considerable amount of fallout in our area, depending, of course, on wind conditions.

Next week what I will seek to do, is show how, by taking moderate safeguards, we can significantly reduce the danger to ourselves.

Aldergrove prepares to put a stop to Abbotsford attack during rugby action Thursday.

Junior rugby team wins sixth game of season

ALDERGROVE - On April 10, Aldergrove secondary's junior rugby team won its sixth game of the season, defeating Abbotsford 24 to 4.

Aldergrove scored early in the game when Brian Nicol forced and fumbled near the opponents' goal, then recovered the ball to score his first try of the season. Nicol was the dominant figure in the game, scoring another try, and making numerous tackles to continually frustrate the Abbotsford attack.

Abe Reimer was also outstanding in the Aldergrove forward pack. The small hooker played a strong game proving that lack of size need not be a handicap in rugby.

Aldergrove's other scores came on two tries by Eric Schroter and one by Richard Jolly while Allan Lewis and Mike Hoyle each added converts.

Abbotsford played its best rugby in the second half of the game and were rewarded with a try by their captain, Allan Cameron, who made a strong run to score near the posts.

Aldergrove's next home game will be played Friday, April 18 when the locals host Pitt Meadows. Kick-off time has been scheduled for 3:30 p.m.

Practices well under way

CLEARBROOK - Practices are under way - outdoors in good weather, and in gymnasiums if it's rainy - for teams in the Matsqui-Abbotsford lacrosse association, and there's room for more players in younger age groups.

Boys and girls up to age 10 can still join in the "fun, fitness and fair play", says the association.

Matsqui-Abbotsford has two teams for six- to eight-year-olds. These children have been practising together but will shortly be divided into two teams by coaches Kelly Meade and Ed Wilson. They welcome any newcomers wanting to learn the skills of Canada's national sport in a low-pressure, soft lacrosse league where enjoyment means more than competition.

A pair of squads for nine- and 10-year-olds have been formed.

One is based at Bradner under coaches Neil McQuarrie and George Young, the other in the Rotary box in McMillan park with George Peary and Mike Wilson.

Both these teams can take additional players whether they've played lacrosse before or not.

Registration information and other information on spots sill open in Matsqui-Abbotsford minor lacrosse may be obtained by calling 853-5315, 853-8624 or 853-5663.

Abbotsford manages to lay hands on the ball during a lineup in Thursday's rugby game against Aldergrove but Aldergrove dominated the game throughout and soundly defeated the Abbotsford club.

Fox and Hounds Royals play exhibition

ALDERGROVE - Fox and Hounds Abbotsford Royals played an exhibition game against Bel Air City in Coquitlam Sunday afternoon and came away the winners.

Bel Air is provincial and national champions of last season. Royals is a three-month old team of 13-year-old soccer players not yet participating in league play.

Coquitlam took the lead only four minutes into the first half when they went ahead 1-0 on a serious defence mistake by the Royals.

But from there on it was all the Fox and Hounds as they scored three goals in rapid succession during the remainder of the first half, two solo efforts by David Moorthy and one from Gordie Patterson who headed the ball into Bel Air's net from the corner.

Halftime saw Royals lead the hometowners 3-1.

Two minutes into the second half Moorthy scored again. Next goal went to Coquitlam 15 minutes later.

And then Moorthy booted home his fourth of the game, on a pass from Ron Hunt.

Royals will be playing in division 3A of the Fraser Valley league next season, and from April 26 to June 15 they will be participating in the summer league with three other lower mainland teams, Langley United Warriors, Burnaby's Willingdon Park, and Mission United.

Outstanding players in the exhibition game were Phil Anderson, closely followed by Bruce Ferguson and Billy Clarke.

Team is presently looking for some really good soccer players born in 1967. For more information, contact Rick Lorne at 859-4200.

All trophy presentations will be made following the game on Sunday, April 20 at Bear Creek park.

Go-Getters go down fighting

ALDERGROVE - On Saturday morning a bus load of excited girls, parents and soccer fans left Aldergrove heading for the Kinsman stadium in North Vancouver. Yes, the Aldergrove Go-Getters were off to play another soccer game but this was no ordinary league game.

Our Under 13 girls soccer team were out to capture the trophy of trophies, the provincial cup.

The game got under way under just superb conditions and Aldergrove applied pressure right from the opening whistle, but after nine minutes of play their opposition, the Willingdon Dirty Dozen got a break-away and scored much against the run of play.

This would normally make the Aldergrove girls work harder but it was not to be this time, as the Go-Getters went flat.

Three minutes later Willingdon scored again on a three-on-one situation. At the twenty minute mark Tricia Rickards who was playing a good game in defence got hurt and had to leave the field. This was going to affect the team quite a bit and just to make matters worse star left winger Michelle Ring also left the field injured. With five minutes to go in the half Willingdon made it 3-0 and just on the half time whistle added one more to take a commanding four goal lead.

The second half saw Aldergrove once again on the defensive. In the first minute of the period the opponents scored number five with the defence standing watching. At the six minute mark it was number six for Willingdon and the Aldergrove girls just could not get going although a lot of credit must go to them for not giving up. It just seemed that the more they tried the more things would go wrong.

Tracy Stevenson in goal was having a super game and could not be faulted for any of the goals. She was beaten once at the 15 minute mark of the half and also at the 20 minute mark. Aldergrove kept trying and showed in the last ten minutes what they can really do by playing some nice soccer. Their efforts were rewarded when the Hanon sisters, Rachel and Sarah, combined with Sarah putting the ball into the net. On the last play of the game Willingdon broke through to score their ninth.

The final socre was 9-1 for Willingdon but lots of praise must go to the Go-Getters for not quitting when things were not going right for them. Star number one unquestionably goes to keeper Stevenson who made some great stops. Number two star for the team was Tricia Rickards with number three spot going to Rachel Hanon.

It was very nice to see the Guildford Kickers out cheering on our girls and many thanks go out to them for their effort. This has been an excellent season for the Go-Getters having been pipped at the post for the league title and for being the first Aldergrove team to reach the finals of the Provincial cup.

Motocross shines on Sunday

By BOB LEVY

ALDERGROVE - The Aldergrove competition motorcycle association held their third race of the year at Little Rock Raceway on 8 Avenue, Sunday, April 13.

Over 190 riders attended the all class motocross racing event, with the farthest travelling from Saskatchewan, and many competitors from B.C.'s interior.

The weather conditions on Sunday for the exciting racing were perfect with consistent sunshine all day.

There were many excellent vantage points for the fans around the 1¼ mile race track, to watch different riders handle their 180 - 200 lb. machines vigorously over the varied terrain. Each moto (heat) would begin in the pre-grid area where the competitors would pick a number from cards to determine their position on the starting gate, which drops shortly after the one minute board is displayed to them. Then all 36 of the riders charge off at the drop of the gate, down the sand straight into the first corner bend leading them into the Bel-Ray Carousel banked turn, soon followed by the Abbotsford Kawasaki Whoopdees, which is a series of five jumps back to back and about five feet tall. Then they shift up a gear into a sweeper turn leading into another straight which begins with a high flying jump sending the riders way up in the air. Before approaching the next set of rough straights, they all encounter the Abbotsford Kawasaki Wall turn, which allows them to really lean over in third gear. After the series of straights through the infield they return in behind the carousel turn with two "s" bend turns, leading into a pop-up jump which lands the machines and riders right into the base of an uphill turn and jump called the Mid-jump. Over this jump and into a sharp 180 degree turn bringing them over the Mid-jump once again and then leading down a small straight into a banked turn right into the Clayback double jump. A little bend in the track and then a 90 degree corner puts them at the base of the "Abbotsford Datsun Diamond Head" jump, which is a 20 feet uphill jump onto the top spectator plateau, really sending some riders into the sky, some of them all crossed up for the spectators. When on the plateau they enter the backhills which is a wicked series of drop-offs, pop-ups, off camber turns, and other tricky conditions. Coming out of the backhills they come down the front straight, over a long distance sailing jump, into the last built up sand berm before the finish line in the official area.

It was amazing the way some of the better riders never seemed to shut off regardless of what was coming up. Many of the riders fatigued after the half-way point in their moto and a few crashes were evident throughout the day, some of them very spectacular. It's a wonder that the competitors still get up after bad crashes but with all their protective equipment, few injuries occur.

Other than a few scrapes during the day the only injury was a possible broken wrist.

The only time any substantial amount of dust arose on the track was at the start of a moto, because all the racers are so close together, but after one lap, they have spread out enough that the dust is hardly noticeable.

On the track the 125 cc junior class had an entry of over 60 riders, so they had to run qualifiers to cut the main event down to 34 riders. A few pile-up crashes in the first turn eliminated a couple of riders early in the race. Out of the 30 riders in each qualifying moto, only 15 would make the main event. Riders finishing from 15 to 25 would have one more chance in the consolation race where the top four riders would go into the main.

Number 13, Ron Howell from Surrey rode strong all day and earned his first overall trophy with a smile on his face. He was challenged for the trophy by consistent George Ingham from Burnaby riding a Kawasaki. Third overall went to Ron Tiefen from Coquitlam, and fourth place in the main went to Brian Skews, who got into the main by winning the consolation race.

In the 125 senior class no. 179 Ron Byle rode very consistently all day, keeping track of his points, only maintaining the positions he needed to give him a seven point lead to capture first over-all. Ron rides out of Langley for Allied Motorcycles and Langwood farms. Ron was the high point schoolboy racer last year, and also the white highpoint C.M.A. trophy for Canada. If he keeps this pace of increasing ability going Ron could be one of Canada's champions. He also won the 250cc senior class with fourth and first positions in the two motos.

The 125 expert class saw Terry Hoffoss, no. 76 walk away in both motos riding for Yamaha Motor of Canada. Right from the start Terry got the holeshot and never had to look back as he consistently pulled a bigger lead lap after lap. He made racing motocross look really easy, the way he handled the rough conditions.

Second place in the 125 expert class went to Rob Van Diemen riding a Yamaha. Rob placed second in the first race and fourth in the second moto behind George Bakker from Surrey who finished third overall. Rob comes from Keremeos.

In the old timer class Bob "wheelie" Underhill took a smooth riding first overall with a first in each moto. Bob recently placed fourth in the old timer national world championship held in California.

Next race at Little Rock Raceway is round number seven of the B.C. championship series held May 18 and 19, with the junior and expert classes running Sunday and the schoolboy, senior and old timer classes running on Monday.

Symphony and Bach choir present choral fantasy

The Vancouver Symphony Orchestra and the Vancouver Bach Choir join forces to present some of the world's best-loved choral masterpieces on Monday, April 21 at 8:30 p.m. in the Orpheum. Titled a Choral Fantasy, the concert is sponsored by Block Bros. Realty.

Although the VSP and VBC have been collaborating for musical events since the late '30s, the Choral Fantasy is a special concert to help celebrate the orchestra's 60th anniversary and the choir's 50th.

Under the direction of Simon Streatfeild, the choir's music director, the orchestra and choir will perform Handel's Coronation Anthem: Zadok the Priest, Haydn's The Representation of Chaos and The Heavens Are Telling from The Creation, Borodin's Polovtsian Dances from Prince Igor, and Handel's Worthy is the Lamb; Amen from Messiah. Pianist Lee Kum-Sing will be the soloist for Beethoven's Choral Fantasia. Streatfeild will also conduct the VSO for Kodaly's Balanta Dances.

Bruce Pullan, VBC chorusmaster, will conduct two unaccompanied motets for chorus by Healey Willan: Rise Up, My Love and Fair in Face, plus three unaccompanied choral works by Harry Freedman: I Went to the Market, Who Is at My Window?, and Petite Hirondelle from Green, Blue and White, Songs of the Eastern Provinces. Pullan will also direct the VSP and VBC for Bach's Final Chorus from St. Matthew Passion.

Coffee House '80 moves outdoors

By SUZETTE DesJARDINS

ALDERGROVE - Last Sunday brought sunshine and high temperatures, inspiring the desire to hold the Coffee House '80 show outside on the patio at Michael's Restaurant.

A variety of music was performed including soft ballads, a violin solo, some country tunes, blues, and even a couple of rowdy pub-type songs.

Everyone present enjoyed the show so much that we intend on holding it on the patio again next Sunday; weather permitting.

Drop in for a tall glass of iced tea, or whatever suits your thirst, and we will guarantee an enjoyable two hours full of quality entertainment.

Sunday afternoon concerts continue

LANGLEY - Music ''80'' will hold the April 20 concert in the arts centre at 2 p.m. Appearing on this program will be Marvin Regier, who will sing ''The Trumpet Shall Sound'' from the Messiah, ''Waldegesprach'' leider by Schumann, and the aria, ''Dich Vieni alla Finestria'' by Mozart. Barbara Zielinski will present a work by Chopin and Peter Higham, a classical guitar number.

Ulo Valdma, teacher of theory, history and harmony will perform and Marilyn Lamont has chosen the Beethoven Sonata in E flat major.

She will be joined by Pat Stark in the Mozart Sonata in B flat, duet for piano.

This is a non union concert by the faculty and anyone wishing more information about tickets should contact the office at 534-2848.

Rats prove to be better men than many

By KURT LANGMANN

The Boomtown Rats wound up their two nights in Vancouver last Wednesday and the merits of the band's performances won them many new fans - myself included.

Singer Bob Geldof is an amazing bundle of energy onstage with movements and dancing that recall the spirit of Mick Jagger. His counterparts are equally lively and the music was top notch British style rock that was a pleasure to hear.

Good songs were taken from their three lps such as Joeys on the Streets Again, Kicks, Wind Chill Factor, Nice 'n Neat, Rat Trap and the fantastic Clockwork.

Their flamboyance, good humor and direct lyrics make them a special band and one to watch in the years to come.

CANO – well on the way to the top

By KURT LANGMANN
CANO/Spirit of the North

Last February 1 talked with A&M's publicity chief James Monaco about my favorite topic - Sudbury's CANO. He assured me that, despite unspectacular sales for the first four lps, A&M was proudly committed to realizing the full potential of CANO's talent. He said they were in the process of putting together a compilation lp with a few new songs, a package which he felt would finally break CANO wide in the market, including that of the USA. This new release has just arrived, and after one listening I'm ready to bet my money in Monaco's favor.

The new release has many compromises, yet it is certainly not mercenary.

CANO has always finely crafted a diversity of musical styles and techniques to create a grand and complex orchestral music that goes beyond anything else in contemporary rock. They can be bombastic with Marcel Aymar's gruff vocals and David Burt's stinging guitar soloes and yet have the talent to refine and perform a subtle texture of sound with Rachel Paiement's lilting voice and Wasyl Kohut's soaring violin passages.

They are intellectual, powerful, sweet and warm and all the things good music is meant to be - the wonderland of emotions on record or live belies the concept of rock being too primitive for elevated improvisation and serious consideration.

The lp begins with a new version of Carrie, a mesmerizing and haunting song that displays what producer Jim Vallance can do with good material and top-notch musicians. He also produced the other new song, Rendevous, a pure pop melody that CANO perform with more class, thought and appeal than the current myriad of pop stars on the market. Rachel Paiement cajoles the listener to come away from the noisy disco to a lover's rendezvous and the bewitching enticement of her voice is impossible to resist (yet, like the sirens of Grecian legend, must surely be too good to be true).

Rachel has a radiantly beautiful personality that captures your fancy and commands your attention when she sings. Joni Mitchell is the only other vocalist I can think of who has this subtle but overwhelming power.

The title track is the proud dedication to our beautiful country written by the genial Wasyl Kohut, who also wrote Baie St. Marie. David Burt and Rachel wrote the pretty Sometimes the Blues and Rebound. Long way, by Burt, is remixed from the third lp, with English lyrics on this version.

Supertramp fans should note that John Anthony Helliwell contributes his saxophone to great effect on Rebound.

Au Nord de Notre Vie is the other song with French lyrics, from their superlative second lp of the same name.

The growing emphasis on English lyrics is part of the new strategy. As their manager, Gary McGroarty says, "We have had several hits in the Quebec market and now we want to try and do the same on English language radio. We've been working too hard, too long to lose now."

The French lyrics have never stood in the way of my enjoyment as their music speaks to me in a more direct, albeit, intangible language, and besides, lyric sheets in both languages were provided on the previous releases. The lack of such printed lyrics on the new lp is my only complaint against it.

CANO originally formed as an outlet for musicians in an artist's co-op with Andre Paiement, who passed away three years ago. Their unique ability to work together culminated in a premiere performance that so impressed A&M that they were signed to a contract on the spot.

The only explanation for the lack of radio play is that they are too good for any ordinary playlist. I was totally unaware of them before their 1978 performance at Grouse Mountain, but have been a convinced fan ever since. They've performed twice in Vancouver since then, and another two dates are set for the Commodore next Wednesday and Thursday, April 23 & 24. Tickets are $8. advance at CBO.

Fibre arts featured at Langley Exhibition Centre

FORT LANGLEY - Fibre arts of the Pacific Northwest will be featured, from April 14 to 20, in Smorgasbord, a juried exhibition at the Langley National Exhibition Centre.

Through the works of regional spinners and weavers, handspinning, sculptural weaving and a variety of other textile techniques will be explored.

The official public opening will take place at 7 p.m. April 14. Highlighting the exhibition will be three evening lectures. These include:

Joinings, edges and trims on April 14, 8 to 10 p.m. A presentation of techniques used in finishing textile designs.

Weaving travelogue on April 18, 8 to 10 p.m. A tour of noted European studios, schools and museums.

Spinning yarn for sale on April 19, 8 to 10 p.m. A discussion for those interested in selling handspun yarn.

Centre is located at the corner of Mavis and King streets, and is open Tuesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. For further information phone 888-3922.

Josephine Kelly and her daughter Diane Fillardeau gave a demonstration of Salish spinning and weaving at the Langley exhibition and museum centre in Fort Langley Sunday.

Trevor Nystrom and his mother Mrs. S. Williams display the St. John's award Trevor was awarded during Uplands school assembly last week.

Trevor Nystrom awarded St. John's certificate

LANGLEY - Last week a young boy was honored here for his actions in a dangerous and frightening situation.

Uplands school saw a gathering of visitors just before a scheduled school assembly. Mayor George Preston, St. Johns· Ambulance Langley brigade-surgeon Dr. Fred Ceresney, Inspector Ken King of Langley RCMP gathered for a happy moment in a young boy's life.

At 2 o'clock before the entire school assembly, Ceresney presented young Trevor Nystrom with a certificate from the B.C. Council of St. John's Ambulance brigade. During the presentation the doctor gave a brief outline of the history of St. John's and then reviewed the circumstances of the award.

"On May 30, 1979, an act of bravery took place in Langley." stated Ceresney. "Trevor Nystrom, 10, was faced with a disaster few should ever have to face. Trevor was in a washroom when the building started to burn. When he left the washroom to see what was happening, he noticed his father engulfed in flames. Trevor grabbed a garden hose and put the flames out in an attempt to save his father's life. Trevor suffered second degree burns because of his unselfish act of bravery. It is rare that a youth of Trevor's age would act in such a courageous manner and for his action St. John's is proud to present him with this award." Ceresney concluded.

Langley school district sets forth objectives

MURRAYVILLE - During the past two weeks, representatives of the school board, senior administration, C.U.P.E., the L.T.A., the elementary and secondary administrators' associations and the parent teacher executive, have attended three separate workshops to develop a series of goals and objectives for the Langley school district. Each of the ten operational goals has a number of specific objectives with definite time lines for implementation. They will act as a blueprint for ongoing development and action. The major goals outlined were:

- The district statement of philosophy and purpose shall always reflect the direction of education for school district no. 35 (Langley).
- To ensure a high quality of classroom instruction in school district no. 35, through the development and support of appropriate programs and processes.
- To develop an organizational structure that ensures optimum utilization of the district's resources.
- To establish an ongoing planning process.
- Ensure the provision of equality of education and related services to Langley children.
- Establish a system of personnel management that provides and supports the necessary human resources and skills to meet the district needs.
- To improve public awareness of/and support for the district's educational system.
- Develop a well defined system of evaluation, assessment, and reporting.
- To establish and maintain a system of financial management that addresses the district's needs.
- To improve the district's educational climate.

During the next week a complete copy will be made available to the membership of all participating groups and the public. Reaction is requested from all interested parties during April, prior to final modification and acceptance by the board in May, superintendent of schools Len Sampson says.

"All who attended these workshops felt that the formulation of such a document was basic to the orderly planning of our growing district." Sampson says.

Nature trail and Noel Booth park readied for walk

LANGLEY - On Sunday, May 4, local parks (Langley city, Noel Booth and Nature Trail) will host 4000 walkers for the 18th annual Langley walk.

Mitch Paik of the city of Langley parks and recreation department stated that the Nature Trail is being upgraded by bridge repairs, eroding banks shored up, and paths levelled.

On the long walk, Noel Booth park will be traversed - and the walkers will be able to note the steady upgrading that has taken place.

The Langley track and field club, CB'ers, and St. John's Ambulance and local organizations with their concession stands will be assisting to make this another successful annual event.

Sydor praised for adult program

PETERSON ROAD - A local educator received accolades from trustees at a school board meeting here last week.

Jim Sydor, who is in charge of adult education in the district, was praised by trustee Dave Bell as the man who made AE self supporting in Langley.

Trustees unanimously passed a motion to commend Sydor, who was present at the meeting, in writing.

Phone rate increase slammed by opposition

VICTORIA - An opposition MLA has described B.C. Telephone's application to the Canadian radio-television and telecommunications commission for a rate increase as a cynical attempt to subsidize the acquisition of Automatic Electric in Ontario, a substandard manufacturer of telephone equipment.

"The parent company, General Telephone of Connecticut, now owns 56 percent of B.C. Tel's shares," says Gary Lauk (NDP - Vancouver Centre). "These foreign-owned shares are draining the substantial profits of B.C. Tel to the United States in a drastic and shocking over-payment for Automatic Electric formerly owned by General Telephone.

"In 1979 B.C. Tel recorded $51-million profit. In 1978 B.C. Tel recorded $45-million profit. Another rate increase for telephone users in B.C. could only be considered as price-gouging by a monopoly utility evidently given freerein by the ineffectual CRTC," Lauk said.

Lauk charged that the government of British Columbia, which has in previous years intervened with the CRTC opposing rate increase applications, has, in recent years, "rolled over and played dead."

"This must not be allowed to happen this time. The government must intervene as strenuously as it intervened in the attempted take-over of MacMillan Bloedel by the CPR," Lauk said.

TRINITY WESTERN COLLEGE

Record enrollment expected

FORT LANGLEY - Record-breaking enrollment of students at Trinity Western College is expected for the coming fall semester, said Barrie Palfreyman, director of public affairs, and guest speaker at the Langley and district ministerial association meeting on Wednesday morning, conducted in the Trinity board room.

Supervising the operational development of the college, alumni, public relations, stewardship and media, he has the major role in the development of a ten-year campus master plan for growth.

He has 18 years experience in communications, media, Christian education and administration; and is a frequent speaker on topics relating to youth, Christian education and use of multi-media.

He was introduced by Dwight Johnson, who conducted a tour of the college facilities, after the ministerial luncheon.

The final spring meeting of the association will be held at 9:30 a.m. Wednesday, May 14, at the Emmanuel Tabernacle in Fort Langley, when the annual elections will be held.

"Satoh's Bull is mighty strong. I'm satisfied!"

Satoh's Bull is built so strong, it outperforms bigger tractors hands down.

Featuring a water-cooled Diesel engine which delivers 25 hp at a low 2500 rpm, this tough tractor offers 2-wheel or 4-wheel drive, single-lever implement position control, flow control and lift lock.

Its adjustable foam rubber seat and ball-nut type steering offer greater comfort and ease of handling, too.

With 4-step PTO, twelve speeds, high ground clearance and Category 1-3-point hitch, it's no wonder the Satoh Bull is strong on satisfaction.

Commercial Travellers choose officers

By MARILYN GREGORY

LANGLEY - Regular monthly meeting of the Fraser Valley United Commercial Travellers ladies auxillary no. 435 was held in Willoughby hall. Officers for the year 1980-1981 were elected and installed in a joint ceremony with the men's council.

Dorothy Hankin of Richmond ladies auxillary, Ethel Ellis and G. Stitch of Vancouver ladies auxillary came to assist in the election.

Officers elected for the 1980-1981 term are Kay Bevis of Abbotsford (past MG councillor), Marilyn Gregory of Langley (senior councillor), Frieda Fulber of Vancouver (junior councillor), Joan Wrigley of Langley (conductress), Josephine Zackus of Surrey (chaplain), Peggy Grant of Langley (secretary treasurer), Marg Vornbrock of Langley (executive board member), and Karen Gregory of Langley (executive board member).

Angie Thompson of Abbotsford was presented with her past senior councillor's pin by Kay Bevis.

Livestock specialist appointed

ABBOTSFORD - Al Wahl has been appointed provincial swine specialist with the livestock branch of the B.C. ministry of agriculture here.

Wahl will upgrade other extension staff in all phases of the swine industry and will work with swine and other industry leaders in the development and implementation of practical programs. He will also be responsible for field direction of the swine record of performance program.

Shorthorn Lassies elect executive

ALDERGROVE - New executive has been chosen by the Lower Mainland Shorthorn Lassie Club as the group convened for the 1980 season. New president is Sandy Holthe of Surrey, succeeding charter president Norma Schatz of Langley. Shirley Stockdill of Aldergrove is the vice-president, with Norma Schatz as the secretary-treasurer and Bel Carter of Surrey as a director. The phoning committee is chaired by Susan Holthe.

Once again last week the ladies helped get the big country sale catalogues in the mail at a work bee in conjuction with the annual meeting. The club will be providing coffee and sandwiches at the sale in McClary's auction barn at Abbotsford on Saturday, April 26.

Ladies who are interested in shorthorn cattle are being invited to attend the next club meeting at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Peter Stockdill, 25187 - 50 Ave., Aldergrove, on Sunday afternoon, June 1.

On an island paradise even a cop and two private detectives can be friends, as proven by (left to right) Dack Rambo, Donna Mills and Steve Marachuk, but that friendship could prove to be deadly in WAIKIKI, a world premiere on ABC-TV's 'ABC Monday Night Movie,' airing April 21. This production will serve as the pilot for a proposed weekly series on the network.

Lionel Stander's life rivals his wildest characters'

If you were to compare 72-year-old Lionel Stander's life with the life of Max, the character he portrays on the ABC-TV drama/action series, 'Hart to Hart,' it would be difficult to determine which is the more exciting.

I've always been outrageous," says Stander in the raspy voice that has become his trademark. Stander claims he was one of the first hippies in America. Stander, however, strongly believes in marriage and has had six of them. Along with each marriage has come one daughter. His youngest, he says, is the light of his life and is a seven-year-old live wire named Jennifer. His sixth wife, Stephana, is a curvaceous Dutch beauty in her early 30's.

Stander has always crusaded for the rights of minorities. "Social security is not now thought to be outrageous, but I recall a time when heads were crashed open for such beliefs."

Stander has not just survived his more than 50 years as a top working actor, but has thrived, despite 24 years of political exile, when, like many others, he was locked out of Hollywood during the notorious Red hunts of the '40s and '50s.

"I took on the whole House of Un-American Activities Committee," he says of his appearances before that body in 1940 and again in 1953, when he threw the hearings into chaos with a marathon lecture on democracy.

Stander did not enter the hearing room timidly. In fact, the newspapers recorded that he arrived to testify with a voluptuous blonde on each arm.

"I was a willing witness," he says. "I wanted to name names; the names of people in Georgia who had burned crosses in front of a negro's house; the names of people who had desecrated Jewish cemeteries. But the committee wasn't interested in hearing about those un-Americans activities."

Fellow actors who were blacklisted were committing suicide, becoming alcoholics or junkies or settling for jobs as janitors and elevator operators.

"But," says Stander, "I've always lived on the champagne level. I figured I needed $1,250 a week to break even. (He had been earning as much as $3,500 a week as an actor.) So I went to work on Wall Street where there was no blacklist, and managed to live in the style to which Hollywood had accustomed me."

A man with a taste for champagne, caviar and beautiful women may seem a far cry from the young man, who in 1935, was helping refugees get out of Nazi Germany, refugees named Kurt Weill, Bertolt Brecht and Thomas Mann. When they arrived in the U.S., he helped them find jobs and start their lives over.

A lifetime of experience adds depth to any role Stander chooses to play, and Max is no exception. He speaks of the character as though he were a good friend. "I like Max," he says, "because he's streetwise, warm, human, sophisticated and a solid citizen—a nice guy with a good sense of values."

He also likes the show, and says he likes it because it's escapist fare like movies of the '30s. In fact, it's a similar role to the one he played in 'The Crowd Roars' with Robert Taylor. He's comfortable with the show, maybe because it's the kind of part he's been playing, with variations, for the 53 years he's been acting.

Of Robert Wagner, whom he obviously admires, he says, "He is a balanced star, organized and considerate, one of the few people who has power and is not corrupt. Everyone respects him."

The same can be said of Lionel Stander.

PBS PRESENTS

TV detective dons 'authentic' artificial hand

Mike Gwilym, as private eye Sid Halley on 'The Racing Game'—a feature presentation of the Mobil-funded MYSTERY! series—wears an electronically controlled artificial hand adapted from the real-life model worn by some amputees.

The German-developed, 'myolectric' prosthesis, said to be the most sophisticated on the market, is operated by muscle impulses. The wearer needs only to think about a hand-gripping motion to activate it. It can gently pick up an egg or powerfully crush a beer can.

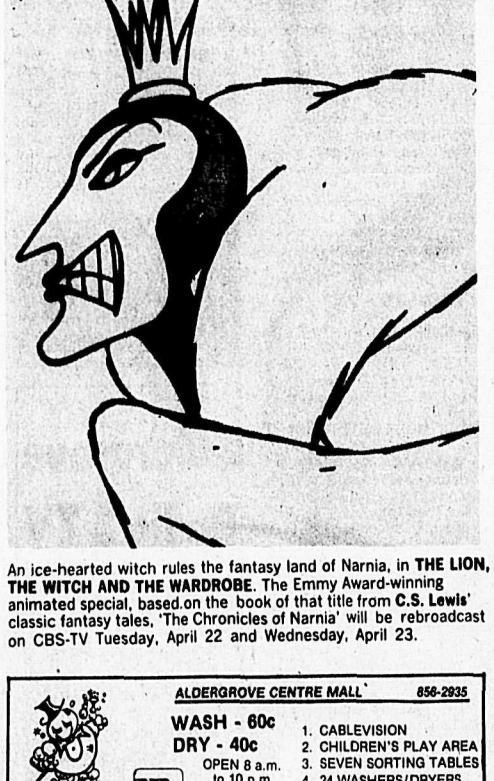
A special version of the hand was created for actor Gwilym (whose character in the television story had his left hand mangled in a racing accident), so that he could slip his real hand into the hollow casing and use his fingers to touch the electrodes that trigger the electric motor mechanisms.

The special hand appears in a number of close-up camera shots, but for long shots, a lighter glove-like model is used.

Mr. Gwilym (pictured with Anne Zelda) recalls that it took a bit of practice to get used to the mechanical device. He had to learn how to hold back the upper left arm and shoulder to make both arms appear the same size—the myolectric hand otherwise would protrude about five inches.

"One day a girlfriend fooled around with it and managed to get the hand stuck on her nose," he said. "She didn't appreciate my laughing."

Check local PBS station for broadcast day and time.



An ice-hearted witch rules the fantasy land of Narnia, in THE LION, THE WITCH AND THE WARDROBE. The Emmy Award-winning animated special, based on the book of that title from C.S. Lewis' classic fantasy tales, 'The Chronicles of Narnia' will be rebroadcast on CBS-TV Tuesday, April 22 and Wednesday, April 23.

Barrie Palfreyman, director of public affairs, conversing with college admission officer Gloria Loewen, attrinity Western College. He spoke to the Langley and district ministerial association last Wednesday morning.

First Trinity Western College B.A.s to be awarded in grad ceremony next Sunday

Dr. Wilbert Norton, a leading Christian Statesman and one of the College's founders will present the commencement address at the 1980 Graduation exercises of Trinity Western College Sunday afternoon April 27 at 3 p.m. in the Enarson Gymnasium on campus. Fifteen graduates will be receiving the Bachelor of Arts degree in the College's first Baccalaureate Class. Joining them will be eighty-six graduates receiving the Associate of Arts in the 18th A.A. Class.

Dr. Norton is a fitting speaker for this historic first Bachelor of Arts graduation. He played an important role in developing communications with the academic community of B.C. for the College in the early 1960s. He was on the Founding Committee of the College set up by the Evangelical Free Church in 1958 and was a member of the first Board of Governors in 1961. He is currently dean of the Graduate School of Wheaton College in Wheaton Illinois.

Dr. Norton's commencement address will be "Higher Education For The '80s - A Christian Option." The public is urged to attend these historic graduation exercises and other events of the weekend. On Saturday evening April 26 several TWC music groups will present a concert at 8 p.m. This is the last concert of the school year and it will feature ensemble groups "Selah" and "Radiance". Earlier on Saturday afternoon there will be an Alumni-Varsity volleyball game at 1:30 p.m. and an Alumni-Varsity basketball game at 2:30 p.m. The concert and the games will be held in the gymnasium on campus.

The College is honoured to graduate its first class who have completed the Bachelor of Arts Degree. Their vocational goals include counselling, teaching, the pastorate, speech therapy, writing, and business administration. The following is a list of the names, home towns and majors of this pioneer B.A. Class: Cheri Bergman, Holdrege, Nebraska, Social Sciences; Diane Bremner, Kelowna, B.C. Psychology; Kathy Carter, Columbus Nebraska, Geography; Carmen Daniels, Calgary Alberta, Psychology; Diane George, Surrey, B.C., Humanities; Nels Hawkinson, Seattle Washington, Religious Studies; Paul Huesken, Lindell Beach, B.C., English; Deb Jones, Slidell, Louisiana, Geography; Ellis Kurniawan, Indonesia, Business; Scott Nelson, Orland, California, Psychology; Stanley Ng, Hong Kong, Religious Studies; Robin Smith, Battle Ground, Washington, Psychology; Dan Splinter, Langley, B.C., Business; and Cliff Underwood, Red Deer Alberta, Social Sciences.

The College will also graduate its 18th two-year class with the Associate of Arts degree. The first A.A. graduating class at Trinity in 1963 had four students. This year's class will have 86 graduates, 11 of which have completed the Aviation program.

For more information on any of the graduation weekend events phone Trinity Western College at 888-7511.

IN THE UNITED CHURCH

Baptism annoys and amuses

ALDERGROVE - As it happens there were infant baptisms at the local United Churches last Sunday. At Mount Lehman Rev. Ford baptized Jeremy Lee, son of Michael and Robin Hazard. At Aldergrove three church families were involved and it was interesting to note the reaction of the babies. Heather Jean, daughter of Ian and Susan Esson gave a little cry, John David Robert, son of Don and Elizabeth Gilliland responded with a big yawn, and Erin Suzanne, daughter of Dick and Jane Huff was simply delighted.

An announcement was made during the morning services about a movie called "Jesus". This film is coming to the Towne Cinema in Abbotsford, beginning April 18, and it is a full length feature portraying the life of Christ. The story is taken from Luke's gospel.

I don't receive many written comments about this column, but one came last week. As it is short I'll reproduce it in full. "I'm glad the refugees could all find jobs and are self-supporting. I wish I could find a job. Maybe I was born with the wrong colored skin. If I was yellow I guess I'd be working now too. Maybe I would even be self-supporting. Signed: a victim of immigration."

One of the exciting things that I like about Christianity is the discovery of spiritual laws that work over and over again. I've written to you before about giving, showing that no-one can give time, money or anything to the Lord without receiving much more from him in return. I've also mentioned forgiveness, saying that the Lord can't improve the relationship between you and someone else unless you forgive that person.

Well, now I'm finding the benefits of another spiritual law. I learned it from a friend at a home-fellowship meeting and it really is quite spectacular to observe the results. Like the others, this concept is based directly on the bible, and, like the others, it's a theme that appears several times in the scriptures.

The idea is simply to bless them that persecute you. When someone is provoking you, running you down or is just plain mean to you, it's time to bring that person before the Lord in Prayer, asking God to bless your enemy.

Let me give you a personal example. I've recently changed my job and I now work in a large repair plant. The place has been functioning for many years but it has been very inefficient in some respects. My job was created to improve the way the plant is run.

I moved in, full of enthusiasm and new ideas, and began to recommend changes all over the place. Naturally I ran into opposition from people who'd been in the business for 30 years or more. One or two of my colleagues were particularly strong in resisting my proposals for change, and they were vindictive towards me.

It's been wonderful to see the improvement in my relationship with these people. The results are not due to my personality or because I'm especially pleasant to them. No, the harmony is caused, I believe, by my prayers for those who oppose me. I don't pray that I'll get my way. I pray, instead, that God will bless them.

I suggest you give this idea a try, holding up an adversary to the Lord for a blessing. By the way, guess which victim of immigration I'm praying for.

Seniors resource council speak to delegates

ALDERGROVE - Four branches of the local OAPO met in the hall in Aldergrove Thursday, April 10. Eight locals were invited. Guests were Bill Dawson of the provincial board, John McCotter, president of the Langley senior citizens resource council, Rev. Mun Hope and Lillian To, both of the resource council, Langley branch, Nora Bishop of the Langley branch, Ella Green of Johnson Heights rainbow no. 148, Ernie Phelps of Rainbow no. 148, and Bunty Baker of Aldergrove no. 71. With the president being under the weather, the chair was capably filled by the vice president, Opel Thomas. John McCotter addressed the meeting giving the aims of the resource council and answered questions. Hope and Lillian To both spoke to the OAP organizations.

Bill Dawson spoke on behalf of the provincial body and it would seem the convention is off to its usual high jinks. Seventeen resolutions have come from one branch. In contrast we had quite a time to come up with one. The next regional meeting will be hosted by Langley no. 10 in October, time to be announced later.

The weekly dance attendance has levelled off and it is hoped it will remain so for a while. The bumper crowds of a short while ago caused a lot of headaches for the people in charge of events and also extra work for the ladies in the kitchen. The door prize went to Bill Dennis and the spot to Irv Thompson and Emily Elmore. Visitors were George and Florence Dequire and Laura Montgomery from New Westminster, Georgina Emerton of Aldergrove, Roy and Helen Hoffman of Abbotsford.

The birthday of Peter Ziebert was suitably celebrated. The floor was in superb condition and our thanks to Andy Keay for a job well done.

The choral group under Carl Jeffrey will be singing for the White Rock OAPs on Monday, April 14. The concert is to be held in the Sunnyside hall at 1 p.m.

Although the activities at the hall are slowing down as more members get ready for trips to visit relations, it is to be hoped that bingo and cards will be kept on for the summer months.

The bust trip to Oak Harbor for the Tulip Festival has been booked, but due to the number of members and friends wishing to go, inquiries are being made to put on another bus. The fare is $7 and the bus leaves the OAP hall at 7:30 a.m. on April 26. As this trip is a must for all pensioners who like vivid colors, you are asked to phone 856-4639 or Adeline at 859-8408 for reservations.

The second bus has been confirmed, so those still wishing to go to Oak Harbor should phone either Marge or Adeline.

Doris says a man's life consists of twenty years having his mother ask him where he's going, forty years of having his wife ask the samw question and at the end, the mourners wonder too.

Festival enchants and amuses all ages

There is something wonderful about the chemistry. It is as illusive as spring fever and just as contagious. It transforms everybody who ventures amongst the four red and white tents around the Museums and Planetarium complex at Vanier Park into a wide-eyed, curious, playful, devilish child. It is the Vancouver International Festival for Young People and, with May 5 - 11, 1980 marking its third year, it is as unique as the splendor of its setting.

The week-long event is orchestrated by two of the people who sit in the eye of Vancouver's cultural storm - Festival producer and senior social planner, Ernie Fladell, and Artistic director, Christopher Wootten, the arts entrepreneur who introduced the Vancouver East Cultural Centre to Vancouver.

This year, the Vancouver International Festival for Young People brings together 18 different theatre, dance and music groups from Vancouver, the rest of Canada, New York, San Francisco, Bolivia, Belgium and England to perform 168 shows in tents for audiences totalling about 50,000.

The first Children's Festival responded to lessons learned from its predecessor Heritage Festival, by providing a well-focused burst of cultural gaiety, with an influx of theatre events for children all in one place in one week. Out of those tents emerged a specific type of theatre which now defines the Festival. Because the tents preclude elaborate sets and lighting, they limit the kind of show that can be booked. So, the tents encourage the actors to rely on their own ingenuity and physical prowess to conjure up visions and emotions in the minds and hearts of the audience.

When Chris Wootten took on the artistic direction of the Festival in its second year, he had to prove the first year's success was more than beginner's luck while swimming against the tide of two concurrent elections and a newspaper strike. But last year the Festival sold some 44,500 tickets with the majority of shows sold out 97% and some even playing to primarily adult audiences. Rave reviews and warm responses came from both critics and the public.

Wootten added dance and music to the Children's Festival in 1979 and found that it too worked in the tents although special unforseen problems arose with the dancers' needs to keep their muscles warm. This year, Sharon, Lois and Bram, who with the impending American release of their album Smorgasboard are destined to sky rocket into an unaffordable bracket come next year's Festival, and Raffi, the much loved children's troubadour of Canada, will bring music back to the tents. Because of their great popularity, both the low-key folkie and the up-beat trio will perform extra shows in the Granville Island Arts Club Theatre on May 10 and 11. Sukay, the earthy foursome familiar to patrons of the Folk Festival, bring their exotic array of authentic South American instruments to perform a new show especially adapted for children and families.

Dance will trip through the tents again as well. The Anna Wyman Dance Theatre from Vancouver has been commissioned by the Festival to create a new program. And the Festival's most technically complex show involves stuffing the Toronto Dance Theatre School's cuddly elephants into the tents to dance out the story of Babar.

But, theatre remains the soul of the Vancouver International Festival for Young People, theatre that refuses to talk down to its audience. This year Wootten notes that a specific theme has naturally evolved. What will be screened at the 1980 Festival for Young People is a child's eye vies of today's society - social realism as perceived by that percentage of the population that is too often seen and not heard. Vancouver's own Carousel Theatre brings "Step on A Crack", which looks at a young girl's attempts to adjust to a new mother, aided by a rich support system of fantasy friends. Magic Carpet, from San Francisco, probably the single biggest hit of last year's Festival,, has regrouped to return to the 1980 Festival with a new humorous, poignant collage of drama, mime, music and movement based on the unedited writings of Vancouver children. La Marmaille from Quebec, actually draws from the child continuously throughout the rehearsal process using the child as a mirror and a sounding board for, as the entire Festival inevitably proves, children make the most critical and honest of audiences.

B.C. teenagers speak out too in the Green Thumb Players' smash hit, Juve. An original high energy very physical show based on 300 interviews with B.C. teenagers, Juve has been remounted for the tents and will act its way across the country on a national tour following the Festival. From Regina, the Globe Theatre touts a mixed-up title "You Want Me To Be Grown Up, Don't I" for its look at the internal and external struggles that fuel the battle of growing up.

Not only does the Vancouver International Festival for Young People provide a one week performing arts explosion for the kid in all of us, but it also unconciously stages a mini convention for the artists themselves, proves that children's theatre does not have to be second rate and helps our own local theatre community to grow up.

The whole Festival is described in a colorful brochure complete with a schedule for the 168 shows and details of the 18 performing groups which can be obtained at all public gathering places throughout the City including theatres, libraries and other cultural institutions. Close to half of the tickets (28,000) are sold early through the schools and this year 14,000 of those were sold on the very first day of school ticket sales, the remainder disappearing almost as quickly.

The Paper Bags Players

The public tickets, still lots to go around, go on sale March 14 at $2 and $3 with no advanced booking fee from the four ticket locations.

- The Centennial Musuem, the Heritage Festival Office just inside the 12 Avenue entrance at City Hall and at the two Principal Trust offices - 625 Howe at Dunsmuir and 5025 Kingsway in Burnaby.
