TO SLAY BUREAUCRATIC DRAGON

VanderZalm bill is better still

By RUDY LANGMANN

LANGLEY - A mixture of bureaucracy and "creeping socialism" is killing North American prosperity, the way the same evils have done away with society in Poland, Scandinavia and Great Britain.

So says British Columbia's controversial minister of municipal affairs, Bill VanderZalm.

"We have become dependent on appointed commissions to decide everything for us, and that is a sad commentary," VanderZalm told a receptive crowd of business people at a chamber of commerce dinner here last night.

But if VanderZalm has his way; if his much talked-about new land use act is transformed into legislation by the Social Credit government, it could well sound the death knell for provincial, regional and municipal bureaucracy the way we now know it.

"We could have prosperity in B.C.," he said, "and exciting times ahead, but it will mean that we will have to change the situation."

Socialism, he said, has done away with our freedoms, and replaced them with "rights." And these rights are being doled out to us by faceless bureaucrats, at their discretion.

"We have to obtain some more freedoms," he said, "and some people will in turn have to give away some of their 'rights'."

Next week's Aldergrove Star will present an in-depth analysis of the proposed bill.

Flooded land-owners lay blame on council

MURRAYVILLE - Twenty-five men and women wearing rubber boots and hip waders invaded council chambers here Monday morning and demanded to know who is going to pay for their ruined basements.

Group was part of about 100 homeowners from the 196 Street - 36 Avenue neighborhood in the Brookswood area.

Their properties were flooded when the ditches in the area proved unable to handle the water runoff following the heavy monsoon rains over the weekend.

According to Ald. Mal Harper, a former Langley planner, the neighborhood is located in a "saucer basin" half a mile to a mile from the Anderson Creek. Most of the water is coming from a nearby 15-acre field in Surrey municipality. "I want to know, who is going to get the water out of my basement?" was the question posed again and again to councilors by the angry Brookswood residents.

Tempers started to flare when the hard-pressed councilors attempted to pacify the intruders by the setting up of an emergency committee to deal with the situation and with members chosen from the ranks of the angry residents themselves.

"It's your responsibility, not ours," one of the delegates told Mayor Bill Blair.

Blair, who had been at the residential subdivision when the ground-waters started to rise Saturday morning, said his council viewed the situation as an emergency. Aldermen had already been in touch with senior government officials in Victoria on the matter, he said.

Ald. Ian Strachan said it was "something that has never happened before (in that area)," and he was backed up by municipal engineer Doug Kenyon who said his department had noted a rise in the Brookswood water table by "three or four feet" during the December-January period.

Kenyon added that a proper storm sewer system for the area would take "time and money"

All available municipal road equipment and crews were dispatched to the area Saturday and Sunday, but basements were still under water Monday morning.

Pool is still on hold

MURRAYVILLE - There is still no news from Victoria.

Officials here do not know if they are going to build that public indoor swimming pool complex or not.

They put the question to local MLA, energy minister Bob McClelland Monday morning, but he did not know either.

It all hinges on whether or not the lid will be lifted on the provincial treasury and grant monies pulled out for the $4.7-million project.

Township fathers had not anticipated a tightening of the provincial purse strings when they put the project to the voters last November 21. A moratorium on frivolous spending was later introduced by finance minister Evan Wolfe.

McClelland indicated that he would speak to his colleague about a possible dispensation from the financial freeze, at least as far as his constituents are concerned.

Film industry courted

MURRAYVILLE - A film maker approached government officials recently with a somewhat unique request, Ald. Mal Harper told council here Monday morning.

In simple terms, what the movie mogul wanted was this:

"Permission to close down the Hope-Princeton highway for one week, create a 'small' rock slide, and blow up that service station on the corner."

Another request came from a movie company who wanted to close off an entire city street to normal traffic and fill it up with three inches of dirt to simulate early days in the province.

The latter request was met by the provincial government's travel industry department ever eager to attract the movie makers to B.C. City government had first nixed the idea.

Local councilors sympathise with tourist minister Pat Jordan's 'good show' program for B.C. and will introduce it in Langley with a host dinner for the first 20 local residents to be named for the 'good show' award.

Agrologists dismiss report as "unrealistic"

ALDERGROVE - A presentation made by two professional agrologists and presented at the Jan. 27 Gloucester land hearing has rejected the B.C. land commission's Kuurne report as being unrealistic.

"We question the technical and economic feasibility of installing of a drainage system capable of the type of improvement suggested," the eight page brief from Ross Husdon and Les Colebrook reads.

Colebrook previously worked for a B.C. land commission sub committee and his name is mentioned in the Kuurne report.

"The suitability ratings provided in the Kuurne report, even after improvement, are still of a dual nature because the complexity of the soils continues to exist. The effect of this dual rating will continue to create problems in terms of planting times, harvesting times and economic viability, Husdon and Colebrook say.

The two agrologists, who visited the Gloucester properties before writing their report, examined the possibility of placing the disputed lands in production using an economic model that established costs and returns for a 150-acre farm producing hay. The economic model produced a deficit, at an interest rate of 10 percent, without including costs associated with the capital costs required to develop the property for this type of farming in the first place.

The Gloucester properties could not be used for any other type of more intensive soil-based farming, the two agrologists say.

It is not yet known whether or not the land commission will proceed with their application to the provincial cabinet for re-inclusion of the 642 acres in the agricultural reserve. Commissioners have until March 16 to make up their minds.

Exploration permit not yet approved

MURRAYVILLE - The provincial ministry of mines has not yet considered a mining exploration permit application from a Vancouver based company looking for coal deposits in the Aldergrove-Langley area, local MLA Bob McClelland told councilmen here this week.

Utah Mines Ltd. is seeking exploration rights to more than half a township. Land is situated immediately south of Fraser Highway between Aldergrove and Brookswood - Langley city.

Town Talk

By RICK MCILWAIN

With the announcement last week of Utah Mines applying for a coal exploration permit of the Langley area, how do you feel about the possibility of a coal industry here?

Alan Holmans

The exploration of the area per se isn't any problem but if coal is found then there would be people worried about damage to the environment. The tailings from such an operation could cause some worry but there are many uses the tailings could be used for that would benefit the operation.

Many jobs would be created and goodness knows we could use the jobs. It would mean a completely new line of jobs for our young people - as well as bringing in needed payrolls.

The coal itself would find a ready market locally. The number of solid fuel burning devices now being used are straining the area's ability to supply wood, so coal would be welcome as a fuel supply.

If proper controls were applied, the coal industry could be an asset to the area.

If there is coal there, it is going to create employment.

I can see the environmentalists getting on the case but if it's underground mining it isn't going to do anything other than create a lot of jobs.

With all the wood and coal stoves that have become popular recently, there is sure a market for the fuel. The cost of wood is getting preposterous so a local supply of coal would be a godsend.

In the Old Country the coal mines are operating under farm land so there isn't really any reason it can't get along with our present life styles. The other advantage would be the spin off industry needed to support the mining industry.

I would hope that there is coal down there and they develop it. We could sure use the industry here.

Reg Sutton

Liz Frost

The jobs of a major coal field discovery would be a blessing to the area but many people might argue whether the trade-off of a boosted economy for a mining community would be worth it.

Many jobs could be created but how many local people would benefit? Any experienced miners would be coming from elsewhere and how many of our local young people would be willing to be trained for underground mining?

It would seem to make more sense to leave the coal in the ground unless we're going to use it ourselves. Why go through the hassle and danger of mining it just to ship it to Japan?

Alderman Ian Strachan criticizes GVRD for un-neighborly attitude in their campaign for new city dump in the country.

Thousands voice opposition to dump

FORT LANGLEY - They have been nicknamed anarchists by some Vancouver politicians, but close to 2,000 of them turned out at protest rallies here and in Pitt Meadows to voice their opposition to the establishment of a 600-acre garbage dump.

The two communities have become blood brothers in a common cause, to keep Vancouver household and industrial offal from being dumped within their municipal boundaries.

Residents have joined with fishermen, environmentalists, sportsmen and local politicians in defying the push by Greater Vancouver regional district bureaucrats, and when about 500 local people got together here Monday night the GVRD officials were soundly lambasted as being "archaic, cheap and conniving."

A lineup of speakers told the applauding audience that the time has come for garbage disposal to move into the space age. No longer are huge garbage dumps acceptable to the masses. Recycling and incineration of refuse is the way to go in the 1980's, listeners were told, and the metropolitan politicians have to accept this reality.

A planner working for the fisheries ministry told the attentive audience that the Langley site chosen by the GVRD as an alternative site for a massive garbage dump has been inundated nine times by the Fraser River since the great flood of 1948. The Fraser, as well as its many small tributaries are vital to the fisheries industry on the west coast, Howard Paish said, and the fisheries department is extremely concerned about leachate from a garbage dump located so close to the river banks.

Langley district alderman Ian Strachan compared the actions of GVRD officials to that of "a man letting his dog go over his neighbor's lawn; not neighborly."

None favor dump proposition

McDonald of Pitt Meadows said GVRD officials were determined to establish a garbage disposal facility for Greater Vancouver "the cheapest way possible". Since the late 1960s the metro politicians have been studying alternate disposal methods, Freeman said, to finally come up with the same time-worn method which has been used for thousands of years.

Garbage today should be disposed of by recycling and incineration, he said.

Freeman said a proper facility comprised of a sorter and burner would cost about $165-million to construct, "but how much does B.C. Place cost?"

McDonald said he certainly paid a lot of taxes for an anarchist, and he termed both the Pitt Polder and the Fort Langley Derby Reach site proposals "obscene".

Andy Milne, a Langley city alderman and GVRD director, said modern disposal methods of course would be more costly than a conventional dump, and this fact was "a little hard for GVRD politicians to take". Milne, himself a Fort Langley resident, said he was the only director who voted against the regional board at their sessions dealing with the matter.

The organizer of the Monday night meeting, Dr. Gary Smith, said garbage disposal "technology used 100 years ago is totally inadequate today". He said GVRD commissioner Doug McKay had chosen the Fort Langley site because it was cheap and had good access to the freeway. GVRD officials were looking to the Langley bog area as a dump to be used for 30 to 100 years, he said. "They couldn't have picked on more sensitive areas than Fort Langley or Pitt Polder."

Other speakers included Langley aldermen Muriel Arnason, Carol Gran and Dan Williamson. Arnason also drew hearty applause when she opined that "we have a terrible sense of values in this province if we think sports arenas are more important than sanitation and health."

Almost 500 angry citizens from Fort Langley and Pitt Meadows lined the rafters of the Fort's Community Hall at Monday evening's protest meeting.

Proposal would shift responsibility

MURRAYVILLE - A newly elected alderman has introduced a notice of motion which, if adopted by his council, would put the responsibility for garbage disposal at the doorsteps of the two senior governments.

Ald. Dan Williamson has called for an immediate study to be funded entirely by Victoria and Ottawa. It would plan for garbage disposal from urban areas for the coming 30-year period.

Also, "so called sanitary land fills in settled or environmentally sensitive areas will not be considered." This clause alone would prevent the establishment of garbage dumps pretty well anywhere on the lower mainland.

Williamson's resolution calls for "a moratorium of the establishment of any new long term waste disposal sites until the final study report is completed and a first draft management plan submitted to (Langley) council."

Notice of motion was accepted Monday morning by Mayor Bill Blair "without comment". There was "too much meat" in the resolution for council to deal with it before having studied the three-page brief in depth, he said.

VanderZalm seeks direct government

His land use act, bill 9, will be debated for months to come, as it is already being severely criticized. Not so much by the opposition, as by political empire builders and fearful bureaucrats.

"It is a good piece of legislation," VanderZalm said. It will provide for only one approval officer on the municipal level, and one overall land use document in the province. It will also completely remove the planning process from the regional district level.

"At the municipal hall you will be able to tell at one glance what is required of you," VanderZalm said. "It will be of particular benefit to the small or one-time developer."

The proposed act will make things simpler and thereby less costly, both for the land-owner and the tax-payer.

McAdam demolition leads to changes

FORT LANGLEY - Concern over demolition of the McAdam house has prompted action by Langley township council.

In a resolution adopted February 1, councilors called for co-operation between the Langley Heritage Society and the heritage advisory committee in identifying and recording heritage sites. Also, they appointed David Chesney, the chief building inspector, as an ex-officio member of the heritage advisory committee, in order to provide co-ordination between that group and the building department.

The heritage society has asked council in October for a demolition permit review process, following destruction of the McAdam house in August. James McAdam was Langley's reeve (mayor) in 1884. He bought land in northwest Langley in 1886 and built the house there some years later. It was worth preserving, according to heritage society members.

The society's February meeting will be spent establishing files for buildings to be in their inventory. The meeting will be held next Tuesday, Feb. 23 at the Langley centennial museum starting at 8 p.m. The public is welcome to attend.

LANGLEY RCMP CRIME NOTES

MURRAYVILLE - Police here received 420 complaints last week, and 36 motor vehicle accidents were reported.

Two drivers filled up their respective vehicles and then left without paying from a gas station on Fraser Highway in the city area of Langley last Tuesday. Both drivers were contacted later in the day and decided to pay their bills on their own without the benefit of police escort.

Burglars attempted to break into Alder Lanes during the night between Tuesday and Wednesday. A door was well damaged but not enough for the culprits to get inside.

A fight at the Bow Fiddler Thursday night resulted in the front glass doors being broken. The rowdies paid for the damage and no charges are being considered at this time.

A 1976 Camaro, black in color was found Friday in the ditch at the 27100 block of 29 Avenue. There was extensive damage done to the car, and the plates were removed. The vehicle had been stolen from Vancouver the previous day in a breaking and entering at a residence.

Sometime Friday night someone broke into the storage shed of an Aldergrove neighborhood pub and stole approximately 75-100 empty cases of beer bottles. Local youths are thought to be responsible for the theft.

A light blue Pinto was recovered in Aldergrove Saturday. The vehicle and driver were reported to police as being suspicious. When checked by the local RCMP the driver was not in the car but it was found to be stolen the day before.

Two males attempted to rob Carole's Market on Fraser Highway at about 8:50 p.m. Sunday, but were foiled in the attempt as a customer drove up into the parking lot. The suspects left. RCMP are continuing their investigation.

More violent robberies hit local businesses

LANGLEY - Another couple of robberies occured here last week.

Two males assaulted the lone female attendant at Meadow Maid Market, 24 Avenue and 208 Street, Friday evening. After striking her in the face the robbers rifled the till of an unknown amount of cash. Suspects then fled the scene in an unknown vehicle.

A small amount of cash was stolen from Jim's Pizzeria at 20199 - 56 Avenue last Thursday. The lone robber, armed with a hand gun, escaped on foot. An RCMP service dog was called in but no tracks were found.

There are no suspects at press-time, but police investigation is continuing.

No beer today

Consumer and corporate affairs minister Peter Hyndman's decision against allowing grocery stores to sell beer and wine is based on some strange arguments.

After a year of pondering the situation, Hyndman claims the disadvantages outweigh the advantages. Now alcohol is such a controversial topic in any province, it's hard to study the subject objectively.

Hyndman's decision is based on the idea that beer and wine in grocery stores will create problems in preventing minors' access to it. A second reason is a belief that grocery store sales will increase levels of alcohol consumption in all age groups thereby making alcohol abuse in this province even worse.

Sorry, we don't buy that, especially since Hyndman, in his second breath, is going to work on improving the service to patrons in government liquor stores.

A drinker is a drinker is a drinker. Whether one makes it to the liquor store between 10 a.m. and 6 p.m., buys his beer and wine in a grocery store or operates a still on Mt. Woodside, he's going to find his drink.

If one abuses alcohol, one will abuse it no matter where it's sold and in the same quantities.

Since the provincial government rakes in such vast sums annually because of alcohol abuse, we wonder if the government just doesn't want to part with some of the proceeds.

The grinder behind the monkey

By ROBERT LUDWIG

There shouldn't be more than one organ grinder per monkey, a fact that would seem logical to even the least sophisticated.

So how come this thinking has eluded premier Bill Bennett?

It seems obvious to secure the services of professionals to fix plumbing, teeth or political machines, but there is peril in hiring more than one expert to work on the same machine at the same time.

Premier Bennett started his effort toward political recovery by hiring image-improver Doug Heal.

Right from the start Doug Heal forgot that organ grinders should stay well back, behind the monkeys. He should clean up the rough images of government's front people, but stay out of sight himself.

Doug surfaced ignominiously soon. If the opposition had scripted that act it wouldn't have been believed. Doug Heale, elevated to senior mandarin status, showed up at a Socred party thing, thus ripping away his organ grinder concealment. So crudely, so unprofessionally.

With one grinder exposed, the premier took aboard yet another organ grinder, a man of some repute from Ontario. In minutes this person blew it. Despite great renown he showed poor brain-to-tongue linkage.

He acted like a brash schoolboy when in legislative sessions by offering uncouth, out-of-bounds advice to one Charles Barber, MLA. No one with an I.Q. running over 90 will tangle with Charles Barber, a master in the art of destroying idiots and even brighter people.

Contrite, whipped pup apologies be darned, the contrite mandarin Pat Kinsella would draw jeers if named as an organ grinder.

Then we see Doug Heal's communication production effort in Victoria falling apart. This is ominous. It might suggest a tussle to come between rival organ grinders to see who can control the most - or even one monkey.

In his day, former premier W.A.C. Bennett had his word processors like Clancy and Eklund, but there was never a doubt who was the organ grinder.

Tax or shacks?

There is a factor in the current assessments row in B.C. which has gained little if any recognition, but which if the present trend continues, may emerge as important, and that is the quality of housing and other improvements.

Excessive assessment, brought on by market values which, in themselves, are inflated by excessive demand, may encourage lower quality housing.

When quality homes are taxed, as some are, in the area of $2,000 annually, that fact is bound to act as a deterrent to building better or larger homes and will encourage the building of "just enough for existence" homes.

It may be fine for assessors to argue that even shacks bring a good price these days, but is that sufficient reason to encourage a return to slums?

Such thoughts may be alarmist, but no more alarming than the thoughts of people on fixed incomes who face increases in every aspect of their living and dread the future as the crazy house-cost spiral continues to whirl.

The lesson appears to be that if you can't afford it get out, for the trick question posed by assessors is often the one which enquires if one would sell his or her home for the assessed value. In many cases that has nothing to do with whether the owner would sell or not sell.

Many are content in their present homes and wish to reside there until their dying day. Furthermore, is there any guarantee from the posers of such a question that the owner could buy another home for that price? Of course there isn't and the very asking of such a question is an insult.

It is wrong, desperately wrong, for assessors or anyone else to assume that simply because the price of houses is high, that people wish to sell, and there is something morally unsettling to think that homeowners should pay more simply because industry needs workers.

Idle gossip can be very therapeutic

NEW HAVEN, Conn. - The therapeutic value of "idle gossip" has gone unrecognized for too long, says a Yale University professor who is writing a book to explain how such intimate talk helps solve problems and ease stress.

"How many times have you been told, 'big minds talk about ideas; small minds talk about people?'" asked Prof. Patricia Spacks. "I don't think that's true. It's been my campaign to overturn that idea."

"By talking out other people's problems, you're able to work out ideas about your own," she said. "Between good friends, you can say things that you wouldn't say in public - like maybe an illicit love affair is a good thing."

Gossip often has been seen as malicious, said Spacks, an English professor. But sociological studies have found gossip is useful in solidifying community values.

HARDSHIP

A matter of survival

By ROGER WORTH

The November budget has created untold hardship for a lot of Canadians, including the one million people seeking jobs.

If that concept needs reenforcement, just consider remarks made in a letter received by John Bulloch, president of the 63,000-member Canadian Federation of Independent Business. The note is from a small businessman.

"Because of the budget I have cancelled an order for two more trucks which would have created work for four more men and fed and clothed four more families...I do not intend to ever make an attempt to increase my operation. If I can survive, I will stay just as I am."

As Bulloch emphasized in a speech when he used the example:

"Two trucks, four families, demoralization: That is what the abstraction called the economy is all about. People live on hope. In its absence, people, and therefore their society and their economy, falter and decline."

Through the new tax measures, which will cost businesses an extra $1.4 billion per year, Ottawa has taken away much of the incentive for individuals to expand their operations. And at a time when high interest rates and a weak economy have already forced record numbers of business failures, reducing incentive by fundamentally changing the tax system without public input, is sheer madness.

The mandarins in Ottawa know, or should know, that the nation's small and medium-sized enterprises have been creating a clear majority of the country's new jobs. Yet the various tax changes seem designed to stifle such enterprise.

It's true, one entrepreneur failing to buy two trucks and create four jobs will not have much impact on the Canadian economy. But thousands of other hard-working business men and women are doing the same thing, and their decisions not to expand are undoubtedly exacerbating our economic difficulties.

Meanwhile, the unemployed suffer.

Maggie just had to go

By ROBERT SKOGLUND

"It says here that Keith Blackwell is grinding up poplar trees and feeding the mash to cows," I said without looking up.

Gramp Wiley and I usually read our morning papers together. One of our unwritten rules is that we can comment on what we're reading without expecting or hearing an answer.

That's why I was surprised and somewhat annoyed when Gramp dropped his paper on the floor and asked to see the column I had just started to read.

He studied the story for ten minutes or so before he nodded in agreement with himself and said, "I wondered how long it would be before that caught on."

"I've never heard of feeding cows wood mash, Gramp. I thought it was something new."

"Daow," said Gramp. "My uncle Ern fed Maggie the Cow poplar before the first world war."

"He discovered it by accident. Made Maggie a tie-up in the barn out of small green poplar poles. Within two days she'd chewed the tie-up down to her knees. When he realized he'd never seen so much thick rich milk before, he started feeding her poplar poles as a steady diet."

"But, like so many other men who have a good thing, uncle Ern wanted to make it better. he could see that all the time Maggie was wasting in chewing up the stick could have been used in producing more milk."

"That's probably why they grind it up into mash," I said.

"Well, there's other good reasons why cows shouldn't gnaw on the raw log."

"Uncle Ern, who could do most anything, made Maggie a first class set of case-hardened steel teeth. They worked so well she was soon eating half her weight in wood every day."

"The only drawback was that the younger children were afraid to help out with barn chores - she looked and sounded terrible when she was eating. Even uncle Ern took to wearing safety goggles when he was around her for fear of getting a flying splinter in his eye."

"That's why they grind it into mash today?" I persisted.

"No. When you fit a cow with steel teeth they undergo a serious personality change - an identity crisis."

"It didn't take Maggie long to discover she could bite right through a barbed wire fence like it was candy. Uncle Ern said he could have lived with that, but one afternoon they found her out in the woods, gnawing down poplar trees, and trying to dam up the brook."

While I was still thinking about that, Gramp continued.

"When fall came Maggie started to drive deer. That's when uncle Ern knew he'd have to take some kind of action."

"He hated to lose her, for he'd discovered that if he poured her cream out in a large flat pan, when it set up he could sell it for particle board.

"But the neighbors were telling their kids that if they were bad, Maggie the Cow would get them. And uncle Ern was afraid that even if they were good, perhaps Maggie the Cow would get them. So he finally butchered her."

"I'll bet a cow that lived on poplar tasted like one of those fast food hamburgers," I said.

"Well, I don't know," confessed Gramp. "I wasn't there. But I heard tell instead of the 600 pounds of meat they'd expected, they ended up sawing her into enough two-by-fours to frame up a new summer kitchen."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Worth's union-bashing was uncalled for

Editor, The Star, Sir,

Just loved that title in last week's paper, "A time to be reasonable" - great title for an article castigating those evil, greedy union leaders having the cheek to demand "huge increases" for all those wealthy workers.

Pity the article under that rational title was full of conjecture, irrational bafflegab, exaggerations and a distinct lack of facts and figures to back up Roger Worth's "volume rhetoric"!

Is it reasonable that our provincial cabinet has had a 28 percent wage increase in the last 13 months, our federal cabinet even more? Was it reasonable for our postmaster to get a "performance increase" when we're paying twice the cost to mail our letters? Maybe Roger Worth even thought the Bank of Montreal's chairman was reasonable when he recently stated "We should not be asking ourselves if we have made excessive profits, but if we have made enough?" (Tell that one to someone who lost his home to a mortgage increase.)

The average wage increase in B.C. has been 58 percent over the last five years. That didn't even keep pace with the cost of living increase! How reasonable is that?

While the average working person's provincial tax bill has doubled, corporate taxes have actually decreased to less than 9, yes NINE percent! Why don't you ask union leaders to ask about those figures while they're enquiring about "concessions for troubled companies"? That would be reasonable.

No, Mr. Worth, your answer is too simplistic - the causes of our inflation are too varied and complex to be answered in a 300 word, union-bashing article.

The answer doesn't lie entirely with organized labor, which incidently is only 38 percent of Canada's workforce. We have to consider also the costs of energy, imports, foreign oil, excessive corporate profits, lack of corporate competition, mismanagement of resources, and most of all, weak and uncaring government.

If Mr. Worth canvassed B.C.'s union members I think he'd find that the unions' strength comes from the bottom. The leaders guide and lead, but the feeling is in the little people - the average working person.

And the little people's patience is running out.

Thank you

VanderZalm takes power from the people

Editor, The Star, Sir,

If the new land act introduced in the legislature by Bill VanderZalm, the minister of propaganda and municipal affairs, ever becomes law, you may as well kiss your mayor and aldermen goodbye. From then on they'll just be chair-warmers busily rubber-stamping VanderZalm's edicts.

The planning, zoning and rezoning functions of our elected municipal councils and regional districts would be taken away. These powers would be taken over by eight regional boards, all of them appointed by VanderZalm and the provincial cabinet.

Under the act, each municipality would be required to draw up an official community plan for the municipality based on strict guidelines and directives from VanderZalm. By the right to veto all or any part of the plan, either when it is drafted or any time in the future, he will, under the act, have the power to amend it as he pleases. Not only that, he may do so without even holding a public hearing.

How any government in our society, which prides itself on being democratic, could even dare to introduce such an authoritarian piece of legislation is difficult to understand. Obviously VanderZalm still believes in the divine right of kings! He wants to become the shah or czar of B.C. And this is the man who is grooming himself to succeed Bill Bennett.

How does VanderZalm justify this dictatorial legislation? He covers up its real meaning by twisting and changing the meaning of words into their opposite, in the typical fashion of ministers of propaganda in states with one man rule.

He says the act "shifts some powers away from regional bureaucrats". More double talk. It shifts it away from the elected municipal officials to the appointed bureaucrats in his own department.

The whole purpose of the new act, he says, is to provide "one day shopping" for developers. That, at least, is the truth. What will happen is that developers will come to VanderZalm and say "I want so and so", and VanderZalm will say "You've got it", and the developers will be able to get at it the next day. No more bother with elected municipal officials, or with public hearings, or with public protests.

As can be readily seen, this opens up a whole new avenue of patronage and corruption. What developer wouldn't mind giving a gift of $100,000 or even $500,000 if it meant that he would get a permit which would net him $10 million?

This new act must be defeated. Any municipal council or regional district that doesn't come out forcefully against it violates its trust. And that includes Social Credit political burps that may be on councils.

Yours truly

Ship the garbage back

Editor, The Star, Sir,

No one wants to see a new improved GVRD garbage dump in Langley, however one aspect of the issue seems to be missed. Where does the provincial government come into all of this? What is the Social Credit government's policy on garbage removal or "waste management"? Is there a policy?

Instead of tolerating the GVRD's proposal to build a new dump in Langley or Pitt Meadows, the provincial government should be sharing the funding of an incinerator. An incinerator close to Vancouver could cost a hundred million dollars, probably too much for the GVRD without provincial help. This would be the logical approach.

However, the government's policy seems to be more along the lines of a sign I once saw on a garbage truck, 'satisfaction guaranteed or double your garbage back'.

Yours truly,
GARRY WATKINS

Thanks for the kindness

Editor, The Star, Sir,

We, at Alderhaven, were pleasantly surprised on Valentine's Day, when Aldergrove first group beavers brought us beautiful bouquets of flowers and cards. They were accompanied by their leaders, Pam Hoffman and Darlene Gifford. The little boys were Tyler Hoffman, Jamie Gifford, Aaron Clermont, Chris Gillis, and Michael Parkinson. Their generous gift was very much appreciated. "Thank you so much!".

Rigamarole legitimizes building

MURRAYVILLE - The name has been changed. It is no longer a reception and banquet hall but rather a tea house and restaurant. With the emphasis on tea house. No hard liquor, no siree.

And on that basis, councilors here have decided to draft a new bylaw which would legalize the status of the controversial Van Leuven building in southwest Langley.

Building, located next to the Campbell Valley park, has been a constant headache to various councils over the past 10 to 15 years. It has been classified as non-conforming and the Van Leuvens have not known what to do with the building which was put on the property before any zoning bylaws were in existence in Langley.

A public hearing will be held.

Mobile home park called 'premature'

MURRAYVILLE - A proposed mobile home park has been classified by municipal officials here as "premature and prejudicial towards future planning" in the 196 Street - 32 Avenue area of Brookswood.

Councilors are spent on the idea of whether or not to let Frostrup Development Ltd. proceed with the plans for their 100-unit project.

"We need the homes," says Ald. Muriel Arnason. And, what's more, the Brookswood area is the only one designated urban II zoning and thus available for mobile home use.

Mayor Bill Blair is also in favor. "No new urban II can be developed in the municipality," he says. The regional plan will not allow for such conversion.

Other council members, however, think mobile home parks should be established first in areas where planning has been completed and services already waiting.

Such areas could be found in Walnut Grove, Murrayville or Aldergrove, says Ald. Ian Strachan.

Forstrup's application was this week referred back to council's planning committee for further study.

Sex spray for men promises the world

VANCOUVER - A British company has developed a sex-spray-in-a-can that it says will do wonders for the guy who is just not making the score charts.

The company, Bodywise Products, claims that a two-second spray-little dab on the hankie, shirt cuff, or collar-of their British-developed male hormone derivative and women will want you badly for the next several days.

Their spray has a "secret ingredient", androstenone, one of a family of chemicals called pheromones and which "broadcasts a powerful subconscious sexual call to women in the area."

"Just a tiny amount," they say, can have a "huge effect."

Company officials said androstenone is found in human skin and hair. It is also present in most animals, Bodywise said.

World Medicine magazine said it is used on pigs to bring on 'difficult' sows.

You don't have to go about smelling like anything in particular, mind. The spray is "normally odorless. A woman wouldn't know why she's attracted, just that she wants to know the man better."

An 80-gram can can be had for $29.95 (three for $80). That should last you for about five months, or as long as you can take the heat.

If after reading this you are still not wholly convinced of the effectiveness between the sexes of chemo-communications, consider the contents of the note that Napoleon sent to Josephine toward the end of a long, frustrating campaign:

Home in three days; don't wash.

And it's a Happy Birthday!

ALDERGROVE - An afternoon tea was held last week in celebration of the 40th wedding anniversary of Paul and Dorothy Chapman of 2256 Bradner Road. Social was at the Aldergrove Baptist Church on Sunday, Feb. 14 in the afternoon. It was attended by many relatives and friends of the couple.

ALDERGROVE OAPO NEWS

Executive to meet on Monday

By ERNEST CLUETT

ALDERGROVE - The executive meeting of OAPO branch 71 has been postponed until February 22 at 1:30 p.m. as several members are availing themselves of the bus trip scheduled for February 15.

Muriel wishes to thank all the willing volunteers who pitched in so generously to make the pot luck supper and slide show an outstanding success. The crowd was larger than planned for and another table had to be hurriedly set up to accommodate the extras.

The mayor of the district of Langley has invited Aldergrove OAPO to send two members to the council chambers on Wednesday, February 17 to discuss the proposed grab of a large section of land in the Fort Langley area for a Vancouver garbage dump. Vancouver people were quite emphatic about the Gloucester property being put back in the land freeze as first class agricultural land. Now the same people want to expropriate real Langley farmland for garbage disposal.

The tickets for the Circus of China at the coliseum are now available. The tickets are for Thursday, March 18 and the price is $13, admission and bus fare included. Although the price might seem to be high the seats are the best available and will be the same block as the Goldstream guards spectacle. As this is a once in a lifetime thriller it was felt that good seats were a must.

The choral group under Pat and Edith Prozesky have taken delivery of a new piano for the hall and the ladies of the committee have ordered the material for the uniforms of the group. So in due course we shall be vividly attired in the colors the gals have chosen.

The gas and electricity bill for the hall for the two months of December and January amounted to $444. Take one month at $222, add the taxes at $134, and the charge for the winter months comes to $356 per month. Add to that the fixed charges for fire insurance, janitor, paper products, etc. and the bill goes up to close to $500 for one month. A fact of life that a lot of our old timers don't seem to realize.

I see our old friend, prime minister Pierre Trudeau has been solemnly proposing to limit wage increases in the civil services all the while he was awarding the highest increases in six years of 13.2 percent, so we shall have to increase borrowings to finance our affairs, and our grandchildren will have to help pay for the golden Trudeau years. I simply have to stick around for another thirty years to see how long waste and mismanagement can be tolerated.

Visitors to the weekly dance were Alma Petersen of Mission and Mary Skinner of Manitoba. The birthdays of Hugh McPherson, Elizabeth Georgner, Carmen Malcolm, Katie Banman and Francis Gagnor were celebrated. Spot prizes were awarded Arne Colley and Helen McKelvie, Charlie Milward and Maudie McPherson, and the door prize went to Margaret Guest.

Doris says she may have to sell her organ and quit her singing lessons. She saw her neighbor yesterday in the sporting goods store buying a gun.

A DANGEROUS EPIDEMIC

Safety Council to tackle alcohol-caused road deaths

MURRAYVILLE - On January 28 Langley and district safety council held an important meeting here.

In attendance were 42 interested persons. Attorney general Allan Williams and Dr. Hutchinson, registrar of B.C. Colleges of Physicians and Surgeons, were among those.

Topic of the meeting was the epidemic of deaths on the road due to alcohol related traffic accidents. Aim of the meeting was to bring together a group of influential people to resolve ways in which to combat this epidemic.

More are dying in traffic accidents than any of the major diseases or illnesses.

It was recommended to instill the idea that driving is a privilege and not a right, and more rigid standards should be established. Another suggestion was providing adequate legislation to allow doctors to conduct tests on drivers involved in accidents as to cause, especially blood alcohol tests.

The medical profession has come to recognize alcoholism as a disease but it is also a behavioral problem. It is a problem that must be stopped, as it is a killer on the highways. Inadequate penalties thus far has failed to stop it. There is a segment of society that will only act responsibly when faced with the ugly alternative of ever increasing sanctions.

A campaign was launched in Australia for compulsory blood alcohol level testing in hospitals of all traffic accident victims. Two thirds of the population supported this objective. In Canada there is no compulsory blood alcohol testing for accident drivers. The only way of dealing with the problem is via criminal code amendments which take federal legislation.

Public apathy is one of the greatest problems to overcome. Does it take the loss of a friend or family member for people to realize that the problem exists?

Safety council will continue to work with police and various groups to try and resolve the problem.

Pedestrian signal too short for oldtimers

By IRENE ORWICK

ALDERGROVE - I'm sure everyone was glad to see the snow go, no more power breaks. I was house bound for three weeks, and the only exercise for me was walking up and down the halls in the Alderhaven apartment complex. I ventured out while the sun was shining on January 27, and this is what happened to me. I had the green light in my favor and a gravel truck stopped as I was crossing north from the hotel corner. A car was coming from north Jackman. Its woman driver signalled a left turn, so I hurried to cross. The driver of the car came at the truck and I found myself between both vehicles. I just jumped ahead and through the corner of my eye saw it was still moving following me. I made it to the sidewalk very badly shaken, and then grateful I was not struck down. Then I became so angry; it was a clear case of driving without due care and attention. I did think maybe the truck driver could have taken her number. This pedestrian light is not on long enough for anyone to cross, before you have cars coming at you; many people have complained to me about this. I've asked many business people about it but no one seems to know.

The chamber of commerce should do something about the timing of these traffic lights.

Better farmworker facilities sought

MURRAYVILLE - "We have lots of unemployed people in Langley but they don't necessarily want to pick berries," Ald. Carol Gran told fellow councilors here Monday morning.

Gran said she had been contacted by a local farmer who wanted her help in obtaining a permit to place a mobile home on his property. Home would be used to house seasonal farm help, but because of local bylaws, permission had been denied by the building department.

Councilors agreed that proper housing would be preferable to the clapboard shacks of the past, and decided to look into changing the bylaw to provide for this and similar requests.

Most of the seasonal farm help in the district is bused out from Vancouver.

Beautify your neighbourhood. Get out on the street. Take a walk.

Lacrosse equipment swap and sale set for next week

MATSQUI - Minor lacrosse players who have outgrown their equipment can sell it for use by smaller players, or try to swap it for other gear, when Matsqui-Abbotsford Lacrosse Association holds an equipment exchange at its registration session this month.

Former players no longer using their sticks, pads and paraphernalia are also invited to make it available for sale or swap in the exchange.

It will be held at MSA arena from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, Feb. 27, at the same time as boys and girls aged six to 16 are registered for the spring-summer box lacrosse season.

People with equipment they would like to donate, swap or sell could call Joyce Grummet at 853-4578 for information on the exchange.

Some personal equipment used for lacrosse is much the same as that for hockey, such as: helmets, face masks, gloves, athletic supporters and cups; and for other sports, like knee pads, running shoes and practice shorts and T-shirts.

Used player equipment, if it's cleaned up and properly-sized, is quite suitable for most players; and it allows newcomers to try Canada's national sport with a minimum of cost.

Keeping costs as low as possible is the main idea behind the exchange.

The same goal has led the Matsqui-Abbotsford association to keep registration fees at the same low level as for the past few years, despite increased costs it faces for arena rental and team materials.

Team equipment is provided by the association, supported by donations from sponsors.

This includes special gear for goaltending; sponsor sweaters, shorts and socks; and game and practice balls.

Molson World Downhill will be busy week of competition

WHISTLER - A host of outstanding events will surround the Molson world downhill ski race here.

Race will take place on Whistler Mountain Saturday, February 27.

Special events will be staged in the week leading up to the big race, kicking off with colorful opening ceremonies in the Whistler town centre at 5:30 p.m. The opening ceremonies will include members of all the competing countries with music being supplied by the outstanding, award-winning Vancouver city police pipe band.

A loggers sports show will take place in the town centre at 4:30 p.m. on the Wednesday, featuring world champion Ron Hartell and many-time B.C. champion Owen Carney, both of Squamish.

A torchlight parade on the bottom part of Whistler and Blackcomb mountains will be held at 8 p.m. on Friday, race night eve.

Saturday, of course, is Molson world downhill race day, with the first racer due down the hill at 11 a.m.

Formal presentations and the closing ceremonies will take place in the town centre at 5 p.m.

A fireworks display is tentatively planned for 9 p.m. Saturday, near the finish line. It will be visible from all parts of the town centre.

It promises to be quite a week.

Pat Doyle

"Right now I wouldn't mind being traded. I'd rather stay with a team in Canada, but only if they could offer me some type of investment. I wouldn't want a shopping centre like Gretzky got, no way."
--Canadiens' Guy Lafleur

Lafleur was coerced into talking about the possibility of a trade the other day, but later emphasized he has no real hankering to depart from Montreal. It could be, however, that he'll seek to strike up a better financial deal with his present employers, les Canadiens, what with the new Canadian tax laws and all. Renegotiate, it's called.

Oh, we can hear you out there, howling about another money-grubbing athlete who refuses to live by the letter of his contract. Wrong. Lafleur, you see, is abiding by the conditions of his existing pact, except the document became outdated the night Allan MacEachen brought down his budget which eliminated an athlete's shelter for the future through annuities and deferred payments.

Is Lafleur to be chastised because he seeks to solidify his future?

Gerry Petrie, agent for the Canadiens' right winger thought he had done precisely that back in 1978 when he negotiated a portfolio which would carry Lafleur through his career and beyond. Today he claims the contract is useless.

"Sure it is," Petrie was saying recently. "Quite honestly, it's just not there anymore.

"His contract is very good even by today's standards, but the problem is that things have been turned around with one speech.

"I can see why any hockey player would want out of Canada. I understand Darryl Sittler's thoughts in leaving."

While he denies any suggestion that he and Lafleur plan to seek renegotiation of their present deal with les Canadiens at the conclusion of the 1981-82 season, Petrie did concede there are only two avenues open to his client if he wants to evade the Quebec tax bite (60%) and Canadian tax laws.

"They can either renegotiate or trade Guy to a team in the U.S.," said Petrie. "Quite honestly Guy Lafleur does not want to play anywhere but Montreal, and I don't think the Canadiens want to renegotiate. So, what do you do?"

Boycott perhaps. Possibly you'll recall the near-boycott of 1978, when Lafleur threatened to excuse himself from a game against the Maple Leafs if Montreal management didn't sit down at the bargaining table, as stipulated in his contract. An 11th-hour agreement was achieved and Lafleur played.

Today, he has a more taxing problem.

RALLIES AND DISPLAYS NEXT WEEK FOR BADEN-POWELL

Scouts to honor their 75th

ALDERGROVE - Celebrations will begin Feb. 21-22 in connection with the 75th anniversary of the birth of Canadian scouting.

Rallies and dispays will be featured in Langley and Aldergrove during scout-guide week, as well as in major cities all across the country.

In Aldergrove, there will be a joint rally at 2 p.m. on Sunday, Feb. 21, in the United Church, with Mun Hope as the speaker.

Parents and visitors are invited to the observance which will honor Lord and Lady Baden-Powell on the 125th anniversary of their birthdays.

Preceding the rally will be a parade of 1st Aldergrove beavers cubs and scouts. Also participating will be the three brownies, three guide groups and pathfinders of Alder district in uniform.

Religion and life badges will also be awarded. Displays will be presented during scout-guide week at Willowbrook mall and Aldergrove Centre by various district companies.

Since its inception about 75 years ago, more than 4.5 million Canadian boys have been involved in scouting.

When the first world war broke out, 70 percent of the scout leaders and all of the older boys left scouting to serve Canada overseas.

Nearly 100,000 joined the forces and 10,000 gave their lives.

Eleven won the Victoria Cross.

Two former Canadian north-country flying aces - C.H. (Punch) Dickens and W.R. (Wop) May - were both members of the First Scout Troop of Edmonton.

There are about 220,000 Canadian boys involved in scouting today, and also helping with third world relief efforts.

Similarly, the girl guides' motto is "Be prepared." Their slogan is "Do a good turn daily."

The laws of the girl guides are these:

A girl scout's honor is to be trusted.

A girl scout is loyal.

A girl scout's duty is to be useful and to help others.

A girl scout is a friend to all, and sister to every other girl scout.

A girl scout is courteous.

A girl scout is a friend to animals.

A girl scout obeys orders.

A girl scout is cheerful.

A girl scout is thrifty.

A girl scout is clean in thought, word and deed.

Aldergrove Scouting embraces boys and girls of all ages as represented by this group of local children. Canadian Scouting celebrates 75 years in Canada next week as Scouts throughout the world observe the birthday of their founder Lord Baden Powell.
R. McIlwain photo

When Lord Robert Baden-Powell organized the first scout group about 75 years ago, he had no idea that he was preparing the way for a world-wide program, in which girls as well as boys would take part.

With the aid of his sister, Agnes Baden-Powell, he met the girls' demand by organizing the girl guides.

The scout-guide movement continues to have a powerful influence throughout Canada and the rest of the world.

"This explains why traditional moral and spiritual values are still regarded as the real values by large numbers of students in Langley, Aldergrove and the Fraser Valley," said Hope.

A frequent speaker here at scout-guide rallies, he is scheduled to address the rally on Sunday afternoon. His talks have been appreciated by youth groups all across the country, attended often by one or two thousand young people at a time.

The SURVIVAL BOOK

"The Miracle of Weekly Mortgages" by Garth Turner

During the darkest hours of 1981, when mortgage rates topped an incredible 22%, when homeowners were marching on Ottawa and people were losing all equity in their property, a wonderful thing emerged.

It was discovered that several Canadian credit unions -- very quietly -- were allowing customers to make their mortgage payments weekly.

This simple, innocent act was giving these lucky few an option that was denied the rest of Canada by the traditional bank/trust company mortage establishment. It allowed them to own their own homes in half the time it was taking the rest of us. It allowed them to save tens of thousands of dollars in after-tax income. And it did all this with a very minor adjustment in the equivalent monthly payment. In fact, the incredible advantages of weekly mortgage payments were costing these people no more than one additional monthly payment a year, over conventional schemes.

When news of it broke, there was a clamoring excitement among those who heard. But still, too few are aware of exactly how the scheme works.

This is for people who are planning for a unique future instead of snoring through the conventional present. It destroys debt and promotes responsible ownership. It makes the most of your pre-tax paycheques and also makes a virtual joke of current high mortgage rates, when you divide them by the balance of a lifetime.

With weekly payments, your money is taken from a savings account every seven days and applied to the mortgage. The amount deducted is roughly a quarter of the conventional monthly payment.

The result is that you make the equivalent of one more payment a year. The key factor is that less interest accrues. Best of all, the extra few dollars each week go smack against the principal and you get to pay off the mortgage in less than half the time.

Take the example of a $30,000 mortgage. At the rate of 21½% (in effect last October and entirely possible by the same time this year), the monthly payment is $518. The weekly payment is $129.

After 10 years of weekly payments, you still owe just $7,000, and have paid out $44,000 in interest. You have saved about $20,000 in interest payments, or something not far off $200 a month. And you almost own your own home -- a happy day which comes just 12 years into the weekly mortgage instead of after 25 years with the conventional one.

Over the life this rather modest mortgage, the savings equal an incredible $73,000. That, of course, is enough to go out and buy a second property. Or a used Rolls-Royce.

This plan alone may make it reasonable for you to get out of the traditional banking stream and move your business to a credit union.

More and more across the country are offering the innovative new scheme. Check locally and find out.

Or try your lawyer. There are many wealthy people out there with funds to lend for private mortgages. Law offices are often the mating grounds for lender and borrower. And some of the more daring solicitors are now arranging weekly mortgages. Give it a shot.

Garth Turner is a business editor and columnist for The Toronto Sun.

His complete treatment of "Winning with Real Estate" forms part of THE SURVIVAL BOOK, available by sending $3.95 plus $1.00 for postage and handling to THE SURVIVAL BOOK, c/o this newspaper, Box 345, Station 'A', Toronto, Ontario M5W 1C2. Labor critic slams B.C. unemployment

VICTORIA - Labor critic Karen Sanford (NDP-Comox) last week demanded an immediate resumption of the legislature to implement an economic program that will alleviate B.C.'s unemployment crisis.

Sanford called for an emergency job creation program which would put unemployed British Columbians back to work.

Sanford was commenting on the unemployment figures released recently which show that B.C.'s rate has jumped to 9.8 percent. There are 129,000 British Columbians officially out of work.

"If you add to this figure the 'hidden unemployed', the numbers jump another 63,000 to an unemployment rate of 13.9 percent," Sanford said.

"Not since the depression has the economy been in such a severe situation. When action is so urgently needed, the Socred government has failed to respond with any policy or proposal that would strengthen the economy. Instead their tight money policies are aggravating the situation," Sanford charged.

Sanford said the province's present economic demise is the legacy of thirty years of no economic planning by successive Socred governments with no attempt to secure stable employment by diversifying our economic base, and processing our resources in this province, instead of selling them cheaply for short term benefit.

Robbery protection program

MURRAYVILLE - Because of the high cost of living and high percentage of unemployment, the crime rate is increasing. One crime that has risen drastically in the past year is robbery, particularly of businesses in the Langley-Aldergrove area.

According to a police spokesman owners should realize that their businesses are potential targets for the criminal element and unless steps are taken to minimize or reduce the opportunities of being robbed, the incidents of armed robberies will continue to increase.

Langley RCMP has a program designed to assist business owners in recognizing if their business is a potential robbery target. This program can be obtained by contacting the Langley RCMP crime prevention unit.

However, should you be the victim of a robbery, the RCMP request that you follow the undernoted guidelines:

After the robbery occurs; call the police. Stay on the line until you are told you can hang up. Answer all questions, as calmly as possible. The type of questions you will be asked by police concern themselves with the direction of travel of the criminals, time involved, whether or not a weapon was used in the commission of the crime, vehicle used, and possible accomplices. Next lock all the doors and do not serve customers that are in the store. If possible, detain any witnesses in the store, until police arrive. Obtain names and addresses if they do not remain. Do not touch anything that could have been handled by the suspects. Write down all the information you can remember; description, numbers of bait money, type of weapon used, vehicle used, and so on. When police arrive, answer their questions calmly and accurately.

Hopefully you will never be robbed, but if it should occur, and these guidelines are followed, the police have a chance of apprehending the culprits. More importantly, if the opportunities to execute armed robberies are minimized, the likelihood of personal injury and loss of property and valuables will be reduced also.

Lecture to address "past lives"

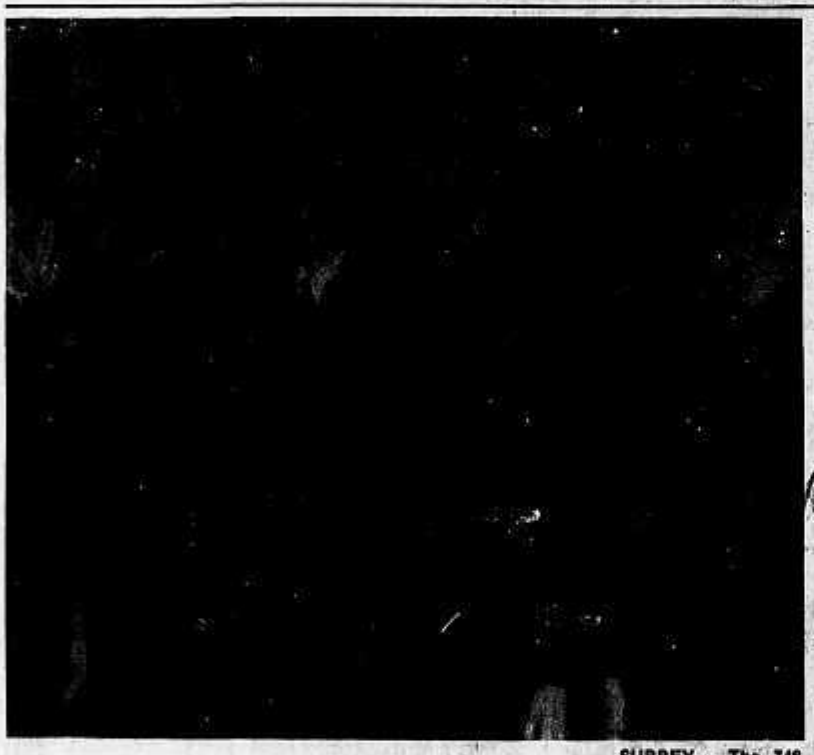
SURREY - On Wednesday, March 10, (7:15 - 9:00 p.m.) at Kwantlen College, Surrey campus, Steffan Bruyns will explore the topic of past lives and present effects using regression techniques.

Regression to a "former life" is only one form of hypnosis used to put people in touch with their unconscious. Another is "age regression" by which people visualize past experiences.

Age regression can be done in two ways. The subject can be an objective observer of himself-herself at an earlier time in life, the other form is revivification - experiencing in the first person.

The objective approach can allow a subject to reinterpret through an adult's eyes and let go of the experiences that tend to limit him-her in their everyday life.

The lecture is free and open to the public. For further information contact Kwantlen College at 588-4411.



SURREY - The 748 Air Cadet squadron which meets Monday nights at 5424 - 148 Street is presenting corporal promotions to LAC Mullick, Wilder, Price and Whitehead. Any interested males or females between the ages of 13 and 18 may join. For further information phone 594-1762 Monday evenings.

Canadiana popular as antiques

A most attractive collection of Canadiana solid oak antiques are now showing at Smith Brothers Antiques in Fort Langley.

Most popular among this collection is a bow front oak china cabinet with hand carved lion's claw feet. This is a beautiful piece of finely finished furniture.

Along with this piece is an assortment of dining room tables and chairs.

You are missing fine pieces of antique furniture if you neglect calling in at this fine establishment.

OBITUARY

WWI vet died in 87th year

LEE. One of the few remaining veterans of World War One, Mr. Ingval William Lee, 3206 - 264 Street, Aldergrove, died December 5th, in the Maple Hill extended care wing of Langley Memorial hospital. He was in his 87th year.

Mr. Lee, a retired farmer, had been a Langley resident for the past thirty years. He was born in Hendrum, Minnesota, USA, on March 19, 1895, and came north to Canada as a young man of 17 years in 1912. He came to B.C. in 1951, settling on County Line Road in the Aldergrove area. Mr. Lee was a member of Aldergrove branch No. 265, Royal Canadian Legion.

Family surviving his passing are: his wife, Aliette; two sons, Chester at Clearwater, and Bill in Aldergrove; three daughters, Mrs. George (Olga) Judd at Princeton, Rose in Coquitlam, and Irene Fentie, also at Coquitlam; two grandchildren, Gary and Sharon Judd in Kelowna; three brothers and numerous nieces and nephews.

Rev. P. Schmidt conducted the funeral service for the late I.W. Lee on December 9th, at 1:30 p.m. in the chapel of Henderson's Langley Funeral Home. Cremation followed at Victory Park crematorium in Surrey.

This Week in Canada

On February 15, in 1690, Canadiens from Montreal massacred Schenectady, N.Y., and in 1839, the "War of pork and beans" began along the New Brunswick-Maine border.

On February 16, in 1686, the second issue of playing card money was released, and in 1870, Louis Riel established a provisional government at Red River.

On February 17, in 1802, Alexander Mackenzie, the first man to cross the continent, was knighted, and in 1812, John Henry, a spy for Britain, received $50,000 from U.S. for revealing his activities.

On February 18, in 1869, Patrick Whelan was hanged publicly in Ottawa for the murder of D'Arcy McGee, and in 1942, Atlantic coast shipping suffered heavy losses by German U-boats.

RRSP season is brisk at credit unions

CLOVERDALE - The Registered Retirement Savings Plan "season" is upon us and, according to a local credit union official, investment in RRSP's should be brisk inspite of the changes proposed in the recent federal budget.

Wayne Carpenter, chief executive officer of the eight-branch Surrey Credit Union, says that RRSP's continue to be the best way to save for retirement while deferring taxes.

"While there may be modifications to the government's RRSP proposals, I still feel most people will not be affected by the planned changes to Registered Retirement Savings Plans."

Carpenter notes the following major changes to RRSP's as proposed in the federal budget:

- Interest on money borrowed to contribute to a plan - and other income deferral plans - is no longer tax deductible. This does not apply to loans taken out before the budget.
- People who are members of a deferred profit sharing plant - to which the employer contributes - will face a reduced tax deductible contribution to an RRSP. It goes from $5,500 in 1981 to $3,500 in 1982. The maximum deductible contribution to an RRSP as a member or non-member of an employer-sponsored pension plan remains the same.
- The government will begin limiting the $1,000 pension deduction - to those retired - only on pension and life annuity income received on a periodic basis. It will not apply in the year on which contributions are made. The exception applies to those contributions deducted by an employer in the year of retirement before pension payments begin.
- A tax-free transfer to an RRSP of a retiring allowance will be allowed for a person who was a member of a registered pension plan or a deferred profit-sharing plan. Such transfers will be limited to $2,000 for each year during which the individual was employed by the employer who paid the allowance, and was a member of the employer's RRP or DPSP. It is also proposed to allow the tax-free transfer to an RRSP of a retiring allowance in the amount of $3,500 for each year during which the employee was a member of an RRP or DPSP of his employer but the employers' contributions to the plan did not vest to the individual.
- In acknowledging the increase of court-ordered division of family assets (including RRSP's) following marriage break-up, the budget allows an individual to transfer tax-free, funds from an RRSP of a spouse or former spouse living apart. However, the withdrawal will be taxable if they begin living together again within twelve months of the date of the order.
- Beginning with the 1981 taxation and thereafter, non-residents can transfer funds to an RRSP, tax-free, from a registered pension plan or deferred profit sharing plan.

Carpenter cautions that there are other changes and further details should be investigated before investing in a plan.

"As for the variety of plans being offered today, I am still surprised many people think RRSP's are quite similar.

"For example, in the case of my own financial institution, Surrey Credit Union, we offer a plan that is quite different than some others on the market.

"Some plans have quite a few hidden fees - such as start-up, closing-out, and commissions. Our plan has absolutely no fees.

"There are RRSP's which calculate interest on the minimum monthly balance. Our plan calculates interest on the daily closing balance and pays it semi-annually. The rate, too, of course, is very important.

"You can choose between a variable rate and a fixed term plan - both have their advantages. At Surrey Credit Union we offer both types."

Carpenter also emphasizes the uniqueness of local administration of the Surrey Credit Union Registered Retirement Savings Plan;

"I believe our plan is the only one trusteed right here in the western Fraser Valley. That gives real convenience to a member who wants fast information on his or her plan. Our staff are on the job six days a week at the administration office to answer inquiries from both members and non-members who are thinking about investing with us.

"In addition, although the interest on a loan used to purchase an RRSP is no longer tax deductible, we do have an attractive loan package available for those people who would like to borrow the funds to invest in a plan.

"I would strongly recommend people compare plans before making their investment," Carpenter says. "With the march 1 deadline for a 1981 tax benefit just a few weeks away, it would be a good idea for people to make their move as soon as possible to avoid the last-minute rush."

CATTLE MARKET REPORT

McClary Stockyard

ABBOTSFORD - Prices were higher last week at McClary Stockyards on all classes of slaugher cattle. Cows were $2 to $3 higher per cwt. than last week selling to a very strong export demand. 541 head of cattle and calves were sold.

Fraser Valley Auctions

LANGLEY - Fraser Valley Auctions on 56 Avenue report light receipts on cattle and hogs for the week due to bad weather conditions. Holstein heifers were of much better quality but met with buyer resistance on most classes, especially fresh heifers. There is a strong demand for open and bred Holstein heifers and are in short supply with one on offer. Feeder cattle were steady with prices unchanged from the previous week. Hogs sold well to a good demand. Goats are making good prices throughout but sheep are hard to sell and met with lower prices.

Dairy Cattle

Good quality Holstein heifers by the head $940-$1550, medium quality Holstein heifers $860-$935, fresh Holstein cows and heifers $330-$460. No open Holstein heifers on offer.

Feeder Cattle

Grown Whiteface heifer by the head $190-$225, Angus, Angus cross heifers $270-$290, Holstein and Holstein cross steer calves $105-$155.

Baby Calves

Good Holstein bull calves $40-$60, medium Holstein bull calves $15-$35, beef type calves $52.50-$60.00.

Hogs

Small weiners $15.00-$25.00, good quality large weiners $27.00-$39.00, light feeders $50.00-$70.00, heavy feed boars $50.00-$80.00, good butcher hogs $115.00-$137.00.

Sows

$122.00-$145.00.

Goats

Nanny's $55.00-$97.00, billy's $92.50-$110.00, yearling's $30.00-$37.50, kids, $18.00-$25.00.

Sheep

Ewes $17.50-$50, $40.00-$57.50.

This Week in Canada

On February 19, in 1816, St. John's, Newfoundland, was heavily damaged by fire, and in 1902, the Territorial Grain Growers Association was founded in Saskachewan.

On February 20, in 1947, the Leduc oil well began boom in Alberta, and in 1949, asbestos workers began their strike in Quebec.

Selecting computers: How to decide?

VANCOUVER - Buying your first home computer is no easy task. Getting some clear facts and advice is the first step. The centre for continuing education at the University of B.C. is offering a workshop to help people choose the appropriate home computer that best suits their needs.

On Saturday, March 6, Lynn Richards, president of a Vancouver consulting firm, will explain what to look for in a personal computer, how it can be used, what the hidden costs are, and where to find out more.

For registration information, call the UBC centre for continuing education at 228-2181 and ask for computer science.

TOP CARS IN THE SWEDES' LEAGUE ON THE ROAD . . .
by Motoring Editor ROY SPICER — British Sunday Mirror
JAPANESE cars star at the top — and bottom — of a new list of the world's most reliable cars.
Top is Mazda. Bottom is Honda.
In Sweden all vehicles must be inspected after they are two years old — rather like our MoT system. Unlike us the Swedes publish the results of their inspections.
This year the Swedish Motor Vehicle Inspection Company examined cars which first came on the road in 1979. Sixty-nine per cent of them came through the tests with no faults. The rest had one or more faults.
So any car with a higher pass rate than 69 per cent is better than average.
The Swedish company's results show that the two-litre Mazda 626 which sells at $12,210 in ($12,594 for the coupe version, pictured) was the most reliable car on the road with 83 per cent of the models passing with no faults.
Second best was another Mazda, the 1415 c.c. Mazda 323 estate ($9,918) with a faultless 81 per cent.
Others in the top group were: Opel Kadett (79 per cent), BMW 518/520, Volkswagen Derby and Volkswagen Passat (all 78), Fiat 127, Fiat 128 and Mercedes 230 (77) and Talbot Horizon and Volvo 344 (76).
The Ford Cortina comes spot on average - 69 per cent. Other Ford cars do better. The Ford Granada 2-litre achieves a 70 per cent fault-free pass rate and the Ford Escort and Granada 2.8 get 74 per cent.
THE WORST
Because Britain sells so few cars in Sweden there is no mention of any BL vehicles or Vauxhalls.
Worst in the Swedish fault league were the Honda Civic and Citroen GS (both 56 per cent). They were followed by the Saab 900 (58), Renault 5 (59), Honda Accord (60), Fiat Strada, Volkswagen, Golf Diesel and Volvo 345 (61) and Audi 100 and Peugeot 305 (62).

Test topper: the Mazda 626

Shortsightedness in the youth linked to sugar consumption

WASHINGTON - Development of shortsightedness in children and teenagers can be linked to excessive consumption of refined sugar and of non-dairy proteins, an optometrist said at the recent annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science.

Ben Lane, of the Institute of Human Nutrition at Columbia University, New York, based his assertion on the results of a recently completed 110-person study of the relationship between increasing myopia, dietary intake and calcium and chromium levels, as measured by hair analysis.

"A large proportion of refined sugars in the diet is a significant risk factor in the development of myopic disease," Lane said.

Metabolizing of sucrose or refined sugar depletes the body of a variety of vitamins and minerals, particularly chromium, Lane said. Sufficient chromium is believed to be important for sustaining the ability of the eye to adjust readily to different focal lengths.

LEADS TO MYOPIA

Insufficient chromium, the optometrist said, when combined with frequent and intensive close work, leads to an increase in the intra-ocular pressure of the eye. The increase in intraocular pressure eases to some extent the work that the ciliary muscles of the eye have to do in order to maintain focus in close work, Lane said, but this adjustment process sets the stage for the development of myopia.

Eating simple sugars in their unrefined form in fruit and vegetables produces no such problems of chromium insufficiency, Lane said, since the mineral occurs naturally in such unrefined foods.

Lane also said that enough calcium in a diet is crucial to warding off the development of shortsightedness, particularly in children and teenagers. Calcium, like chromium, is believed to have important functions in maintaining normal intra-ocular pressure.

Myopia develops particularly rapidly during periods of rapid growth, Lane said, because at these times calcium is readily shunted aside to contribute to the needs of the growing skeleton, the optometrist said.

A diet rich in non-dairy proteins, particularly large amounts of meat, is likely to supply too much phosphorus and too little calcium, Lane said. As extra phosphorus is removed from the body, he noted, it takes calcium with it, thus producing a calcium debt.

Just as not enough calcium contributes to development of myopia, Lane said, diets high in dairy products are associated with ocular stability in young adults.

Lane noted that he did not wish to de-emphasize the importance, when doing close work, of having good lighting and a reasonable distance from the eyes to the focal point.

"However, given two people who are both doing a lot of close work, the one with plentiful calcium in the diet and relatively little sugar will certainly be much better off in terms of running less risk of developing or increasing myopia."

Stress response can have career impact

By PAT LEE

The way we react to stressful situations and how we eventually deal with them, will to a large extent, determine how effective we will be in the professions that we choose.

We have all heard the story about the competent craftsman who upon promotion to first level supervisor becomes a nervous wreck and eventually must resign.

Few of us will argue the point that certain stressful situations are beyond our control: a sudden death in the family, a serious car accident, or a robbery attempt will evoke a stress response in every human being. Fortunately, these traumatic events are usually few and far between.

More common, however, are events such as being reprimanded by the boss, being stuck in a traffic jam or receiving a minor traffic ticket.

In certain types of people, these relatively trivial events can evoke as serious a reaction as a traumatic situation can. Other individuals are able to cope with these minor inconveniences with little more than a frown.

The message rings loud and clear. It is not so much the situation that stresses us, but rather it is how we perceive that situation. We can all benefit by pausing and analyzing a stressful event before we fly off the handle.

We can ask ourselves whether it is really worth it to run three amber lights in heavy traffic. Was it that important to get the annual report in on time. Is it really the end of the world because my son failed Grade 4?

Certainly these events can have an effect on our lives, but how significant are they in the overall picture? Are these events so important that they will matter a year from now? More often than not the answer is no.

My advice? Don't get mad at the tellers the next time you are at the end of a long line-up at the bank. Think of all the interest you're earning!

Kero-Sun may be answer for cold room

TORONTO - While we would like to imagine that after January, the coldest weather is over, as often as not the most serious storms occur in February and March.

Homeowners may discover, after this winter's recent blasts, that their central heating systems were not keeping one or two rooms in their houses warm. Although it's too cold outside to caulk, weatherstrip or install storm windows, there are still ways to increase comfort and save some money.

Insulating the attic can regain as much as 30 percent of heat which would otherwise escape. Doing the job now instead of next year could substantially reduce your heating bill.

For drafty windows, interior storm windows can be installed. Kits for standard size windows are available for under ten dollars and the windows can be installed in just a few minutes. Although the windows are made of plastic, they are just as effective as glass storm windows and will last a number of years if they are handled with care.

Another energy-saving product that is easy to use and requires no installation is the portable kerosene heater. If you use a heater to heat just one or two rooms and set your thermostat back, you can cut your central heating costs significantly.

She Sleds! She Smiles! She Scores!
Some Saturday, The Queen Will Come...

When is the Queen coming, we hear you cry?
Why on a Saturday, of course!

What better day than a Saturday to fly into Ottawa, drop off Canada's perskickety papers and have a cuppa with the prime minister?

(What kind of tea is this, Pierre? Only in Canada, you say? Pity).

For weeks CBC bureaucrats have huddled with their private television counterparts, the better to coordinate Royal Visit Coverage for a nation of cold boob-toobers, huddled before their twinkling TV screens, waiting for the Journal to come on.

Among the Top Secrets of the Upcoming Once-Upon-A-Constitution visit the bureaucrats already know:

☐ The Queen's bring-back-the-BNA visit will start on a Saturday and end on a Tuesday, lasting four days in all. Due to circumstances beyond the CBC's control, the date is open. But it will be a Saturday. Who knows these things if not the CBC? Nobody.

☐ One Photo Opportunity which no camera crew will dare miss will be the Queen's sleighride along the Rideau Canal! That's right! The Queen is going sledding along the world's longest ice rink. Mutters one Ottawa observer: "Perhaps the coordinators can arrange the Rideau ride during one of Ottawa's dozens of spring thaws."

Splish splash, she was takin' a bath...

Sipping More Sweetly

It's not easy drinking in the 1980s.

So how lucky that our friends at Watley's — the Canadian wine and liquor merchants — have sent their official Drinkers' Fault-Finding Chart.

SYMPTOM: Drinking fails to give satisfaction.
FAULT: Mouth not open, or glass being applied to wrong part of face.
ACTION TO TAKE: Buy another pint and practise in front of a mirror.

SYMPTOM: Drinking fails to satisfy and beer unusually pale and clear.
FAULT: Glass empty.
ACTION TO TAKE: Find somebody to buy another pint.

SYMPTOM: Feet cold and wet.
FAULT: Improper bladder control.
ACTION TO TAKE: Stand next to bar owner's dog. Complain about house-training and demand a pint as compensation.

SYMPTOM: Bar blurred.
FAULT: You are looking through bottom of empty glass.
ACTION TO TAKE: Find somebody to buy another pint.

SYMPTOM: You notice the wall is covered with ceiling tiles and there is a fluorescent light strip on it.
FAULT: You have fallen over backwards.
ACTION TO TAKE: If your glass is full and no one is standing on your arm, stay put. Or summon help and lash yourself to the bar.

SYMPTOM: Everything has gone dim.
FAULT: You have fallen over forwards.
ACTION TO TAKE: See above.

SYMPTOM: Everything has gone dark.
FAULT: The bar is closing.
ACTION TO TAKE: Panic.

SYMPTOM: You wake up to find the bed hard and you cannot see the bedroom walls or ceiling.
FAULT: You're sleeping in the gutter.
ACTION TO TAKE: Check your watch to see if the bar has opened yet. If not, sleep in.

Should we even bother to come back from lunch?

Bopcats are simply fun

By KURT LANGMANN

As a "closet" rockabilly music nut, I couldn't resist taking the time to see The Bopcats last Friday evening at Coquitlam's Boo Pub. As I have not yet heard their first and only album, on the Attic-CBS label, I had no idea of what to expect from this Toronto quartet, although I was hoping for that correct combination of rock and roll, boogie woogie and country music.

When the band took to the stage, I began to have reservations. The band was young; like myself they were barely infants when rockabilly stars like Gene Vincent, Link Davis, Eddie Cochran, Jerry Lee Lewis and Rudy "Tutti" Grayzell started the crazy rocking scene. In addition, The Bopcats' dress and their wild coifs piled high on the head was ridiculous; more like a caricature of those times than anything else.

However, my doubts were quickly put to rest once the band plugged in and launched into the Presley classic, Little Sister. Anyone can dress the part, but true talent cannot be faked.

Singer Sonny Baker in his pressed slacks and flashy sports-jacket cuts an impressive figure, dancing and singing up a storm. Teddy Fury is a powerhouse despite his diminutive stature, relentlessly driving his basic Rogers drum kit and riding the multitude of cymbals. Zeke Rivers, the chunky bassist, was rock solid and reliable bottom for the band.

The biggest surprise was the lean but supple guitarist, Jack Dekeyzer. Looking like a young Keith Richards, Dekeyzer was a wealth of standard and original licks and solos on his basic, old Fender Telecaster. His technique bridged the old and new approaches to the guitar, while retaining the melodic ideas of the song in his solos. He was, in short, amazing.

The band's energy was a thrill to watch, and they soon had the full attention of the 400 pub patrons. They ripped through ninety minutes of mostly originals like Rocket (their first hit single in eastern Canada and England), barely pausing for breath between songs, and slowing down for a ballad only twice in the set. They also acknowledged early Motown with covers of Stop Tearing Up My Heart and the Four Tops' Yesterday's Dreams. The crowd ate it up, demanded an encore, and received a spirited version of the Burnette brothers' classic Rock Billy Boogie.

Later backstage I tell The Bopcats that they've put the fun back into rock. As Dekeyzer says, "We're very visual and we're good to dance to. There's no heavy message there. It's simple escapism."

Sonny Baker adds, "we're not a novelty act either. We feel that we're very modern and we want to break into the mainstream. We have something to offer to that wide audience."

"Take the punk crowd, for example. They'll follow an act around, but they want you to give them the records, tickets - all give, give, give. But they won't really support anyone, by say phoning radio stations to request your songs. That's alright up to a point, but it's a strange attitude, don't you agree?"

Dekeyzer and Baker write most of the band's material, and judging by the reaction that night, a lot of people can relate to The Bopcats' spirited sense of fun.

Dave Booth, the genial, grey-haired manager has accompanied the band on this, their third trip to the west. The band, he says, has earned good money, but the high costs of touring have whittled the cash down to less than nothing.

"The boys figure it as a lost trip, but we've gotten publicity that money can't buy in the local press, radio and television. We hope to cut a new album shortly and be back on an even stronger foot here this summer."

The band is three years old, but Rivers and Dekeyzer joined in the past year and have toughened up the sound and stage presence. Dekeyzer has valuable experience as a former member of King Biscuit Boy and the Ronnie Hawkins band. He also played in rockabilly star Robert Gordon's band after Chris Spedding left for a solo career and before Danny Gatton took over guitar duties.

Booth naturally figures that the times are ripe for The Bopcats, but I point out that Robert Gordon's recent lp was an excellent and modern rockabilly album, yet it received practically zero airplay on rock radio.

Booth counters that three years ago no one remembered rockabilly and Robert Gordon changed all that by raising public consciousness about the musical form. "When I see 400 people dancing and cheering, I figure it's only a matter of time. There's nothing that can stop a hit - if Percy Sledge had released When A Man Loves A Woman in 1981 it would have been a hit. A classic is timeless, and The Bopcats have that potential."

Album review: Mellow music

By KURT LANGMANN

Sirens In The City
Black Slate
(Vertigo-PolyGram)

A fine follow-up to last year's Amigo album from one of reggae music's finest acts. The gentle tropical rhythms are rock-steady, the songs are lovely, uplifting melodies for dancing or easy listening, and singer Keith Drummond has a very handsome voice.

Like most of their "third world" cousins, Black Slate is frustrated with the gulf between their impoverished circumstances and our developed western lifestyle, (graphically depicted on the lp cover is a lovely Jamaican bay with a shantytown on one shore and a Hilton on the other) but their message is one of love and outreach. Violence or submission is not their solution; Jah and the promise of Zion is.

Beautiful music such as this may not stop the exploitation, but it certainly commands respect and admiration from any race, creed or color. Highly recommended.

Why Do Fools Fall In Love
Diana Ross
(RCA)

Ross, the original lead of Motown Records' top-selling Supremes, has released her first album with her new label, RCA. As one can see (quite amply, I might add) on the cover, and can hear in the nine new tracks, Ross is still in tremendous shape.

The title track is a real mover; nice horn and string arrangements, the bass-lines are a treat and Ross sails through the melody with ease. Sweet Surrender is sassy but gentle funk with Eric Gale's inimitable guitar stylings. Work That Body is for the 'fitness freaks' (like my wife, Sylvia) and is a challenge to keep up with.

Ross breaks no new ground here, but it's a good sound that will make a lot of people happy.

Spies Of Life
Player
(RCA)

Player, a white quartet, play a funky but laidback concoction that works very well in limited doses, but an album of their material can get wearisome. Unlike, say the Average White Band, they never really "kick out" with inspired energy.

Still there are some good tracks, particularly If Looks Could Kill, It Only Hurts When I Breathe, and I'd Rather Be Gone. Most borders on the ludicrous, such as Thank You For The Use of Your Love(?).

Still it might be just the thing for your boudoir. If not, buy the singles.

Ten Out Of 10
10cc
(Mercury-PolyGram)

The long-awaited new album from Graham Gouldman and Eric Stewart, otherwise known as 10cc is finally available. Fans will certainly be pleased and it also has the potential to attract new fans.

Their tight, melodic and harmonic construction sticks to their established pattern as does their tendency for biting, sardonic wit.

Don't Turn Me Away is currently a popular single, but another ballad, Memories sounds so right to my ears. A Stewart and Gouldman collaboration, Memories has good lyrics, attractive melody and harmonies, and time signature changes that grab and hold the listener.

Notell Hotel is a humorous, inoffensive flight of their fancy, as is Overdraft In Overdrive. Reggae rhythms figure in several songs too; such as Don't Ask.

Les Nouveaux Riches has superbly synthesized marimbas and a propulsive rhythm.

Some great stuff here; recommended.

Paperbacks in review

Elspeth Huxley's The Flame Trees of Thika, currently being serialized on PBS, recounts Huxley's childhood in Kenya where her family arrived as pioneering settlers in 1913, egged on by fantastic (and exaggerated) tales of fortunes to be made in coffee plantations. It's a fascinating book, full of African lore, and telling of harsh life the settlers faced when they arrived. Despite marauding leopards and swarms of insects, the settlers maintained a stiff British upper lip, importing pianos for their after-dinner entertainment and dining with fine china and silverware, to the fascination of the Kikuyu natives. (Penguin; $3.95)

So Short A Time, by Barbara Gelb, tells the story of the love affair between Louise Bryant and John Reed, two American revolutionaries immortalized in Warren Beatty's movie Reds. The book tells of Bryant's boredom with her first marriage in Portland, Oregon, and her search for a man with whom she would not necessarily fall in love, but someone who would take her from the Oregon backwater to New York's Greenwich Village. Reed arrived on cue, and Bryant fell in love and followed him to New York. (Berkley; $2.95)

A Book of Railway Journeys, compiled by Ludovic Kennedy is a collection of stories about trains — including the first railway journey from Stockton to Darlington, Sept. 27, 1825, when George Stephenson drove engine "No. 1" at the alarming speed of 12 miles an hour and which caused as much excitement as the Space Shuttle does today. One piece by Charles Dickens gives an account of a journey from Boston to Lowell, Mass. in 1842. (Collins; $5.95)

Canadian Business

BY GARTH TURNER

Be aggressive.

If you've been diddling about buying a house with borrowed money, do it now.

The same goes for a car loan. Or money borrowed to buy an RRSP.

The yellow flag is out — and it hasn't really been there since late last summer. We have just walked into a situation which feels familiar and outrageous. If you have debt coming due or new borrowings to think about, well, I'm sorry.

On top of current inflation and unemployment, along with soaring business failures and recession, we are now certain to be burdened with higher interest rates — and soon.

Recently, two more big U.S. banks — Chemical and Chase Manhattan — goosed their lending rates. This happened because both borrowings and money supply in the U.S. are once again out of control. Washington wants tight money, and rates get the shove.

This isn't the case in Canada, where we are languishing through an economic disaster. Loans here are down. Rates should go down with them. But it is impossible.

High American rates are coupled with the kind of economic dope we're dealing in Canada to dump on the stock market and dust the dollar. Playing the points, we're told, is the Bank of Canada — it believes the dollar must remain strong. If it doesn't, inflation rages.

Naturally, this will deepen and lengthen the recession, throwing more people out of work while the feds battle to save our currency's virginity.

Right. Is she worth it?

However — you already know the likely results.

For the rest of 1982, anything it takes borrowed money to buy — like cars and houses — will be in sad shape, indeed.

Housing prices have already fallen about 20% across Canada — with the reversal being especially painful in those areas (like B.C.) where buyers (speculators) went particularly hairy.

There will be more softening in the real estate market. That much is now clear. If you are buying and have a big cash downpayment, this is great.

It is, and will be, an exceptional time to buy.

But selling is another story. Vendors will be forced to recognize this painful need to chop prices, while at the same time taking back mortgages at less than current rates.

Those take-back mortgages, by the way, are considered to be taxable income by Revenue Canada. Sellers are getting it in the neck several times over.

Big new mortgage rates will also clobber a faltering real estate industry, while driving new home prices skyward — if there's anyone left out there actually building houses.

Meanwhile, any further increase in consumer loan rates will only make the plight of autoworkers and their companies worse. Already, the situation is deathly serious.

Chrysler's U.S. loan guarantee board says it's not sure the corporation can make it. General Motors has just lost more than $700 million, and Ford is in worse shape. All that's keeping American Motors alive is its involvement with Renault.

All the reasons we fell into this recession, then, are coming back for a second go.

The pestilence of tight money and high interest rate policies are again being visited upon your family.

You can reach the governor of the Bank of Canada at (613) 563-8303. Or you may want to try him at home, (613) 733-5710.

I'm sure he'd appreciate the dialogue.

True love conquers all in local hit comedy

Mel takes comfort in the prospect of revenge on his neighbour, as wife Edna calls for help in the fast-paced comedy, "The Prisoner of Second Avenue", now playing at Abbotsford Little Theatre.

By KURT LANGMANN

The Abbotsford Little Theatre group launched their new home for fine arts, the Laurel Street Arts Centre, with Thursday night's opening of the Neil Simon comedy, "The Prisoner Of Second Avenue."

The production is a typical light comedy in the Simon style, and features commendable performances from the cast of six in the well-paced, seamless story of hard luck and love.

Director Bill Green has brought out the best aspects of the actors and script. The pointed wisecracks and good humor amidst the pathos of the situation which the Edison couple, Mel (Alan Clift) and Edna (Beda Martin) suddenly find themselves in, help to keep the tone light. Still it's a frequently touching and continuously absorbing entertainment which left the audience delighted.

Mel is generally down on his luck; out of his career job, with a wife to support as well as daughters at college depending upon him. He's got a start on his "later years", his analyst has just departed for the great clinic in the sky, and his home is burglarized. In short, he's humiliated and demoralized, and finds it too difficult to cope. Every little thing in his little Second Avenue apartment cubbyhole or "prison" begins to bother him, and through him, his dear wife Edna.

Edna is of a similar independent nature and through her strength the Edisons cope with the day to day necessities, and Mel finally regains his inner pride in the face of true adversity. The proverbial bonds of true love conquer all, et cetera - however, one cannot resist exulting in Mel's final, humorous triumph at the end of the story.

The scene with Mel's three sisters and elder brother provides a good many laughs.

Kathie Nash is parsimonious, purse-lipped perfection as Pauline; Mary Stewart and Marjorie Thomson are the concerned but somewhat addle-brained Pearl and Jessie; and Bert Turner is the well-intentioned, insecure Harry. They all prove themselves incapable of much more than moral support (and perhaps not even that).

Considering today's unemployment rate, ICBC blues and high interest rates, this is relevant comedy that will help put the current economic situation in its proper perspective. Enjoyment is assured.

Performances run Thursday to Saturday at 8:30 p.m. until February 27, and tickets are available at the front office of the Aldergrove Star (no service charge) or reservations can be made by calling 852-2787.

Dinner theatre combination tickets (at the nearby Copper Kettle Restaurant) are also available.

Season tickets are also still on sale. March's production will be Tennessee Williams' drama, "Summer And Smoke" and April's feature is the Ray Cooney & John Chapman comedy, "Move Over, Mrs. Markham".

The Vagabond Players will present their final performance of the children's matinee this February 20 at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m., featuring "Rumplestiltskin" and "The Three Billy Goats Gruff".

The Unicorn Theatre troupe will present children's matinees later in March and early April with "Pinochio" and "East Of The Sun, West Of The Moon".

McCallum Players will also use the new facility for Agatha Christie's "Murder At The Vicarage", a Miss Marpole murder mystery in late May and early June.

Tickets for all these events are available now and information can be had by calling 852-2787.

Plans are underway for a number of other note-worthy events in the new Laurel Street Arts Centre, and The Star will keep readers informed of further developments and productions.

Located at Montrose Street and Laurel Street, in a former church, the Arts Centre has been transformed into a cozy, yet reasonably large theatre upstairs, by a large crew of volunteers. The downstairs area is still somewhat rough around the edges, but when completed will boast of a comfortable lounge, dressing and storage rooms, work rooms, kitchen and restrooms.

The works of local artists are featured on the walls on a monthly rotational basis, and the theatre is also available to the public for a reasonable rental fee.

The theatre is managed by Greengable Production Association, a registered non-profit society, whose object is the betterment of the performing arts in the Fraser Valley. They can be reached at 852-(ARTS)2787 on weekdays and Saturdays. Managing artistic director, Bill Green and office manager Margo Todd will be pleased to answer any inquiries regarding shows, rentals and displays.

Actors sought for comedy

ABBOTSFORD - Auditions for the third production of the Abbotsford Little Theatre's premiere season of the British farce 'Move Over, Mrs. Markham', by John Chapman and Ray Cooney will take place Sunday February 21, at 2 p.m. at the Laurel Street arts center on the corner of Laurel and Montrose in Abbotsford.

If you are interested in auditioning you should call the arts center at 852-2787 for further information. The cast requires many middle aged men of British extraction along with as many charming and sophisticated ladies that care to audition. Along with performers the director needs backstage personnel, carpenters, props people, costume seamstresses, painters, who can work in the mornings and afternoons as well as the evenings.

The play is directed by Paul Goodrich of New Westminster, who has directed many shows for various lower mainland theatre groups.

Marta Smylie featured in one-woman show at Centre

ABBOTSFORD - The Laurel Street arts center has opened its Gallery with the works of well known artist Marta Smylie. Marta's exhibit will be on display at the Laurel Street arts center until March 6. Gallery is open daily from 9 to 5 p.m. and there is no charge. People who attend the Abbotsford Little Theatre production of "Prisoner of 2nd Avenue" will have a chance to view Smylie's work before the performance and at the intermission.

Marta Smylie, a former Vancouver Island resident, moved to Aldergrove four years ago. Her art began at Malaspina College in Nanaimo, where she took sculpture, pottery and design. In order for her to continue her studies, she enrolled at Fraser Valley College for the two year painting and drawing course.

Smylie spent last summer in the wilderness in the Yukon and brought home the vibrance of the north. She has exhibited her works in many galleries and at juried arts exhibits.

Take time to visit the area's newest addition to the cultural scene, and see Smylie's exhibit. Artists interested in exhibiting their works should call the Laurel Street art center at 852-ARTS (2787) for further information.

'The Seeing Brain' will amaze

Here's a recipe for visual perception; bounce some light waves off an object and send them into an eye. Let the eye transform the pattern of light into electrical impulses and send them to the brain. In the brain, mix well with experience, environment and preconceived notions, and voila!...you have an image of the object. How well does that image compare with reality? That depends on the brain that is doing the seeing.

The contradictions in this famous M.C. Escher lithograph, Waterfall [1961], show that it is possible to draw in two dimensions that which is impossible in three.

'The Seeing Brain' show at the Fort Langley Museum presents many interesting and amusing perception displays.

R. McIlwain photo

It is the brain that really sees, not the eyes. And that is the point made by the Langley Centennial Museum and National Exhibition Centre's current show, The Seeing Brain. The exhibit focuses on the three elements of vision; light, the eye, and the brain. Illusions and perception tests demonstrate the way we see and how the brain can be deceived. The eye's structure and function are outlined and actual specimens of animals' eyes and brains are on display. A third section deals with the brain and how it interprets the messages it receives from the eyes. In all of the displays, there are buttons to push and objects to manipulate. Children and their families thoroughly enjoy this exhibit!

By turning spirals, peering through boxes, squinting at images, looking through tinted spectacles, focusing on objects and otherwise eyeing the exhibit, participants have an altogether new view of their eyes and how they work.

Amazing things happen. Yellow beer appears in thin air. A bird magically is found in a previously empty cage. Distinct pictures emerge from a mass of dots. Still images begin to move. An index finger momentarily disappears and a laughing mask grins backwards. It all depends, of course, on how one looks at things.

To explain the link between the eye and the brain, there are examples of the brain and eyes of a human, a cat and a fish. For those who like to pick other people's brains, a rubber duplicate of a human brain is on display.

In conjunction with the exhibit, the Langley Centennial Museum and National Exhibition Centre has organized a special school programme for science classes. Each week hundreds of valley school children encounter the wonders of the eye and of the brain. The Seeing Brain will be at the museum and exhibition centre until March 12.

Langley Centennial Museum and National Exhibition Centre is located at the corner of Mavis and King Streets in Fort Langley. It is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tuesday to Saturday and from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday. For further information call 888-3922. The Seeing Brain is exhibited with the assistance of the Arts, Sciences and Technology Center and the Ontario Science Center.

The members of the Paula Ross dance troupe were a blur of action in their local school shows.

Paula Ross Dance Company demonstrate art to young students

Local schools were treated to a blurring display of poetry in motion as the Paula Ross Dance Company toured the area last week.

Students of Shortreed and Aldergrove Elementary schools were introduced to professional interpretive dancing as the dancers performed the imaginative choreography of Paula Ross.

The schools were given a startling display of how a person can put sights, sounds and feelings into body movements. The students were give the opportunity to interpret and become part of several of the dances and were given extensive time for questions from the talented company.

The Paula Ross Dance Company is a national touring company of eight dancers that was founded by Paula Ross in 1964. Choreography is all the work of Paula Ross and the dancers are adding new dances to the program constantly. The company is scheduled to appear in Quebec City, Trois Riveres, Joliet, Toronto, and Waterloo this season as well as throughout B.C.

The dancers also run a school visitation program and an in-studio visitation for school field trips. The programs are suitable for elementary and high schools. Ms. Ross explains and introduces each work and answers all questions pertaining to the art. The dance troupe creates a very artistic atmosphere that is desirable for teaching creativity.

If you missed their shows last week and would like to see them for yourselves, the troupe has a scheduled appearance at the Vancouver East Cultural Centre from March 2 to March 6.

Inquiries and information on the dance company can be obtained by phoning 732-9513.

Ex-smokers offer a second chance to "nervous smokers"

LANGLEY - Nervous smokers who didn't make it through 'cold turkey day' in January, or those who did, but started puffing again, will now have another chance to kick the habit.

The Ex-Smokers' Association, in co-operation with Langley adult education, is sponsoring an all day Saturday program for smokers who want to quit 'cold turkey'.

Martin Thompson, spokesman and himself a former smoker, said the day long course will cover such topics as stress management, weight control, and lifestyle modification. Ways to handle withdrawal will be learned and demonstrated.

Participants will be expected to quit smoking at a pre-set time, early in the day. "Withdrawal begins for some people as early as an hour after the last cigarette," said Thompson. "Members learn to cope with these problems as they occur, and we demonstrate practical ways to reduce the discomfort."

Thompson claims this new 'one day' approach is unique. "Quitting cold turkey is certainly not a new idea, but spending several hours in a concentrated course with a group of other people adds a new twist to an old idea," he said. The association claims that results so far have been encouraging. "One group maintained an 80 percent success rate after 30 days. We are very happy with that result," said Thompson.

The next program in Langley will take place on Saturday, February 27, starting at 9 a.m. at Langley Secondary, 21305 - 56 Avenue. For registration information call adult education at 534-7891 or the Ex-Smokers' Association at 732-9711.

Faults corrected in real estate act amendments

VICTORIA - Real estate salespeople must now provide more extensive disclosure when buying property for themselves or for someone they represent.

Consumer and corporate affairs minister Peter Hyndman said this and several other amendments to the real estate act became law Monday.

Hyndman said new disclosure forms have been printed and will be distributed to all real estate agencies.

"The forms make it clear to vendors that they are selling the property to an expert in the real estate market. The advisability of obtaining an independent assessment of the property's worth is forcefully brought to the vendor's attention."

Realtors who fail to provide the proper disclosure could be subject to fines of up to $10,000.

Another amendment provides a seven-day cooling-off period for time-share offerings made in B.C. Hyndman said this provision was introduced in response to suggestions that some time-share offerings include high pressure tactics.

In addition, promoters of all time shares involving land must now file a complete and full prospectus with the superintendent of real estate.

"Previously, only time shares providing ownership in land required a prospectus," Hyndman said. "Now the legislation has been broadened to include the prospectus requirement for offerings based on a licence to use real property."

A third amendment will result in "more understandable real estate prospectuses containing more relevant information for the public," Hyndman said.

New prospectus filing requirements will speed up the process and will eliminate unnecessary filings for offerings not directed toward the public.

Langley Players' comedy opens next Thursday

Langley Players are delighted to announce that their latest production is the comedy "Relatively Speaking" written by Alan Ayckbourn and produced by special arrangement with Samuel French, Inc. An excellent director (Paul Goodrich), super cast (Janice Blaschek, Brian Leonard, John Refeen, Audrey Wright), and hilarious script will insure a fulfilling evening of entertainment.

Play opens February 25 and runs February 26, 27, 28, March 4, 5, 6, 7, and 11, 12, 13. Curtains 8:30 p.m. Ticket reservations available by calling Jeanette at 530-1730.

Cancer patients seek rides

Many Langley cancer patients have no means of getting to their treatment and are asking the Langley unit of the Canadian Cancer Society for help.

If you are willing to give a few hours of one day (or more) each month to drive these patients to Vancouver for treatment, please contact the Langley unit driver co-ordinator, Audrey Ogden, by phoning 533-3357.

Social evening to support school programs

Aldergrove Secondary School has become one of the best schools in the district; we have excellent leadership from our principal Mr. Hamad, and vice principals Mr. Good and Mrs. Pepin. We also have good teachers who are doing all that is possible to promote and encourage a good standard of education. The Parent Group of the Aldergrove Secondary School are working very hard to bring about a good liaison between the school and the parents, and the only plausible way for this liaison to come about is for the parents to become involved with their student's school and their parents group.

If your son-daughter is working towards a scholarship in the future, or is interested in the music program or the P.E. program, we urge you to make every effort to support our Social Evening on February 27 at the Patricia Hall in Aldergrove. The proceeds from this evening will go towards the scholarship fund, the band and the P.E. departments.

The social evening will begin at 7 p.m., dinner will be served at 7:30 p.m., and dancing to excellent music will be from 8:30 p.m. - 12:30 a.m. Cost is $20.00 per couple.

Fish from the pacific is terrific in prepared dishes from the freezer

Perhaps nothing says lovin' like something from the oven. But nothing could be easier than something from the freezer.

Here are two dinner suggestions that makes the most of both appliances and also feature the great taste and solid nutrition of Pacific canned salmon.

Prepare Busy Day Salmon Pie or Standby Salmon Loaf weeks ahead of planned use. Wrap securely and label plainly as to contents and date of preparation. Freeze according to the instructions provided...and relax a little.

One day soon, in the midst of carpool confusion, a late meeting, or just general chaos, you'll be able to take smug satisfaction in knowing you can quickly create a well-balanced meal around one of these entrees from the easy freezer and the lovin' oven.

Busy Day Salmon Pie
serves 4-6

1 can (7 ¾ oz.) Pacific Salmon
1 egg
1-½ teaspoon instant minced onion
¼ teaspoon salt
1 cup frozen mixed vegetables
Pastry for 1 crust 9" pie, uncooked.
¾ cup cracker crumbs
⅓ cup butter or margarine, melted
1 teaspoon basil

In a medium sized bowl mix the salmon, including juices and well-mashed bones, together with egg, onion, salt, and vegetables. Spoon mixture into uncooked pie crust in a 9" pie pan. In separate bowl, combine cracker crumbs, melted butter, and basil. Sprinkle evenly over salmon mixture.

To freeze: Wrap and seal securely in plastic bag, plastic wrap, or freezer wrap. Freeze for up to four weeks.

To Bake: Remove from freezer, but do not thaw. Bake at 400 degree F. for 45-50 minutes.

Busy Day Salmon Pie

Standby Salmon Loaf
serves 6

2 cans (7 ¾ oz. each) Pacific Salmon
1 cup cooked rice
½ teaspoon salt
1½ teaspoon instant minced onion
2 tablespoons chopped dill pickle
2 eggs, well beaten
Butter or margarine

In a medium sized bowl mix salmon, including juices and well-mashed bones, together with remaining ingredients except butter. Line an 8½ x 4½" loaf pan with greased aluminum foil cut large enough to fold all sides over loaf. Spoon salmon-rice mixture into prepared pan and dot with butter. Fold foil over loaf.

To freeze: If necessary, use additional foil to completely cover top of loaf. Freeze. When solid, remove loaf from pan and place in plastic bag. Seal bag tightly closed. Return to freezer for up to two months.

To bake: Remove from freezer and completely unwrap - but do not thaw. Place in greased loaf pan and bake at 350F oven for approximately 1 hour.

'Elephant Man' looks for the beauty beyond rules of society

By JAMES ROSS

Few things can be more infuriating than watching a favourite book distorted beyond belief on the large or small screen. Conversely, when one has seen the Zefferelli version of Romeo and Juliet, it may be difficult to adjust to a stage production. A lengthy close-up of a sweet-faced teenage nymph may work on the screen, but if you happen to be seated in row ZZ of a theatre the director would be foolish to contemplate any prolonged gazes.

The highly successful movie version of The Elephant Man was able to delve into the sordid and macabre aspects of low-life in Nineteenth Century England to great effect. The stage version is different, and even if you have seen the film already, the new Arts Club production is well worth taking in.

This moving story is based on the life of John Merrick, a grotesquely deformed lump of mankind living, if that is what one can call it, in London near the end of the last century. At first he spends his life as an attraction in a travelling freak-show. His keeper abandons him, but by a stroke of fortune he is rescued by a brilliant medical scientist, one Dr. Frederick Treeves.

Ultimately his production fails, but only after a magnificent first half that left the audience weak and completely overwhelmed. The second part of the play loses its purpose and direction because we too make the mistake of looking for a freak-show. The play is called the Elephant Man, and we reasonably may suppose it to be about John Merrick. But it's not!

Let me back-track a few steps. When Dr. Treeves takes Merrick into his charge he does so for humanitarian and scientific reasons. "He shall be a man as other men are", is Treeve's espoused purpose. The beauty that is trapped within that grotesque exterior is nurtured into the world, and Merrick even gets to the point of designing and then, painfully, building the model of a church. It is a triumph of humanitarian idealism.

"It's just a more acceptable side-show!" Unfortunately, this is where director Larry Lillo fails to bring the show home with the devastating effect that is inherent within the story.

John Moffat gives a brilliant, well crafted performance as Merrick. Throughout he manages to bring the physical discomfort and the alienation into a fine balance with the essential humanity of his character, without the use of masks or make-up. But the show is not, should not be, his alone.

The weak point lies in the characterization of Dr. Treeves, for the most part well-played by Allan Grey in his welcome return to the Vancouver stage after a near-fatal accident last June. Treeves is an English gentleman. The Doctor's problem lies in the fact that he is both a compassionate man and that he has suffered the misfortune to have been born in the age, in the very bosom, of social deformity.

The successful production of this play must bring this social deformity into our minds as clearly as it does the plight of the unfortunate John Merrick. The minor characters should reflect the dual nature of the piece, but unfortunately they are not only lightly regarded, but Duncan Fraser and Micki Maunsell are distressingly poor in their various roles.

There is a point in the plot where Treeves suffers an emotional breakdown that comes as a realization of the impossibility of his situation. He has tried to be a kind and compassionate human being, but the only way he knows how to succeed is by building a fresh cage for his pet. What Lillo and Gray fall into is a trap. Instead of allowing Treeves to remain dignified and English, he escapes into bathos. Gray takes an emotional shower, whereas Treeves is chained to his situation without that option - the social condition is lost.

The Elephant Man is not just the character of John Merrick. He-it is a powerful image that reflects the 'self beyond ourselves' - the distorted lives we live in the interaction with others. The play asks us to find not just the Beauty within our Beasts, but to look for the beauty that exists beyond the rules of 'society'.

Lee Taylor, as the hospital administrator, is superbly English and every last letter that he utters rings clearly to the rafters. Donna White gives a deeply moving portrayal of Mrs. Kendall, a famous actress of the day who Treeves invites to assist in his rehabilitation program, and then rejects as she alone is able to actually touch Merrick's essential humanity.

Alison Green and Marsha Sibthorpe have once again combined to provide excellent sets and lighting.

I do not hesitate to recommend this production. The first half and John Moffat's performance alone make this well worth seeing. There are many more reasons beyond these to recommend it, and I suspect that this is a show that will improve into the run.

Detroit's hard-hitting Dwight Davison (shown) brings a 30-1 record with 22 knockouts into his bout against England's Tony Sibson, the European champ (39-4 with 24 KO's). These two top-rated middleweights will lock horns on NBC's "SportsWorld" Sunday, Feb. 21.

Sunday

Chuck Connors portrays a wealthy and powerful rancher and Dan Haggerty stars in THE CAPTURE OF GRIZZLY ADAMS, an adventure drama airing Sunday, Feb. 21 on NBC. The story details the risks the fugitive mountain man takes as he jeopardizes his freedom to insure the well-being of his young daughter, played by Sydney Penny.

Adams still lives in the wild, where he has fled after being accused of murder. When he learns that his sister has died, leaving his child without a guardian, he must come out of the hills to prevent her from being sent to an orphanage.

Bloody battle restaged

Blackie, who served at Trafalgar.

The noise is deafening as a cannon roars. Grimy gun crews, stripped to the waist, headbands over their ears, work with speed and efficiency readying their guns for the next onslaught.

Along the central aisle between the gun crews, young boys, known as powder monkeys, dash back and forth replenishing ammunition. A marine with a bloody wound in his arm is half-carried, half-dragged down to the surgeon's deck, invoking involuntary shudders from the gun crews as his battered body passes.

For a moment, it seems as if you're on board Lord Nelson's flagship, Victory. But no — this is the studio where the battle of Trafalgar is being recreated for "I Remember Nelson," which debuts on Mobil Masterpiece Theater, Sunday, Feb. 21, on PBS.

The four-part series paints an intimate portrait of Lord Nelson, Britain's greatest naval hero, played by Ken Colley (pictured), as seen through the eyes of four people who knew him very well — his wife, Fanny; the husband of his mistress, Emma Hamilton; his loyal friend, Capt. Hardy; and a lower deck gunner, William Blackie, who served at Trafalgar.

One man who watched the recreated battle scene with particular fascination — and an eagle's eye for error — was Major J.G.D. Elvin, R.A. (retired), the series' gun expert. He drilled the actors in the correct use of the evil-looking cannon that were used with such devastating effect in the battle of Trafalgar.

"They're terrific lads," Major Elvin says. "Absolute naturals, determined to get it right."

COUNTRY HAPPENINGS
by Doug Davis

George Jones

George Jones should score again with his newest effort, "Same Ole Me," featuring some vocal assistance by the Oak Ridge Boys. This one is pure Jones Country — a ballad weeper that will add one more to the already long list of Jones-Boy hit records.

Grand Ole Opry funnyman Jerry Clower has announced that his next album will be titled "Dogs I Have Known." How's that for an original?

In explaining his thinking on the LP title, Clower remarked: "Every house back home in Amite County, Miss., had a pack of dogs under it. Dogs has got personality just like people."

Clower recently re-signed with MCA for another five years, giving him the longest tenure for any comedian on a major record label.

"Dogs I Have Known" will be his 12th album and is scheduled for release the first part of the summer, just in time for the Grand Ole Opry Fan Fair Celebration. The album will be taped live, as are all Clower albums, before audiences at Elgin Air Force Base in Florida and in Pascagoula, Miss.

Questions are flying as to the possibility of any future recordings by Loretta Lynn and Conway Twitty, since Twitty has left MCA to record for Elektra. No one is saying yes or no, but a lot of contractual red tape would have to be ironed out, plus some big bucks penciled in along the line.

Royce and Jeannie Kendall recently presented their bus driver, Kenneth Richardson, with a gold watch, in recognition of his being named Bus Driver of the Year by the Professional Drivers for Entertainers.

Richardson has chauffeured the Kendalls for five years. Meanwhile, the duo's "If You're Wailin on Me, You're Backin' Up" continues to drive itself up the charts.

Bill Anderson hosted Doc Holliday at his Po Folks Restaurant for the taping of the "Inside Country Cooking" TV show. The series is expected to begin national syndication to cable outlets sometime this spring. Anderson continues hosting the "Backstage at the Grand Ole Opry" TV'er.

The Mt. Pisgah United Methodist Church recently celebrated Tom T. Hall Day, with special services and a dinner. Hall's association with the church began several years ago when he recorded "Me and Jesus, We Got a Good Thing Going" with the church's choir.

Monday

Kristy McNichol is one of the latest big-name performers to join the celebration of American freedom on the 250th anniversary of George Washington's birth; in ABC's I LOVE LIBERTY entertainment special, airing live from Los Angeles on Monday, Feb. 22.

Ms. McNichol, who starred in the "Family" TV series for five years, recently co-starred with Marsha Mason in the theatrical film "Only When I Laugh."

Books in brief

BETTE
by Charles Higham
Collier Macmillan, $18.95

Only one other screen actress has achieved the range of Katharine Hepburn in biographer Charles Highman's eyes, and that is Bette Davis.

Having already chronicled the incomparable Kate (as well as Marlene Dietrich and Errol Flynn), Higham turns his attention to Davis in this absorbing profile of the pop-eyed, distinctive-looking actress still going strong in her 70s.

Davis has always been a no-nonsense, honest, forthright New Englander, a woman of passionate contradictions, possessor, as Higham notes, of a vast and formidable ego, demanding and perfectionist in her work yet noted for her generosity towards fellow actors.

On a couple of notable (and surely unprecedented) occasions, Davis even insisted that her billing be below that of a colleague, even though she was the bigger star, because she felt hers was the lesser part.

A strong woman, she was continually disappointed by the men she chose and of her four husbands, only the last, actor Garry Merrill with whom she appeared in the classic All About Eve, could begin to match her spirit.

She was at her best under strong directors who could control her and whom she respected — in movies like The Little Foxes, Jezebel, Now Voyager, Dark Victory and, of course, All About Eve, with Joe Mankiewicz.

Under weak directors, she had a tendency to overact and made most of her unsuccessful pictures with men whom she rode roughshod over.

Higham skirts the issue of whether this is an authorized biography or not (one assumes it isn't), and rather deviously starts the book with a long, frank interview with Davis who probably didn't realize she was giving him the opening chapter of a book on her life.

Under the tough, self-assured, outspoken exterior of the actress, he claims to see a still-unfulfilled woman "whose fierceness is a cover for terror, sadness and loneliness."

Davis was plagued by ill health and severe depressions for most of her working life. Personal tragedies included a mentally ill sister and a devouring, emotionally blackmailing mother, both of whom she supported till they died, plus an adopted daughter Margot who proved to be brain-damaged and subject to violent and dangerous dementia.

To understand Davis' character, one must realize the most important factor in her uprbringing was the knowledge that her father hadn't wanted her, Higham writes. In fact, he suggested to her mother that the child be given away at birth!

Now busy with TV and movie parts, Davis lives alone in Hollywood, in good health, and apparently as feisty as ever.

GARDENING IN THE VALLEY

By DON ANSON

One of the delights of a flower garden is the attraction it has for birds. I have written before how that plant monarda or sweet bergamot attracts humming birds by the score and how other birds may be especially attracted by certain plants. But what about butterflies?

Personally I love to see butterflies in the garden but they seem to be becoming scarcer.

Butterflies will only go towards those plants that are rich in nectar that they can extract easily. Top of the list in this respect is the buddleia or butterfly bush which always has butterflies on it when in bloom. Oddly enough, the second most popular plant is a weed. It is the common stinging nettle which we all try to kill off.

In the spring, butterflies will go for the purple and crimson aubretias, creeping phlox, yellow alyssum, white and pink arabis, candytuff, wallflowers and polyanthus.

Summer flowers which greatly attract butterflies include mignonette, scabiosa, lavender, thyme, rosemary, phlox, gaillardia, verbena and all the open daisy-like flowers.

Favorite plants for fall feeding are the Michaelmas daisies, lythrums and stonecrops.

Apart from the cabbage white butterflies, any other variety is always welcome in my garden.

We like butterflies because they are beautiful to look at. We hate garden pests because they are ugly and do damage. Just as we can attract butterflies by growing what they like, so can we distract pests by growing what they don't like.

With very few exceptions, the harmful insect pests hate all herbs. Therefore we should plant strong smelling herbs throughout our gardens to dispel obnoxious creepy-crawlers.

These herbs such as lavender, sage, rosemary, fennel, mint, thyme and chives are all acceptable to humans. We like their scents but bugs don't and will go elsewhere.

Someone will say "are not butterflies bugs?" Yes they are but they have choices and can move about quickly. Most of the harmful bugs are very slow moving and have not got the "wheels" that a butterfly has.

By using dangerous poisonous sprays for everything that goes wrong, we kill off the pests and we kill off their natural predators. We also kill off the birds and the butterflies. We kill off the bees and other pollinators and wonder why we have less fruit. In addition we completely upset the balance of nature.

Not so very long ago, the prevailing thought seemed to be that whatever went wrong with a plant, it needed to be sprayed or dusted with a poisonous chemical. Look how much harm has been done to our environment everywhere. We have killed many soils, poisoned fish and thousands of other creatures and probably have worked havoc with our own insides.

I greatly admire Rachel Carson for writing her book "Silent Spring". This one book has made millions of people and nations think. It led to the banning of DDT and probably we shall never see chemicals again used so recklessly.

Ideally, the best weapon in fighting garden problems is to prevent it in the first place. That means growing the plants naturally suited to their environment and giving them the best care possible.

Plants will always conform to the law of survival of the fittest and it is the fittest plants that will not be attacked by pests and disease.

Science has done an immense amount of good for the world but it has also done an immense amount of harm. I'm afraid we all take scientific achievements for gospel truth. Only now they are telling us that up to half the operations performed by doctors on human beings are unnecessary. Now they tell us after losing our adenoids, appendices and suffering other unmentionables.

There is at last a gradual swing away from junk foods and the public is demanding to know what additives are fed to animals and what additives may be dangerous for human consumption. We should be entitled to know these things.

Experts never agree on much, particularly garden experts, but they all agree that less than two percent of all known insects are pests to gardeners and farmers.

The remainder are among the best friends of the gardener and in addition, more than 1,100 viruses, bacteria and forms of fungi attack our enemies.

Sorry folks, occasionally I tend to do too much sermonizing in my columns. One day the editor may say "no room for any garden column this week" and you will know what it means.

Now is the time you should all be sowing half-hardy annuals indoors for plant out in early May. If your soil is light and sandy and you can get a good tilth after fall preparation, you should sow broad beans outside and you might even take a chance with onion sets.

If you have saved wood ashes from winter bonfires, the sifted ashes may be spread over the vegetable garden except where you intend to plant potatoes. They are also excellent for any of your soft fruits to provide the vital potash.

Climbing wisterias should now have their side shoots pruned back to one-third of their length. This will help to promote flowering spurs. All long trailing stems should be cut hard back, except those you are training for direction.

The author will endeavor to answer any question on the subject of outdoor gardening. Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope to: "Gardens", care of The Star, Box 220, Aldergrove, V0X 1A0. All letters will be answered personally, but some may be answered in this column.

Home and Garden Show features TV personalities

VANCOUVER - National television personality Mr. Chips, beautiful Boni Arndt and craftsman John Burling all will in some way be connected with the upcoming Vancouver Home and Garden Show Feb. 26 - March 7 in four PNE buildings.

Mr. Chips recently completed a television pilot film in the U.S. It is a "sitcom" in which the handy Mr. Chips does everything right while his foil, klutzy comic Jonathan Winters, does everything wrong.

Home and garden show hours are 5:30 to 10:30 p.m. weeknights, 11 a.m to 10:30 p.m. Saturdays and 11 a.m. to 8 p.m. Sundays; adult admission is holding at $3.50 with discount coupons available at all Woodward's food floors.

Story of the evolution of the home is told in eight scale models painstakingly built by John Burling of North Vancouver. Display is special feature at big 1982 Vancouver Home and Garden Show Feb. 26 - March 7 at PNE. Models include the Indian long house, trappers cabin, miners cabin, board and batten house, Victorian mansion, shingle home (above), rancher home and the modern home. Discount coupons for home show are available at all Woodward's food floors on the lower mainland.
