SECRECY CONTINUES

Library board remains source of scandal

By GARY CHAMBERS

MURRAYVILLE - About three months ago, Shirley Johnson, a senior official with the Fraser Valley Regional Library, was charged with embezzlement of about $100,000 in library funds. Since then, the figure missing has surpassed the $200,000 mark. In spite of this, the library board remains one of the most secretive organizations this side of the Central Intelligence Agency in Washington, D.C.

The continued policy of playing hide and seek with the taxpayer was once again made evident Monday morning, when alderman Muriel Arnason of Langley delivered her library report to fellow council members.

Arnason explained that she had gone to the last library board meeting on the understanding that board members were to be shown a 'short list' of applicants for the job of library director. Instead, Arnason reported that the board was shown one application, and members were informed that this was the person chosen for the position. When she questioned the propriety of this move, Arnason claims she was effectively shut down by board chairman Harry DeJong.

DeJong, who is also mayor of Matsqui, is noted for being a politician very fond of secret meetings and secret documents. He has had numerous clashes with political adversaries and media types over the release of public information, and often manages to keep things under wraps in the final outcome.

"I saw no other person's resumes," charged Arnason. "This gentleman has been hired. Mayor Ferguson (Abbotsford) and I were together on this. We were upset about the salary ... we felt it was too rich for our blood."

Arnason said that when she tried to argue this point the chairman cut her off.

"The final decision was going to be made by the board, but when we got there this was the man," stated Arnason, waving a copy of Jim Craven's resume in the air.

Mayor George Preston jumped to Craven's defence, claiming that he is a very competent administrator with an excellent track record. He also pointed out that the man took a drop in pay to take the library job.

An informal chat among council members followed, in which Arnason answered questions and listened to comments from her fellow council members. Most of them seemed to agree with Preston that the right man had been found for the job, but Arnason insisted that it is impossible to say for sure, because the board members are not allowed to review the applications. Someone clamped a lid on the resumes and railroaded Craven into the position.

Arnason further charged that the board used illegal minutes to silence her objections. When she questioned the hiring procedure, minutes of a previous board meeting were quoted to her, and these minutes she says were incorrect and had not been ratified by the board as a whole.

She asked municipal clerk Derek Doubleday to clarify the legality of minutes not approved by the board. Doubleday said: "Under normal procedures the minutes do have to be approved by the board." It should be noted also that DeJong's usual policy with regard to minutes, is that they remain confidential until they are approved by the governing body.

Another of Arnason's objections was related to Craven's qualifications for the director's job. She read from the provincial library act, which clearly requires any person entering the position of library director to be a qualified librarian. Craven's experience is more in the field of high finance. His present position is vice-president of Samoth Financial Corp., which in turn owns Century 21 real estate coast to coast. In a press release issued by DeJong on Monday afternoon, Craven was described as a man with vast experience in municipal administration.

Other members of council did not seem overly concerned about this apparent circumnavigation of the law.

"Very often, professional people are poor administrators," said alderman Elford Nundal, and Preston added that administration is a calling unto itself, quite different to any other job in life.

Arnason seemed to accept this argument as fact, but later commented that the law is still the law, and in this case the law calls for a qualified librarian.

In a telephone interview after the council meeting, Arnason said that the committee appointed to choose the new director may have been tampered with. The original striking of the six-man committee took place on July 28, but at the last meeting over the weekend, more than six board members seemed to be clued into the committee's choice. Arnason was one of the minority left out of the decision making process.

As a result she moved a motion of non-confidence in the library board, but was defeated by the other members who backed Craven for the job.

She said she was shocked at the Monday morning council meeting, to learn that Langley's mayor was better informed than she on the internal operation of the library board. Preston, after all, may be a mayor, but he is not a member of the library board.

The new director will start at a salary of $55,000, with fringe benefits and a raise to $60,000 in 1982. The previous director was paid $34,000 per year plus benefits.

Local boy selected for Muscular Dystrophy poster

Five-year-old Collin Andersen of Abbotsford, B.C. is the 1981 Poster Child for Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada. Collin is trying out his new "Amigo" scooter for his sister, Kristy, and Coquitlam firemen Steve Merry and Paul Olsen. Collin and his electric scooter will be appearing on the 16th annual Jerry Lewis Telethon on CKVU live from the Bayshore, September 6 & 7.

For the first time, a Canadian has been selected as the 1981 Poster Child.

The honor goes to 5 year old, luvin' armful, Collin Andersen of Abbotsford, B.C.

Collin's parents, Ben and Lynn, became aware that Collin suffered from Spinal Muscular Atrophy when he was 16 months old. But Collin wasn't really aware of his deficiency until he received his new electric "Amigo" chair from the Western Regional Office for the Muscular Dystrophy Association of Canada.

Before the chair was delivered, Collin's immediate future looked bleak. At play, chums would often run off short distances ... but further than Collin could crawl; his only method of mobility.

New leg braces did enable Collin to stand and with the aid of forearm crutches, travel small distances. Push toys, another assist, became useless when Collin's legs grew too weak to propel him up the slightest incline or rough surface. The summer

Strachan kills pub polls

MURRAYVILLE - "How many booze outlets do we need?" inquired alderman Elford Nundal, and he wasn't speaking of the tap arrangements for the forthcoming policeman's ball. Nundal was reacting Monday to a request before Langley district council, to build a neighborhood pub off 200 Street in Brookswood.

The application came from Fremlin Investments Ltd. of Vancouver, and was a repeat of an application in the same area almost exactly one year ago. The previous application was turned down by a majority of residents in the vicinity.

"How many times do people have to turn it down?" remarked alderman Ian Strachan. He followed that remark by moving that council refuse to reconsider pub proposals for five years after a turndown.

"That's a little severe," warned alderman Muriel Arnason.

Then a short session of plea bargaining began. Alderman Mal Harper offered to second Strachan's motion if he reduced the waiting period to three years. Strachan agreed and the motion carried.

Previously there had been a one year limit on re-application for pub permits.

MATSQUI DETERMINED

Axe will fall on 'second' home

MATSQUI - Gordon Orr built a new family home on his two-acre (.8 hectare) parcel on Stevens Road near Aldergrove earlier this year, but prior to the issuance of a building permit the district of Matsqui insisted upon a signed covenant to knock down his old house once he had moved into the new. It was necessary, Orr was told, to conform to a 13-year-old district building stipulation that states that no more than one dwelling is allowed per five-acre (two hectare) tract. The demolition deadline passed in March.

Earlier this year, Orr allowed a young deaf couple, Doug and Peggy Rowe and their two children to move into his home while the Orr family were on vacation, and on their return the Rowe family were moved into the "illegal" second dwelling this month, rent-free.

Gordon Orr considers this "a Christian act", done at the request of Abbotsford Baptist Bible Church. "They (the Rowes) were really in a bind and had to be helped."

The Rowes brought heavy debts with them from their previous home in Windsor, Ontario, and Doug Rowe's income from his Simon Fraser University computer operator's job is only about $900 per month. Donations of furniture and beds helped to make the family reasonably comfortable, and they were looking forward to installation of special equipment to alleviate their handicaps.

All well and good, but the house was committed to being torn down, as per the signed agreement between Orr and the municipality. According to sources at the municipal hall, Orr has been consistently attempting to abort the legal covenant, and the Rowes are his last resort to do so. Matsqui officials are adamant that the law will be upheld, and will not allow a precedent to be set under these circumstances.

Municipal lawyers obtained a Supreme Court summons to enforce the execution of the demolition order and served it on Orr several days ago.

Orr's legal counsel agree that there is a binding agreement in effect, but will petition Matsqui councilors for an extension to see the unfortunate family through the winter.

However, in the light of these circumstances and the iron will of Matsqui officials, it appears unlikely that the powers will relent.

Hot-dog pilots pose problem

MURRAYVILLE - Council here issued a caution Monday to the people who use Langley municipal airfield.

It all began when council received a letter from Dave Sellers, who would like to resign from the municipal airport committee. The letter said that a replacement had been appointed, but council nevertheless expressed concern over the running of the field.

"The question we could ask is whether we need an airport committee," said alderman Mal Harper.

Mayor George Preston was quick to take it one step further. "You might ask them if we need an airport or not," said Preston. "Let's put the ball in their court."

The mayor said he would like Harper to arrange a meeting with the committee members to get the running of the airport sorted out once and for all.

Council members were agreed that a properly functioning advisory committee at the airport could make light work out of airport budgeting.

Pool, theatre gets okay

MURRAYVILLE - The councils of Langley city and district have approved the hill-top site for the new olympic size swimming pool, and theatre in the round they have been planning to build.

The site has been a subject of some debate, but has now been determined. It consists of five acres across the Fraser Highway from Langley municipal hall.

Council members in Langley said the decision confirms previous studies that determined this was the best site for such a facility.

Town Talk

By RICK McILWAIN

With the winding down of summer and the rush to prepare for a new year of school, Town Talk asked our readers how they felt about it all.

ANGEL ROBINS: I have to change schools. I don't really care about it.

I like school. I like lunch hours best, art is pretty good and the rest is pretty nice too.

I've got lots of neat clothes for back to school.

I'd like to be a veterinarian and I'll be in school for a long time yet.

TOM FLINT: It's great. It doesn't really affect me as I'm at work all day anyway.

It's getting too expensive for kids clothes these days. I'm sure glad that jeans are the style. They last and last but not long enough.

My kids look forward to school because it signals the beginning of hockey season.

The beginning and end of summer always means a sudden adjustment in the family.

WINNIE ROBINS: I think they are ready to go back to school. I'm sure ready for them to go.

We had a good summer but it'll be good for the kids to get back to school.

Back to school time is summer holiday time for parents. It's nice to have them home all summer but it's nice to have them in school and out of the house also.

The kids are excited about the return to school.

PAM BISGARD: It's nice in a way and in a way it's not. I miss them when they're gone but on the other hand I get a lot done when they're in school.

Back to school is an expensive time. I make a lot of their clothes but kids clothes are getting prohibitive in cost.

I'm really pleased with their school. Their school is great. Good teachers and well taught children are the result.

The kids have just enjoyed the summer, and are about ready to get down to learning again. My kids look forward to school but maybe its me that creates the eagerness to return to school.

River to be cleaned up

The Salmon River empties into the Fraser River at Fort Langley. Travelling upstream from there, the river winds through the heartland of Langley and leaves our district in the area of 43 Avenue on the Matsqui border.

It is in this last leg of it's journey through Langley that council has decided to do some excavational work on the river bed.

Apparently the river in that area could be cleaner, and will be.

Third reading was given Monday morning to a bylaw which calls for the cleaning and widening of the Salmon River between 272 Street and 43 Avenue.

Municipal staff are working hard to get the job done before the provincial department of fisheries deadline. The fisheries have a deadline on the project so that it does not interfere with salmon runs.

Cost of the project will be carried through taxation on private lands fronting the river in the improvement area.

Total cost of the project is $3,000.

Langley wants fed taxes

MURRAYVILLE - Langley district council has decided to send a letter to the prime minister's office in Ottawa, telling the chief parliamentarian that this district expects the federal government to pay land taxes.

Council members made the decision Monday morning after a brief rap session. All were agreed that there is no reason why the senior government should be able to hold lands all over the country, without paying any land taxes to the local governments.

The Aldergrove navy base was cited as a good example of federal lands which are tax free, but could provide a valuable source of revenue for local government.

United Way luncheon coming up

Chuck Connaghan, business and industrial relations consultant, and former Vice President of Administrative Services at U.B.C., will be the guest speaker at a luncheon in support of the United Way next month.

The annual United Way All Service Clubs Luncheon, hosted by the New Westminster Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs, will be held at the Royal Towers Hotel, Tuesday, September 15 at 12 noon. Tickets: $7.00. Advance bookings recommended. For reservations or additional information, call United Way North Fraser, 936-0432 or South Fraser, 591-7875.

Mayors and community leaders from throughout the Lower Fraser Valley are expected to attend the event. Towers' proprietor Larry Thal, following the tradition established by his predecessor Julius Balshine, will donate proceeds from the event to the United Way campaign.

The Lower Mainland campaign kicks off on September 19 with a goal of $7.9 million to help fund the work of 83 voluntary agencies. In the Lower Fraser Valley area alone, more than 208,000 local people were helped by United Way services last year.

Motorcycle crash kills man

MURRAYVILLE - David Pearson, 29, of Langley, was killed Sunday when the motorcycle he was riding went out of control.

Pearson and another man, Ted Myers, 22, also of Langley, were westbound on Duncan Way when they hit a curb and lost control of the bike.

Both riders were thrown from the vehicle, and Pearson, who was not wearing a helmet, died of injuries while on his way to Royal Columbian Hospital. Myers was admitted to the hospital with critical injuries including internal ruptures and fractures.

Council won't curb request

MURRAYVILLE - Langley municipal council would like to see certain stretches of highway made safer for pedestrians, but officials in Victoria don't agree.

In a letter to council, the ministry of transportation and highways informed local burghers that the curbs and gutters they request are not high priority.

There are two stretches of roadway in contention and they are: 264th to 270th; Glover Road from 88th to 96th Avenues. Council feels these two pieces of provincial roadway should be fitted with curbs and gutters.

The letter from Victoria stated that it may be some years before either improvement project is moved into a higher priority bracket.

"I think this is a high priority as far as we are concerned," said Mayor George Preston, and his aldermen were quick to agree. Council decided to draft another letter to Victoria, resubmitting their request and explaining the importance of the projects.

More vandalism plagues district

MURRAYVILLE - Vandalism complaints were high again last week. Police were called to Shortreed School in Aldergrove where spray paint had been used to deface school property.

Five youths were removed from the Aldergrove swimming pool for swimming while the pool was closed, although no damage was done.

McDonalds fast food outlet in Langley was also the site of vandalism, as were two car dealerships.

A Surrey woman had her car damaged while shopping in Safeway, while an Abbotsford man lost his mirror to vandals while his car was parked on the Fraser Highway.

Council moots map costs

MURRAYVILLE- You can't protect the environment without mapping it first. At least, so says the provincial ministry of the environment.

That is why the ministry offered to pay 60 percent of the cost for a large scale mapping of Langley district. They feel that effective management of the environs, begins with a good topographic record of the area to be nurtured.

Needless to say, council agrees by a margin of at least forty percent.

The total cost of the project will be in the region of $48,000.

PVI upgrades campuses

The Pacific Vocational institute has been given government approval to spend $3.1 million to upgrade its Maple Ridge campus, education minister Brian Smith and Dewdney MLA George Mussallem jointly announced.

This expenditure for upgrading PVI facilities is part of a total of $43 million which the government has approved for construction and renovations to colleges and institutes in the province this year.

In the second phase of a program to improve facilities at the Maple Ridge Campus, $3.1 million will be spent to build a new diesel and carpentry shops and classrooms, relocate the spray painting and machine shops, and lighting, insulation and ventilation systems in the auto body, auto frame, upholstery, and small motors shops. In addition, money will be spent to relocate other shops on the campus.

of 1981 held no promise for Collin.

Long considering forms of locomotion for Collin, Ben and Lynn became aware of the Amigo chair early in the new year and the family soon paid a visit to the area representatives.

Collin took to the chair like a duck to water. The Patient Services Committee of the MDAC were then appealed to by the Andersens and not long after the chair was delivered to Collin.

Not really a wheelchair as we know it, the device resembles a riding power mower - without all of the job performing attachments. Bearing three sets of rubber wheels, a comfortable seat, carrier basket, horn, and rear platform for one passenger, the silent battery powered Amigo chair made Collin the boy to know on his quiet Abbotsford street.

However, since his selection by the MDAC as the 1981 Poster Child, Collin's neighborhood pals are even more impressed with Collin's impending national TV exposure and celebrity status.

Taking it all in stride, Collin seems unaffected by his recently acquired fame. Said the blue-eyed, blond haired charmer, "I went to the Telethon last year and it was fun. It'll be lots of fun this year!"

The Telethon phone number for the Labor Day weekend in Vancouver will be 669-3311.

Gen. Michael Heppell

Brig.-General appointed

OTTAWA - Defence Minister Gilles Lamontagne has announced the promotion of Colonel Michael Heppell to Brigadier-General and his appointment as Commander Pacific Militia Area, effective September 7, 1981.

Brig.-Gen. Heppell joined the militia in 1958, enrolling in the Canadian Scottish Regiment as a private. In 1964 he was commissioned as a second lieutenant and rose to command the Regiment from 1970-72.

In the fall of 1972 he was appointed senior staff officer operations and training at Pacific Militia Area Headquarters and in 1975 was promoted to colonel and named Commander Victoria Militia District.

Brig.-Gen. Heppell was appointed fire chief of the city of Victoria in August, 1980.

Hot-dog pilots

Some aldermen also felt it would be a good opportunity to air the problem of "hot dog pilots" who fly noisy vintage aircraft.

A lot of pilots like to spend Sunday mornings doing "touch and goes" at Langley, and it was felt that if they were to go elsewhere for their recreational flights it would reduce noise levels around the airport.

FVC to build new Abbotsford campus

Fraser Valley College is to have a new $10.5 million campus in Abbotsford, education minister Brian Smith and Fraser Valley MLA Bill Ritchie jointly announced. Government approval has been granted for the project on which construction will begin during the fiscal year of 1981 with completion expected by fall, 1983.

The Abbotsford campus project for Fraser Valley College is just one of many construction and renovation projects scheduled for B.C. colleges and institutes this year. Government has approved more than $43 million worth of post-secondary education projects.

The new Abbotsford campus of Fraser Valley College will be built on a 35-acre site south of McCallum Road, a short distance away from the Abbotsford freeway turn-off. The site was purchased by the college in 1979. The campus will be located on gently sloping hills in a pastoral setting offering views of Mount Baker and surrounding farmland. Buildings to be constructed in the first phase of the project will house a comprehensive range of programs and will provide associated support services. They will replace the present outgrown leased facilities at 34194 Marshall Road in Abbotsford which the college has occupied since its inception in 1975.

Fraser Valley College serves a regional population of about 150,000 persons. It enrolled 1200 full-time and some 16,000 part-time students last year, approximately 58 percent of whom attended the Abbotsford campus. This comprehensive community college offers studies for credits toward university degree programs, for career objectives, for academic upgrading, or for general interest and self-improvement. The college's main campuses are at Chilliwack and Abbotsford. The college also makes use of secondary schools, community centres and on-site locations for college instruction. The college operates regional centres at Agassiz, Hope and Mission, and has a special relationship with the Coqualeetza Indian Education Centre at Sardis which is administered by Stolto Indians and supported by 37 bands.

VanderZalm on receiving end for a change

MURRAYVILLE - Municipal affairs minister Bill VanderZalm, well known for his periodic attacks against selected minority groups, got a taste of his own medicine on Monday.

VanderZalm had sent a letter out to municipal councils across the province warning local politicians to watch each other's mileage expenses. The minister feels that a lot of council members have been cheating on their mileage claims.

"I assume he has some proof," quipped an angered alderman, Ian Strachan.

From that, Strachan launched into an outspoken critique of VanderZalm's rapid rail policies. The minister is a proponent of rapid rail service to the valley while Strachan is obviously an exponent.

"Let him look at his own travel expenses ... $8-million in travel expenses!" tiraded Strachan.

A short debate took place, in which mayor George Preston defended the idea of a light rail system, although he stopped short of defending VanderZalm's position on aldermen's mileage claims.

In the final outcome, council officially received the minister's letter, and Strachan spent the rest of the meeting shooting cutting remarks into the record about VanderZalm and the subject of travel costs.

Child attackers test our mettle

With the recent arrest and subsequent charging of a suspect in the sexual assault of a Surrey woman, and the murder of 14-year-old Judy Kozma, it is time we reflected on events that took place right in Aldergrove some months ago.

For a few months last winter, parents in this area were shocked and angered over what appeared to be a child molester on the loose. This town had an early taste of things to come, and so we should recognize that crimes of this sort tend to become highly emotional issues in the community.

The abuse or murder of a child is a very special crime, seldom motivated by profit, and not always motivated by sex. It leaves most people, especially parents, dumbfounded and frustrated. It is difficult to understand what induces a person to assault or murder children. While the murder of an adult may indicate that the murderer has little regard for people's lives, the murder of children indicates that the culprit does not even have any hope for his species. He or she is so carried away by madness, that he or she is willing to nip human life right in the bud.

It is only natural then, that the recent disappearances and slayings of youngsters in the Lower Mainland area, has raised the ire of many citizens. No wonder the police have been subjected to a battery of criticism and no wonder people are coming forth with rewards and public appeals. We saw it all on a smaller scale last winter, and it is hoped we learned something during that experience.

Remember the public meeting where angered parents lashed out at police for spending too much time in coffee shops, and at the press for failing to warn people about the "monster at large". With tempers flared and emotions high, the community sought targets for it's frustration and blame.

Having weathered that storm already, the people of Aldergrove should be able to recognize that the system of justice is working quite well in this latest instance. In spite of suggestions to the contrary, the RCMP have fielded a massive task force against the culprit or culprits, and not without success. An arrest has been made and the mystery of at least one missing child may well be solved. What's more, a full scale search continues, for clues in the cases of the other nine children.

The press, meanwhile, have not been backward in chasing down every shred of information pertinent to the story, and forwarding it to the public. Even the more emotional aspects of the story have received prominent coverage. So far the media has been able to do this without leaving people in a frenzy.

Let's hope that the aura of relative calm remains until the whole matter is finally laid to rest -- for good.

Most weeklies agree with Kent

It is worthy of note that the newspaper people who object to the findings of the recent Kent Commission report, do not include any weekly newspaper owners. True, the commission did concentrate on daily news operations, but that does not mean that weekly owners and editors were not watching with great interest. What the government decides about dailies today, it could easily extend to weeklies tomorrow.

The reason why weekly owners are not likely to be upset over the commission's findings, is that many may actually agree with them. One of the fundamental differences between a weekly and a daily is that a weekly is often owned and totally controlled, both editorially and commercially, by the same person or people. This means that weekly editors are used to the pressures that advertising and editorial departments can place on each other. As a result, there are many people in the weekly field who look with scorn on the dailies, due to what appears to be a willingness on their part to let advertising rule the roost.

While almost every newspaper person in Canada will have individual points on which they disagree with the commission's findings, we feel sure that many weekly people are generally pleased. They are at least glad that someone has taken the time, and effort, to gently chastise the big brother dailies for what boils down to a lack of professionalism, and a fear of appearing tenacious to powerful businessmen and bureaucrats.

Socred promises killed BCRIC

Editor, The Star, Sir:

Who is to blame for the failure of BCRIC?

A good case has been made that serious misjudgement on the part of BCRIC management has caused serious problems for the corporation.

Indeed, the now-rescinded appointment of Edgar Kaiser to the board, the 3½ percent commission paid him, the astonishingly high price paid for Kaiser coal, the personal ownership by senior BCRIC officials of Kaiser shares, the unsuccessful bidding war at MacMillan Bloedel - all these and other controversies have damaged the value of BCRIC's shares and reputation both.

However, the fundamental problem faced by BCRIC is the low value of its shares; this is not simply the fault of BCRIC management. Rather, it is the result of an extraordinary blunder made by Premier Bennett in 1979.

When BCRIC was established, its assets were sound. The bulk of them had been assembled and enhanced by the first New Democrat administration. They were well-managed, profitable and constantly improving in value.

The first BCRIC prospectus valued these assets, and reported that their net worth was $11.16 per share.

For political purposes, Bill Bennett ordered these shares reduced in value to the fire sale price of $6.00. For six months, this clever gimmick worked. The share sale was huge, the premier got re-elected, and BCRIC got going.

There was just one catch: Mr. Bennett hadn't bothered to figure out how to get the shares back up to their real value.

This then was the terrible blunder: Bill Bennett artificially reduced the share value to $6.00, and had absolutely no strategy for bringing it back up to the $9 or $10 value they should have hit. The shares did briefly - on the strength of euphoria - hit this level, and have fallen badly ever since.

Today, BCRIC trades in the $4 - $4.50 range, a sad testament to the failure of Bill Bennett to think into the future, and to realize the consequences of his pre-election stock promotions.

Those who criticize the board of directors should remember who appointed its members in the first place: Bill Bennett. Those who decry the low trading values of the shares should remember who reduced them: Bill Bennett.

Those who worry about the value of BCRIC's south-east coal should remember the man who is unfairly providing a massive subsidy to its north-east coal competitor: Bill Bennett.

Those who worry about BCRIC's interest in the Powell River natural gas projects should remember the man who killed them in favor of BC Hydro: Bill Bennett.

And all those who borrowed money, pay interest and receive no dividends should remember the man who talked them into it in the first place: Bill Bennett. When their bank manager insists on a demand note at 23 percent to cover the borrowing, will Bill Bennett agree to co-sign?

BCRIC today has the image of a fat and unsuccessful holding company. BCRIC today, under new management, is trying to turn that around. I wish them well.

I suspect that Socred apologists in the stock market will dispute this analysis, and find Bill Bennett innocent.

I also expect that his incredible blunder in 1979, and his utter lack of foresight will prove for historians to have been one of the most serious of all the mistakes made by the coalition government.

Would the 1979 election have produced a different result if BCRIC shareholders knew then what they know today?

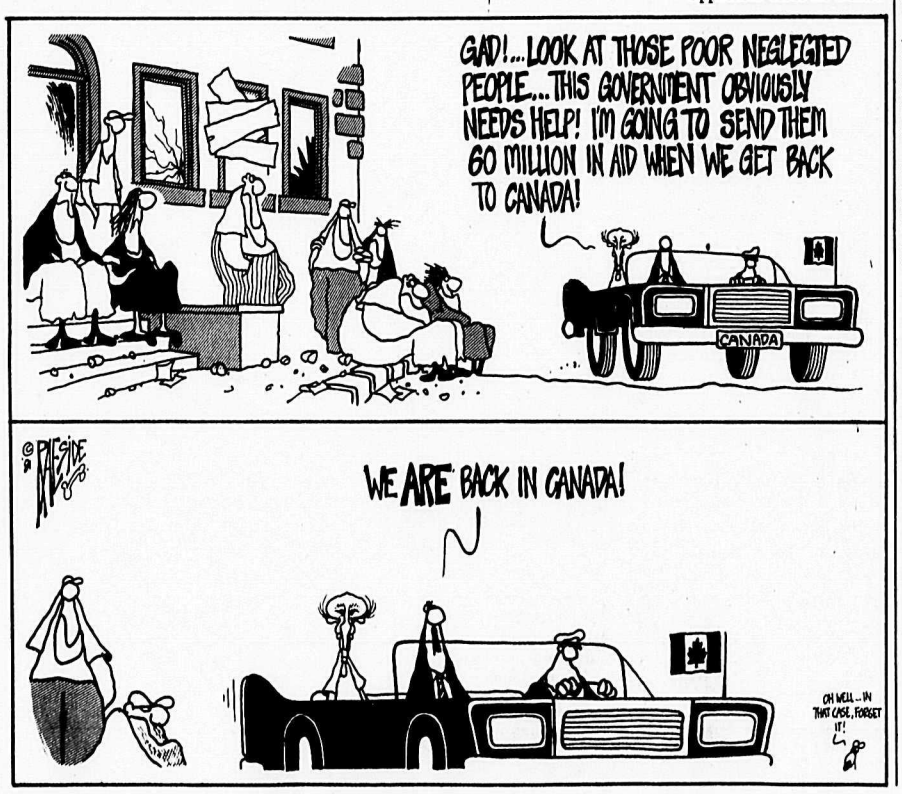
Opposition Critic for BCRIC



Tough new highway laws in works

Tough new laws aimed at bad drivers in British Columbia will come into effect in 1982.

Under the proposed amendments to the Motor Vehicle Act, escalating penalties will be based on an individual's driving record for the preceding 12 months.

The new penalties and how they will work:

- Drivers with less than three points over the previous year who commit a traffic offence will have more points assessed but will not face a fine.
- Drivers with three to eight points will be assessed more points on conviction and face fines under a schedule to be worked out once the legislation is passed. A speeding ticket could cost $65 and the maximum fine would be $2,000.
- Drivers with nine or more points will have to appear in court on an offence and face a minimum $100 fine and be assessed more points.
- Drivers with more than 15 points will face an automatic two-month suspension, a fine and more points.
- The suspension for a first impaired driving offence doubles from three to six months and a mandatory six-months ban on driving will apply to anyone convicted of other Criminal Code offences such as refusing to take a breath test.
- Speeding in excess of 30 kilometres per hour over the limit will bring fines ranging from $100 to $2,000.
- Persons convicted of driving while under suspension will receive a minimum $300 fine and seven days in jail for a first offence and $300 plus 14 days for a second conviction.
- Drivers caught behind the wheel while under suspension will have their vehicle impounded for 24 hours regardless of who owns the vehicle.
- Legislation covering 24-hour roadside suspensions for alcohol-impaired drivers will be expanded to include drugs.
- The proposed changes will be debated at the next sitting of the Legislature.

Driving: "For too many of us, it has become a power trip"

The problem is that driving has developed into the great Canadian equalizer.

Millionaire and ditch digger — we all tend to believe we're as good or better than the next person when we slide in behind the wheel.

But that's not the case. Too many of us drink and drive, speed or sneer at the law by driving without a licence or while under suspension.

Driving, in short, has become a power trip for too many people.

The Driver Licence Division of the Transportation and Highways Ministry has the unhappy statistics to prove the point.

In 1979 — the statistics for 1980 are still being compiled — 67,421 drivers got letters warning that their conduct and record on the highway showed a dangerous pattern.

A staggering total of 42,547 drivers had their licences suspended, including 17,563 for alcohol-related offences.

And in a community of close to two million — that's how many people in British Columbia hold licences to drive vehicles ranging from motorcycles to big rigs — drivers between them managed to rack up close to 446,000 traffic violations.

"Driving in British Columbia is a privilege — not a right. The privilege carries responsibilities. Some fail in these responsibilities, and need help to improve. Others simply do not deserve the privilege and lose their licences."
—Safe Driving Guide, Transportation and Highways Ministry.

Computer system catches the bad actors

Everybody's road record on file

Bad enough but indications are that these figures will be up when the 1980 statistics are completed.

While there are many good drivers, and indeed, some excellent ones, there will always be those who because of carelessness or indifference to the road rights and safety of others, can be termed "bad actors".

The task of identifying the drivers in this latter category and taking remedial action, as well as making sure new drivers are qualified to operate on the highways, falls to the licence division.

It's a two-stage operation.

The first involves an evaluation of new licence applicants through a vision test, a written examination and a road test.

But that's just for starters.

Whenever an individual receives a licence, the division automatically opens a file (every British Columbia driver has one) in its computerized records system.

Each file contains a complete driving history — licence applications, examination papers, the results of medical and vision tests and most importantly, a complete log of driving offences and traffic violations.

These computerized records play a key role in monitoring the performance of all drivers in the Province.

This is how it works: Police forces throughout the Province notify the division of every driving infraction and conviction committed in their area.

The information contains the driver's name along with other pertinent licence data and details of the offence.

The division then calls up a print-out from the computer system of the offending driver's file for study under its review process. If the driver is a repeat offender, a variety of steps may be taken.

Some drivers get a warning letter suggesting a defensive driving course would help them become a safer driver. The letter encourages them to improve their driving and warns if they don't, they may face a suspension.

In other cases, drivers are given six months probation. If they breach probation during that period, their licence is suspended for a longer period of time.

For some offences, however, warning letters and probation simply aren't enough of a deterrent.

Automatic suspensions are mandatory for drivers convicted of: Criminal negligence, manslaughter, failing to remain at the scene of an accident, dangerous driving, driving while impaired, failing to provide a breath sample when asked, driving with more than 80 milligrams of alcohol in the blood or driving while under suspension.

The penalties are getting stiffer and that's as it should be.

They're dictated by one basic consideration — the safety and well-being of everyone who uses our highways.

Until the day of driving perfection comes, and human nature being what it is that day's a long way off, tough legislation backed by law enforcement agencies, the judicial system the licence division's all-seeing computer system, will continue to bring down the curtain on the bad actors.

And if you think about it, that's good news for all the highway users who play their roles by the rules.

Report from Parliament

By BOB WENMAN, MP

The postal strike which paralyzed Canadian small business and disrupted the flow of Canadian life finally ended at midnight on August 10. The important issue is whether an essential service, such as that which the Post Office unquestionably provides (whether it is efficient in doing so is an entirely different matter), should be permitted to strike at will, and thereby halt the country. The Post Office is a monopoly - and a monopoly with incredible power drawn from the unfortunate fact that without its services out nation is in dire straits. It is essential that the Canadian government be able to control the Post Office. We cannot afford an inefficient and irresponsible industry with such great power.

The Liberal government fails to see the enormity of the difficulties posed by a striking Post Office, and instead prefers to tell Canadians that if their businesses rely on mail service perhaps they do not deserve to be in business at all. This callous attitude is typical of the government's approach to the problems facing Canada.

On August 17 there were two by-elections in the ridings of Joliette, Quebec and Spadina, Ontario. The Liberals had hoped to sweep both for they believed Roch LaSalle's failure in provincial politics would prevent a Conservative victory in Quebec, and historical Liberal strength in Spadina would bring in Jim Coutts. Canadians in Joliette and Spadina were given the chance to dash these hopes and tell the Liberals they reject the government's indifference to Canada's troubles, and they did so!

Jim Coutts, Trudeau's right hand man, was defeated in Spadina, a Liberal riding for 36 of the past 42 years. Spadina voters strongly indicated their disaffection with the policies of the Liberal government and its cynical manipulation of the Canadian political process. Roch LaSalle won in Joliette by a wider margin than ever before, once again indicating strong support for the Conservative Party, and a firm rejection of the Liberals.

Spadina and Joliette voters gave their message to Trudeau, and so may you! Please write me with your views on the issues facing Canada and British Columbia and I will personally deliver your letters to the Prime Minister. We will not be ignored!

Help for the unemployed is in the process of being provided through a new program just announced by the Minister of Employment and Immigration. A small part of the budget is making its way westward the bulk of the money will, as usual, remain in central Canada.

As part of the Canada Community Development Projects, Fraser Valley West has been allocated funds to provide term employment for the unemployed, specifically to aid groups, such as the handicapped, with above average unemployment. Existing organizations and businesses are eligible to become employers under the program, and in some circumstances individuals and municipalities may also quality. If you would like more information concerning this program please write my Ottawa office.

The Sunshine Club finds its community support from all age groups as more and more people are getting involved. R. McIlwain photo

Sunshine Club finish another successful year

ALDERGROVE - Another successful year was completed last week by Aldergrove's Sunshine Club for Special People. The highlight of each year is a week-long summer camp at McLean Scout camp and each year it has been better and better. This, their third year, was the best ever.

Many thanks were given by Mrs. Grace Olahan to the fine support the club has received from the community during the year. Without it the club would not be possible. This years camp counsellors were also unique in that they were six local high school students who gave of their time and energy to make the camp the success that it was. Many thanks to Laura Daley, Roberta Roberts, Jackie Gerritsen, Karen Cooper and Sandra Cooper all from Aldergrove senior secondary and Tim Smith of D.W. Poppy.

Most of the money raised to support this camp was donated by the community at large through raffles and sales but a special thanks goes to Louise Weckerle of The Roundhouse restaurant, Aldergrove Kinsmen, Beta Sigma Phi sorority, Mrs. Art Brooks and to the generous people that operate the Langley dump for their active and continuing support.

The Sunshine Club for Special People was formed by concerned members of our community to supply and teach recreational and social activities to Special People within our area. For those Special People of school age, the government takes care of their social and recreational needs through the schools but once they leave the school system, they become condemned to an isolated life in an institution or boarding home. Little or no activities are available and even less is given in the way of training. The Sunshine Club tries to supply some training and to supply activities for these people in the way of operating weekly dances, bingo, bowling league, special parties (Christman, Hallowe'en) and to celebrate birthdays throughout the Fall and into Spring. The highlight of each year has been the week-long summer camp.

Through training such as this, several members of the club have the opportunity to move out of supervised homes and will be living on their own within the community.

The club is totally funded by donations from the community and is heavily dependent on volunteer help. More and more high school students are becoming involved and the club can use all the support they can get. Thirty-two campers enjoyed a summer vacation thanks to you for making it all possible.

If you have a few hours to spare to help score for the bowlers, if you'd like to join in the dancing Tuesday nights, or you can just spare a few hours to help pour coffee, the Sunshine Club needs you. If you can help or need further information call Grace Olahan at 856-2018. I understand that she will be away on her vaction after the camp, so give her a call next week. You'll be glad you did.

Rate increase opposed

VICTORIA - Opposition communications critic Frank Mitchell, MLA (NDP - Port Renfrew-Esquimalt) last week called upon the federal government to investigate the complete financial operations of the British Columbia Telephone Company in the wake of the company's proposed 25 percent rate increase.

In a telegram to Andre Ouellet, federal minister of consumer and corporate affairs responsible for the Combines Investigation Act, Mitchell pointed out that B.C. Tel had been granted permission for an increase only four months ago by the Canadian Radio-television Telecommunications Commission (CRTC).

"B.C. Tel is just one tentacle of the vast, U.S.-based multi-national parent company General Telephone and Electronics (GT&E)", Mitchell said. "As long as this conglomerate is allowed to siphon off exorbitant profits at its own pleasure, B.C. Tel will continue to require these ridiculous rate hikes."

At a previous CRTC hearing Mitchell requested that the commission initiate a full study into all of the interlocking directorships of which B.C. Tel is a part when taking into consideration rate increases. The CRTC refused this request.

"If the federal government is not prepared to protect British Columbians from this sort of inflationary price gouging then the regulatory powers should be turned over to the British Columbia legislature", Mitchell stated.

Handbook for rape victims

An information handbook for rape victims is being sent to hospital emergency wards, clinics, public health and police departments by United Way of the Lower Mainland. It is the first publication of its kind in B.C.

"Information for the Sexually Assaulted" is a brief but comprehensive outline of victims' rights, police and hospital procedures. The book explains measures required for collection of evidence for court purposes and strongly recommends necessary tests for venereal disease and pregnancy following sexual assault. It also examines myths surrounding rape and the emotional reactions of victims and their families. A list of support services available to rape victims is included, together with guidelines for action in the case of suspected sexual molestation of children.

The handbook was prepared by United Way's Social Planning and Research Committee on the Social and Health Aspects of Rape. Ten thousand copies have been printed by the Ministry of Health for distribution to rape victims. Copies will be available to physicians on request.

Lt. Col. Merritt V.C. and an old buddy at the South Sask. Regiment re-union.

MARCH OF THE PRAIRIE MEN

Proud history relived

LANGLEY - A reunion of the South Sask. Regiment was held in the banquet room of the Royal Canadian Legion Branch 21 on Saturday, August 22. It was a very special affair attended by very special men. The formation of the unit now known as the South Saskatchewan Regiment (S. Sask. R. or S.S.R.) was the culmination of a series of militia organizations subsequent to the end of the first world war. It has a long and glorious history and has accounted for itself well. Attending the reunion was the first V.C. (Victoria Cross) winner of world war two, Lt. Col. Cecil Merritt, late of the South Saskatchewan Regiment.

HOUSE PARTY SEARCH NOW EASIER

ALDERGROVE - Amendments to the miscellaneous Statutes act which gets much tougher with minors and alcohol abuse have been proclaimed by a B.C. cabinet order. Under the new legislation, police will find it easier to obtain warrants to search a house when they believe alcohol is being abused and the premises creating rowdyism. This amendment was introduced in response to numerous complaints by municipalities over uncontrollable house parties. The amendment also makes it illegal to possess alcohol for the purpose of supplying to minors.

B.C. Summer Games set to go this weekend

The scenic Comox Valley will provide a colorful backdrop later this month for Canada's largest annual sporting event, the B.C. Summer Games.

The fourth edition of this annual event will see 3,321 athletes - the largest contingent in the Games' history - compete in 33 events spread over four days of excitement from August 27 to August 30.

This year marks the first time the provincial event has been held on Vancouver Island - and also the first time more than one community has taken on the difficult task of organizing a sports gathering that in terms of numbers competing is larger than either the Canada Games or the Commonwealth Games.

The city of Courtenay, the town of Comox and the village of Cumberland - plus surrounding electoral areas and Canadian Forces Base Comox - have joined forces and come up with several thousand volunteers to make sure the 1981 games will be the best yet for competitors and spectators.

Vancouver Island residents will be especially welcome as visitors to the four day event - whether to view the exciting sports competitions or to enjoy the great fishing and scenery.

Overnight hotel or motel accommodation might be tight during the Games, but Chamber of Commerce organizers have set up a unique plan for recreational vehicle owners and campers.

Lend A Driveway (LAD) will see Valley homeowners donate their backyards and driveways to accommodate games visitors looking for a spot to camp.

Anyone coming up from down-Island can stop in at the Union Bay Community Hall, right on the Island Highway 10 miles south of Courtenay, to firm up this type of accommodation.

Once in the Valley, there will be plenty to do and see.

One of the main goals of the B.C. Summer Games is "to stimulate enthusiasm and participation in amateur sports in order to achieve a higher level of physical fitness throughout the province."

Seconday to that goal, it could have been added that the games spark a considerable amount of participation and enthusiasm in the communities that stage them.

"Total Community Participation" has been the motto of the Comox Valley games and of its mascot "Cappy TCP" played by Courtenay resident and well-known actor Sid Williams.

Ten volunteer directors, elected a year ago, have been organizing thousands of volunteers to provide security and medical services, accommodation, food, opening ceremonies, transportation, publicity and a host of other services, both large and small.

The Comox Valley games will present a series of "firsts", apart from its Vancouver Island location and the number of communities involved.

These will be the first B.C. Summer Games to have its own official theme song - Join the Games - written by Valley musician Edwin Grievé and chosen over 18 other entries in a contest held earlier this year. The song has been recorded by local singers and musicians and is on sale throughout the area - a good souvenir for Games athletes and visitors.

Another first will be the running of the Terry Fox Memorial 1,500 metre wheelchair race. Disabled sports are being highlighted at the game; because 1981 is the Year of the Disabled in B.C.

The Terry Fox race will be open to both men and women wheelchair athletes who will be racing the metric mile for a special trophy, as well as medals. That event is scheduled for Saturday, August 29, about 3:10 p.m. on the games track.

That track is also another first, at least for the Valley, which until now has had no proper venue to stage track and field events. The new eight-lane rubberized-surface track is "state of the art" and should provide a first-class venue for races.

The track, and its adjoining newly-built grandstand facilities, will be the scene for the spectacular opening ceremonies on Thursday night.

After 4,000 athletes and guests enjoy a special barbecue, they'll begin joining up in groups for the march-in onto the field.

BCTV will be telecasting the event live throughout the province, as the Canadian Forces Sky Hawks parachutists jump into centre field, the Naden Band leads in the athletes and Premier Bill Bennett officially opens the games after two torch bearers bring in the games flame.

The games flame has been burning in Courtenay's Lewis Park since Bennett lit it during an April ceremony.

A special and unique feature of the opening ceremonies will be the entrance of ultramarathon runner Al Howie who will be bearing a message from Kelowna, site of last year's games. Howie will be running that message in the days prior to the opening ceremonies across the interior of B.C., through the lower mainland, onto a B.C. Ferry and right up the Island Highway from Nanaimo - a very tough run. Pledges from it will benefit the Kinsmen Rehabilitation foundation which aids the disabled throughout B.C.

Apart from live coverage of the opening ceremonies, BCTV will also be, for the first time, giving live coverage of sporting events on Saturday as well as taped summaries on the other days.

Spectators in the Valley will be able to choose from almost every type of sport available - from parachuting to cycling to black powder shooting. A shuttle bus service is in the process of being organized to help spectators get around to the various sporting sites.

Dozens of cultural events have also been planned as an important aspect of the games. Street dancing, crafts fairs, art exhibitions, pottery demonstrations and concerts will show off the talents of Valley performers and artisans to athletes and visitors.

For instance, Cumberland will be the scene of a major street dance and a display that will showcase its Oriental heritage. In Courtenay's new Anderton Avenue park alongside the Puntledge River, a mini-fair featuring the works of 50 craftsmen in a juried show will be set up. Downtown Courtenay will also have a street dance - featuring local Vietnamese and their traditional Dragon dance.

Continuous jazz will be played throughout the Valley by local musicians set up on the back of a flat-deck truck. Theatre presentations will be made around Courtenay's outdoor fountain at the Civic Centre where a huge mural honoring the games has been painted and mounted by volunteers.

And if all that activity is too much, there are plenty of beauty spots to relax in. Take a stroll down to Comox's lovely Marina Park and enjoy boating scenes in the bay framed by the Beaufort Mountains and the Comox Glacier. Or pop over to beautiful Denman and Hornby Islands, sun on the sandy beaches of Kye Bay, go for a fighting spring from any of the numerous resorts and boat rental facilities available, try 'tubing' down the river at Courtenay's delightful little Puntledge Park or take a trip up to Forbidden Plateau.

The Courtenay-Comox Chamber of Commerce Information Bureau is located right on the Island Highway at the south entrance to the city. Counsellors there will be happy to give advice on local sight-seeing.

A NEW PEDAL SPORT

BMX comes alive at Little Rock Raceway

ALDERGROVE - Bicycle motocross, known as BMX, has introduced new ways for kids and teens to be involved in a fun and rewarding sport. This pedal power off-road activity of down hill, indoor and outdoor bicycle track competition offers youngsters of all ages, 6-26, clean, fun racing.

One lap, with an average distance of 700 feet in length, takes all the energy and drive the boys and girls may have to get to the checkered flag.

Bicycle shops throughout B.C., especially in the lower mainland, have been scurrying to keep up with the demand for BMX race bikes and accessories, ranging in cost from about $150 to as much as over $3,000. The average well outfitted modern BMX racer usually digs in for a total of $300 - $400. Paper routes and other summer jobs make this cost within reach of most kids, offering a way of developing friends and a responsible lifestyle.

Little Rock Raceway on 8 Avenue in Aldergrove, for the past four weeks, has been developing what already is being recognized as one of the best tracks in Canada.

Track designer, Bob Levy, known for quality construction of professional outdoor and indoor motocross tracks, finds this task one of the most interesting, considering the difference of hills, corners and jumps required for pedal power.

"The design of the track at Little Rock gives the riders a variety of obstacles, with enough uphills and length to offer every level of rider talent a challenge and ample downhill slope to keep rebuilding their speed."

I'd like to thank the Langley municipality for their needed cooperation in helping make this track a possibility. The dirt was supplied when 16 Avenue was repaved.

For a first look at this sport born in California, the first BMX race in the history of Aldergrove comes alive at 2 p.m. on Sunday, August 30, following the Minibike Club championship starting at 10 a.m. Entry fee for beginners is only $4 and trophies in the BMX are given to 50 percent of the class, broken down by rider's age.

Come on down and bring your friends to enjoy both the minibike and BMX races on Sunday. More information is available at Life Cycles in the new mall and the Aldergrove Sports Centre.

ALDERGROVE - To tell the truth, the lady's name is Laurie, partner with owner-operator Michael O'Kane of the Aldergrove Sports centre located on the Fraser Hwy. in Aldergrove. The Aldergrove sports store has to be the answer to the requirements of every fun-loving Canadian.

Participaction is the name of the game and the establishment is stocked with just about every conceivable item of sporting equipment invented to enjoy life. The place abounds with goodies bearing the trade names of Addidas, Remington, C.C.M., Bouer and Appolo to name a few. For the hunter, Aldergrove Sports Center carries a large stock of superb rifles with accompanying accoutrements such as ammo, slings, cases, etc. Whatever you need sportwise you can bet that if Micael hasn't got it, he'll get it and if he can't get it - it's not obtainable.

With the kids going back to school soon, the Aldergrove Sports Center is loaded with specials to fill the little ones needs. Everything from quality bikes to skates, footballs - you name it. The specials are going fast so an early visit is advised.

Incidentally, with the fishing season coming on, they also sell the most delicious bait in town.

(IDRC) - A bacterium discovered by chance on dead mosquito larvae in an Israeli pond has turned out to be a powerful weapon against insects like blackflies and mosquitoes.

"Baccilus thuringiensis israelensis" (B.t.i.) appears to kill certain insects by paralyzing their digestive systems. In searching for the specific molecular mechanism by which B.t.i. kills, scientists hope to be able to manufacture even more powerful strains through genetic engineering techniques.

Organic pest control measures such as B.t.i. have a particular importance to developing countries, where blackflies can spread river blindness and mosquitoes, malaria.

Ag marketing course at FVC

Men and women interested in going back to school to train for a new career should look seriously at a new eight-month program in Agricultural Marketing being offered at Fraser Valley College this fall.

Graduates of the new program will have employment opportunities as sales and service representatives with organizations such as feed, fertilizer and seed suppliers, farm chemical distributors, financial institutions and related enterprises.

Job prospects in the Fraser Valley are excellent, says John DePape, co-ordinator of the College's Agriculture programs. He estimates that starting salaries will be in the $14 - $20,000 per year range, with good opportunities for advancement.

A unique feature of this management-oriented program is a 10-week stint of practical training in secondary agriculture areas such as feedstores.

The first term of the program is parallel to the College's popular Animal Production program with classroom studies in topics such as animal nutrition, animal husbandry, forage crops, equipment handling and safety, agricultural mechanics, farm layout, drainage and irrigation and waste management.

The second term will emphasize agricultural economics, commodity marketing, sales, and financial management.

Admission requirements are based on Fraser Valley College's open-door policy to provide as much opportunity as possible to anyone interested in practical agriculture. There are still places available for the program starting in September.

Applicants should be 18 or older with grade 10 or equivalent (BTSD 3, for example); or have grade 12 or equivalent (BTSD 4 or GED).

You must also provide your own transportation and be willing to participate in on-the-job training.

Fraser Valley College is also offering a new, four-month program in Crop Production, this fall, leading to employment opportunities in the field and in supervisory positions with commercial vegetable and soft fruit producers, canneries and processors.

The program begins in November and ends in February so persons already employed in the industry will not have to take time off during the growing/harvesting season.

For more information on either of the new programs, pick up an Agriculture Program Information Kit, with application form, at any Fraser Valley College centre, or contact the Agriculture Department in Abbotsford at 853-7441, local 55.

Garden wedding for Aldergrove couple

ALDERGROVE - A garden adorned with flowers created the setting for the exchanging of marriage vows between Dorothy Garner and Danny Lancaster on Saturday, August 22, 1981.

The bride looked beautiful in a champagne colored full length dress with a sweetheart neckline accented by tiny pearls, with a lace trim at the bottom. She wore a two-tiered lace veil attached by two yellow freesias. Dorothy's bouquet consisted of yellow freesias, white daisies and baby's breath, she also carred a Chinese design fan.

The bride was given away in marriage by her father Floyd Garner. Maid of honor was Cory Garner, sister of the bride. Her outfit was pale green, two piece, full length, worn off the shoulders with a matching green hat. She carried a bouquet of yellow daisies and baby's breath and a Chinese fan. Bridesmaids were Mary-Lou Murphy and Fiona Pullen who were dressed in matching peach dresses with floral chiffon capes. They carried yellow daisies and baby's breath bouquets and matching fans. The bride's two-year-old niece delighted all as flower girl. She wore a peach dress and carried a basket of yellow daisies and baby's breath.

The bride's mother wore an off-white cotton wrap-around dress. The groom's mother unfortunately could not attend from Eastern Canada.

Best man was Roy Moore of Aldergrove. Master of ceremonies was Bruce Judd and the bridal toast was made by her uncle, Don Nielson.

Guests enjoyed a beautifully prepared buffet and listened to the music of "Summertyme".

Out of town guests were the bride's aunt from Alexis Creek, Rick Sieber of Calgary, Franz Langmann of Fort McMurray, Dell and Charmaine McBain of Grand Forks.

The couple will reside in Aldergrove.

The many friends of Danny and Dorothy wish them all the best for the future.

A golden memory

You only go around once, and these days, if you get a chance to celebrate a 50th wedding anniversary, you may as well do it in style. That's what Alan and Dorothy Williams did on Sunday, when they gathered with about 30 friends and family at Newland's Golf and Country Club.

Guests came from the U.S.A. and the Okanagan Valley to help the couple mark fifty years of married life with a dinner and reception in these opulent surroundings.

Among the gifts was a plaque of spoons, each one engraved with the number fifty and the name of a grandchild. A nice thought, and original too.

Alan and Dorothy live in Sardis. Aldergrove wishes them our best.

GARDENING IN THE VALLEY

By DON ANSON

Large trees don't suffer much when we have a prolonged hot spell without rain. It is a different matter, however, with some shrubs and plants that are not deep rooted.

This has been a most unusual year for the plant kingdom with great variations of normal climate. Many plants suffered because of the prolonged wet weather in the middle of the year. Some never recovered. Gardeners can do little to protect plants from too much rainfall but they can do something about lengthy dry spells.

I am willing to bet that many gardeners in this area have lost some of their camellias, azaleas, rhododendrons young evergreens. These plants, all acid loving, have wide fibrous roots that are very close to the surface. Consequently they must have moisture in order to survive. Our recent hot spell with record high temperatures very quickly dried out the top foot of soil.

This would not have caused much harm to those plants that send down deep roots and even some of our annual flowers send down roots far deeper than the shrubs I have mentioned.

Unless these shrubs have been well watered or have been given a deep mulch to conserve moisture in the soil, they will have suffered and some may not recover.

Any newly planted small shrub must be regularly watered until it becomes established and this usually takes about two months. Thousands of them are lost each year from desiccation.

I don't bother about watering certain plants, in the knowledge that their roots run deeply or they have long tap roots to search for water deep down. Strawberries send their roots down more than five feet and a good mulch should suffice for carrots and beets. Green crops need plenty of moisture and I rather think that potatoes need more water than is commonly thought.

If flowers do not get the water they require, they will bloom faster and run to seed rapidly. This will only give you a short period of bloom. This is very noticeable this year with phlox and even sweet peas.

Regular deadheading of flowers will prolong the period of bloom to a great extent. Besides looking very messy, dead leaves and dead flowers interfere with new growth and should be removed frequently. Take a bucket with you and snip off all the dead petunias, marigolds and other bedding plants. When perennials have finished flowering, don't be in too much of a hurry to cut down the plants to the ground. Wait until they have withered as the remaining green foliage provides or gathers food for next year's crop.

When dry weather starts to check growth, plants cannot get their necessary nutrients from the soil, so leaf or foliar feeding is very advantageous. Besides feeding the plants it economizes in watering. All kinds of foliar foods are now available at garden centres. They all contain balanced foods for plants, some specific but all containing nitrogen, phosphates, potash and a range of trace elements.

Not only will foliar feeding make better growth, it will also assist the plant if it is being attacked by disease or pests. It is also very helpful in enabling newly planted stock to establish roots quickly.

Foliar feeding is given as a fine spray and will wet all surfaces of leaves and all top growth. Any spray that runs down to the soil will benefit roots.

For shrubs and trees, it is better to apply the spray with a spray-diluter attached to the hose.

It is not only during the summer drought periods that foliar feeding is so effective, it may also do wonders to evergreens in winter periods of drought, particularly if the soil is frozen.

One of the main advantages of foliar feeding is that it benefits the plant almost immediately. Never use these foliar feeds at a strength higher than recommended. They should be very dilute mixes and therefore very economical. Plant surfaces have only to be wetted, not saturated. All plants, including indoor plants benefit from foliar feeding.

Early morning or early evening are probably the best times to do your spraying, otherwise there could be some quick evaporation from a strong sun.

Provided there is plenty of humas in the soil and plants have been adequately mulched one can usually get through a period of drought quite safely by means of foliar feeding alone.

No need to wander, Aldergrove has the fashions

It's back to the classrooms soon, and that means new clothes for many. No need to go galloping off to the city to buy your new wardrobe, Aldergrove has all the fashion outlets you need.

Take Stedman's for example. This compact department store is quickly gaining a following in Aldergrove, and for good reason. It's the perfect place for the family to shop for their everyday clothing needs. Durable and pleasant duds at reasonable prices is the order of the day at Stedman's, and they stock many other back to school needs too. It's a one stop shopping centre, in the Aldergrove Centre Mall.

For those who prefer something extra special there are a variety of smaller specialty shops, including Children's Carousel. This shop zeroes in on the needs of the Lilliputians, with fine fabrics in the latest designs. There is nothing wrong with little girls looking like little ladies, and Children's Carousel is the place to go for that. They handle boy's clothes too, right from infants to junior high school age. Children's Carousel is in the Countryside Mall.

Tee shirts are all the rage this year, just like last year and next year. Amber Force is the place to go for tee shirts in Aldergrove. You wouldn't believe us if we told you how many different styles of tee shirts there are, so you had best see for yourself. And while you are there, why not make a selection from one of hundreds of decals for your new top.

Amber Force is located in the Aldergrove Centre Mall.

For teen fashions you can't beat Suzannes. This is the place for the young sophisticate who knows what she wants, and how to get it. In a new outfit from Suzannes you can feel confident that your appearance is all business, and from there the 'A' grades just might follow.

Suzannes. keeps a close watch on the fashion scene and their racks are stocked full with the latest designs from the world's fashion centres. They too are located in the Aldergrove Centre Mall.

The T-shirt craze is still a popular one and an inexpensive way of outfitting the whole family. Jeanette, Marrilynne, Vernon and David Ens show off their new tops from Amber Force. All tops were under $10. What more could you ask for?
R. McIlwain photo

Shannon MacDougall and Nicole Hackman are so excited by their new outfits from Childrens Carousel. Nicole maintains a very feminine look with a floral corded velvet pinafore dress and a beige velour long-sleeved top. A leather toned two-piece knit suit consisting of an elastic waisted skirt and long sleeved turtle neck sweater is Shannon's choice for the season.

County Line School expects new faces

Tuesday, September 8 will see many familiar faces as well as a few new ones arriving for school at 8:40 a.m. The first day ends for students at recess time, which is 10:10 a.m. at County Line.

Kindergarten children are invited to attend the first day, too. Details of the staggered opening that will follow, will be explained to the Kindergarten parents who are invited to stay for coffee in the library while their children are in class.

Staff returning to the school include Mrs. Ramsay, Mrs. Erisman, Mr. Anthony, Mr. Mercer, Mr. McWhinnie, and Mrs. Pawloski, who not only will continue as the school librarian, but will also undertake much of the music program.

New to the staff are Miss Gilpin, a bilingual intermediate teacher, Mrs. Conboy, who will enrol grade three, Mrs. Wilson, the kindergarten teacher, and Mrs. Hope, the incoming principal.

Ft. Langley School enthusiastic

FORT LANGLEY - We anticipate yet another fine year at Fort Langley elementary. The staff is looking forward to working closely with families to provide students with the best possible education.

We are fortunate in having an enthusiastic Parent-Teacher Group. The new president for 1981-82 will be Mrs. M. Creech. The completion of our adventure playground will be the first major undertaking of our PTG this fall.

Again, each child will receive a booklet about our school which will be full of useful information and can be kept as a handy reference for the year.

The safety of our students is always our first concern. If you are interested in helping with the Block Parent program in your home or as a "phoning parent", please call Mrs. Creech at 888-6737 or leave your name and number at the school office.

Shortly after school begins we will be having a Meet The Teacher Night. During that evening teachers will explain the curriculum to parents. We hope to see every family represented so that we can renew friendships, greet parents new to our community, define our objectives and outline the many ways of communicating between family and school.

Immunization imperative for first graders

According to the Abbotsford Health Center, "Parents should be aware that all children entering grade one require a booster vaccine for diptheria, tetanus, polio, measles and rubella.

"It is of utmost importance that children receive these necessary immunizations before entering the school system in the fall," says a health center spokesperson.

Student 'delivery-boys' should beware of jobs

OTTAWA - The Canada Safety Council believes an increasing number of young Canadians are naively accepting part-time jobs that could have far-reaching and damaging effects on their futures, and possibly that of their parents.

Many pizza restaurants and other fast food outlets are seeking to hire young people, with a small vehicle, to make local deliveries. They generally pay a minimum wage, plus a nominal extra sum for each delivery.

Many owners of such establishments may not realize the problems they may be creating for the young drivers and their parents. Others know full well, and specifically advise their drivers to dispose of all food, and not to admit to being "on delivery" if involved in any accident.

This group of drivers, males under twenty, are more accident prone, statistically, than any other group. Most people carry insurance on their private vehicles that covers only pleasure use, or possibly to and from a place of employment. Use of the vehicle for hire or compensation is precluded.

According to the Insurance Bureau of Canada in Toronto, if parents knew of such activities on the part of a teenager, their collision coverage could be voided. If they did not know, it may still be valid, but the insurer could wait for the teenager to become of legal age and working, then submit a claim for repayment of monies expended in this regard, while the pizza house or restaurant may well become subject to legal claims for which they may have no coverage or insurance at all, resulting in the probable loss of their business.

How many people would stake their business on the unknown driving abilities of a youngster? And some do not even ask to see a valid driving licence.

These concerns do not affect the establishment which owns and provides its own vehicles, generally identified with the company name and covered by the proper insurance.

A very special community service

ALDERGROVE - The Aldergrove Thrift Shop is sponsored by the Aldergrove Branch 71, OAPA. It is run as a separate unit with its own president and executive staff but is directly responsible to Branch 71 of the OAPA. It was formed as a community project to supply Aldergrove and the surrounding area with good used clothing at a minimal cost. All stock is donated by local citizens and all workers are OAPA volunteers. All earnings to to charity after deducting running expenses. The thrift shop donates to Kinsmen and other worthwhile organizations and also outfits, free of charge, all desperate cases brought to their attention. Any and all donations of unwanted clothing or furniture would be most sincerely appreciated. Please call 856-5292 for more information.

Export charges increased

VICTORIA - Exporters of logs from B.C. will have to pay more for the privilege starting October 1, 1981.

In order to stimulate manufacturing at home, the province has a long standing policy of charging a fee on the small volume of logs permitted for export.

This "levy in lieu of manufacture" has not been charged since 1974. Since then, drastic market and value changes have taken place.

The new fee schedule established by the ministry of forests is expected to increase export charges by about 20 percent overall. It is based on log values by species and grades; the higher the log value, the higher the levy will be.

In this way the government will encourage industry to keep high-value logs in the province and process them here.

Over the years, log exports from B.C. have fluctuated between ½ and 2 percent of the provincial timber harvest. Permission to export logs is granted only if it can be shown that they: are surplus to domestic needs, or cannot be manufactured economically in the area where they have been cut, nor transported economically to a facility located elsewhere in the province, or unless exported, would be wasted.

YOU CAN NEVER TELL WHAT YOU'LL FIND

ALDERGROVE - Every Sunday morning a group of dedicated people rise early and hold a swap meet and mart in the hall of the Royal Canadian Legion 265. Weird and wondrous are the objects offered and one never knows just what is going to turn up. As the old saying goes - One man's junk is another man's treasure.

OLI puts computers in student's homes

This fall, the Open Learning Institute will offer students a unique opportunity to become familiar with new technology at home. Those who enroll in CMPT 001: Introduction to Personal Computing will be sent a microcomputer which hooks up to their own television sets. This unit, about the size of a portable typewriter, will allow students to try some elementary programming, get some hands-on computer experience, and find out whether a home computer would be useful to them.

"So many people today are confused about computers and the technological revolution," says Denys Meakin, co-writer of the course and Director of Student Services at OLI. "A great deal of jargon is being thrown around, hundreds of new computer-related devices are on the market, and people have no way of making reasonable decisions about how computers might fit into their lives. We hope that OLI's new course will clear up the confusion for a lot of people."

What kinds of things do people need to know about home computing? And what kind of things will Introduction To Personal Computing teach them? Denys Meakin explains:

"Introduction to Personal Computing is designed to be a very practical course. Upon completion of it, students should be able to determine whether or not a home computer would be useful to them, choose equipment and programs that are appropriate to their needs and budgets, understand what accessories they need to run their home computing systems and, above all, avoid buying hardware or software that is not going to be of use to them. It's really a course in computer consumerism."

Registration for Introduction To Personal Computing will begin in September. The students who enroll in this non-credit course will receive in the mail, a complete course package containing OLI learning units and course manual, a TRS-80 Color Computer like the one shown here, which hooks up to any TV set, a self-study manual in computer programming, and telephone access to a course tutor who will help students sort out any problems they might encounter.

Cost for the six-week course is $85.00, plus a $250.00 deposit against return of the computer. At the end of the course, students will have the option of returning the computer for a full refund, or buying it at a very competitive price.

Those interested in registering in Introduction to Personal Computing this fall should call their nearest OLI advisor as soon as possible. There are openings for only 35 students in this pilot semester. However, those who don't make it for the first run will be placed on a waiting list, and sent their course on a first-come, first-served basis as computers are returned.

There is an OLI regional advisor in Richmond. Call collect to 270-8021 for more information.

Micro-computer [far right] is sent to OLI students for easy hook-up to home television sets.

SPECIAL NOTE:

For information regarding this schedule, please contact Langley School District at 534-7891 (Local 34).

Bus Transportation is a Privilege Not a Right, any misbehaviour by students will result in suspension of bus transportation for the party concerned.

NOTE: If necessary, minor revisions might have to be made to the above scheduling to compensate for possible overload factors on some routes.

Pupils are requested to board only their correct buses and to be at Bus Stops five minutes before bus leaving time. All times given are subject to change.

Information regarding rules and regulations governing students riding school buses is available at all schools.

Hustle and bustle time as Back to School time approaches. Susan favors these suspender slacks and checkered shirt for casual comfort. ...from Moonshiner Jeans. R. McIlwain photo

Moonshiner shines for back-to-schoolers

In Rome they are probably shopping for Beau Brummel slacks and blouses. Paris might be looking for the latest tweeds and cottons, and New York is probably selling a lot of posh outfits with urban flair. But in Aldergrove we don't put on the airs. When all is said and done, it's denim that serves the purpose in this corner of civilization.

That's why Moonshiner Jeans has opened its doors in the Countryside Shopping Centre, just in time for back to school.

This is the third store in Langley district run by Pat and Jim Barss. They also have outlets in Fort Langley and Langley City.

Moonshiner is where you go when you want to buy casual clothes to last a student through the school year and beyond. Ultra casual is fashionable school wear, and ultra casual is Moonshiner's stock in trade.

They cater to all sizes, all ages and both sexes, providing brand name quality or discount materials, depending on your tastes and budget.

Don't forget to stop in at Moonshiner on your way back to school. You will find they meet your needs with denim and accessories, and they won't leave you in need of a bank loan in the process.

Teach your children safe walking rules

If you have a child just entering school for the first time this fall or enrolled in a primary grade, consider this advice from the B.C. Automobile Association: Don't drive your youngster to or from school.

The reason, says the auto club, is that each driving parent adds to traffic congestion around school grounds, presenting a hazard to small students. The advice applies especially in inclement weather.

Drivers maneuvering to drop off young passengers create confusing traffic patterns in school areas, sometimes contributing to serious accidents. Children running haphazardly across the road to and from the family car are exposed to great danger.

Instead of driving children to school, the auto club recommends that parents help them learn safe walking rules - and on rainy days, provide them with well-fitting, light-colored raincoats and rain hats. If you drop children off on the way to work, do so within a safe walking distance.

Plan to walk children to school for the first few days and meet them afterward. Get started in plenty of time, so there's no need to hurry or run. This way, they'll learn to walk safely.

If there's a school bus available, walk with children to the bus for a few days and meet them at the stop when they arrive home.

Before long, youngsters will probably want to walk to school or the bus "alone" - this may mean with friends, but not an adult.

A child will be better equipped to go it alone by then if the parent has mapped out the safest route. The youngster should be told why it is the best way, and why alternate routes are less desirable, even though possibly shorter.

To select the safest route, keep the following in mind: Wherever possible, choose controlled intersections for children to cross. Control may be by a mechanical traffic signal, an adult crossing guard or a member of the school safety patrol.

At crossings with traffic signals, explain the meaning of the red-yellow-green sequence, and the walk/don't walk signs. Teach children to start across only at the beginning of the appropriate signal. Instruct them also to watch carefully for turning cars and explain that while the signal is an aid to safe crossing, it cannot be relied upon totally - they should look in all directions before and during crossing.

In the same way children have learned to watch for the correct light, they should learn to watch for the "go" signal given by a crossing guard, and to stay at the curb until the signal is given.

At these corners explain to children that the guard is a friend who is there to help them watch for a safe time to cross. The parent, too, should demonstrate respect by observing directions of the crossing guard, advises the BCAA.

Some streets children cross may be unguarded. On such streets, teach them to look in all directions before stepping off the curb and to proceed only when there is a good break in traffic. Ask them to walk - never run - across the street. On two-way streets, they should check carefully to the left until reaching the centre, and to the right as they complete the crossing.

Finally, impress on your children that the walk to school is no time for play. Playing tag or other diverting games while walking can be hazardous.

Remember that children are imitative. A parent's own actions in traffic influence the child's development in traffic habits. If you walk safely, they will very likely do the same, concludes the auto club.

Entertainment

Stan (the man) at the box.

LANGLEY - There's always fun, games and dancing at the Royal Canadian Legion #21 in Langley. One of the best pianists in town, Stan (the man) Pierce is always on hand to play for a dance or sing-along. It's a nice way to spend a Saturday afternoon in great company. A country and western group, The Crossroad Connections appeared in the main lounge Saturday night while next door "Tara", another great attraction, entertained at the reunion of the South Saskatchewan Regiment. All in all, it was a real exciting weekend.

Baker is inspired to see the beauty

By KURT LANGMANN

Veteran jazz trumpeter Chet Baker and his band earned warm and enthusiastic response from the Hot Jazz Society club patrons last Monday night.

Baker's craggy face and thinning hair makes it obvious that he's been around - he's seen more of the world than most of us would care to see - yet for all of the strife Baker makes music that is breath-taking, beautiful and intimate.

His style is warm, concentrating on the lower and middle ranges, and he always keeps the melodic line of the jazz-pop standards accessible. He also sang a few songs, including his big 1953 hit, "My Funny Valentine," and it was this song that nearly brought the house down. His singing voice resembles his trumpet style - muted almost as though it were 'compressed' but strong and emotional.

His band; guitar, bass and drums, are democratic and highly talented. All were allowed to solo frequently and satisfyingly.

The second set was much stronger than the first, and one of the highlights was "Tidal Breeze" from his recent lp, "One Upon A Summertime."

Chet Baker

This lp, on the Artists House label (distributed in Canada by A&M Records), has been hailed by jazz magazines as Baker's finest hour to date.

The tone of the lp is highly romantic in the tradition of sax-man Ben Webster, but is not marked with cliche or 'schlock'. It is a record that almost anyone can understand and love.

To illustrate my point; a personal anecdote. I frequently play the album at home, and the other day my six-year old son began to sing along with the opening bars to "Tidal Breeze," an instrumental with quite a number of chord changes. My jaw went slack as I watched and listened, but in truth I was not surprised. You see, Chet Baker has the ability to inspire his listeners, and it can only be because he himself is inspired - magnificently.

Come back soon, Chet.

Entertainment follows crowds at the PNE this year

VANCOUVER - Each year the PNE Fair offers a new variety of shows and entertainment ... this year, you're offered a whole new experience as you stroll the grounds.

The experience begins as you enter the main gate off Hastings and Renfrew. Directly ahead is a giant archway, leading to the colorfully decorated China Pavilion. But the "new look" is just beginning.

Ahead lie the central grounds ... now transformed through a major landscaping and design project. New tree plantings and seating clusters lend a "village" atmosphere that's a pleasant contrast to the surrounding color and excitement.

Another area of greenery leads toward the PNE Prize Home, located just west of the Agrodome. Here, the 1981 Horticultural Show moves outside, forming the heart of a lush garden walkway.

Enhancing the new "natural" look of the Fair is a new choice in entertainment. You can either go to where the shows are - on the redesigned, floating main stage or the new bandstand adjacent to the Food Building - or the shows will come to you.

Strolling musicians will perform each afternoon at "satellite" show areas throughout the grounds. Something here for everyone: a Dixieland band, an accordian trio, Gypsy quartet, polka band and tuba quartet. Other strolling entertainers - a magician, juggler, rope spinner and a clown act - add to the sense of moveable fun.

Rothman's main stage entertainment is equally varied. Early afternoon features the Northern Express, a country western group, followed by Gillian Campbell, a British music hall act. Early evening it's the Bobby Hales Big Band, concluding in the late evening with a rock group - the Noteables. On evenings when the Bobby Hales Big Band is occupied with the Miss PNE Pageant and B.C. Esso Talent Festival, a marionette act will appear on the main outdoor stage.

The Action Centre north of the main stage is again the site of two major daily events. The demolition derby - this year celebrating its 10th Anniversary with a record number of nerve-shattering pile-ups - and the timber show, an extravaganza of log burling, spar climbing and axe throwing.

Next to the Action Centre is the midway, with its rides, games and cotton candy. This too has new appeal, in the form of a stomach-churning new ride called the Pirate.

For different kind of action, head south to the Exhibition Park race track. There's racing every Monday, Wednesday, Friday and Saturday of the Fair (Labour Day, too) and your PNE admission gets you into the track free.

When you've had your fill of action, head back to the central grounds, take a seat under a shady tree and relax. After a breather you'll be ready to tackle the indoor attractions, including the great new China Show, Sight & Sound spectacular, the Canada Pavilion, the ever-popular agricultural shows, Farm Gate, Creative Living shows and much, much more.

New look grounds - and a multitude of new attractions - make "PNE Showtime '81" a fair to remember.

Grounds admission is $3 for adults, $1 for children 12 and under. Children's Days: August 31, with free admission to school-age children until 6 p.m. Golden Agers' Days: August 26 and September 2, with free admission to senior citizens.

Canadian Pavilion holds modern marvels

VANCOUVER - Want to know what people of your own ancestry have contributed to the development of Canada? Worried about how long your body can withstand the abuse you're giving it? How about having your picture drawn using Canada's new Telidon system?

Explore these and other possibilities in the Canada Pavilion of this year's PNE between August 22 and September 7, 1981.

Some 26 exhibitors from the Government of Canada and government-related agencies will describe their work and how it affects you, the taxpayer.

The theme of the Canada Pavilion is "Our Nation in Progress - Canada 1981 " and the futuristic atmosphere is emphasized through extensive use of computers in many exhibits.

The Family Tree computer from the Ministry of State for Multiculturalism can study the family names of your parents and tell you about your ethnic origins and the contribution that people of your ancestry have made to the building of this country.

Health and Welfare Canada's Operation Lifestyle computer is a lot like your mother. It will analyze your living habits and tell you, in no uncertain terms, how long you can expect to live at the rate you're going.

The Communications Canada Telidon system is a little less aggressive but it also reveals something about you - your caricature, sketched on its screen by an artist.

One mechanical marvel in the Canada Pavilion is not all it seems, despite any claims that may be made for it. Consumer and Corporate Affairs Canada's robot is a nuts and bolts example of the kind of misleading advertising from which the department tries to protect Canadian consumers.

A genuine example of Canadian technological expertise is the Canadarm, developed by the National Research Council and Spar Aerospace Limited as Canada's contribution to the American space shuttle program. A model of the arm, mounted on a reproduction of the shuttle, is on view in the Canada Pavilion. See it now - your next opportunity won't come before September 30 when the arm is launched into space as part of the shuttle's second flight.

A Canadian family photo album is located just outside the Canada Pavilion. It is the first showing of the National Film Board's "Sights of History" since its unveiling on July 1 in Ottawa.

The Canada Pavilion is next to the Showmart, located right beside the Prize Home on the PNE grounds and, of course, admission to the Pavilion is free.

TROPICAL DANCE WAVE!

Seventeen year old Maxine Sims strikes a pose from Polynesia. Maxine is a dancer with instructor qualifications, and she is one of a troupe of Polynesian dancers from the Paul Lata dance studio in Brookswood, who will be appearing throughout the Pacific National Exhibition.

Paul Lata has been steadily building a reputation on the west coast, as one of the Lower Mainland's better Polynesian dance schools. Be sure to take in the excitement provided by Maxine and her friends at this year's fair.

A behind-the-scenes look at sight and sound

VANCOUVER - Visitors to "Sight 'n' Sound" in the B.C. Pavillion at this year's Pacific National Exhibition can take a behind-the-scenes look at various aspects of electronic entertainment.

Little Mountain Sound, the internationally known Vancouver recording studio, will be recording different bands on location every day with a remote studio. Equipment and techniques will be explained.

The PNE Radio News Room will also be in operation. Patrons can see the electronic news-gathering process in action. Various interviews will be taking place all day.

A display entitled "Radio Replay" will offer a nostalgic look at radio's earlier days through a collection of memorabilia and an early control board.

Running continuously will be a three-hour videotape presentation, "Stars on Stage", showing performances by Elvis and other popular performers.

O-HUNTING WE WILL GO!

Hunter trials in September

ALDERGROVE - Fraser Valley Hunt has announced the opening date of this years season. Hunter Trials will be held on Sunday, September 13 followed by a short hunt. The location of the gala day will be at the corner of 8 Avenue and 272 Street on the pastures of Emerald Acres - thanks to the kind permission of Mr. and Mrs. R.W. Hall.

Spectators are invited to enjoy a full day of equestrian events followed by a hunt in the old English tradition. There is lots of free parking and free entry so come along and bring your camera to catch the colorful events.

This year the Fraser Valley Hunt is inviting riders who would like to be part of the action to join a special group of "Hill Toppers" that will follow the hunt at a more leisurely pace, enjoying the social activities of the meet and the hunt breakfast without the strenuous activity of a full hunt course. There will be no charge for "Hill Toppers" during the early weeks of the Fall season. These early hunts are generally short runs and offer a tremendous opportunity for conditioning of horses and riders.

The Hunt plans informally dressed "Cubbing" meets through October with the formal hunt season getting underway on November 7.

If you'd like to take advantage of the invitation to be a spectator or a "Hill Topper" of this colorful event call John Twidale at 856-4147 for further details.

More photos, next page.....

Hunter Trials will be part of the Fraser Valley Hunt's opening meet. Horse and riders will be able to display their abilities as the course will test both for the necessary skills of riding to hounds.

Red Cross promotes water safety

Drowning is the third leading cause of accidental deaths in Canada. And, every year, 900 Canadians, many of them children, become part of those casualties.

Summer is the most appropriate time to think about those statistics and what you can do to safeguard your family against drowing.

The Canadian Red Cross recommends learning to swim as an important and obvious defense against drowning. Swimming is a skill which can mean the difference between life and death.

But, knowing how to swim is only the beginning. Every year many individuals who believe they are good swimmers drown or injure themselves because they ignored or never knew about some basic safety procedures.

No matter where you or your family go to swim or relax, there are several simple rules that go a long way in the prevention of drowing or injury.

- Swim in supervised areas. If that is not possible, swim in a place you know is safe and has been thoroughly checked for jutting rocks, currents and dropoffs.
- Always watch small children when near any body of water. Even after small children learn to swim, they must be supervised.
- Never swim alone.
- Exercise caution before diving by making sure the water is deep enough and hazard free.
- Don't allow swimmers to use inner tubes or inflatable supports. False confidence in these supports could cost their life.
- If someone falls into the water, don't jump in. Use a reaching, throwing or floating assist such as a paddle, towel or rescue line with a float attached.
- Know how to administer rescue breathing (artificial respiration). Make sure every member of your family knows this simple method of resuscitation that has saved thousands of lives.

This summer, don't become a statistic. Make water safety a part of your plans.

For further information on water safety and the location of swimming and water safety classes, contact your local Red Cross.

A CPR course for survival

LANGLEY - You should take a CPR course. That's what the Heart Foundation says. CPR stands for Cardiopulmonary Resusitation - and it's a heart saver program that gives you the skills to act for survival.

Langley Adult Education Department is co-operating with the Canadian Heart Foundation in a series of fall classes in Basic Life Support. Basic Life Support is a simple procedure. Everyone will probably, at some time, witness a heart attack, a drowning in a pool or at the beach, a choking in an adult or a child. When you know the A-B-C's of CPR - airway, breathing and circulation - you can save a life.

"Young mothers and grandmothers who are looking after their grandchildren should know what to do if an infant or a child chokes on something," says Marion Osenton, one of the co-ordinators of CPR in Langley. "When you realize that it takes from 4 to 6 minutes without oxygen for brain damage to occur, you know there's not much time to act.

"Knowing what to do saves us from panic. CPR is simple and basic - but without it we can't do much."

Cardio-vascular disease accounts for 50 to 60 percent of all cardiac deaths, according to recent figures. Everyone should know the early signs of heart attack and have an emergency plan of action. CPR course teaches participants to recognize when CPR is necessary - how to revive the victim - and who to call for further help.

Periodic refresher courses are necessary to keep the skills sharp. Starting in September, the course in Langley is offered in two evening classes per month, plus three Saturday classes in October and November. "People are so enthusiastic when they finish the course," Mrs. Osenton says. "They say - why don't more people take it?

"To which I reply - what took you so long?"

A life may depend on how well you remember the proper steps of CPR and how to apply them. Phone Langley Continuing Education Department and enroll in CPR - 534-7891.

New computerized long distance system will be placed in service next year to better serve telephone customers in the Aldergrove exchange. Mechanized operator switchboards are being installed this year in B.C. Tel's Abbotsford office, the main long distance centre for the Central Fraser Valley region. The $2.5-million project will speed the processing of direct dialed long distance calls and is scheduled to be placed in service by June of 1982. With the system, Aldergrove telephone customers will be able to dial a variety of calls which previously had to be processed by an operator, including collect, person-to-person, credit card, calls billed to another number and calls where time and charges are requested, as well as calls to 48 overseas countries.

CBS PRESENTS

"Golden Age of Television"

Television's "golden age"—those years between 1948 and 1960 when TV drama was presented live—is experiencing a renaissance on public television. "The Golden Age of Television" is presenting, in their entirety, eight of the best live dramas of that era.

The series is being distributed to some 150 public television stations that are part of the Interregional Program Service. The dramas are airing once a month, usually the last week of the month in most areas.

Cliff Robertson introduces the second presentation, "Bang the Drum Slowly," starring Paul Newman (left), Albert Salmi and George Peppard (background) in a story about a major league baseball catcher with an incurable disease. The drama is scheduled to air the last week in September in most areas.*

The third and fourth dramas in the monthly series line-up are: "No Time for Sergeants," adapted from Mac Hyman's best-selling novel by Ira Levin in 1955 (scheduled for October); and "The Days of Wine and Roses," J.P. Miller's 1958 teleplay (scheduled for November).

Produced by Sonny Fox Productions in association with KCET/Los Angeles, these special programs also feature conversations with those involved in the original teleplays, and are each introduced by a celebrity host.

Biles must contend with the recent announcement that Ken Stabler has retired. The mantle falls on the shoulders of fourth-year pro Gifford Nielsen and forces Biles to rely even more heavily on Earl Campbell.

The setting is a modern apartment complex which becomes affected by the aftermath of a scientific experiment gone awry. An enormous parasite spreads through the building after a gruesome murder-suicide and a growing number of victims are stricken with its affects; violence, sexual behavior. (105 mins.)

Jack Lemmon stars as the captain of a jumbo jet that crash lands at sea trapping all of its occupants underwater, in AIRPORT '77, a suspense drama to be colorcast in two parts—on "The Sunday Big Event," August 30, and on "NBC Monday Night at the Movies," August 31.

In Part I, criminals break into a business establishment and abscond with sleeping gas which they hope to use to pull off a major hijacking. Meanwhile Philip Stevens (James Stewart), a wealthy businessman and art collector, makes plans to fly an elite group of art collectors, sponsors, critics and friends from Washington, D.C. to Palm Beach.

Johnny Lee continues his short string of hit singles with his Full Moon/Asylum single "Prisoner of Hope." Many country music critics were calling Lee a flash in the pan when his career suddenly took off at the onset of the "Urban Cowboy" craze, but Johnny is proving he has the staying power to keep his iron hot in the music circle.

"The Prisoner's Song/The Wreck of the Old 97," was reportedly country music's first million-selling single. His other hits included "The Letter Edged In Black," "Golden Slippers" and "My Blueridge Mountain Home." Dalhart also sang light opera and was radio's "Sam, The Barbasol Man."

The nominees for this year's Country Music Hall of Fame are Vernon Dalhart, Little Jimmy Dickens, Lefty Frizzell, Floyd Tillman and Grant Turner. One of these five will be inducted in the Hall of Fame on Monday night, October 12th, during the 1981 CMA Awards Show telecast on CBS-TV.

Election to the Country Music Hall of Fame is the crowning achievement in the career of a member of the country music industry. The Hall of Fame was founded in 1961 by the Country Music Association and currently has 36 members.

Vernon Dalhart, one of this year's Hall of Fame nominees, derived his stage name from the Texas towns of Vernon and Dalhart. He recorded hundreds of songs on several record labels using more than 180 different names. His biggest country hit, Elektra/Asylum Records has signed Joe Sun to a recording contract. Sun is currently in the studio finishing his debut album for the label under the supervision of Brien Fisher, his long-time record producer. The album is scheduled for release in October, and Elektra/Asylum is preparing a stepped-up promotional push for the country artist.

Charly McClain

The syndicated disco television series "Dance Fever" will showcase country artist Charly McClain singing her Epic single, "Sleeping With the Radio On." McClain has completed her first tour as an opening act for Kenny Rogers and a second tour with Rogers is planned for the fall. In the meantime, McClain has appearances set with artists such as Tom T. Hall, Willie Nelson, Merle Haggard, Bobby Bare and Razzy Bailey.

Natalie Wood and Ralph Bellamy star as a disturbed daughter and her millionaire father, in THE MEMORY OF EVA RYKER, a mystery drama revolving around a sunken ocean liner, to be rebroadcast as a special movie presentation Wednesday, September 2 on CBS-TV.

Miss Wood plays not only Eva Ryker but also, in flashbacks, Eva's mother, Claire, who went down with the luxury liner when the vessel, the Queen Anne, became the first British victim of Nazi U-boats during World War II. Robert Foxworth portrays Norman Hall, a novelist hired by Ryker (Bellamy) to double as a journalist and cover his project salvaging the ship.

Those 'Great White North' bits are colder than you think

Rick Moranis (left) and Dave Thomas, of NBC-TV's "SCTV Network 90" repertory company, definitely belong in a category that has become almost extinct in today's television circles—that of performers who dare to "wing it" before the cameras.

Moranis and Thomas, as Bob and Doug Mackenzie, host "The Great White North," a show frequently found among the program offerings at the fictional SCTV television station that is the setting for the humor on the late-night satirical comedy series (following Friday editions of "The Tonight Show Starring Johnny Carson").

Astonishingly, Moranis and Thomas go into their "Great White North" segments absolutely "cold" (i.e. with no scripted material whatsoever). Both are well schooled in the art of improvisational comedy, and they obviously have no qualms about regularly putting that training to the acid test.

"They're just basically two real goofs," Moranis says, "who come on and talk about different things." And how! There they are, frying bacon and drinking beer, and Doug Mackenzie's (Thomas) piercing wilderness hoot which serves as a theme song is the cue for brother Bob's "Good day, eh. Welcome to the Great White North. The topic for today is . . ." Whereupon they launch into any one of a number of subjects.

Pensioners entertain patients

By ERNEST CLUETT

ALDERGROVE - A group of Aldergrove no. 71 musicians entertained at the Surrey Memorial hospital extended care unit on Tuesday, August 18 and were very well received. The group, under emcee Emily Elmore consisted of Emily on guitar, Slim Burrel also on guitar, yours truly on organ and Muriel Cluett vocalist.

You are reminded that the days for the Xmas dinner will have to be settled at the September 4 meeting, Friday at 1:30 p.m. in the OAP hall. When this question is settled, the renting of the hall can proceed in a normal way without the risk of renting the hall on some date the pensioners will need it for their festivities.

You are also reminded that you need a 1981 membership card to be eligible for the Xmas season festivities. The color of the 1981 card is green. Please check to see if you have one. The fee is still $2 per year.

We regret the passing of an old time member and long time resident of Bradner, Hazel VanSkiver, who passed away in Fort St. John while visiting her son and family. Our sympathy goes out to Beryl Dospital and Dorothy Jackson, sisters of Hazel, also to the son and daughter and their families.

The Saturday night dance attendance was back to the normal crowd. Door prize went to Lorrain Horsman and Liz McClelland and Dick Lockhart won the spot prize. Visitors were Cliff and Kay Trevers from Coquitlam, M. Boley of Surrey, Ester Very and Al and Grace Hanson from Burnaby, Hart and Veda Simms and Louis and Bing Stennett of Delta.

Mary Sanderson returned from Ireland and Belfast Ulster and from all appearances didn't get blown up even once.

FRASER VALLEY'S FOURTH ANNUAL

Photographic seminar coming up

ABBOTSFORD - Following a capacity crowd success last year, larger premises have been located for the 1981 two-day photographic seminar hosted by the Abbotsford Photo Arts Club.

The seminar will take place on Friday and Saturday, October 2 and 3 in the facilities of the Trinity Memorial United Church in Abbotsford.

In keeping with the trend established over the last three years, registrants are expected to come from Vancouver and the whole Fraser Valley, as well as from Vancouver Island and the Interior. In the past three years, participants have included people from as far away as Australia, Germany and the prairie provinces.

Amongst the twelve speakers chosen to maintain the Club's reputation for excellence, new lecturers this year include Fred Chapman of Burnaby. Chapman is vice president of the National Association of Photographic Art and works closely with Freeman Patterson. Another first is the acceptance of Dennis Rickett, studio instructor at the Emily Carr College of Art.

The Club is also fortunate to have been able to book Chris Harris, well-known wilderness and mountain guide, who will provide a gripping evening of entertainment after supper on Saturday with his excellent slide shows on the ascent of Mount Logan.

International award winning nature photographers Don and Mildred McPhee have agreed to bring to the seminar the same lecture that was so successfully presented recently in Spokane at the convention of the Photographic Society of America.

There will again be special sessions for beginners run alongside some of the more advanced lectures.

For brochures and information check your local camera store or phone Earl Phillips, 859-4645 or Sara Shadbolt, 856-8945.

These parks for boats

By Rae Sutcliffe

From the mainland, the Gulf Islands beckon along the western horizon -- misty blue images which lure weekend and holiday boaters.

With a northernmost starting point of Newcastle Island in Nanaimo harbor, a delightful week can be spent sailing down the island chain through arbutus-hung anchorages.

Newcastle is a marine park of sunny meadows and forests, home to delicate deer and herds of rabbits. A winding walk encircles the island. This park has both wharf facilities and mooring buoys for the large number of summer visitors.

STONE GALLERIES

A fascinating day trip to the northwest tip of Gabriola Island can be made from Newcastle. Gabriola Sands Provincial Park has twin sandy beaches straddling a neck of land between Pilot and Taylor Bays. Swimming and picnicking are the feature here.

Just a few minutes away in a tiny bay at Malaspina Point, another small park protects the Galiano Galleries. A small boat may anchor off the Galleries - an unusual erosional formation -- in calm conditions and boaters may go ashore to explore the natural stone structures.

Moving down through the islands by way of Dodd Narrows which must be traversed with care at slack water, brings one down the De Courcy Island chain and into a lovely marine park, Pirates Cove.

When this popular anchorage fills, boats can spill over into another sheltering bay in the park on the south side of De Courcy, and into the nearby bays of Ruxton Island. Both De Courcy and Ruxton islands have some beautiful examples of sandstone erosion along the tide lines.

Nosing the boat into Whaleboat Passage, between Ruxton and its little neighbour, Whaleboat Island, can net some very good oysters for beachcombers.

For a complete change of pace, swing away to the islets off the northern tip of Thetis Island, where there is a wreck dating back to the 1900's, the old steamer "Miami". By timing a visit to Miami Reefs for low tide, parts of the ship are visible.

Time spent in the Secretary Group can be rewarding, although this tiny anchorage can accept only a few boats. An old house on South Secretary has a summer-blooming pioneer's flower garden.

PORLIER PASS

A place of strong currents and vicious rip tides well known to local boaters and especially to sport fishermen is Porlier Pass, between Valdes and Galiano islands.

Water conditions can be treacherous here. Many boaters don't linger when transiting the pass homebound to the mainland. But, by picking times with careful attention to currents tables, it is possible to visit several of the small coves, especially on the Galiano side, and explore a dramatic area of the islands.

Popular with local scuba clubs, Porlier Pass often has mini-villages of tents set up in protected beach areas. Dionisio Bay is worth a stopover; it has a good anchorage out of the tidal flow, with a treed and grassy point for views of the busy pass.

While sailing in these waters, you will notice that most of the names are related directly to the early European history of the area, when the Spanish and British explorers were active.

Afterwards many Royal Navy warships were on station in these waters during the "troubles" with Spain and then with the rebellious American colonies.

Skeena 'no shooting areas'

Two new "No Shooting Areas" have been established in the Skeena Region for safety reasons, environment minister Stephen Rogers has announced. Under authority of the Firearm Act, discharge of all firearms is now prohibited at Alice Arm, northwest of Hazelton, and on the Ecstall River, south of Prince Rupert.

The Ecstall River closure is required to protect workers and equipment involved in construction on the Falls River Redevelopment Dam, Rogers explained.

Recent housing developments and the construction of a mine site at Alice Arm necessitate the shooting prohibition to ensure safety to the public. The Alice Arm closure will incidentally provide protection to a small resident population of Canada geese.

Maps of both closed areas will be provided in the 1981/82 Hunting Regulations Synopsis, the minister said.
