IDEOLOGIES CLASH

War erupts in council chambers

MURRAYVILLE - Mutual accusations of naivete were hurled back and forth across the council table here Monday night when an Aldergrove man came to explain the efforts of the Langley Association for Nuclear Disarmament and request council's assistance.

Dave Allison, who read a prepared brief to council in which he deplored U.S. foreign policy, was asked by Ald. Carol Gran from where he had obtained information compiled in a graph showing the U.S. far out-distancing the Soviets in the arms race.

He said he had obtained it from the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. embassies.

In the brief, Allison claimed the U.S., "time and again (is calling) for a crusade against the USSR and other socialist countries ... and put forward new adventurist plans."

He suggested a citizen committee be formed locally to investigate dangers of a nuclear threat with specific reference to Langley.

In response to Allison's presentations, Ald. Carol Gran, who came well prepared, started reading from an article in the Readers Digest which stated that the peace movement has been "created or manipulated by pro-Soviets ... and masterminded and funded by the Kremlin," at a cost of $100-million.

From there discussion turned into a battle of ideologies, with Allison claiming that the people of the U.S.S.R. enjoy better representation in their government than do the people of Canada or the U.S.

At this point other aldermen joined in the fray.

Ald. Elford Nundal pointed out that the previous day had marked the 50th anniversary of Adolf Hitler's takeover of the German parliamentary assembly.

"The Third Reich was formed just 50 years ago," he said, "and soon (with the outbreak of World War II) we found ourselves totally defenseless."

"When I joined the (Canadian) armed forces, I was handed a wooden gun," he said.

(Crude replicas of military rifles were used to train recruits during the early years of the war, simply because there were amazingly few of the real guns available).

"Do you want the western world to be in the same vulnerable position again?" he asked. "No way do I ever want us to be defenseless again."

Here, Mayor Bill Blair interjected that he did not want the discussions to turn into a party-political rally.

Two newly-elected aldermen, John Rennie and Len Fowler, said discussions could go on all night without resolve and moved Allison's presentation be received (an action which means discussions are over and the matter at hand shelved).

"No," said Nundal. "This presentation has been strictly one-sided."

In the end Gran accused Allison of being naive, and he, in turn, accused councilors of the same thing.

He left, and councilors slowly calmed down and redirected their attentions to other matters.

They help fight crime

MURRAYVILLE - Langley RCMP are now getting crime fighting assistance from a group of private citizens.

Last week this group of vigilantes relayed eight calls to the police detachment here.

Calls ranged from reports on impaired drivers and street fights to theft. One man, who was observed removing a battery from a car parked near the city library, was apprehended and later charged with theft of under $200. In another case police were led to the identity of a hit-and-run driver.

"The 'observe and report' patrol are concernced citizens working in conjunction with the police, reporting criminal acts, to make our community a safer place to live," a police spokesman said.

PLACED ROUND JACKMAN MANOR

Parents warned of poison

ALDERGROVE - Several residents of Springfield Village have expressed concern about rat poison being spread at nearby Jackman Manor.

They have been warned by administrator Harry Lawn to keep their younger children away from the Lions senior housing complex and to warn their older children to leave the bait alone.

In a letter to residents of the Springfield, Alderview and Alderhill subidivisions, Lawn last week stated that "It has come to my attention that some of your children have been playing with rat bait that has been placed around our facility to control the problem of rodents."

Lawn warned that it is not the normal kind of bait that householders can buy, but a commercial variety used by a licensed exterminator. "It looks somewhat like rolled oats, so it would not take much for a toddler to try it to see if it was 'good to eat' which would be somewhat tragic," Lawn said.

Housing administrator also asked residents to refrain from using ornamental lawns as short-cuts when walking through the seniors development.

"A number of school children, and also some adults, are using our lawns as short-cuts and also going up on residents' patios, looking in their windows and upsetting some of them," Lawn said.

"I would like to think that all parties concerned are adult enough to help us solve this problem."

Robbery suspects arrested

COUNTY LINE - Shortly after a small grocery store here was held up by two armed men Friday night, January 21, RCMP arrested two suspects.

Betty Fox, of Betty's Country Store, was robbed of a small amount of money by two hooded men brandishing what police believe to be a pellet revolver.

Five days later RCMP had two suspects in custody.

Arrested and charged with armed robbery are Glen Munroe McDonald, 17, of no fixed address, and Roger Steven Beveridge, 19, of Aldergrove.

Kwantlen to join Fraser Valley?

MURRAYVILLE - There is a slight possibility that Kwantlen College's Langley campus won't close down totally.

College board has "reversed its original decision to a certain degree," says education minister Bill VanderZalm, "and will continue to offer some courses at the Langley campus."

Horticultural and farrier programs will continue during the spring semester, VanderZalm says.

In a letter to Langley council, the education minister says his ministry will continue discussions with the board in an effort to prevent closure of the campus. It could possibly be joined together with the Abbotsford-based Fraser Valley College, VanderZalm suggests.

Local response to the threatened closure of the Langley college has been somewhat varied.

"It is tragic," said Ald. Muriel Arnason this week while councilors were contemplating the possibility of a total closure.

"A lot of tragic things have happened this past year because of the economic times," responded Mayor Bill Blair.

Unemployed couple hounded

MURRAYVILLE - Audrey Marinello wiped tears from her eyes as she explained to council members here Monday night how she and her husband are being hounded by municipal bureaucrats simply because of the complaints of a neighbor.

"His accusations are a lot of garbage," she sobbed.

The Marinellos, who are both unemployed and have been for some time, reside in their own mobile home on an 8-acre parcel owned by W.A. Loxdale at 25765 Robertson Crescent.

They have lived there since 1975 when the property belonged to their parents.

Marinello explained that "unfortunately my parents split up" and the property was sold. Their permit to keep the mobile house parked there expired, "but (former building inspector) Peter Jarvis told us not to worry. He knew that we were doing our best to relocate."

It is only one neighbor who wants the Marinellos out of there. Three other neighbors would like the young family to stay.

Marinello said she and her husband had tried to buy a one-acre lot locally, but they soon learned that wouldn't do them any good, as they wouldn't be allowed to park their mobile there either. They could not afford to buy a five-acre parcel, she said.

Finally they decided to get away from Langley and bought a lot "up-country." They are now preparing this site for their mobile home by installing a well and a septic tank system. They

Hit and run suspect located

MURRAYVILLE - An Aldergrove man has been charged by RCM Police here with hit-and-run in connection with an accident that sent a 15-year-old girl to hospital last week.

Phillip Anderson, 29, has been charged with failure to remain at the scene of an accident which took place Friday Jan. 21 on Otter Road.

Pamela Cheiner suffered serious injuries in the mishap which occurred in the 4800 block 248 Street.

Public assistance led the police to the arrest of Anderson.

Oakes buy Okanagan zoo

ALDERGROVE - With the recent purchase of the Okanagan game farm by Hugh and Eleanore Oakes of the Vancouver game farm here, people interested in exotic animal watching will have a greater variety and pleasure in store for them this spring and summer.

Okanagan game farm, located on 640 acres of pasture and sagebrush some four miles south of Penticton, houses more than 600 animals of about 100 different species, from lowly rodents and birds to the mighty elephant.

Local game farm is comprised of 120 acres, 80 of which have been developed by the Oakes since they opened their zoo 10 years ago. It houses 550 animals of 75 species.

"The joining of the two farms is going to be very beneficial to both," says Hugh Oakes. "It means that we will be able to move some animals back and forth between here and Penticton. It will enable us to start new blood lines without fear of inbreeding the animals."

There are some animals that cannot be moved, however, Oakes points out. Mountain goats and sheep, for instance, would never survive in the rain forest vegetation of the Fraser Valley, while moose wouldn't do well in sagebrush country. Climatic differences between the two locations would also prove extremely detrimental to move certain other species, the zoo owner points out.

But Oakes is planning on moving some newcomers to Aldergrove. These would include musk oxen from the North West Territories, South American alpaca, and long-horned African cattle.

"We are planning on expanding and improving both farms," says Oakes. "Nothing big the first couple of years, but considerable expansion further down the road."

"And we now feel that there is absolutely no need for the Tynehead zoological society to go ahead with their plans.

"There is no need for the (planned Tynehead ever to come into existence."

Plans of the Tynehead society have been on the back burner for some time because of the current recession. Society, which plans to build a tax-subsidized zoological garden close to the 401 freeway in North Surrey, has experienced trouble in raising funds for their anticipated capital expenditures.

Oakes believes, and probably rightfully so, that the government has no business to fund an enterpise that might put him out of business. He has won support from some politicians, including local MLA and labor minister Bob McClelland, in his fight to stop the Tynehead proposal.

Hugh and Eleanore Oakes will continue to manage the Aldergrove game farm, while Eleanor's parents, Pat and Anne Hines, will look after the Penticton operation.

Tynehead given more time

SURREY - Tynehead zoological society has been granted a one year extension on its agreement to lease the major part of Tynehead regional park in Surrey, where it proposes to develop a zoological park.

The extension, which will give the society more time to complete basic studies, was granted by the Greater Vancouver regional district, which owns the park.

A report to the GVRD board stated that "the present economic situation makes funding and financial commitments difficult. If funding continues to be a problem and new deadlines are not substantially met, the GVRD should explore with the Tynehead zoological society possible less costly zoological park alternatives..."

The agreement to lease now extends to September 30.

would be out of Langley by mid-summer, but are not able to move yet. The neighbor is pressing to get them out.

Because of "extenuating circumstances," Ald. Carol Gran proposed that council grant the Marinellos an extension of their permit, but Gran was clearly the most sympathetic toward the young woman.

Ald. Elford Nundal backed Gran although "I generally don't condone infractions" of the district's bylaws.

Ald. Len Fowler added a time limit to Gran's motion whereby the Marinellos will have to move before August 1.

Least sympathy was expressed by Ald. Dan Williamson who said that the Marinellos had been parked illegally for the past five years, and, surely, they should have been able to come up with different arrangements within that time span. "There has to be a limit," Williamson said, preparing himself to throw the book at the young couple.

But Gran's motion was passed. In a few months the harassed Marinellos will leave Langley. Hopefully for more congenial surroundings.

"Come on, Brian - let's not get involved!"

People are the heroes

LANGLEY - On Tuesday, February 8, at 7:30, Langley Association for Nuclear Disarmament will show a film, "War without winners", in the Langley public library. The public is welcomed.

It is a film about the potential disastrous consequences of nuclear war between the two superpowers who are in a position to initiate one. It includes interviews with former US military and government officials, as well as ordinary citizens, both Soviet and American.

What emerges from these conversations is that citizens in both Russia and USA are concerned about nuclear war but that they feel powerless to affect the military policies of their respective nations - yet it is the ordinary citizens who are the heroes of the film.

As President Eisenhower puts it in the film, "Indeed, I think people want peace so much that one of these days government had better get out of their way and let them have it."

Canada's children in need of more help outside home

VANCOUVER - Canada's 6,500,000 children are becoming the victims in these times of restraint. Economic cutbacks affect their parents' ability to care for them, the schools' ability to educate them, and service agencies' capacity to serve them.

These conclusions were underlined by representatives of national agencies meeting at the offices of the Canadian Teachers' Federation in Ottawa.

The consequences for children of the step-by-step dismantling of educational and social programs were examined by these agencies which offer recreation and counselling services to children and family support groups, and which include professionals who work with children. There is little political or public recognition of these consequences for children.

Current experiences of the represented groups point to alarming trends.

Increasing numbers of children are coming to school dirty for lack of hot water, improperly clothed for the weather, poorly fed and lacking basic dental and medical care, teachers say.

Cutbacks in preventive health care and medical services have set immunization programs behind and have left children with hearing problems on hospital waiting lists. Community recreation and day care agencies are increasingly forced to manipulate their own budgets to make special payment arrangements for parents seeking services for their children.

The helping professions - teachers, nurses, community counsellors and recreation professionals - are compensating more and more for decreasing child services elsewhere and are reaching the limits of their resources.

Rick Patten of the YMCAs of Canada warned: "Today's situation is a twenty-year stretch; it won't be over next year or the year after." The impact on young people is particularly alarming as they emerge from school to face unemployment and the absence of meaningful work and activity, and the inability to establish homes and futures for themselves.

Participants agreed on necessary actions. The short- and long-term impact of government restraint policies on the care and education of children must be documented, teachers demand. Actions resulting in job opportunities for youth must be implemented immediately. Staffing must be sufficient to meet the needs in health, education and social services. Training for professionals in the field to maintain their competency in meeting new demands must be maintained.

Hard times mean an increased reliance on services, but ironically hard times are reducing the ability to serve, the teachers say.

Gregory O'Keefe, president of the Canadian Teachers' Federation and host of the meeting, concluded by saying: "Teachers and others working in the caring and helping professional fields are going the extra mile to give clothing, food, and love to Canadian children. They are quickly reaching the breaking point.

"Our collective responsibility for our young people must be accepted by all of us through our governments. We cannot allow governments to continue to dismantle the services we have built over so long a time in the name of economic policy. We must provide help and support to all our children and their families."

Economic recovery by '85

TORONTO - The economy will be on the way to solid recovery by 1985 with an inflation rate close to zero in the United States, says the president and chief executive officer of Canada's largest aluminum-producing company.

"I don't like making predictions but I'll go so far as to say 1985 will be a good year," Alcan Aluminum Ltd. president David Culver said at a luncheon speech to the Canadian Club here.

Culver said North America is going through a period of decreasing inflation which will culminate in zero inflation in the U.S. by 1985 and a rate of "not more than three or four percent in Canada."

"I happen to be of the school of thought that zero inflation is very bullish," he said. "It's a delicate sort of affair though, because I view disinflation certainly as a sign of a weak economy."

The president of the Montreal-based corporation said once recovery begins, inflation is not likely to rise again.

He predicted consumer demand will also have picked up by 1985 but said that won't start until people stop being afraid of losing their jobs.

Meanwhile, he said that like the rampant inflationary trend of the 1970s, the current disinflation is irreversible and will continue "regardless of what we do."

Festival Days meetings underway

ALDERGROVE - The 1983 Festival Days committee held their first meeting of the year last Wednesday night.

Committee chairpeople were elected. They are, chairperson Gloria Luypen, co-chairperson Brian Turnquist, and secretary-treasurer Fiona Pullen. The meeting was progressive, with the theme being chosen as Western. There are going to be festival buttons on sale again this year, and as before button wearers will receive various discounts in participating stores.

There will, as in previous years, be a festival parade and it is still in the discussion stage as to when and where the parade will be. Keep your eyes peeled for up to date news items in the paper. Parade entries will be taken a little later on in the year.

The festival in past years has always adopted a theme, and each year brings a bigger and better turnout and events.

"We are a small community, but a rapidly growing one, and we like to keep the festival as community oriented as is possible," said Luypen.

The next festival days committee meeting will be held on February 24 at 7:30 p.m. and will be at the Aldergrove Legion. Drop in and add your ideas and comments as to what you would like to see as part of the festivities.

Committee is always looking for extra help in organization of the festival, and if you as an individual or your group or organization would like to get involved, call Luypen at 856-8642, Turnquist at 856-4297 or Pullen at 856-6741.

Nickled and dimed to millions

MURRAYVILLE - "Look at that," said Mayor Bill Blair. "And sometimes we argue over the spending of $20."

Aldermen, all six of them, sat quiet while final reading was given to the municipality's 1983 'revenue anticipation' bylaw.

Ordinance allows municipal staff to borrow up to $17,500,000.00 "as required to finance 1983 municipal operations."

That is roughly the amount officials anticipate to raise through municipal taxation of property.

B.C. drivers: Worst in the country?

Chances are pretty good if you live in Canada that you know someone who has been injured in a traffic accident. In fact the odds are better than fifty-fifty you'll suffer injury in one yourself during your lifetime.

And if you live in British Columbia where, according to Statistics Canada, the worst drivers in the country are navigating the roads, those chances are even better.

Some will sustain minor injuries while others will be disabled for life.

In 1979 car crashes in this province left 63 people with brain damage, 19 without the use of any of their limbs and 29 as paraplegics.

Last year 859 people died in a vehicle travelling on the roads in B.C.

You can, of course, increase those odds in your favor by refusing to drive a car or even ride in one. Or as a more practical solution you could simply drive less.

Failing all of these, drivers might heed the advice of RCMP (and the law) to wear a seat belt and avoid driving after consuming alcohol.

That may sound like fairly simple adice but few people take it.

Statistics compiled from several countries where the use of seat belts is mandatory have provided irrefutable proof that shoulder harnesses and lap belts reduce injuries and deaths by more than 50 percent.

In Sweden one study of 28,000 traffic accidents revealed no one wearing a shoulder belt was killed in any collision at speeds up to 60 miles per hour. Some unbelted people died in collisions at speeds less than 20 miles per hour, however.

In spite of these figures and the laws that make wearing seat belts mandatory in this province many people obdurately do not bother to buckle up.

An average 250 people are killed annually in alcohol related traffic accidents in this province as well. Twenty percent of all court cases in B.C., 24,446 cases in 1979, are for impaired drivers who also cost provincial taxpayers an estimated $113-million each year.

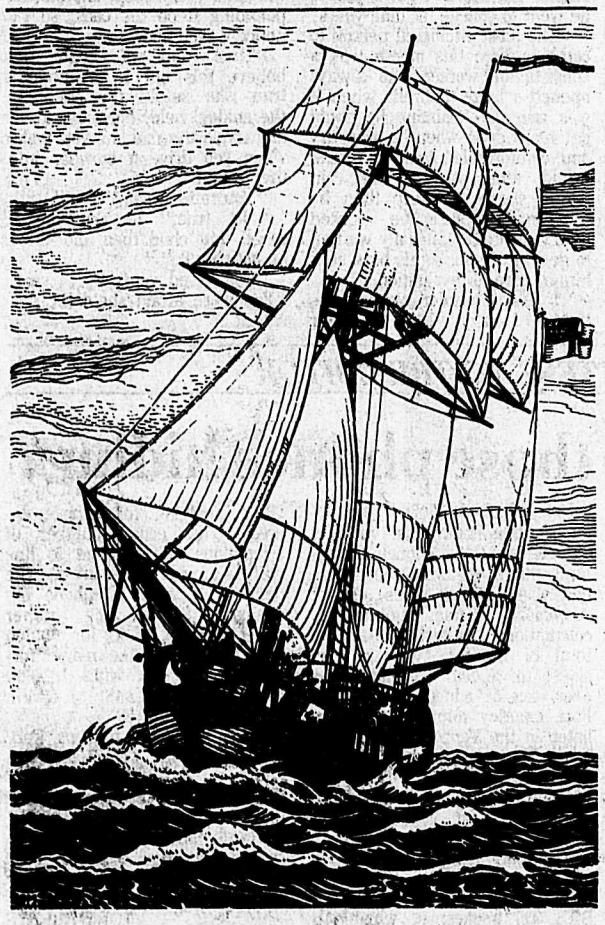
One in four drivers on the road between 10 p.m. and 3 a.m. Wednesday through Saturday has been drinking and one in 15 is drunk, according to a report by the B.C. attorney general.

If you think about it those are pretty scary statistics, especially when compounded by the increasing numbers of drivers and vehicles which take to the highways each year.

There are only a limited number of ways to combat poor driving practices. Stricter enforcement of existing laws and the incorporation of new ones, such as the proposed mandatory blood sample of drivers unable to take the breathalyzer test, are among them.

These acts of legislation would not be necessary of course, if everyone obeyed practical rules and habits of safe driving and the imposition of the laws does not guarantee they will be obeyed.

But for your sake and the sake of the driver heading toward you let's hope they are.



FORT LANGLEY - Engraving, lithography, silkscreen and a complete range of other printmaking techniques will be investigated at the Langley Centennial museum on Sunday, February 6 at 2:30 p.m. Judith Ince, education co-ordinator for the Burnaby art gallery, wil discuss the techniques developed by printmakers through the ages and the scope of each process.

Event is being offered in conjunction with the museum's latest show 'The War of 1812'. Historic prints and watercolors created by soldier artists involved in that battle present exciting images of Canada's past. The show is dramatic in its portrayal of individual conflicts between the Americans and the British.

Intriguing, too, are the illustrations of 19th century Canadian life. Small military and pioneer settlements, native villages, and vast areas of wilderness show little relation to the country as it is today. 'War of 1812' will be on display until February 20.

Museum is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Tuesday to Saturday, and from 1 to 5 p.m. on Sunday. It is located at the corner of Mavis and King Streets. For further information call 888-3922.

Vehicles may be returned

OTTAWA - Federal fisheries minister Pierre De Bane says he recognizes that considerable hardship may have been placed on the families of native people in British Columbia who had vehicles seized when the department served summons for charges of illegal possession and sale of fish.

"Careful consideration is being given to this aspect", De Bane said last week, "and I will be discussing this matter with officials from the department of justice in order to ascertain what action the government can take to release these vehicles. I will be looking closely at the circumstances surrounding each of the seizures and in appropriate cases, will not exercise my powers under the fisheries act to forfeit these vehicles upon possible conviction."

Conservation, especially for chinook salmon, is a major concern of the department, De Bane pointed out. The department's efforts to rehabilitate salmon stocks on the Fraser River to their former abundance have been greatly diminished because of the damaging effects of poaching and the illegal sale of fish. Every effort must be made by the department to curtail this practice, De Bane said.

RCMP expansion okayed

MURRAYVILLE - A 2,880 square foot expansion program of the RCMP office complex here has been approved by townhsip council.

Councilors this week decided to accept a bid from Britco Structures Ltd. of Langley for the construction of the 48-foot by 60-foot building. Township's share of the cost would be $69,732.00.

Britco's bid was the second lowest of the tenders received by the municipality.

Township shares the cost of building and maintaining RCMP accommodation with Langley city.

C of C executive to be sworn in

ALDERGROVE - Executive officers of the Aldergrove and district chamber of commerce for the 1983 term will be sworn in at the annual meeting to be held Wednesday, February 9 at Pirro's restaurant on Fraser Highway.

Mayor Bill Blair will represent Langley township at the ceremony.

New president is Kathy Thompson.

Let the animals know

MURRAYVILLE - Councilors here gave final reading this week to an amendment to the township's noise control bylaw.

Amendment is aimed at stopping dogs from barking.

"That's alright," said Mayor Bill Blair. "But now, how do we make the dogs aware that we have passed a bylaw?"

On Monday, February 7th,

THE LANGLEY SCHOOL BOARD WILL BE MAKING A DECISION WHICH WILL AFFECT THE EDUCATION OF LANGLEY CHILDREN FOR THE NEXT TEN YEARS OR MORE.

The Board will choose between two options:

OPTION 1 The Board will submit a provisional budget to Victoria which conforms to proposed Ministry limitations and guarantees, by the District's own estimates, the closure of at least 60 classrooms in Langley in June of 1983.

OPTION 2 The Board will submit a budget which meets the educational needs of the children in our schools and restores vital services which have already been lost.

Consider that:
* $4,000,000 has already been cut from Langley's school district budget since May of 1982, resulting in the loss of essential programs and support services.
* Langley's school population is growing
* The Provincial Government has consistently refused to allow Langley any special financial consideration for its long history of voluntary restraint
* Legal opinion from both the B.C. School Trustees Association and the BC Teachers' Federation confirms the legality of the Board's submitting a budget which exceeds ministerial guidelines of last November.

THE LANGLEY SCHOOL BOARD NEEDS THE SUPPORT OF THIS COMMUNITY IN MAKING THE RIGHT DECISION.

THE LANGLEY TEACHERS' ASSOCIATION URGES ALL PARENTS AND PUBLIC TO ATTEND THIS CRUCIAL MEETING OF THE BOARD OF SCHOOL TRUSTEES.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 7th, 8:00 P.M.,
AT H.D. STAFFORD JUNIOR SECONDARY SCHOOL,

Send your bills to the government treasury

VICTORIA - Business people in British Columbia who are in financial trouble in the aftermath of a devastating recession and a period of unreasonably high bank interest rates can take heart. If they are on the brink of financial disaster, Big Brother will bail them out.

Just apply to the provincal government for relief money.

Your benevolent legislators did it for Whistler.

Lands, parks and housing minister Tony Brummet said recently (when cabinet decided to bail out the ski resort) that "without immediate government intervention, Whistler would have slid over the edge into total financial failure."

Good news, indeed, for troubled merchants.

Or is the rescue action, perhaps, available only to businesses who owe 6.5-million or more to the chartered banks?

Nah, couldn't be.

How much can we afford for jobs?

By JAMES BAGNALL

OTTAWA -Employment minister Lloyd Axworthy's department is spending $1 billion a year on direct job-creation programs - in real terms, more than triple the level of the previous two years - and is scarcely making a dent in the total number of unemployed.

The employment department now has 13 separate job programs in operation but since it costs almost $14,000 to create the equivalent of one full-time job, all the programs combined will produce about 72,000 man-years of employment this year.

That's not much considering there were 1.5 million unemployed last month. It also gives an idea of the scope of the problem facing finance minister Marc Lalonde as he prepares his budget. If he wants to use direct job creation to chop unemployment in any significant way, the price tag will be in the billions. In fact, if his goal is to reduce the unemployment rate to 10 percent (from the current 12.8 percent), the cost of doing that would be close to $5 billion - on top of what is already being spent.

Lalonde is clearly unlikely to go that route. He is more likely to opt for a mixture of general economic stimulus and more moderate increases for direct job-creation programs. Both will involve significant increases in the federal deficit.

But even as cabinet meets later this month to begin the setting of budget priorities, Axworthy is scrambling to prepare his department for a new wave of job-creation programs. These, essentially, will be refinements of several existing programs, but unlike the thrust for the past dozen years, their orientation will be increasingly long-term.

Throughout the 1970s, most job-creation efforts involved community-based projects (usually nonprofit, with an emphasis on community "enrichment") that produced short-term employment. Between 1971 and 1979, the average annual funding for these projects (Local Initiatives Program , and Opportunities for Youth) was almost $400 million (in constant, 1981 dollars).

But in 1980 and 1981, when general funding for direct job creation dropped to little more than $300 million, a change in emphasis began. According to employment officials, community-based job projects are now being evaluated more on their ability to generate employment of more lasting value - construction projects, for example.

Another change involved more precise targeting of programs to co-relate with the many different types of unemployment. The new employment expansion & development (Need) program, recently announced by Lalonde is simply one of a series of programs devised for a specific problem (in this case, unemployed who have exhausted their unemployment benefits).

Other programs, such as the local employment assistance program, are aimed mainly at the hard core, or permanently unemployed (roughly one out of seven of unemployed are in this category). Still others, such as the Canada community development program, are geared toward specific groups, such as youth, native people and women.

But in the wake of the extended recession, which began 19 months ago, Axworthy has had to turn his attention to longer-term answers for unemployment. Late this month, employment's assistant deputy minister, Dave Dodge, is scheduled to submit an internal task-force report on the work-sharing program.

Since Axworthy first began experimenting with the program last January, about 7,000 businesses have availed themselves of the program's $200-million annual budget.

(When a company thinks a downturn will force it into making layoffs, employees can, under the program, go on a shorter job work week and tap into the UI fund on days they don't work. Effectively, the workers share the unemployment that would have resulted.)

One of the questions Dodge is grappling with is whether work sharing should become a permanent feature of the labor market and, if so, how should it be financed? (The current program is financed out of the UI private-sector account, which means employers and employees are picking up the tab.)

In effect, Dodge and Axworthy are examining whether Canadians should be looking at a redistribution of the now sharply reduced amount of work available. In fact, Axworthy is also examining (along with labor minister Charles Caccia) whether the concept of paid education leave can be tied in with work sharing. In other words, rather than paying workers out of the UI account to do nothing, why not use the money for re-education while they're on short weeks?

This could be why Axworthy has also commissioned another review of the Unemployment Insurance Act, which is meant to relate the findings of the 1979 review to the current economic scene. The review should also focus on the use of the UI account for programs other than direct payments to claimants (which ran up to $6.8 billion for the first 10 months this year).

In short, Axworthy has a battery of job programs available for cabinet perusal. He also is faced with a number of thorny philosophical problems.

The first won't come cheap; the second won't come easy.

The wonders of free enterprise

Last year the U.S. Post Office made a profit and turned back millions to the U.S. Treasury. This they were able to do on a rate of 20 cents for a first-class letter, even to Canada. They, of course, have the advantage of competition from the private sector to keep them on their toes.

Life's rough by the couch

By ROBERT SKOGLUND

Day after day my psychologist friend Addler leans back in his cushioned swivel chair, pencil and notebook in hand, and doodles as he listens to people whine about their troubles.

When I entered his office he threw his notebook on the floor and began to chew his nails. He's always glad to see me because I listen to his problems and primal screams which helps him unwind.

"I feel guilty about being poor," I said quickly.

Addler jumped on his desk and screamed. Then he flopped back on his couch and buried his face in his hands. "I don't want to hear it from my friends," he cried. "If you're serious, I'll send you a bill."

"What is it this time?" I asked kindly.

"My kid is all messed up," the psychologist groaned. "He's 13-years-old. Normal boys his age are roaring through fields and up and down main roads on unregistered motorcycles, but he'd rather earn money working for one of the neighbors. My own kid won't watch the crime, violence and sec on TV that we all take for granted now, and he'd rather read Isaac Asimov and Mark Twain than play with the video game I got him for Christmas."

I put my hand on my friend's shoulder. "Don't give up," I said softly. "By the time he's 15 he could be breaking into liquor stores, three years later he might be writing the free verse that some people call poetry. When he's 22, he'll probably be running for Parliament."

"Perhaps he'll be a social worker who gives away surplus government cheese," Addler said hopefully as he dried his eyes.

"You feel a lot better now," I said as I dropped onto his chair. "See how it helps to get it all out?"

Addler closed his eyes and said, "There's too much of everything. We are overproducing. What this country really needs is more social workers to give away the government's surplus cheese."

"The answer lies in education," I said.

Addler's laugh was hollow and without humor. "Most people are already educated beyond their intelligence," he cried. "The cream will rise to the top, with or without education.

"Greensleeves is a typical example. He couldn't get a job so he went to college for nine years.

"The most intelligent person to come in here this month was a construction worker who always opened a large umbrella when it was raining - claiming he could get more done when he was dry and comfortable. A normal man would rather stand in the rain like a sheep and drip than be different. Because he worked hard, the union naturally wanted to get rid of him, so his boss sent him in here for evaluation."

"I don't wonder you're uptight," I said. "Most of your patients are normal, grim people who have meaningful relationships. Doesn't anything ever make you laugh?"

The psychologist groaned. "Almost everything makes me want to laugh," he said, "but as a professional I have to hold it back until I cry instead. For example, this afternoon there was a young woman in here with an infant in her arms."

I said, "I like babies, they're cute."

"All babies look the same," he snarled. "I don't look at them if I don't have to. When the woman talked to me I looked her right in the eye. She got more and more uncomfortable because although I smiled and talked with her, I didn't acknowledge the fact that she had a child in her arms.

"Perhaps you've noticed that some parents regard the production of their first six or eight kids as a remarkable and unique achievement. Anyway, although the child was asleep, she started pounding it on the back, so I'd notice it, you know.

"Then, and you might not believe this but by Freud it's true, she seized the child by the ankles, held it upside down, and made the motions you make when you drive a crowbar into the ground."

"You're inhuman," I said.

"Not true," he replied. "I saved that child then and there by noticing it."

"You saved yourself," I said. "You were afraid she'd hit you with it."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Where are those phones hiding?

Editor, The Star, Sir,

There is an old saying in the advertising-propaganda business that "B.S. beats brains." The recent company reports issued on the occasion of the CRTC granting telephone rate increases in the Aldergrove exchange area make it clear that the B.C. Telephone Co. is literally banking on that motto.

Fraser Valley public affairs administrator Norm Blain is quoted in the B.C. Tel releases as saying that there are now 6,900 telephones in the Aldergrove exchange, and that customers can call another 145,756 telephones in Abbotsford, Fort Langley and Langley toll free. That adds up to 152,656 telephones in our free dialing area. That's a pretty impressive figure, and because rate levels granted by the CRTC are based on such figures, B.C. Tel got its extra pound of flesh.

But when I looked at my measly telephone book, with its 89 pages of telephone listings (and that's with Matsqui numbers listed three times), I got suspicious. Some rudimentary calculations suggested that the total of numbers was in fact closer to 30,000! To that, however, can be added Langley and Fort Langley numbers that are listed in the Vancouver book, for a grand total of about 50,000 numbers Aldergrove customers can dial without extra charges.

That's a far cry from the 152,656 reported by Mr. Blain.

After four telephone calls (two of them to Greater Vancouver numbers, collect) I reached a B.C. Tel spokesman who explained the mystery. It seems that when applying for a rate increase, the actual number of telephones is multiplied in line with a formula based on the distance between telephone exchanges. So allowing (rather generously, I think) for 50,000 real telephones, the magic formula came up with 152,656 telephones--102,656 of them imaginary!

There will be a meeting Feb. 17 between B.C. Tel officials and members of the Central Fraser Valley regional district, at which this little matter of 102,656 mythical 'phones might be discussed. I trust that a Star reporter will be on hand to winkle out some truth.

A civil dis-service

Editor, The Star, Sir,

Enjoyed your article about the public health department in the Wednesday, Jan. 12 issue.

Recently I reported to both premier Bill Bennett and opposition leader Dave Barrett the fact that after the Wiens kids sold a lot on Stave Lake Road in Mission, a septic tank permit was obtained by the new owner even though my kids had experienced a long and disgusting runaround.

The terrible part of the situation we are in is that we have a civil service than can and do as they please.

And what is even worse, elected representatives are more interested in their pensions and could care less about the people they represent.

And so we end up with 120 jobs exported to the U.S., with bringing in immigrants for Expo jobs while we have one million Canadians on U.I., and government's raising taxes, ostensibly to create jobs but in effect killing off the small businessman who has been creating real jobs for years.

Why not simply cut taxes and totally unnecessary government staffs?

We need peace

Editor, The Star, Sir,

A common belief is that the existence of nuclear bombs has prevented a major war for 35 years. This belief is highly questionable.

In fact, the theory of deterrence by nuclear bombs has advanced weaponry, because one side is always suspicious of what weaponry the other side is developing. This suspicion has resulted in both sides increasing weapons production by developing counter weaponry.

Is that state of seige to continue as long as civilization lasts? An accidental (or intentional) launching of nuclear bombs is inevitable.

What can an individual do to prevent world incineration?

- Join peace movement groups. (In Langley there is L.A.N.D. (Langley Association for Nuclear Disarmament.) Phone 534-5157 after 3 p.m., or 856-6126.
- Strive to prevent governments from having weapons production.
- Support and vote for political candidates who will work for peace at all levels.
- Write letters to MPs, MLAs, the prime minister...papers, magazines, etc.
- Realize the Soviets are people just as we are...How about Langley twinning with a Soviet city as advocated by the city of Toronto health board?

It's up to each of us to help prevent world annihilation.

. . . and jobs

Editor, The Star, Sir,

As the recession deepens and unemployment increases, the New Westminster and district labor council is sponsoring unemployed action centres in Surrey and New Westminster. Employed union and non-union workers are urged to provide help to those who are out of work by donating food, clothing, bedding and the necessities of life.

I have been authorized by the labor council to set up self-help centres in Langley, Fort Langley and Aldergrove. These centres need be only the homes of persons who want to help. Counselling to help the unemployed could be given by those who have been through the process. Lists of low-rental accommodations could be made available. Volunteers are needed among the unemployed themselves.

Self-help and co-operation will be encouraged, with workers encouraged to provide their skills to help each other. Employed workers are urged to become involved.

These are just a few ways people can be of help. Please phone me at 530-5791 and help us help each other. The next unemployed person could be you.

Services for seniors outlined in pamphlet

By BOB McCLELLAND, MLA

If you are retired or are approaching retirement age, you should be aware of a new booklet issued by the ministry of human resources. Entitled "Services for seniors", the pamphlet outlines the programs offered by both the federal and provincial governments to senior citizens living in British Columbia. This handy booklet includes information on income assistance, the pharmacare program and other health care programs, rental assistance, bus passes and other transportation services, plus telephone numbers and addresses to assist you in obtaining further information on these valuable services.

Many of these programs were brought about by seniors and government working together to meet the special needs of older persons. The special services outlined in this booklet are designed to assist seniors and assure them of basic income, shelter, health care and transportation. If you would like a copy of this pamphlet or know someone who could make use of this information, copies may be obtained through the local office of the ministry of human resources or through my constituency office at 20590 Fraser Highway.

On January 24, Grace McCarthy, chairman of the cabinet committee on employment development, and I met with federal employment minister Lloyd Axworthy to sign a letter of understanding which will provide funding expected to create 8,000 jobs in British Columbia over the next 18 months. Under the new employment expansion and development (or NEED) program agreement a joint fund of $50-million will be created for projects undertaken by municipalities, the private sector and non-profit organizations.

Priority will be given to those projects which are labor intensive, support labor strategies in B.C.and can demonstrate the potential to enhance the creation of on-going employment. Projects must create a minimum of three jobs for at least 12 weeks. They may cover a wide range of activities, may be located anywhere in the province, and may be sponsored by business, municipalities or non-profit organizations.

The program is specifically designed to assist unemployed persons whose UIC benefits have expired. It will provide employers with a contribution towards wages as well as administrative and overhead costs to a maximum of $400 per week for each employee hired.

I am pleased that we were able to reach such a worthwhile agreement with the federal government. This federal-provincial cooperation will lead to employment for workers who have been unemployed for long periods of time and are facing severe hardships. This program provides an opportunity for the private sector to become involved and will be a significant part of our province's economic recovery. Further information can be obtained from the Burnaby office of the employment opportunity programs branch of the ministry of labor at 291-2901 or from the local Canada employment offices.

AGAINST SURREY CHEETAHS

Hunters win when it matters

ALDERGROVE - In their last game against the Surrey Cheetahs, the Alpha Hunters had to win in order to retain a chance at the league title.

They attacked from the start and applied pressure against a strong Cheetah defence in which the goalkeeping was outstanding.

Whenever the Cheetahs broke out of their own half, the back line of Kevin Wix, Mike Goyer and Peter Dyck played soundly as a unit and destroyed any chance they had of scoring. Pat Wiebe in goal for the Hunters had very little to do but when he was called into action he showed a great deal of skill and bravery.

Joe Deacon, Nathan Janzen and Greg Byron once more dominated where it matters, in midfield, and supplied plenty of good balls to the forwards. However, it took the Hunters 50 minutes to score their first goal and it was certainly welcomed by their many supporters. It was scored by Kevin Snowdon who shortly after added his second. The scoring was completed minutes later when David Morgan made it 3 - 0.

James Mealor played well and was responsible for a lot of good balls to his team-mates. Aaron and Kyle Williams both had good chances and were kept off the score sheet by some fine saves by "Little Louie." Murry Pybus, Mike Petrie and Mike Giesbrecht also played important roles in an outstanding game of soccer.

This win puts the Hunters level at the top of their division with the Surrey Mojos. Next week is the last game in regular play and it is against - the Surrey Mojos. Nothing short of a victory will do for the Hunters but after this week's game their chances of beating the Mojos have greatly improved. It was once again a great team effort and everyone deserves to be 'man of the match' for the part played.

Aldergrove girls win Stelly's tournament

ALDERGROVE - The Aldergrove girls were on top of their game in winning the Stelly's Invitational basketball tournament this past weekend.

After an unsettling loss to the number four ranked double "AA" Abbotsford girls, 56 - 51, Aldergrove needed little encouragement in disposing of the teams in the Stelly's tournament held on Vancouver Island.

The girls met Dunsmuir in the opening game and breezed to an impressive 70 - 26 win with everyone figuring in the scoring. Allison Wells and Tracy Waterfield led all scores with 14 points each.

The girls played Spectrum, a "AA" school from Victoria, who had earlier in the year beaten Cowichan. Aldergrove's girls started slowly, but their tight defense finally proved to be the turning point and the girls pulled away to a 67 - 38 win. Allison Wells played well and led all scores with 23 points followed by Yvonne Colitta and Carolyne Lucy with 10 each.

The final saw the girls pitted against rival Mountain secondary school. The Mountain girls played an outstanding game and caused the Aldergrove girls to play poorly with their zone defense and hustle. The girls were fortunate to win this contest 46 - 40. Allison Wells led the scoring with 13 followed by Jane Huff with 9.

The girls are off to play Westsyde of Kamloops, number three ranked single "A", on Thursday and Revelstoke for a Friday and Saturday tournament.

Legionettes sparkle with 7

ALDERGROVE - Legionettes put on a rather lackluster performance last week in a four-to-nil defeat at the hands of the Fleetwood Furies. Maybe this was due in part to the Xmas layoff.

This weeks game was a different kettle of fish with the Legion-sponsored Aldergrove team scoring seven unanswered goals, a game that gave Lori Glover a shut out. The goal that started things was a well taken shot with Liza Hatchwell scoring her first tally in league play. The second was a cheeky chip shot from Lana Beckett that crossed the line via the underside of the cross bar. This ended the first half scoring.

At the restart the Nettes defence were tested and proved equal to the test with Chrissy Aitken, Cheryl Miller and Chelly Richards controlling the backfield assisted by Kelli Savard, Corina Bergin and Chrissy Reymeyer. With clever constructive play the defence started to feed the forward with long through balls which seemed to suit the nets.

Speedy Cheryl Braun in a new position on the forward line played as though it was her natural position. She was constantly in the thick of things. Lori Glover had help in protecting her shut out when Kelli Savard cleared the ball off the goal line. After that the Nettes took over and scored five goals, Lara Beckett her second, Stacy Markle two, Allsion Markle and Yolanda Hopkins one each. Although the local team have no chance of winning the league, with play like this they can look forward to a healthy run in cup competition.

United Whitecaps down Legionaires

By RUSS DAVIDSON

ALDERGROVE - On Saturday afternoon, the Legionaires travelled to Wix Brown school for a game against the Surrey United Whitecaps. The game was well played by both teams as they play the same type of game. The Whitecaps scored first on a good run down the right side, and passed to the centre for a high shot to the corner.

The Legion team came roaring back, and Adrian Reglin passed to Brian Brady, who fed Chris Bleau for the tie, at one goal apiece. With a mix-up at the half, and a laxed defence, the Whitecaps scored to get the go-ahead goal, and it was 2 to 1 at half-time.

After oranges and a pep talk, the Legionaires came out strong, as Adrian Reglin passed to Paul Liebel, and on to Andy Brown for the tie, at two-all.

Both teams tried for the winner, but the goalies were "hot", and never let another one on! That left the Legion team in second place, and the Whitecaps in first, one half game in front.

Practice this Thursday at 4:00 p.m., in the Aberdeen hall. Next Saturday, the game is at Matheson park.

Minor softball for boys and girls

The Aldergrove Star

T.V. NEWS

WEEKLY LISTINGS

FEB. 3 TO FEB. 9

Gary Coleman of "Diff'rent Strokes" and Robert Guillaume of "Benson" star in THE KID WITH THE 200 I.Q.. The two-hour World Premiere presentation will air on the "NBC Sunday Night at the Movies" on Feb. 6.

Packin' it in

Tony Roberts stars as a harried Los Angeles native who gives up the big city hustle for the wilds of Oregon. PACKIN' IT IN, to air as a special CBS movie presentation on Monday, Feb. 7, also stars Richard Benjamin and his real-life wife Paula Prentiss.

Dorothy Hamill, the 1976 Olympic champion, will be among the title contenders when NBC Sports presents the opening segment of the World Professional Figure Skating Championship on SPORTSWORLD. The taped coverage, from Capital Center in Landover, Md. airs Sunday, Feb. 6.

Native animals of Australia

Most of the extraordinary animals of Australia exist nowhere else in the world. "Australia's Animal Mysteries" are profiled when the "National Geographic Special" airs Wednesday, Feb. 9 on PBS.

When Australia broke away from the landmass of Antarctica 50 million years ago the world's largest island and smallest continent started to develop animal life as unique and exotic as the landscape.

The hour-long documentary, underwritten by the Gulf Oil Corp., features one of the world's most beloved creatures — the koala bear. Tourists love to catch the gentle creature posing. However, in some parts of the country, scientists have found the koala's birth rate is on the decline.

Investigators are still trying to piece the puzzle together.

The best known Australian native is probably the kangaroo. Its astounding leaping — as much as 25 feet in one bound — is filmed at close range and at slow motion. Also shown is the plight of newborn kangaroos. At birth, they are blind and weigh less than an ounce as they negotiate the journey through the mother's thick fur to the protection and nourishment in its mother's pouch.

The koala and kangaroo are just two of "Australia's Animal Mysteries." Approximately 150 species of marsupials — pouched animals — can be found on the continent. Wallabies, wombats, the platypus and the Tasmanian Devil are also shown.

Waterbeds are terrific

Prescribed Comfort

For some people, waterbeds have a host of other advantages. Arthritics have found that the warm water eases their discomfort. Because the bed conforms to the body shape, pregnant women can sleep on their side or stomach with greater ease. Waterbeds are ideal for any back problem. For the chronically ill, the lack of pressure means no bedsores.

• Waterbeds, properly assembled, won't leak outside the frame. Any puncture can be easily repaired.

• The motion is subtle and relaxing.

• The weight of the bed is no problem, whether you live on the third or thirtieth floor. Any structure built to building code standards can support it.

• Waterbeds are easily filled and drained using a common garden hose.

• You can use regular bedding or try some of the bedding and accessories especially designed for waterbeds.

TOTEM TALES

Teachers work, students compete

By UTA GOTTSCHALK

ALDERGROVE - For the students it was all over last week, and it was the teachers turn to sit up till two a.m. and drown in papers. Most exams have been marked now, but the government exams will be longer. The results of the provincial scholarship exam won't be back until March.

By the way, the coffee house which was originally scheduled for February 2, has been postponed until February 9.

The senior boys basketball team played Mouat last week on Tuesday. It was a score of 45 - 43. The top scorers were Alan Alderson, and Bentley Ratzlaff, who scored 14 points each.

The juvenile girls team also did well on Tuesday. They defeated Credo Christian 36 - 26. The highest scoreres were Anita Mooree, with 12 points, and Sandy Bettis with 10 points.

The senior boys will be participating in a tournament on Vancouver Island on Feb. 3 and 4. There will be eight teams competing, and Aldergrove will play Campbell River, Southgate, and University Hill, which is the top A team.

"Soundtracks" was the theme for the excellent performance of comedy mime skits given by the Axis Mime group last Friday at Aldergrove. "The Door", and a hand-waving championship in Munich, Germany were just a couple of them.

The audience clearly enjoyed their part in the performance. While one person in the group asked the audience what kind of person, (and their characteristics) they would like most to see acted out, the other wore a radio head-set so he couldn't hear what was being said. When the audience had picked their subjects, which turned out to be a hysterical, bald science teacher, and a depressed nurse with bad breath, the other partner removed his head-set. (He then had to guess, after the skit, what it was he had acted out). This particular mime was limited to two minutes, and the two actors could only communicate with each other through actions, and gibberish, (an intangible language not unlike baby talk). For example, one would pretend to chop off his hand, hoping that the other would sew it back on, and so come to the conclusion that he was a nurse.

The best part of the show was, no doubt, the last performance.

It takes place in an imaginary arcade. A bumbling numbskull who can't do anything right tries to impress an equally dull and queer female. Not getting any results, he leaves. Suddenly the girl gets up, and while dancing to "Mickey" she tears off her sweater, skirt, and hat, to reveal a "new wave" outfit that would make Blondie jealous. After a few seconds, another new wave guy enters the scene, and she continually throws herself at him in a series of strange actions. Then, as if this wasn't already crazy enough, blue strobe lights start flashing, and a pac-man ghost joins in the bizzare scene, to end the performance.

"Nothing recedes like success." That is one of the bon mots tossed off by a mystery writer whose last hit was many years earlier. He is the leading character in the suspense thriller, "Deathtrap," at the Abbotsford Little Theatre through February 12.

Ira Levin, author of this Broadway hit, held that literary sparkle in reserve for years before finding a proper spot for it. He also managed to insert another squirreled-away tickler into the mouth of his debonair leading character: "Cathy loves Vassar, and Vassar versa." Mr. Levin's pet lines don't interfere with the suspense chills, but the playwright considers comedy an essential ingredient of stage thrillers.

Statistics back up Mr. Levin's contention. Some of the most imposing body counts of stage corpses occur in plays that keep audiences rolling in the aisles. A prime example is "Arsenic and Old Lace," with its eleven imbibers of that lethal elderberry wine. And the laughs that per*meate a performance of "Dracula"* in no way detract from icy terror of its more sinister moments.

With "Deathtrap" a new element is added to the comedy. It is a kind of sophisticated point of view that resides outside the action of the plot. The author consciously flings down a gauntlet and dares the audience to best him by anticipating any of the play's twists and turns. "Sleuth" was another such thriller that invited the audience to participate more fully in the unravelling of its plot -- and then completely turned the tables with a daringly ingenious resolution.

ALFIE'S VARIETY THEATRE

Humor is always welcome

Robbie Burns (the electrical contractor, not the bard) is well known around these parts for his quick and easy good humor, so it was only fitting that he marked the grand opening of his new comedy club the evening after his namesake's birthday.

Alfie's on Carnarvon St., in New West, has actually been open for a month now, and despite the general downturn in the cabaret market, the new club has been steadily building up a clientle. The club-goers are given a variety of entertainment from the Vancouver comedy club, Punchlines, from various touring magicians and comedians, and from local up-and-coming talents. The club itself is brand new and sparkles with smart and attractive design.

Still, as they say, real life is the best source of humor. James Dimmer, a local magician extraordinaire, had himself suspended from one of Burns' giraffe trucks on the street in front. Dangling upside down from a rope tied around his ice skates, and wearing a strait-jacket, he was determined to beat Houdini's record for escape. While accomplices blocked off traffic and ran into neighboring discos with a megaphone to announce Dimmer's derring-do, he wriggled his way to freedom - briefly feigning unconsciousness to add a little extra drama to the situation, of course.

He drew a good crowd fast, and beat Houdini by thirty seconds to boot, but the local constabulary were not so appreciative of the improv. The chief himself showed up a little later to press charges against Dimmer and the club, but instead beat a hasty retreat when he noticed his worship, the mayor and his councilors were among the full house audience.

This little episode took a lot of steam out of the following acts, but the comedy carried on nonstop for the remainder of the evening anyway, to the delight of all present.

Alfie's Variety Theatre is open Tuesday through Saturday, 8:30 p.m. to 2 a.m., at 759 Carnarvon St., New Westminster, call 522-3577.

Album Review: Mellow pop

By NOZ PARKER

Midnight blue
(Arista-Polygram)

The classics meet synthesizer dance-rock on this oft-enchanting record. The title song is adapted from Beethoven's "Sonata Pathetique" and another, "Graveyard Angel," is based on Albinoni's "Adagio." The other seven songs are originals, by composers-instrumentalists Charlie Skarbek and Tim Smit.

The concept is not at all a new one, but there's a special chemistry with singer Louise Tucker, whose classically trained voice is a delightful thrill to listen to. Skarbek's backing vocals are adequate, and his songwriting and arranging are thoughtful and attractive mellow pop.

The best track is "Midnight Blue," a chart-topper in Germany and the Benelux countries. It is special.

Romance
Zamfir
(Mercury-Polygram)

Zamfir takes on a variety of movie themes ("Chariots of Fire"), pop ("Yesterday" and "Till") and condensations of the classics ("Aranjuez Mon Amour") in his romantic and lyrical style. Three of the twelve tracks are original compositions.

Zamfir's gentle tones along with pretty orchestral arrangements by Karl Schafer (which are so carefully constructed, yet don't sound belabored) make for a magical, original sound.

The Best
Peter Allen
(A&M)

A native Australian, Allen has written many great songs of international appeal, yet has never really hit the big time as a singer. "Discovered" by Judy Garland (he later married Liza Minnelli, who encouraged Allen to write his own music), he is a gifted all-round entertainer; a songwriter, singer, dancer and actor.

These twelve songs are taken from his six solo albums, and includes the playful ("I Go To Rio"), the bittersweet ("Just Ask Me, I've Been There"), the wistful ("I Could have Been A Sailor"), Tender ballads ("Don't Cry Out Loud"), L.A. - style pop-funk ("Fly Away") and more.

His wry, understated delivery is graceful and sophisticated. Recommended.

Ballades
Nana Mouskouri
(Philips-Polygram)

Nana brings her unerringly beautiful voice to this French language disc - and the tongue suits her well. The eleven tracks include songs by Kate McGarrigle, Townes Van Zandt, Leonard Cohen and Larios.

With the vocal arrangements by George Costa, Nana never disappoints her audience.

Night Birds
Shakatak
(Polydor)

Easy-going pop with a strong jazz - r & b flavor from a young British band. The five players are supported by three female vocalists, but their contributions are mostly low-keyed and subdued. Instrumental solos are kept short and to the point, but they manage to say something; they expand on the melody rather than merely play on the rhythm. Worth a good listen - try it out.

Manderley comes to White Rock

"Last night, I dreamt I went to Manderley again..." - one of the most famous opening lines in modern literature or film. The line is spoken by the leading character of the piece, the sincere young bride, Mrs. de Winter. She is one of fiction's most appealing heroines, whose story has entralled millions. The story is REBECCA, Daphne Du Maurier's masterful romantic thriller. REBECCA, first a novel, then a film, and now, the play, is to be presented by the White Rock Players, starting Feb. 2.

The tale concerns Maxim de Winter and his new bride who he met in Monte Carlo, marries, and returns with to his estate, Manderley, in Cornwall. The events that follows force Mrs. de Winter to delve into the past so that she can discover who the stranger she married really is.

REBECCA runs February 2 to 12, curtain 8 p.m., at the White Rock Playhouse (1532 Johnston Road). There will be a 2:30 p.m. Tea time matinee performance on Sunday Feb. 6th. Box office is open 1 - 5 p.m. daily. For further information call 536-7535.

Modern Music showcase charts future pop today

The "Modern Music" show case features four young and promising Vancouver bands this Friday evening at the Commodore. The show is co-produced by Jack of Hearts, the Province and CFMI, and proceeds from the $6.95 tickets go to the "Empty Stocking" and "Orphan's Fund."

The groups selected represent the best in original and innovative new directions. Electronic technology is however the only common thread uniting the four bands, Moev, Images In Vogue, 54-40 and 3-D.

Moev and Images In Vogue are thus far the most successful of the four, and have been touring across the continent, garnering good reviews and enthusiastic audience response. Moev's recordings are available on the U.S. label, Go! Records but Images In Vogue's first recording has sold out and the band is currently negotiating with a major Canadian record company for a new recording.

Tickets are available at VTC-CBO outlets, including Eaton's and Woodward's.

International Boat Show really is for all

VANCOUVER - The annual International boat show will be held February 5-13, and many of the exhibitors at this year's show are members of the Marine Trades Association.

Association works to improve the overall knowledge of its members in the areas of boating safety, fuel conservation and other related subjects, and help boaters by becoming actively involved in future plans for docking and moorage in British Columbia.

"Boating is not just for the elite", says association president Dave Hobson. "Boating is a fun hobby that everyone can enjoy. Whether you are interested in a kayak or a powerboat, you'll find your dream boat at the 1983 boat show".

When do you get the most for your money?

When you go to buy farm machinery, you are properly interested in getting the most for your money.

What are the main factors you consider in determining which grade of equipment is the most economical to buy?

It will pay any farmer to apply these tests:

First test:
Think back over your experience in buying goods and, from your memory, dig up the poorest purchase you ever made.

Was it a high-grade article at a fair price, or was it some imagined bargain, bought because it was sold at a low price?

How about that cheap suit which became shabby after a short period of wear; or that cheap pocket knife which never kept a good edge; or that cheap plow which never worked right?

Did you get the most for your money when you made that purchase?

Second test:
List all the machines on your farm that are in good working order.

How long have they been used?

Place fair values on these implements at, say, approximately what they would bring at a farm sale. Subtract the present values from the original prices, and then divide by the number of years of service. That gives you the price per year of use.

Which makes the better showing in price per year of use – the high-grade or the low-grade machinery? And which has earned the most for you since you bought it?

Third test:
Check up the upkeep cost of high-grade implements as against cheap ones. Remember, the ultimate cost is the purchase price, plus the upkeep cost, spread over the life of the machine. Cheap machines are not very cheap to keep in good running order.

Fourth test:
Go to any farm sale and jot down the prices received.

Which brings out the most spirited bidding, the cheaply-made equipment or the equipment made by a well-established firm, which has a reputation for quality -- the equipment which farmers of the community know is good?

Ask the auctioneers of your community about their views on high-grade and cheap farm equipment, from the public-sale angle.

Fifth test:
Make inquiries as to the quality of work. See if you can find much pride of ownership in cheap goods. Ascertain the real satisfaction users have had from high-grade implements as compared to cheap tools.

Sixth test:
What is your experience in repair service on high-grade implements made and backed by a strong, successful firm, in contrast with what you have seen of repair service by manufacturers who feature low-priced goods? Would you care to buy an "orphan" implement or one that is likely to be "orphanized" within the next few years, due to the financial weakness of its manufacturer? What does prompt and permanent repair service mean to you?

Basic machines to aid milking

By LYNDA FRANZ

Getting all possible milk out of your herd is beneficial to you as well as your cows.

In the suspended type bucket machine the teat cups are connected directly to the pail. A surcingle strap is used to keep the bucket in place under the cow.

The pail and contained milk's weight in the suspended milker develops a rhythmic downward and forward surging action.

This alternately pulls the teat downward releasing the tension. This prevents the teat cups from crawling and promotes drainage of milk.

When cows decline in milk yield as they do toward the last phase of lactation, slightly more tension is needed for faster more complete milking.

This is achieved by adjusting the surcingle a little forward on the back. For slow milkers, the same process can be used.

The milk is removed by vacuum acting on the end and side of the teat. This process of let-down is pleasant to the cow. However, when all of the milk is removed from the teat, the vacuum acting on the teat causes discomfort to the cow. This may insure the delicate tissue lining the teat. The irritation and traumatic injury to the delicate tissues of the gland is a common predisposing cause of mastitis. This disease has been reduced markedly by rapid milking and by removing the machine as soon as the milk has been removed.

The volume of milk differs in production in each teat. The forequarters milk out faster on an average in 33 percent less time. The forequarters usually produce 40 percent of the milk and therefore the difference can be as much as one to three minutes sooner than the hind quarters.

If the pulsating action is continued after the forequarters are milked out then the cow suffers a period of one to three minutes of trauma and irritation. This causes mastitis and will lower the milk production from the more productive quarters.

An automatic milking unit is widely used in the Fraser Valley. This machine eliminates the trauma your cow may go through if the milking machine is left on her when she is finished milking. This problem has been recognized for a long time. The automatic milker removes the teat cup as the milk flow falls below a designated flow rate. Another system reduces the level of vacuum when the milk flows fall below a designated flow rate - while keeping the teat cups on until they are removed manually.

Not all automatic milkers are designed to allow individual teat cups to be removed separately. The quarter-take-off system comes closest to meeting the requirements of proper milk removal with greatest safety to the cow. The quarter take off removes individual teat cups as each quarter milks out. Electronic controls sense milk flow and combine with a retracting cylinder which shuts off vacuum and removes each teat cup individually.

Advantages to the automatic milker is that it reduces overmilking of fast milk quarters and under milking of slower milking quarters. Udder and teat irritation can be reduced and overall health can be maintained. Milk production can be increased.

It's in the best interest of you, the farmer as well as your cows, that every precaution in milking procedures is taken.

Nice conformation Kanata

First Canadian pony gains recognition after 18 years

ALDERGROVE - On Jan. 7, the Canadian Kanata Pony association was granted incorporation under the livestock pedigree act by Agriculture Canada.

The idea of developing a distinctive, versatile Canadian pony was conceived 18 years ago when a group of interested people (Andy and Audrey Taylor, Al Moran, Cliff Davidson, Will Seitz, Merv Jackson, Jill and Tony James, Nancy Jones and Tony Koens) met in Abbotsford in November 1965. The concept that arose from that meeting was to develop a pony with appaloosa coloring and thoroughbred-Welsh conformation, maturing not over 14 hands (56 inches) in height. The Kanata pony was to be spirited enough for competitive events such as gaming and chuckwagon racing with a temperament suitable for use by children.

To date, 1,019 Kanata ponies have been recorded in seven of the 10 provinces. The Taylors, charter members and active Kanata promoters, have been instrumental in fostering the spread across Canada. The association hopes to arouse interest in breeding in Quebec, New Brunswick and Newfoundland.

There have been notable individual ponies over the past 18 years, Locally, Jan-Ways Nechako has never been out of the ribbons from day one. Has taken championships as a stallion and later as a gelding, both in conformation and color. Has done well in performance and excellent in cross country events in the Chilliwack area against horses.

Abby's Haida Prince has also won his share of ribbons. Taking the goal of the year for starters.

Grandsire, Polkadot's Frosty Dawn, owned by Al Moran has been the pre-potent Kanata stallion and he and his get have proven their versatility.

Kanata ponies are ideal for 4-H and pony clubs and now that the breed has been recognized, their use should become even more popular.

Members elected officers, and the following were chosen: President-Dean Wautier, vice-president-Jeneen Rankin, secretary-Michele Brunoro, treasurer-Dean Wautier, and press reporter-Terri Giacomazzi.

Five new members were welcomed into the club this year. They are Becky Krentz, Jenifer Gibbs, David and Charity Van Dongen, and Todd Wautier. Bruno Giacomazzi will be the club leader with Shirley Giacomazzi, and Gene and Jill Wautier as assistant leaders.

Intercoast does it all

Intercoast Lumber construct more than truss arch buildings. They also construct and design the metal clad siding and roofing for these units.

This new streamlined method molds the siding and roofing by computer-operated machine.

Press takes a roll of 29 gauge galvanized steel, 36 inches wide and with computer precision it creases and designs sheets in the desired lengths for each architecturally designed building. Metal roof designs are fabricated in the same manner. Many designs are available and can be done with varied baked-on colored enamel panels in blue and white, brown and white, or other color combinations.

Complete operation takes only a few hours as the walls and ceiling are cut and pressed out to the precise sizes. The customer has the choice of color and design for his own building.

The metal fabricating plant is run by production manager Bruce Peters and staffers Lawrence Kember and Wayne Steinwandt.

Next time you need a barn or storage building call on Intercoast Lumber on Mt. Lehman Road, near the Fraser Highway, or phone 856-2561.

ASK ANNABELLE

Dear Annabelle,

My ex-husband was here at Christmas to visit our two children. We have been divorced since they were four and two. His generosity to us over the past 12 years has enabled me to put a down-payment on a house and his allowance for the children has helped us to live as well, if not better, than if we were still married. He has been married and divorced twice, but no children, since our divorce. I can tell when he takes us out that he still has an eye for good-looking women. My problem is this: he suggested at Christmas that we might think of remarrying so we can bring up our teenagers together. They are all for it, but I don't know if I could take any more of his philandering ways at my age. We did not discuss the possibility of his only staying with me until the children were ready to leave home. I feel that this is what he wants, a little mothering (again) from me and the love and closeness of his children. Signed: Perplexed

Dear Perplexed,

I would have to know a great deal more about this man before I could say anything. Do you still love him? Can you make another life for yourself again if he leaves a second time? Talk to a close friend or relative that knew you both when and knows you both now. Ask him the next time he visits to go to a marriage counselor with you and see what his reactions are to that. Talk to your minister or priest together. This is not a step I would take lightly, your future is the thing to think about at this stage of the game.

Dear Annabelle,

While shopping in Clearbrook last week I ran into an old high school friend whom I haven't seen in many years. After the first cordial greeting she looked me up and down and said, "Lordy, you have put on the old pounds, haven't you?" I was so embarrassed I didn't know what to say. We went to a restaurant and before I could think I ordered an ice-cream float; she on the other hand had iced tea. I can't seem to pull myself out of the slump I got into that day and am even having nightmares about it. Signed: Fat but Unhappy.

Dear F but U,

I think my first reaction would have been: "and you're so wrinkled." However, we cannot always think of a rejoinder at times like those, so, get up now, put the paper down, go to the store and buy yourself some grapefruit and salad fixings and have a little snack. And the next time you into your friend? order the iced tea. Good luck.

Two locals to perform with choir

ALDERGROVE - Accompanist Kraig Scott of 27873 Township-line Road and bass singer Bill Gerber of 5842-256 Street will perform with I Cantori, a select choir from Walla Walla College, in a secular concert at Fraser Valley Adventist Academy, on Saturday, Feb. 5, at 8:15 p.m.

The group will perform music they sang while on tour in Rumania and Russia in December. Slides from that trip will also be shown.

Walla Walla College is a private college located in S.E. Washington state. It is part of a world-wide network of colleges and universities owned and operated by the Seventh Day Adventist Church.

ALDERGROVE OAPO NEWS

Varied program for Thursday get-together

By ERNEST CLUETT

ALDERGROVE - The choral group under Pat Prozesky sang at the Oddfellows hospital in Newton on Monday, January 24 and again at the Murrayville United Church on Tuesday, Jan. 25. The choral singers were well received by the close to 150 people gathered in the church hall. The refreshments after the performance were plentiful and varied and all shared in the birthday cakes being passed around. The choral group was piped in by a piper in full regalia.

You are reminded of the pot luck supper to be held at 5 p.m. on Thursday, February 3, to be followed by a slide show of Egypt, Israel and Jordan. As no doubt a great many people will be stiff from sitting too long, the choral orchestra decided to limber everyone up with one hour's free dancing after the slide show. How's that for an evening of varied entertainment? You are reminded that the 1973 dues of $3 is now due to be paid. Your cooperation in this will be appreciated.

In China and Taiwan the old people are kept by their children and repay their board by doing odd jobs and raising the grandchildren. If they have no kids to support them the state steps in. In Canada with the pension fund being completely emptied by the borrowing provinces who never repay the money, but add it to their debt, and as the next seventeen years will add two million more pensioners to the rolls, it becomes obvious that our pensions are or soon will be, paid out of current contributions by our children and grandchildren, which is exactly what the Chinese have been doing for centuries.

As resolutions have to be in by March 1, please bring resolutions to the February meeting or to the executive meeting on February 21. These will finally end up on the convention floor to be voted on by the delegates.

Chessmen's Restaurant in the mall is putting on a two-for-one special in February. Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, $5.95 for two people. The menu for the special is very good. Paul, owner of the restaurant is generously supplying two plates of cold cuts for the pot luck on February 3. His contribution is very much appreciated and the pensioners should reciprocate his generosity whenever possible.

The handi companion service covering Aldergrove, Langley and Fort Langley in conjunction with the seniors resource council have started a service catering to the special needs of seniors. Shopping, housework, minor repairs, etc. It is project "Link". Phone 530-1145 and ask for Linda, Marlene or Ted.

Provincial minister Grace McCarthy has replied to my inquiry re a grant from the lottery fund to cover insulation in the hall. The letter had been turned over to her colleague, James Chabot for processing and we shall hear in due course.

The door prize winner at the Saturday dance was Jennie Bowman and the spot prize went to Alex Magli and Renee Gatin. The birthday of Gladys Kaufold was celebrated as was also the anniversary of Andy and Gwen Keay.

There will be a bus trip to Victoria on March 8 to see the decorations and hopefully spring flowers and perhaps the Queen on her visit to B.C. Leaving the hall at 7:30 a.m. for the 8:40 a.m. ferry. Returning on the 5:00 p.m. ferry. Home by 6:30 p.m. Book as early as possible. Call Adeline at 859-8408 or Marge at 856-4639. Fare $12 per person.

Doris says her neighbor told her that she was spoiled, but Doris says that was just the perfume she was wearing.

Alderhaven couple marry

By IRENE ORWICK

ALDERGROVE - Our first pot-luck dinner in the new year at Alderhaven on January 26 was a great success. A good crowd attended, as usual, and the ladies provided hot dishes of many kinds. The men donated funds for tea and coffee. Everyone enjoyed the pleasant get-together.

On January 29 Cathie Richardson and John Wood were united in marriage. Ceremony was held in the lounge at Alderhaven with Rev. Matthew Smith officiating at the double-ring wedding. Harry Misfeldt and tenants were responsible for the decorations. White pillars topped with baskets of dainty fuchsias made a pretty setting for the occasion. Bride was lovely in a mauve gown, carrying a beautiful bouquet. After the ceremony we all went over to the OAPO hall for the reception. Refreshments were served to the huge crowd on hand to wish the newlyweds much happiness. They departed on a trip to Victoria. We are happy to welcome back Mabel Woolley, from a short stay in hospital.
