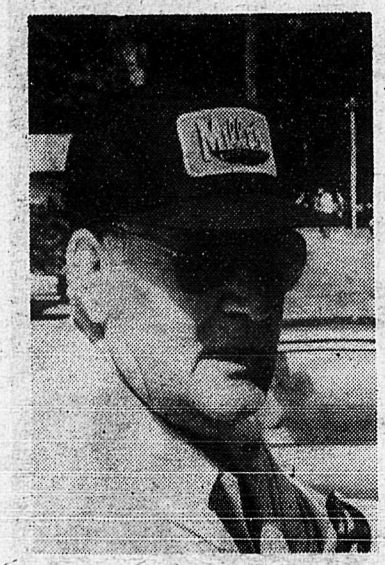
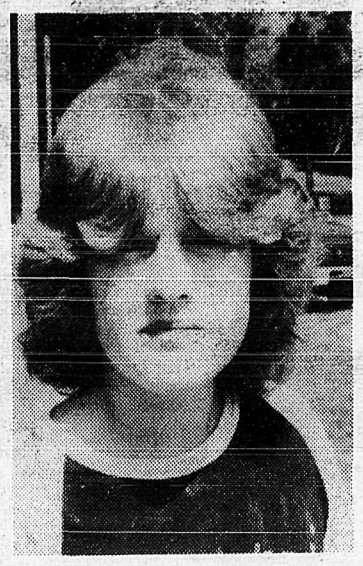
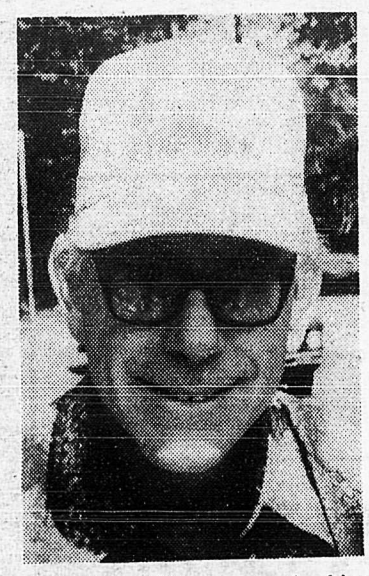
This week's question: "What do you think of B.C.'s new premier, Bill VanderZalm?"



Dick Humbke: "Out of all of them, I think that he's the best of the bunch. We'll just have to wait and see how he does."



Donny Sjolie: "I don't know him. I just hope he does a good job."



Gail Aitken: "We have to give him a chance and see what the heck he's going to do."

AT AIRSHOW

Biggest and fastest

MATSQUI - This coming Friday, Saturday and Sunday aviators will once again take to "the wild blue yonder" in aircraft of all sizes and shapes as the Abbotsford International Airshow celebrates its silver anniversary with a sonic boom.

Airshow has become the largest of its kind in North America and as usual will feature the U.S. Navy Blue Angels and the Canadian Forces Snowbird precision flying teams.

Armchair aviators and other spectators at the three-day event will also marvel at the display by the world's fastest airplane, The SR-71. The biggest will be represented by the Russian Antonov AN-124 plane.

Teams from the French, Italian and Brazilian air forces will also be showing their stuff. And NASA will be bringing in one of their research aircraft, a turbo STOL (short take off and landing) jet.

Admission to the airshow at the Abbotsford international airport located just five miles southeast of Aldergrove is $25 per carload (regardless of the number of passengers), $8 for passengers arriving by bus, and $4 for children between six and 15. Gates open at 6 a.m. with displays open between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. and the actual flying performances from 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. each day of the show.

Fort Langley Freehunters prepared their muskets, Sunday for their gun salute to the Brigade canoeists who arrived here for the annual re-creation of the voyageur era. The flotilla of 18 canoes stopped briefly for "rum" and the greetings of the officials, before heading down river to the Expo site.

The Freehunters are volunteers dedicated to bringing to life the early fur trade in New Caledonia and Columbia districts of old [circa 1800-1840]. They demonstrate early wilderness survival, primitive handicrafts, canoeing and weapons at the historic fort, year-round.

VANDERZALM

Choice no surprise

ALDERGROVE - Bill VanderZalm's victory at the Socred leadership convention was not a surprise -- we at The Star can claim success for our prediction that the next premier would be a "Valley boy."

Still, no one had expected the "tortuous" route he would take to the top. His growth on each successive ballot and the strange allegiance of Bud Smith must have surprised everyone. It was the best kind of victory, though, because no one can say that VanderZalm came into the job by chance - he earned every vote.

The political fallout for the other candidates and their supporters remains an open question. Local leadership hopefuls, MP Bob Wenman and MLA Bill Ritchie backed Brian Smith after the first ballot gave them only 40 and 28 votes, respectively. MLA Bob McClelland's choice, Jim Nielsen also went to the Brian Smith camp after a second ballot vote of only 30.

Local alderman Carol Gran, a Socred contender for one of Langley's two MLA seats in the next provincial election, publicly backed Brian Smith long before the convention. She also quit her job as McClelland's executive assistant at the same time.

VanderZalm is not a vindictive man and would not be foolish enough to discard a valuable cabinet minister like Brian Smith, but the futures and fortunes of Ritchie and McClelland are not as rosy. VanderZalm is going to bring dramatic changes to the provincial cabinet and many of the warhorses will be left at the wayside.

Wenman said he was returning to provincial politics, regardless of the outcome of the leadership race, and as he and the new premier share many fundamental values, they can undoubtedly work together. It would appear likely that Wenman and Gran will seek the constituency's two MLA seats in the next election.

Local reaction to VanderZalm's victory appears positive, although

Police recover booze

MATSQUI - A team of Matsqui police and Langley RMCP swooped down on a Matsqui area residence on July 29 and recovered 100 gallons of alcohol stolen from Potter's Distillery in Langley city. Eight adults were arrested at the home and charged with possession of stolen property.

Seven of the eight adults were also charged with break and entry, and theft from Potter's, and three of the suspects were held in custody pending their Aug. 5 appearance on the charges at Langley Provincial Court.

The theft occurred in the evening of July 28 at the distillery at 20501 Logan Avenue. The liquor was taken from storage vats inside their warehouse.

Street fight kills man

LANGLEY - A fight outside a downtown Vancouver nightclub has resulted in the death of a Fort Langley man and the arrest of another local man.

Gerald Dale Main, 26, of 8891 Hudson Bay Road, Fort Langley died at Royal Columbian Hospital at 7:45 p.m., Aug. 1. He died as result of injuries sustained in a Granville Street fight with another man, shortly after midnight of the same date.

Langley RCMP arrested a suspect from this area, 3 p.m., Aug. 2. The unidentified man has not yet been charged and has been released from custody pending further investigation by Langley RCMP and the Vancouver city police department's major crime unit.

Loto windfall

ALDERGROVE - A local woman is $38,960.40 richer after winning the July 23 Loto 649 draw.

Joan Millership, "a very excited winner" is planning to share the money with her family. She, and husband, George, have two children. Millership is a secretary at a Langley appliance dealership.

Doctors aren't yet ready to chance transplants

EDMONTON - Judy MacDonald, the 30-year-old Aldergrove mother of two profiled in last week's Star is still awaiting the operation which will give her a new pair of lungs and heart at the University of Alberta Hospital. It will be the first time the hospital's doctors will attempt to perform both operations at once.

Judy MacDonald

Her husband, Jim returned from Edmonton, Monday and he told The Star that doctors have done all the preparatory work possible but are waiting for Judy's protein level to return to normal before it will be safe to proceed with the transplant surgery.

"Her condition is not too good; she's deteriorating all the time," said Jim. "When they have the results from a stomach biopsy, they will prescribe a special diet so her body can absorb the proteins she needs for the operation."

He said doctors discovered a problem in the blood vessels of her lungs nine years ago and had prescribed medication to reduce the pressure this had caused to her heart. This medication has failed to work in the long term and her heart has been irreversibly damaged by the pressure and stress caused by her lungs.

Judy's mother is staying at her side in Edmonton while Jim looks after the couple's daughters.

The public can help alleviate the financial burden imposed on the family by making a contribution to the Judy MacDonald account at the Aldergrove Credit Union, 2941 - 272 Street, Aldergrove V0X 1A0.

Funds will be used to cover medical and travel costs, accommodation for her mother and expenses in the recovery process. Fund organizer Ingrid Clive is also planning a fund-raising dance and a chicken sale to help the family. For more information, call Clive, 530-0845 after 6 p.m.

Town Talk

Audrey Dunn: "I was kind of rooting for Brian Smith. I'm not too impressed with anyone who walks away and then comes back. I think they should stick it out. But I guess you can't damn him without first giving him a chance."

Gary Warnock: "After calling his cabinet colleagues 'gutless wonders' before he quit last time it's going to be interesting to see how they support him this time."

Ruth Gibbs: "He's the only one in the Social Credit party with the courage to speak his mind, so we might see some changes in the near future."

People wait to see what he'll do

many temper their opinion with a "wait and see" attitude.

Langley township mayor Elford Nundal said his impression of VanderZalm is of "a very pragmatic, determined man.

"The delegates appeared to vote according to the polls which showed the public predominantly thought he was the best man for the job. I think he'll provide good leadership, but how the electorate feels in the coming election is the question, no?"

Nundal said he met with VanderZalm at various meetings while he was minister of municipal affairs. "He made a great effort at explaining his proposed land use act and getting the business of government simplified so that people could get on with their business. I agree it's the way to go, even though it's not all that simple, anymore.

"He wanted to test the new act in the Queen Charlottes, but he didn't get the chance for it to be tried out so he dropped out of politics.

"I'd like to see what he can do," concluded Nundal.

Reaction from two local businessmen, who both pointed out that they are not card-carrying Socreds, was also positive.

Realtor Ken MacDonnell said, "The public and delegates substantiated that he was the best one for the job. He'll do his best to do the right things and is the only one with a clean slate - he doesn't owe any favors."

MacDonnell also said VanderZalm's immediate priorities should be the current labor unrest and free trade.

Insurance agent Doug Taylor knew VanderZalm while the latter was growing up in the Bradner-Mount Lehman area, but got to know him best when the two served as mayors of Matsqui and Surrey. "I was not really surprised (by VanderZalm's victory).

"We both served on the regional review panel at the same time. He was a good friend, easy to deal with. That's all I really want to say."

Langley Liberal candidates were less enthusiastic. Linda Banks said, "The Social Credit party demonstrated that it is more interested in preserving power than it is in charting a course for our future. Good government is more than just a popularity contest. The election of VanderZalm will undoubtedly prove fractious for the party. To hold together a group of 'free enterprisers' without any significant policy base will take more skill and leadership than he has thus far demonstrated."

Liberal Steve Ferguson added, "VanderZalm has demonstrated his confrontational style of governing in his past ministries. The future of political leadership in our province is unlikely to change."

Local NDP candidate Ken Novakowski expressed similar sentiments. "He's unlikely to change the direction of the Socreds, as they were under Bennett. He's more flambouyant in style, but in terms of substance he doesn't offer anything."

Novakowski said the priorities of the new premier should be, "to re-establish a climate of co-operation and conciliation to create employment and better opportunities for the province. He should also protect services provided by the government rather than dismantle them."

He was not optimistic of this, however. "His record as education minister showed he was very supportive of restraint programs. He'll have to change this."

Sense of humor shared

NEW YORK - Couples who share a good laugh may also find themselves walking down the aisle, a psychology expert says.

Having a high or low sense of humor in itself does not foster or hinder romance, said Bernard Murstein, a college psychologist whose findings were reported in the August issue of Psychology Today.

But couples who agree on what's funny are more likely to like, love and want to marry each other, he said.

Murstein and research associate Robert Brust asked 30 mainly college-aged couples to rate the humor in 25 different cartoons, comic strips and jokes, the magazine said.

The couples, 26 single and four married, then completed a questionnaire assessing their love for their partners and -- in the case of the singles -- their willingness to marry each other.

Murstein also learned that couples who share a sense of humor had been together longer than those who did not, the magazine said.

Researchers concluded that a person's sense of humor would also explain his "values, interests, preoccupations, intelligence, imagination and needs."

Now you see me, now you don't

ORMOND BEACH, Fla. - Necessity is the mother of invention, but pharmacist Nathan Dobbs may be its father.

Dobbs has invented a Nicotine Noose, a Hair Tie and a see-through bikini among other items -- all featured on Johnny Carson's Tonight Show in the late 1960s.

Nowadays, the 46-year-old druggist is touting his revolutionary new cockroach trap. It's a new concept, Dobbs says, because the trap can be sealed shut before it is thrown away. He is applying for a patent.

Dobbs says his other inventions were just for fun.

The Nicotine Noose is a cigarette holder with a built-on ash tray.

The Hair Tie was a clip-on tie made of long strands of hair. Dobbs had hoped it might become a staple garment of the long-haired 1960s.

The Sea-Me Bikini was made of clear plastic and Dobbs had a standing offer that "anyone who tried one on would get it free."

It never shines but it pours

Samuel Goldwyn had two claims to fame: one clearly deserved, the other - well - suspect.

As a Hollywood producer, he proved himself a front-ranker with such hits as Barbary Coast, Dodsworth, Wuthering Heights, The Little Foxes, The Best Years of Our Lives, Guys and Dolls, and Porgy and Bess.

Less solid is his reputation as a master of mangled English, notably the twisted cliche, exemplified by "In two words - impossible."

The trouble with most Goldwynisms is that they sound contrived, as if a press agent, or a script writer with time to kill, had cooked them up. Moreover, his family swore they never heard him utter a single one.

Sam was a shrewd old buzzard, and it's hard to imagine him saying, "Anybody who goes to see a psychiatrist ought to have his head examined." Or: "An oral contract isn't worth the paper it's written on."

BEST ARE GOOD

That said, these are the best Goldwynisms, whatever their true origins:

I read part of it all the way through.

Gentlemen, I want you to know that I am not always right, but I am never wrong.

Why should people go out and pay good money to see bad films when they can stay at home and see bad television for nothing?

If Roosevelt were alive he'd turn over in his grave.

You ought to take the bull between the teeth.

Every director bites the hand that lays the golden egg.

It's more than magnificent - it's mediocre.

Our comedies are not to be laughed at.

Let's have some new cliches.

We want a story that starts with an earthquake and works its way up to a climax.

We're overpaying him but he's worth it.

Tell me, how did you love my picture?

If you won't give me your word of honor, will you give me your promise?

I'll give you a definite maybe.

Include me out.

The twisted cliche exists in real life, of course, as anyone with half an ear knows.

CLICHES CURDLED

Ted Bernstein, onetime assistant managing editor at the New York Times, whose ear was sharper than most, called them curdled cliches.

Most of the following are from his book The Careful Writer. The rest, from other sources, are thrown in for good measure.

She blew the rug from under my sails.

Mitochondria a glimpse of evolution

BAR HARBOR, Me. - A glimpse of human evolution all the way back to a common female ancestor of everyone on Earth is contained in the genes of the mitochondria, the tiny power plants found in every cell in the body, a researcher says.

That ancestor isn't necessarily Eve, who the Bible says was the first woman to walk the planet. But she was certainly -- if the theory is correct -- a very early member of the human race.

The findings and speculation are based on an analysis of mitochondria found in the blood of about 800 women around the world.

The mitochondria are little structures that make ATP, the fuel that cells use to carry out the processes of life. In the far, evolutionary past they were independent creatures and even though they are now part of the human body, they have kept their own genes, separate from the chromosomes that carry most of the body's blueprints.

Mitochondria and their genes are passed from generation to generation only by mothers. The father's contribution is lost during the early moments of an embryo's development.

"I like to think of mitochondrial DNA as a biological history book of women," says Dr. Douglas Wallace, a geneticist at Emory University.

Wallace presented his research into mitochondrial inheritance at a genetics meeting at the Jackson Laboratory here.

Mitochondrial genes mutate much more rapidly than do the body's chromosomes. But these changes occur at a steady rate.

Experts study the history of how mitochondrial genes have changed over the eons by focusing on the mutations. They examine the differences in the genes of people who have long lived apart on different continents.

Eventually, they can construct a family tree with major branches representing the mitochondrial genes of people with ancestral roots in Africa, Asia and Europe. All these branches come together in a trunk. And at the base of the trunk is a single ancestor.

"There is one surviving lineage," said Wallace. "I don't know that there was an Eve, although this data is not inconsistent with that."

The results of Wallace's analysis are still tentative. He has traced mitochondrial genes back 100,000 years. And he says the data suggests humanity arose in Asia rather than Africa, as many experts theorize.

Wallace said his work might also be used to figure out how ancient bands of people moved from place to place.

"We can genetically relate all the American Indian tribes to each other," he said. "Knowing where they are geographically, we will know how they had to migrate from where they started to where they are."

Experts believe that long ago, Indians wandered across North and South America from Asia.

"If we can find more than one founder of the American Indian lineage, we might be able to figure the number of migrations into America and the times of these migrations," Wallace said.

Each human cell holds hundreds of mitochondria. They could contain the code for 13 peptides that are essential to life.

"However, Wallace's research suggests some rare diseases that run in families might result from defects in the mitochondrial genes. These include bilateral striatal necrosis, a brain disease, and Lebers optic atrophy, a form of blindness.

If that turns out to be true, he said, it may be possible to prevent the ailments by replacing mitochondria in the unborn.

ASK ANNABELLE

Dear Annabelle,

I am 80 years old and still live by myself. My only problem is I get very lonely sometimes. Most days I am fine and enjoy being by myself but once in a while I really need some company. Is there anything I can do at these times? I have no relatives and no close friends to visit.

Signed: Almost lonely.

Dear Almost,

You didn't tell me if you live in Aldergrove. If you don't belong to a church, join one. Most churches have special programs for their seniors and committees of dedicated people who visit the elderly and sick. Most communities have super Old Age pensioners' halls with dances, cards and trips laid on. Get out and about and make some friends now. Who knows? In a few years you may need them.

++++

Dear Readers,

Last week I received a letter from Unmarried Harry asking about a "man's meal". Well Harry, here's one for you - tested and eaten in my own kitchen.

Chilli con carne: Soak 8 ounces of dried brown or red beans in water overnight. Next day place beans and 1¾ pints of water in saucepan, cover and cook gently for 1½ hours. Cut 2 lbs. braising steak into 1 inch cubes. Peel and chop one onion. Heat pork dripping or olive oil (1 tblsp.) in frying pan. Add the beef. Cook till brown then add the chopped onion and cook till transparent. Mix beef and onion in with cooked beans and season with salt and pepper, 1 tsp. chili powder and 1 tsp. paprika. Cover and cook gently for 1 hour. Add 8 ounces of drained canned tomatoes, cover and cook 30 minutes more. Taste, adjust seasoning. To thicken the sauce if desired, mix 2 tsp. cornstarch with water and add to mixture. Cook for a few minutes, then serve with rice or chunks of wholemeal bread and a crisp salad.

Good luck, Harry. When I have recovered from that one I will try the baked beans for you. It's not everyone who has a real live guinea pig to try these recipes first.

Winners' woes

EDMONTON - Maurice and Jennette Gariepy, winners of two $1-million Super Lotto prizes in a little over a year, are finding that being rich isn't a bed of roses.

Since announcing in the media they would give away some of their winnings, the Gariepys have been inundated with telephone calls and letters from people all over Canada.

"I made a mistake," said Maurice in an interview from his home in Beaumont, about 10 kilometres southeast of Edmonton.

"I told the media I was giving a lot of the money away. And I did.

"The trouble is that once the public knew, it seems everyone wanted a piece," lamented Maurice, adding "the requests go from the bizarre to the very sad."

The couple says they receive 15 to 20 letters and countless telephone calls every day.

One of the more unusual requests was from a man whose car was repossessed for missing his loan payments. He wants the Gariepys to give him enough money to get it back.

Another is a University of Alberta professor who wants the couple to invest with him in a resort hotel in British Columbia. And an Edmonton woman asked the Gariepys to pay $5,000 for her son's wedding.

"I don't want to open them up anymore because I find it depressing," Maurice said. "They must write us thinking we're out of our tree."

But some of the letters contain a desparate tone, from people who legitimately seem to be in dire straits, he said.

"It's a good feeling knowing you've helped some, but I wish I could help them all," said Maurice. After a moment, he conceded: "I suppose no matter how much you have, you'd never have enough."

The Gariepys gave away $400,000 to charity from the second $1-million prize they won during the first week of July.

Throughout it all, the couple has been able to maintain a relatively normal lifestyle.

Maurice has returned to work as a shop foreman at a friend's business. He quit his old job after winning the first $1 million, which they used to pay for their dream home in Beaumont.

They saved some to put their 10-year-old daughter and five-year-old son through university.

"Friends phone us and say 'What are you doing?' I tell them we're having coffee and they act surprised," said Maurice.

"I feel I have to tell them champagne's flowing and there's dancing girls."

Steve Nunuk, Steve Azyan, and Ray Smith ... playing Havoc.

Game plays havoc

ALDERGROVE - Strategy games are in again and a trio of local men have put a new lightning fast twist to the old board game. 'Havoc' allows you to cause chaos and mischief among your friends and still laugh about it afterward.

Steve Nunuk, 29, and Steve Azyan, 28, both of Aldergrove, along with friend Ray Smith of Vancouver, have spent the past two years developing the new concept in strategy board games. Their invention combines various levels of strategy with a frenzy of movement and across the board banter resulting in a fast-paced, social game.

Players, up to four, starting from opposite sides of the board converge in an attempt to capture and eliminate each other. As opposing players men are captured, the speed of your own men increases and the game proceeds at an ever increasing rate of speed resulting in the final climactic finish.

The three local inventors, encouraged by family and friends who enjoyed their game, spent many hours playing and developing their game to its finished stage.

Future plans for Nunuk, Azyan and Smith include trips to the Toronto and New York toy fairs later this year.

The game is currently available at Woodwards and local game stores retailing at $17.95.

Thrift shop donates

Centre promotes good health

ABBOTSFORD - The Forever Lifestyle Centre opened July 23 at 33386 South Fraser Way, above the Versailles restaurant.

This "good health" centre was enthusiastically received by the general public and independent distributors from the lower mainland and Fraser Valley. It has responded to interest concerning good nutrition and weight control programs, and has developed the Forever Lite Nutritional Program.

The centre promotes and teaches good health and beauty through use of proper exercise and natural Aloe Vera products. The Aloe Vera is known to many as the "burn plant" or "silent healer."

The Forever Lite program complements the Forever Fit centre, and they operate side by side. The Forever Lifestyle Centre is equipped with audio-visual, training and meeting rooms, as well as interview offices, kitchenette and product supply room.

Director Helmi Lowen says an esthetician and nutritionist will be joining the staff. Appointments for consultations should be made in advance by calling 853-3448 or 852-4503.

Business opportunity meetings are held Mondays at 8 p.m. The short meetings explain the rewards of distributing Aloe Vera products.

SAYS EXCHANGE STUDENT

B.C. is beautiful

By MONNA PITTEANEN

Summer here in British Columbia is a dream ... that dream came true for me.

Oh, excuse me. I haven't introduced myself. My name is Monna Pitteanen, and I'm a Lions Youth Exchange Student from Finland now staying here in Aldergrove.

I came here three weeks ago, and it is sad because three weeks is a short time and you can't believe how fast this time goes.

There is so many things to see and so many people to meet, but this is part of life, when you get to know people and used to living in another place, you have to go.

Now, I want to tell you a little about my three weeks here and what I think of British Columbia, but unfortunately I can only name a few incidents.

Of course, Expo 86 was one of the interesting happenings which I had a chance to be part of, and I'm really lucky that this was the summer when I was here during the worlds fair.

Vancouver Island and especially Victoria was one of the beautiful places visited.

British Columbia is a very beautiful place to visit, with all those mountains ... so very different from Finland, where we don't have many mountains.

But I have found lots of things the same as in Finland; people, food, and forests, but not the thousands of rivers and lakes which are a big part of Finland.

People in B.C. live very much the same kind of life as we do in Finland. They are friendly, caring and loving, and I want to thank all those who took me places and whose life I became a little part of.

Special thanks to my host family and the Aldergrove Lions Club for making my dream come true. You will live in my mind all my life. Thank you.

It's very hard to go and leave all those people and British Columbia.

But my own country is waiting for me and for every man or woman their own country is the best in the world.

Tourism booming

KAMLOOPS - Tourism minister Claude Richmond says a survey on the affects of Expo have shown that tourism is booming in Southwestern B.C. Richmond says that Victoria, Prince George, Kamloops and Revelstoke are all showing signs of increased tourism. He adds that many other areas are also doing better than last year, including Salmon Arm, Barkerville and Chemainus. Some, like Williams Lake, Cranbrook and Campbell River are doing only as well as last year, while in the Okanagan and West Kootenay tourism is down. Things are also worse along the Fraser Canyon but Richmond says that's partly due to the opening of the Coquihalla highway.

You can have a do-it-yourself divorce

Divorce laws have changed in Canada and in some respects it is now easier to obtain your own divorce. The new Divorce Act came into effect June 1, 1986 and makes it possible, for instance, for some people to get a divorce without any parties involved having to appear in court.

In some circumstances it may even be possible to do it yourself without hiring a lawyer to go through the necessary procedures on your behalf. However, divorce is a complicated procedure and should not be attempted without obtaining legal advice.

An "undefended" divorce, one where none of the parties disputes any of the issues, is now easier to obtain. Under the new law the only grounds necessary for divorce are a one year separation (instead of three), adultery, or mental and-or physical cruelty.

A divorce is final in B.C. in 31 days but could take from two to six months. Besides lawyers fees, around $500 for an uncontested action, there is a $60 federal-provincial registry fee.

A spouse must be served a copy of the divorce petition in person by someone other than yourself. If your spouse cannot be located a Notice of Motion Form is purchased and filed with the Supreme Court Registry. If adultery is involved, the other person must also be served.

Although the need for a lawyer in some circumstances has been reduced with the new laws, divorce is still an involved process, especially if children are involved, and legal advice should be sought before any action is taken.

NOW ...

... a new and better way to pay

Your credit union works for you constantly, striving to find or create services which will help make your life a little easier.

The New MasterCard Debit Card is just such a service. It's the new and better way to pay and it's now available at the Aldergrove Credit Union.

The MasterCard Debit Card looks just like a credit card and can be used anywhere MasterCard is used for payment. And like a credit card, you use it to buy goods. But that's where the similarity ends. It's not a credit card, it's a DEBIT CARD.

So simple ... so convenient

When you use your MasterCard Debit Card to pay for a purchase, the merchant writes up the sale; just as is done for a credit card purchase. The difference is that with your MasterCard Debit Card, the purchase amount comes directly from your chequing account.

It's just like paying with a cheque, but without the hassle of cheque-writing. You actually pay for the purchase with money from your own chequing account.

Eliminates the danger of carrying cash

Cash can be easily lost or stolen and the last thing you need is that kind of worry. With your MasterCard Debit Card, you never need to carry large sums of cash on shopping or business trips or on vacations.

Emergency cash? You've got it when you need it.

Use your MasterCard Debit Card at any financial institution where the MasterCard card is honoured. You can get on-the-spot cash when you need it, practically anywhere in the world.

The world-famous MasterCard name means universal acceptance.

Like the familiar MasterCard credit card, your MasterCard Debit Card is accepted at over 3,500,000 retail locations throughout the world.

Record-keeping made simple

Each time you use your MasterCard Debit Card you'll be given an individual record of the transaction, a receipt, just like using a credit card. You simply record the purchase just as you would when writing a cheque.

Your debit card transaction will be shown on your credit union statement including the date your transaction cleared your account, amounts, merchant names and locations.

So many financial services with just one card

Your MasterCard Debit Card not only frees you from dependancy on cash and most cheque writing situations, your card plus your personal identification number (PIN) also gives you access to your account day or night at over 150 Automated Tellers in British Columbia wherever you see the Cue sign, Exchange sign, or Strata sign, and will be available at over 5,000 Automated Teller Machines in the U.S.A. in the very near future.

Apply for your MasterCard Debit Card today.

Phone or come to your nearest branch and fill out the necessary forms.

ALDERGROVE - Seven gone and five to go.

Joe Lapuchinsky of the B.C. Libertas party points to one of his still remaining signs, this one in front of the RCMP station at Murrayville.

Signs which first appeared early this year and subsequently taken down because local politicians didn't like them, are now back on the scene. But they disappear almost as quickly as Libertas party workers can put them up.

Lapuchinsky doesn't know if the thieves are people who disagree with his political philosophy or perhaps just like his two-by-fours. He has complained to the RCMP and hopes they will keep an eye open for the sign outside their windows.

"We have a couple of leads on who the thief might be," he says, "and we are watching closely.

"Perhaps the opposition [Socreds and NDPs] doesn't like my signs, but it seems that the public does, based on all the compliments I have received."

Lapuchinsky is campaigning for the next provincial election when he plans to take on Premier Bill VanderZalm and opposition leader Bob Skelly at the same time. Presently he is "mainstreeting", handing out political tracts to the people he can persuade to listen to his new brand of free enterprise libertarianism.

Babies meet babies

ALDERGROVE - Babies met babies Monday, July 28, when Aldergrove Family Centre visited the Vancouver Game Farm. The 'nursery' where the baby lynx, racoon and beaver live was the most popular with the 34 mothers and tots who made the trip. Anyone who would like to join the group next time should phone 856-1435 and ask for Cheryl.

Other upcoming events at Aldergrove Family Centre are: August 13, 9:30 - 11:30 a.m. - Public health nurse speaking on care and nutrition for children. Free.

September - Women's support group. Free (call 856-1435 to sign up).

October 2, 7:30 - 9:30 p.m. - A course for parents of teens, goes for 10 weeks. Cost: $25. singles, $40. couples, and $10. for the course book, with provincial government subsidy for those who qualify.

Swedes true diplomats

SMOEGEN, Sweden - Seven Swedes have come up with a masterpiece of compromise.

When they couldn't agree whether to spend their vacation sailing or driving, they decided to remodel a Mercedes 220 into a boat and sail with a house trailer in tow.

Vacationers reacted with surprise when the odd vessel arrived in Smoegen on the Swedish west coast, Swedish media reported Monday.

"Half the gang wanted to spend the vacation sailing, the others wanted to go by car, so we had to figure out something" Gunnar Haraldsson, driver-skipper, told the daily Goteborgs Tidningen.

The group spent a week sealing the car chassis and the trailer with plastic and replacing the car engine with an outboard motor.

Canada's singing star didn't like country once

There was a time when Carroll Baker didn't like country music.

Today, Baker is the recipient of every major country award in Canada including "Entertainer of the Year". With her clear, powerful voice, her earthy energy and ever-present warmth, she has gone on to become Canada's undisputed Queen of Country Music.

Record sales of her albums are already in excess of one million and she proudly displays two platinum, three gold LP and five gold singles - the result of having 14 singles reach the No. 1 spot on RPM's Country Music chart.

On the International scene, she has toured England with Slim Whitman (including the London Paladium), "stole the show" at Wembley, performed on the International Shows during CMA's DJ Convention in Nashville and drew standing ovations at Cajun's Wharf in Nashville during the Talent Buyers Showcase.

Her TV activity also includes considerable exposure internationally.

It's appropriate that she was chosen to perform at the North West Washington Fair's "Canadian Day", Aug. 14 at Lynden's fairgrounds. Seating for the performance is free at the grandstand with your admission to the fair, although there are tickets available for the 1200 reserved seats.

Carroll Baker has been getting excellent reviews for her songwriting talents, as well. Her songs have been recorded by other performers with great success, the most recent being Tom Jones' version of I'm An Old Rock And Roller (Dancin' To A Different Beat).

Tuesday, Aug. 12 is "Kid's Day" at the North West Washington Fair with family entertainment at the grandstand featuring the original Rocky Vasalino show, Johnny Counterfeit and the Brunson Bros., as well as horse events and more. Showtimes are 1 and 7 p.m.

Vasalino is a graffiti revival show well known in the Pacific North West.

Counterfeit performs voice impressions in song and humor, and his repertoire includes Johnny Cash, Elvis Presley, George Burns, John Wayne and Ronald Reagan, among many others. He and his four musicians should provide light-hearted hilarity.

The Brunson Bros. perform on trumpets, with their back-up band and perform classics like Maria Elena and the Wm. Tell Overture.

Carroll Baker

Nelida and Nelson are two of the featured dancers in Tango Argentino, at Queen Elizabeth Theatre, Sept. 9 to 14. The show is on its first national tour after breaking attendance records in Paris and New York theatres.

It features 30 of Argentina's most renowned dancers, singers and musicians in a spectacular evening which Vogue magazine called "delirious, elegant and beguiling."

Tango makes comeback

Tango Argentino, one of the most extraordinary hits of this season is currently on its first national tour and will be playing at the Queen Elizabeth Theatre, Sept. 9 to Sept. 14, at 8 p.m. with matinees Sept. 13 and 14 at 2 p.m.

Tango Argentino, which broke box office records first in Paris and then on Broadway, returned romance and sensuality to the theatrical stage. It was conceived, directed and designed by Claudio Segovia and Hector Orezzoli, with choreographic conception by Segovia, assisted by Juan Carlos Copes.

Tango Argentino features the world's most renowned tango artists. Each of the thirty dancers, singers and musicians of the company is a star in his own right and has a unique, special style of performing tango. Segovia and Orezzoli have melded their special talents into a spectacle which conveys the grace, the grandeur and the unique style that have epitomized tango during its 100-year history.

The tango was born in the 1880's in Buenos Aires, a city rapidly filling with immigrants from both the Pampas (Argentinian countryside) and from Europe. The music draws on the Argentinian 'milonga', which in turn combines Indian rhythms with the 'habanera' of the first Spanish colonists. But tango music also has African 'candombe' influences, and the word tango is probably derived as much from the Latin 'tangere', to touch, as it is from the beat of the drums which African servants played in the slave quarters of Argentina. Tango travelled to North America and Paris in the period just after World War I, and long before Rudolph Valentino dominated the silver screen with his hot-blooded interpretation of the tango, there was the great tango singer Carolos Gardel, from Toulouse.

The success of Tango Argentino has fostered a new kind of madness -- "Tango-mania". Fashion designers in both Paris and New York salute tango for its impact on fashion, with sleek, slinky backless black and white evening dresses and the return of the slim, elegant tuxedo, worn with a pencil thin white scarf and slicked back hair. Tango lessons exploded from the "World's Largest Tango Lesson" at Roseland, drawing over 2,000 students; to individual classes taught by members of the cast in Master classes at Julliard and other renowned dance institutions.

The original cast album of Tango Argentino was released this year by Atlantic Records.

Tickets at VTC-CBO and all usual outlets. To charge by phone, call 280-4444.

MARQUEE - FILM REVIEW

By J.T. YURKO

One word: scary

ALIENS (R-Twentieth Century-Fox)
Sigourney Weaver, Carrie Henn, Michael Biehn.
★ ★ ★ ½★

Darkness, claustrophobia and cockroaches the size of Buicks are the ingredients of suspense/horror/monster movies, and rarely have they been put to such chillingly good use as they are in "Aliens." As the name of this sequel implies, Sigourney Weaver battles a few friends of the original "Alien" from the first film — and boy, are they upset.

Why, you might ask, would any sane person, man or woman, want to go back and face one of the most gruesome and repulsive creatures in the history of film? Well, it seems that the ruthless planet developers want to exploit the planet's resources, even though the planet does have a few hostile inhabitants.

Giving away many more details of the story would unhinge a sparse but superbly constructed screenplay. Not that this is an overly complex tale. Director/screenwriter James Cameron has been wise to trim all excesses from this sequel and simply pits good against evil, with stark and chilling results.

Weaver does what any other red-blooded American would do when attacked on foreign soil — she calls for the Marines. Since the entire cast of the previous film became lunch for the creature, the new cast is comprised largely of these few good men and women. Like a "Dirty Dozen" in deep space, they do their best against the enemy. Who gets to live and who becomes lunch make for much of the film's suspense.

And when Weaver tapes together a flame thrower and a machine gun/grenade launcher and heads straight for the hatching nest of the maternal Alien, stand back for enough flying lead, flames and smoke to make Normandy Beach look like maneuvers.

Some of the dialogue is horrible, but Weaver carries it off with conviction. And for sheer chills and suspense, few films pack as much punch or will leave you as physically exhausted as "Aliens."

TV evangelists compete for shrinking dollars

LYNCHBURG, Va. - After three decades on the air, Jerry Falwell and Pat Robertson are still going strong but finding that tougher competition for the religious dollar and other economic and political factors are forcing changes for television evangelists.

Between them, Falwell, founder of Moral Majority, and Robertson, who's considering a run for the presidency, have laid off more than 250 employees and slashed their budgets by a total of $34 million because revenues have fallen short of estimates.

TV preacher Oral Roberts has given his law school to Robertson, has closed his dental school and is delaying construction of a $14 million religious center partly because of financial problems. His $150 million City of Faith Hospital in Tulsa lies half empty.

"There's only so many letters and pleas for emergency help to go the extra mile that people will go along with," said Peter S. Hawkins, associate professor at Yale Divinity School. Hawkins said he feared the televangelists are turning Christianity into a spectator sport.

Robertson said his surveys indicated contributions were off because younger people who are buying homes and bearing children have less to give; perennial large contributors from Texas, Oklahoma and Louisiana are giving less because they've been hurt by falling oil prices, and a building boom of "superchurches" serving enormous congregations in cities like Phoenix, Tulsa, Houston and Orlando, Fla., is draining away dollars.

Rob Nordin, a spokesman for Oral Roberts, said television ministries probably overextended themselves when they had excess funds coming in.

"What we've seen in the last decade has been a proliferation of television ministries," Nordin said. "As a result of that, I think we've seen that the pie has been cut into more pieces and some of the pieces that used to be quite large are not nearly as large as they were."

Talk of a bid for the Republican presidential nomination, said Robertson, has spotlighted his Christian Broadcasting Network's annual budget of $200 million.

"People hear of these large sums which are not the net income," said Robertson, president of the network and host of The 700 Club program. "They're total budget figures and they sort of scare people."

In the case of Oral Roberts, some of his employees have expressed resentment over his lifestyle while they have gone without pay raises for three years and some were laid off two years ago.

The Tulsa Tribune reported that Roberts drives a Mercedes, lives in a $500,000 home in Tulsa owned by Oral Roberts University, owns a home of equal value in Rancho Mirage, Calif., and uses for entertainment a $2.4 million home in Beverly Hills owned by his organization. Roberts' headquarters confirmed the existence of the car and the houses but said it could not put a price tag on them.

Falwell believes there's a general softening nationally in contributions to conservative religious and political causes.

"We're in a state of apathy in this country," he said in an interview at his headquarters here. "It's a very real spiritual apathy, and I think most of the churches are feeling this."

Falwell said he had no political ambitions. But Robertson, son of the late U.S. Sen. A. Willis Robertson, is testing the waters with the 21 million evangelicals who are registered voters, 80 percent to 85 percent of them Republicans.

"I'm looking at some polls that are being taken to indicate the feeling of the evangelical people particularly, but also the feeling of conservatives," Robertson said in an interview with The Associated Press in Washington during a visit.

"We're seeing a return to faith," he said. "Between 60 (million) and 70 million people say they're born-again Christians. The religious television and radio has had a major impact on that."

Jeffrey Hadden, a sociology professor at the University of Virginia and the author of Prime Time Preachers, estimates that at present, even with all of the hoopla, no more than 20 to 25 percent of evangelical and fundamental Christians are active politically.

"You have another 75 percent of that group of people potentially," he said, "but I'm not sure whether it can happen."

Falwell blames the softening in contributions partly on a national perception that conservatives are in charge.

"That perception," he said, "is hurtful when people feel there's no cause to support anymore. The only true part is that Ronald Reagan is doing well. The House of Representatives is clearly not a conservative House. The Senate is a razor-thin majority on any issue."

Despite the cutbacks, Falwell says Christian broadcasting is not in disarray.

"We are stronger on television and radio than we've ever been and our income is up," he said. "We had anticipated growth this year equal to last year's and it hasn't been there."

He said revenues were growing by 3 percent or 4 percent while spending was up about 15 percent to 18 percent, "so we had to quickly make the adjustment."

Falwell cut 225 employees and about $5 million from the $25 million annual payroll for his program, The Old Time Gospel Hour, and the church-run Liberty University. His annual budget is $100 million.

Have you thought about your hands and nails?

By FAYE FILIATRAULT

Do your hands perspire excessively or are they often dry and scaly because of a lack of moisture in your skin? Both conditions can be caused by a disorder of the sudoriferous (sweat) glands.

How is your nail nutrition? Nutrition in the nail can be seen on the visible nail; however your oil and fat content is generally seen on your cuticles. If you lack vitamin A, D, E or 7 your nails will be soft and dry. Lines or ridges down the middle of the nail can mean a poor elimination or digestive system. Furrows or depressions can also be caused by illness, nutritional disturbance or injury to the matrix. (The nail originates from the matrix at the base of the nail body. The matrix contains the only living reproductive cells of the nail.)

White spots - shows trauma; each white spot represents a new one. If the white spot is near your cuticle (at base of nail) the trouble has recently appeared. If white spots appear frequently on the nail they are caused by injury to the matrix.

Do you bite your nails? It is usually a nervous habit as is the wringing of your hands. Biting the nails is one of the most common causes of deformed nails. It can change the shape of the nail - often the nail tips will widen. Biting nails is usually accompanied by ragged cuticles.

What are hangnails? It is a condition in which the cuticle splits around the nail. The cause can be excessive dryness, cutting off too much cuticle or carelessness in removing the cuticle. If not properly cared for the hangnail may become infected. Treatment: Hot oil bath or simply put vaseline around cuticle daily.

Nail buffers are an old fashioned invention with a new interest for each of us and very beneficial. They help to improve circulation in nail area and produce a natural shine on the nails; good for both men, women and children to use.

Lessons for beautiful hands:

1 - Manicure weekly (professional one 3-4 times or more a year)

2 - Never dial phone with fingers.

3 - Oil and massage cuticles daily.

4 - Use hand cream, often.

5 - Don't pick or chew cuticles.

6 - Repair nails and nail polish as needed. (If you wear nail polish make sure it is not chipped. When chipped repair or remove!)

7 - It takes 4-6 months for a nail to completely renew itself from the base to the nail tip.

8 - Protect your nails with at least a clear polish.

Nothing can keep the king of the road down

Roger Miller is a living legend of American Music. He is one of a handful of country music superstars whose songs have become an integral part of the cultural fabric of this nation.

A singer, composer, lyricist, musician, humorist, and actor, Miller possesses a quick and incisive wit combined with the easy-going charm of a good ol' boy.

As a composer, he has written over 800 songs, 700 of which have been recorded. He has five gold albums and five gold singles to his credit; and a place in the Songwriters Hall of Fame.

Roger Miller

Remarkably, one of the greatest periods of success for Miller came during the British music invasion of the mid-1960's. Many artists saw groups like the Beatles, the Rolling Stones, and the Who literally shove them off the record charts.

Miller, however, was enjoying phenomenal success. He received six Grammy Awards in 1965 and was named Jukebox Artist of the Year, becoming the only artist ever to be so honored. He has received five other Grammy Awards throughout his career plus 17 Grammy nominations. Songs like "King of the Road", "Dang Me", "Chug-a-Lug", and "England Swings" were topping the charts at top-forty stations all over America at a time when it was rare for a country artist to get any airplay on other than country radio.

Roger Miller was born in Fort Worth, Texas, and raised on a farm in Erick, Oklahoma. He wrote his first song at age five and made his debut as a performer in front of his 37 classmates in a one-room schoolhouse. Miller remained in Oklahoma until he joined the Army and was sent to Korea. Most of his days in the military were spent slinging a rifle and driving a jeep. At night he composed music and practiced the guitar.

He went to Nashville in 1957, and wrote songs for George Jones (for whom he used to play fiddle), Ernest Tubbs, Andy Williams, Patti Page, and many others. Miller was making a name as a composer but yearned to perform; he is an accomplished fiddle and guitar player.

In 1964, he moved to Hollywood to try his hand at acting. He had barely unpacked his bags when he received word that "Dang Me" had become the number one song in America.

Leading music authorities have disputed the country label attached to Miller's talents. Most feel that his musical inventiveness has a solid basis in jazz and his humorous, poetic lyrics are the work of a highly sophisticated and deeply philosophical man.

Roger Miller, and his wife Mary, live on a ranch near Santa Fe, New Mexico, where he spends his spare time "working" the ranch and searching for Indian artifacts. Mary, now a vocalist in Roger's show, formerly sang with Kenny Rogers and the First Edition, and has almost as many gold records as her husband.

CBS Records has recently released a duet album with Willie Nelson, titled "Old Friends", which contains all Miller songs. Roger has just written the words and music for a Broadway play entitled, "The River" which is based on Mark Twain's "Huckleberry Finn".

The "King of the Road" continues on, and will perform two free grandstand shows at the North West Washington Fair, Saturday, Aug. 16 at 1 and 7 p.m.

Phil Donahue

Phil Donahue explores the habits of the human beast

By Lynn Hoogenboom

There's one sure sign that the summer doldrums are upon us. Suddenly the networks are more than willing to devote large blocks of programming time to subjects that are usually the exclusive domain of public television.

On July 30, for example, ABC turned over three prime-time hours to its "Closeup" documentary unit for "After the Sexual Revolution." Not to be outdone (at least not during the summer, when ratings don't really count), NBC is countering with "Phil Donahue Examines the Human Animal," a five-part special that will be telecast Monday through Friday, Aug. 11 to 15.

It sounds like a mighty ambitious undertaking. Five hours may be a large prime-time programming block, but it's scarcely time enough to scratch the surface when the one-hour segments are on such ambitious topics as "Love and Sex" (Monday, Aug. 11), "Nature and Nurture" (Tuesday, Aug. 12), "War and Violence" (Wednesday, Aug. 13), "Woman and Man" (Thursday, Aug. 14) and "Family and Survival" (Friday, Aug. 15).

One of Donahue's favorite questions is "Is personality a product of genes and hormones or of upbringing?" The answer, Donahue believes, is "both."

"Biology is not destiny," he says, "but it's not for nothing." One intriguing discovery is that there is a body chemical, monoamine oxydase (MAO) that is related to risk-taking behavior. "Some people have a lot of it, and some people have a little of it," says Dr. Richard Haier, who discovered it. "People with low levels of MAO tend to be the sensation seekers. They like to do outrageous things."

One of the most disturbing things about man is his penchant for violence. No other animal, Donahue points out, kills members of its own species in anywhere near the volume or frequency as man, the most "civilized" animal of all. Donahue also points out that considerably more violence is committed by men (who are responsible for a staggering 89 percent of all violent crime) than by women.

The fact that aggression is encouraged in boys and discouraged in girls may account, in part, for this figure, but the evidence indicates that biological factors come into play as well.

Seven weeks not enough for survival

By ERNEST CLUETT

The OAP Hall in Aldergrove is really in the summer doldrums. Outside of the Tuesday "Teen Age" dances and "Old Folks" Wednesday and Saturday Old Time dances, everything is as dead as Aldergrove is, every day in the week after 8 p.m. If it wasn't for the gravel trucks working overtime, you would think you were in "DingleWeed" junction, Saskatchewan. As a matter of interest, in a few years time the last resident of the business sector returning home at the 10 p.m. curfew will be asked to roll up the sidewalks and put out the street lights before retiring. No doubt the hard working population after travelling to work in Matsqui or the big city need a quiet and peaceful atmosphere to come home and relax in.

When Dr. Nundal addressed the Chamber of Commerce he gave the impression the Fort Langley-to-Langley Jitney bus would be extended to Aldergrove to enable non-motorists to visit the hospital and shop in Langley and bathe in the facility being built opposite the hospital. Unfortunately this must have been verbal wind, for nothing more has ever been heard of it.

After a lengthy absence, the deer are back along with their babies. They are observed patiently teaching the fawns to browse the tender new growth of rose bushes and other valued ornamentals growing in the garden. I have no doubt that peas and beans, etc. would also be acceptable, but mine are safe until a deer shows up that can jump seven feet. Naturally the fawns don't jump they walk along the fence until they find a slack bottom wire and then then crawl over or under it. If human babies developed as fast as fawns they would be bank managers by the time they were 10 years old. But then, human mothers only get seven weeks maternity leave from work, and that's not much time to practice survival training.

We regret the passing of Molly Reid, a long time member of Branch 71. She will be greatly missed for her organizational ability and her never failing desire to help the organization in any way possible. Our sympathy goes out to her husband and family. The memorial service was restricted to members of the family. We also regret the passing of Lucy DeVries, who passed away after a lengthy illness. Our sympathy is extended to her husband and family. Also the passing of long time member Wilfred Carto who passed away in Langley hospital after suffering a stroke. Also passed away, Marguerite Kirkam, a long time member of Branch 71 and a member of the Choral Group. Our sympathy goes out to her husband and family.

Margaret Beavercombe, who I reported a resident of Langley Lodge is in Highland Villa, Langley. My apologies to those who were inconvenienced.

Prizes at the Saturday dance included magnificent sprays of gladiolus and other flowers arranged by Mary Sanderson, awarded as door prizes of Opal Thomas and Olive Myers. Spot prizes went to Olive Myers and Scott Leach.

Doris says she is very angry. She went to a rummage sale yesterday and somebody tried to buy her.

FALL FAIR CONTEST

Winners soon announced

ALDERGROVE - The winners of the coloring contest will be announced in the Aldergrove Star's Aug. 27 edition. As an added surprise, the winners will be contacted for a group picture to be published with their winning posters. The result of the poster contest was not as many youngsters today spend time coloring, which is a shame as this pastime lays the foundation of an appreciation of colors and imagination. The posters that were sent in are well done and well thought out.

An article in the fair book which caught my eye and interest starts on page 7; history of not only our association, but the history of Aldergrove. If anyone needs convincing that Aldergrove is a special place they should take the time to read this article. It proves Aldergrove can hold its head high for having a colorful and successful beginning and still has a lot of the old charm that makes it so special; like the descendants of our first settlers who never have moved away. That in itself says a lot for a place. Sixteen thousand people make their home here and we'd like for each and every one of these Aldergrovians to come and take a look at our fair and see what it's all about. Where else can you enjoy yourself and see so many sights and spend hours upon hours browsing for only $1?

Fair book correction - Division D, entrants. Please note that the book says "Read Rule 5, page 4". That should read, "Read Rule 6, page 4". Sorry about that, folks!

At the fair -

All Seasons Garden Center will be on hand to answer all questions you might have pertaining to your home garden or landscaping. This might be a good chance to find out what does best in our area and when to plant.

Encyclopedias - For the growing family, you might be thinking of buying a set of these to help with the changing school system. Here's your chance to ask at your convenience.

Products you might like to stock up on for the winter will be there in the form of Aloe Vera and Rawleighs. If so, it might be wise to bring your list of needs.

Any questions you might have pertaining to the fair, please direct them to our vice-president, Bill Franklin, at 856-8985, while I'm away on holiday until Aug. 18.

We have a locally owned and operated bus line, that Aldergrovians might not be aware of. Diamond Coach lines boast of having the most modern and most comfortable coaches for day trips to Expo, or any other destination. Or you might want to charter a bus for a group tour. For further information phone 852-3994.

Cuts or taxes? It's really our choice

By TONY CARLSON

Back in the 17th century there worked a liveryman named Thomas Hobson.

Hobson would rent you any horse you chose, as long as it was the next one in line. It was a theme picked up by Henry Ford some 300 years later when he said he'd sell you any color car you wanted as long as it was black.

Now here we sit, staring at our own economic Hobson's choice. We are balanced precariously on the horns of a dilemma called the federal deficit which, even with the tougher recent federal budget, is still nudging $30-billion.

There are still those who claim that this deficit isn't the bulging ogre it's cracked up to be. But the overwhelming majority of experts from all sides of the political spectrum say it must be shrunk.

That being the case, we have basically two choices to slice this shortfall: either raise taxes or cut spending on government programs. Hobson would have relished this prospect, for whichever way the government moves, it is bound to put a burr under someone's saddle blanket.

We have already heard the chorus of boos that greeted the tax hikes in the latest federal budget. But that noise will almost certainly be drowned out by protests over program cutting, especially when Ottawa starts to dip into the well of options suggested by the Nielsen task force.

The weighty report of that task force probed hundreds of federal programs and made suggestions on where cuts could be made through more efficient management or by simply removing a program that is obsolete.

It should be pointed out, however, that while the task force found no great abuses in the social programs it looked into, it didn't study such contentious issues as unemployment insurance and workers' compensation.

The Macdonald royal commission, for example, studied UI and stated that $4-billion could be cut from this program without hurting those who are truly in need.

However, that aside, many people expressed surprise that the task force report labelled those in the business community "program junkies".

Disabled develop potential

By MARILYN GREGORY

SURREY - The B.C. championships for the physically disabled, sponsored by the British Columbia Sport and Fitness Council for the Disabled and hosted by Surrey was held July 24-27 with opening ceremonies at Bear Creek park.

The equestrian events were held Sunday, July 27 at the Cloverdale fairground agriplex. Several members of the Valley Therapeutic Equestrian Association made an admirable showing. The VTEA provides a therapeutic riding program under the direction of registered physiotherapist and with referal from qualified professionals. Through this program disabled children and adults develop their potential. Association works with all disabilities and encourages integration with the non-disabled.

One of the riders who made a good showing was Mark Govier of Coquitlam, a cerebral palsied rider competing in the championships for the second year. Mark had a terrific time in the games last year bringing home the trophy for top equestrian. He is one of the founding riders of the VTEA and has been riding for six years, with jumping being his main interest. Mark has a full time job this summer and with what spare time is left he enjoys playing tennis and lifting weights.

Award winners were Mark Govier, first place class 6 hunt seat, first place stadium jumping, and first place basic seat. Dawn Frasor, third place basic seat; Cathy Simpson, second place equilization; Dawn Frasor, first place basic trail class; Cathy Simpson, second place advance trail class 5; Mark Govier, first place advance trail class 6; Dawn Frasor, first place dressage walk; Cathy Simpson, dressage walk-trot class 5; Chris Henshall, third place dressage walk-trot class 6 & 7; Chris Henshall, reserve best equitation.

Drugs not harmless

HALIFAX - Is Timothy Leary living proof you can't do LSD a few thousand times and not have it affect you?

The former guru of the acid set spoke at Dalhousie University recently in a rambling, often unintelligible discourse on life, authority and his new love, computers.

"Turn on, tune in and re-boot," he told a capacity crowd of students, many of whom had never heard of him.

"He used to experiment with LSD and advocate civil unrest," one co-ed explained to her preppy-looking companion prior to the lecture.

"So what's he doing now?" her friend asked. "Living in Miami making lots of money?"

Actually, it's California.

After stints with hallucinogens, prison, and even stand-up comedy, Leary now peddles computer software with all the zeal he once used to endorse better living through chemicals.

Tanned and fit in a grey business suit and white sneakers, the man who coined the '60s catch phrase Turn on, Tune in, Drop out, spoke of a line of interactive software he is developing through his company, Futique Inc.

At one point, he gave a vague explanation of one program called Mind Mirror, where a person puts thoughts and dreams on computer and analyses them.

"I know what some of you are thinking," he said. "He's toasted his brain on acid."

Expo deficit could reach $600-million

VANCOUVER - The Expo 86 world fair could have a deficit of as much as $600 million, a University of B.C. economics professor says.

Charles Blackorby, who did a study on the economics of the world's fair, told a session at the Canadian Institute of Planners conference that jobs created by Expo in a time of high unemployment are better than nothing, but the money could have been spent on social programs.

"With the sole exception of Seattle (in 1962), every exposition since the Second World War has been a complete financial disaster," he said.

He noted that Expo 67 in Montreal lost $916 million and the New Orleans fair two years ago was $121 million in the red.

Expo chairman Jim Pattison estimates the fair will have a deficit of $300 million to $400 million.

Blackorby said he believes depressed economic times need smaller projects and that cities should not use world's fairs as an impetus to improve public works such as roads and transit.

But speakers from Seattle, New Orleans, Spokane, and Montreal had different views.

"I still believe a fair can be a shot in the arm for a community," said Terry Clegg of Spokane's planning and zoning department. "A straight balance sheet is not the way to measure the success of a fair."

New Orleans planner Ralph Thayer said most cities have used fairs to give themselves a boost. "Each city that has taken on a fair has done so out of a feeling of inferiority, the need to be recognized."

He said his city's fair, which was run by a private company and went bankrupt, was built in an old warehouse district that became a ghost town again after the fair.

He also said the fair took tourist spending away from New Orleans' French Quarter and it hasn't all returned.

By contrast, he added, Expo 86 is successful.
