Dear Sheila:

We are having continued problems with the spacing left on publications sent out from the Provincial that are to be addressed to our membership using our addressing system.

It is necessary to leave space on the last page of each publication of approximately the bottom third of the page. Could you pass this information along to anyone producing material being sent out from the Provincial.

The last publication we received with a small space left in the middle of the front page was difficult for us to address and we received numerous complaints from people that could not make out their names. Our arrangement is to mail out information by department and someone there delivers each issue to our members there.

Thanks for your help in correcting this problem.

Faternally,

Carole Cameron
