Complete Business and General Directory of the City of Vancouver, B. C.

VICTORIA, R. T. WILLIAMS, PUBLISHER.

PREFACE.

Considering the expense and difficulties of publishing a separate Directory of this city every effort has been made that was possible, to insure accuracy, and being the first work of the kind undertaken in Vancouver, the indulgence of business people generally is requested, with the assurance that the next issue will no doubt be an improvement on this one. The price is reasonable, and we trust that it will be acceptable to the citizens generally.

BROAD STREET, VICTORIA, 1st March, 1888.

Entered according to Act of Parliament of Canada in the year one thousand eight hundred and eighty-eight, by R. T. WILLIAMS, in the office of the Minister of Agriculture at Ottawa.

VANCOUVER, B. C.

SITUATED on as extensive and wonderfully beautiful site for a large city, as it is possible for one to conceive. The contour of the land combined with the fact that the soil is of a light sandy nature, naturally affords excellent drainage, which is one of the many important advantages this growing place possesses. The general view from any stand point is magnificent, and presents to the eye a varied and beautiful sight. The more elevated portions overlook the extensive land locked harbor to the eastward, while to the westward is seen the roadstead of English Bay stretching far out towards the Gulf of Georgia. The scenery is grand in every particular and is sure to please the lover of mountain scenery or one seeking the many other varied and beautiful scenes that are in succession, as it were, in grand panoramic style placed before the delighted beholder. The peninsula portion or Coal Harbor frontage is that on which the greater part of this rapidly growing city is at present built, consisting of a very large area almost divided by an extensive Arm of the sea stretching inland from English Bay for a distance of nearly two miles. This placid water named "False Creek" is extensively used by mill owners for anchoring booms of logs in its secure land locked waters and for manufacturing and saw mill sites and the extensive works of the C. P. R. car shops and round houses. It is spanned by two bridges, one abutting on Westminster avenue while the other is the C. P. R. railway bridge connecting Vancouver proper with English Bay. The general progress of this city has been a surprise to many and her growth in the future, if it is to be judged by that of the past will be marvelous.

As early as 1882 the issue of the B. C. Directory for that year predicted to a great extent the future progress that Burrard Inlet would make and at this juncture the description then published is very applicable and will bear repeating.

From Williams' B. C. Directory 1882-3.

"Burrard Inlet, the principal harbor of the mainland of British Columbia, is situated some thirteen miles north of the entrance of Fraser river, having for land marks, Point Grey on the south and Point Atkinson on the north, on which latter a revolving light is placed. The Inlet is the chief centre of the great lumber interests of the New Westminster district. Of the different varieties of wood, which are converted into lumber here, we may mention the two which make up the greater proportion, viz.: Douglas Fir (abies douglassi) and Cedar (thuja gigantea). The former, which has gained a world-wide fame, for its great strength and durability under all tests, is the staple article of the lumber trade on this coast, and is fortunately very abundant. This tree grows from one hundred to three hundred feet high, and reaches a diameter of eight feet or more. The principal ports of shipment are Australia, South America, China, Japan, Sandwich Islands and South Africa. Besides sawn lumber, spars form no inconsiderable part of the trade of this port. Until within the last few years no systematic attempt has been made to utilize, as a profitable industry, the vast number of fish found in these waters. Recently, however, manufacturies are being established for procuring the oil from herrings, oolachans and other fish which during the winter and spring months, give employment to quite a number of white men and Indians. But this industry is only in its infancy; and as salmon, halibut, cod, whiting, smelt and tom cod are to be found here in no inconsiderable numbers, with the increasing encouragement for new enterprises which must necessarily follow with increased population, the export of fish, fish oil and fish guano, will doubtless take a prominent part in the future trade of this port. Although Burrard Inlet has for years played no second part as an industrial portion of British Columbia, it has within the last year, received a new impetus, from the fact that the terminus of the Canadian Pacific Railway has been located here. The Inlet is twenty miles long from its mouth to the head of the North Arm, and twelve miles to the head of the South Arm; with a width, varying from one hundred and fifty yards to two and a half miles, affording safe anchorage, over a greater part of this area, for the largest ships afloat. Objection has been made to Burrard Inlet as a harbor of easy access, from the fact that the tide near its entrance marks as high as eight knots an hour, but this rate is only attained at its strongest ebb, and it is not an unusual thing for ships to come to anchor inside, aided by sail alone. The scenery of Burrard Inlet is very fine, and a trip up the harbor, especially if taken at the time of year (June) at which our observations were made, is one of varied interest. A range of mountains, their sides for the greater part of their elevation densely covered with the different varieties of forest trees peculiar to this northwest coast, skirts the northern shore throughout. Towering above the surrounding heights of this range are the twin peaks whose snow covered summits casting their shadows almost over Moodyville, form a beautiful back ground to that little hive of industry. On the south the country is comparatively level, and from the waters edge, as far back as the eye can reach, stands the almost inpenetrable forest, the ever changing colors of foliage, as the mountain breeze tosses it in and out of the sunlight, presenting a picture of rare sylvan beauty. On coming through the narrow passage at its entrance, the harbor stretches to a width of two and a half miles. To our right is Coal Harbor with the town of *Granville on its eastern boundary, centrally situated, containing a number of general stores, hotels and churches, and occupying a level and beautiful spot connected by a good road with New Westminster. A quarter of a mile further on is the establishment of the Hastings Saw Mill Company, with its incessant rattle of machinery and clouds of escaping steam. Opposite, on the northern bank, stands the white cottages and simple church of the Indian (Catholic) Mission. Steaming on we pass, on the same side, the town of Moodyville, where again the buzz of saws, the hum of innumerable drums and pulleys, and the noise of shifting lumber as it sweeps down the inclines through the ports of the different ships, greets our ears. Three miles from *Granville, nestling among the green foliage which skirts the southern bank, is the village of Hastings, from which point a morning and evening line of stages carries the traveller across the narrow peninsula to New Westminster, nine miles distant. Passing Hastings, we almost immediately enter the second narrows, and four miles further on, we reach the North Arm of the Inlet, a stretch of water twelve miles long and from a quarter of a mile to two miles wide. Along the shores of the North Arm few signs of civilization are to be met with, and with the exception of one or two settlers near its mouth, this portion of the Inlet remains in its almost primitive wildness. On the 12th of June, 1792, Capt. George Vancouver on a voyage of discovery round the world, anchored his two ships—the British sloop of war, "Discovery," and armed tender, "Chatham"—in Birch bay and proceeded in open boats to explore the line of coast and waters to the north. Rounding Point Grey he sailed up the Inlet to within half a league of its head, where, anchoring his boats for the night, he took possession in the name of the British Government, calling it after Sir Harry Burrard of the navy. A new state of things is about to be inaugurated; and taking into consideration the fact, that a great city must necessarily mark the western resting place of the Canadian Pacific Railway, and the amount of trade and commerce which such a place will eventually create, and as Burrard Inlet, with all its natural advantages, its wealth of lumber and with an inexhaustable store of coal and iron within a few hours sail, has been chosen for this location, it may not be drawing too much on the imagination to picture its shores peopled with an eager and active population. Two miles from the mouth of the North Arm, we reach Port Moody, and looking back, an almost unbroken line of sight, reaches to the mouth of the harbor ten miles away."

*Since named Vancouver.

That which was written in 1882 has been realized to a great extent and is only a question of a very short time when the whole shore line of Burrard Inlet will be peopled with a vast population as before predicted and Vancouver will extend so that Hastings (George Black's) will be absorbed in the city proper just as the Hastings mill site has at the present time. The writer visited Vancouver when it was known as Granville and his visits have been yearly or more frequent since. Any one who has watched the progress of this prosperous port of Canada on the Pacific cannot fail to be impressed with her grand situation and every surrounding that help to make a great city. The time will come in a very few years when the farmers on the vast agricultural lands of the great prairie section will find an outlet in Vancouver. This fact added to a quarter of a million acres of Delta and other excellent lands at her very door, places her in a most enviable position amongst the cities of this great North West.

GENERAL PROGRESS.

There has been wonderful progress made throughout the city, as the large expenditure will prove. It has been estimated that during the past twelve months (1887) about $1,500,000 was expended in buildings, which is a most gratifying showing. The departure and arrival of passengers and the almost constant noise of the moving trains, both local and eastern, gives a busy appearance to Vancouver, leaving twice a day for New Westminster, via Port Moody. The distance by this route is about 25 miles, although in a direct line New Westminster is only about 10 miles distant. Under the following headings care has been used to do ample justice in describing the many industries and general points of interest in and about the city.

The City was incorporated April 6th, 1886, and was fast becoming a place of great importance when the unfortunate and disastrous fire occurred in the following June, devastating the entire city, leaving only three houses remaining, but since then by the enterprise and business energy of the citizens it has progressed with extraordinary rapidity, until to-day, within twenty months of its destruction, there now exists a city with an estimated population of 6,000 with over 1,000 houses, 40 miles of planked roads and sidewalks, a number of extensive brick warehouses (wholesale and retail) and offices, the electric light and gas works, a city hall, a very effective system of drainage, its water works under construction, a well organized and equipped fire and hook ladder brigade, two iron foundries, six saw mills all doing a lucrative business, soap works, lime kiln, three chartered banks and one private bank, a large number of well-appointed hotels, several incorporated societies, five churches, including Episcopalian, Catholic, Presbyterian, Methodist and Baptist, a public school, several influential private schools, a public reading room and library, a well-appointed opera house, and amidst all this extraordinary commercial progress the citizens have found means and time to enjoy their leisure moments in the formation of rowing, cricket, football, chess and amateur dramatic clubs, all being largely supported, and a recreation ground. The corporation is now laying out an extensive park where one can enjoy the delightful climate and picturesque surrounding scenery. A site on Cambie street for the Jubilee Hospital has been purchased by the Council and shortly will be commenced a handsome structure worthy of the newly created city, at a cost of $25,000.

The medical officer of the Board of Health, Dr. J. M. Lefevre, in his fiscal report for the year 1887, shows conclusively that the climate of Vancouver is salubrious.

Amongst the principal brick buildings completed may be mentioned the Post Office Block on Hastings street, where the business of the post office is conducted, and also the real estate agency of Messrs. Ross & Ceperley; the Wilson Block on Cordova street, occupied by several commercial firms, the Tatlow Block, Mr. T. Dunns' store, Cordova street, the Innes Block, Hastings street, the Lady Stephen's Block, the London House on Cordova street, and Byrnes Block on Water street, the Bank buildings on Hastings St., the C. P. R. Hotel on Granville street, the Hamilton & Wulffsohn block occupied by the private banking firm of Bewicke & Wulffsohn, amounting in all to about 41, and others in course of erection. The following description of the various manufactories and incorporate societies with the numerous names in the directory—which is larger than that published in 1871, which embraced the entire province—will show more adequately the progress Vancouver has made since the calamity of 1886:

MAYOR AND COUNCIL.

Mayor—David Oppenheimer. Councillors—(ward one) Sam Brighouse, John M. Lefever, (ward two) John Dougall. Joseph Humphries, (ward three) Henry Bell-Irving, Robert Clark, (ward four) Richard H. Alexander, Joseph Mannion, (ward five) Isaac Oppenheimer, Robert Couth. City Clerk, Thos. F. McGuigan; Treasurer and Assessor, G. F. Baldwin; Auditor, John Devine; Engineer, J. P. Lawson; Coroner, Dr. McGuigan; Police Magistrate and City Solicitor, T. T. Black. Offices in City Hall, Powell Street.

The following loans have been contracted by the Council: $150,000 borrowed at 6 per cent., floated at par for street improvements, hospital, fire department and sewerage; $20,000 at 6 per cent. floated at par for constructing a driving park seven or eight miles round the Inlet. To the present time $60,000 have been ex expended in streets and roads (40 miles of plankling), $10,000 in grading and gravelling, $25,000 in sewerage, $15,000 for the fire department, including building, engines, etc., and $5,000 for the City Hall.

The Council have voted $25,000 as a bonus for the erection of smelting works. Several applications are now being considered. The Council have also exempted from taxation for the period of thirty years the extensive works of the C. P. R., and for a period of ten years the Vancouver City Iron Works.

THE CITY'S ASSESSMENT.—The following information is taken from the report submitted to the Council February 6th, 1888, by the Assessment Commissioner, Mr. George F. Baldwin: Real property, $3,471,245; personal property, $204,660; total, $3,675,905. An increase of nearly $1,000,000 over last year. The population, as near as can be ascertained, is 6,085.

VANCOUVER WATER WORKS.---First survey December, 1885. Incorporated April, 1886. This company have just commenced the construction of the water works and the contract is given to Messrs. Keefer & McGillivray. Directors: Hon. J. W. Trutch, C. M G., Thos. Earle, John Irving, R. P. Rithet, D. M. Eberts; secretary-treasurer, J. W. McFarland; solicitor, D. M. Eberts, Esq.; chief engineer, G. A. Keefer, M. I. C. E.; resident engineer, H. B. Smith, C. E. Offices Alexander street, Vancouver. Capital stock $250,000. Water is being taken from Capilano river, 6¼ miles north of the first narrows of Burrard Inlet. At this point a dam 360 feet long and 15 feet above bed of river will be constructed, forming a magnificent reservoir. From the dam the water will be conveyed a distance of 2½ miles by a 22-inch steel rivetted main. This 22-inch pipe will connect with a 16-inch steel rivetted main which will carry the water to the first Narrows. The crossing of the Narrows will be effected by means of Ward's flexible cast iron pipes; two parallel rows twelve inches in diameter and 1½ inches thick will be laid on the bottom of the Inlet. A 16-inch steel-rivetted main will connect on the south side of the Narrows, which will carry the water across the Government Reserve and along the centre of Georgia street to Granville street, which will be the central point of distribution. The distributive system has been designed by Thos C. Keefer, C. E. C. M. G., the highest authority on waterworks in Canada and the United States, thus insuring a perfect fire and water service throughout the whole city, It is contemplated to lay, as a commencement, 8½ miles of distribution, and as many hydrants as may be desired. The elevation of the reservoir on Capilano river will be 417½ feet above high-water mark of Burrard Inlet. The average level of the city is 100 feet above high-water mark, the extreme height south of False creek being 200 feet. The south mains will be capable of discharging three and-a-half millions of gallons daily in the centre of the city. It will thus be seen that a fire service unequalled anywhere in Canada or the United States will be provided. The water is of unexceptionable quality, being clear, cold and entirely free from any animal, vegetable or mineral impurities. The supply is unfailing, the river discharging, at lowest known water, 440,000,000 gallons daily. This magnificent scheme for the water supply of the Terminal City was originated by G. A. Keefer, M. I. C. E., and under his skillful supervision, assisted by Mr. H. B. Smith, C. E., the whole of the details of this great engineering undertaking have been successfully arranged. It is expected that water will he distributed throughout the city by the middle of June, 1888.

SEWERAGE.—The system of sewerage adopted in Vancouver is that generally known as the "Separate System," i. e., the sewers are constructed for the purpose of carrying the fluid and feculent waters from dwellings, and are not intended to convey surface or sub-soil waters, which can be more easily and cheaply disposed of by other means. In designing the work the future was not forgotten, but a thorough and comprehensive system for the whole city was adopted, of which the sewers now laid will, without alteration, ultimately become a part. The outlet and manholes are permanent works built in concrete. The sewers are of timber which will when necessary be replaced with vitrified pipe. The timber will last in all probability ten years, perhaps much longer. From the manner in which they have been constructed and laid, the sewers are perfectly water tight, while as regards the flow in them the principle of the egg-shaped sewer has been acted upon. Provision has also been made for automatically flushing them from end to end daily or oftener if necessary. The sewage is finally discharged into Burrard Inlet through a cast iron pipe, 360 feet long, at a point beneath the surface, and about 50 feet beyond extreme low water mark. The works were designed by Mr. E. Mohun, M. Con. Soc. C. E., under whose supervision they have been executed.

In connection with this hall it is proposed to have a library with the various papers for the use of members, and towards which Mr. David Oppenheimer has given a handsome gift of books. SAW AND PLANING MILLS.

ROYAL CITY PLANING MILLS CO., VANCOUVER—A branch of the firm of the same name in New Westminster, situated on False creek, at south end of Carrall street. Mill building 310x66, boiler room 24x40, engine room 20x80, blacksmith shop 20x24. Machinery: One double rotary gang, saws 56 diam., one resawer, three trimmers, two planers, one shingle saw and jointer, one lath saw. Capacity, 40,000 feet lumber per day, 30,000 shingles, 10,000 laths; one engine, 50-horsepower, one engine 80-horsepower, four boilers, one dry kiln 24x36. One sash and door factory containing 19 machines, building 210x50; one warehouse 36x100; one boarding house 24x60. This company manufacture all kinds of building material and house furnishings, and employ 100 men. They contemplate adding more machinery in the spring to both sawmill and factory; a blower to carry the shavings from the planers to the burner being about the first to be put in.

COMMERCIAL MILLS, SASH AND DOOR FACTORY.—These mills have been in operation since 1886, and are owned by James Leamy and George F. Kyle, both gentlemen being well and favorably known throughout British Columbia, having resided in the Province for some years. The mills are situated on the south shore of False Creek, and the advantages for booming out logs at almost all stages of the tide, are unequalled by any mill on the coast. Besides carrying on a general sawing business and manufacturing all kinds of building material, this firm with its usual enterprise has started to erect a sash, door and blind factory on the opposite side of the creek and directly across the stream from the mill, the land having lately been purchased from the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, and at the present time all the foundations for factory, wharf and boiler house have been completed, besides a switch which runs from the main line of the C. P. R. directly in front of their building. This will enable them to load directly from the saws and machinery on to the cars, saving time, money and labor. The Commercial mill has during the short time it has been in operation obtained a far greater share of public patronage than that which usually falls to the lot of new companies, when brought into competion with those who have been longer established. This firm every week ship per rail to nearly all parts of the Northwest Territories and to the interior of British Columbia, all kinds of building material, bridge timber, shingles and doors. In connection with their mills, the enterprising members of this firm built and launched lately a steamer some 80 feet long which does all the towing of logs and scows necessary for their business. The tug "Mamie" is under the charge of Capt. E. E. Bridgeman,

The LELAND HOUSE 519-21-22-23-24 Hastings Street, Corner of Granville Street, Vancouver, B. C.

The "LELAND" is only three minutes walk from the Railway and Steamboat Depots. Telephone connection with the entire City and New Westminster. The interior appointments of the Hotel are second to none in the Province, and guests can rely on receiving every accommodation, courtesy and attention.

PROUT & INSLEY, Proprietors.

This fine Hotel consists of two large structures—one on each side of the street. One (the lower engraving) is a magnificently finished fire-proof block, and is fitted up specially for Travellers, Tourists, etc.

who has had considerable experience in the inland waters of British Columbia. The Commercial mills own some fine timber claims on the North Coast, from which point all their logs are cut and towed to the mills. The mills are supplied with all the latest and most modern improvements, as well as labor-saving machinery.

BRUNETTE SAW MILLS—Of New Westminster, have a branch office on Westminster avenue, carrying a full stock of all building materials manufactured at their mills. P. L. Gow, manager.

THE HASTINGS SAW MILL CO.—Mr. R. H. Alexander, manager. This company's chief business is mostly foreign shipping, principally to America, China and Australia. The outturn is above fifteen million feet annually, having a daily capacity of 75,000 feet. The mill gives employment to about 180 men, in addition to their logging camps—one in English Bay and two on Thurlow Island, about 130 miles distant. The machinery consists of one circular double 60-inch saw, one pony gang with 44-inch gate, lath and picket mill, one edger and two planers, &c., &c.

MOODYVILLE SAW MILL—Is situated at Moodyville and is the most extensive north of Puget Sound. New machinery is being erected which will increase the output over 25 per cent during the next year. In connection with the mill is an hotel, store, reading room and library and capacious dwellings for the employees. Machinery: One engine 500-horse power, 11 boilers, and lighted by ten electric (Brush) 20,000 candle-power and driven by water-power, large double circular saw, re-sawing, edging, lath, picket, planers, &c., &c. Employ 100 men, and about 100 employed at the logging camps and 30 'longshoremen engaged in loading and unloading. The company has also a yard and wharf at Vancouver, on Water street, under the superintendence of M. Matheson. The mill is owned by Welch & Co., of San Francisco, and Welch, Rithet & Co. are their agents in Victoria, while Mr. B. Springer makes a most efficient manager at Moodyville.

VANCOUVER SAW AND PLANING MILLS.—Situated on False Creek at the foot of Granville street. Present building 40x100 feet with all the latest improvements in machinery for turning out rough and dressed lumber, mouldings, etc. Employ about thirty hands and shortly propose increasing the works and erecting more extensive boilers and machinery. Although only started in June, the increase of business necessitates this extension. McKay & Sweetman, props.

SHINGLE MILL.—G. F. Slater, manager. Situated on False creek. Capacity 35,000 shingles daily, and is constantly increasing and adding new machinery.

The business between the Sound and Vancouver has, within the past twelve months, increased over 50 per cent.

PACIFIC STEAM SHIP CO.'S STEAMERS—Arrive and depart weekly between Vancouver and San Francisco. The value of goods passing the Custom House by this route has doubled itself. The value of the United States goods in transit for one trip of the Mexico in June last amounted to $70,576.10.

At present the steamer Parthia, 2,300 tons net register, the Abyssinia, 2,500 tons, the Port Victor, 2,500 tons, and the Port Augusta, 2,500 tons, are the only vessels on this newly established route. As the Australian trade is being developed a very large business is anticipated. The Parthia on her last outward trip (Nov. 10th) had a full cargo. The passenger traffic has been so great that in each trip both inwards and outwards accommodation was with difficulty found, and in one instance passengers were refused. The company are building three large steamers, 4,000 tonnage each, which when completed will be placed on this route. They will be fitted up with all the most modern improvements. Capt.
