LEGISLATION

The Civil Service Superannuation Act Amendment Act, 1966, makes provision for co-ordination with the Canada Pension Plan and the Federal Old Age Security programme and improved the general level of benefits in all categories. Among the more important changes are the following:—

(a) Contributions.—Employee and employer contributions required under the Civil Service Superannuation Act were reduced by approximately the amount required to be paid under the Canada Pension Plan. Accordingly, from January 1, 1966, the total contributions by both employer and employee to the Civil Service Superannuation Fund and the Canada Pension Plan will be approximately equal to the total contributions formerly made to the Civil Service Superannuation Fund alone.

(b) Benefits.—The benefits accruing from service and contributions under the money purchase option from the Civil Service Superannuation Fund were reduced to compensate for the reduction in contributions. However, the gain in benefits from the Canada Pension Plan in every case more than offsets this reduction. As a result, every employee will receive an increase in his total benefits when Canada Pension Plan benefits are added to the benefits available from the Civil Service Superannuation Fund.

Under the 2-per-cent formula the co-ordination is in the form of a recalcaluation of the benefit when the employee becomes entitled to receive benefits under the Canadian Pension Plan. The recalculation results in a reduction in the benefit from the Civil Service Superannuation Fund in the amount of 1 per cent multiplied by his years of service after 1958 multiplied by his average annual salary (not exceeding $5,000). Accordingly, the maximum reduction resulting from the recalculation would be $50 per year after 1958, and the gain resulting from the Canada Pension Plan and amendments to the Old Age Security Act more than offset these reductions.

(c) Pensioner Bonuses.—The amendments provide for a supplementary allowance based on years of service for every employee who had completed more than 10 years of pensionable service prior to retirement. These bonuses became effective May 1, 1966, and are paid out of the Consolidated Revenue Fund.

(d) Death and Disability Benefits.—Extension of the 2-per-cent formula. The benefits from the 2-per-cent formula were extended to cover cases of death and disability after at least 10 years of service under both Part I and Part II. They were also extended on an optional basis to employees retiring after age 55 with 35 years of service.

(e) Portability.—The portability provisions were improved by adding a widow's benefit during the deferred period and increasing the permissible absence from 3 months to 15 months where employees transfer to approved employers having reciprocal arrangements.

(f) Contributory Salary.—The ceiling on contributory salary was raised to $15,000 per annum.

(g) Optional Plans.—The optional plans of payment were modified to conform with the changes in eligible age and amount of benefit under the Old Age Security Act.

(h) Minimum Allowance.—The minimum allowance was increased to $60 per month for a single person and $120 per month for a married person, reducing by 50 per cent when Old Age Security benefits start.

(i) Refund Guarantee. — An over-all refund guarantee was introduced to ensure that the total benefit payments to or on behalf of every employee will never be less than his accumulated contributions in the Fund, provided that on retirement he does not select a single life plan of payment.

W. H. FORREST,
Superannuation Commissioner.
