LEGISLATION

The Civil Service Superannuation Act was amended during the 1973 Spring Session of the Legislative Assembly. Among the more important changes are the following:

(1) Amending the title of the statute to Public Service Superannuation Act.

(2) For the purposes of calculating a contributor's allowance upon retirement using the 2 per cent of highest average salary per year of service formula, changing the averaging period from seven years to five years.

(3) Changing the rate of employee contributions to 6 per cent of salary (4½ per cent of salary on which Canada Pension Plan contributions are made) for all years of service and eliminating contribution deficiency adjustments on early retirement.

(4) Where an employee's service exceeds 35 years, providing for continuation of contributions to retirement and for refund of contributions made during service prior to the last 35 years, with interest at 6 per cent per annum.

(5) Authorizing the Minister of Finance to invest also in the capital stock of a corporation.

(6) Counting as contributory service a period in which an employee is receiving a monthly income benefit under an approved group disability salary continuance plan.

(7) Providing pro rata reciprocal portability of contributions and service with other British Columbia public pension plans where the service in one plan commences not more than three years after the service in the other plan terminated.

(8) Where a contributor retires before qualifying for an unreduced allowance, changing the basis of the reduction from an actuarial equivalent factor to a 5 per cent per annum factor.

(9) For Class D contributors, removing the plan of allowance providing automatically one-half of the allowance to the widow upon the death after retirement and providing for choice of plan.

(10) In the event of the contributor's death in service, providing for widowers on the same basis as widows and providing for continuance of the spouse's allowance in the event of remarriage.

(11) Providing for refund of voluntary contributions upon retirement at the option of the contributor.

(12) Providing, effective May 1, 1973, for payment to persons in receipt of an allowance prior to April 1, 1972, of a supplementary allowance calculated by applying to the lifetime portion of the allowance the following percentage:

Allowance Granted	Percentage Increase
