TO OUR FRIENDS IN THE COMMUNITY:

One way in which you, the citizens of this province, have expressed your continuing confidence in the work of The University of British Columbia is reflected in your generous support of a wide range of campus activities through financial gifts and gifts-in-kind.

Over the years, these gifts have enabled us to provide financial assistance to deserving students, aid in the construction of new buildings, purchase new equipment and bolster areas of outstanding teaching and research. Our new Museum of Anthropology has been enriched by gifts of artifacts and other material from interested citizens and our library collection expanded through the generosity of book collectors who wished their personal libraries placed at the disposal of a wider audience.

I know that I speak for the entire University community when I say that UBC is deeply grateful for these tangible additions to its resources.

For its part, the University has done everything in its power to make its facilities available to the public in general. Its library serves a national clientele; its academic, cultural and sporting activities are freely available to the public at low cost or at no charge; and, when not required for academic purposes, the University strives to make its facilities available for a wide variety of purposes, such as conferences, seminars, workshops, etc.

In giving to the University, donors have the satisfaction of knowing that they are contributing to the creation of one of Canada's leading centres of excellence.

I invite you to maintain contact with the University by directing your enquiries to the Resources Office, The University of British Columbia, #207 - 6328 Memorial Road, Vancouver, B.C., V6T 1W5. Telephone [604]228-3917.

Yours sincerely,

Douglas T. Kenny,
President

Introduction

The University owes much of its stature to private gifts. Research, teaching projects, scholarships and bursaries have been supported by individual benefactors, alumni, corporations, students, foundations and associations. Many of the major buildings, as well as a wide variety of other projects, serve as testimony to the generosity of those who helped to build UBC.

Gifts have been made anonymously, directly, in memory of relatives, in honour of friends and by bequest. Many alumni and other donors contribute annually. During the year benefactors donated $9,559,470.

The University is deeply grateful to those who have given such generous support and also thanks the many volunteers who have helped generate gifts.

This booklet does not include the names of 7,648 donors to the Alumni Fund. Provincial and Federal grants are recorded in other publications.

The University and You

The University is deeply conscious of the debt of gratitude it owes its many donors and is anxious to express that gratitude by being of service to you.

Its many superb facilities are open to the general public for conferences, social functions, workshops, and seminars. They can cater for small groups or for larger ones of up to 1,000 persons and are backed by food, accommodation and programming services.

Our Aquatic Center is available for use by the public as is the Museum of Anthropology, whilst a visit to one of our renowned gardens should be considered a must.

Throughout the year music recitals, stage plays, film festivals, displays of dancing and exhibitions of art are an ongoing feature of campus life to which you are cordially invited.

Results of research conducted at the University are published and are freely available should you wish to know of them.

If you do not already receive copies of UBC Reports or the Alumni Chronicle, we would be delighted to place your name on our mailing lists.

The magnificent site, the beauty of the campus and the varied activities of its community make UBC an outstanding place to be, and we most heartedly extend an invitation to you to visit us. We will be happy to guide you or a friend, or even arrange a tour.

Wills and Bequests

The University is grateful for the help, understanding and financial support of its many friends over the past years. Some have indicated that support by making direct gifts to the University, others by naming the University as beneficiary in their wills.

During the year 1979-1980, the sum of $1,259,781.92 was received from 35 such bequests.

Our Wills and Bequests Committee was formed to inspire confidence in and stimulate the interest of benefactors, potential benefactors and of persons concerned with the drawing up of wills, and to acquaint them with University needs and forms of support desired.

Gifts, so made, may be designated to an area of particular interest or may be undesignated for use at the discretion of the University.

Various reasons have been given by donors for considering UBC in their estate planning; the gift is consistent with a lifelong interest in the University or a particular field; experiences as a young person with limited finances struggling to better himself; the desire to memorialize the name of a loved one; or simply that UBC is an institution worthy of support.

The University will welcome the opportunity of acquainting its many friends and their estate planners with the satisfaction to be had in making provision for The University of British Columbia through their Estate Planning Program.

Gifts-in-Kind

Each year, UBC's library, works of art and museum collections are expanded and enhanced as a result of gifts-in-kind. These generous gifts from individual friends of the University, special-interest groups, governments and corporations fill gaps in existing collections or form the nucleus of new collections of material which are used by students and faculty members for teaching and research. Gifts-in-kind also benefit the public generally since most are on display in museum and art collections or are available through the UBC library system. The University also holds title to property which has been received as bequests in wills or which has been transferred to the University during an individual's lifetime. The University welcomes enquiries from friends on matters related to property.

Outstanding Student Support

This past fiscal year students at UBC contributed $495,581 to the capital development of the University: $108,939 to the Aquatic Centre, $302,010 to the Student Union Building and $84,632 to the Leon and Thea Koerner Graduate Centre.

Since 1928, students have funded or helped fund 12 major campus buildings for more than $6.6 million. This outstanding support is believed to be unequalled by the students of any other North American university.

In addition, students have worked for and donated to six special building campaigns in the past few years. Each year the graduating class supports various campus activities. The class of 1980 donated $2,500 to the President's Committee on the Concerns of the Handicapped - a wheelchair ramp at Brock Hall, $2,500 to the Law Students' Legal Advice Program - summer clinics for legal assistance, and $1,500 to the University Day Care Council -basic equipment for Children's Recreation Centre.

The UBC Memorial Fund

The University has established a Memorial Scholarship and Bursary Endowment Fund which it is hoped will provide a significant source of student support in future years.

The purpose of the fund is to encourage memorial donations, and to cater for donations that in themselves would not provide sufficient investment income to ensure a meaningful award.

The fund is designed to serve persons willing to leave small bequests to UBC, to serve lifetime donors and to serve corporations wishing to make gifts in memoriam.

A brochure has been produced listing the persons in whose name contributions have been received, and these brochures will be given to each student receiving an award from the fund.

From time to time there have been and will continue to be organized in memoriam funds of sufficient amount to provide meaningful awards over a long period.

A special feature of the Memorial Scholarship and Bursary Fund is the help it will give to individuals and small groups of donors who are not in a position to make major gifts at the time of death of a friend or relative but who may hope to make further lifetime gifts and/or to include an appropriate provision in their wills. By means of this new fund the name of a deceased person will be memorialized regularly from the time the original gift is made.

Donors interested in making in memoriam gifts for scholarships and bursaries, or considering other forms of student support, are asked to write or call:
