THEM ALL IN CANADA

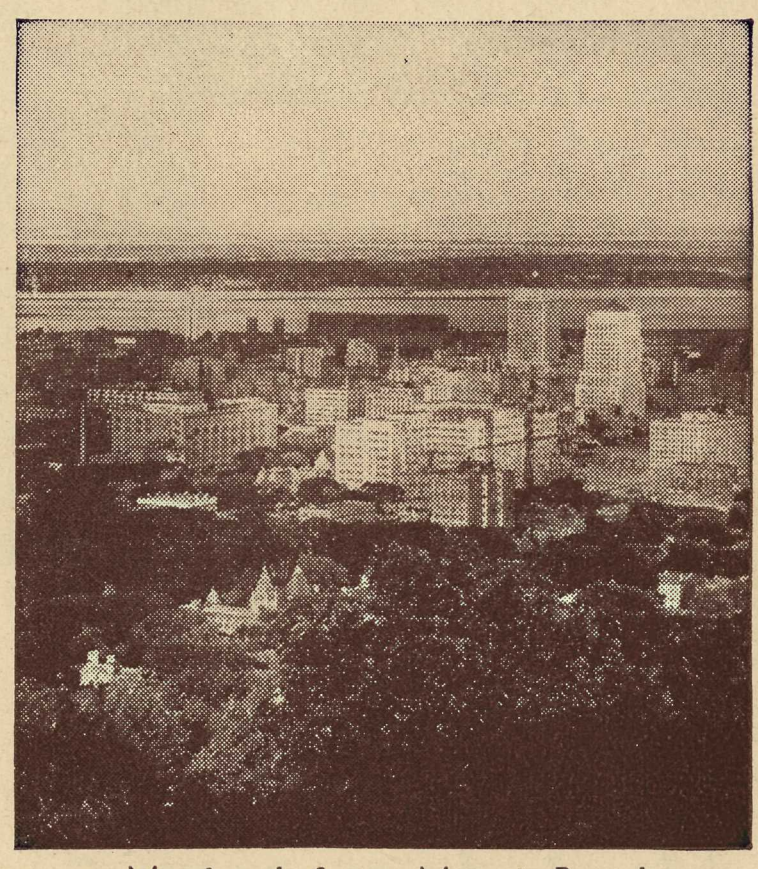
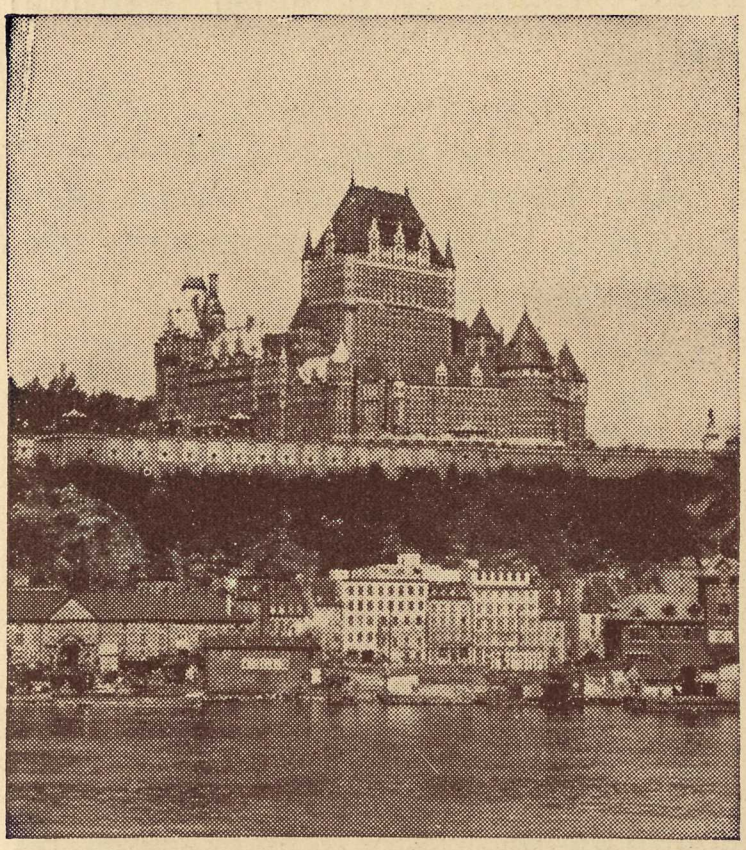
Montreal



Montreal from Mount Royal

● If you've never been to Montreal you haven't discovered the Paris of America! Where French and English are spoken side by side. So cosmopolitan in atmosphere, so scenically thrilling.

● The home of McGill University, historic landmarks and other fascinating points of interest.



Quebec — Ancient and Modern

Quebec

● So quaint, so old world, so French and hospitable is Quebec that it will charm you indefinitely! Curious old rambling streets, two-wheeled caleches, intriguing little shops filled with habitant handicraft. Of course you'll stay at the Chateau Frontenac, looking down on the broad St. Lawrence Seaway, dominating the scene like an ancient Norman castle.

St. Anne de Beaupré

● Just a short distance from Quebec is this world-famous shrine of healing where piles of crutches and gifts tell a dramatic story of the thousands who have sought cures. One of the highlights of your visit to Quebec is this pilgrimage made by thousands each year . . . a living monument to the deep religious faith of old Quebec.

Itineraries Made to Order

● The map shows the many routes available via Canadian Pacific, whether one's destination be in Eastern Canada, the Canadian Rockies or beyond to the North Pacific Coast of California and the Golden Gate Exposition. Include at least one or more days' stopover at the popular Canadian Pacific hotels or rustic lodges . . . hostelries of beauty and efficiency, noted for their comfort, service and cuisine at moderate rates.

Canadian Pacific trans-Atlantic and trans-Pacific fleets are led by the stately EMPRESS liners, including the EMPRESS OF BRITAIN—which speeds across the Atlantic in only five days—and the Empress of Japan, the largest and fastest liner on the Pacific. Also ask about Canadian Pacific cruises, New York-Quebec-Montreal and return, and to other ports. Independent round-the-world tours are available at surprisingly low cost.

Canadian Pacific will be glad to prepare your itinerary to any point in Canada or throughout the world. For further information and travel assistance, call or write to your nearest Canadian Pacific representative at the address shown on the opposite page.
