

I read in your issue of January 25, a letter entitled "Equal Treatment", by Mr. J. Salvage of Eburne B.C. He concluded his letter by saying thus:

"If this treatment (i.e. The B.C. Coast Vegetable marketing Board's treatment to the oriental) is not good enough for them it would seem that the sooner we load them all altogether and ship them back to their own country the better it would be for everyone else."

The writer by stating the aforementioned, has contradicted his title "Equal Treatment".

Mr. Salvage should understand that international trade still persists. Every nation is profited more or less by international commerce, because one nation may have commodities that other countries may lack. Economic protectionism practised with <sup>due</sup> caution by nations, <sup>may be doubtless be</sup> is sometimes desirable, but international isolationism is forever preposterous. <sup>eternally condemnes</sup>

Let us suppose that every country on earth, were <sup>carried</sup> carrying out Mr. Salvage's suggestion, <sup>then</sup> the world foreigners in all <sup>countries</sup> would certainly <sup>get</sup> enjoy their "bon voyage". <sup>conge</sup>

In conclusion, Mr. Salvage's thinking is indeed like that of a tortoise living in a well; looking up one day, <sup>comparably to</sup> he said, "How small is the sky!"

to the utter detriment of international trade & goodwill among nations
