LAND OF EVANGELINE

GRAND PRÉ—"The Great Meadow"—was the birthplace of the late Sir Robert Borden, former Canadian Prime Minister, and in the graveyard of the old Covenanter Church lie many distinguished members of his family. Proceeding down the hillside and under a Norman arch, you pass into Evangeline's Memorial Park, into Acadia, visited by tourists from many parts of the world! Yes, and into Normandy itself! Voices are hushed as the guide recounts the story of Evangeline, the beloved Acadian heroine who, expelled from her country, and separated from her sweetheart, found him after years of searching only to surrender him to Death.

Near the Park entrance stands a cross constructed from the foundation stone of the original church and marking the graveyard. A few paces beyond is "Evangeline's Well". Nothing remains of the priest's garden except a row of whispering willows, trees which stand as monument to the French who planted them.

The Memorial Chapel (St. Charles) is a stone replica of the old frame building, and was built by the voluntary subscriptions of Acadians scattered all over the continent. It contains many Acadian relics and a very interesting museum.

Hébert's remarkable bronze idealization of Evangeline stands a few feet from the Chapel and deserves more than passing mention. Begun by Philippe Hébert, R.C.A., finished by his son, Henri, the lifeless metal gives an impression of breathing beauty.
