An Advertisement by Charles Dickens

CHARLES DICKENS is one of the world's great teachers. Here is what he has to say in one of his books:

"My other piece of advice, Copperfield," said Mr. Micawber, "you know. Annual income £20, annual expenditure £19.19.6—result, happiness. Annual income £20, annual expenditure £20.0.6—result, misery. The blossom is blighted, the leaf is withered, the God of Day goes down upon the dreary scene, and—and in short, you are forever floored. As I am."

The saving of a part of one's income was always a good policy.

Prudent men and women have always maintained a margin of saving.

But to-day we must go farther in our efforts to save than ever before.

To-day it is a matter of the gravest importance that each Canadian seek ways and means to economize by cutting down expenditures for unnecessary things, saving the money he spends on things he could do without, so that when the Nation needs to borrow money he will be in a position to do his full duty.

There is war-shortening work waiting for every dollar that can be saved.

IF Charles Dickens were writing to Canadians to-day he would probably give us advice to this effect.

"My other piece of advice, Canadians, you know. No matter what percentage of your annual income you have previously saved, your efforts to-day should be to save more. The advantage of so doing is threefold: By the practice of economy you conserve the material and labor which must be devoted to the grim task before us; you cultivate the priceless habit of thrift; you gather more and more money to lend to the Nation for the prosecution of the war to a quick and certain Victory."

THURSDAY OCT. 10. 1918

As prematurely announced in The Argus, the business of the Review has been purchased by that paper. The deal was consumated this morning. There were many causes leading to the amalgamation which it will serve no interests to mention. During our business career here for the past six years we have experienced many kindnesses at the hands of our personal and business friends, and have formed many associations which it will be hard to sever. Of course we have made a number of enemies but it is impossible to hew to the line and avoid doing this. Towards them we have no malice. We thank our many patrons for their confidence, and trust that our successors will find as warm a spot in the hearts of the people as the Review holds.

A dollar saved is a dollar earned.
