The Japnnese question, so far as this valley is concerned, could be easily settled if everyone was of the same mind and had the courage of his convictions that one of the settlement farmers has, who absolutely refused to work for or with the Japanese in farm work.

If they would stop the men drinking they would not have to bother about the bar; but it is fashionable nowadays for conferences and for conventions of religious bodies to pay 90 per cent. attention to the barroom and about 10 per cent attention to the men who support the barroom, namely, the individual drinkers.—Grimsby Independent.

We have been given to understand that the veterinary inspectors sent out by the government have found ten cows badly infected with tuberculosis in one of the Japanese dairies close to Courtenay. If this is the case the dairy should be closed at once. We have heard frequent complaints that these dairies were very unsanitary, but if it is proven that tuberculosis exists in them they should be closed, as they are not only a menance to the people who consume the products, but to neighboring cattle as well.

Alcohol may be a good creature of God, but its use as a medicine or for beverage purposes is becoming every year more restricted, on the authority, too, of the truest science of our time. At the recent International Congress of Physiotherapy, in Berlin, Germany, Professor Ewald, of Berlin University, one of the most eminent clinical teachers in the world, made this statement, "I have reached the conclusion that in no infectious disease has the value of alcohol been proved. On the other hand, it diminishes the natural resistance to the inroads of disease." The use of alcohol in medicine is decreasing very much everywhere, with every evidence that it will practically pass out altogether in the process of time. We are told that in several well-known London hospitals the expenditure on alcohol has decreased more than one-half during the past twenty-five years, though the business of all of them had very largely increased. In these days, when the liquor advertiser is telling us that beer is a food and better than beefsteak, it is well to remember that science is saying with more emphasis every day that alcohol in any form is a dangerous poison to the human system,

The Comox Fair opens to day. The exhibits are being placed in the hall and sheds, and are being judged. To morrow is the big day however, when all the live stock will be on the grounds, and the sporting events will take place. A large list of events has been prepared, for which excellent prizes are being offered. There are three purses of $80 each (to be divided) to be competed for in the horse races.

One of the delightful early autumn affairs in Comox was the house party given by Mr. and Mrs. Jack McKenzie last Friday evening in honour of their beautiful new home on "The Heights" of Comox. Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie are "Sourdoughs" in Comox, and have a wide circle of friends both here and in surrounding districts. hence the affair was largely attended. About two hundred and fifty being present. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Martin kindly took charge of the musical part of the entertainment and dancing and cards were indulged in. The night was beautiful. A glorious harvest moon was shining overhead and after dances the young people took advantage of the huge verauda, which nearly encircles the house. Later on in the evening refreshments were served. After singing "Auld Lang Sange," "God Save the King" and giving three rousing cheers for host and hostess. The party broke up in the wee sma' hours. Mr. and Mrs. McKenzie and all members of the party join in thanking Mr. and Mrs. Martin for their kindness in helping to make the evening so enjoyable.

Aviation

Editor Review,

Dear Sir,---Re paragraph on Aviation, Sept. 11. I am sorry to see this, especially as you used the stock phrase that has kept England in the background in aviation matters, viz., Man's place is not in the air, if it was he would have been provided with wings.

Ten years ago in England auy would-be-aviator was met with this grandmotherly phrase from some chuckling genius. On the same principle I should like to ask why some of the Courtenay boys were not provided with fins if meant to swim, and why was not man born with a railway engine in his pocket if meant to travel by train.

Do you not believe that things are evolving and that this evolution is part of the supreme plan. The beauty of life is its diversity and the beauty of the brain power is its originality. About "little if any sympathy can be offered," well, you do not know the men or you would moderate this.

Yours truly,

W. G. ROBERTSON, M.P.S.

Past President Areo Club.

[We were not aware we had used a stock phrase. We certainly thought it was original, which goes to prove that great minds think alike. From our observation of some of the Courtenay boys they would need a whole outfit of fins, gils and scales if they were to make a success of swimming. The railway proposition is too weighty a one to answer off-hand. From our observation of aviators we have al ways judged them as reckless daredevils seeking notoriety. Ed.]

The Wonder of It

We wandered on the seashore,
We wondered at the sky;
I told her how I loved her.
Said, "She wondered why?"
I wondered if she'd have me,
She gently answered "Yes",
And then we wandered, wondering
In speechless happiness.

And now since we are wedded,
We wonder as of yore.
We wondered as we wandered
Along the ocean shore,
With just the bit of difference
That our wonder we condense
Into wondering how we happened
To have so little sense.

Exchange of Products

Victoria is getting oranges and lemons from Australia and British Columbia is sending them onions, to be followed by apples very shortly. Several large shipments of tomatoes and onions were sent out by the steamer "Marama" to Fiji. This should by encouraging news for the Comox Valley ranchers, the various sawmills around here might also give a thought to the question of box and barrel making to carry these products. The Courtenay Board of Trade by increased membership should also be in a position financially to advertise in the Australia and Fiji newspapers that Comox Valley can produce the foods they need of A1 quality, delivered to steamers direct without transhipment. Thereby effecting a considerable saving in freight charges and rough handling.

Household Hints

Paint wooden pails and tubs with glycerine to prevent shrinking.

Rub mirrors with methylated spirits and polish with a touch of blue powder.

Place all cakes to cool on a wire sieve and never put them away in tins till perfectly cool.

Ordinary wall papers may be cleaned with dough, or rubbed with a soft clean flannel dipped in fine oatmeal.

Slices of lemon, topped with grated horseradish, make a pleasing garnish for veal served in any form.

Candles used for lighting the dinner table will not drip if placed on ice for two or three hours just before serving the meal.

Do not throw your worn-out hot-water-bag away, but cut it in round or oval dieces and use them as mats to put under flower pots,

When washing white dress skirts do not wring them but hang them dripping wet on the line by the belt. The weight of the weight of the water prevents any shrinking and keeps the skirt an even length.

Coffee stains, even with cream in it, can be removed from the most delicate silk or woollen fabrics by brushing the spots with pure glycerine.

She Didn't See the Joke

Born---On Saturday Sept. 13th, to Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Farris a son.

Miss Alice Gibbons returned to town on Saturday last.

R. Kelly, of Kelly Douglas & Co was in town on Sunday.

O. H. and Mrs. Sullivan left yesterday morning for Vancouver. J. W. McKenzie Jr. has purchased his house in the orchard.

A certain gentleman after celebrating the opening of the bars on Wednesday evening, while navigating homewards was heard to remark "God help the sailors on a night like this."

The stores will all be closed tomorrow afternoon. They will be open until 10 o'clock to-night for the convenience of shoppers

The framework of the new Presbyterian church is about up. Lack of material keeps the workmen back.

Messrs. Duncan & Birch have just installed a 2 1-2 h. p. Grey gasoline engine and a 1 kilowat dynamo. They also have an outfit for charging storage batteries.

Local nimrods were very busy on Monday, the opening day of the shooting season. Some of them got fair bags, others tramped all day and did not see any birds whatever The grouse as yet have not come down from the foothills in any numbers.

Messrs. Piguerin & Francis successfully launched the "Lady A" last week. The is a fast launch with nice lines, and is a V bottom model, a style not heretofore seen here. A four cylinder Dunn motor furnishes the power. They are now at work on Mr. Harry Idiens' new launch.

On Monday evening next the squatters and settlers of the Cumberland district will meet the board of trade to ask their services in getting their grievances straightened out with the government.

A horse got onto the railway track south of town on Saturday, and when the train came along started across the bridge. He did not go far before he got his legs between the ties. It required the services of the train crew and a few planks to get him off. Outside a few scratches he was unhurt.

A jolly house warming took place at Mr, and Mrs. John McKenzie, Comox, on Friday evening last. About one hundred and twenty persons were present, a goodly number of them being from here. Martin's orchestra furnished the music for dancing.

The following were registered at the Restmore hotel during the past week : Miss F. Glendenning, Mr. A. R. Glendenning, Miss R. Ringland, Mr. J. Brown, Victoria ; Mr. A. McClennan. Mr. and Mrs. A.F. Hastings, Mr. J. Rodway, Mr. A. Campbell, Vancouver ; Mr. C. O. Russan, Mr. J. Weismilla, A. D. Hansan, Mr. Wells, Victoria ; Mr. F. N. McIntosh, Vancouver.

Two Ontario M.P's. are giving a prize of $1000 to settlers along the line of a northern railway who show the most attractive development work along the line of the road. Betty Botter's Butter

Betty Botter bought some butter but she said this butter's bitter. If I put it in my batter, it will make my batter bitter, but a bit o' better butter would make my batter better; so she bought a bit of better butter and it made her bitter batter better; so 'twas better Betty Botter bought a bit 'o better butter.

Card of Thanks

It will be seen in our advertising columns that tenders for the wharf at Roy's Beach are invited. The good this proposed wharf will do for the district is more and more apparent. It will be possible to load at this wharf products of the earth, direct into steamer for all parts of the world, a considerable saving in freight charges and rough handling.

SEALED TENDERS addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Wharf at Roy's Beach, B. C,," will be recieved at this office until 4.00, p. m., on Thursday, October 9, 1913, for the construction of a Wharf at Roy's, Beach, Comox District.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at this Department and at the offices of J. S. MacLachlan, Esq., District Engineer, Victoria, B. C.; C. C. Worsfold, Esq., District Engineer, New Westminster, B. C.; and on application the Postmaster at Roy's Beach, Courtenay, B. C.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made out on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupations and places of residence. In the case of firms, the actnal signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given,

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honourable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. (10 p. c.) of the amount of the tender, which will be forfeited if the person tendering decline to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender be not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

MURRAY MURGATROYD JOURNALIST

By Morice Gerard

(Copyright)

It was now 4.30 p.m.

Well, any news? You followed him here all right?

Yes! I am not sure he did not fancy he was being watched. Anyway, he had his eyes about him when he got out of the fly.

Is he in the hotel now?

No, he went out almost immediately.

Murgatroyd uttered an exclamation of annoyance. What if Muller should succeed in dodging him in the end? Besides, he could not keep Inspector Murphy about indefinitely. He was stretching a point or two as it was, and time with him was golden, and not altogether at his own disposal.

You don't know when he will be back of course?

I found out afterwards he had ordered dinner for 7.30, in the private room he took along with the bedroom—thirty two and thirty four—they are just opposite one another.

Did he take anything with him—the papers? Murgatroyd asked anxiously.

I am not quite sure, but I don't think so. If he did, he was mighty quick about it. Greased lightning would not be in it.

There was nothing for it but to hope for the best. Murgatroyd began to regret, in case of failure at the last moment, that he had sent that wire to the Pioneer.

There was no further use for Jordan. What remained to be done Murgatroyd must do himself. He was dismissed therefore, with an injunction to call at Henrietta Street the following morning.

Murgatroyd rejoined Inspector Murphy.

The bird has flown for the present. He is to return for dinner at 7.30. I am exceedingly sorry to have given you so much trouble for nothing' I do not like to ask you to return with me later.

I will see the matter out as I have gone so far; but I am not available after 6 p.m. until 9 p.m. I have to be at the office between those hours to receive reports and attend to the business which has accumulated during the day.

Could you call for me here at 9.15. I will be in the billiard room.

That will suit me perfectly; either of us to wire to the other in case of any change. If I am prevented at the last moment, I will send some one in my place, in whose judgment you can absolutely rely.

I hope that will not happen.

There is no special reason for think I will, but I like to be prepared for emergencies.

Murgatroyd hardly knew how to fill the interval of suspense and waiting. Action had been easy; but in the tense conlitions of his nerves delay was difficult in the extreme. One moment he felt inclined to go and tell Hanley exactly how matters stood. The notion was put aside almost before it had taken shape. He must go to him either a success or a failure. He would not present himself hanging, like Mahomet's coffin, 'twixt heaven and earth.

Eventually he had a sherry and biscuit, and then drove down to Bagguley's lodgings. On his way he bought a new edition of the Pioneer.

It spoke optimistically of the Government position with regard to Transalpia, and bitterly condemned the unpatriotic nature of the Opposition to the measure.

The chief has burnt his boats, Murgatroyd muttered sarcastically to himself. Will he have equal faith in me by the time to-morrow's sun is set?

The same number announced that Mr. Reginald Sweeting, M.P. for one of the suburban divisions south of the Thames, would apply at once for the Chiltern Hundreds; and his own name, with a warm eulogium on his ability and versatility, was mentioned for the vacancy. It was the seat Sir Richard Hanley had spoken to him about. He had no doubt that the indirect inspiration of the idea connecting his name with the vacancy in other journals as well as the Pioneer, emanated from Hanley.

Those are the worst payers who pay beforehand, Murgatroyd quoted grimly. From certainty of success, without rhyme or reason, he had sunk to abysmal despondency. He crushed the Pioneer in his hand. A good many people would have liked to serve the smart nocturnal in the same way, it occurred to him.

When he reached Bagguley's doorstep, a groom was leading away his horse; evidently he had just come in from riding.

Good luck! at any rate.

CHAPTER X

Waiting

The last day of suspense had come. Sir Richard Hanley had kept up a show of cheerfulness before his friends, political and social, during the past fortnight. Only Maud, his butler, and his valet—both old servants, who had been with the statesman many years—knew the contrary. In his brain was the iteration of a perpetual question, which met him at his meals, which sat behind him as he rode through the Park, and over the frosty roads leading in and out of London, north and south—above all which lay by his side at night, and spoke to him amid that mysterious silence which comes upon a great city about two o'clock in the morning—the most impressive silence in the whole world to the wakeful watcher.

Quite as much as Murgatroyd, Hanley had reached a marked and conspicuous milestone in his life. Something was written on it. What that writing was as yet seemed as uncertain and elusive as the obiter dicta of a Delphic oracle. It might be as the Handwriting on the Wall in ancient Babylon; and as the days drew on without news, Hanley grew to be certain that so it was to be. During the wakeful nights his whole past had risen before him. It was a consecutive panorama of conspicuous and unfailing success. Born to a good position, and the inheritor of a name which had won honors for itself in both camp and court, he had made it greater. Wealthy by inheritance, his aims had never been sullied by the pereptual striving to make a good show with a narrow margin, which has been the bane of many capable units of the great governing class. Of late he was well aware he had filled a much larger place in the estimation of the country, and of his colleauges than he had done at any previous period of his life. Next to the First Lord of the Treasury and Leader of the House, he held far and away the most commanding place in the Commons; and in his own department of Foreign politics the Cabinet gave him practically a free hand. Being a position of power, it was pari passu a position of responsibility, liable to the making of mistakes, which from their far reaching effects must necessarily be great ones. If the heigth was dizzy to which Hanley had climbed, the fall would be as precipitous. In the delicate negotiation of this Transalpian question he had proved again and again his grasp of the subject and the mastery of intricate details. At the same time, his delicate handling of the negotiations, which at any moment might plunge this country into a war whose issue no one could forsee, had evoked the applause of those best qualified to judge.

Now the end was near, and on the resultant issue, he had staked all—reputation for judgment, influence, power. What he had done and gained for his country in the past would be forgotten, indelibly obliterated, by present failure. Hanley recognized that while he had troops of friends he had many enemies—men like Thompson-Halliday, infinitely beneath him, in mental calibre, and lofty judgment, but all the more capable of the petty malignity which would serve to intensify his fall. Nor did Hanley care only for himself. He was loyal to his colleagues and his party. Neither could come unscathed out of such a disaster as his own practical defeat. The events of the next few hours might undermine the results of the steady work of years, and put back—as he judged it—the clock of time.

He had been in his study till late the night before and had prepared two statements for the House of Commons—the one with the additional evidence he hoped to get, evidence which would have rendered his case irrefutable and triumphant; the other without it, still streng and resonable, but as he recognized clearly, been his when the morning was on the point of view of his own supporters, and capable of powerful attack from the Opposition.

He did not come down to the breakfast-table till late. What little sleep he had enjoyed had by no means conclusive even from the point of breaking into its tardy February dawn. He looked over his letters with a shaking hand. There was no line from Murgatroyd.

Maud had satisfied herself on this point beforehand, when she arranged as she always did, the letters beside her father's plate. She watched him furtively. While the footman was in the room conversation was impossible.

The man gone, Maud came and put her arms round her father's neck.

I am awfully sorry you have not got the letter you wanted. I cannot understand it. I should have thought Mr. Murgatroyd would have written whether he had succeeded or not.

I told him—in fact, he sees the papers down there, and knows as well as I do—that it was now or never. The suspense is awful, and I cannot bear to think of the long dinner to-night, and the talk afterwards.

Cannot you send some excuse—a headache or a cold? Maud inquired with feminine solicitude.

Contest Winners Shortly to be Announced

Though still busily engaged in the tremendous task of reading the letters received from nearly 20,000 school children in the contest conducted by the Remington Literary Committee, the judges are now nearing the completion of their painstaking work and will shortly make announcement of winners. The general run of the letters is so excellent and the determining of superior merit in individual cases so difficult, that the judges have decided to give, in addition to the prizes already scheduled, first, second and third medals in each of the four classes. In a few days the awards of these and of the 2,000 other prizes offered will be known by the pupils who throughout the country are eagerly awaiting the news.

Corns are caused by the pressure of tight boots, but no one need be troubled with them long when so simple a remedy as Holloway's Corn Cure is available.

Odd Uses of Sugar

If all the sugar that is eaten in the course of a year were to be equally divided, every person in the world would have at least twenty pounds. But besides being used as food, sugar has many industrial uses. It is the cheapest form of a chemically pure carbohydrate, and is often used in place of starch, dextrin, or glucose. Sugar is frequently put in compounds for removing and preventing boiler scale. It is used in the manufacture of shoe-blacking, transparent soap, copying-ink, and inkrollers for printpresses. Certain explosives contain from six to forty per cent. of it. It is employed in dyeing establishments, by tanneries for filling leather and in a large number of other industries. Sugar has a hardening and strengthening action in mortar. The mortar used to rebuild the Museum of Natural History in Berlin consisted of one part lime, one part sand and two parts sugar. Even a very small quantity, however, even as little as one-quarter of one per cent, exerts a very harmful effect on cement.

Minard's Liniment Cures Garget in Cows

Aluminum Servant of Man

When the history of our age is written the story of aluminum is going to occupy a prominent page, says Harpers' Weekly. It is quite as wonderful as the story of electricity, the all-pervading giant that lay hidden for ages in murky clouds, in masses of coal, copper and soft iron, and in myriads of waterfalls, until Franklin and Morse and Edison put him in harness and made him one of the most useful and ingenious servants of man Aluminum, which constitutes nearly one-twelfth of the earth crust, lay obscure until Sir Humphrey Davy in 1808, declared that clay and many clayey rocks depended upon some metal as a base.

A Lark's Lofty Flight

Some Bavarian officers experimenting with a balloon 6,000 feet aloft noticed a little black speck which seemed to accompany them and which they thought was one of the cards they carried for throwing out reports and that the dropping of the balloon drew it along, but on looking at the barometer they found that the balloon was rising and not dropping. Suddenly, however, a loud chirping showed that it was a lark, which flying at this extraordinary height, had been frightened by the balloon.

Life in Macedonia

We arose early one February morning and left our fairly clean hotel in Neapolis for four hours of travel over the modern road near the Via Egnatia, which should take us to ancient Philippi. Our vehicle was a somewhat dilapidated hack, such as Americans are familiar with at almost every considerable railway station but surprisingly comfortable conveyance for this part of the world. Rattling down some steep, roughly paved streets we came to the centre of the great Roman aqueduct and ascended another steep street on the other side of the market place.

Early as it was, we found that the people of Kavalla were up and doing. The stalls of the fruit men were attractive with oranges, pomegranates, lemons and dates. The vegetable dealers displayed a tempting array of cauliflowers, cabbages, onions, okra, leeks and potatoes.

As in all eastern cities, there was no privacy. The cook was preparing his breakfast on the sidewalk, the shoe-maker was plying his awl, the tailor his needle, and the blacksmith was shoeing his horses almost in the very street.

NERVOUS PEOPLE MADE CHEERFUL

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Rebuild Shattered Nerves

Good blood—rich, red blood—makes all the difference between health and sickness. If the blood is thin and watery, the health of the whole body suffers. The sufferer becomes nervous and irritable; the stomach fails in strength and the appetite becomes poor. Food does not give the necessary nourishment, and the first feeling of weakness passes, as time goes on, into a general breakdown in the health. The case of Mrs. Angelique Gagnon, of St. Jerome, Que., illustrates the truth of these statements. Mrs. Gagnon says: "I am fifty years of age and up to a few months ago always enjoyed the best of health. Then I began to feel rundown and weak, without patience or ambition. My appetite grew poor, and my nerves seemed to be on edge, and the least noise or worry would make me irritable and nervous. Life became an actual burden and I could no longer look after my household duties. My doctor prescribed and ordered a change, saying that I was a nervous wreck. I tried to become interested in other things but failed, and my condition was really deplorable. I continued in this condition for several months, gradually going down, and as my doctor was not helping me I was easily persuaded by a friend to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. After taking the pills for a few weeks I could see an improvement, and I gladly continued using them for a couple of months, when I found my health fully restored. I am more than thankful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have done for me, and I gladly recommend them to all who are weak, nervous and run down."

By making rich, red blood Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure such cases as Mrs. Gagnon's. In the same way they cure nervous headaches, neuralgia, indigestion, rheumatism, St. Vitus dance, and the ailments that come to growing girls and women of mature years. If you are at all unwell start to-day to cure yourself with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, what they have done for others they will surely do for you, if given a fair trial. Sold by all druggists or by mail, post paid, at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

At first it has been contended, men used both arms indifferently, and those who when fighting pushed the right side forward had the advantage of shielding their hearts and so lived to produce descendants who inherited their tendencies. Be this as it may, there is no doubt that the two sides of the brain have different functions, and right or left-handedness is by no means restricted to the arms alone. One investigator was very often able to recognize left handedness by the examination of the left eye. The centre of speech is on the left side of the brain of a right handed person and on the right side of a left handed person. Children show unmistakable evidence of two speech centres, though one atrophies owing to the preference given to one hand. Nevertheless experiments show that it can be successfully resuscitated.

RAILWAYS AND CARTAGE

Canadian Railways Cancel Tariffs Covering Cartage Points in Dominion

Railways of Canada have issued notice of cancellation of tariffs covering cartage points in Canada, effective October 1, 1913. On and after that date shippers and consignees will be expected to make their own arrangements for cartage.

It is stated that this action on the part of the transportation companies is the result of the failure to renew existing contracts with the cartage companies at present prices, the latter claiming that owing to increased cost of supplies, labor and other matters entering into the performance of the service, they must have increased compensation. On the other hand, the railways contend that it is impossible to increase their burden of such extra expenses for the very reason given by the cartage companies—namely, increased expenses.

The change in conditions at cartage points in Canada, it is pointed out, is in line with practices which have long prevailed at American Cities, where the public are obliged to make their own arrangements with the cartage companies for deliveries to or from the railway terminal.

One of the commonest complaints of infants is worms, and the most effective application for them is Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator.

Tanning by Electricity

A new electric tanning process, invented by the Swedish scientist, Dr. A. Groth, and applied on a practical scale in an English works, is attracting much attention, and one of the prominent electrical firms is to take it up for commercial use. With this method, the hides are put in special vats along with metal conductors, so as to carry out an electrolytic action, and this will tan the hides in much less time than usual, for instance, six weeks as compared to several months. Leather of better quality is produced in this way, and the method gives a perfect and solid tanning. Various electrical devices in the shape of regulators, also safety apparatus for over-current, make the process almost an automatic one.

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper

A Scotch caddie is almost certain to be a shrewd observer of men and things, and he is frequently gifted with a sharp tongue of his own.

Lang Willie was for many years a well-known figure on the St. Andrews golf links. On the occasion of Louis Kossuth's visit to St. Andrews a public dinner was given in his honor and Willie applied for a ticket to the bailie who was in charge of the arrangements. The worthy man curtly refused the application, saying to Willie that it was no place for the likes of him to be at the dinner.

No for the likes of me? was Willie's indignant rejoinder. I've been in the company of gentlemen from 11 to 4 o'clock maist days for the last thirty years, and that's mair than you can say!

A teacher in a big elementary school had given lessons to an infant class on the ten commandments. In order to test their memories she asked:

Can any little child give me a commandment with only four words in it?

A hand was raised immediately.

Well? said the teacher.

Keep off the grass, was the reply.

The Right Soap For Baby's Skin Is Cuticura Soap

IN the care of baby's skin and hair, Cuticura Soap is the mother's favourite. Not only is it unrivaled in purity and refreshing fragrance, but its gentle emollient properties render it of great value in promoting skin and hair health generally. For the treatment of eczemas, rashes and other itching, burning infantile eruptions, warm baths with Cuticura Soap, followed by gentle applications of Cuticura Ointment are usually effective when other methods fail. Cuticura Soap wears to a wafer, often outlasting several cakes of ordinary soap and making its use most economical.

Cuticura Soap and Ointment are sold throughout the world. A liberal sample of each, with 32-page booklet on the care and treatment of the skin and scalp, sent post-free. Address Potter Drug & Chem. Corp., Dept. 16D, Boston, U. S. A.

THAT "Blue" Feeling

When you feel discouraged and all the world seems to be against you—that's your system's way of telegraphing you that something is WRONG and needs HELP.

It may be that your liver is tired and refuses to work, or your digestive organs have had too much to do and need care. Perhaps you have been eating the wrong kind of food, and your blood is too rich or impoverished. What you need is a tonic.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery

will give the required aid. Tones the entire system. The weak stomach is made strong. The liver vibrates with new life. The blood is cleansed of all impurities and carries renewed health to every vein and nerve and muscle and organ of the body. No more attacks of the "blues." Life becomes worth while again, and hope takes place of despair.

Insist on getting Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. Sold by dealers in medicines.

GREAT BRIDGES

Facts of Great Structures Across the Tay and Forth

Not the least of the extraordinary feats of the redoubtable bridge-builder, Sir William Arrol, was the fact that at one time he carried on two such gigantic contracts as the Tay and Forth Bridges. It was a striking tribute to his great powers of organization and to his genius for engineering on a mammoth scale. The construction of the Tay Bridge was only half-finished when he made a start with the gigantic undertaking which now spans the Firth of Forth, from the designs of Sir John Fowler and Sir Benjamin Baker. Over a year was spent in the preliminary preparations alone—the designing and making of special plant, the erection of workshops on shore and the thousands and one things essential to the success of such a large scheme. The cost of temporary plant ran to half-a-million sterling, and included thirty steam and other barges, tugs, launches and boats, sixty steam cranes and winches, fifty hydraulic cranes, forty-eight steam engines and hydraulic jacks, hand-cranes and drilling machines almost innumerable; not to mention one million cubic feet of timber and sixty miles of wire. The enormous nature of this engineering wonder of the world may be gathered from the following figures: The total length is over a mile and a half, and consists of two spans, each nearly a third of a mile long; two spans of six hundred and seventy-five feet each. In the piers there are about one hundred and twenty thousand cubic yards of masonry, and in the super-structure over forty thousand tons of steel and some fifteen thousand tons of iron.

The building of the Tay Bridge was an opportunity for a display of his engineering genius which the ambitious bridgemaker eagerly welcomed. A rigorous examination revealed the old foundations to be insecure, and it was decided to build an entirely new bridge a short distance farther up the river. Within five years from its commencement—1882 to 1887—a remarkable erection, over two miles in length, and constructed at a cost of seven hundred and fifty thousand pounds, spanned the estuary, a structure strong enough to defy the fiercest gale that ever blew. It was the greatest engineering triumph of the age, until it was eclipsed by a greater—the Forth Bridge.

Most infants are infested by worms, which cause great suffering, and if not promptly dealt with may cause constitutional weaknesses difficult to remedy. Miller's Worm Powders will clear the stomach and bowels of worms and will so act upon the system that there will be no recurrence of the trouble. And not only this, but they will repair the injuries to the organs that worms cause and restore them to soundness.

He Wouldn't Do

We were going along at an awful speed, he said, I didn't see the dog, but I heard his ki-yi, so I ordered the chauffeur to stop. Going back, we found an irate woman standing over her dead dog—one of the ugliest dogs you ever saw. She met us with a tirade of strong remarks, telling us in no uncertain terms what she thought of us and motorists in general, finishing up by calling us the murderers of her dog. It was then that I thought I would pacify her. Madam, I said, I will replace your one of voice, you flatter yourself.

The Way of It

Some men make fools of themselves for a pretty girl and a lot of others don't even have that excuse.

Dining on Books

With the exception of minerals it is difficult for one to find on the earth's surface substances that do not tempt the appetite of some sort of animal. The list of queer articles of diet includes the earth, which is munched with satisfaction by the clay eater, and the walrus hide, which the Eskimo relishes as much as John Bull his joint of beef.

It is not generally known, however, that men, as well as mice and bookworms have eaten dinners that have consisted only of books.

In 1370 Barnado de Visconti compelled two Papal delegates to eat the bull of excommunication which they had brought him, together with its silken cords and leaden seal. As the bull was written an parchment, not paper, it was all the more difficult to digest.

There was also an American general who had signed a note for 2,000 florins, and when it fell due compelled his creditors to eat it. The Tartars, when books fall into their possession, eat them, that they may acquire the knowledge contained in them.

A Scandinavian writer, the author of a political book, was compelled to choose between being beheaded or eating his manuscript boiled in broth.

Izaac Volmar, who wrote some spicy satires against Bernard, Duke of Saxony, was not allowed the courtesy of the kitchen, but was forced to swallow them uncooked.

Still worse was the fate of Philip Oldenburger, a jurist of great renown who was condemned not only to eat a pamphlet of his writing, but also to be flogged during his repast with orders that the flogging should not cease until he had swallowed the last crumb.

FROM GREAT LAKES TO THE ROCKIES

WOMEN SING THE PRAISES OF DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Saskatchewan Lady Adds Her Testimony to What Has Already Been Said of the Great Work Dodd's Kidney Pills are Doing.

Caesarville, Sask. (Special)—The scarcity of female help in a new country subjects the women of the prairies to unusual strain, and careful observation has established the fact that this strain first makes itself felt in the kidneys. For this reason Dodd's Kidney Pills are making an enviable reputation from the Great Lakes to the foothills of the Rockies.

Everywhere you will find women singing the praises of the great Canadian kidney remedy that has banished their pains and weariness, and brought them back to health. Among the many is Mrs. Edgar Cowen, an estimable lady of this place.

"I have found Dodd's Kidney Pills very beneficial," Mrs. Cowen states. "If anything I can say will help any sufferer I am glad to add my testimonial to what has already been said."

The kidneys strain all the refuse material out of the blood. If they are out of order this refuse remains in the blood, and becomes poison. That's why sound kidneys mean pure blood and good health. Dodd's Kidney Pills make sound kidneys.

Quotations That are Wrong

Some of the most frequently used quotations are not quotations at all, but in many cases convey the opposite meaning of the original wording.

Fenimore Cooper, for instance, thought he was quoting from the Bible when he spoke of an inscription being so devised that he who runs may read, signifying that it was easier to run than read.

If Cooper had looked in his Bible he would have found in the book of Habakuk that the passage he tried to quote was: Write the vision and make it plain that he may run that readeth it. The vision was a warning and the reader was to flee from danger, but the Cooper version has survived the original and practically put it out of use.

A popular chronic misquotation is that of the passage in Hudibras, which says: He that compiles against his will is of the same opinion still. Authors and public speakers without number have twisted that into: A man convinced against his will is of the same opinion still, forgetting that a man who was convinced could not possibly remain of the same opinion for if he was of the same opinion he would not be convinced.

Theodore Roosevelt publicly declared that Washington in his farewell address said: To be prepared for war is the most effective means to promote peace. But the first President said nothing of the sort in his farewell address. In his first message to Congress he said: To be prepared for war is one of the most effective means of preserving peace, and he spoke of other means as well.

Novelists do not seem to be very strong in their knowledge of the Scriptures somehow, and Sir Walter Scott, in 'The Heart of Midlothian,' attempts to point a moral with the words: Our simple and unpretending heroine had the merit of those peacemakers to whom it is promised as a benediction that they shall inherit the earth. The fact is that the peacemakers did not receive any such promise, but it is said that the meek shall inherit the earth.

ONTARIO WOOD SUPPLIES

Light Thrown on Forest and Trade Conditions by New Government Bulletin

Over 1200 wood-using industries in Ontario contributed the data for a bulletin on this industry now being issued by the Forestry Branch, Ottawa. Thirty four different kinds of wood are being used by these industries and the detailed information regarding the various uses to which such woods are put, should be of considerable value not only to the manufacturer by showing new means of waste disposal, but also to the house holder by indicating what native woods are best fitted to replace the more expensive imported stock, for interior decoration, furniture and flooring.

The bulletin also shows incidentally the increasing poverty of Ontario with regard to the more valuable work woods. Almost half of the thirty-four kinds of wood used are obtained principally from outside sources and three and one half million dollars are annually sent out of the province for imported wood stock. The imported oak alone costs one million six hundred thousand dollars annually, for this tree has become commercially extinct in Ontario while the hickory and chestnut groves of southern Ontario have also, almost entirely disappeared. Even good clear white pine is becoming hard to obtain and its market value is steadily rising for it represents twenty one per cent of the total wood consumption in Ontario for industrial purposes.

Of more interest to the small consumer of wood-products are the side lights the bulletin throws on the possibility of substituting cheap home grown woods for the expensive foreign species now used so extensively. Recent tests made of their physical properties have demonstrated the suitability for certain purposes of many native species, hitherto despised by the dealers. For hardwood flooring in place of the oak and maple now in general use, may be substituted the home grown birch and beech which take a high polish and have the advantage of being considerably cheaper. Likewise for interior finishing, the expensive oak can be very closely imitated by stained black ash and stained birch is almost indistinguishable from mahogany, while stained red gum requires an expert to distinguish it from the costly Circassian walnut. The now expensive white pine is being replaced, where durability is not a requisite, by the cheaper spruce, basswood and elm. Poplar and balsam fir are two of the most common trees in Ontario and that they have wider uses is evident from the fact that poplar is highly valued for hardwood flooring in Manitoba while balsam fir is perhaps the most widely used native species in the Maritime provinces.

The bulletin also indicates the existence of a market in Ontario for sumac, apple and cherry logs. The lumber cut from them being worth $30, $46.50, and $44.50 per thousand feet board measure respectively. The Forestry Branch has already been instrumental in securing sales of the wood of worn out apple orchards and is desirous of further serving the public along these lines. The bulletin on The Wood-using Industries of Ontario can be had gratis from the Forestry Branch, Department of the Interior, Ottawa. A similar report dealing with the Maritime Provinces will appear shortly.

Novel Musketry Practice

A report comes from Vienna of the utilisation of the cinematograph for instruction in musketry. The firing squad is posted in front of a cinematograph screen, and a moving colored picture of the battlefield is thrown on it from behind them. Each man has to pick up his target, take aim and fire. When a shot is fired the film stops for a second, and the hole made by the bullet in the screen is illuminated by a flashlight behind it, which shows the position of the hit with reference to the target.

Correcting the Answer

At a horse-stealing trial out west a jury was gathered and shut up in a room after a brief trial, and when an hour had gone by a mob burst in and unceremoniously demanded what the verdict was.

Not guilty, said the foreman.

That won't do, said the leader of the mob fiercely. You will have to do better than that. And he shut the jury up again.

In half an hour the door was opened once more.

Well, gents, your verdict, said the leader.

Guilty, the foreman replied.

There were hurrah from the crowd and the leader said:

Correct. You can go now. We strung him up an hour ago.

Potatoes and Power

One forsees the triumph of the potato, unforseen by William Cobbett, not so much as a food, but as a means of motion. Coal is giving out; petrol is going up in price and down in production. The supply of both is limited and must come to an end, but there comes the cheer that alcohol will be the motive force of the future. Petrol and coal may give out, but the earth will always grow potatoes. Potatoes can produce alcohol and alcohol can drive engines. In the potato we seem to have discovered the secret of perpetual motion.

Real Gratitude

Pessimists declare that the days of gay romance are dead—that there is no spirit of chivalry left in the breasts of the men of modern times.

They are all wrong. Here we have the story in the daily papers that a man in Ohio left all his money to the girl who refused to marry him years ago. That's gratitude for you!

Another One on Twain

Mark Twain at a dinner at the Author's Club, said: Speaking of fresh eggs, I am reminded of the town of Squash. In my early lecturing days I went to Squash to lecture in Temperance Hall, arriving in the afternoon. The town seemed poorly billed. I thought I'd find out if the people knew anything at all about what was in store for them. So I turned in at the general store. Good afternoon, friend, I said to the general storekeeper. Any entertainment here tonight to help a stranger while away the evening? The general storekeeper, who was sorting mackerel, straightened up, wiped his briny hands on his apron and said: I expect there's going to be a lecture, I been selling eggs all day.

Comfort for the Dyspeptic.—There is no ailment so harassing and exhausting as dyspepsia, which arises from defective action of the stomach and liver, and the victim of it is to be pitied. There are pills that are widely advertised as the greatest ever compounded, but not one of them can rank in value with Parmelee's.

Her Portrait

The painstaking artist, anxious to please, remarked to prospective customer:

I can paint you a portrait of your wife which will be a speaking likeness.

H'm. Couldn't you do it in what they call still life?

It may be better to give than to receive, but few of us are in a position to keep it up indefinitely.

Tired and Weak Nerves Exhausted

The feelings of fatigue and languor which overcome so many people at this season of the year tell of the exhausted condition of the nerves.

It is impossible to keep up the action of the heart and the vitality of the nerves when the blood is thin and watery, and this is why nearly everybody needs tonic treatment in the spring.

Some of the symptoms are restlessness, purposeless activity, insomnia, absent-mindedness, tired gait, lack of ambition and enthusiasm, head-ache and neuralgic pains, dyspepsia and feelings of languor and depression.

Monotony of work and mental overstrain or worry sap the nervous system, as does also the strenuousness of modern life, whether in the business or social world.

More and more men and women are obliged to seek the assistance of such concentrated foods as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food to restore vitality to the tired and worn-out nerves.

Such treatment is necessary, because diseases of the nerves do not right themselves. As nerve force runs low the digestive system fails to extract the necessary nutrition from the food. Dr. Chase's Nerve Food supplies in condensed form the ingredients required, and restores health.

A little patience is necessary in treating diseases of the nerves and rest helps to restore strength. You can be sure of lasting beneficial results when you use

Married, on Sept. 15th. Mr. William Cornell to Miss Marion Petrie, of No. 8 Townsite, by the Rev. Jas. Hood.

The voters' list for 1913 closes on Monday, Oct. 6th. All who have resided in Comox district for the past six months and are otherwise eligable should get their names on the list AT ONCE. Frank D. Cameron, Hon, Secretary Courtenay Conservative Assn.

Mr. R. Carter left on Saturday night's boat for Victoria exhibition with the Comox district exhibit. A wire to the Review yesterday morning stated that the exhibit had taken second prize. This is very gratifying, as it was not considered up to the usual high standard that usually goes from here.

The Courtenay literary and debating society intend opening up for the winter months on Monday the 29th inst., at 8 p.m. in the board of trade rooms. Those who remember the pleasant evenings in the past will be again to the front, and a cordial invitation is extended to any and all strangers in our midst who are interested.

The Comox Fair

Ideal weather prevailed on the second day of the Courtenay fair. The exhibits were of good quality but not nearly so numerous as the conditions in this fertile valley warrant. There was a record attendance, fully 200 coming from the camps by special train, and many from Cumberland, the Islands and other parts of the district.

Following are the winners in the different sporting events :

Boys' race, under 12, R. Gibson, M. Piercy. Girl's under 12, M. Leighton, A. Leaman. Boys 16, W. Calhoun, J. Carthew. Girls, 16, Mary Gibson, H. Leaman. Sack race, E. Wilmshurst, H. Leighton. CUMBERLAND

Mr. and Mrs. W. T. White were passengers by Thursday evening's train, returning from a ten days' vacation to Vancouver and the Sound Cties.

A post office has been established at Bevan, commonly known as No. 7, and is now open for business with W. E. Lawrence as postmaster. This will supply a long felt want. Mail leaves Cumberland for Bevan every morning except Sunday at 9-30 and returns at noon.

The output for the week ending Friday, September 19th tatals 10,793. The decreased output is accounted for by the changing of the various hoisting plants from steam to electric, which caused No. 4 5 and 7 mines to be shut down for a day and a half. The Comox mines are now hoisting coal by electric power supplied by the new hydro-electric plant.---Islander

Public opinion has moved steadily and always in a given direction for years past, and always in the direction of disapproval of inebriety A drunken man used to be an amusement; now he is an offence.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized at St. Andrew's Episcopal church Sandwick, on September 2, when Mr. Robert J. Curran of Fanny Bay was married to Miss Letitia E. Willlams, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Williams Rev. Mr. Hilton performed the ceremony. The bridesmaid was Miss Grace Williams, sister of the bride, and Mr. Harold Henderson was best man. The popularity of the young people was attested by the large number of valuable presents they received. They returned on Friday last from a trip to Victoria and Seattle.

Tenders Wanted

THE COUNTRY FAIR

Money Spent in Attending Fairs Is Well Invested

Fair time is again upon us. It is the annual holiday handed down by our forefathers who tilled the soil and gathered to discover which had been able to wrest the fairest fruits from their labor. It is a time of healthy competition and relaxation that every member of the family should be allowed to enjoy. Both farmers and city cousins should attend. Even the most insulated city dweller is but a generation or so away from toil tilling as men all tilled the soil or grazed their herds at one time. Those who can have gotten back to the soil after drifting into the unnatural hothouse city life. There is something for everybody at the fair, whether it be merely a country pumpkin show or the more enlarged and classified exhibition and ourself, especially if you take an active part in entering your best farm produce or help in managing or superintending it. The local fair, like the country newspaper, the country schoolhouse and the country church, is a success or failure just to that extent that home folks take active part. Its power for good is also much greater than ordinarily conceded. Many a big breeder of purebred live stock got his inspiration from the local two-by-twice country fair when his cow, pig or colt won the red ribbon from the neighbors. That victory or defeat may have aroused friendly competition which started one of more plain farmers to breeding pure breds to show neighbors Jones and Smith that they could not beat the products of the rival neighbor's farm. Attend at least two fairs the coming season—the home pumpkin affair, if you wish to so designate it, and the big fair that will be advertised and talked about in your section. See what your neighbors are doing and then see what the best herds, flocks and fields in the Dominion are doing.—Exchange.

An Oil of Merit—Dr Thomas' Eclectric Oil is not a jumble of medicinal substances thrown together and pushed by advertising, but the result *of the careful investigation of the cur*ative qualities of certain oils as applied to the human body. It is a rare combination and it won and kept public favor from the first. A trial of it will carry conviction to any one who doubt its power to repair and heal.

Grant's Joke at Vicksburg

Fifty years ago, when Grant was beseiging Vicksburg, the Confederate newspaper of that city, which in the desperate conditions was printed on the reverse side of wall paper, editorially referred to a rumor that Grant had claimed that he would be in possession of the city on the Fourth of July.

The editor gayly reminded the Union commander of the old recipe for cooking rabbits, beginning: First, catch your rabbit.

Vicksburg was surrendered to Grant on the Fourth of July, and one of the first acts of the grim conqueror was to print a second edition of the Confederate newspaper, with this note added to the bantering editorial.

P.S.—July 4. The rabbit has been caught.

Path of the Sun

The sun's path is called the ecliptic. It is a great circle of the celestial sphere, cutting the celestial equator at two points 180 degrees apart and making with it an angle of 23½ degrees known as the obliquity of the ecliptic. The crossing points are called the equinoxes, because the days and nights are then equal, and the points midway between the equinoxes are the solstices, because the sun then seems to stand still for a few days.

The ecliptic is so called because eclipses occur only when the moon is crossing it or is near it, for the moon's orbit cuts the ecliptic in two points, called nodes or knots, and at other times is above or below it. If the moon when in either node, is in line with the sun and the earth we have an eclipse, either total or annular. If she is near her node we have a partial eclipse.

The moon's nodes are not stationary, but move backward on the moon's orbit, completing a revolution in about nineteen years, when the eclipses of the period recur in the same order and at about the same intervals as before. This period of eighteen years and eleven days is called the saros. It was known to the Chaldeans and the Greeks and gave them their data for computing eclipses.

Any intelligent person can trace the sun's path in the heavens. If the sun rises exactly in the east and sets in the west it is the time of the equinoxes. If the sunrise and sunset points are farthest south and the sun is very low in the heavens at noonday it is the time of the winter solstice.

Wished He Was a Comet

I wish I was a star, the dude sighed, smiling at his own poetic fancy.

I would rather you were a comet, she said dreamily.

His heart beat tumultuously.

And why? he asked, tenderly, at the same time taking her unresisting little hand in his own. And why? he repeated imperiously.

Oh, she said, with a brooding earnestness that fell freezing upon his soul, because then you would come around only once in fifteen years.

And he took his hat and went out into the shimmering moonlight.

A WARLIKE PRINCE

The Kaiser's Son Startled Berlin With His Book

Something like a sensation was caused in Berlin by the publication by the German Crown Prince of a book called 'Germany in Arms.' The book, which is most reverently dedicated to the German Emperor and the Prussian King, contains the following motto: The world does not rest more safely on the shoulders of Atlas than does Germany on her army and navy.

The Imperial editor asserts that Germany, more than any other land, has to trust to its armaments, and that as its geographical position is unfavorable, and as all nations do not regard Germany with affection, the country has the sacred duty imposed on it always to maintain its army and navy in a state of readiness. Only in this way, relying on our good sword can we maintain that place in the sun which is ours, but which will not be voluntarily conceded to us.

The Crown Prince goes on to say that diplomacy may delay the conflict for a season, but those in responsible positions must know that once a gigantic conflagration is lighted it is not so easy to extinguish.

Speaking of the delight of riding to an attack, the Prince says there is one delight still greater—namely, that of meeting the enemy at the end of the gallop and the fight for life and death.

Paris Police Use Hand Cannon

The Paris police department is equipped with what is considered an effective weapon for use in dislodging criminals who barricaded themselves in houses and defy capture, which is a habit the Paris Apaches have developed quite extensively. The weapon is a hand cannon, designed particularly for throwing bombs, which when they explode will fill a building or room with suffocating gases sufficiently powerful to overcome the occupants. The cannon, which is used behind a portable shield, which completely protects the user from bullets, looks like a piece of iron pipe, and may be carried in the hands or slung over the shoulder like a rifle. It can also be used as a fire extinguisher, for throwing life lines into the upper windows of burning buildings, forcing doors open by hurling heavy projectiles and throwing gren*ades in war time.*

One or the Other

One kid story leads to another. A Cleveland school teacher—one who has at several periods in the sweet scented past favored us with anecdotes about her pupils—sends us an account of a quiz conducted in her geography class only a day or two ago, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

In what zone do we live? asked this teacher.

The Temp'rut Zone! chanted the well drilled class.

Right. And what do we mean by temperate? Willie, you may answer.

emp'rut is where it's freezing cold half the time and roasting hot the other half of the time.

If Willie wasn't sent to the head of the class for that it wasn't because he didn't deserve the honor.

The Speed of Light

The first astronomer to satisfactorily demonstrate the speed of light was Ole Roemer, a Scandinavian scientist, who read his immortal paper on this subject before the Academy at Paris 238 years ago. Roemer's calculations and conclusions have stood the test of time and subsequent investigations on all important points. Knowledge as to the velocity of light was of tremendous importance to astronomical science, since it enabled astronomers to accurately estimate the enormous distances with which their science deals. Roemer found that light travelled at the rate of 186,000 miles in a second. The sun, being distant from the earth 92,000,000 miles, flashes light to us in eight minutes and fourteen seconds. Yet the sun is a near neighbour compared with the so-called fixed stars which in reality move with inconceivable velocity, although the most powerful telescopes will not show that velocity as anything but rest. Beyond the outskirts of our insignificant solar system are other systems, and beyond them still others, so far as the sight of man, aided by instruments, may bridge the ghastly chasm of the infinite. Distances beside which the immense line stretching from earth to sun is an invisible point are now measured by means of Roemer's epochal discovery as to the velocity of light.

Would Promise, But—

Wouldn't you promise to obey a man of whom you thought enough to marry?

I might, replied Miss Cayenne. But I should undoubtedly have a few things to say if he were ever so impolite as to remind me of my promise.

Jeweller Disguised Himself and Succeeded in Tracing Stolen Pearls

Charles Gys, a Paris jeweler, who was swindled out of three pearl necklaces by a man named Braun, by his own exertions succeeded in finding the thief and recovering the pearls.

Braun pretended to Gys that he had a customer for the necklace, but decamped when they were entrusted to him, ostensibly abandoning his wife and children. Mme. Braun exhibited great grief at being deserted, but M. Gys had a suspicion that she was aware of her husband's whereabouts, so he had his hair dyed, donned a false beard and ragged garments and completely disguised as a typical Par*isian mendicant, posted himself out*side her residence and shadowed her when she went out.

Three days passed and then, with her children she went to the railway station and took the express for Vienna. M. Gys was in the same train, and on reaching the Austrian capital he saw Braun awaiting his family on the platform. He followed the party, and learning that besides being a swindler, Braun was a deserter from the Austrian army, easily induced the authorities to issue a warrant for his arrest.

Captured after a vain endeavor to use a revolver, Braun confessed that he had pledged the necklace for $4,900 to three Parisian moneylenders. Continuing his researches, M. Gys found the bank in which Braun had deposited this money, secured evidence to show that the three moneylenders were Braun's accomplices, and had them arrested, and eventually traced the pearls.

Accomplishments

It isn't the pull that you have, men respect,
Or the help that your many friends give,
It's the effort you make all yourself to collect
The price of the life that you live.
It is fine to be helped, but it's finer by far,
In the battle for glory or pelf,
To strive for hill tops, though distant they are,
And to gain them at last by yourself.

HER SUITORS

They Wouldn't Be Refused

By ELEANOR TREADWELL

Miss Marguerite Ashton, a young lady of Chicago, was left alone in the world at nineteen by the death of father and mother with a fortune of two millions. Miss Ashton's brother had died several years before the others; consequently all her father's property descended to her. He had left the management of the estate to a young man he had brought up in his business, Edmond Warfield, in whose hands he felt that it would be perfectly safe and his daughter would reap the benefit of every cent, for Warfield was not only a man of excellent business judgment, but perfectly honest and honorable. At the time of Mr. Ashton's death Warfield was in his prime, being thirty-five years old.

The Ashtons were of the newly rich, Mr. Ashton having made the bulk of his fortune in a large real estate speculation shortly before his death. His daughter had no knowledge of the world or of society. There was no near relative with whom she could make her home, and she did not relish living alone. It was natural, therefore, that she should wish to see something of the world, and, being invited to join a party going abroad, she decided to avail herself of the opportunity.

After visiting the principal cities of western Europe Miss Ashton found herself in Rome at the most expensive hotel there. She was still the unsophisticated Chicago girl, but her surroundings had changed. This difference for her did not consist in the vast field of antiquity about her, for, although fairly educated, a girl of twenty is not likely to be versed in the literature that has been handed down to us from ancient Rome. What was new to Miss Ashton was the collection of persons from all parts of the world she found in the Eternal City. Though she obtained no entree into Roman society, she was thrown in with tourists of every variety.

EVERY HEAD WAS CRANED FORWARD, EVERY EYE AND EAR OPEN.

Rome, too, has its share of adventurers. Wherever is the American with his farfamed dollars to spend there is the adventurer, and no class is so susceptible of affording plunder for dissolute foreigners as American heiresses.

Miss Ashton could not long remain in one place without attracting the attention of these cormorants. She was simplicity itself. When visiting the golden house of Nero—and the guide showed her a ruined apartment as the emperor's smoking room—she did not stop to consider that some fifteen centuries had elapsed after Nero's time before tobacco was introduced into Europe. When inspecting tableware exhumed from Pompeii and the guide showed her certain dishes from which he told her the Pompeians drank their coffee it did not occur to her that a similar period had elapsed before Europe had begun to enjoy that beverage. It is not strange that a girl so easily deceived in these matters should put faith in any man who claimed that he loved her.

Miss Ashton spent a winter in Rome, and when spring came she had received a number of propositions of marriage. There are many princes in Italy, for every one descended from an ancient ruler of one of the formerly independent principalities of what is now United Italy bears the title of prince or princess. Among Miss Ashton's train of suitors were a prince, an English earl, a German baron and a French marquis.

It was fortunate for Miss Ashton that there were so many of these suitors that they balanced one another. Had there been but one it is quite probable that by persistence he might have won the prize. The prince poured into her ear tales of his beautiful home in Sicily, where they could dream the happy hours away. The earl pictured his estates in Hereford, England (loaded with mortgages); the baron his schloss in Westphalia, Germany. The marquis spoke eloquently of his chateau on the banks of the Loire that had been the home of kings and had descended to him through thirteen generations.

To this nobleman the young lady said that she could not think of marrying into the thirteenth generation, since that was an unlucky number.

Miss Ashton after her father's death became used to looking upon Edmond Warfield as a sort of manager for anything, irrespective of finances, that she could not manage herself. He had made all the arrangements for her trip. He had heard not a word from her since her departure till one day he received a cablegram: "Do please come to Rome at once. I am all tangled up."

Though she did not know it, Marguerite Ashton had been an object of interest to Warfield from the time she was five years old and used to climb on his lap to listen to stories he would tell her. She was to him the daughter of the man who had given him his opportunity for his life's work. He was busy at the time he received the cablegram, and it was difficult for him to leave Chicago. Nevertheless he sailed at once for Naples and in a few hours after his arrival in Italy was in Rome.

"Well, Margie, what is it?" he asked as soon as the two had settled down to business.

"I'll tell you. I can't imagine how it happened that so many men should have fallen in love with me at once. I suppose it's the Italian air or something, but it's so. And the worst of it is that none of them will be refused. There's Prince Bolozzi. I've told him again and again that I can't love him, and he threatens to jump into the Tiber. Baron Becker says if I won't go with him to his estates in Westphalia as his wife his life will hereafter be one dark cloud. Earl Biddleton pleaded his cause so pathetically that I couldn't help saying 'Yes.' I've half promised the marquis, and, indeed, there isn't one of them I'm not partly committed to."

"I see no way out of it for you," said Warfield, "but to go into a betrothal bankruptcy. However, I'll make inquiries about these gentlemen and report to you if any of them bears a good reputation. If so and you wish to marry him I'll help you out with the others—which as your guardian I have a right to do—and you can be wedded to the man of your choice whenever you like."

"There isn't any of them the man of my choice."

"Well, then, we'll have to get rid of the lot."

"How can that be done without the prince jumping into the Tiber and the marquis"—

"We'll have them locked up till they get over it."

"Oh, my goodness gracious! I could never look them in the face again."

"It would be just as well that you shouldn't. However, my dear Margie, having brought me over here to get you out of your difficulty, perhaps you'd better leave the matter to me."

"That's just what I'd like—that is, if you don't mind such an awful job."

"It won't be so hard for me as it would for you. Don't see any of them till tomorrow afternoon. Then I'll fix it all up so that you won't have any more trouble. Write each of them a note asking him to call here tomorrow at 3 p. m. to receive your final answer."

"All at once? Great heavens, I couldn't do that! They would kill one another."

Warfield persisted and went away with a note for each of the suitors, which he posted at once.

The next afternoon Warfield called before the others. He exacted a promise from Marguerite that she would bear him out in any statement he might make, though he was obliged to assure her that nothing harsh should be said to any of them.

The prince arrived at ten minutes before the appointed hour and was required to wait below. The marquis came next and the baron next. All were in the hotel at 3, and a few minutes later all received a summons to Miss Ashton's private parlor. Scarcely had one entered before there was a rap at the door and another stood at the opening. There was no time for conversation since they came so near together. Some of them recognized others as rivals, and they glared mutually. When they had all been admitted Warfield, who was formally introduced to them, said:

"Gentlemen, Miss Ashton has desired me to announce to you that, having been honored by a proposition of marriage from each and all of you, she has considered your propositions and come to a conclusion."

The speaker paused and cleared his throat, while the visitors were visibly agitated with expectancy.

Miss Ashton looked from her advocate to the men, whom she expected to either kill one another or commit suicide if refused, like a frightened bird. Warfield proceeded:

"Having carefully weighed the matter in her mind, Miss Ashton has decided to bestow her hand on"—

Every head was craned forward, every eye and ear open.

"Myself."

There was a rumbling of voices similar to that accompanying an earthquake. In another moment Warfield turned toward Marguerite and asked:

"Do you confirm what I have said?"

"Yes, I do!" exclaimed the girl as if she were casting off a burden.

The suitors withdrew in a body, to separate as soon as possible, leaving Warfield and Marguerite together.

"How did you know that?" asked the latter.

"Know what?"

"Why, that I liked you better than any of them?"

Warfield, who was amazed at the revelation, was about to reply "I didn't," but instead he said, "A little bird whispered it in my ear."

EXECUTIVE ABILITY.

What Tom L. Johnson Whispered to the Young Mayor of Toledo.

In the American Magazine Mayor Brand Whitlock of Toledo, O., writing his autobiography, tells the following story:

"I had gone into the mayor's office feeling that I was about the most ill prepared man for such a job in the town. Naturally I had turned to Tom Johnson, who had a tremendous reputation as an executive. Even his worst enemy, as the saying is, would not deny his wonderful executive ability. I went to him in a sort of despair, and he laughed and whispered:

" 'It's the simplest thing in the world. Decide every question quickly and be right half the time. And get somebody who can do the work. That's all there is to executive ability.'

"I looked at him in amazement. He had grown quite serious.

" 'There's another thing,' he added. 'Don't spend too much time in your office. A quarter of an hour each day is generally too long unless there are a whole lot of letters. Of course,' he went on reflectively, 'you can get clerks who can sign your name better than you can.'

"He that hath ears to hear, let him hear."

Butter In Tubes.

In India butter spoils so rapidly when exposed to the warm moist air that government officials are planning to pack it in collapsible tin tubes with screw nozzles—like the tubes in which printing ink, oil paints and certain pastes are sold. Eventually on the dining tables of Indian hotels and restaurants the guests may find "butter tubes," from which each person can squeeze upon his plate as much butter as he may need. The tubes will be made in one pound, half pound and quarter pound sizes. They will be of pure tin, since the volatile fatty acids in butter attack lead and copper and form poisonous and unsightly compounds.

The Lost Watch.

A detective tells this story about a "confidence man," who gave the police a lot of trouble.

One day the detective was in an auction room, where "fake" jewelry was being sold. A lot of watches were offered—cheap, worthless affairs, but got up to look like solid gold. They were knocked down for $2.15 apiece, and the detective noted that they were bought by this confidence man. Two months later the detective met him and asked him what he had done with the watches. The scoundrel explained his scheme. He had hired a room, put in a desk and a few chairs and made himself up to look like an old man. Then he advertised something like this: "Found—A solid gold watch. Loser can have it by paying costs. Apply," etc. Nearly every smart thief in town answered the advertisement, claimed the watch and paid $10 for "costs." In two days he disposed of his entire stock in this way, and about 100 smart thieves were fuming over their loss.

Helped by an Earthquake.

Gallipoli, the ancient Callipolis (beautiful city), passed into the hands of the Turks in a remarkable fashion nearly a century before Constantinople. It was among their first European acquisitions. Invited over by Christians to take part in the quarrels, they had crossed the Dardanelles and seized the castle of Tzympe. Then in 1358 came a terrific earthquake, which shattered the cities of Thrace. The walls of Gallipoli fell down, the inhabitants deserted the place, and the Turks marched in over the ruins and stayed there in spite of the remonstrances of the Emperor Cantacuzenus. The Sultan Orkhan replied that providence had opened the city to his soldiers and he could not be guilty of the impiety of disregarding such a manifestation of the divine will.

WAITING FOR THE DROP.

When It Didn't Come It Got on His Nerves.

A traveling man stopped at an Indiana hotel. The proprietor told him he had not a room in the house. The man protested. He must have a room. Finally the proprietor told him there was a room, a little room separated by a thin partition from a nervous man, a man who had lived in the house for ten years.

"He is so nervous," said the landlord, "I don't dare put any one in that room. The least noise might give him a nervous spell that would endanger his life."

"Oh, give me a room," said the traveler. "I'll be so quiet he'll not know I'm there."

The room was given the traveler. He slipped in noiselessly and began to disrobe. He took off one article of clothing after another as quietly as a burglar. At last he came to his shoes. He unlaced a shoe and then, manlike, dropped it.

The shoe fell to the floor with a great noise. The offending traveler, horrified at what he had done, waited to hear from the nervous man. Not a sound. He took off the second shoe and placed it noiselessly upon the floor, then in absolute silence finished undressing and crawled between the sheets.

Half an hour went by. He had dropped into a doze when there came a tremendous knocking on the partition.

The traveler sat up in bed trembling and dismayed. "Wh-wha-what's the matter?" he asked.

Then came the voice of the nervous man:

"Hang you! Drop that other shoe will you?"—Philadelphia Press.

A Lightning Change Artist.

A young minister was invited to spend his vacation at the summer home of a wealthy member of his congregation. The little daughter watched the young man very closely during the visit and one morning sat down beside him and began to draw on her slate.

"What are you doing?" the minister inquired.

'I'm going to draw your picture," replied the child.

The young man sat very still, and the little girl worked away very earnestly. Suddenly she stopped and compared her work with the original.

"I don't like it very much," she said. "I guess I'll put a tail on it and call it a dog."—New York Evening Post.

His Synonym For Quick Retreat.

In the sixth grade the teacher was questioning a boy about Napoleon's disastrous invasion of Russia and the subsequent retreat from Moscow.

"What did the French do then?" she asked.

"They ran away," replied the boy.

"Yes, that is what they did," said the teacher, "but 'ran away' is hardly the correct phrase to use. What should you have said?"

The boy's face lighted up with understanding.

"They beat it!" he exclaimed quite proudly.—Kansas City Journal.

Didn't Know When to Stop.

"The great men are all dead," she said with evident regret.

"But the beautiful women are not," he replied, looking earnestly at her.

"Of course," she added after a moment's reflection, "I always except present company."

"So do I," he said.

Then she asked if he would be good enough to conduct her to her husband —Judge.

Knew His Ground.

"You say this man is no chicken stealer?" inquired the judge.

"Yassuh," replied Erastus Pinkley. "Da's whut I said."

"What do you know about the facts in this case?"

"I isn' s'posed to know nuffin' 'bout de facks in de case. I is an expert witness foh de defense."—Washington Star.

A Novel Charge.

For the first time in Canada, it is said, a charge was laid the other day in Toronto which is not without considerable interest. It is termed "Conspiring to compensate."

In January last Louis Siegel was arrested for stealing a large quantity of furs, and Abraham Panser went bail for him.

It is now alleged that Panser was compensated for so doing, to the extent of $25, and Nathan Shapiro, along with Louis Panser, are said to have negotiated the amount.

Shapiro got a loan of a diamond pin, pawned it and then got some more money from Louis Panser, with the ticket as security.

All three are now charged with the conspiracy.

There have been convictions in the old country on a similar count and it is on the English law that the present charge is now made.

GENERAL PICKETT.

The Friendship Between Him and Lincoln and Grant.

A NOVEL BATTLEFIELD SCENE

When the Blue and the Gray Joined In a Birthday Celebration—A Meeting With Grant In Washington—Lincoln's Visit to Mrs. Pickett.

In Mrs. Pickett's introductory chapter to "The Heart of a Soldier, As Revealed In the Intimate Letters of General George E. Pickett, C. S. A," there is an extremely interesting story. It appears that while at Richmond, just after the surrender, she was summoned to the door by a sharp rap. She gives a charming account of what followed:

With my baby on my arm I answered the knock, opened the door and looked up at a tall, gaunt, sad faced man in ill fitting clothes, who, with the accent of the north, asked:

"Is this George Pickett's place?"

"Yes, sir," I answered, "but he is not here."

"I know that, ma'am," he replied, "but I just wanted to see the place. I am Abraham Lincoln."

"The president!" I gasped.

The stranger shook his head and said: "No, ma'am; no, ma'am. Just Abraham Lincoln; George's old friend."

"I am George Pickett's wife, and this is his baby," was all I could say.

My baby pushed away from me and reached his hands to Mr. Lincoln, who took him in his arms. As he did so an expression of rapt, almost divine tenderness and love lighted up the sad face. It was a look that I have never seen on any other face. My baby opened his mouth wide and insisted upon giving his father's friend a dewy, infantile kiss. As Mr. Lincoln gave the little one back to me, shaking his finger at him playfully, he said:

"Tell your father, the rascal, that I forgive him for the sake of that kiss and those bright eyes."

Mrs. Pickett explains the interest Lincoln showed in her husband by stating that it was through Mr. Lincoln's influence that her husband received his appointment to West Point.

One impression the book conveys is that of the kindly and generous feeling that existed between Confederates and Unionists graduated from West Point who had been friends before the war. An exhibition of this feeling was made at the time of the birth of General Pickett's first baby. Mrs. Pickett, telling the story, says:

On the occasion of my son's birth bonfires were lighted in celebration all along Pickett's line. Grant saw them and sent scouts to learn the cause. When they reported he said to General Ingalls: "Haven't we some kindling on this side of the line? Why don't we strike a light for the young Pickett?"

In a little while bonfires were flaming from the Fereral line. A few days later there was taken through the lines a baby's silver service engraved, "To George E. Pickett, Jr., from his father's friends, U. S. Grant, Rufus Ingalls, George Suckley."

General Pickett, in a letter from Washington, relates another incident in which this same kindly feeling was manifested:

After breakfast we went, as arranged, to see Grant. I can't just tell you, my darling, about that visit. You'll have to wait till I see you to tell you l w the warm hearted, modest old warrior and loyal friend met me; how he took in his the hand of your heart-sore soldier—poor, broken, defeated, profession gone—and, looking at him for a moment without speaking, said slowly, "Pickett, if there is anything on the top of God's green earth I can do for you, say so." * * *

When I started to go Grant pulled down a checkbook and said, "Pickett, it seems funny, doesn't it, that I should have any money to offer, but how much do you need?"

"Not any, old fellow; not a cent, thank you," I said. "I have plenty."

"But Rufus tells me that you have begun to build a house to take the place of the one old Butler burned, and how can you build it without money? You do need some."

"I have sold some timber to pay for it," I told him, and to show my appreciation and gratitude, unobserved, I affectionately squeezed his leg, when he called out: "Rufus, it's the same old George Pickett. Instead of pulling my leg, he's squeezing it."

Sugar For the Heart.

Sugar is a splendid medicine for the heart in certain diseases of this organ. In others, such as oedema, it has no effect. In the London Lancet is reported the cure of a woman of seventy-seven with "rapid, irregular, feeble pulse, cyanosis and attacks of paroxysmal breathing" by the administration of four ounces of lump sugar every twelve hours, gradually diminishing the dose for several weeks.

Editor The Review,

I regret having contributed as I did some twenty-eight dollars since there was a missing link, no band being present. I have in mind a small village of about 100 people in the old country who had their own brass band which cheered and put life into the place. This was started by a Dane who followed the occupation of truck gardening for a living and in his spare time taught the young men of the village how to play. The instruments were purchased on deferred payments guaranteed by a few of the principal residents. Eighteen months afterwards the receipts from band attendances liquidated all debts. Cannot this be achieved by Courtenay? Echo answers "YES."

If there is any man around Courtenay who is capable of acting as bandmaster will he kindly communicate with Harry Idiens, Courtenay.
